Nancy Whiskey & Her Teetotallers (3), Pete Martin, Tommy Loman, John & Betty Royle, St. Dennis Sisters, Larry Davis, Wilton Family (4), Moxon Girls (5), J. P. Masterton Orch.

Nancy Whiskey, w.k. recording folk-chirper, has re-formed under the billing of Nancy Whiskey & Her Teetotallers. Distaffer scores here at head of so-so layout, first of the new star-topped vaude bills presented by local impresarios, the Frutin brothers. She wins strong reaction the more because she's actually a local gal, bred hereabouts before she became known via tv and waxings.

She gives out with her new tune "Johnny-O," which she sings in the pic "The Golden Disc," and also with "Kisses Sweeter Than Wine," "He's Solid Gone" and for local flavoring, a Scot ballad titled "An Auld Man Cam' A-Wooin' Me!" She's backed by a trio of instrumentalists given the cute billing of Teetotallers.

The Wilton Family are two males and two femmes, one obviously the mama of group, who click pleasantly with homely song and music. John & Betty Royle sing sweetly, the two blonde St. Dennis Sisters harmonize blithely in current pops and exude a cheerful air, and Larry Davis also aids in the singing dept. Pete Martin is a corpulent funnyman with remarkably good singing voice and whistling skill. Tommy Loman, another Scot comedian, supports in sketches. Gord.

Ringling's Goes Back to Barnum; '58 Edition Dumps 'Moderne' Stuff

By LEONARD TRAUBE

John Ringling North is now fielding a layout that shows more respect for formats he himself discarded 20 years ago. The return to "tradition" was invoked by him last season following the folding of the historic tented enterprise in mid-July of 1956. This is the second semester for a show styled to play buildings, and as such seems also much less costly to bring in and to tour over the arena circuit. In fact, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey, teeing off at New York's Madison Square Garden last week (2) for a run to May 11, has so much of "that old (standard) feeling" that Ed Sullivan could have a romp with it for his opening or closing flashes over a season or two on the electronic bigtime. Typical of the old era is the Zacchini cannon, back after a long hiatus.

It is characteristic of North that, having been the first to initiate the Broadway and Hollywood shenanigans into the Big One pre-World War II, he should be the one to revive the orthodox. He is a businessman first. He is becoming more and more a true Ringling scion, son of Ida Ringling North, only sister of the five founding freres. It is almost as if the antique Garland Entry and the Living Statues were taken out of their tombs; and for the modern generation, these attractions would be new and undoubtedly as fascinating as their forebears found them.

It is a snappy show with great splashes of color, splendiferous trappings and a quota of thrills. Certainly not in nearly 30 years of one reviewer's experience has there been such a fast premiere runoff. Usually they dawdle along for about three and a half hours. Last Wednesday, discounting about 10 minutes out for intermission and another quarter-hour or so for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund and N. Y. Firemen ceremonies, the running time was two and a half hours. The billing read a 7:30 curtain (prevailing Mondays through Thursdays, with Friday-Saturday at 8:30 and Sunday evening at 6:30), but the veteran Pat Valdo blew the whistle at 8 and the finale came at 11 o'clock.

It's down to size and time because most of the acts are on and off fast, there are fewer animals to contend with and there's a minimum of waste by reason of a new riggling plan that seems less complicated and much more serviceable.

A Dozen 'Firsts'

There are a dozen turns with "first time in America" billing. The first of these displayed are Manuel Santos (& Dely), a wire act from Spain with male doing a forward somersault as highlight in centre ring. In same stanza, the Salotis operate on bikes. The Two Suns are suspended by their hair and Tony Durkin does a risely routine. Another newie is Yvonne's Dogs, a good novelty flanked by Tiebor's Seals, a hardy perennial though with only a couple of flippers, and Snyder's Boxers.

Carmen Del Tiede works gracefully on a high trapeze in a display with Frankie Doyle who features heel balancing on trap. In the juggling group, the debut performers are Kolmedy with hoop tossing on a unicycle, juggling by Bratty while hanging by his hair, using a trough to grab his props in an excellent turn, and Bert Holt, maneuvering hoops in a phosphorescent caper aloft while suspended by his teeth. In the perch division, one of the best on the card, the Canovas work a forehead and arm-to-head spar. The teeterboard and kindred artists have their inning with five troupes operating, the "new to America" tag going to the Szabos, on springboards, the Sorianis, in a dashing display on trampoline, and the Six Verdus on rolling globes.

Opening salvo goes to the wild animals, with a corker in the centre ring in Klauser's Bears, complemented by a little girl dressed as Goldilocks. The end rings have Joe Horwath giving the eye to tigers and Albert Nix with a group of polar bears.

Elephants (16); Specs (4)

Like last year, the three performing elephant groups add up to 16, half of them of the non-ponderous variety; which squares with the theme music for the pachyderms, titled "Baby Me Mine," cleffed by North. The impresario and Tony Velona have again collaborated on a number of tunes, mostly for the four specs, with Velona, officiating as the show's director for the first time (a post long held by Richard Barstow who was the stager with choreographer Edith Barstow), responsible for the lyrics.

First of the massive numbers is the aerial ballet with some three dozen cuties on the webs and French tootsie Maryse Begare above centre ring on a trap, finishing off with 33 one-arm planges, now rarely seen, and notable also in that the mamselle is a southpaw. Direction of the ether didoes is by Margaret Smith, show's stager, and the thematic song is "Up I Go."

Pre-intermission spec is an eye-arresting Arabian pageant yclept "1000 and One Nights," with a traditional score set off by a North-Velona brace, "I Am a Melody" and "Two of Us." These and other originals are vocalled romantically by Don Forbes, who's also the announcer. Third spectacle is a western farrago titled "Bless My Britches," with song of same name. It's an oldtimey thing, brilliantly lighted and costumed, and featuring Charles Moroski and Gina Lipowska with a Liberty horse and the haute ecole by Marion Seifert and Lynn Brent.

A Couple of Zacchinis

Fourth spec comes at finale, a "Yankee Doodle Doo" flagwaver out of the George M. Cohan file. The end is a thunderous one, via "two human spacegirls shot skyward from an atomic cannon." This is the long-time-no-see Zacchini projectile act with sex added, the Zacchini Sisters. It's a double shot, one right after the other, and a smash finish.

Back in the '20s and for a string of seasons, the flight boys were Hugo and Vittorio Zacchini, and there have been others, with Edmundo still calling the shots. Last spring, Palisades Park across the river day-and-dated Ringling with a tent show that featured a Zacchini girl in the shot that clicked, so this year R-B brings back the stuff with the atomic identification. Palisades currently presents the Clyde Beatty and Hamid-Morton circuses (see review), featuring Hugo Zacchini's cannon.

Alzana's Injury

At the opening show, the pre-finale star was Harold Alzana on the high wire in the most exciting act on the bill. Last season he was accompanied by a troupe, but this year he's solo. He gets to the high wire by ascending to it on an adjacent cable in a stunner all by itself. Then his fancy balancing, sans pole, for the main business which had the crowd ga-ga. Just a matter of making the more difficult descent on the cable and hitting for the showers. But about one-third of the way down, at a height of 16 feet or so, he lost his grip and shot to the ground leftward. The house lights quickly were doused as cameramen and personnel gathered. Alzana was removed on a stretcher and taken to St. Clare's Hospital with a fractured left wrist and left leg. Two days later, his place was taken by a newcomer to the show, Gene Mendez, a Puerto Rican resident in Brooklyn. Alzana was expected to be out in a couple of weeks, but whether he will work the wire before the N. Y. engagement ends is not known now.

The Scriplini Chimps are still stealing the show with their behavior. There are five of 'em riding scooters, operating on horizontal bars and as an orchestra with one simian in ballerina regalia. They get and rate the centre ring solo.

Clown Alley takes half a dozen trips into the arena for an assortment of walkarounds and productions. The latter includes Paul Jung's conception of a journey to the moon which ends off in a lilliputian emerging from a sputnik; a baseball game; Lou Jacobs & Junior Jeep. The veteran Otto Griebling works throughout the show as the sourpuss tramp clown.

Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey Circus

JOHN RINGLING NORTH production, directed by Tony Velona, staged by Margaret Smith; general director, Pat Valdo; equestrian director, Robert Dover; Justino Loyal, assistant; designed by Erte, Gerard Hordijk, Bartoli, Bob Willy, Jose De Zamora, Winniford Morton; production numbers, costumes and floats created by Max Weldy; chorsography, Chet Tolliver; musical director, Izzy Cervone; orchestrations, Cervone, Ted Sommers; music, North; lyrics, Velona; lighting, Dean McMurray; announcer-vocalist, Don Forbes; executive director, Arthur M. Concello.

ACTS (as per program and in order of appearance): Klauser's Bears with Goldilocks, Joe Horwath Tigers, Albert Nix Bears, Ibarra Bros., Miss Antoinette, Didi Yonge, Rusty Parent, Hugo Schmitt-Edward Healy-Benjamin White's Elephants, Maryse Begare & Aerial Ballet, Manuel Santos & Dely, Salotis, Goetchis, Ala Ming, Lola Dobritch, Paul Jung's "Journey to Moon," Yong Bros. & Sister, Young China, Tony Durkin, Two Suns, Kalchi Namba, Yvonne's Dogs, Tiebor's Seals, Snyder's Boxers, Lou Jacobs' Junior Jeep, Carmen Del Teide, Frankie Doyle, "1000 & 1 Nights," Flying Alexanders, Flying Rockets, Kolmedy, Bisbinis, Drougettes, Bert Holt, Bratty, Charles Moroski-Gina Lipowska-Marion Seifert-Lynn Brent & "Bless My Britches," Scilpini's Chimps, Canovas, Del Morals, Aguilars, Gadires, Kayarts, Szabos, Bokaras, Glenhills, Sorianis, Six Verdus, Harold Alzana, "Yankee Doodle Doo" & Zacchini Sisters. At Madison Square Garden, N. Y., April 2-May 11, '58; $6.50 top.

Show on Broadway

Say, Darling

Jule Styne & Lester Osterman production of three-act (14 scenes) musical comedy by Richard Bissell, Abe Burrows and Marian Bissell, based on the Richard Bissell novel of the same title, with lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green, music by Jule Styne. Staged by Burrows; scenery, Oliver Smith; costumes, Alvin Colt; lighting, Peggy Clark; dance staging, Matt Mattox; pianists, Colin Romoff and Peter Howard; associate producer, George Gilbert. Stars David Wayne, Vivian Blaine, Johnny Desmond; features Jerome Cowan, Constance Ford, Horace McMahon, Robert Morse, Walter Klavun, Matt Mattox. At ANTA Playhouse, N.Y., April 3, '58; $7.50 top ($11 opening).

Mr. Schneider ..... Gordon B. Clarke
Frankie Jordan ..... Constance Ford
Jack Jordan ..... David Wayne
Photographer ..... Jack Naughton
Airline Pilot ..... Jack Manning
Ted Snow ..... Robert Morse
Secretary ..... Eileen Letchworth
Schatzie Harris ..... Horace McMahon
Richard Hackett ..... Jerome Cowan
Irene Lovell ..... Vivian Blaine
Rudy Lorraine ..... Johnny Desmond
Musicians ..... Wendell Marshall, Peter Howard
Stage Manager ..... Robert Downing
Pianist ..... Colin Romoff
Arlene McKee ..... Wana Allison
Jennifer Stevenson ..... Jean Mattox
Earl Jorgeson ..... Elliott Gould
Cheryl Merrill ..... Virginia Martin
Accompanist ..... Peter Howard
Sammy Miles ..... Steve Condos
Rex Dexter ..... Mitchell Gregg
Boris Reshevsky ..... Matt Mattox
Walter ..... Jack Naughton
Morty Krebs ..... Walter Klavun
Tatiana ..... Jean Mattox
Joyce ..... Kelly Leteh

Others: Marcella Dodge, Barbara Holt, Julie Marlowe, Carolyn Morris, Charles Morrell, Richarr Tone, Calvin von Reinhold.

Songs: "Try to Love Me," "It's Doom," "The Husking Bee," "It's the Second Time You Meet That Matters," "Chief of Love," "Say, Darling," "The Carnival Song," "Dance Only With Me," "Something's Always Happening on the River."

This is a little tough to explain—a musical comedy based on a novel about how a musical comedy was based on a novel. Just to confuse matters a bit more, this show is likely to be done as a picture one of these days, as was the previous musical. Moreover, there's always the possibility that Richard Bissell, who's had a hand in the authorship of both novels and shows, may extract still another novel from this new show. Obviously that sort of thing could go on indefinitely.

Well, the important thing at the moment is that "Say, Darling" is an amusing show, probably good enough to beat the traditional rap against show biz shows. It's undoubtedly a bit tradey for general audience, but enough of it shou'd be clear for the production to make the grade at the boxoffice. It may also be a prospect for the road, and is a likely bet for films and stock.

Bissell started this writing snowball with a novel, "7½ Cents," about a strike in a midwest pajama factory. It was adapted as a musical, "The Pajama Game," with Bissell collaborating on the book (the musical was also filmed under the same title). Next, Bissell wrote another novel, "Say, Darling," about a writer whose novel is adapted as a musical comedy. It became a Book-of-the-Month Club selection and its plainly identifiable characters caused a finger-pointing flurry in the trade.

Now the "Say, Darling" novel has been made into another musical comedy, of the same title, and it is considerably more entertaining than the novel. It's livelier, for one thing, has less suggestion of straining for humorous effect, and is in better taste. Perhaps the improvement stems from the affectionate nature of the treatment.

"Say, Darling" is an unusual sort of show. It's primarily a musical comedy, of course, but also resembles a comedy with music. It's sub-billed "A comedy about a musical," and it's that, too. It's unquestionably a comedy, anyway, being loaded with laughs, especially for the show business crowd who will recognize the characters, be familiar with the background and relish the inside jokes.

The emphasis on backstage life, both actual and fictional, by columnists and tv in recent years has undoubtedly done a good deal to educate the general public about show biz, and that will help "Say, Darling" at the b.o. More important, of course, is the fact that many of the jokes, even the trade jokes, are self-explanatory. And most vital is that the characters are essentially likable and the background and situation are authentic.

Although the story of "Say, Darling" is slight, it's the dominant element in the show. It's primarily the saga of a midwest writer who is snared into the maelstrom of Broadway production with its intense personal and professional involvements, and manages to make good without quite wrecking his marriage.

The songs vary a good deal in quality. One is obviously intended to be bad (and succeeds emphatically) and another is presumably not supposed to be good (or is it?). But just as a showgoer may begin to fret over the lack of a real sock tune, the next-to-closing scene brings up an unmistakable pop, "Something's Always Happening on the River," sung by top-star David Wayne as the writer, with the company joining in the choruses. The scene is the traditional hotel room in New Haven and the situation is a conference at which they're presenting the new material that will save the show-within-a-show.

Instead of somehow shifting the locale of that rousing number to a Broadway theatre so it could tie up the story with the triumphant opening-night finale of the show-within-a-show, a static scene follows for an anti-climactic inside joke about the author's seemingly endless writing parlay. That's one of the curious weak spots of "Say, Darling." But it's not fatal.

There are no formal dance numbers in the show, but one capsule routine is presented as part of a rehearsal. Matt Mattox, who staged this bit, also dances the lead impressively, and has a couple of other informal terp interludes. The show is capably staged by Abe Burrows, who collaborated with Bissell and his wife, Marian Bissell, on the book. There, too, the feeling of authenticity is an asset.

Wayne gives one of his most engaging performances as the writer who can sing a hoedown number or interrupt an audition pleasantly by harmonizing an old hymn. Vivian Blaine is beautifully cast as the slipping Hollywood star determined to make a comeback in legit, belting several songs expertly and projecting the right note of performer frenzy, and cabaret-recording singer Johnny Desmond, making his Broadway debut, is standout as an egomaniac songwriter (according to trade scuttlebutt, the authors have gone outside the actualy personnel of "Pajama Game," taking another top-name composer-lyricist as the model for this character).

Jerome Cowan is appropriately relaxed and businesslike as the noted stage director-author, and Constance Ford is effective if possibly a shade too theatrically attractive as the writer's not-too-patient wife who learns to hate Connecticut, stationwagons, commuting on the New Haven, PTA's and Gristede Bros.

Horace McMahon is plausibly diverting as an effusive, if not hysterical pressagent, while Walter Klavun presents merely a caricature of a self-important theatrical angel with tryout "suggestions." Robert Morse offers a hilarious cartoon as the ostentatiously sincere, mannered boy producer. He convulsed first-nighters who recognized (or thought they did) one of the acidly-drawn characters from the book.

Oliver Smith's fluidly moving scenery, enhanced by Peggy Clark's skillful lighting and Alvin Colt's appropriate costumes, provide believable atmosphere, and the piano accompaniment of Colin Romoff and Peter Howard supplies a convincing suggestion of backstage informality.

It's getting late in the season and "Say, Darling" will have to make it at the boxofffice without the critical support of the "big two" New York dailies, the Times and the News. But in spite of its somewhat special appeal, it should get enough favorable word-of-mouth, with heavy theatre party bookings to give it a start. Hobe.

Dance Review

Martha Graham Co.

The B. de Rothschild Foundation presentation of Martha Graham and her Dance Company in "Clytemnestra," a new three-part dance-drama with music by Halim El-Dabh and choreography by Miss Graham. Produced by Gertrude Macy and Stanley Gilkey; setting, Isamu Noguchi; costumes, Miss Graham; lighting, Jean Rosenthal; soloists, Bethany Beardsley, Robert Goss; conductor, Eugene Lester. At Adelphi Theatre, N.Y., April 1, '58; $4.60 top.

It's about time that America dubbed Martha Graham "Dame Martha." While she has been first lady of American dance for longer than it would be gallant to mention, the immediate occasion for this un-United States-ian suggestion is the opening of Miss Graham's all-too-brief Spring repertory season at the Adelphi Theatre of a new dance-drama, "Clytemnestra," based on familiar tragic Grecian legends.

By virtue of "special commissioning," which is semantic doubletalk for "subsidy," Miss Graham has been able to create with Egyptian composer Halim El-Dabh a dance occasion that is a true creative fusion of music and dance design. To allot credits when and as due Miss Graham's choreography has been commissioned by the B. de Rothschild Foundation, Halim

(Continued on page 117)

Frederick O'Neal Again Heads Negro Performers

Frederick K. O'Neal has been re-elected chairman of the board of the Coordinating Council for Negro Performers Inc. He was named at a recent meeting of the organization's directors.

Others chosen were Frances Foster, first vice chairman; William Branch, second vice chairman; Maxwell Glanville, third vice chairman; Maxine Sullivan, fourth vice chairman, and Leroy Butler, treasurer.

'Mousetrap' Hits 2,239th Next Week to Become London Long-Run Champ

London, April, 1.

"The Mousetrap," Agatha Christie's whodunit, will play its 2,239th performance April 12. It will thus become the longest running production in the history of the British stage, beating the 36-year-old record of the musical, "Chu Chin Chow."

"The Mousetrap," with one set and a cast of eight, and costing around $11,000 to stage, opened Nov. 25, 1952. The critical notices were more amiable than rave.

The Christie thriller has thus far grossed around $1,400,000. Tickets are selling throughout 1958, but the run will be interrupted briefly while the theatre will be closed to permit the installation of new seats when producer Peter Saunders takes over the lease.

"The Mousetrap" was written virtually by Royal Command. To celebrate the late Queen Mary's 80th birthday the BBC asked her what birthday present she would like. The Queen replied: "A new play by Agatha Christie." So the plump, greying, matronly novelist playwright (67 this year) wrote a 30-minute thriller called "Three Blind Mice" and later expanded it to a full-length stage play with the present title.

Saunders, 47-year-old, soft-spoken producer who quit newspaper work 20 years ago to press-agent bandleader Harry Roy, sank his army gratuity into his first production 11 years ago. Since then he has had more successes than flops. But it is his association with Mrs. Christie that has founded his present prosperity. Apart from "Mousetrap," he has presented three other Christie sokos, "The Hollow," "Witness for the Prosecution" and "Spider's Web."

Off-B'way Review

The Time of the Cuckoo

Equity Library Theatre, Inc. revival of two-act comedy by Arthur Laurents. Staged by Jack P. Ragotzy; setting, Boyd Dumrose. At Lenox Hill Playhouse, N.Y., March 29, '58; admission by contribution.

Cast: Pepa Kantor, Craig Huebing, Dorothy Love, Reva Rose, Margaret Draper, Yvonne Gaudry, Hollis Mitchell, Kerry Joels, Alan Furlan, Garry Phillips.

Equity Library Theatre's revival of "The Time of the Cuckoo" is a relaxedly colloquial production that recaptures much of the flavor of the kindly romance Arthur Laurents wrote about an attractive maiden lady at liberty in Venice. This production makes it clear that the character transcends the play.

During the 1952-53 Broadway season, "Cuckoo" was so tailor-made for the talents of Shirley Booth that it is difficult to dissociate the play from memory of her performance. Margaret Draper has this leading role, and by virtue of playing what seems to be a combination of herself, the character and recollection of Miss Booth, she achieves a nice blend that is one of the chief virtues of a pretty revival.

Jack P. Ragotzy has staged the production with both an eye and ear for atmosphere, with an awareness for the piece's sensitive nostalgia, and he has created a hot Italian summer's sleepiness without letting the play's pace slip over into somnolence.

The cast is quietly competent. Craig Huebing and Dorothy Love play the loving-warring young couple. Miss Love is pleasantly decorative, and Huebing shows promise as a member of that vanishing species, the good young leading man. Reva Rose, who has played the part of the plain serving-girl before, knows just how and where to get the laughs.

The steely-gray haired handsome Venetian who profoundly disturbs Leona's emotions and moralities is played with quiet dignity by Alan Furlan. His performance is typical of the production's tranquil proficiency. Geor.

Opera Review

The Ballad of Baby Doe

Opera in two acts. Music by Douglas Moore and lyrics by John Latouche. Staged by Vladimir Rosing. Settings by Donald Oenslager. Conducted by Emerson Buckley. Presented in repertory by the N.Y. City Center Opera Co. premiering April 3, 1958; $3.80 top.

Old Silver Miner ..... Howard Fried
Saloon Bartender ..... Chester Ludgin
Horace Tabor ..... Walter Cassel
Sam, Bushy, Barney, Jacob ..... Keith Kaldenberg, Jack De Lon, George Del Monte, Arthur Newman
Augusta ..... Martha Lipton
Elizabeth (Baby) Doe ..... Beverly Sills
Kate and Mag ..... Naomi Collier, Helen Baisley
Samantha ..... Lou Rodgers
Clerk ..... Keith Keldenberg
Albert ..... Arthur Newman
Sarah, Mary, Emily, Effie ..... Mary Le-Sawyer, Jenny Andrea, Anita Alpert, Barbara Lockard
McCourt Family ..... Helen Baisley, Naomi Collier, Nicola Barsuscl, William Zakariasen
Mama McCourt ..... Beatrice Krebs
Washington Dandies ..... Edison Heol, William Elliott, Peter Sliker, John Dennison
Father Chapelle ..... Howard Fried
Footman ..... Arthur Newman
Chester A. Arthur ..... Jack De Lon
Elizabeth and Silver Dollar ..... Lynn Taussig, Barbara Becker
Mayor of Leadville ..... Robert Ruddy
William Jennings Bryan ..... Joshua Hecht
Stage Doorman ..... Howard Fried
A Denver Politician ..... Chester Ludgin

In a new twist on "Watch the Fords Go By" the N.Y. City Centre is projecting a spring season of 10 American operas, made possible by $105,000 from the Ford Foundation. Among many thoughts that clamor for expression let this come first: a musician-turned-impresario by the name of Jules Rudell may end up by giving artsy-craftsy foundations a good name among theatrical professionals.

For "The Ballad of Baby Doe," taken in its own terms, was a resoundingly successful first event of this cycle. Devotees of the established repertory may argue that it is not "grand" opera. It is not. But it is superbly vital and richly native "lyric drama" which sings its head off and is surprisingly exciting theatre.

Those who are quick to declare they care only for voice and who advise giving operatic acting to the children and the novelty recital platform may snoot "Baby Doe." There are, of course, significant resemblances to the Broadway musical stage both in Douglas Moore's melodic line and in the late John Latouche's sense of stage wit, action and scene. Add, too, the staging of Vladimir Rosing which maintains an almost unbelievable speeded tempo for opera.

The opening night audience became increasingly exultant as scene followed scene, as the accumulative power of the work, and the success of the production became clear. It was an exceptionally satisfying achievement in which many talents shared deserved acclaim.

Martha Lipton, who so often is relegated at the Metropolitan to minor roles in the Wagnerian and Italian repertory, may have had her finest professional night as the rejected wife, Augusta Tabor. Having originated the role when "Baby Doe" was first mounted two summers ago in Central City, Colorado, Miss Lipton's authority was very noticeable indeed. Though the part is one of torment, the love songs belonging to her successful rival, and though she is first seen as a social snob and a dull wife, Miss Lipton grows with the story. Her suffering is as compassionate as her singing. Both as an actress and as an operatic voice she emerges as a "discovery" at—not by—the Metropolitan.

Beverly Sills and Walter Cassel are the remaining sides of the triangle. They bring well trained and managed voices to their assignments and realize their parts well, though the character of Tabor, and his faith in silver, when Wall Street was setting it up for gold, does not have the detailed characterization Latouche wrote into the two women.

Cassel, also a Met vet and a Sunday soloist at Dr. Ervin Seale's Carnegie Hall services, was, like Miss Sills, and indeed like Miss Lipton, rising to the occasion of a great musical adventure and a ringing evening.

Latouche who, in his grave, is definitely a hero of the occasion, packed the truelife history of Tabor and his two wives, and the people of Leadville and Denver into a book rich in Americana. Scenes are tied together with a series of lantern slide projections of old drawings and photographs of the period and the region. The book includes President Chester Arthur, William Jennings Bryan and a galaxy of characters—many of them doubled at the City Center, some tripled. Arresting character comments are provided by four foreign exquisites at a Washington ball and by the genteel gossips of Denver who keep jabbing Augusta Tabor where it hurts—in her pride as a woman.

Not the least original of the many fresh, uninhibited partnerships in situation and song perpetrated by Messrs. Moore and Latouche is having a political campaign speech (by Bryan, sung by Joshua Hecht) transformed into an operatic aria and having a president of the United States (Jack De Mon) warble. Another stalwart of the evening was the beguilingly vulgar mother of Baby Doe, sung by Beatrice Krebs.

The maestro who conducted the Colorado production, Emerson Buckley, was in the pit and on the beat. One could feel his intensity, his alertness, his creative participition. There was generous audience recognition of his work.

Happily Donald Oenslager's original scenery used in Central City was available—and with this vivid asset to facilitate his work stage director Vladimir Rosing could move his people, his ensembles (trained by Gino Smart) and his story.

"Baby Doe" is a fine show. Land.

Shows Abroad

Breath of Spring

London, April 1.

Michael Codron (in association with Allan Davis) presentation of three-act comedy by Peter Coke. Stars Athene Seyler, Michael Shepley, Mary Merrall, Joan Sims. Staged by Allen Davis; decor, Oliver Messel. At Cambridge Theatre, London, March 26, '58; $2.50.

Nanette Parry ..... Hazel Hughes
Brig. Albert Rayne ..... Michael Shepley
Lily Thompson ..... Joan Sims
Lady Miller ..... Mary Merrall
Dame Beatrice ..... Athene Seyler
Elizabeth Hatfield ..... Elspeth Duxbury
Pape ..... Anthony Baird
Kemp ..... David Chivers

An unsophisticated and slightly outrageous lightweight comedy, "Breath of Spring" has many of the ingredients that a segment of the British theatregoing public seems to enjoy. It particularly has a first-rate cast, which helps with the marquee appeal. Even though it will probably be an easy payoff in its present location, it looks dubious for Broadway honors.

In many ways, Peter Coke's comedy is reminiscent of "Arsenic and Old Lace," but his dialog is frequently flat and the laughs mainly derive from the superb delivery of most of the cast. The scene is the living room of a Kensington flat and most of the principal characters are oddly assorted lodgers. A domestic, recently released from a three year stretch for fur robberies, tries to do her mistress a good turn by stealing a "breath of spring" mink stole from their next-door neighbor. The problem becomes how to return the stolen fur without implicating the maid. They solve it so successfully that they decide to keep in business, stealing furs from the rich and passing over the proceeds to charitable causes.

The cast plays it with considerable gusto. A particular word of praise is due to Hazel Hughes for her gifts of dialect. Allan Davis has staged the piece as a frank and uninhibited romp, and Oliver Messel's colorful set has all appropriate fussiness. Myro.

Not in the Book

London, April 3.

Henry Sherek presentation of three-act (four scenes) comedy by Arthur Watkyn. Stars Avice Landon, Wilfrid Hyde White, Sydney Tafler, Charles Heslop. Staged by Nigel Patrick; decor, Hutchinson Scott. At Criterion Theatre, London, April 2, '58; $2.50 top.

Sylvia Bennett ..... Avice Landon
Michael ..... Peter French
Timothy Gregg ..... Philip Guard
Insp. Malcolm ..... Martin Wyldeck
Andrew Bennett ..... Wilfrid Hyde White
Pedro Juarez ..... Sydney Tafler
Colonel Barstow ..... Charles Heslop
Dr. Locke ..... Michael Nightingale

Arthur Watkyn is the pen name of the former British film censor now president of the British Film Producers' Assn. As he has shown in the past, he has a light touch as a writer and a happy knack of raising a laugh at the right time. "Not in the Book" is, if closely analyzed, a contrived comedy thriller, but it emerges as a light-hearted piece, providing diverting escapist entertainment. It's a cinch to pay off and might be adapted for pictures, but looks too flimsy for Broadway.

Henry Sherek has assembled a first-rate cast and Nigel Patrick's smooth staging adds a full quota of comedy business. The action rolls lightly, without let-up in the incident or the author's invention, and the three acts are adroitly sustained.

The central character is a respectable, utterly predictable civil servant who lives in the suburbs with his family. When a visitor from South America arrives to blackmail him for an incident of his youth, he decides to commit a "perfect" murder to get out of his predicament. He fai's to go through with it at the last moment, but his

(Continued on page 117)

Melissa Hayden Misses 'Glamor'

Says Publicity for N.Y. City Ballet's Far East Tour Should Stress Personality, Not Domesticity

By DAVE JAMPEL

Tokyo, April 1.

The press book the New York City Ballet brought to Tokyo makes a strong case for the domesticity of its personnel. The page on ballerina Melissa Hayden presents her primarily as a wife and mother and incidentally as an artist.

Miss Hayden herself disagrees. She asserts that she considers herself primarily a dancer and insists that her home life is secondary. About the press book, she reveals that she read it in New York and that it was supposed to have been corrected. "But," Miss Hayden adds with a touch of annoyance, "it wasn't."

She takes exception to the press book attitude on two counts, as an organizational attempt to lessen the individual's hard-earned artistic stature and as a de-glamorization that is damning to both the individual and company in b.o. allure.

Citing specific gripes, the dancer says that the press book neglects to mention her non-company concert engagements, her tv performances and her appearance in the film "Limelight." What the press book does mention is that ". . . offstage her hair hangs loose and the sweaters and skirts she wears make a practical costume for coping with the housekeeping."

The ballerina describes the press book comments as "too personal." She adds "From the big point of view, it's quite wrong. It may appeal to women, but it destroys the glamor and everybody loves glamor.

"It's too domesticated for such a brief biography," she declares. "It's very unprofessional. I'm not going to spend eight hours a day in a theatre getting tired and exhausted and then have people talk about me bending over a hot stove."

Miss Hayden lays the blame for the de-glamorization at the feet of the company's directorship. "Everything stems from the directorship," she thinks. "They've been very backward in this company. The kind of people involved in the company, the types and the personalities are exactly as the New York City Ballet wishes it to be."

Miss Hayden believes that the New York City Ballet could make itself more attractive to the public at large by emphasizing its personalities. She says that at the New York home base, the company can sell itself as a unit because the repeat audiences have the opportunity to familiarize themselves with the individuals.

"But," she argues, "when in a foreign country or even in the U. S. outside of New York, you have to establish personalities. Because personalities come and go," she reasons, "I can see the company's point in building without personalities. They do have an argument," she concedes. "But after some of us have been with the company for eight or nine years, we should get some individual treatment."

In making her plea, Miss Hayden stressed the need for audience identification. "It's what makes drama so successful," she explained. "In ballet," she said, "it's very different because most of the audience has never danced ballet. However, even if they cannot share the experience, they can share the emotion through personalities."

Dick Skinner Manager This Year at Hinsdale

Richard Skinner, who returned to New York last week after company managing Noel Coward's tour in "Nude With Violin" and "Present Laughter," will be general manager this year for the Hinsdale (Ill.) Summer Theatre. The strawhat in suburban Chicago is operated by Sidney Blackmer.

"Inherit the Wind," with Blackmer starring in the Clarence Darrow role, will open the Hinsdale season June 2 for a two-week run. Skinner is remaining in New York until about April 15, but then goes to Hinsdale.

At Least He'll Have No Problem of House Seats

Sacramento, April 8.

Broadway producer and realty operator Roger L. Stevens, who has a substantial business interest in Sacramento, is adding a sentimental project.

He's given permission to the Sacramento Civic Repertory Theatre to produce a local edition of "Time Remembered," the Jean Anouilh comedy which he's currently presenting on Broadway, under the aegis of the Playwrights Co., of which he's a member. It's scheduled for a six-performance non-pro run starting May 15 at the Eaglet Theatre.

Stevens' local realty venture, with James H. Scheuer, will be located in Sacramento's Capitol Mall project.

Cleve. Drive As Road Hypo Test

A campaign to promote legit on the road will be launched this spring with a test operation in Cleveland designed to hypo legit consciousness, increase attendance and thereby extend the length of bookings from the usual one week to two weeks. The promotion is budgeted at about $17,000.

Participants in the project include the Independent Booking Office, the Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society and the Council of the Living Theatre and Milton Krantz, manager of Cleveland's Hanna Theatre. It's understood that TG-ATS and COLT will put up around $12,000 and the Hanna about $5,000 to cover the cost of the program, which is scheduled to run six months.

The TG-ATS and COLT involvement in the project follows their recently successful move in another road-building maneuver. That was their takeover of the touring production of "Middle of the Night" late last January to curtail its closing and keep it on the road as a subscription entry. As a result, the Edward G. Robinson-starrer continued touring generally good business through its San Francisco closing March 29.

Yeah, But Probably He Still Goes Out to Eat

Oliver Nicoll, company manager of the Broadway production of "Look Back in Anger," recently returned from a five-month tour of 11 European countries. Prior to that he had managed "Teahouse of the August Moon" in South America and the transcontinental tour of the National Ballet of Canada. He's hiked over 200,000 miles in the last few years.

Now, however, with "Anger" at the Golden Theatre, he's only one block from his apartment in West 46th St.

Frisco Light Opera Has 700G Pre-Sale Advance

San Francisco, April 8.

Although the boxoffice sale did not start until last week the San Francisco Civic Light Opera already had mail orders for $700,000 in season tickets for the upcoming 20-week season.

Capacity for the 1,758-seat Curran Theatre is slightly over $1,000,000 for the CLO season.

Marc Connolly's Script

San Juan, April 8.

Marc Connolly, who has been island hopping in Caribbean area, returned to New York last week from Jamaica. While in Puerto Rico he called on Governor Munoz Marin.

His newest script is tentatively titled "Long Playing Mocking Bird" and deals with extra-sensory perception. Also has one titled "The Source" with Haitian background.

Ready 10-Week Season For Malden Bridge, N.Y.

Malden Bridge, N. Y., April 8.

The Malden Bridge Playhouse, operated by John Hale, has constructed a stage building and enlarged the seating capacity to 300 for the 10-week season opening June 24.

Hale is in New York this week to audition actors and actresses for the Equity company.

A corporation, known as Malden Bridge Playhouse, Inc., was formed, and $32,000 worth of stock was sold since the close of last season. New rest rooms also were installed and the concession building was enlarged.

'The Entertainer' Now on Twofers

The Broadway production of "The Entertainer," which has been playing to smash business, will be on twofers when it reopens tomorrow (Thurs.). The odd situation involves the end of a scheduled eight-week stand at the Royale Theatre, N.Y., and the start of a five-week extension.

The initial eight-week run of the David Merrick presentation, which drew a hefty advance sale, ended last Saturday night (5), with the gross for the week dropping slightly below the steady capacity take of the previous seven frames. The sock business registered thus far is attributed mainly to the pre-opening rush for tickets to the John Osborne play, which costars Laurence Olivier, George Relph, Brenda de Banzie and Joan Plowright.

The extension of the run, however, wasn't announced until after the comedy-drama had opened to mixed notices, which have apparently hurt the ticket sale for the five additional frames. As a result, the cut-rate ducats have been put into circulation for that period. The production, incidentally, suspended temporarily following last Saturday night's performance to permit Olivier to make a quickie London visit. It's scheduled to reopen tomorrow night (Thurs.)

Air Pitt CLO Sked on TV; Break With Tradition Sizzles Drama Editors

Pittsburgh, April 8.

The traditional assumption that newspapers are entitled to first crack at the news got a severe jolt here last week. William Wymetal, managing director of the Civic Light Opera Assn., went on WQED, a local educational tv station, to announce this summer's schedule of shows in Pitt Stadium. Drama editors, who'd received only scraps of information about the CLO plans, did a burn.

As outlined by Wymetal, the summer slate will include a repeat of "Oklahoma," starring Dorothy Collins; "Can-Can," starring Dolores Grey; "Porgy and Bess," with Cab Calloway; "On the Town," with Lew Parker and Betty Kean (Mrs. Parker), and "Wonderful Town," for which leads aren't set. Wymetal expressed the hope of getting Judy Garland in a variety show as season closer.

Lorella Val-Mery, pressagent for the al fresco operation last year, will have the assignment again this summer.

HOUSTON GETS THIRD PRO THEATRE IN MAY

Houston, Tex., April 8.

Houston will get its third professional stock operation May 21 when the 750-seat Avalon Fine Arts switches from films to legit. The new venture, to be under the management of George Lee Marks, will be called Houston's New York Co. Stars and name directors will be brought in to augment a resident Actors Equity company.

Productions at the house will include regular stock entries and tryouts, and may also be sent out on tour. The Avalon has a proscenium stage as compared to the arena setup of the other two pro operations, The Alley and The Playhouse. The town has one other stock showcase, the non-pro Theatre, Inc., which also has a proscenium stage.

'Lady' a $70,000-a-Week Chi Smash, So Why Doesn't It Go Quite Clean?

Chicago, April 8.

Maybe it sounds unreasonable, but the management of "My Fair Lady" isn't entirely happy about the show's smash run in Chicago. The musical, now in its 23d week, is approaching the $2,000,000 gross mark, at the rate of about $70,000 a week.

But the touring troupe has gone clean only two weeks at the Shubert Theatre, and the management isn't sure exactly why. The public is clamoring for seats, as a steady window line and $500,000 advance sale attests. The newspaper ads blurb the availability of seats, but still the house is dotted with a few empties nearly every week.

The reasons can only be speculated at, but two things are clear to company manager Joe Grossman. First, the uppermost balcony is nearly out of demand, and audiences have become choosey about seats, even in the orchestra. Few put their money down anymore until they're sure where they'll be sitting.

One of the effects of the suburban migration may be a reluctance to come all the way into town for a show without assurance that both the play and the seats will be good. Besides which, it has been made clear to all that "My Fair Lady" is going to run a long time in Chi, so those who can't get exactly what they want now are willing to put off seeing the show awhile.

The Shubert, Chi's biggest legit house and the one most preferred for musicals, has more than 70 bad seats. Not only are some of the side locations too remote, but the house is plagued with pillars that obstruct the view for several rows back. Some of these and a number of gallery seats are the ones the management is having trouble selling.

"My Fair Lady," by the way, with its $7 top, looks a cinch to break the Chi boxoffice record of $3,204,380 set by "South Pacific" from 1950-52. It still has 47 weeks to go, however, to top "SP's" 67-week run. The Rodgers & Hammerstein tuner had also played the Shubert and had many weeks of SRO, but today's audiences apparently aren't as willing to put up with antiquated theatre design, especially at a $7 top.

Ft. Worth Hustles Work On New Musical Theatre

Fort Worth, April 8.

No grass is growing under the contract for construction of the new Casa Manana here. The city council awarded a $508,655 pact last week to Butcher & Sweeney Construction Co., and bulldozers immediately began digging for the foundation.

The contractor has given assurance that rehearsals for the Fort Worth summer musical season series can start in the building by June 18 and that the aluminum domed construction will be finished by June 28, in time for the first show to open June 30.

Hepburn (Kate) Nixes Tour Pay

Katharine Hepburn's co-starring stint in the recent American Shakespeare Festival Theatre & Academy tour of "Much Ado About Nothing" was on a gratis basis. Although the actress was on the payroll for $3,500 weekly, she did not cash her checks and indicated she will not do so.

In donating her services, Miss Hepburn enabled the production to retain $31,500, representing her salary for the nine-week tour. It's understood that the unexpected windfall was responsible for putting the touring venture into black, since a deficit had been incurred despite generally bullish business.

The tour, in which Miss Hepburn costarred with Alfred Drake, was a followup to their appearance in the comedy last summer at ASFTA's home base in Stratford, Conn. Both had also appeared there last season in one other play apiece, Miss Hepburn in "Merchant of Venice" and Drake in "Othello."

The play lineup at Stratford for the upcoming season includes the June 19 opener, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to be followed by "Hamlet" and then "The Winter's Tale." John Houseman and Jack Landau are artistic supervisors of the repertory venture, while Thomas M. Noone, formerly on the staff of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, has been appointed executive director of the operation.

Performers lined up for the summer program include Eva Le Gallienne in "Tale," Fritz Weaver, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Morris Carnovsky, Inga Swenson, Earle Hyman and Hiram Sherman in "Hamlet" and June Havoc and Miss Swenson in "Dream."

K.C. STARLIGHT SLATES 'TOM SAWYER' MUSICAL

Kansas City, April 8.

Starlight Theatre will do an original musical comedy for the first time in its eight-year history when it produces "Tom Sawyer" for the week of July 14-20. Vehicle has music by Frank Luther and story by Edward Reveaux and Peter Gurney.

The musical based on the Mark Twain classic figured a natural for presentation here because of its Missouri locale. Among tunes in the score are "In the Spring," "Have a Happy Holiday," "Storm Come a' Risin'," "We'll All Shout Together in the Mornin'," "What Do You Kiss For?" "Please Make Up" and "The Big Missouri." No casting has yet been announced by Starlight managing director Richard Berger.

Starlight officials last week announced a season schedule to include all but the finale of the forthcoming season. Jerry Lewis and a variety unit open the season the week of June 9, followed by "Fanny," "Happy Hunting," "Carousel," "Kiss Me Kate," "Tom Sawyer," "Rosalinda," "Wizard of Oz" and "Guys and Dolls."

Players announced thus far include Frankie Laine and Fran Warren in "Guys and Dolls" and Johnnie Ray in "Kiss Me Kate."

London Group on Mat For Ad-Libbing Lines Not OK'd by the Censor

London, April 8.

Theatre Workshop, which specializes in offbeat productions at Stratford, a London suburb, is due in court April 16 on a charge that it "unlawfully for hire presented parts of a new stage play."

Offending play is "You Won't Always Be on Top," a drama concerning workers on a building site, and it is alleged that the acters have improvised their own dialog, so that the script varies from that approved by the Lord Chamberlain. A defense fund has been launched by a number of newspaper critics and producers who feel that British stage censorship is now archaic.

Dowling-Shelton Plan 75G 'Tin Cup' on B'way

Eddie Dowling and Hall Shelton have set a $75,000 budget on their projected production of "Tin Cup" written by Richard Reich, stage doorman at the Broadhurst Theatre, N.Y. The producers plan on a pre-Broadway opening in Chicago this spring.

The play was tried out in January, 1957, at the Margo Jones Theatre, Dallas, with Shelton functioning as stager. He'll ditto in that capacity on the upcoming venture, while Dowling will double as a cast member. Ruth Amos, who appeared in the tryout, is also slated for the cast.

Another Dallas tryout, Katherine Morrill's "And So, Farewell," is slated for Broadway production by Dowling and Ramsey Burch, who's relinquishing his post as managing director of the Margo Jones operation May 25. Burch directed the "Farewell" presentation.

B'way Uneven, 'Darling' 36G in 6, 'Remembered' 40½G, 'Abner' $34,200; 'Stairs,' 'Seesaw' Set House Records

Broadway had its ups and downs last week. The decline was sharp for some shows, while the upswing was substantial for others. The overall situation was favorable, however, considering the stanza took in Holy Week and the start of Passover.

There were 23 Main Stem shows on tap, of which six were sellouts. Those included "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," "Look Homeward, Angel," "Music Man," "My Fair Lady," Sunrise at Campobello" and "Two for the Seesaw."

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% City tax, but grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Auntie Mame, Broadhurst (C) (69th wk; 541 p) ($6.90; 1,214; $46,500) (Greer Garson). Previous week, $40,200; last week, nearly $43,200.

Back To Methusaleh, Ambassador (C) (2d wk; 13 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 1,155; $36,200) (Tyrone Power, Faye Emerson, Arthur Treacher). Previous week, $19,100 for first six performances and one preview; last week, almost $14,800. Closes April 19.

Bells Are Ringing, Shubert (MC) (71st wk; 564 p) ($8.05; 1,453; $58,101) (Judy Holliday). Previous week, $52,800; last week, over $55,800.

Blue Denim, Playhouse (D) (6th wk; 44 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 996; $31,500). Previous week, $18,000; last week, over $17,600.

Dark At the Top of the Stairs, Music Box (D) (18th wk; 140 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 1,010; $33,000). Previous week, $33,500, with parties; last week, $34,029 for a new house record.

Entertainer, Royale (CD) (8th wk; 62 p) ($7.50; 1,050; $43,500) (Laurence Olivier, George Relph, Brenda de Banzie, Joan Plowright). Previous week, $43,600; last week, almost $43,000. Performances suspended since last Monday (7), will be resumed tomorrow night (Thurs.), at which time the show goes on twofers.

Fair Game, Longacre (C) (22d wk; 177 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 1,101; $32,000) (Sam Levene). Previous week, $16,000; last week, nearly $12,100.

Jamaica, Imperial (MC) (23d wk; 180 p) ($8.35; 1,427; $63,000) (Lena Horne, Ricardo Montalban). Previous week, $51,600; last week, over $51,100.

Li'l Abner, St. James (MC) (73d wk; 580 p) ($8.05; 1,614; $58,100). Previous week, underquoted, was over $28,800; last week, almost $34,200. Goes on twofers next Sunday (13).

Look Back in Anger, Golden (D) (27th wk; 215 p) ($5.75; 800; $25,152) (Mary Ure, Kenneth Haigh). Previous week, $12,100; last week, over $14,400.

Look Homeward Angel, Barrymore (D) (19th wk; 148 p) ($6.90; 1,076; $40,716) (Anthony Perkins, Jo Van Fleet, Hugh Griffith). Previous week, $41,200; last week, nearly $41,400.

Music Man, Majestic (MC) (16th wk; 124 p) ($8.05; 1,626; $68,658). Previous week, $69,300; last week, almost $69,400.

My Fair Lady, Hellinger (MC) (108th wk; 859 p) ($8.05; 1,551; $68,210) (Edward Mulhare, Sally Ann Howes). Steady at $69,200. Show is selling 20 balcony seats at each performance to students at 70 cents a ticket.

New Girl in Town, 46th St. (MD) (47th wk; 375 p) ($8.06-$9.20; 1,297; $59,085) (Thelma Ritter). Previous week, $37,000 on twofers; last week, over $32,200 on twofers.

Oh Captain, Alvin (MC) (9th wk; 71 p) ($8.35-$9.20; 1,331; $60,000) (Tony Randall). Previous week, $58,800, with parties; last week, over $56,500, with parties.

Romanoff and Juliet, Plymouth (C) (26th wk; 204 p) ($5.75-$6.25; 1,062; $36,625) (Peter Ustinov). Previous week, $22,600; last week, $26,100.

Rope Dancers, Miller's (D) (20th wk; 157 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 944; $27,850) (Siobhan McKenna, Art Carney). Previous week, $12,500 on twofers; last week, over $11,600 on twofers.

Say, Darling, ANTA (MC) (1st wk; 4 p) ($7.50; 1,185; $50,460) (David Wayne, Vivian Blaine, Johnny Desmond). Opened last Thursday (3) to four affirmative notices (Coleman, Mirror; Kerr, Herald Tribune; McClain, Journal-American; Watts, Post), two negative (Atkinson, Times; Chapman, News) and one mixed (Aston, World-Telegram); over $36,000 for first four performances and two previews.

Sunrise at Campobello, Cort (D) (10th wk; 76 p) ($6.90; 1,155; $36,000) (Ralph Bellamy). Previous week, $35,100, with parties; last week; over $35,900 with parties.

Time Remembered, Morosco (C) (21st wk; 167 p) ($9.60; 946; $43,000) (Helen Hayes, Richard Burton, Susan Strasberg). Previous week, $38,400; last week, over $40,500.

Two For the Seesaw, Booth (CD) (12th wk; 92 p) ($6.90; 780; $31,700) (Henry Fonda). Previous week, $31,891; last week, $32,165 for another house record.

West Side Story, Winter Garden (MD) (28th wk; 220 p) ($8.05; 1,404; $63,203). Previous week, $51,500; last week, over $56,600.

Who Was That Lady I Saw You With? Beck (C) (5th wk; 40 p) ($6.90; 1,280; $47,000) (Peter Lind Hayes, Mary Healy, Ray Walston). Previous week, $40,244; last week, over $35,900. Larry Blyden is subbing for Walston, who withdrew temporarily last Saturday (5).

Miscellaneous

Stratford Festival Co., Phoenix (C) (3d wk; 24 p) ($4.60; 1,150; $29,382). Previous week, $11,000 for "Two Gentlemen of Verona"; last week, around $5,000 for eight performances, split evenly between "Broken Jug" and "Verona." "Jug," the second of the company's two offerings, opened April 1 to four favorable reviews (Aston, World-Telegram; Atkinson, Times; McClain, Journal-American; Quinn, Mirror) and two unfavorable (Kerr, Herald Tribune; Watts, Post). Daily News reviewer John Chapman reportedly attended the opening, but the paper did not run a review. "Jug" is the sole offering this week, while "Verona" will take over as the closing entry next week.

Opening This Week

Joyce Grenfell, Lyceum (Mono) ($4.60-$5.75; 995; $23,339). Roger L. Stevens and Laurier Lister presentation of Miss Grenfell in a program of monologs and songs; opened last Monday night (7).

SCHEDULED N.Y. OPENINGS

BROADWAY

(Theatres Set)

Love Me Little, Hayes (4-14-58).
Firstborn, Coronet (4-29-58).
Jane Eyre, Belasco (5-1-58).
Visit, Une Femme, (5-5-58).

OFF-BROADWAY

Bed Time, Royal (4-10-58).
Enchented, Renata (4-22-58).
Sign of Winter, Theatre 74 (4-24-58).
Nouveau Monde, Phoenix (4-29-58).
Playboy West'n World, Arts (4-30-58).
Bonds Interest, Sheridan Sq. (5-8-58).
Judge, Theatre Marquee (5-13-58).

ADVERTISEMENT

YOUR LEGS CAN WIN YOU TELEVISION FAME

Plus a free trip to Las Vegas and other valuable prizes

Models — Dancers — Actresses
All Girls with Beautiful Legs

Enter the Princess of the Legs Contest

Winner will be the girl whose legs best match the beautiful Princess Statue—created especially in honor of the Remington Princess Lady's Shaver.

Winner will be seen in commercials on top rated Coast-to-Coast TV show. Finalists will be judged by a panel of famous authorities on art and beauty.

Report to LEGORAMA in shorts or bathing suit from 1 to 3 P.M., Friday, April 11th at Nola Studios, Room 605, Steinway Building, 113 West 57th Street, N. Y. C.

EQUITY SUSPENDS 10 FROM OFF-B'WAY SHOW

Actors Equity apparently doesn't intend pulling any punches in backing up its off-Broadway regulations. In line with this, the union has initiated suspension action against 10 members who were in the cast of the recently-closed production of "An Enemy of the People," at the Provincetown Playhouse, N.Y.

The union move stems from information, reportedly supplied by a non-Equity member of the cast, that the performers were participating in the venture on an irregular salary basis. The situation is understood to involve, among other things, the cast's voluntary agreement to accept a share in the production in lieu of rehearsal pay and whatever salary the management could pay during the initial two weeks of the run.

Equity got wind of the situation during the show's second week of operation and demanded that its members be paid the regular union salary for that particular stanza. The play, which was presented by Alexander Productions, then closed. One of the members of the production firm is Arthur Reel, who also adapted the Henrik Ibsen play.

Partnered with Reel in the venture is Mary Sanford and a third party, who's a member of Equity and among those up on charges. Both Equity and the co-producers, however, refuse to divulge the individual's name. The union, in fact, has refused to comment on the affair in accordance with its regulations prohibiting any public discussion of charges against members until final action has been taken by the Equity council.

Regarding the situation, Miss Sanford states the union refused to grant concessions which she and her partners requested. She also objects to the union's refusal to permit her and Reel to appear before the council to argue their case.

Court Okays Lease On Shubert in New Haven

New Haven, April 8.

A long-pending suit by the owners of the Taft Hotel here to void the lease of the Shubert Theatre was turned down last Thursday (3) by Superior Court Judge Frank T. Healey. The decision gives the lessess, Yorkhaven Enterprises and Shuberthaven Operating Co., control of the theatre until Aug. 31, 1962.

The Taft Hotel Corp., plaintiff in the action, sought to prove that an extension of the lease, granted by a group of previous Taft operators, had been on an illegal basis. Under the deal, the lessees' rental was reduced from $21,000 a year to $10,000, plus 4% of the boxoffice receipts over $250,000.

The Taft owners claimed that the 4% clause in the deal should apply to revenue from the checkroom, advertising programs, lobby concessions and theatre rentals to outside groups. However, Judge Healey ruled that the term "boxoffice receipts" applies only to income from ticket sales. Another charge that the lessees have allowed the property to deteriorate was nixed by the jurist after a personal inspection.

Touring Shows

(April 7-20)

Auntie Mame (2d Co.)—Mural, Indpls. (7-12); Memorial Aud., L'ville (14-19).
Auntie Mame (3d Co.)—Stratford (Conn.) Festival Theatre (19).
Cat on a Hot Tin Roof—Convention Hall, Enid, Okla. (7); Will Rogers Mem. Aud., Ft. Worth (8-9); Municipal Aud., Amarillo (10); Aud., Lubbock (11); Mem. Aud., Wichita Falls (12); Aud., Beaumont (14); Aud., Houston (15); Aud., San Antonio (16); Fair Park Aud., Dallas (17-19).
Damn Yankees—Municipal Aud., New Orleans (7-12).
Diary of Anne Frank—Wilbur, Boston (7-19).
Firstborn (tryout)—Royal Alexandra, Toronto (7-12); Colonial, Boston (14-19).
Happiest Millionaire—Forrest, Philly (7-12); WRVA, Richmond (14-15); Owens Aud., Charlotte (16); Temple, Birmingham (17-19).
Jane Eyre (tryout)—Shubert, Wash. (14-19).
Long Day's Journey Into Night—Geary, S.F. (8-19).
Marcel Marceau—Her Majesty's, Mont'l (7-12); Royal Alexandra, Toronto (14-19).
Most Happy Fella—American, St. L. (7-12).
My Fair Lady (2d Co.)—Shubert, Chi (7-19).
No Time for Sergeants (N.Y. Co.)—Russ Aud., San Diego (7-8); Granada, Santa Barbara (9); Harvey Aud., Bakersfield (10); Civic Aud., Fresno (11); Civic Aud., Sacramento (12).
No Time for Sergeants (Nat'l Co.)—National, Wash. (7-19).
Tunnel of Love (Coast Co.)—Hartford, L.A. (7-19).
Visit, Une Femme (tryout)—Shubert, Boston (9-19).
Visit to a Small Planet—Harris, Chi (7-19).

Holy Week-Passover Crimps Road; Cornell-Quayle $24,000 in Cleve.; Connie Bennett's 'Mame' 38G, Cincy

The road generally felt the traditional Holy Week slump, with Passover an extra hurdle the latter part of the week. There were 14 legit shows on the boards.

Of the tryouts, "The Firstborn" drew mixed reviews in Cleveland, but did fairly well at the boxoffice because of its marquee draw, while "Love Me Little" had another acceptable week in Philly.

Receipts should be a bit better this week, the vacationing students a factor. Thereafter, the generally pattern is likely to be diminishing through the balance of the spring period.

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification indicates Tryout. Also, prices on touring shows includes 10% Federal tax and local tax, if any; but as an Broadway, grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

PHILADELPHIA

Happiest Millionaire, Forrest Theatre (C) (1st wk) ($4.80; 1,760; $48,042) (Walter Pidgeon). Drew one favorable review (Murdock, Inquirer) and two brushoffs (Gaghan, Daily News; de Schauensee, Bulletin), grossed almost $10,400. Previous week, $23,400 at Shubert, New Haven.

Love Me Little, Walnut Theatre (C-T) (2d wk) ($5.40-$4.80; 1,340; $35,000). (Joan Bennett, Donald Cook). Over $21,700 on subscription. Previous week, $22,700.

CHICAGO

My Fair Lady (2d Co.), Shubert Theatre (MC) (22d wk) ($7; 2,100; $72,979) (Brian Aherne, Anne Rogers). Over $72,400. Previous week, $71,500.

Visit to a Small Planet, Harris Theatre (C) (1st wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,096; $28,000) (Cyril Ritchard). Drew one favorable notice (Dettmer, American) and three pans (Cassidy, Tribune; Kogan, Sun-Times; Harris, Daily News). Nearly $17,500. Previous week, $24,500 at Cass, Detroit.

CLEVELAND

Firstborn, Hanna Theatre (D-T) (single wk) ($5; 1,515; $34,000) (Katharine Cornell, Anthony Quayle, Roddy McDowall, Mildred Natwick, Torin Thatcher). Drew one favorable notice (Spaeth, News), one moderate (Hoyt, Plain Dealer) and one pan (Anderson, Press). Grossed almost $24,000.

WASHINGTON

No Time for Sergeants (2d Co.), National Theatre (C) (2d wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,667; $39,500) Nearly $36,800 on subscription. Previous week, $36,100.

CINCINNATI

Auntie Mame (2d Co.), Shubert Theatre (C) (1st wk) ($5.09-$4.52; 2,000; $58,000) (Constance Bennett). Nearly $38,000. Previous week, $41,500 at American, St. Louis.

MINNEAPOLIS

Most Happy Fella, Lyceum Theatre (MD) (single wk) ($4.95; 1,820; $50,000). Almost $33,700. Previous week, $21,600 at Blackstone, Chicago.

NEW HAVEN

Diary of Anne Frank, Shubert Theatre (D) (single wk) ($4.80; 1,650; $42,000) (Francis Lederer). Almost $18,000. Previous week, $20,100 at her Majesty's, Montreal.

SPLIT-WEEKS

Cat on a Hot Tin Roof (D) (Victor Jory). Totaled $20,000 in seven performances, as follows: single, Monday (31), Aud., Hutchinson, Kans., single, Tuesday (1), Aud., Wichita; two, Wednesday-Thursday (2-3), Munic. Aud., Tulsa; three, Friday-Saturday (4-5), Munic. Aud., Okla. City. Previous week, $30,800 in seven-performance split.

Damn Yankees (MC). Totaled $24,200 in four performances, as follows: three Monday-Wednesday (31-2), Temple, Birmingham; single, Saturday (5), Munic. Aud., New Orleans. Previous week, $26,100 in eight-performance split.

Long Day's Journey Into Night (D) (Fay Bainter, Anew McMaster). Three Friday-Saturday (4-5), Aud., Denver, $12,500. Previous week, $16,000, at Ford's, Baltimore.

No Time for Sergeants (N.Y. Co.) Totaled $11,900 in four performances, as follows: two, Monday-Tuesday (31-1), Magoffin Aud., El Paso, $8,500; two, Thursday (3), West H.S. Aud., Phoenix, $3,400. Previous week, $38,100 in seven-performance split.

OTHER SHOWS

Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, Royal Alexandra, Toronto (Dance) (single wk) ($4.40; 1,525; $36,000). Under $7,200 for seven performances.

Legit Bits

Michel Mok, after being laid up with a broken leg, gets back in action as pressagent for Richard Rodgers & Oscar Hammerstein 2d on their forthcoming production of "Flower Drum Song," which will have sets by Oliver Smith.

Edward C. (Bud) Redding wrote the lyrics and music for the revue, "Tongue in Cheek," which opened last Saturday (5) at the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Playhouse.

"The Other Side of Passion," a play by comedian Mort Sahl, has been optioned for Broadway production next fall by Frank B. Nichols.

National Theatre Ticket Service, Inc., a ticket broker agency, is setting up an outlet, to be called The Ticket Corner, at the northwest corner of Broadway and 46th Street, N.Y.

The former Seventh Ave. South Theatre, N. Y., will reopen May 6 at the Sheridan Square Theatre, with Jacinto Benavente's "Bonds of Interest," which Hilary Lipsitz, Cassie Meer and Philip Minor are producing.

The Irish Players will present "Playboy of the Western World" as the first legit offering at the New Seven Arts Center, N. Y., beginning April 30.

Two kiddie productions, "Treasure Isle" and "Taming of the Shrew," both with music and lyrics by Frances Klenett Salzman, are being presented this week by Stella Holt at the Master Theatre, N. Y.

Rod Alexander will costar with his wife, Bambi Linn, in his production of "American Dance Jubi-

(Continued on page 117)

Off-B'way Shows

Ardele, Cricket (4-8-58).
Asmodee, Theatre 74 (3-25-58).
Blood Wedding, Actors Playhouse (3-31-58).
Boy Friend, Downtown (1-25-58); moves April 29 to the Cherry Lane Theatre.
Brothers Karamazov, Gate (12-6-57).
Children of Darkness, Circle in the Square (2-28-58).
Clerambard, Rooftop (11-7-57).
Courageous One, Greenwich Mews (1-20-58); closes April 27.
Crucible, Martinique (3-11-58).
Dark of the Moon, Carnegie Playhouse (2-26-58).
Endgame, Cherry Lane (1-28-58); closes April 20.
Fools Are Passing Through, Jan Hus (4-2-58).
Garden District, York (1-7-58).
Threepenny Opera, de Lys (9-25-55).

Closed Last Week

Legitimate Steal, 4th St. (3-31-58).
Power of Dreams, Sullivan St. (3-10-58).

British Shows

(Figures denote opening dates)

LONDON

At Drop of Hat, Fortune (1-24-57).
Bells Ringing, Coliseum (11-14-57).
Beth, Apollo (3-20-58).
Breath of Spring, Cambridge (3-26-58).
Boy Friend, Wyndham's (12-1-53).
Bride & Bachelor, Duchess (12-19-56).
Cat on Hot Tin Roof, Comedy (1-30,58).
Dear Delinquent, Aldwych (6-5-57).
Dinner With Family, New (12-10-57).
Flowering Cherry, Haymarket (11-21-57).
Free As Air, Savoy (6-6-57).
Grab Me a Gondola, Lyric (12-28-56)
Iceman Cometh, Wint. Gard. (3-29-58).
Kidders, St. Martin's (3-12-58).
Lysistrata, York's (2-18-58).
Mousetrap, Ambassadors (11-25-52).
New Crazy Gang, Vic. Pal. (12-18-56).
Not in the Book, Criterion (4-2-58).
Plaisirs De Paris, Wales (4-20-57).
Potting Shed, Globe (2-5-58).
Rape of Belt, Picadilly (12-12-57).
Repertory, Old Vic (9-18-57).
Roar Like a Dove, Phoenix (9-25-57).
Salad Days, Vaudeville (8-5-54).
Share My Lettuce, Garrick (9-25-57).
Simple Spyman, Whitehall (3-19-58).
Touch It Light, Strand (2-27-56).
Touch of Sun, Saville (1-31-58).
Tunnel of Love, Majesty's (12-3-57).
Where's Charley, Palace (2-20-58).
*Transferred.

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Any Other Biz, Westminster (4-10-58).

Shows Abroad

Continued from page 114

Not in the Book

intended victim collapses and dies in his home a few seconds later.

Wilfrid Hyde White's immaculate portrayal of the civil servant is just as expected from this polished actor and Avice Landon, as his wife, has a number of frothy scenes which she professionally exploits. Easily the best performance, however, is a fruity deadpan interpretation of an elderly and somewhat deaf colonel by Charles Heslop.

Sydney Tafler as the blackmailer and Philip Guard as the writer are particularly good, although the former allows his accent to lapse from time to time. Peter French, Martin Wyldeck and Michael Nightingale completes a first-class company. Myro.

La Brune Que Voila

(Here's the Brunette)

Paris, March 14.

Denis & Marcel Maurey presentation of three-act comedy by Robert Lamoureux, staged by the author; settings, Georges Bouvier. Stars the author; features Michele Mercier, Francoise Brion, Pierre Destailles, Daniele Godet, Odette Laure. At Theatre Varietes, Paris, March 12, '58; $3 top.

Germain	Robert Lamoureux
Sabatier	Pierre Destailles
Anne-Marie	Francoise Brion
Sophie	Michele Mercier
Husband	Roger Treville
Sonia	Daniele Godet
Christine	Odette Laure
Simon	Jean Bellanger
Sivelle	Madeleine Barbulee

Having become a popular favorite as a romantic light comedian, Robert Lamoureux has now written a trivial vehicle for himself, and has also handled the staging. It may have a moderate run on the star's personal draw, but isn't worthy of export.

Having made a notable hit in an amusingly interminable telephone scene in Sacha Guitry's "Let's Dream," Lamoureux has written a succession of phone bits in "Brunette," and instead of one mistress, as in the previous play, he's now given himself four, plus two complaining husbands.

The ruggedly handsome star has an engaging personality and deft comedy technique, Odette Laure underlines the role of a vinegary mistress who becomes vengeful when jilted, and Jean Bellanger is drolly expansive as a forgiving husband.

The Catalyst

London, April 1.

Arts Theatre Club presentation of two-act comedy by Ronald Duncan. Features Phil Brown, Renee Asherson, Virginia Maskell. Staged by Phil Brown; decor, Stephen Doncaster. At Arts Theatre, London, March 25, '58; $2 top.

Charles	Phil Brown
Theresa	Renee Asherson
Leone	Virginia Maskell

On the face of it "The Catalyst" is the legit manager's dream show—a single set production with a cast of three. For the average commercial manager, however, this one will have to remain a dream, as Ronald Duncan's modern comedy has been refused the Lord Chamberlain's seal for regular public presentation. Theatre clubs, of course, are permitted to run unlicensed plays.

In any event, it's questionable whether there would be much of a rush for the rights to transfer this piece for a normal presentation. It is an odd mixture as a play, at times having poetic quality and at others being downright pedestrian. It is uneven in its writing, contrived in its story line and attempts to be daring and provocative in its subject matter. It adds up to a disappointment.

The three characters in the piece are a doctor, his wife and his secretary. Early on in the first act the wife discovers there's an affair between her husband and the secretary, making her about the fourth or fifth other women in his life. After a frank and almost bitter free-for-all, the secretary gets her marching orders.

After a lapse of three months, the couple are still on edge and the other woman has not been forgotten. Eventually, the wife induces her husband to get his ex-secretary back, but it transpires that there is as much of an affinity between the two women as there is between the women individually and the husband.

It is the attachment of the two women that caused the Lord Chamberlain to veto the play for public performance. But that apart, it is, in many ways, slightly sordid and largely unbelievable. It is redeemed only by the verbal duels that take place between the three intense, but really superficial characters. In spite of the author's fine command of language, the dialog tends to be cliche-ridden and repetitive, apparently intentionally for dramatic effect.

Phil Brown's staging, which succeeds in sustaining the action despite the obvious limitations of only three characters, is superior to his performance as the husband. Renee Asherson sparkles as the wife and Virginia Maskell, a newcomer to the West End stage, underplays the secretary with a subtlety apparently designed to arouse the emotions. Myro.

Dance Review

Continued from page 114

Martha Graham

El-Dabh's music by the Katharine Cornell Foundation and Isamu Noguchi's settings by Carroll Russell.

These dollar allocations have been well, frequently inspiringly used. In observing this welded whole, however, it is impossible not to reflect that there should be an audience that would do much at the boxoffice to make a dance company of this kind self-sustaining. For this "Clytemnestra" is brilliant.

Since dance in America has made enormous strides in the past decade, perhaps it is best not to look for the millenium at the ticket-wicket overnight. Therefore, let philanthropists Rothschild-Cornell-Russell be appreciatively saluted for their material assistance in making Miss Graham's present luminous effort possible.

The story, as danced, starts and ends in Hades. Clytemnestra dwells first with her fearful memories, then relives and observes the tragic events of her life, finding at the end a sort of saving grace. That Miss Graham dances the title role does not demean the contributions of her superb company. She is to great an artist to permit that to happen and she has shrewdly paced herself for important moments, giving due consideration and opportunity to her troupe. It is the effort of an artist thinking of tomorrow as well as today.

The choreography is dramatically vivid, and Miss Graham dances her portion with incisive character definition, and she fills in with many swift little touches that mark the experienced and knowing craftsman.

Bertram Ross, as Agamemnon, whom Clytemnestra slays at the dance's climax, Matt Turney, as Cassandra, Helen McGehee, as Electra, and Paul Taylor, as Aegisthus, are particularly helpful in support, especially for the dynamics of their movement, but in the fused efforts of this good company, it is gratuitous to single out performances.

Soprano Bethany Beardlee and baritone Robert Goss, in evening clothes, one at either side of the stage, speaksing the commenting chorus. They do well with El-Dabh's music that is a stimulating paradox of the primitive and the ultra - modern. In fact, Miss Graham's choreography also shares this contrasting sense of the tribal ceremony and surrealist's dream.

Noguchi's settings, abetted by Jean Rosenthal's lighting, provide starkly impending atmosphere, and Miss Graham has introduced accents of relieving color into the costumes she has designed. In a high scene, Miss Graham entwines herself, as in a cape, in a huge fuschia-red drape that stretches the width of the stage. Like her talents, she wears it with distinction. Geor.

Legit Bits

Continued from page 116

lee" at the Brussels World's Fair this summer.

Sidney Blackmer will costar with Stuart Erwin in John S. Rodell's "Crazy Old Owl," which Shepard Traube plans presenting on Broadway next October.

Phoebe Ephron's "Howie" is planned for Broadway production next season by the Playwrights Co., James Slevin and John Gerstad.

An adaptation by Robin Maugham of Claude Magnier's French play, "Oscar," is planned for London presentation by Gilbert Miller and Henry Sherek.

"It's About Time," a musical with book by Tony Gaye and music and lyrics by Jay Chernis, has been optioned by Marie Manville Skinner and Joseph Benedetto Jr.

"A Faint Whiff of Murder," an adaptation by Henry Kane of J. F. Conty's meller, "Affaire Vous Concernant," is planned for late spring presentation in London by Maximilian Becker.

Onna White has been set to stage the dances and musical numbers for the Cy Feuer-Ernest Martin production of "Whoop-Up," which is scheduled to begin rehearsals next October.

W. H. Auden's adaptation of Jean Cocteau's "Knights of the Round Table" is planned for off-Broadway production late in May by Christine Orvis and Andrew Spiegal. Herbert Machiz will direct.

Thomas Whyte Jr. will be partnered with Robert Fryer and Harry Rigby in a Broadway production of the longrun London revue, "For Amusement Only," with Cyril Ritchard doubling as star and director.

The U.S. Supreme Court last week refused to review a lower court decision rejecting a refund to the Shubert theatre interests of $143,069.79 in claimed overpayments on Federal taxes for 1943.

Plans have been dropped to have the Broadway company of "Sunrise at Campobello" appear at the Brussels World's Fair this summer.

Vincent Jacobi, president of Theatrical Protective Union (Local 1) for eight years and president of the Combined Theatrical and Amusement Crafts Council for 19 years, is resigning both posts because of illness. The union has voted the 62-year-old prexy, who'll remain in office until the May 11 election, a tax-free gift of $5,000. Jacobi has been suffering from periodic dizzy spells caused by a head injury in 1955.

Virginia Kaye, actress-wife of producer Kermit Bloomgarden, is rejoining the cast of "Sunrise at Campobello" as successor to Mary Welch, who's leaving to have a baby. Miss Kaye had originally been with the production in a role that was eliminated during the show's pre-Broadway tryout.

Jules Irving, managing director of Actor's Workshop, Frisco, has been given a Danforth Foundation grant to study for a doctorate in drama at Stanford U.

San Francisco Chronicle picked up N.Y. Times critic Brooks Atkinson's two pieces about Frisco's "residential theatres" and Chronicle drama critic Paine Knickerbocker subsequently commented, "I have to get back to work, now that my stringer's stuff has run out."

Stanley Gilkey will be associated with Kevin McCarthy and E. G. Marshall in the operation of the Newport (R. I.) Casino Theatre, opening an eight-week season June 26.

Ilona Massey is planning a strawhat tour next season in one of three plays, "Tonight or Never," "Tonight in Samarkand" or "The Dazzling Hour."

An eight-week season is scheduled for the Durham (N. C.) Star Playhouse, which Charles Roberts, Alvin Fox and Peter Sinclair plan opening June 23 at the Durham High School. The star operation will be repped in New York by the Stage & Arena Guild of America. Bruce Mooney will be stage manager at the barn and Victor Michalak and Kai Jeregensen will split the directorial chores.

Vet radio-tv announcer Don Wilson and his wife, Lois Corbett, will tour the strawhat circuit in a Stage & Arena Guild package of "Holiday for Lovers."

The staff for the Westbury (L. I.) Music Fair, Camden (N. J.) Music Fair and Valley Forge (Pa.) Music Fair, all operated by Frank Ford, Lee Guber and Shelly Gross, includes Rod Alexander, choreographer; Marvin Krauss, general manager, and Salvatore Dell'Isola, general musical director.

Zachary Solov and Richard Casey have been set for their second seasons as choreographer and director, respectively, of the Niagara Melody Fair, Wurlitzer Park, North Tonawanda, N. Y.

Critics Salute GJN

The death of vet drama critic George Jean Nathan early yesterday morning (Tues.) cued a resolution by the N. Y. Drama Critics Circle at its meeting held the same afternoon. Written by George Freedley, curator of the theatre division of the N.Y. Public Library, and N. Y. Post legit critic Richard Watts Jr., the resolution read:

"The N. Y. Drama Critics Circle regrets the passing of one of its founders, George Jean Nathan, who undoubtedly did more than any single critic to raise the standards of playwriting in America, its level of theatrical productions and in influencing the growth of intelligent playgoing in our country."

Literati

Legitimatized Book Pirates

A group of about 20 publishers of "pirate" editions met to legalize their name by forming the Japan Academic Publication Assn. and rededicating themselves to publishing only legitimate edition.

Decision to form group is understood to be a move of self-protection in view of projected tightening of nation's loose copyright regulations.

Pirated reprints of about 300 foreign academic publications are now being sold in Japan for about 3,000 yen ($8.33) a copy against the prohibitive cost of imported originals which range between 20,000 yen ($55.54) and 30,000 yen ($83.33) in most cases.

Most books now being printed in Japan without permission of copyright holders are American or German scientific or technological works.

The Lily Langtry Story

Pierre Sichel will publish "The Jersey Lily" (as turn-of-the-century actress Lily Langtry, one of the great stage beauties, was called) via Prentice-Hall in the fall. Actress Blanche Yurka's "Dear Audience," also for P-H, will not be an autobiog, as the title might indicate, but "a children's guide to the theatre."

Ex-Good Housekeeping editor-author Arthur Gordon has done the life of Norman Vincent Peale for the same publisher which, incidentally, also publishes the Rev. Dr. Peale's books. P-H also is bringing out "The Saturday Evening Post Carnival of Humor," a $7.50 anthology of text and cartoons, running 400 pages, from the last 50 years of the SEP, including some of the old Octavus Roy Cohen "Florian Slappey" stories.

Headline Of The Week

Time this week gave the "Headline of the Week" nod — under Press—as follows: "In VARIETY, over a story warning against the overcheapening of low-cost sensational movies: 'Don't Kill Thrill-Chill Mill.'"

An asterisked footnote reads: "Which (referring to VARIETY) once memorably reported provincial indifference to unsophisticated films under the headline: 'Sticks Nix Hicks Pix.'" (For the record, it has been a common error to add the "s"; the original July 17, 1935 headline called it "Hick Pix." For the historians, the other oft-quoted VARIETY headline, "Wall St. Lays An Egg," is dated Oct. 30, 1929.

'100 Years of the Halle'

C. B. Rees, formerly music publicity chief of the BBC and an old friend of Sir John Barbirolli, conductor of the Halle Orchestra, has just published "100 Years of the Halle" in tribute to the orchestra's centenary year.

Rees, who is also starting out as a BBC disk jockey, is at present writing what he himself describes as "a discursive autobiography."

19th Annual Press Club Awards

Overseas Press Club will present 31 awards at its 19th annual dinner at Waldorf-Astoria April 19. Herbert L. Matthews (N. Y. Times) will get the club's highest honor, the George Polk Memorial Award, for his interview with Castro. Other winners will include the Hearst Newspapers' "task force" composed of Frank Conniff, Bob Considine and William Randolph Hearst Jr.; Fernand Fauber, Toledo Blade; Sidney Gruson, N. Y. Times; Frederick Kuh, Chicago Sun-Times; John P. Leacacos; Cleveland Plain Dealer; Lisa Larsen, freelance photographer; Jerry Cooke, Sports Illustrated; Monito Sleet Jr., Ebony; John Dominis, Life; David Schoenbrun, CBS; Drew Middleton, Henry A. Kissinger, Frank Kearns and Yussef Masraff, CBS; Welles Hangen, NBC; Daniel Schorr, CBS; James Michener; Robert Coughlan, Life; Edmund Stevens and Phillip Harrington, Look; Ernest K. Lindley, Newsweek; Richard Fryklund, Washington Star; Graham Hovey, Minneapolis Star Tribune; William L. Ryan, Associated Press; C. L. Sulzberger, N. Y. Times; Chet Huntley, NBC; John Daly, ABC; Howard K. Smith, CBS.

Psyching The Pix Biz

The film industry as it might conceivably control the taste and thoughts of mankind is the theme of a science-fiction thriller, "The Man Who Couldn't Sleep," by Charles Eric Maine (Lippincott; $3). Maine, who makes his home in Middlesex, England, knows show biz; he once edited an English national magazine dealing with tv-radio, and his works have been seen on tv outlets throughout the British Empire.

"The Man Who Couldn't Sleep" relates the hair-raising story of Philip Maxwell who in 1962 invents psychotape which can be played back for total reproduction of the emotions of those who made the recordings. A power-hungry Hollywood film mogul exploits the electronic psycho-recording gadget for evil purposes in his many "Dream Palaces." Of course, in the end the cinemogul gets his just desserts, with justice triumphing. Psychotape may be the answer to Hollywood's present-day economic problems. All it has to do is locate the inventor and thus guarantee patrons a constant dream-life of pleasure, without popcorn mind you. Rans.

Global Paperback Pitch

Paperback film tie-ins now extend around the world. Bantam Books' campaign, "Read the Book! See the Movie!" is seeping through to all foreign distributors of firm's paperbacks that sooner or later pix will be seen in their countries and they can tie-in with sundry promotional matter.

Foreign tie-ins include "War and Peace," "Island in the Sun," and "The Pride and The Passion," based on the Bantam issue of C. S. Forester's novel, "The Gun." Foreign interest in "River Kwai" has forced Bantam to go back to a fifth printing, slated for overseas sale. Overseas market is also getting similar promotion material on "Sayonara" (WB).

International sales department of Curtis Circulation Co. (Bantam's distributor) maintains sales and promotion staff overseas and during 1958-59 it'll be promoting sale of Bantam's edition of "Ben Hur" along with the Metro film now being made at Rome Cinecitta Studios.

CHATTER

Martin Abramson, author of "The Barney Story," profiling Piper Laurie for Coronet.

Glenn W. Stackhouse, 41, former war correspondent and night manager for United Press in San Francisco, died of a heart attack Wed. (2) in San Leandro, Cal.

Lillian Roth doing the publicity circuit pitch in behalf of her new book, "Beyond My Worth," keyed to a Sherry Netherland cocktailery hosted by her publisher, Frederick Fell.

James Wilson, former film critic of The Scotsman, Edinburgh, having first novel published by New Authors Ltd., subsidiary of Hutchinson's, London, in the fall. It's a war story from Cyprus.

Lingerie salesman David Delman's first novel, "The Hard Sell" (Messner), was promoted with book buyers while on his selling trips, and the author has cashed in with publicity stories on "the pantie that became a novel."

Commercial Television News, the weekly British publication dealing with the medium, has taken on a new title and new look. It has been renamed Audo-Visual Selling, and now takes in, as well as commercial tv, radio and picture theatre screen sales.

Crown will publish the Broadway play, "The Rope Dancers," by Morton Wishengrad, with a foreword by the author. While this play is Wishengrad's first on Broadway, he has written hundreds of radio and television plays and has been playwright for a long time of the radio program, "The Eternal Light."

M. Lincoln Schuster in London for the marriage of his wife's daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Hope Zion, to Walter Eytan, of Jerusalem, Israel. He is author of the just published Simon & Schuster book, "The First 10 Years: A Diplomatic History of Israel." Eytan is director general of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Israel.

Joyce Berni has joined the Doubleday Syndicate as assistant manager, succeeding Marcia Lontz Osborn. Previously Miss Berni handled film and tv rights in Doubleday books and also worked in the programming department of ABC-TV. Joseph Marks is Doubleday's veepee in charge of subsidiary rights.

Victor Perry, former Hollywood publicist now living in Paris and writing under the name of Victor Alexandrov, had his second book, "L'Ours et la Baleine" (The Bear and the Whale) recently published by Librairie Stock. It's a history of Russian-American relations. Perry's previous book, a biography of Nikita Khrushchev, was published here last December.

Broadway

Warner Bass went along with Jan Peerce to Japan as musical accompanist.

Paul Benson named publicity director for Lou Walters' new Cafe De Paris which opens May 6.

George Wood, vet William Morris Agency exec, altaring with actress-singer Lois O'Brien at the Plaza Hotel April 23.

Richard Condon's first novel, "The Last Confession," will hit the stalls end April. He's the UA man long in Paris and Madrid.

Irving R. Rubine, in tv writing since resigning as v.p. of Dougfair Productions, back to pressagentry in charge of the N.Y. office of Blowitz & Maskel.

Jack Perlis' pig-latin for stripteasers—"nihil batardis carborundum." Roughly translates "nothing's to be gained from grinding it out for these jerks."

"Is Milk Worth 40c A Quart?" Is theme of upcoming campaign from Campbell-Mithun agency. Answer is yes, as given by Metropolitan Dairy Institute.

Webb & Knapp's takeover at the Hotel Drake will see that Park Ave. hostelry going partially cooperative with about 150 rooms retained for the transient trade, a la the Sherry-Netherland operation.

Gwen Verdon, who headlined in "Damn Yankees" and "New Girl In Town," has been appointed a member of the board of directors of the Karen Horney Clinic, free, low-cost psychoanalytic center.

Some of the press going to Brussels for the World's Fair premiere coverage are dovetailing the hop by staying over and returning a week later on an Irish Airlines inaugural ballyhoo.

Eddie Cantor's son-in-law Gari (his professional name) has a one-man show at the Petite Galerie April 7-19 and is keynoted to the "World of Clowns." The one of the comedian is from Cantor's own collection.

Italo Tajo, basso, off for four performances of Ermano Wolf-Ferrari's "Four Ruffians" with Rome Opera. Due back for video dates in May, will do "Faust" and "Godunoff" with Cincy Opera in July.

Nicole Milinaire, longtime production aide to Sheldon Reynolds on his European tv productions, flew to Paris over the weekend but is due back in the U.S. on a New York and Hollywood video deal being set up by Abe Lastfogel (William Morris).

Playwright Jerry Lawrence (& Robert E. Lee) to Europe April 20 for two months, including a London looksee with his agent, Harold Freedman (Brandt & Brandt), on the London production rights to L&L's "Inherit the Wind" and "Auntie Mame."

N. Y. Post syndicated columnist Earl Wilson did a four-day "long weekend" round trip to Paris and Brussels, leaving last Friday and back last night (Tues.), to write pieces on a Paris tourism preview and also the Belgian Fair preview in advance of its April 17 premiere.

George Judd and Carlos Mosley among N.Y. Philharmonic execs accompanying orchestra's 108 members to South America April 28. Group will be gone seven weeks, first four under solo baton of Leonard Bernstein, since Dimitri Mitropolos will be spring-touring in U.S. with Met Opera.

The Louis Schonceits (he's head of Mackey theatre agency, she's Renee Carroll) making their first European trip May 26. Marks his 50th birthday, their sixth anni, and Miss Carroll's 31 years on West 44th St., 25 of which was as the coatroom siren at the next-door-to-Mackey's Sardi restaurant.

Meyer Davis orch and Dancing Waters exhibit entertainment features of International Auto Show at Coliseum April 5-11 where 250 foreign cars on display at $1.50 top. Longfaced Detroit brass in town to o.o. the displays. Sales of these overseas imports doubled each year from '55 to '57.

Bob Lewis, comedy magician who worked with his wife at the Radio-TV Correspondents' annual dinner-show in Washington a week ago Saturday, was inadvertently omitted from the show roster, emceed and produced by Ed Sullivan, headlined by Maurice Chevalier, and under CBS veepee Bob Weitman and Mark Leddy's presentation.

Following a quiet wedding ceremony, attended only by immediate family at columnist Hy Gardner's Central Park South apartment last Thursday (3), he and his bride, Marilyn Boshnick, who works with him on his "Hy Gardner Calling" teleshow, and is also his real-life secretary at the Trib, sailed on the SS Ile de France on Saturday (5) for a three-week honeymoon. First time ever for both.

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz
(28 rue Huchette; Odeon 49-44)

Brigitte Bardot would like to return to the stage in any play by Arthur Miller.

Johnnie Ray and Mario Lanza in for one night on public-paying radio show, Musicorama.

Edith Piaf's recordbreaking Olympia Music Hall engagement extended to 12 weeks. She winds up stint April 20.

Charles Boyer to star opposite Michele Morgan, in "Maxime," their first pic together in 20 years. Henri Verneuil directs.

American legit producer, Blevins Davis, may take International Ballet of Marquis De Cuevas to Brussels to appear at U. S. Pavillion.

Spanish actor Antonio Vilar gets co-starring role opposite Brigitte Bardot in Pathe's "The Woman And The Puppet" which Metro may coproduce. Julien Duvivier directs in Spain this summer.

Pittsburgh

By Hal V. Cohen

McGuire Sisters set for nine days at the Twin Coaches.

Playhouse landed the rights to "Separate Tables"; will open April 28.

Penn - Sheraton's Continental Room to be converted into a steakchop house.

James E. Stinson, Jr., of Pittsburgh, named prexy of Harvard Dramatic Club.

Lorraine Kapfer, 19, named Pittsburgh's "Miss Press Photographer" this year.

Juggler Bobby Jule's European tour extended for at least four additional months.

Joe E. Ross, Hilltoppers and Judy Scott heading Copa's current 10th anni show.

Post-Gazette music critic Donald Steinfirst picked up a new Fiat on his trip to Italy.

Singer Velma Carey had to cancel flock of bookings to undergo surgery at Magee Hospital.

William Wymetal signed new three-year contract as managing director of Civic Light Opera.

George Arnold and Phil Richards come back to Ankara to resume their ice shows April 14.

Moe Silver, SW zone manager, and his novelist-wife, Lily Jay Silver, home from Palm Beach vacation.

Tim (Johnny) Kirby, who opened Cork Club in Houston year ago, back there to head its first anni show.

Lou Fordans celebrated 46th wedding anni and his 25th as a Stanley Warner re manager on same day.

Vincent Joyce, of U.S. Information Agency, coming in from Washington for community theatre preem of his original thriller "Mr. Ambassador."

Rome

By Robert F. Hawkins
(Foreign Press Club; tel. 65,906)

Hedy Karp repping International Literary Service, arriving soon to look for pic scripts.

Perry Como show was run off, sans commercials, on Italy's RAI-TV net, no dubbing or titles. Critics praised the show.

Dawn Adams working on "Sursis Pour Les Vivants" at INCIR Studios here. Henri Vidal costars, direction by Victor Merenda.

Guiseppe Rotunno set to lens Titanus' "The Naked Maja." Piero Filippone will design sets for pic, while costumes are by Dario Cecchi.

Vittorio Gassmann plans to recite "Hamlet" al fresco this summer in the Basilica of Massenzio; also to do two nights of "Ornifle" at Monte Carlo with his company.

Franco Interlenghi, Antonella Lualdi and Folco Lulli slated to fly to Berlin shortly for roles in LUX-Gallone-CCC coproduction. Title is "Polikutschka" and will be partly filmed in Poland.

Melina Mercouri pacted by Jules Dassin for his forthcoming production-direction effort, "La Loi," to start soon in southern Italy. Coproduction, which stars Yves Montand, is billed as a "Monica Films (Rome)-Cite-Cormoran-Terra-Indus-CICC Film (Paris) production."

"Kwai" (Col) opened to terrific business at Fiamma on Oscar day. Also strong in first week here is "Farewell To Arms," (20th) while other top grossers in local first-runs are "Ladro Lui, Ladra Lei," "Il Marito"—both Italian starring Alberto Sordi—"Sayonara" (WB), "Witness For The Prosecution" (UA), not forgetting front-running "Ten C's."

Brussels

By John Florquin

Victor Francen at Theatre du Parc in his perennial success, "The King."

Romy Schneider, local favorite, will be present at premiere of her "Sissi" film.

Red Army dancers and singers will celebrate 30th anniversary while appearing here.

Miiko Taka in for three days to ballyhoo "Sayonara," which won't preem before September.

Ultra - modern equipment of U.S.A. theatre drawing enthusiastic and appreciative comment.

Josephine Baker, touring the Anciennes Belgiques, found time to lecture on racial discrimination.

Charlton Heston, on his way to Rome and "Ben Hur," personaled premiere of "10 Commandments."

Ella Fitzgerald, with Trio Lou Levy and Trio Oscar Peterson, wowing them at Palais des Beaux-Arts.

Male choir Ylioppilaskunnan Laulajat, which toured the States last year, and Jalkasen Tytot calisthenics group, will highlight Finnish Day in May.

First modern theatre in Brussels has entered building stage; it will house the French National Theatre and is erected in center of the city on site formerly occupied by a railway station.

The full Scala di Milano Co. will appear in June as part of Italy's contribution to the Fair. Also at Fair, the Bolshoi Ballet will open at large auditorium seating 1,930, then move to Royal Opera House for two-week season.

Pre-Fair bookings have not put Brussels hotels "out of bounds" as stated in some papers. True, a number of private firms and travel agencies have cut a good slice from accommodation cake but motels, of which there are plenty in vicinity of Fair, are open to reservations. Double bed, telephone and shower at less than $5 per night. Lots of nonsense has been published about visitors being driven to Ostend or Ghent in search of a bed.

Chicago

(Delaware 7-4984)

Erroll Garner at the Blue Note.

Agent Eddie Baetzel closing his indie booking office to join Associated Booking Corp.

Clark Gable and wife Kay Spreckels, in town to tout "Teacher's Pet" opening at the Woods. Doris Day is due in for preem.

Ken Dobbs and Dianne David tapped for writing chores by Mount Royal Productions. Project is two-a-day vaude at the Erlanger.

Three veteran motion picture exhibs, Bruce Trinz, Rose Dunn, and Sol Horwitz, previewed their "Cinema '58" panel show on WMAQ's "Phil Bowman Show."

Oldtime vaude star Gus Van still holding forth at Mangam's Chateau (not Club Hollywood, as VARIETY erratumed), where he will have completed 16 weeks when he winds up next month.

More Mike Toddiana: It's recalled when, as a brashy nobody, Todd gained entree to Ken Murray backstage at the Palace Theatre in Chicago and tried to peddle gag material. Murray was firm, and after five minutes Todd was back on the street. But resilient he was. Next day he popped back, offering himself to the house manager as a "mechanical man" for the lobby to drum interest for the pic alternating with Murray.

Las Vegas

Beldon Katleman, El Rancho owner, showing the town to daughter Diane.

Don Kirk, production singer at Flamingo, weds the hotel's cigaret girl, Marlene Miller, June 1.

Bob Crosby brought his family in for Easter week, midway point in his three-framer at the Sahara.

Benny Goffstein tried to sign Carmen Basilio to appear during final week with Mickey Rooney and Joey Forman at the Riviera, but exchamp nixed offer.

Frankfurt

By Hazel Guild
(24 Rheinstrasse: 776751)

Europa to release Russian film, "The 41," in Germany.

Bonn director Anton Krilla to direct Tennessee Williams' "Orpheus Descending" at the City Stage here.

Corona Films have rights to picture "Off Limits," to be made later this year as German-American coproduction.

F. Marceau's comedy "The Egg" opened simultaneously at three German theatres, in Berlin, Hamburg and Frankfurt.

Ulrich Erfurth directing "Summer of the 17th Doll" for the Hamburg Schauspielhaus, with Gusti Wolf as one of the leads.

German actor Anton Walbrook plays at Duesseldorf Schauspielhaus next April with G. B. Shaw's "The King from America."

"The Fly," play by German author Friedrich Bayl, scheduled for airing on Radiodiffusion France in its Third Program. Jean-Wilfried Garret directs.

First presentation of Marc Connelly's "Green Pastures" set for Kleines Haus, American director Edward Mangum is staging, with Otto Rouvel in the lead.

Hollywood director William Dieterle due in Germany to stage mystery play, "Conodoxos, Dr. von Paris," which will be presented in June at Hersfeld Festival.

With the Romy Schneider film "Scampolo" a hit in Germany, Bavarian TV doing a televersion of play starring Frances Martin and John van Dreelen April 20.

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan

Joseph Levine, former music director of Ballet Theatre, named permanent musical director of Co-Opera Co.

Lee Tapper, lighting designer for "Say, Darling," pacted by Music Fairs to handle summer productions for the tent chain.

The Shubert will install airconditioning and renovate this summer. Francoise Sagan Ballet will be last attraction of the season at the house in early May.

Australia

By Eric Gorrick
(Film House; 251a Pitt St. Sydney)

Most commercial teevee outfits still in the red via operational costs.

"Damn Yankees" okay for J. C. Williamson Ltd. at Her Majesty's, Melbourne.

"Commandments" (Par) powerful two-a-day at 1,400-seater Prince Edward, Sydney.

N. Y. City Ballet preems here next month under Williamson banner at Empire, Sydney.

20th-Fox will bring in "Farewell To Arms" Easter at 2,300-seater Regent, Sydney.

Harald Bowden, longtime g.m. J. C. Williamson Ltd., will be wined-dined by the pic industry.

Wally Warboys appointed assistant to Jack Labow, RKO's local chief. Warboys has been with RKO for 25 years.

Mike Noonan scripting series of teevee shorts on Flying Doctor service here for British commercial.

Tokyo

Hiroshi Okawa, Toei topper, named head of Japanese delegation to forthcoming Asian Film Fest to be held in Manila April 22-26.

Steady grosses of third Cinerama film, "Seven Wonders," has postponed start of regular showings of "Search for Paradise."

The Shin (New) Osaka Television Broadcasting Co. was formally inaugurated and is slated to start trial telecasting this fall with call sign of JOIX.

With sagging b.o., a downtown Tokyo theatre started policy of running a 40-minute film concert daily—free. Idea is to have house full by screening time.

Licenses for full-scale color tv broadcasts are skedded for issue in September after international frequency allocation and broadcast standard confab in Moscow.

Shochiku Kyoto Studio will produce all its 1958 product in wide-screen. Twelve are costume pics and eight are modern dramas. Shochiku's Ofuna studio has 33 pictures on this year's slate.

Edouard van Remoortel, chief conductor of National Belgian Orchestra, here for one-month, nine-performance tour at invitation of Kansai Symphony Orchestra.

Second unit completed location shots in Kyoto and Hiroshima for forthcoming 20th-Fox Robert Mitchum starrer, "The Hunter," soon to go before the cameras in Arizona.

The Postal Services Ministry expected to confirm shortly provisional licenses for 19 new commercial tv stations. Seventeen others also granted provisional licenses expected to receive final approval by the end of this month.

Soviet film "Battleship Potemkin" may be approved for screening eight years after it was first imported and 30 years after it was first made. Film has been inspected by a subcommittee of Educational Film Committee of the Education Ministry and final decision is expected shortly.

Hollywood

E. J. Mannix back from Rome.

Jack E. Emanuel bedded in Mt. Sinai Hospital.

Albert Salmi slipped and broke his arm.

Sam Marx back from European tour.

Ed Lowry checks out of USO-Camp shows May 1.

David Golding new ad-pub vp for Seven Arts Productions.

C. E. Nicholson and William S. Parry appointed Paramount studio controllers.

Al Rackin, after years as pub director for Roy Rogers Enterprises, has returned to freelance flacking.

Dinah Shore will be honored by Masquers Club with testimonial dinner April 25.

Samuel Goldwyn presented L.A. Community Chest's "GOMan" (for "generous man") pin, org's highest award.

Walter Winchell, Billy Gray, Keenan Wynn and Jackie Coogan emceeing on successive nights for hospitalized Ben Blue at his nitery.

London

(COVent Garden 0135/6/7)

Mylene Demongeot, in for charity preem of 'Bonjour Tristesse."

Tony Hancock signed for his first starring comedy which Peter Rogers is to produce for Rank.

Marc Lawrence returned to U. S. after appearing in "A View From The Bridge" at Liverpool.

Alan King due back the end of the month for dates on Granada-TV's "Chelsea at Nine."

Moss Hart paging Yvonne Mitchell to star in Broadway production of John Osborne's "Epitaph For George Dillon."

Virginia McKenna and her husband Bill Travers planed to Jamaica for month's location on "Passionate Summer."

Jerry Lewis, due here to headline at the Palladium, will be a guest at inaugural luncheon of Variety Club's International Convention at the Savoy, April 22.

Rossano Brazzi, at press confabs for "South Pacific" launching, says he will make "The Blessing" in Britain this summer with Deborah Kerr.

Michael Gwynne assuming lead in "A Touch Of The Sun" from Michael Redgrave, who is committed to a season at Stratford-on-Avon.

Patrick Filmer-Sankey, for past four years director in charge of production at Rank Screen Services, left to become an indie producer.

Reception for Giorgia Moll, due here for preem of "The Quiet American," had to be cancelled because she broke a leg in a skiing accident.

With eight major American accounts to handle, and a considerable stepping up of its British and Continental activties, the Leslie Frewin publicity organization is expanding fast. Cinemiracle, the Todd-AO launching and Technirama are three of the US show biz projects now being handled by these publicists.

Berlin

By Hans Hoehn
(Tel. 760264)

G. W. Pabst in conjunction with Ceo-Film prepping "Nathan the Wise." Intend to shoot exteriors in Israel.

West Coast Jazz Show with June Christy, Bud Shank, Bob Cooper and Claude Williamson Trio at Sportpalast.

Pic director Robert Siodmak and actress Annemarie Dueringer among this year's Berlin Art Prize winner.

West German tv set owners amounted to 1,433,102 as of March 1. West Berlin's 72,024 are included.

Friedrich A. Mainz, in conjunction with Rhombus-Film, plans a Wernher von Braun two-part film for UFA release.

Mexico City

By Pepe Romero
(25-22-54)

Completely recovered from recent illness, Dolores Del Rio packing her bags to visit Gotham.

Frank Fauce Jr. contracting local stars for his Million Dollar Theatre presentations in Los Angeles.

Paco Malgesto, Mexico's Ben Grauer, suspended for not appearing on a tv sustaining program after 21 years of work without vacation, said to wife, "We're off to Acapulco."

Mexico composer Julian Carrillo will introduce his "Sound 13" during the first International Fair in Brussels. Fifteen pianos, especially built and costing one hundred thousand dollars, will be used in the concerts. Carrillo's daughter Dolores will play.

OBITUARIES

GEORGE JEAN NATHAN

George Jean Nathan, 76, dean of Broadway drama critics, died April 8 in his quarters at the Hotel Royalton, N. Y.

He was looked upon as this country's most trenchant, uncomprising sentinel of the American theatre, a prolific writer respected by both friend and foe. He was dubbed one of the "critical Katzenjammer Kids." Two years ago, when his celebrated sidekick, Henry L. Mencken, died, Nathan observed: "America needed a couple of bad boys in letters then."

Nathan covered the theatre for a half-century starting at the age of 24. He worked for many publications including the American Mercury (which he launched with Mencken in 1924), Vanity Fair, American Spectator, Saturday Review, Scribner's, Esquire, American Spectator, Newsweek, Theatre Arts and Liberty. Toward the end of his career he did a weekly column for the New York Journal-American.

Nathan helped a number of dramatists, here and abroad, including Eugene O'Neill, William Saroyan and Sean O'Casey. During his American Mercury days he fostered the writings of F. Scott Fitzgerald, Theodore Dreiser, James Branch Cabell, Ben Hecht, Aldous Huxley, James Joyce and many others.

Brooks Atkinson, N. Y. Times drama critic, observed that Nathan was probably the world's greatest two-act theatregoer. Unless a play sparked something by the second act, Nathan reached for his hat and walked out.

He was a bachelor until 1955 when he married Julie Haydon, the actress. He was born in Fort Wayne, Ind. and graduated from Cornell U. He also studied at the U. of Bologne and started his journalistic career as a cub reporter on the N. Y. Herald. He wrote numerous books.

By the middle '20s Nathan had become the most widely read, the most widely feared and the highest paid aisle-sitter in the American theatre.

ALFRED BRYAN

Alfred Bryan, 87, veteran Tin Pan Alley lyricist and charter member of ASCAP, died in Morristown, N. J., Memorial Hospital April 1.

Details in music section.

DAVID BROEKMAN

David Broekman, 58, composer, arranger, conductor whose credits in Hollywood and New York screen, radio and television spanned 30 years, died April 1 in his N. Y. home of a heart attack. Latterly he worked on NBC's "Wide Wide World."

Born in the Netherlands and developing his musicianship there in gypsy fiddling, symphony and opera, he had been with the N. Y. Philharmonic prior to drifting to Hollywood where he did scoring for Warners, Universal and Columbia.

It was radio which brought him to general trade attention. He conducted a long list of air shows from California, including Safeway which had Conrad Nagel as emcee and Jane Froman as soloist. Union Oil, Texaco Star Theatre, Mobiloil and General Electric were other employers. During the war years he was conductor of the U. S. Treasury bond programs.

Broekman, like many other composer-conductors, found radio a lush pasture. Less so for television, where the musical conductor has not yet come into his own. A man of strong views musically, he was also a prose writer on the side having cracked various periodicals, including the elusive New Yorker. He wrote one novel, "Shoestring Symphony," and Simon & Schuster published it.

He is survived by four children, three grown daughters and a subteen son.

HENRY I. MARSHALL

Henry I. Marshall, 75, veteran songwriter and former radio producer, died April 4 in Plainfield, N. J., after a long illness. He lived in Scotch Plains, N. J., at 515 Bumblebee Lane, an address the Post Office okayed for him to mark two of his songs, "On The 5:15" and "Be My Baby Bumblebee." He joined the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers as a charter member in 1914.

Marshall entered show business in 1901 as an actor in "The Runaways," a musical, and later became a vaudeville pianist. In the late 1940s, he produced a radio show, "Cavalcade of Youth," which showcased amateur talent.

In 1920, he wrote "Somebody's Wrong," which Sophie Tucker introduced. When the George Washington Bridge was opened, he wrote "The Bergen County Song." Later he wrote "I'll Never Change Again" and the late Lew Brown cleffed "Oh Miss Flanagan."

Marshall also wrote a playlet, "White Coupons," in addition to such songs as "Bless Your Ever-Lovin' Heart," "If You Ever Get Lonely," "Baby Sister Blues," "I Wish There Was A Window In The Corner" and "Mary You're A Little Bit Old Fashioned." In 1943 he wrote a song for the Treasury Department's War Bond drive titled "It's The Seventh" and produced a show, "The Forum," in Harrisburg, Pa. He also managed a chain of music stores at one time.

He is survived by a daughter and a sister. His wife died a few months ago.

BUTLER DAVENPORT

Butler Davenport, 87, founder of the Davenport Free Theatre in New York, died (7) at ellevue Hospital after a month's illness. He made his home at the theatre, at Lexington Ave. and 27th St.

Davenport's free theatre was the only one of its kind in the city and since the day it opened in January, 1923, he presented the works of Shakespeare, Ibsen, Chekhov, Maugham, as well as his own dramas. At no time did Davenport charge admission. He received money by passing the hat at every performance.

The founder of the free theatre played many roles daily. He was the president, director, producer, treasurer, star, playwright, press-agent and also "charlady" on occasion. It was his notion that nobody should pay for theatre admissions since the city was endowed with free museums, free concerts, so why not theatres

Davenport was born in N. Y. and as a youth understudied Augustin Daly, played leading roles with Richard Mansfield and worked with Eleanora Duse, Sarah Bernhardt, David Belasco and John Drew. His play, "Keeping Up Appearances," was produced by Lee Shubert in 1910.

RALPH T. KETTERING

Ralph T. Kettering, 73, vet legit manager, pressagent, playwright and theatre historian, died April 7 in Chicago. He was a constant contributor of memorabilia pieces to VARIETY and was known in the trade for his vast knowledge of the theatre.

Kettering, who headquartered in Chicago and toured with shows on the road, is believed to have never worked in New York. When he was 18 years old he was employed in the boxoffice of the Bush Temple Theatre, Chicago, and later was connected with most of the oldtime legit firms in that city. He was A. H. Woods' Chicago rep for many years and was also manager of the Woods Theatre there.

Several plays, which he wrote alone or collaborated on, were produced in New York. Among those were "A Daughter of the Sun," "Which One Shall I Marry?" and "The Clutching Claw." He also produced some shows on his own in Chicago. In recent years, he had been working on his memoirs covering more than 50 years in the theatre.

Surviving are his wife and two sons.

ELLIOT PAUL

Elliot Paul, 67, died in Providence, R. I., April 7 after a long illness. He was best known for his books, "The Last Time I Saw Paris" and "The Life and Death of a Spanish Town."

He was widely known on the Left-Bank of Paris as a judge of wines and food. A versatile writer, he penned mystery stories. Among the outstanding ones were "Hugger Mugger in the Louvre" and "The Mysterious Mickey Finn."

Paul was a co-editor of "Transition," which encouraged such writers as Gertrude Stein, E. E. Cummings and Ernest Hemingway. He wrote the screen play for "Rhapsody in Blue" and was co-author of "A Woman's Face" and one of the authors of the documentary film, "Our Russian Front."

Survived by a son and brother.

GIULIO MINETTI

Giulio Minetti, 91, composer, conductor and violinist, died March 31 in San Francisco. A native of Turin, Italy, he was a music school classmate of the late Arturo Toscanini and a fellow-musician in the La Scala Orchestra. He came to Frisco in the 1890s and established a violin school.

He later founded the Minetti Quartet and conducted the orchestra for Paul Steindorf productions at the U. of California's Greek Theatre. Concertmaster of the Tivoli Opera House Orchestra, Minetti later held the same post in the San Francisco Symphony under Fritz Scheel. He conducted the Sinfonietta Sociey Orchestra in the 1930s and led his own orch until last June.

His wife survives.

DAVID WOLFSON

David Wolfson, 66, onetime song-and-dance man, former prizefighter and for the last 30 years a city patrolman in Pittsburgh, died there March 31 after a long illness. He was the father of Tiny Wolfe, w.k. entertainer in Pitt and ex-vocalist and bass player for Blue Barron band.

Wolfson, originally in vaude and then burlesque later produced and acted in a number of variety shows at Pittsburgh's old Lyceum before turning to boxing. He fought under the name of Young Abe Attel.

In addition to Wolfe, he leaves five other sons, his wife and two brothers.

JEAN DEBUCOURT

Jean Debucourt, 64, celebrated stage and screen actor, died recently of leukemia in Paris. He already had an established reputation when he entered the state subsidized Comedie-Francaise in 1936 where he remained until his death. He cut down his appearances the last six months as the disease sapped his energies.

Debucourt was noted for his C-F portrayals in "Donogoo" and "Monsieur Trouhadec" of Jules Romain, and Henri De Montherlant's "Port Royal." He also had top roles in such films as "The Devil in the Flesh," "The Fall of the House of Usher," "Justice Is Done" and "Fanfan La Tulipe."

His wife and child survive.

HANS STIEBNER

Hans Stiebner, 59, German stage and screen actor-director, died March 27 in Baden-Baden, West Germany, where he was rehearsing for a tv play. He appeared on nearly all of Germany's most prominent stages and also was seen in numerous pix.

His last Berlin stage appearance was in Gore Vidal's "Visit to a Small Planet" at the Renaissance Theatre.

CHARLES SPEER

Charles Speer, 54, tv producer, news and feature writer for NBC and longtime member of Writers Guild of America, died April 3 in Jackson Heights, New York. He had been associated with numerous NBC programs including "Today," "Geographies in Sound," "Wide Wide World" and "Life And the World."

Wife, son and daughter survive.

NEIL C. SWEET

Neil C. Sweet, 53, grip sub foreman at Walt Disney Studios, died of heart attack March 28 while visiting in Las Vegas. He had been in the film industry 35 years, and was with Hal Roach prior to his Disney affiliation.

Wife, son, brother and two sisters survive.

EVA VINCENT

Eva Burnham Vincent, 82, wife of Walter Vincent, president of the Actors Fund of America, died April 7 in New York. She was an actress before her marriage in 1905. She helped operate the American Theatre Wing during the war.

Mrs. Pon Y. Chan, 88, motion picture character actress, died April 1 in Hollywood.

New Acts

Continued from page 112

ment On," which she delivers with abundant drive and conviction.

Her garb highlighted a youthful Japanese-style jacket, but subdued in color and needlework so as not to impinge on the vocalizing. Chirper's animation is strong, although at times it is less meaningful than visually dramatic. The arms sometimes are brought down stiff and emphatically. Singer nonetheless conveys an innate sense of showmanship which, with a distinctive, ear-hugging voice, should spell sock returns in virtually all media.

When reviewed from the Claremont Hotel, Seattle, in September '55, the VARIETY notice mentioned (1) that the young Nisei girl from California had hit the northwest via a walk-on role in the road company of "Teahouse of the August Moon"; (2), that she had dropped the "Pat" for her nitery debut in Norm Bobrow's Colony Club; and (3) that she was a song belter of promise. Said promise seems to have been fulfilled. Pit.

Foreign Films Find U.S. Gold

Continued from page 1

swelling the flood of overseas films already in release. It must be remembered that, in the instance of the Greeks, the Italians to an extent, and certainly the Mexicans and the Japanese, most of the pictures listed play in the foreign-language houses only, where they are presented without even a subtitle. This is true of quite a number of the German films also.

French Surge

In the foreign language grouping, the most dramatic progress in 1957 was made by the French. A total of 61 features listed grossed $3,176,146, which is close to $1,000,000 above the 1956 mark of $2,229,965. It is true that a sizable percentage of that income came from a comparatively small number of films, including four which were handled by major American distributors and did proportionately bigger business, all four having been dubbed. These attractions included "The Silent World" (Columbia), "Hunchback of Notre Dame" (Allied Artists), "Paris Does Strange Things" (Elena and the Men) which was released by Warner Bros. and "If All the Guys in the World" (Disney).

The French, actually, had a limited number of top releases going for them during the year. Pictures like "God Created Woman" and "Gervaise" didn't get going until late in the year. There is every indication that the French will clean up in the States during 1958, with "God Created Woman" alone due to gross around $2,000,000, most of it during that year. Another successful French entry, "Razzia," didn't start until late in the year.

Among the French films seen during 1957 in the States were "Nana," which did very well; "A Man Escaped," "Fruits of Summer," "Passionate Summer," "We Are All Murderers," "Time of Desire," "Four Bags Full," "The French They Are a Funny Race," "The Bride Is too Beautiful," "Please Mr. Balzac," etc.

Reflecting the dearth of top Italian product, the Italian films in the States last year collected $1,768,120 in gross rentals, a drop from the $2,318,753 credited to them in 1956. Bulk of the Italian product (160 pictures) was provided by Casolaro Films which had 100 pictures in release, most of them aimed at the language theatres. A small core of films, among them "La Strada," "Gold of Naples," "Weekend in Sorrento" and one or two others provided most of the income.

Germans' 51

The Germans last year registered a slight drop in the States, with 51 films collecting $266,412. This included earnings from "The Devil's General" and "The Last Bridge." Here again, 1958 should see an improvement with a number of potentially interesting German productions going into release.

With a couple of their pictures hitting the art houses ("Stella," "Woman in Black," "Bed of Grass"), the Greeks registered a sharp gain to $88,435 last year on 35 films. In 1956 they had 12 films which grossed $16,000. Mexican films in 1957 collected $3,205,753, virtually all of it from Spanish language houses which are concentrated in New York and in the Southwest and West. Situation is different now since Columbia has entered the Mexican film distribution field in the States.

Japan last year circulated 301 films and grossed $931,702. Again, most of that income derived from language situations on the Coast and in Hawaii.

British Position

The VARIETY survey credits 93 British films with a total take of $6,347,201, which is frankly an estimate based on the best available information. In 1956, very few J. Arthur Rank films were circulated. In 1957, the Rank outfit had its own distribution org operating in the States for the second half of the year. It had 13 films in release, with "Pursuit of the Graf Spee" its most successful entry. Rank outfit won't give out any film rental figures. Trade generally hears that the company has found the initial going rough.

However, virtually every one of the majors have British films in release pictures which either they acquired or which they produced themselves in London. Definition of precisely what is a British film isn't always easy. Where this distinction could clearly be made (as in the instance of the Warwick productions going out via Columbia, for instance), the films were included in the survey. Indies also had a good many British exports in release last year.

Overall situation certainly appears to be an encouraging one for the foreign producers. As indicated by the VARIETY figures, they're making progress in the States. It must be pointed out, however, that these are gross film rental figures, and that from them a number of expenses are deducted. Thus, the final remittance to the local producer doesn't necessarily reflect the totals cited here. In some instances, overhead may eat up part of the producer's share. In others, the producer's income may reflect flat sums paid for films in the U. S.

MARRIAGES

Joyce M. Miller to Charles L. Cox, New York, March 21. Bride is editor of Gotham Guide.

Jean Ward to Norman Robinson, Romford, Essex, Eng., April 1. Bride is a clown, one of the Three Buffoons.

Joan Shawlee to Eddie Barchet, Hollywood, April 5. Bride's an actress; he's a hotel exec in Capri.

Betty Lou Abercrombie to Dean A. Farnham, North Troy, Vt., March 25. He's a member of the Santa Fe (N.M.) Symphony Orchestra.

Lee Seeling to Charles Barton, Las Vegas, April 2. He's a film director.

Marilyn Boshnick to Hy Gardner, April 3, New York. Bride is executive aide to the N. Y. Herald Tribune columnist and is co-producer and participant on his "Hy Gardner Calling" tv show.

Joan McIvor to Ronald Beckett, Vancouver, B.C., April 4. He's staff musician with CKNW, New Westminster.

Louise Dutchak to Rex Ellis, Vancouver, B.C., March 28. Bride's with CBUT-TV film dept.; he's a CBS news editor.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Goodman, son, New York, March 31. Father is New York sales exec for Screen Gems.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bersen, son, Encino, Cal., March 30. Mother is actress Jeanne Cooper; father, a Hollywood agent.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Catizone, daughter, Pittsburgh, March 28. Father is a musician.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rosenberg, son, Chicago, April 2. Father is newsman at WGN.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Thomas Nola, daughter, New York, March 11. Father is with Nola Studios.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pannepacker, son, Philadelphia, March 15. Father is WRCV-TV sales rep.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rattigan, son, Philadelphia, March 31. Father is WRCV-TV deejay; mother is former Adelaide O'Hare of ASCAP program dept.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Marshall, son, Washington, April 4. Father is attorney associated with Theodore Granik in such tv properties as "American Forum" and "Youth Wants to Know."

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kennard, son, Hollywood, March 28. Mother is former Broadway actress Lucille Wright; father, a Hollywood agent.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Myhill, triplets—two sons, one daughter—Alhambra, Cal., April 1. Father is film booker for Fox West Coast Theatres, L.A.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Cabello Jr., son, Hollywood, April 2. Father's an agent.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Walsh, daughter, Santa Monica, Cal., March 7. Father is account exec at KFI, L.A.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Mamakos, daughter, Hollywood, April 2. Father is a publicist.

H'wood Not Quick

Continued from page 3

story of the last four years of F. Scott Fitzgerald; Barry Linden's "The Hell Raisers," which will be done in CinemaScope 55 and is an adventure yarn; "David the King," to be shot partly in Israel; "The Jean Harlow Story" (when he finds the right girl, though he'd like Lee Remick to play the role), "Jean Christophe" (held up because of casting problems) and a new Cliffod Odets play, "A Murder Story," which Odets is currently writing. Odets will direct the film. Latter may roll still this year.

NIELSEN REPORTS ON BRITAIN'S

GRANADA TV NETWORK

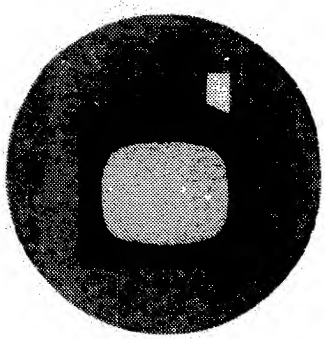
GRANADA'S

Total audience in February and March showed by far the biggest increase for any Region

GRANADA'S

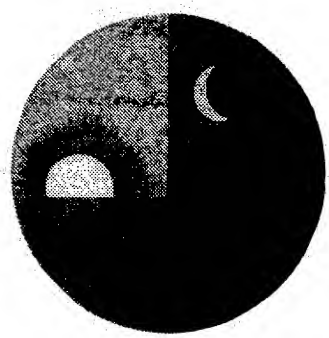
69% share of the total TV audience in February is an increase on last year

GRANADA'S



Northern Region audience averages over 5 million home hours of viewing each week-day—the highest in Great Britain

GRANADA'S



Early evening and late night audiences are the largest for any Region

GRANADA TV NETWORK LIMITED

36 Golden Square, London, England

FILMS | VIDEO | TV FILMS | RADIO | MUSIC | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 35¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $15. Single copies, 25 cents.
Entered as second-class matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.
COPYRIGHT, 1958, BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
VOL. 210 No. 7 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 16, 1958 64 PAGES

FILMS' NEW NICE-NASTY NAZIS

Dazzled Plutocrats Cheer Moiseyev's Perpetual Pep Troupe From Moscow

By ROBERT J. LANDRY

A dressy crowd of American bourgeosie yelled, shouted, and ran out of expressions of amazement Monday night (14) as the Maiseyev Dance Co. of Moscow came into the Metropolitan Opera House for three weeks. The Russians would have made it on energy alone. They were a tornado force contained within a typhoon. But they added to physical stamina the further charms of great artistry and lively choreographic wit.

Great fun, and frequently funny, this company of 108 will tour as far west as San Francisco during 10 weeks in the States and Canada. As "propaganda," the troupe may depress the American vitamin market, bring on a boom in yogurt. The only possible reaction to the performance and to the young dervishes is excitement. This is superb theatrical showmanship all the way. Include in Samson Galperin, from Moscow, as perhaps the first Soviet conductor of an American orchestra. He's a fine maestro and okay on "The Star Spangled Banner."

Not having heard a word from John Foster Dulles, the Soviet authorities finally made their arrangements with Sol Hurok, a private American citizen born in Russia, who has been arranging cultural exchange for 40 years and has a gold-headed cane from Morris Gest, also of Russia, to prove it. Thanks to Hurok's canny judgment the dancers and their director, Igor Moiseyev, were well publicized and greeted by a distinguished array of Americans, most-

(Continued on page 16)

Maksiks' Package Deal

Irving Axel, banquet manager of Doris and Ben Maksik's Town & Country Club, Brooklyn, is a triple-threater.

He's also chaplain of the Brooklyn Jewish Hospital and officiates at weddings in the nitery's private chapel. The T&C does a mass-production banquet business with sisterhoods, fraternal and other church organizations — and there's a package deal for wedding parties and floorshow directly after the wedding ceremony.

U.S. Percenters Do Flip For Russian Show Biz; Hope's Telecast Did It

Bob Hope's recent telecast filmed in Russia has created a new demand in the talent agencies—that of percenters willing to travel and who can speak Russian.

The Hope show revealed a veritable treasure chest of attractions that can be exploited in the U. S. for top returns. For example, the Ukraine State Ensemble is one item that has made the agency mouths water. They feel that a fortune could be made with an exhibition of the Spear Dance in arenas. The same is true of the Moscow State Circus. The heavy advance for the Moiseyev Ballet in the U. S. indicates that the talent now reserved exclusively for Russian audiences can be imported for a terrific return.

The agencies have been aware of this situation for some time. For example, the William Morris office has been trying to get the Moscow State Circus to the U. S. for nearly three years. Nicholas Koudrietsev, a Montreal impresario, is also trying to import the same outfit. However, more agencies want to get into the act mainly because of the Hope show, which showcased a lot of potential attractions for American audiences.

One agency rep opined that the reason Sol Hurok was able to get in so early on Russian attractions was the fact that he could confer with the Kremlinites, in their own

(Continued on page 24)

Mary & Buddy Get OK On 450G Station Buy

Washington, April 15.

Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers became owners of radio station KFBI in Wichita, Kan., last week with approval by the Federal Communications Commission of an application to transfer license.

The Rogers paid $450,000 for the outlet.

Calls Khrushchev Publicity Genius

Boston, April 15.

Russia's Nikita Khrushchev is one of the great public relations men of our time.

So contends John W. Hill, p.r. man and author, and partner in Hill & Knowlton, who said "the Kremlin has all the elements of a good public relations firm except integrity and truth" in an address at Boston University Conference on Enlightened Public Opinion Friday (12).

Hill, who with Ogden R. Reid, president and editor of the New York Herald Tribune, and six others received citations from B. U., said Khrushchev is "a clever phrasemaker and coiner of slogans" and "cultivates the homely, human touch" with great imagination.

Hill, whose firm handles the Brussels World's Fair, said Russia has presented a bad case better than the U.S. has a good one.

U.S. MELLOWER THAN GERMANS

American-made feature films dealing with Germany during the Hitler and blitzkrieg period are currently kinder to the late enemy than are films of like period and subject-matter made in Germany by Germans.

The dramatic change wrought in a dozen years is partly due to the "cold war" between the western democracies and the Soviet Union and its satellites. The American film producers are believed motivated partly by tactful suggestions from U. S. diplomats and an awareness that the German film market is a large segment of the European playoff.

That World War II Hollywood depictions of the Hitlerite Germans are now "offensive" to the German pride was strongly suggested in recent months when the large German colony in Vancouver, British Columbia, raged against such "vaulties" when shown on home television screens. It's a long road between then and the current friendly treatment.

Meantime in a number of pictures of recent vintage and others set for early release, the line is sharply and deliberately drawn between the handful of Nazis and the great mass of Germans who had no choice but to go along—mostly reluctantly—with Hitler's policies of mass murder and extermination.

Point was made succinctly in "The Enemy Below," starring Curt Jurgens as the German U-boat captain, where the German was simply doing his duty and in effect emerged as the hero of the script.

It's being made more obliquely in "The Young Lions," in which Marlon Brando plays the key German character. Latter has been

(Continued on page 63)

British Film B.O. Tax Concession

London, April 15.

The British industry won an important concession today (Tues.) when the Chancellor of the Exchequer cut admission taxes by 50%. Drop in the levy was contained in the budget presented to Parliament. It will cost the Government $36,400,000 for the full year.

New tax law calls for a levy of 33⅓% on admissions over 21c against the present scale of a 50% tax on admissions over 12c. The British industry had long campaigned for a tax reduction, arguing that the present levy was ruinous.

The Chancellor added that he had consulted the Board of Trade to make certain that the tax relief provided in the budget left room for necessary changes in the statutory Eady Plan.

20% Tax 13 Years After War May Switch Copacabana Off Talent

Sack's Appeal in R&R

Women's dress styles have become the latest peg for the rock 'n' roll writers.

Several songs, titled "Sack Dress," have already been cut along with one number called "Bobbin' In The Sack."

Lend 'Bit of Tone' To BBC-TV Rock 'n' Roller: Earl of Wharncliffe, Debs

London, April 15.

BBC's teenage television show, "Six-Five Special," is putting on the ritz. In the first of the new skein, skedded for June 14, the 21-year-old drumming Earl of Wharncliffe will join the show with a rock 'n' roll outfit. Some 1958 debutantes will also be brought into the show as contrast to the usual jiving youngsters who decorate the set.

Says producer Russell Turner, son-in-law of Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels: "Putting an earl into the show is all part of a move to introduce a bit of tone." "Six-Five Special" is the show which has just lost its two emcees, Jo Douglas and Pete Murray, and one of its stars, Freddie Mills.

Sahl $4,875, Grenfell $8,088 in B'way Houses

The two vaude shows being staged in legit houses on Broadway are holding their own, although the earning power is very slight considering it's the first week of each. Gross of Mort Sahl in "The Next President" at the Bijou hit $4,875 for five performances ending Saturday (12). The Jimmy Giuffre Trio is supporting Sahl.

Joyce Grenfell in her first full week at the Lyceum scored $8,088. She's doing a one-woman show there.

Both layouts are under the jurisdiction of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

Strike May Make History: Videotaped 'Red Mill'

With no immediate settlement of the IBEW technicians strike against CBS-TV in sight, the network is taking the unusual step of putting its "Du Pont Show of the Month" version of "The Red Mill" on videotape. It will be the first major tv production taped-in-advance, and will necessitate a shift from color to black and white.

"Mill" is scheduled for Saturday (19), and if the strike is settled before that date, it will go on live as originally scheduled.

Unless there is some relief through lowering the present 20% cabaret tax, Jules Podell, operator of the Copacabana, N. Y., is ready to throw in the sponge and convert the nitery into a straight eatery. Podell says that this relief will have to come by July 31 of next year or he'll close for the summer and convert. The tax, he said, has weakened the entire industry, and with rising prices of talent and scarcity of headliners who can fill niteries, he'll follow the path of least resistance.

The Copacabana is probably the oldest frontline nitery in New York, having opened in 1940, and is considered a major showcase for acts. Podell's position on talent is regarded as better than most cafes, since the billing "direct from the Copacabana" is important item on out-of-town marquees. In addition, the Copa's buying position is considered superior to most other niteries in that its star-making potential is high.

Podell says he has reached this decision because of the greater difficulties in operating. With prices of talent locally on the upbeat, he has reached a point where he may have to increase menu prices drastically in order to buy some of the names at salaries asked. He says that further raising of tariffs is not a businesslike procedure in these recession times.

Podell stated it has been suggested to him that, to get some of the higher priced names, he hike his minimum of $5.50 and apply the increase to the talent budget. He said that if there's any change

(Continued on page 62)

U.S. Films Minor Note in Brussels

The American motion picture industry per se will have minimum representation at the Brussels international fair this summer. It will have a small exhibit, and a theatre in the U. S. pavillion will present a cavalcade of the American film in addition to a showing of 20th's widescreen "South Pacific." Latter activity is being arranged independent of the Motion Picture Export Assn.

MPEA is selecting two films for the Brussels international film fest, which will present feature pix June 1-13.

The "cavalcade" of film will not go beyond "High Noon" and will in no way indicate the considerable technical advances made by Hollywood since then via 3-D, CinemaScope, Todd-AO, Cinerama, Cinemiracle, etc. "South Pacific," of course, which opens May 1, is in Todd-AO.

A "small reception" is planned

(Continued on page 56)

HERBERT BARRETT ARGUES CONCERTS SELF-HURT BY HOKEY POTPOURRI

Is the concert platform going too "popular" for its own ultimate best interest? Manhattan impresario Herbert Barrett believes so. He considers it a mistake to book concert attractions as if they were vaudeville bills, full of "unrelated performers in potpourri" in an effort to bolster boxoffice, per the prevalent theory of many managers that it is necessary to present "a stage full of people."

Barrett, who is the third or fourth ranking concert booker, depending upon whom you talk to, has stuck to his conviction that America never had so large or so loyal an audience for "serious" music. He quotes letters which reach him from such places as the Carolinas and the Dakotas saying "Dont treat us like peasants."

Barrett finds that ultra-nigh brow programs, refusing all compromise to "pop" criteria, are selling out. Notable in this respect has been the American Opera Society which went absolute SRO at Town Hall, N. Y., and will double the ticket capacity next season when moving its rare, little known operas into Carnegie Hall.

Barrett respects the "organized audiences" set up by the Columbia and National concert managements but thinks it's unwise not to give local audiences the soloists and the programs they demonstrate they want. Too often American concert platform "rotation" defers to its own "system" which puts all judgment in the big list N. Y. booking headquarters. He argues that too frequently under the packaging method the New York "system" snows under the boxoffice potential of a given artist, who may not return to the city where he wowed 'em for four or five years. This negates buildup, defeats the individual soloist's growth, and flattens local enthusiasm.

"Theoretically a local audience can ask for and get repeat performances, but in effect the system too often over-rides individual treatment. The subscription system has accomplished great things for concert management. I'm not against it. But a paradox is developing and our status quo thinking is in need of some questioning.

Another recent incident supporting his idea that musical discrimination is financially potent was the 12-day invasion of the midwest by William H. Scheide's Bach Aria Group. This is the highest of highbrow, rarely-heard secular and religious cantatas of John Sebastian Bach. "Yet the group went clean in such 3,000 to 4,000-seat halls as those at Michigan State and Indiana U."

"But it is not just in a few music campus spots that sheer highbrow sells out. It would be misleading to assume that all college burgs are musically potent or that all industrial towns are poor prospects. My point is not that the audience for sophisticated and uncompro-

(Continued on page 56)

Opera Scale Up

Minneapolis, April 15.

Grand opera going's cost here will join the long procession of inflationary entertainment scales when the Metropolitan plays its annual local engagement May 16-18.

Instead of the previous $7.50, the top will be $8 on this visit.

Mixed Lye With Juice As Revenge on Theatre; Youth Draws Two Years

Greensboro, N.C., April 15.

A fired theatre employee who admitted pouring a cupful of lye into a soft drink machine at the Dunn Theatre, Dunn, in an apparent attempt to poison film patrons in revenge has been sent to prison for two years.

Thomas Faison, 23, slipped up when he hinted his plans to a friend and fingerprints trapped him and produced a confession.

Dunn Police Chief Alton Cobb said discovery of the crime in the nick of time avoided what could have been a major tragedy." A doctor here has said that the lye could have killed or maimed for life anyone who drank it.

FAIRY TALES INVENTED HORROR, SAYS KARLOFF

Toronto, April 15.

There is more horror and violence in nursery tales than in television or films, according to Boris Karloff, the Frankenstein monster, whose other side is the voice-recording of such juvenile storytelling albums as "The Just-So Stories" and "Kipling's Jungle Book," both of which have been released. Completed for fall release is his album of "Mother Goose Stories."

In Toronto to appear in "Front Page Challenge," the weekly quiz-panel tv series of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., Karloff claims his most interesting current acting job is making children's records; but, last week, he was working with Cyril Ritchard and Celeste Holm on the fantasy-tale of a frog whose friends were eaten by a cat and her kittens, with the frog later eaten by a duck.

Said Karloff: "This is a perfect example of what people think of horror in entertainment; but no one suggests for a moment that this subject is bad for children. We were all brought up on it and none of us have turned out to be monsters—except maybe me." He labels as "poppycock" all the fuss made over childish imagination and claims the bib set "loves to picture the dark at the top of the stairs" and that standard nursery rhymes don't frighten children.

Montreal Has a Gala For 'Queen Liz' Preem; H'wood Mob Flown In

Montreal, April 15.

Show biz and Conrad Hilton combined to give Montrealers a rousing premiere with the official opening of the $20,000,000 Queen Elizabeth Hotel here yesterday (Mon.). Plenty of buildup material via press, radio and television plus special sections in the dailies got the hotel away to a sock start. Although the inn opened several floors with limited service to guests on March 14, the official ceremonies began yesterday with a $100-a-plate dinner topping the event tonight (Tues.).

A chartered Trans-Canada Airlines plane brought in a host of celebs from the Coast including Hedda Hopper, Ann Miller, Margaret O'Brien, June Lockhart, John Carroll, Leo Carrillo, Mimi Benzell, Earl Wilson, Cobina Wright, Amy Vanderbilt, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Jeanne Crain, Vera-Ellen.

Guy Lombardo arrived with his orch to play only for the opening, with Canadian Denny Vaughan and his 12-piece band alternating and continuing throughout the next few months in the Salle Bonaventure. Songstress Guylaine Guy, a local thrush who has been working in Paris and elsewhere, came back for the preem only with the Los Chavales group inked for next three weeks. Patachou is slated for May 19 on a three-week engagement.

Hilton operates the Queen Elizabeth for the Canadian National Railways which owns it.

ASCAP KEYS GOLDEN ANNI OF PRESS CLUB

Washington, April 15.

Fiftieth anni of the National Press Club was celebrated here Saturday (12) night with veteran song composers contributing a nostalgic touch to an entertainment program provided by American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers. A cavalcade of music, embracing the last half century, proved appropriate for an occasion in which many oldtime newsmen gathered.

Bringing back their songs were Otto Harbach who gave a moving reading of "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes"; Jack Norworth, with "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" and "Shine on, Harvest Moon"; Jimmy McHugh, with "I Can't Give You Anything But Love; Baby"; George M. Cohen Jr., singing his father's best known hits, including "Over There," effectively augmented with a fife, drum and bugle corps.

There were also Charles & Edna Tobias ("Rose O'Day"), Sidney Lippman ("Adorable"), Bee Walker ("Hey, Jealous Lover") and Harold Adamson ("Our Love Affair") and "Around the World").

An original song, "Golden Jubilee," was written for the occasion by ASCAP prexy Paul Cunningham, emcee of the show, and McHugh.

Johnny Nash, of the Arthur Godfrey show, scored with dramatic renditions of "A Very Special Love" and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

Supporting the composers were the Ray Charles Singers and Professors of Harmony. The U.S. Navy Band, with Warrant Officer Anthony Mitchell conducting, provided dinner music.

IATSE $1,200,818 Kitty

As of Dec. 31, 1957, the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees had total assets of $1,200,818, according to the union's most recent financial statement. Cash disbursements, including salaries of officers and the staff and general administrative expenses totaled $991,371.

The 44th annual convention of the IA will be held at the Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis for a week beginning Aug. 4. Convention headquarters will be at the Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel.

Our Boy Cliberg

Van Cliberg, 23-year old American pianist who last week won first prize in a Moscow music competition, has been invited by cable to play Carnegie Hall May 7 or 14 along with Russian conductor Kiril Kondrashin as a final special event for the N. Y. Philharmonic.

Cliberg who has won many U. S. prizes but no fame until the Russians arranged that, is Columbia Concert Management's client.

Test Bullfighting For Charity; Puerto Rico Eyes Tourist Angles

San Juan, April 15.

Keenly concerned to multiply all possible tourist attractions, Puerto Rico may adopt bullfighting. It would not be the Spanish or Mexican kind where the bull is slain but a compromise between the milder Portuguese and Peruvian techniques.

A test running of toro was performed here recently under the cloak of charity—to wit, that succoring organization, the Red Cross. Four Spanish matadors faced eight bulls in Sixto Escobar Stadium, local baseball grounds. There was plenty of cape work and charges but no sword play.

The reaction here was mixed. The bulls were not very angry, quite Ferdinand-like, in fact. But at least the Spaniards, Antonio Plaza, Raimundo Serrano, Armand Martin and Jose Vazquez worked up some perspiration.

Experiment was organized by August Echevarian who, to nobody's surprise, is identified as a press agent for the island.

LESBIAN DRAMA MAY BE SEEN AT SEA

London, April 15.

Ronald Duncan's play about lesbianism, "The Catalyst," may go to sea to beat the Lord Chamberlain's ban against its public performance. Negotiations are on between Duncan and the Cunard Line for the play to be presented on the Queens on their trans-Atlantic runs. The drama is currently at the Arts Theatre club, and cannot be shown at a commercial theatre because of the Lord Chamberlain's nix.

The idea of putting it on outside of territorial waters ("where the Lord Chamberlain can't touch it," says Duncan) came from American actor Phil Brown, who directed the play and stars in it with Renee Asherson and Virginia Maskell.

Since the play has only one set, it would offer no production problems to the Cunard Line.

Herbert Graf, stage director for the Metropolitan Opera Co., currently stage director for the Houston Grand Opera production of Strauss' "Electra."

Benny 'Gaslight' Decision Doesn't Dimout Parodies

By IRWIN O. SPIEGEL
(Fellow, Yale Law School)

As far as the Jack Benny tv parody of the film "Gaslight" is concerned, it certainly doesn't spell the death of burlesque. Many feel that it's possible to live with the recent Supreme Court decision in the Benny parody case.

The U.S. court ruling does not put the store of recent literature off-limits to burlesque. It's indeed possible to live with "Gaslight."

Benny's burlesque closely paralleled the original in plot, characters, story development, incidents, sequence of events, points of suspense, and climax. So much was borrowed from "Gaslight" that if the borrowings were eliminated "Autolight" would be left with a few isolated gags and some disconnected and incoherent dialog.

The lower courts treated burlesque the same way as any other appropriation of copyrighted material: a substantial taking is an infringement. Not only was a substantial part of "Gaslight" copied but the part copied formed a substantial part of the burlesque. The "substantial taking" rule allows ample play at the joints for creative burlesque. A burlesque that is in substance a new work, not making use of the incidents of the original, would not infringe on the original. Here's proof:

One week after "Gaslight" was decided, Columbia Pictures tried to put the stopper on Sid Caesar's burlesque of its film, "From Here to Eternity." Caesar had radically transformed "Eternity's" plot, dramatic sequences, characters and dialog. The film's two leading male characters were welded into one part played by Caesar. The dramatic became whimsical; the moving, incongruous; the tragic, absurd. The court ruled that Caesar's taking was not substantial. This was burlesque in the Grand Tradition—the genuine article.

The copyright owner has the exclusive right to license adaptations and other versions of his work. A burlesquer who would revolve about the frame of a copyrighted piece, sucking in substance, must secure a license or he will be adjusted an infringer. Conversely creative burlesque will not infringe its copyrighted model, and need not be licensed. It's impossible to fix the boundaries precisely; however, we have certain guides. "Gaslight" tells us that a thinly-veiled, slavish imitation cannot masque as creative burlesque. And Caesar points the way to non-infringing creation.

I may be sanguine but as I size it, "Gaslight" echoes a challenge to originality, not a death-rattle.

4/16

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00

Three Years—$39.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.
Syd Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y. JUdson 2-2700
Hollywood 28
6404 Sunset Boulevard, HOllywood 9-1141
Washington 4
1292 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445
Chicago 11
612 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984
London WC2
8 St. Martin's Pl., Trafalgar Sq., COVent Garden 0135

SUBSCRIPTION Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Volume 210 120 Number 7

INDEX

Bills	56	Obituaries	63
Chatter	62	Pictures	3
Film Reviews	6	Radio	25
House Reviews	57	Radio Reviews	42
Inside Radio-TV	32	Record Reviews	44
Inside Vaudeville	52	Television	25
International	8	Television Reviews	33
Legitimate	58	TV Films	28
Literati	61	Unit Review	56
Music	44	Vaudeville	50
New Acts	57	Wall Street	24
Night Club Reviews	55

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a year. $20 Foreign.

SHOW BUSINESS VS. INVESTORS

'Creature Comfort' as B.O. Lure

Recognition of customer discrimination and general inclination to shop for creature comforts and special film attractions is getting exhibitor reaction in a large measure starting in New York. Already the Broadway Paramount's facelift, in advance of "The Young Lions" premiere, has been rewarded with important b.o. grosses. And Loew's State is planning to scale down its capacity.

RKO Theatres prexy Sol A. Schwartz took out alternating rows of seats at his 58th St. Theatre, in a special "be as comfortable here as at home" section, and within the same week of the experiment the public reaction has been marked. All stress "it's as comfortable as seeing television at home," and the really studious film fans have observed that "maybe it's a little more comfortable than necessary."

Schwartz anticipated that because, he feared, some might think that the wide rows would be passage-ways, and the resultant traffic through these aisles might become a nuisance. He figures two rows of seats for every three rows, as against two for four rows, as more ideal, and yet affords ample leg room and also comfortable passage for the in-and-out-of-the-seats traffic.

The Roxy's managing director, Robert L. Rothafel, has still another idea—a $5 reserved-seat "golden circle" for the 156 seats flanking the booth on the first mezzanine for the new Cinemiracle policy. He envisions socialite groups even bringing their own between-the-acts champagne, a la the Sherry's restaurants in the Metropolitan Opera House.

Incidentally, the Roxy's nearly 6,000 seats were not cut as drastically as reported in some quarters. There are 2,850 seats of which 1,800 are on the main floor; the rest in the upper mezz and first balcony. The second balcony is closed because of the line of vision.

Children Cinema Series a Sellout But Promotion Costs Cancel Profits

Cinema 16's Children Cinema having proved a sellout success, if not a standout moneymaker, Amos Vogel and William Peretz Johnnes plan to continue and expand the kidpix series in the fall.

Last of the children's film programs will be presented, at the Beekman Theatre, N. Y., on April 27. The five showings were sold on subscription only, at $7.50 per person for the entire series.

According to Vogel, who is exec secretary of Cinema 16, the Children's Cinema shows, skedded as a rule Sunday mornings, have elicited considerable response throughout the country with some 40 to 50 organizations and exhibitors writing in for details. Plan is for Cinema 16 to supply them with "the formula," i.e. titles, ad formats, ideas for mailing pieces, etc.

Vogel and Johnnes, the latter in charge of films at the Museum of the City of New York, plan to repeat the series in New York and to expand it, perhaps to two Sundays each month. Also, it may be introed in the suburbs, at The Cinema Theatre in Manhasset. Both this house and the Beekman

(Continued on page 22)

Abortion Play Set

20th-Fox bought the New York legiter, "Blue Denim," for $90,000 flat. Its main theme is young love and abortion.

20th got around that in "Peyton Place" by presenting it as a miscarriage.

Allied In Switch Back To COMPO

Allied States Assn., major exhibitor group which has been aloof to the Council of Motion Picture Organizations for the past several years, yesterday (Tues.) formally returned to the COMPO fold. Allied's official return, which had been anticipated, was voted at a meeting of the all-industry's general membership yesterday, presided over by Sam Pinanski.

Originally a charter member, Allied withdrew from membership because of policy differences. Allied officials, for example, were riled because COMPO took no stand against on-the-air tollvision.

(Continued on page 22)

Rush Lana Turner Films To Market

Paramount is rushing out the independent Joe Kaufman-produced Lana Turner starrer, "Another Time, Another Place," and the tv stations across the country are reissuing such Turner oldies as "The Postman Always Rings Twice" and others.

"Another Time" was made in England and elsewhere at the time of her intensive correspondence with the slain Johnny Stompanato and is said to have a real-life coincidence of plot with the headlines.

Rhoden Elated, Sees Cinemiracle 'Intimate' Touch

By ABEL GREEN

Elmer C. Rhoden, president of National Theatres and the sparkplug of "The Windjammer," in Cinemiracle, returned to the Coast last week, after the successful premiere of the picture at the Roxy, on Broadway, with the conviction as a veteran theatre man that the process has something for "plot" production that none of the other processes can claim.

"At least," says Rhoden, "the critics, and especially VARIETY, have pointed up that Cinemiracle lends itself to 'intimate' production which is why Jack L. Warner just phoned me that he was so gratified at the reaction and now plans to

(Continued on page 24)

List (RKO Chain Owner) Merger With Glen Alden Under Legal Hold-Up

Merger of List Industries, parent company of RKO Theatres, with the Glen Alden Corp. has been delayed for at least two weeks because of stockholder objections and court orders served at shareholder meetings of both companies.

At the List Industries meeting, board chairman Albert A. List, said that no action was being taken because of problems raised at the Glen Alden meeting. The List meeting, as a result, was recessed for two weeks until April 25 without any action on the reorganization agreement.

All eleven directors were re-elected at the session, including Ralph E. Case, T. R. Colburn, William J. Durocher, Dudley G. Layman, List, Mrs. Vera G. List, Royal B. Lord, A. Louis Oresman, A. H. Parker Jr., Edward C. Raftery and Sol A. Schwartz.

BANKED FIRES MAY FLAME UP

By HY HOLLINGER

Unless the motion picture industry moves more quickly in consolidating studio and distribution facilities and cutting down on manufacturing costs, a major conflict is expected to erupt between the film men on one side and the Wall St. financial men and stockholders on the other. To state the position of the impending battle more succinctly, it boils down to a showdown between "show business and business business."

Although the financial sources have remained on the sidelines as hecklers and have given the film men an opportunity to revitalize the motion picture business, there are indications that the stockholders and the Wall Streeters are getting tired of the "all talk and no action" relating to facilities which it is believed can be consolidated for important cost-saving results. To be sure, there have been some consolidations of backroom distribution facilities and the elimination of some exchanges, but the money men are inclined to believe that the film companies have not gone far enough and are continuing to delay the inevitable. What is particularly irking the shareholders and the Wall Streeters is the poor financial reports that continue to emerge from one company after another.

Seek 'New Approach'

There have been numerous informal talks among film company presidents about finding a new approach to the business. Universal prexy Milton R. Rackmil admitted that such talks had taken place, but he declined to reveal what subjects they covered, merely stating that "new approaches to the business" are being sought. It's anticipated that if these talks jell, there will be further mergers of distribution facilities. It won't come as a surprise either if one or more companies turn over their product to other companies for distribution similar to the manner in which RKO shifted its completed films recently to Universal.

The financial men are particularly disturbed by the failure of the film companies to get together to seek a solution to the cost involved in maintaining large studios which, it's felt, are no longer necessary for the production program currently being followed. Of course, there have been numerous informal talks concerning consolidation of studios, but nothing has come of them so far, a factor that has irritated the Wall Streeters, particularly since the maintainance of the "factories" involves a high overhead.

One Wall Streeter characterized the delay in the merging of studio facilities as involving "a question of pride and who's going to move into whose lot." It's reiterated over and over again that "everybody talks about tightening the belt," but that everybody follows

(Continued on page 62)

Movietone News Fate Under Study

Movietone News, the 20th-Fox newsreel, continues to run in the red, but there are no immediate plans to either discontinue it or to switch it to CinemaScope, Alex Harrison, 20th general sales manager, said last week in N. Y.

Harrison said a good deal of thought had been given to the conversion to C'Scope, but that he was not sure whether exhibitors would be willing to pay additional rental for a widescreen reel, which would cost a good deal more to produce.

Only reels left on the market are Movietone, News of the Day (Metro)) and Universal News, now being produced by Metro and distributed by U.

Yanks Chummy With Satellites; 'Picnic' to Czechs for $10,000; Roumanian, Bulgarian Talks On

Ready for the Couch

Hollywood April 15.

Asked about business, a studio executive said that all records are being broken.

"In fact," he said, "in the first quarter alone we're 1,400 irritations ahead of last year!"

Mrs. Harry Cohn Nixes Many Bids For Col Shares

Mrs. Harry Cohn stated in Hollywood Monday she has rejected bid of $19 for her Columbia Pictures shares and has no intention of selling. She said a number of approaches had been made and to all she made the same rejoiner. "I'm high on the company my husband founded. As to present management, following her husband's demise, she says, "I'm thoroughly satisfied."

Hollywood, April 15.

Negotiations have been initiated with Mrs. Harry Cohn, widow of the late Columbia prexy, for the purchase of 240,000 shares of Col stock, representing approximately 20% ownership in the company, for $4,560,000 or $19 per share. The shares are part of the Cohn estate. Acting for a syndicate, said to have Louis Wolfson, as its head, is Chicago attorney Sidney Korshak who has had a meeting with Mrs. Cohn regarding the sale of the stock she controls.

It's reported that she is interested in selling and that Korshak has also had talks with Alfred Hart, George Sidney and Mendel Silberberg, latter two being executors of the Cohn estate. Hart, a member of Col's board, was named financial advisor to Mrs. Cohn during the administration of the estate.

Korshak couldn't be reached for comment, particularly about reports that the Chi syndicate includes A. L. Koolish and Ralph Stolkin, Chicagoans who were involved in the abortive buyout of Howard Hughes' interests in RKO

(Continued on page 16)

With All That Video Coin, Sol Lesser Will Resume His Theatrical Films

Hollywood, April 15.

Sol Lesser, vet of nearly 50 years in the film business, has no intention of retiring, despite his recent sellout of his Sol Lesser Productions to Sy Weintraub for $3,500,000, and will continue to be active in both theatrical and tv film production.

Producer says his sale was for the purpose of obtaining funds for "expansion." While now board chairman and production supervisor of his old company, Lesser says he will continue to personally guide the "Tarzan" feature pix, the "Tarzan" tv series and a new vidpix series based on Thornton Wilder's "Our Town."

On Lesser's agenda is a "major spectacle" for theatrical release, based on Gene Fowler's story, "Illusion in Java," for which producer will scout locations in the Orient when he starts a three-month global trip in June. This film, to be produced independently of Lesser Productions, will be partially financed by producer and "partially by a major company." It will be shot "with Hollywood technicians and Hollywood techniques," he says.

The "Iron Curtain" is no more for the American film companies.

Most of the U. S. distributors now are in indivdual negotiations with the Soviet satellite nations and Columbia Pictures has closed a $10,000 deal for "Picnic" with the Czechs. Company is negotiating for additional sales with Prague and in fact has assigned a man in its Paris office to nothing but concentrate on the Soviet orbit.

Other distribs also are holding conversations not only with the Czechs but also with the Bulgarians, the Roumanians, etc. Several had started discussions with the East Germans after the Motion Export Assn. deal with that country fell through, but these talks had to be discontinued when the East German DEFA monopoly apparently got orders from above to drop all negotiations.

MPEA's dial with Poland, for 25 films, is in the bag. The Hungarian deal only awaits the signature of the Budapest government, and the Soviets are currently in Washington screening films. The proceeds from these countries are small, in the case of Hungary amounting to no more than between $3,000 and $4,000 per picture. However, the companies feel that it's a foot in the door anyway.

The $10,000 which Col received for "Picnic" is an extraordinarily high price for an Iron Curtain country. The Czechs originally showed an interest in talking with MPEA, but later dropped out. Since then, the MPEA's license for the individual countries (except Russia) has expired and the distribs are free to make their own deals if they wish.

Sol Siegel Terms Before Loew's Bd.

The proposed deal under which Sol Siegel would take over the production reins at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios will be formally presented to the Loew's board of directors at its meeting in N. Y. today (Wednesday). Joseph R. Vogel, Loew's prexy, has been in touch with Siegel, ironing out details of the contract before presenting it to the board.

With Siegel taking over as MGM production head, the studio operation would revert to the old format under L. B. Mayer, when latter was the administrative head of the studio and Irving Thalberg, and subsequently Sam Katz and then Dore Schary were the production toppers. Now, Ben Thau will be the administrative head, with Siegel in charge of production.

Besides a term employment contract, part of the Siegel deal, it's certain, will be a buyout of his indie company, which releases through Metro. Purchase price of Siegel's company would reportedly be over $1,000,000. Pictures involved are "Les Girls," "High Society," "Man on Fire," "Merry Andrew" and the currently shooting "End of the World."

Goetz's 3 For Columbia

Hollywood, April 15.

William Goetz has signed a new multiple-pix deal with Columbia Pictures for his indie company. Producer will immediately start prepping trio of properties: "They Came to Cordura," novel by Glenda Swarthout; "The Mountain Road," Theodore White novel; and "The Franz Liszt Story."

Under his former deal, Goetz last completed "Best of Enemies," based on "Jacobowsky and the Colonel," which starred Danny Kaye, Curt Jurgens and Nicole Maurey.

VOGEL STILL PLOWS TOUGH LOEW'S ROW; PROBLEMS--AND DISPUTES--CONTINUE

Although there has been an outward calm and apparent harmony among Loew's Inc.'s board of directors, the film company is far from over the hill in solving its financial and corporate problems. Prexy Joseph R. Vogel is still faced with a tremendous uphill battle in soothing conflicting elements on the board and in implementing the program that will bring Loew's solidly into the black.

The company's board of directors which meets today (Wed.) following the postponement of last month's scheduled meeting will be faced with many thorny questions relating to the company's future course. Earlier this week, committees within the board met and elected Vogel chairman of the executive committee of the board and Jerome A. Newman, newly-elected director, as chairman of the recently-organized budget and finance committee. Newman, senior partner in the investment firm of Graham-Newman and chairman of the board of Government Employees Insurance Co., is closely allied with Louis A. Green, who also joined the board at the last annual stockholders' meeting. Green, owner of more than 100,000 shares of Loew's stock, is a pany's corporate affairs. Green and Newman regard themselves as strictly financial men and are expected to take the dollar-and-cents attitude in meeting the problems facing the company.

It's understood that Green and Newman hope to come up with definite financial suggestions regarding the operation of the company. Newman spent some time on the Coast recently looking over Metro's studio property and the studio operation. Green has stated that his objective is not to harm the company's film-making potential but that he feels that costs can be cut without impairing the quality of key figure presently in the com the product. He has also declared that he has no "preconceived notions" and that he doesn't envision any immediate "miracles," but that his aim is to build a better product at less cost but with more efficiency.

Many Factions

Green and Newman represent one faction on the board. Another pair—brought in by general counsel Benjamin Melniker—consists of

(Continued on page 22)

Vogel Chairs Exec Comm

Hollywood, April 15.

Joseph R. Vogel, prexy of Loews' Inc., is new chairman of the Executive Committee of Board of Directors, succeeding George Killion, now chairman of the board. Killion remains as a committee member, others including Louis A. Green, Ira Guilden, William A. Parker and John L. Sullivan.

Jerome A. Newman also has been appointed chairman of the Budget and Finance Committee, with Phillip A. Roth vice chairman. Both were elected to Loew's directorate at last stockholders meeting.

Reade's Drive-In Files Antitruster

Walter Reade Inc., owner-operator of the Lawrence Drive-in Theatre, near Trenton, N. J., last week filed a $450,000 treble damage antitrust suit in N. Y. Federal Court against the eight majors, Allied Artists, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Stanley Warner, National Theatres and various of their subsidiaries.

Action charges that the distributor defendants conspired with their theatre affiliates to deprive the Reade ozoner of first and second run product. A temporary and permanent injunction is also sought to restrain the distribs from effecting "unreasonable" agreements in respect to runs and clearances.

Paul Lazarus Moves Into Columbia's HQ Command; Jonas Rosenfield Up, Too

In an executive realigment aimed at strengthening the administrative top personnel of the company, Paul Lazarus Jr., v.p. in charge of advertising-publicity, is moving into the top echelon of Columbia Pictures, joining prexy Abe Schneider, sales chief Abe Montegue and v.p. Leo Jaffe on the exec floor.

Taking over the ad-pub department, but without any immediate change of title, is Jonas Rosenfield, now billed as assistant to Lazarus.

Lazarus, whose star at Col has risen steadily in recent years, will remain a v.p. but will concern himself predominantly with production and liaison with the independent producers who, in the future, will constitute the backbone of Col's production activities.

Rosenfield, who joined Col several years back after working with Italian Films Export, has been Lazarus' right hand man, paying particular attention to Col's foreign productions and their exploitation. He'd long been tabbed as a "comer" in the Col exec talent pool.

CANNED TRACK 'SNEAK' OF NEW KAYE PIC

Hollywood, April 15.

With the musicians strike against the major studios in its ninth week, and no letup or settlement in sight, Columbia is considering using canned music for the sneak previews of the Danny Kaye starrer, "Best of Enemies" formerly "Me And the Colonel."

Since the film hasn't been scheduled for an early release as yet, studio hasn't decided as to how it will tune the pic.

It's understood that the William Goetz production won't go into distribution with canned music unless it's impossible to score the film.

Dick Weaver retained by Metro to handle the legit-style engagement of "Gigi" at the Royale Theatre starting in May.

UP-SCALE 'YOUNG LIONS'

Minneapolis Has Plenty of Advanced Price Films Now

Mineapolis, April 15.

With the World currently boosting its ante from $1.25 to $1.50 after 5 p.m. for "The Young Lions," (20th) inflationary boxoffice prices zoom to the stage where stiff moviegoing costs hit a new all-time local peak.

This, too, at a time of general local recession from which blockbuster pictures, despite their abundance, seem immune, the stiff tariffs apparently not affecting their patronage adversely.

In addition to the "Lions" there are "Around the World in 80 Days" and "Search for Paradise" in their 39th and sixth weeks ($2.65), "Bridge on the River Kwai" (4th wk.-$1.50) and "Brothers Karamazov" (5th wk.-$1.25) at the upped admissions.

Also, in its initial subsequent neighborhood engagement at two theatres "Farewell to Arms" is scaled at $1.25, the same as its loop raised admission, instead of the customary 85c.

Just Now Filmites Super-Sensitive To N.Y. Times

Film trade, more sensitive than ever to either negative criticism of films or stories about the business in the general press, is currently turning an angry eye at the N. Y. Times. Some executives, in exasperation, are asking: Is the Times out to bury us?

Reaction is the result of a number of downbeat pieces the Times has been frontpaging in recent months. First there was the Albert Sindlinger report, which the paper got exclusively and ran prominently. The report was full of dire warnings about the future.

Last week, the Times again frontpaged the Hollywood unions' downbeat analysis of the trade and it also gave page one position to the government's antitrust suit against Universal, Columbia and Screen Gems. People in the trade don't argue that the Times shouldn't publish legitimate news, but they quarrel with the dominance that it is being given at a time when the film biz is trying to reestablish an atmosphere of public confidence in pictures.

Some argue, too, that the Times has a tendency to take these various analyses of the industry's ills

(Continued on page 24)

MAY SERVICE HUDSON OUT OF N.Y. EXCHANGES

Albany, April 15.

The possibility has been raised that Walter Reade's Community in Hudson may be serviced from New York, instead of Albany. Two distributors reportedly look with some favor on the idea.

Consideration has been given to the idea, since several recent exchange closings here. Also, because of the fact certain other theatres in the general Hudson area are served from New York (Hudson is 33 miles south of Albany). The chances of obtaining prints are claimed to be better, from New York—under present conditions.

Buying and booking of the Hudson Community and of the Community in Saratoga would continue to be handled from this city. That development occurred April 1.

Europe to N. Y.

Franco De Simone
Abel Green
Goffredo Lombardo
Jane Magid
Lee Magid
S. A. G. Swenson

Soviet Fancies Kirk Douglas As 'Mike Strogoff'

Soviet film delegation now in the U.S. has reacted favorably to the Bryna (Kirk Douglas) proposal to coproduce "Michael Strogoff" in Russia next year.

Bryna's Edward Lewis and Stan Margolies met with the Soviet reps in New York to outline the project and were told that the matter would get toplevel consideration in Moscow at the end of May. If "Strogoff" is produced, it'll be the first Russo-American coproduction on record.

The late Mike Todd planned to coproduce first "War and Peace" and then another picture with the Soviets, but neither project materialized.

According to Margolies, "Strogoff" will star Douglas and possibly a Soviet actress. Story tells of a messenger of the Czar on an urgent errand across Russia. Script has been worked out and submitted to the Soviets. Film would start in summer of 1959, with some preliminary camera work in the spring. It's possible that the Soviet Agfa color process may be used.

Margolies said no definitive proposals had been made on just how the coproduction angle would be worked out, though the film would be shot entirely in Russia. Bryna's impression was that the Soviets were eager to go ahead with coproduction. Bryna's last film was "The Vikings," a $4,000,000 production due for release soon.

New York Sound Track

The "Birth of a Kitten" short, shown last Saturday (12) on the Children's Cinema series at the Beekman Theatre, N.Y., was once banned by the N.Y. censor!

Alex Harrison, 20th-Fox general sales manager, and his wife leave May 13 for a seven-week European jaunt. It'll be strictly "no business" he vows . . . The Soviet delegation, in the U.S. to buy American films, won't talk to the press because—they say—there's an understanding with the State Dept. not to do so. The State Dept. denies it. The Russians were in New York over the weekend . . . Ed Svigals is the new sales head for Trans-Lux Distributing . . . Settlement of the Danish embargo situation continues to lag. The Danish exhibs had another meeting on settlement terms last Friday (11).

Charles Moskowitz (formerly of Loew's) and Joseph Schenck have taken office space in the Tishman building on Fifth Ave. . . . Raoul Levy, having spent $25,000 on acquiring John Steinbeck's "Pippin the Fourth," has dropped the project and is writing off the money as a loss. Couldn't get a good script and the French government also didn't like the subject matter very much. Levy's next: "The Camp Followers" . . . Robert Corkery, the MPEA's Latin American supervisor, due back from the field after a three-months trip. Question of upped admissions in Brazil still in the air . . . Wisdom of selecting "The Brothers Karamazov" as the official U.S. entry at Cannes is being doubted by some. Fear the critics may tear it apart . . . Walter Reade Jr. tied up some important coproduction deals on his recent European trip. Also acquired a couple of pictures.

Marilyn Monroe is a fresh, intelligent, witty and completely unspoiled person, English actress Dame Sibyl Thorndike told Auckland, New Zealand reporters. Dame Sybil is currently touring New Zealand with Enid Bagnold's "The Chalk Garden" and the play's Auckland stand coincided with the showing of the Laurence Olivier-Monroe-Thorndike film, "The Prince and the Showgirl." . . . "Marilyn reminds me in some ways of Marlene Dietrich," said Dame Sybil, "although her intelligence may not be as great as Marlene's. But she has a tremendous native wit." Dame Sybil said that Arthur Miller, whom she described as one of the great playwrights of our day, should have a good steadying effect on Marilyn.

U.S. Army will not release Elvis Presley from current training schedule "except for compassionate or emergency reasons." Policy was set forth in a letter to Rep. A. E. Herlong Jr. (D-Fla.) denying a request to allow Presley to sing at an armed forces day celebration sponsored by Chamber of Commerce May 17 at de Leon Springs, Fla.

Ilya Lopert has acquired the French film, "Maigret" for the U.S. And Edward L. Kingsley has taken on the British "Lucky Jim" for release via Kingsley-International . . . Turner B. Shelton has bowed out of addressing the Federation of Motion Picture Councils at Cleveland tomorrow (Thurs.) afternoon . . . Radio commentator Martin Starr to accompany Douglas Fairbanks Jr. on latter's p.a. tour for "Chase a Crooked Shadow." He'll act as interviewer-m.c. for Fairbanks and film's star, Anne Baxter, on the stages of houses playing the thriller.

Paul Denis and George Barris have formed a writer-photographic collaboration and fly to Hollywood April 17 on assignments for American Weekly, Compact and other books.

Peter Riethof, who is dubbing "The Parisienne" for Ilya Lopert, on the prowl for a Brigitte Bardot "voice." . . . B. G. Kranze, Stanley Warner Cinerama v.p., off to the Brussels World Fair for the opening of Cinerama there and for confabs with Nicolas Reisini regarding the opening of additional Cinerama outlets in Europe . . . Universal pub-ad chief David A. Lipton in Gotham for 10 days of meetings with home-office executives . . . Producer Ross Hunter doing the bally routine for "This Happy Feeling." . . . Simon and Schuster renting a Broadway sign to promote Walter Ross' first novel, "The Immortal." Ross, who is BMI press chief and former Warner Bros. publicist, has sold the film rights to Metro. Tome concerns an actor of the leather jacket school who gains fame after his accidental death . . . Movielab Color Corp. has issued a special memo describing 10 different color processes for the production of 35m and 16m release prints . . .

Negotiations under way for Tony Randall to play the lead in Stanley Kramer's "Invitation to a Gunfighter," Alvin Sapinsley screenplay to be directed by Paul Stanley. Film is scheduled for production this summer during the eight weeks Randall will be on vacation from his lead role in the musical, "Oh Captain!" on Broadway . . . Hermione Gingold in Gotham to participate in the bally for Metro's "Gigi," which opens at the legit Royale Theatre on May 15 on a 10-performance, reserved seat basis . . . Cine Roma eyeing Sal Mineo to portray the youthful Leonardo Da Vince in an upcoming film. Shooting would start after Mineo completes "Tubi's Monument" and "The Gene Krupa Story" in Hollywood . . .

Allied States Assn. singing the praises of Pepsi-Cola for employing a drive-in as background for a national ad . . . Larry Morris, v.p. and general manager of B. S. Moss Theatres, off to Europe Monday (21) for a tour of film production centres to line up product for the Moss art houses . . . Americo Aboaf, v.p. and general manager of Universal International, to Europe over the weekend . . . N.Y.'s Cinema Lodge of B'nai B'rith pays tribute to retiring president Robert K. Schapiro and newly-elected prexy Joseph B. Rosen at Hotel Astor luncheon tomorrow (Thurs.) . . . N. Richard Nash back from the Coast after complet-

(Continued on page 22)

L. A. to N. Y.

Irving Asher
Anne Baxter
Sam Briskin
Yul Brynner
MacDonald Carey
Charles Coburn
Hans Conreid
Gary Cooper
Joan Crawford
James Doolittle
William Dozier
Anita Ekberg
Rudy Flothow
John Forsythe
Samuel Goldwyn
Mack Gordon
Bob Hope
Ross Hunter
Jose Iturbi
Leo Jaffe
Howard Keel
Fred Kohlmar
Warner LeRoy
Ralph Levy
David A. Lipton
Daniel Mann
Rex Marshall
Mack Millar
N. Richard Nash
Otto Preminger
Vincent Price
Dick Puccio
Richard Quine
Martin Ritt
Arnold Stang
Anthony Steele
Lee Tracy
Rudy Vallee
Esther Williams

N. Y. to Europe

Americo Aboaf
Lyn Austin
Freddie Carpenter
Jean Dalrymple
Richard Davis
Art Ford
Anthony Franciosa
Ben Goffstein
Martin Goodman
Leland Hayward
B. G. Kranze
Ilya Lopert
Bruce McClure
Larry Morris
Eric Pleskow
Jean Renoir
Joseph Winters

N. Y. to L. A.

George Barres
Paul Denis
Milton Goldman
Mike Jablons
Harry Mandel
Edwin Mifler
Elmer C. Rhoden
Franklin Schaffner
Jean Stapleton

20TH FAVORS A BALANCED DIET

Spelling Art as S-E-X

The socalled "discriminating" audience must display its capacity for discrimination more clearly if a confusion between "art houses" and "sex houses" is to be prevented, Arthur L. Mayer, veteran foreign film distributor and w.k. film biz personality, tells the Federation of Motion Picture Councils at Cleveland tomorrow night (Thurs.)

Mayer's speech is titled "Foreign Films and American Audiences." It predicts that, due to the growing acceptance of dubbed films, the scarcity of domestic pix, the growing popularity of overseas stars and the demand for franker treatment of adult problems, imports during the next ten years should double the advance they made during the past 25.

However, warns Mayer, the "art" houses should not become synonymous in the public mind with theatres specializing in uninhibited sex. It's to allow the importers to concentrate on artistic values rather than pure exploitation that Mayer argues that the public must show discrimination.

UA Tops Own Pace 7 Years In Row; 6 Upcomers Potential Put at $50-Mil

For the seventh consecutive year, the Arthur B. Krim-Robert S. Benjamin management team at United Artists has chalked up a net and a volume exceeding its previous year. For 1957, an all-time net of $3,262,466, after provision for taxes, was achieved. Gross world-wide income from film rentals and related activities was $70,008,242, also listed as the highest in the 39-year history of the company. Figures compare with a net of $3,106,497 and a gross of $64,106,497 in 1956.

The 1957 earnings are equivalent to $3.05 per share on the stock outstanding as of Dec. 28. Comparative earnings per share for 1956, adjusted to the shares outstanding at that time, were $2.90.

Krim stated that the first quarter of 1958 would be ahead of the same stanza of 1957 and that he was confident that this year would end up ahead of 1957.

Krim based his optimism that UA was a growth company "with the end not in sight" on the fact (1) the company's funds obtained from public financing would be

(Continued on page 24)

Bullfighting Feature Draws Ire of Animal Protection Societies

Vancouver, April 15.

This town has in recent months had a several-chapter fuss with its German colony over old war pictures showing on television screens. Now protests over theatrical screening of Columbia's "Torero," bull fight opus, which closed recently at Studio art house, are disclosed.

Syd Freedman, the operator, received objections from Performing & Caged Animals Protection League and from Tom Hughes, manager of area's SPCA. Mrs. Noreen Hepner, president of PCAPL, wrote and visited Freedman, who invited the league to see feature. She said she considered "Torero" to be "a pagan thing, and sacrilegious," referring to the bullfighters' obeisances after the kill. "Such cruelty," she added.

Hughes did not see the film, but protested to Freedman that "Chil-

(Continued on page 24)

'GIGI' HARD TICKETS RANGE $1.25 TO $3

A price range of $1.25 to $3 including tax has been established by Metro for the legit-style presentation of "Gigi," the Alan Jay Lerner-Frederick Loewe tunefilm, at the Royale Theatre in New York. Picture, opening on May 15, will be shown for 10 performances a week.

Prices for Wednesday matinees (at 2:40 p.m.) will be $2 for orchestra seats, $1.50 for front mezzanine and $1.25 for rear mezzanine. For Saturday, Sunday and holiday matinees (also at 2:40 p.m.), rates are $2.50, $2, and $1.50; Monday to Thursday evenings (8:40 p.m.) and Sunday evenings (8:30 p.m.), same scale holds. Top prices are for Friday, Saturday and holiday evenings (8:40 p.m.) when rates are $3, $2.50 and $2.

LOMBARDO, DE SIMONE ARRIVE IN GOTHAM

Goffredo Lombardo, president of Titanus Films of Italy, and Titanus general manager Franco De Simone have arrived in New York for a series of conferences with United Artists and Metro executives on the release plans of "The Naked Maja," Ava Gardner-Anthony Franciosa starrer which Lombardo is producing in Rome.

UA has the U. S. and Canadian distribution rights to the film and Metro will distribute it in the rest of the world, excepting Italy where Titanus distributes.

While in N. Y., Lombardo will open discussions with other film companies relating to future co-production deals.

Get The Bidding Going Strong on 'Seesaw' Show; Ask $600,000 and 10%

Hollywood, April 15.

It was a seesaw race this week for the William Gibson legiter "Two for the Seesaw" as Seven Arts Productions (Eliot Hyman-Ray Stark) moved in on packager Charles K. Feldman and seemed to have the inside track in the bidding. Feldman, acting for William Holden, would have had Columbia backing.

If Seven Arts grabs off the property, it'll go through United Artists. Terms reportedly are $600,000 cash plus 10% of the gross over the first $3,500,000. Under the originally contemplated Feldman deal, Holden would have been associated with Gibson, producer Fred Coe and director Arthur Penn. They'd have jointly deferred their compensation in return for 90% of the film's earnings. On that basis the picture could have been made for $750,000 and Col could have recouped its financing within ten weeks on the basis of a 27½% distribution fee.

Now, however, the tendency seems to be to want to sell the play on an outright basis plus a percentage. In addition to Seven Arts, several other UA producers such as Otto Preminger and Harold Mirisch are in the running along with Warner Bros.

Niven, Doll Tour for Todd

Boston, April 15.

David Niven and Bill Doll, Todd p. r. rep, came in Thursday (10) for exhib meeting at Dinty Moore's re nabe dates for "Around the World in 80 Days."

Niven and Doll are on a 13 city tour in behalf of nabe dates. "Around the World in 80 Days" opens Wednesday (16) at the Coolidge, Brookline; St. George, Framingham; Strand, Quincy; Paramount, Newton; Paramount, Lynn, and begins a run Thursday (17) at the Strand, Dorchester.

Niven said he had promised to make the 13 city tour with the late Mike Todd. Earlier Michael Todd Jr. was in town to get the dates set following close of the film at the Saxon, where it played for 51 weeks.

HAPPY TO HAVE L'IL FILMS, TOO

At a time when most of the major companies are determinedly talking economics in distribution and have their eyes set on turning out "big" pictures, 20th-Fox continues to march steadfastly in the opposite direction.

It has no current plans either to eliminate U. S. exchanges or to merge with anyone else. And it continues with a balanced schedule of big and small films, the surface explanation being that it has an obligation to deliver product to the theatres.

According to 20th execs, the company is doing well with its low-budget Regal Films releases. It's not losing any money on its medium budgeters and it's vastly satisfied with its top product, like "Peyton Place," "Long, Hot Summer," "The Young Lions," "A Farewell to Arms," etc. As reported in VARIETY last week, 20th had the best domestic quarter in its history in the three weeks ending March 31, 1958.

But, even though it feels that it has hit on a happy formula, which allows it to fill a product void, 20th remains sensitive to market changes and indications point to some adjustments for 1959. Lengthy meetings were held in New York last week, prior to the departure of prexy Spyros P. Skouras for the Coast where, starting yesterday (Tues.) he, general sales topper Alex Harrison, production head Buddy Adler, ad-pub v.p. Charles Einfeld, 20th-International prexy Murray Silverstone, huddled with the 20th board and among themselves to finalize plans for production and release in 1959.

The preliminary plan is to keep output at approximately the same level as in 1958, but there may be some adjustments. It's possible that films in the low and medium budget range may be reduced some. And 20th remains sensitive to the plans of the other studios.

"If we see our competitors going back to the production of low-budget product, we'd certainly get out of that bracket," Harrison said last week. Meanwhile, 20th apparently feels that, with its distribution organization intact, it might as well keep its release channel full and the theatres supplied with

(Continued on page 24)

CINERAMA AGAIN EYES 'PAINT YOUR WAGON'

Stanley Warner is again showing interest in "Paint Your Wagon" as a Cinerama film. The Alan Jay Lerner-Frederick Loewe Broadway production of several years ago was the property of the late Louis B. Mayer and since his death has been controlled by his nephew, former Metro producer Jack Cummings.

Nat Lapkin, v.p. of Stanley Warner, has made a number of trips to the Coast to discuss a possible production in the three-strip process, with Cummings at the helm. Property was tentatively set as a Cinerama project when Mayer was chairman of the board of Cinerama Productions Corp.

Publicists-20th Agree; Tighten Job Security; Juniors' Salary Up $6

First break in the stalemated negotiations between the N.Y. Screen Publicists Guild and four film companies came early this week when the union reached an agreement with 20th-Fox. Pact, which will be signed momentarily, is expected to set the pattern for the industry.

Agreement, a two-year deal, has the effect of tightening the security status of the pub-ad staffers by requiring that 20th hold a 90-day "discussion" with the SPG before it considers shifting any work to an outside agency. Union is hopeful that lengthy talking period would give them a chance to convince the company that it would be more economical to do the work in the shop.

Pact also gives a $6 cross-the-board wage hike to all staffers earning less that the senior publicist minimums of $140. It also provides for a wage reopening for the senior publicists 10 months after the contract goes into force.

Easter Reminder: Bills for Children Leave Houses Empty in Evening

Many complaints have been raised about the shortage of pictures aimed specifically at the kiddie trade, but the question now arises as to just what type of films will parents bring their offspring to see. During the Easter school vacation period, Loew's theatres in the N.Y. metropolitan area experimented with two moppet programs. One consisted of a package made up of a reissue of a Shirley Temple picture, "Susannah of the Mounties," and an all-cartoon feature, "Gulliver's Travels." The other combo consisted of two Martin & Lewis oldies, "Jumping Jacks" and "Scared Stiff."

Both packages only fared so-so. Matinee trade was rated satisfactory, but not great. However, the evening trade fell off so much that the overall result had to be re-evaluated. On the other hand, Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" scored more solidly on the RKO chain although business was also off during the evening hours.

The pattern of business raised the question of the possibility of changing the matinee and evening programs in the future. It raises a question of the proper advertising and arranging rental payments, particularly if the pictures come from different distributors. Exhibitors agree that there are many problems involved, but that they are not insurmountable.

Another factor noticed in the pattern of kiddie trade is that it is better in downtown houses than in the neighborhoods. It's felt that during vacation periods parents attempt to make an event of taking the children out and, as a consequence, usually transport the family to the big downtown house. The visit constitutes an occasion and frequently involves having lunch or dinner in a downtown restaurant.

Critic Jay Carmody To Rep U.S. at Cannes As More Stars Anticipated

Washington, April 15.

Jay Carmody, drama critic for Washington Evening Star, has been named official U. S. rep to Cannes Film Festival. Carmody served as head of panel of judges at last summer's Berlin Film Festival.

Cannes Festival (May 2-18), which serves as kick-off for annual rush of Europe's film fetes, is expected to attract more top star names than in recent years. Clark Gable is skedded to attend on behalf of "Teacher's Pet," and Oscar winner Joanne Woodward will be there with husband Paul Newman to hypo interest in "Long, Hot Summer." Both pix are invited participants, in addition to official

(Continued on page 63)

'LADY SINGS THE BLUES' BUT NOT ON THE COAST

Hollywood, April 15.

Current musicians' strike in Hollywood, "with no end in sight," is leading to Lester Cowan recording the sound track of his upcoming United Artists release, "Lady Sings the Blues," in Paris this summer, according to Ann Ronell, musical director on picture and wife of the producer.

Here to have completed arrangements for scoring Billie Holiday biopic, Miss Ronell says present music situation on Hollywood front is such that Cowan, who originally planned to record sound track in Hollywood, has definitely switched to French capital. Recording will be made by singer during her upcoming May-July concert tour of Europe.

Miss Holiday, however, will not appear in picture, adapted from biog of same title by William Dufty, with whom Miss Ronell collabed on screenplay.

National Boxoffice Survey

Trade Still Strong; 'Kwai' No. 1, 'Lions' Second, 'Pacific' 3d, '80 Days' 4th, 'Andrew' 5th

The current session is a post-holiday week for most firstrun theatres, and biz reflects this. However, trade has held surprisingly strong in many key cities covered by VARIETY this stanza. The weather, which turned springlike for first time, did not seem to hamper trade.

"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) still is in No. 1 spot, making the fifth session the film has been champ. It is being closely pursued by "Young Lions" (20th), which is gradually closing the gap, but still not able to get beyond second place currently.

"South Pacific" (20th), playing in seven spots this stanza, is winding up third. Fourth money goes to "Around World in 80 Days" (UA). The Mike Todd opus was pushed down by new arrivals in recent weeks but is staging a smart comeback this round.

"Merry Andrew" (M-G) is taking fifth place while "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) is finishing sixth. "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB), which comes into the N. Y. Music Hall next week, is taking seventh money, same as last week.

"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) is winding up eighth. It had been in third position the two previous weeks. "Teacher's Pet" (Par) is landing in ninth place.

"Search For Paradise" (Cinerama) is finishing 10th. "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) will be 11th while "Witness For Prosecution" (UA) rounds out the Top 12. "Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) and "God Created Woman" (Kings) are the runner-up pix.

Interest centers on "Windjammer" (Nat'l), initial pic in the Cinemiracle process, among the newcomers. It is rated big in L. A. and very solid in N. Y. at the big Roxy which has lost half its seating capacity in order to handle the huge screen and special equipment. "St. Louis Blues" (Par), also new, is okay in St. Louis and good in N. Y.

"Touch of Evil" (U), another newie, is rated fair in Frisco. "Paris Holiday" (UA), another fresh entrant, shapes okay in Minneapolis, quiet in Philly and only fairly good in L. A. "Stage Struck" (BV), also new, is rousing in Boston but strictly lightweight in L. A. and Frisco.

"Desire Under Elms" (Par) continues its steady pace in two N. Y. houses though in fifth weeks. "Farewell To Arms" (20th), solid in St. Louis, is okay in Philly.

"Escapade in Japan" (U) is rated nice in Chi. "Peyton Place" (20th) is big in Chi and fancy in Toronto.

"Gervaise" (Cont) is big in N. Y. "Cowboy" is mild in Boston. "Paths of Glory" (UA) looms fine in Buffalo.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 12-13.)

Too Much, Too Soon

Frank if incomplete account of Diana Barrymore's drinking and love life. Disappointing as biopic, may sell as sensational account of inside on well-known names.

Hollywood, April 11.

Warner Bros. release of a Henry Blanke production. Stars Dorothy Malone, Errol Flynn; co-stars Efrem Zimbalist Jr.; features Ray Danton, Neva Patterson, Murry Hamilton, Martin Milner, John Dennis, Edward Kemmer, Robert Ellenstein. Directed by Art Napoleon. Screenplay, Art and Jo Napoleon; based on the book by Diana Barrymore and Gerold Frank; camera, Nick Musuraca, Carl Guthrie; music, Ernest Gold; editor, Owen Marks. Previewed at the studio, March 24, 1958. Running time, 122 MINS.

Diana Barrymore	Dorothy Malone
John Barrymore	Errol Flynn
Vincent Bryant	Efrem Zimbalist Jr.
John Howard	Ray Danton
Michael Strange	Neva Patterson
Charlie Snow	Murray Hamilton
Lincoln Forrester	Martin Milner
Walter Gerhardt	John Dennis
Robert Wilcox	Edward Kemmer
Gerold Frank	Robert Ellenstein

Diana Barrymore's as-told-to autobiography, "Too Much, Too Soon," has to be considered on two levels as a motion picture. On the first count it is a fragment of the Barrymore story, a good deal of the life of Diana and a part of the life of her father, John. As such it is more Main Street than Main Stem. The Barrymore glow is seen as something produced more by bottled firewater than by the inner fire of genius. It will probably satisfy no one who knew John Barrymore, whether they liked him or not, and it gives no indication at all of why the Barrymore name means something in the theatrical profession.

On the second count, as a melodrama of high life in social and theatrical worlds, with very frank scenes of sex and alcoholism," "Too Much, Too Soon," will probably be successful commercially. Henry Blanke's production for Warner Bros. is subtitled "The Daring Story of Diana Barrymore," and that is what it comes down to: an expose of a famous name and its sad and speedy descent to ruin and despair.

The screenplay by Art and Jo Napoleon does one important thing well. It takes the annoying whine out of the story, so that the heroine is not forever blaming everyone for her troubles and travail. If it is over-simplication it is justified, but Diana is represented as a child who sought love but was denied it by her busy parents, actor Barrymore and poet Michael Strange, pen-name for socialite Blanche Oelrichs. This loneliness is acceptable as the reason for Miss Barrymore's frantic romances and marriages, all eyed with clear-seeing candor though sordid and unappetizing. The film story ends when Diana decides to cleanse her soul by the current substitute for the confessional or the couch, the ultra-frank autobiography. This is represented as a step in her regeneration.

There are many omissions that constitute falsity as far as the full story goes, Barrymore, for instance, is represented as married only to Miss Strange; no other marriages are alluded to, undoubtedly because of the problem of legal clearances.

There are other such omissions that will be noted and that cannot fail to detract from the impact of the story. The Napoleons undoubtedly worked with what material they could, balked from giving the complete account by the reluctance of the living to be involved. But understanding these problems does not concern an audience and an audience is going to feel that something is missing, and it is.

What is missing is the feeling that the story of this girl named Diana Barrymore is a story that should matter. The Napoleons have been skilfull in making Diana more sympathetic; her story is pitiful. But it is not important and it is not admirable. There is not the lift of Lillian Roth's "I'll Cry Tomorrow," a story of infinitely greater degradation but of eventually higher hope.

Dorothy Malone is often very moving as Diana, successfully limning the character from late adolescence to a woman mature in years if not in character. Errol Flynn makes John Barrymore an aimable drunk but not much else. Efrem Zimbalist Jr. is one of the fictionized characters, Diana's first husband, a decent actor who tries to help her. His portrayal is warm and sympathetic. Ray Danton makes the second husband, a tennis bum of nasty disposition, a properly repulsive character but one of understandable attraction. Neva Patterson as Michael Strange, and Murray Hamilton as a picture director, Martin Milner as an old friend, all contribute ably. Others seen prominently include John Dennis, Edward Kemmer and Robert Ellenstein, latter as Gerold Frank, author of the book with Miss Barrymore.

Art Napoleon's direction is thoughtful and sharp, making the most of individual scenes and attempting a cumulative meaning beyond the book's appraisal. Two photographers, Nick Musuraca and Carl Guthrie, make the most of the narrative's dramatic possibilities. Ernest Gold's music score is a highlight of the film, and editing by Owen Marks and sound by Francis J. Stahl are both top-notch. Powe.

Cry Terror

Highly-charged suspense meller. High-class exploitationer that lives up the sensational billing. Good names, good b.o.

Hollywood, April 11.

Metro release of a Virginia and Andrew L. Stone production. Stars James Mason, Rod Steiger, Inger Stevens; costars Neville Brand; features Angie Dickinson, Kenneth Tobey, Jack Klugman, Jack Kruschen, Terry Ann Ross. Directed and written by Andrew L. Stone; camera, Walter Strenge; music, Howard Jackson; editor, Virginia Stone. Previewed at the studio, April 11, '58. Running time, 96 MINS.

Jim Molner	James Mason
Paul Hoplin	Rod Steiger
Joan Molner	Inger Stevens
Steve	Neville Brand
Kelly	Angie Dickinson
Frank Cole	Kenneth Tobey
Vince	Jack Klugman
Charles Pope	Jack Kruschen
Pat Molner	Terry Ann Ross

For a Virginia and Andrew L. Stone production such as "Cry Terror," the opening titles represent a kind of dramatic count-down Once they are over—and the power is building even while they are on—the story is launched with dizzying speed and suspenseful pursuit that hardly relaxes until the final frame. The Stones are unashamed story-tellers. They throw anything into their narratives that give them added interest or excitement. This production for Metro is one of their best and it is a solid, satisfying picture that will have excellent box office returns.

Basic premise seems a little shaky, but before viewer has a chance to examine it, writer Andrew Stone has got the plot so chock-full of the FBI, bombs in airplanes, sexual psychopaths, female sadists, benzedrine addicts, knifings, shootings, extortion, kidnapping, murder and police detection methods that your critical faculties are completely numbed in happy anticipation of the next curve to be smashed at you, and still dazed from the last one.

In this one, James Mason is an electronic expert who constructs a small bomb for a man, Rod Steiger, who tells him it is to be submitted for approval to the U.S. government in bidding on a military contract. Instead Steiger tucks it away on an airplane, warns the officials in time where it is, but threatens to repeat the job unless $500,000 is immediately forthcoming.

Mason and his wife, Inger Stevens, are held captive by Steiger & Co., while the half a million is ponied up. The hostages also include the small daughter of Mason and Miss Stevens, Terry Ann Ross, which adds another dimension of harrowing suspense, as Steiger's colleagues are made known. They include Angie Dickinson as a shiv-wielding beauty, Neville Brand as a killer-rapist, and Jack Klugman as the third member of the evil trio.

Stone, as director, and Virginia Stone, as editor, keep several scenes boiling simultaneously, cutting sharply from one to another, heightening the effect of each by playing it off against another. The picture, as with other Stone productions, has the grimy feel of reality through their shooting in actual locations away from any studio. For the kind of story they do, it pays off.

Walter Strenge's photography is a vital element of this kind of realistic drama, with shots inside a New York subway tube, along New York's West Side Highway, inside an elevator shaft and other equally difficult but rewarding areas. Mason and Steiger play well together as the chief antagonists, but it is Miss Stevens who gives the most touching performance. Her evocation of terror and despair are shafted straight to the spectator's heart. Miss Dickinson, young Miss Ross, Brand, Klugman, Jack Kruschen and Kenneth Tobey give strong and varied support in their characterizations.

Other technical credits include the sparing but effective music by Howard Jackson and the realism of the unretouched sound, by Francis J. Scheid. Powe.

Hong Kong Affair

Average mystery deriving interest from Hong Kong locations. Jack Kelly may boost prospects, but overall possibilities dim.

Hollywood, April 11.

Allied Artists release of a Claremount Pictures production. Stars Jack Kelly, May Wynn; features Richard Loo, Lo Lita Shek, Gerald Young, Michael Bulmer, James Hudson. Produced by Paul F. Heard and J. Raymond Friedgen. Directed by Paul F. Heard. Screenplay by Herbert G. Luft, Paul F. Heard, J. Raymond Friedgen, Helene Turner; camera, S. T. Chow; editor, Helene Turner; score, Louis Forbes. Previewed at the studio April 9, '58. Running time, 79 MINS.

Steve Whalen	Jack Kelly
Chu Lan	May Wynn
Li Noon	Richard Loo
Sou May	Lo Lita Shek
Louis Jordon	Gerald Young
Inspector Stuart	Michael Bulmer
Jim Long	James Hudson

Not long after his plane touches ground in "Hong Kong Affair," star Jack Kelly is asked, "Why don't you see the city first?" This is a helpful suggestion, for it brings a trip through the colony that lends more intrigue and mystery to the film than the storyline itself. Kelly, whose usual mode of transportation is a horse on tv's "Maverick," will help this Claremount Pictures production along its sampan course, but the Allied Artists release is destined for program situations.

Several hands were in this Oriental pot, with the major work having fallen to Paul F. Heard who directed, co-produced (with J. Raymond Friedgen) and co-authored. With the entire production filmed in Hong Kong, Heard has co-ordinated his work to take advantage of what there is to see—crowded streets, crowded waters and crowded living. The only familiar thing is a Coca-Cola sign, and it's a case where unfamiliarity breeds interest.

Kelly is an American who owns half-interest in a Hong Kong tea plantation which has had jolly good luck with a brand called Iron Lady Budha Tea, but Kelly hasn't seen any money from this enterprise in three years. In Hong Kong to find out why, he meets May Wynn, Chinese secretary of the English attorney (Gerald Young) who handles the plantation's business affairs. She goes for him, and he goes to see why his tea isn't finding its way into hot little pots. A murder, an attempted knifing, a near drugging and two chases later, Kelly discovers Young has been hoarding all the profits himself while using the tea shipments to hide his parcels of opium. And, in the middle of Hong Kong's harbor, Kelly's supersleuthing brings him into the hands of the short-pantsed, long-socked police.

Kelly, the most believable part of the show, is genuinely concerned and quite convincing. Miss Wynn, a lovely lady who can act, isn't given much chance, for her put-on Oriental accent puts a kick into much of her portrayal. As a young Chinese femme, Lo Lita Shek adds a delightful touch.

The screenplay—which Herbert G. Luft and Helene Turner co-wrote with Heard and Friedgen—basically is the average tale of hidden narcotics. Heard's direction is solid for the most part but could have been picked up slightly in the hurry-up scenes. His production values, especially considering everything was done in the Orient, are fine, with only one set appearing contrived. Photography by S. T. Chow has caught the feeling of Hong Kong, and the Louis Forbes score helps. Title song by Forbes and Paul Herrick is a pleasant lead-in, and it's given a good run by singer Ronnie Deauville. Ron.

Manhunt in the Jungle
(COLOR)

Semi-documentary jungle adventure filmed on the spot in South America. Good prospects for its type.

Hollywood, April 11.

Warner Bros. release of a Cedric Francis production. Stars Robin Hughes; with Luis Alvares, James Wilson, Jorge Montoro, James Ryan, Natalie Manzuelas. Directed by Tom McGowan. Screenplay, Sam Merwin Jr., Owen Crump; based on the book, "Manhunting in the Jungle" by G. M. Dyott; camera, Robert Brooker; music, Howard Jackson; editor, Robert Warwick. Previewed at the studio, April 10, '58. Running time, 82 MINS.

Comdr. George M. Dyott	Robin Hughes
Aloique	Luis Alvarez
Col. P. H. Fawcett	James Wilson
Carissimo	Jorge Montoro
Native Woman	Natalie Monzuelas
Wilbur Harris	James Ryan

"Manhunt in the Jungle" was made by the same team responsible for the featurette of a year and a half ago, "The Amazon Trader," producer Cedric Francis, director Tom McGowan and writer Owen Crump, with latter sharing writing credits this time with Sam Merwin Jr. It is located in the same South American area as the earlier, excellent short feature and as a true story adventure, beautifully photographed and capably produced, it should have a most successful acceptance. Considering its probable cost, Warners may have a small bonanza on its hands.

The "manhunt" referred to is the actual trek into the Amazon jungles of British Commander George M. Dyott, who set out in 1928 to find Col. P. H. Fawcett, British explorer who had disappeared three years before. The Fawcett legend is still active, from time to time, lending itself naturally to exploitation, but Dyott's expedition is not so well-known. The screenplay by Crump and Merwin nicely withholds the outcome until the end so there is suspense in both adventures leading up to the climax and in the tragic conclusion itself.

The Warnercolor photography by Robert Brooker, shot entirely in the Amazon country of South America, with some background shots done in Peru, is exceptionally faithful in color reproduction. The river and the jungle are caught with clarity and imagination, although the shots are not as breath-taking as some displayed in "Amazon Trader."

McGowan is at his best as a director in handling of the real natives; some of the actors recruited in the area being unfamiliar with motion picture technique are inclined to indulge in brush-chewing. Robin Hughes, as the central figure, is restrained, however, both in his acting and his narration which is used for a major portion of the film in lieu of dialogue. It suits this kind of story and adds to the reality.

Editing by Robert Warwick and sound by Dolph Thomas, both vital in a production where no retakes and no rushes were possible, are excellent. Howard Jackson's music is also a plus factor. Powe.

The Return of Dracula

Francis Lederer as zombie in horror pic short on horror. Teenaged angles may overcome deficiency. Fair exploitationer.

Hollywood, April 11.

United Artists release of Jules V. Levy-Arthur Gardner production. Stars Francis Lederer, Norma Eberhardt; features Ray Stricklyn, John Wengraf, Virginia Vincent; with Jimmie Baird, Greta Granstedt, Gage Clark, John McNamara, Harry Harvey Sr., Mel Allen, Hope Summers, Dan Gachman, Robert Lynn. Directed by Paul Landres. Story and screenplay by Pat Fielder; camera, Jack MacKenzie; music, Gerald Fried; editor, Sherman Rose. Previewed in Hollywood, April 12, '58. Running time, 77 MINS.

Bellac	Francis Lederer
Rachel	Norma Eberhardt
Tim	Ray Stricklyn
Mickey	Jimmie Baird
Cora	Greta Granstedt
Jennie	Virginia Vincent
Merriman	John Wengraf
Reverend	Gage Clark
Sheriff Bicknell	John McNamara
Station Master	Henry Harvey Sr.
Porter	Mel Allen
Cornelia	Hope Summers
County Clerk	Dan Gachman
Doctor	Robert Lynn

"The Return of Dracula" is a well-made little picture but it is somewhat short on its most marketable quantity—horror. Francis Lederer plays the title role with considerable restraint and it is not until the final reel that things get at all exciting. As a horror exploitation item, it could stand some juicing up. It could be, you might say, more full-blooded. Except for this deficiency, the Arthur Gardner-Jules Levy production for United Artists release is capably made and tightly directed by Paul Landres. Pat Fielder did the screenplay.

Lederer is not our old friend, Count Dracula, in this one, but is a Dracula-type zombie who sets out to transplant himself from his native Balkans to sunny California. He arrives in the United States having taken the identity of a man he murdered en route. He takes his place in a household of the man's relatives. The daughter of the house, Norma Eberhardt, immediately catches his eye, although not for the usual male reasons, and after enlisting his first victim, Virginia Vincent, he starts after her. Partly through the aid of her teen-aged suitor, Ray Stricklyn, Miss Eberhardt escapes his clutches. Lederer is eventually done in by the complications of modern life when the U.S. Immigration Dept. comes around to check up on his passport.

Miss Eberhardt, Stricklyn, Greta Granstedt, Jimmie Baird, Miss Vincent and John Wengraf do nicely with their material.

It is an acceptable production but until the traditional wooden stake is driven into the zombie's heart, the screen turns color for a moment and the blood spurts forth, there is a regrettable shortage of the weird and eerie. Powe.

Thundering Jets
(REGAL SCOPE)

Action in the sky. Very good exploitation feature.

Hollywood, April 11.

Twentieth-Fox release of a Regal Films production. Stars Rex Reason, Dick Foran, Audrey Dalton, Barry Coe, Buck Class, Robert Dix; features Lee Farr, John Douglas, Robert Conrad, Sid Melton, Gregg Palmer, Lionel Ames, Dick Monahan, Maudie Prickett, Jimmie Smith, Bill Bradley, Robert Rothwell, Kevin Enright, Walter Kent, Tom Walton, Ronald Foster, Kenneth Edwards. Produced by Jack Leewood. Directed by Helmut Dantine. Screenplay by James Landis; camera, John Nicholaus Jr.; editor, Frank Baldridge; music, Irving Gertz. Previewed in Beverly Hills, April 10, '58. Running time, 73 MINS.

Capt. Morley	Rex Reason
Lt. Col. Spalding	Dick Foran
Susan Blair	Audrey Dalton
Lt. Erskine	Robert Dix
Capt. Murphy	Lee Farr
Capt. Davis	Barry Coe
Major Geron	Buck Class
Kurt Weber	John Douglas
Lt. Kiley	Robert Conrad
Sgt. Stone	Sid Melton
Capt. Dexter	Gregg Palmer
Capt. Anderson	Lionel Ames
1st Mechanic	Dick Monahan
Mrs. Blocher	Maudie Prickett
Long	Jimmie Smith
1st Student	Bill Bradley
2nd Mechanic	Robert Rothwell
Saunders	Kevin Enright
Pianist	Walter Kent
Vocalist	Tom Walton
Control Tower Sgt.	Ronald Foster
2nd Student	Kenneth Edwards

With in-flight photography that could brighten a much costlier production than this one, "Thundering Jets" will zoom through its bookings as a second feature, but it will be one with a healthy share of interest. Producer Jack Leewood has come up with a respectable little picture which showcases some promising young actors, and Helmut Dantine has directed the Regal film with taste if little fire.

The James Landis screenplay weaves three conflicts into the framework of an air force training school for test pilots, and though none of the conflicts is deeply handled, each at least is understandable. Rex Reason is the jet ace who's been forced to shake a hickory stick at a new crop of students every six months, feeling the whole time he'd rather be in the air himself. He takes out his frustrations on his pupils, has an argument with his girl (Audrey Dalton) and finally threatens to resign from the service. When one of the neophyte jetesters freezes at the dual controls and is saved by Reason, thus prompting a surprise party and some kindly words, the unhappy instructor realizes how important his job really is. Underlying this conflict is an attempted conquest of Miss Dalton by Buck Class, the "lover boy" of the school. And brought in for good measure is the conflict between Robert Dix, a student whose brother was killed over Germany during World War II, and John Douglas, a new American who flew with the German air force during that war. Both of these are solved in happy fashion.

Though there seems to be a nonchalant attitude in some of the performances, the roles are filled capably. Rex Reason is right in both looks and temperament, and Miss Dalton is pretty and capable. Class and Barry Coe, both whom are under contract to 20th-Fox which releases "Jets," are fine in evidencing sound talent. Good work also is done by Dick Foran, John Douglas, Sid Melton and especially Lee Farr as the class clown.

Cameraman John Nicholaus, Jr., added a major portion of entertainment to this film with his lensing. Sound by Don McKay and Bernard Hurlen helped as did montage work by editor Frank Baldridge. The Irving Gertz score pinpoints action effectively upbeats patriotism with its march tempo Ron.

Foreign Capsule Reviews

La Bonne Tisane (Good Medicine) (FRENCH). Lux release of Contac-Cofrabel-CCF production. Stars Raymond Pellegrin, Madeleine Robinson, Bernard Blier; features Estelle Blain, Roland Lesaffre, Henri Vilbert, Jacques Fabbri. Directed by Herve Bromberger. Screenplay, Louis Duchesne, Bromberger from novel by John Amila; dialog, Jacques Sigurd; camera, Jacques Mercanton; editor, H. Sevein. At Marignan, Paris. Running time, 100 MINS.

This pic combines a story of gangsters settling scores and a tale of a young nurse's first night of duty. Split theme film rarely achieves perfect cohesion, even when the two blend. This emerges only a fair entry here with U.S. possibilities dubious except for possible dualer usage on its theme.

A homecoming gangster finds others have encroached on his territory. In a fight he is shot, but manages to crawl to a hospital where he is found by a sensitive, young nurse. She is caught up in

(Continued on page 16)

BRIGITTE'S BOXOFFICE REVEL

Delicate Ethics Re 'Teacher's Pet'

Chicago, April 15.

Question of journalistic objectivity arose from "Teacher's Pet" reviews in Chi's two afternoon gazettes. American's Ann Marsters stepped aside, but the Daily News critique carried the usual Sam Lesner byline. Both reviews appear, with more than 50 other scribes, in the Perlberg-Seaton pic, playing the Woods here.

None other than the American's executive editor, Edward Doyle, subbed for Miss Marsters. He found the film "cute"—but that's all. He likened it to "hiring the liner Leviathan to deliver a postage stamp"—a long-ago George Jean Nathan salvo at a pretentious play with a flimsy theme. Doyle many years ago reviewed pix in Buffalo.

Lesner found the picture a "very bright comedy" that "manages to say some very significant things about modern newspapers." But his big enthusiasm read, "Teacher's Pet scores all the way as a thoroughly delightful newspaper comedy that is happily free of cliches."

Review of Tribune's Will Leonard (pinchhitting for vacationing Anna Nangle) concluded, "A newcomer by the name of Herb Lyon has one line of dialog, but I can't understand what he says." Lyon is the paper's gossiper under the "Tower Ticker" shingle.

Sun-Times, only Chi gazette without a staffer represented in the pic, gave it the better-than-good three-star rating.

Are Consent Decrees Beyond Change?

Many in Film Industry Doubt Relief from Long-Sought-Now-Partly-Regretted Divorcement

In all discussions of the ailments of the film business, the effect of the Goverenment consent decrees inevitably comes up and just as inevitably there is a call in some quarters for the elimination or at least a revision of what is regarded as a restrictive hold on the industry. The recent study of the motion picture business by Coast economist Dr. Irving Bernstein for the Hollywood AFL Film Council also stressed the damaging consequences of the consent decrees.

Realistic tradesters, particularly veteran attorneys associated with the film business, tend to laugh off all the efforts to bring about a change in the Government decrees. What the industry has forgotten, it is emphasized strongly, is that it was found guilty of illegal practices and that the consent decrees represented a compromise on the part of the Government. One lawyer likened the consent decrees to a life sentence as compared to the death penalty.

As a consequence, it's pointed out that the Government can't be called on to halt a penalty that was handed down after the industry was found guilty. Carrying the criminal analogy a step further, the attorney compared the industry's plight to the recent parole of Leopold. "It's like saying 'I'm guilty, but circumstances have changed. I'm old and poverty stricken now and I need a pardon or a parole,'" he noted.

Under these circumstances, the lawyer added, the Government may ease up a bit. As a matter of fact, it has in many recent instances and has permitted formerly-affiliated theatres to acquire new properties. In addition, it has allowed American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres to enter production and has also permitted Stanley Warner to operate Cinerama and National

(Continued on page 16)

Bomb Hoax—Again

Manchester, N. H., April 15.

The theatre bomb scare has been revived here, the latest victim being the State theatre, where some 50 patrons were forced to vacate the building while police inspectors and firemen searched the premises and found nothing.

A phone caller, reportedly sounding like a small boy, informed bomb would explode in the movie house at 9:30 p.m. Authorities immediately contacted Edward G. Mason, manager, and he asked the patrons to leave the theatre.

Following the negative search, the amusement-seekers returned to their seats and the show was resumed.

Ozoners Open Up Without IATSE

Minneapolis, April 15.

All 11 Twin Cities' area drivein theatres opened their seasons last Friday (11) with non-union projectionists, but there are two versions as to what has happened.

Circuit owner Ted Mann, president of a five-ozoner circuit and who represented all of the outdoor theatres in negotiations on a new contract with the union local, says the union projectionists are

(Continued on page 22)

IRVING WORMSER AS CONTINENTAL PREXY

Irving Wormser, having resigned from Distributors Corp. of America, is joining Continental Distributing as president. Walter Reade Jr. remains chairman of the board.

Continental originally was formed by Reade and Frank Kassler. They later split, with Kassler setting up his own indie outfit. At Continental, Carl Peppercorn will continue in charge of sales.

At DCA, Wormser had been sales chief under Fred Schwartz, president.

Times Theatre on 42nd St. N. Y., after playing "Ten Days in a Nudist Camp" for 19 weeks (and a $80,000 b.o. gross) pulled the film on Good Friday.

$3-MIL PACE FOR G-RATED 'WOMAN'

By FRED HIFT

Despite a "Condemned" rating from the Roman Catholic National Legion of Decency, the French "And God Created Woman," starring Brigitte Bardot, has been spot-booked by virtually every major circuit in the States and looms as far and away the biggest foreign grosser ever to play this country.

According to Edward L. Kingsley of Kingsley-International and Peter Horner of the associated Union Films, "God Created Woman" will end up with a minimum film rental take of $3,000,000 and very likely it will go to $4,000,000.

This must be viewed in the light of the fact that the import, which has been dubbed into English, cost the French producers only 400,000 to make and, with comparatively small launching costs, employs only about 150 prints. This must be weighed against the fact that, with this low expense, it's grossing what a very good American film of this calibre would gross with around 14,000 bookings.

The film's current take, from 175 bookings, stands at $1,500,000. Out of the Paris Theatre in New York alone it has taken $200,000 in film rental during a 25 week run and the end of that run isn't in sight.

"God Created Woman" has created one of the biggest jams in history on the "art" circuit, with houses keeping the film to top business for 12 and 15 weeks where normally they may run pictures two or three weeks. Even Kingsley-International has been affected by

(Continued on page 16)

UTRILLO ET MERE

Longstreets set Deal For Filming For Allied Artists

Hollywood, April 15.

Husband-and-wife writing team of Ethel and Stephen Longstreet have finalized a deal whereby film rights to their tome, "Man of Montmatre," are being sold to Allied Artists for $150,000 plus 10% of the profits, deal including a screenplay by the team.

Film will deal with the life of Maurice Utrillo and his mother, Suzanne Valadon, and negotiations are under way for Jean Negulesco to direct, and perhaps produce. Scripts will be submitted to Ingrid Bergman and Montgomery Clift.

Film will be lensed in color and widescreen in Paris in the fall. Book was published by Funk & Wagnalls. Longstreet deal with AA prexy Steve Broidy was set by Leon Lance.

N.Y. State Censor Data Show That Foreign Product 95% Sans Seal

'Cat on a Cool Tin Roof'

Hollywood, April 15.

"Cat on A Hot Tin Roof" will reach screen via Metro with the homosexual implications deleted, by permission of the dramatist, Tennessee Williams.

Change of motivation will have the leading character, played by Paul Newman, merely morally weakened by prolonged adolescence and refusal to assume adult responsibilities, rather than by AC-DC problems.

Director - writer Richard Brooks explains that the change was made to broaden the story for the public, not at any insistence of the Hollywood Code.

Though they are, seeking to crash the broad, commercial theatre market, foreign films continue to ignore the need for a Production Code seal. A gradually rising percentage of Hollywood pictures also are being released sans Code approval.

Statistics made available to VARIETY by Louis M. Pesce, director of the motion picture division of the N. Y. State Education Dept., show that of 554 imports reviewed by his division in the year ended March 31, 1958, 527—or fully 95%—of the total 554 pictures seen didn't carry a seal.

On the American side, with 383 features seen by the censor, 61—or 16%—had no seal whereas 322 did carry it.

Failure of the producers abroad to seek a Code seal has a twofold reasoning. First, the vast majority of these pictures go into art situations, where no question is ever raised whether or not the Code has approved them. Secondly, the circuits, if they want a picture, will play it anyway, seal or no seal. Also, a number of the more provocatively "sexy" imports couldn't get Code approval anyway and so they don't bother with applying for it.

The N. Y. censor figures, the only available gauge of the foreign films going into release in any one year (on the theory that a distributor wouldn't apply for a license unless he planned to distribute the picture) show that the division saw 383 American features against 332 in 1956-57. Not one of these was rejected, though three shorts were "banned."

On the foreign side, of the 554 imports reviewed, one was rejected. Last year, the censor saw 477 features. Of the 554 films a total of 532 came from 12 countries, with Hong-Kong imports again in the lead with 138 pictures. That was an increase of 14 over last year. Mexico shipped in 131 against 113 in 1956-57. British imports were up to 76 from 46; Germany dropped to 57 from 106; Italy remained static with 39; France went down one to 34; Greece contributed 18 against 14 last year; Soviet imports were down to 15 from 22 and Japan submitted seven against five in 1956-57. Argentina had seven, Sweden six and Poland four. Foreign producers also sent in 108 shorts last year against only 88 the prior year.

Each U.S. Distrib On Own Vs. Soviet

Though the Motion Picture Export Assn. is serving as a contact and liaison, facilitating screenings, etc., the Soviets will negotiate individually with each American company for the pictures they wish to buy.

Soviet delegation has been in Washington during the past week, screening some 40 to 50 pix and plans to see more. Indications are that the Russians may buy an initial batch of 10 to 15 features.

According to Turner Shelton, head of the U.S. Information Agency's film division, there is no question of the Russians reverting to their original "barter" ideas. They'll have to pick the American films before there's any discussion of which Soviet pix are to be acquired in the States.

NICHOLSON, ARKOFF HEADING FOR EUROPE

Hollywood, April 15.

Prexy James H. Nicholson and v.p. Samuel Z. Arkoff of American International plane for London Saturday (19) on annual European trek to discuss upcoming product with distributors.

Agenda calls for talks with Nat Cohen of Anglo-Amalgamated Film Distributors on possible co-production deals.

GEORGE A. CROUCH IS STANLEY CONSULTANT

Veteran theatre executive George A. Crouch, who has had 50 years of service with the Stanley Warner organization and its predecessors, is retiring from the business. He leaves on a vacation on May 3 and when he returns will serve as a consultant for the company.

Crouch's most recent post with Stanley has been as zone manager for the company's Washington theatres. As a result of Crouch's retirement, the Washington zone is being merged with the Philadelphia area and will be supervised by v.p. Frank J. Damis.

Crouch entered the theatre business in 1908 at the age of 15, working in the Air-Drome, established by the Crandell Amusement Co. on a fenced-in lot in Washington. Its 600 seats were made up of park benches and the admission was 5c. Crouch was a rewind man, poster clerk and general utility man. When Crandell merged with the Stanley Co. in 1925, he became successively purchasing agent, chief booker, assistant film buyer, and when Warner Bros. theatres absorbed the Stanley Co. three years later, he became film buyer and assistant zone manager. In 1948, Crouch was appointed zone manager and remained in that post when the Stanley Warner Corp. bought the Warner theatre chain.

Johnston Boost For Common Market In Europe Puzzles Some Yanks

The European Common Market concept, which last week got a hefty boost from Eric Johnston, still has a lot of film business executives wondering what it eventually may do to Hollywood exports. They're also at a loss to dope out the logic of Johnston's position.

The Motion Picture Export Assn. prexy told the Economic Club of Detroit that expanded American economic activity depended, in part, on the functioning of the Common Market in Europe. He went further, advocating similar trading blocks in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Not once, in his speech, did Johnston mention the motion picture industry. He did observe, however, that "the new common market will cause dislocations in our present international trading patterns. For a time, some of us may be hurt, painfully hurt. But to a far greater degree it is an opportunity."

Those in the industry who read the speech were divided in their reaction. Some felt that Johnston was wearing two hats these days—that of the MPAA-MPEA and the other of an economic adviser to President Eisenhower. But others expressed themselves sharply and negatively on the spectacle of the top industry spokesman enthusiastically plugging for common markets.

The "official" MPEA position, which doesn't necessarily jibe with private views, is that Johnston feels that any measure establishing greater economic security on the Continent must benefit the American film biz as it must all other U. S. businesses. Added to this is the observation that, come what may, there will be safeguards against "discrimination" against American traders in any common market setup.

There are those who hold, however, that films are a special case. They propose, bluntly, that European film men are but waiting for the opportunity of twisting the common market concept into a powerful weapon against Hollywood; and few argue that this could not be done.

Because it depends so much on exports, the American industry has had to compromise many times in the past. The latest instance is in France, where MPEA accepted the French view that 40 of the available 110 licenses next year should be allocated by the French themselves on the basis of which company does what for French films. MPEA fought bitterly against that provision, but finally accepted it for the sake of an overall deal.

Some feel that in his role of an "economic statesman," Johnston is bound to find himself at times at cross-purposes with the interests of the film biz which he represents. Yet, film toppers take the position that Johnston's activities on the government level give him an international entree which makes the "double hat" game worthwhile.

In his speech, Johnston compared the common market idea to the trading pattern first developed in the U. S. He called it the

(Continued on page 16)

U.S. Blockbusters Scoring in Paris With '10 C's,' 'Days' Tops; Longies Hits

Paris, April 15.

Yank blockbusters are making a big showing here via long runs. "Ten Commandments" (Par) is now in its 11th week in a dubbed version at the Paramount and in its ninth on the Champs-Elysees in subtitled forms. This may run through September.

"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) is ensconced in its subtitled run after 36 weeks in dubbed format.

The French have come up with a four-hour "Les Miserables," but it does not look to do the box-office enjoyed by its Yank counterparts. "Miserables" apparently has been made too many times, and with too much adherence to the book this version shapes as a lagging affair. But it will do okay here. Pic opened in five houses which were cut to three after the first week.

Longie films are catching on here as the longer than two-hour films flood first-run screens. "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) looks in for an extended run at an arty cinema on the Champs-Elysees after a phenomenal seven-week run at one of the top first-run tandems. It ran both dubbed and subtitled, but now is only in the latter.

"Peyton Place" (20th) is another many-reeled thing in for okay results. Also opening this week are "A Farewell to Arms" (20th) and "Sayonara," (WB), both viewed as important boxoffice pix here.

Sharp Upbeat in Italo Pix Prod.

Rome, April 8.

The month of March saw a sharp production upbeat in Italian studios. Fourteen feature pix were started during the past 30 days as against eight for January and seven in February.

Of the fourteen, five are all-Italian productions, four are Italo-French, one is Italo-Spanish, one is Italo-German and one Italo-Yugoslav.

One of the Italian pix was the first local-made science fiction pic, Royal Film's "Death Comes from Outer Space," directed by Paolo Heusch and starring Madeleine Fisches, Paul Hubschmid and Fiorella Mari.

Yank Edward Mangum's German Whiteface Staging Of Connelly's 'Pastures'

Frankfurt, April 15.

Marc Connelly's 28-year-old negro musical fantasy, "The Green Pastures" was staged here Saturday (12) at Stadtische Buhnen, state-operated, as spring season's opener. For this belated German premiere the production is in whiteface. It was done once before on that basis during the 1930's in Sweden.

Edward Magnum, the American, is staging, with an indispensable translator assist from his wife, German actress Gerda Eckhardt, since he concedes his German is atrocious. Harry Buckwitz, director-general of the theatre, selected Magnum with the conscious wish to have an American work given American-type direction, something hardly known in Germany. The Magnums have been in Turkey conducting dramatic classes and staging plays under subsidy there. (Including "Oklahoma").

Otto Rouvel is De Lawd here, Emil Lohkamp is Moses, Karl Luley as Noah and Wolgang Schirlitz in the Pharoah role.

Use TV to Bally Pix 1st Time in Germany

Frankfurt, April 8.

For the first time, a major German distributor has bought tele time in Germany to bally his upcoming products. Constantin Film Distributors took time in the German TV net this week for a half-hour program. Called "The Cinema Close By," it features information and scenes from the latest Constantin films.

Show was produced for tv by Hans Hoenicka and edited by Fritz Andlfinger.

Gloria Lane to Iceland

Unusual booking set by the Cosmetto Artists Management in Manhattan sent mezzo-soprano Gloria Lane to Iceland on Monday (14). Singer will give 10 performances with the Reykjavik Symphony, also appearing at the U. S. military base. She'll sing all the "Carmen" arias.

Miss Lane returns to U. S. for concert dates in May prior to singing this summer at England's Glyndebourne Festival.

Slight Split in Italo Ranks on Common Mart: Exhibs Yen Free Trade

Rome, April 8.

With the European Common Market a big topic in this country, application of ECM legislation in the field of films is widely discussed among local industry observers. Problem is also pointed up by the pending confabs over pact renewals between Italy and France, Spain and Germany, all taking place in the next two months. A slight split is becoming evident in the previously solid Italian front, regarding future policy with regard to the ECM and, more specifically, the European Film Pool idea.

While previously Italo filmites all had been in favor of following through with previous setup of a "protected" pix industry, indirectly supported by government film aid (applied in Italy and France), some local observers more recently have pointed out the "problem of choice" between the two basically opposite existing systems.

One local pundit, repping the exhib sector, raised the serious doubt that perhaps the Italian system is wrong while the German one (free trade setup) is right. Also, that perhaps it might be better for France and Italy to switch to the German standard of free trade rather than ask Germany to revamp its system to one approximating the Franco-Italian standard (as has been unsuccessfully tried in recent months).

A similar trend of thought developed recently in France, causing considerable discussion and controversy. Also it was pointed out here that adoption of the German system of free trade would also release Italian pix production from the many direct and indirect controls brought on by the subsidy system. This system recently showed signs, the observers say, of stifling the local initiative.

While it's generally doubted here that any drastic changes in the Italo pix industry setup are possible for now, the matter undoubtedly will receive a maximum of attention in the near future, stimulated by pending political elections in this country. Also, it was noted, much is at stake for local producers. According to a recent survey, the six countries of the ECM total some 26,680 cinemas.

LOEW'S SELLS AWAY FROM CATHAY TO SHAW

Singapore, April 15.

Under a new agreement between Shaw Bros. Ltd. and Loew's International, Metro films will be exhibited in Shaw theatres in Malaya instead of the houses of the Cathay Organization. Deal was signed here by Run Run Shaw, of the Shaw firm, and Seymour R. Mayer, v.p. of Loew's International.

According to Mayer, the new agreement represented a two-way deal in that Metro would distribute films made by the Shaw Organization in other parts of the world. Certain films, he added, might be suitable for distribution in the United States and other western countries. Mayer indicated that the determining factor in the shift to Shaw was the ability to obtain wider distribution of Metro pictures in the large Shaw circuit.

Italian Bow-Out From Paris Festival Creates Furore in Rome Circles

The news that Italy may not participate in the upcoming Paris Theatre Festival has rocked and irked Italian legit circles. Ostensibly, reports say that Italy bowed out of the Gallic Fest in order to allow the participation of some nations which have not yet had a chance to perform at the yearly theatre event, such as Argentina, India, Ceylon, and South Korea. Italy participated last year.

But other local observers claim there's another reason. According to the latter view, Italy was to present Goldoni's "Impresario di Smirne," as staged by Luchino Visconti for the Morelli-Stoppa Co. However, the same outfit also has a new play by Diego Fabbri, "Figli D'Arte," and pressure had been brought to have this staged in Paris as Italy's entry. Here, opinion is split, with some claiming the Fabbri work is too verbose and that the bare stage performance is unsuitable.

What the critics of the "exclusion" claim is that there are other worthy Italian presentations suitable for Paris. Reportedly, the toppers of the Stoppa-Morelli outfit would even be willing to give up their invitation to Paris in favor of another Italo group, just as long as Italy's theatre is somehow repped at this year's event.

NORTH AMERICA IN GERMAN CINEMASCOPE

Frankfurt, April 8.

The first full-length German CinemaScope documentary about North America has just been finished.

It was produced and directed by Hans Domnick, who spent a year travelling 55,000 kilometers between northern Alaska and Guatemala to film this full-length feature in color.

The film, currently comprising 26,000 meters, is being cut and processed by Real Film Studios in Hamburg, and will be released in Germany later this year.

$4,000,000 for Pix, Tele Films in Japan, 6 Mos.

Tokyo, April 8.

Foreign currency budget for the import of pictures and tv films for the first half of fiscal 1958 (beginning April 1) was set at $4,000,000 at a meeting of the cabinet council. First plan drafted at a meeting of the Foreign Exchange Bureau Feb. 20 called for $4,431,500, but downgrading of the amount is real indication of the effects of the anti-American motion picture faction in the Diet.

Irving Maas, MPEA Far East veep who's said that MPEA member companies are being penalized by being caught in a political crossfire, refused comment at this time on the new budget figure. This figure is the same as for the similar period of fiscal 1957. Meanwhile, opposition to the heavy import of U. S. film product continues to mount with even non-partisan voices speaking out and mentioning that generous amount of U. S. import licenses are a hangover from Allied Occupation days and that too many Western pictures are doing Japan no good.

An Israel 'Ripley'

Tel Aviv, April 8.

A "Believe It Or Not" or Stranger-than-Fiction story occurred here when the German-international film team shooting a 90-minute documentary on Israel shot a breath-taking chase for hasheesh (opium) smugglers in the southern desert of Israel. Israeli police fully cooperated and put at the disposal of the team hundreds of camels, horses and men.

The scene was successfully finished and everybody, including the police, were satisfied it was filmed true to life. However, when the police returned with beasts and extras, they discovered that a band of real smugglers, long sought, had been incidentally caught.

U.S. Fiddler Tours With Poles

Warsaw, April 8.

American concert violinist Roman Totenberg has returned to the U.S. but will join the one-year-old Warsaw Philharmony in May on its tour of Britain and Austria. This will make him the first Yank artist to appear as guest with a satellite country's musicians.

Knowing Poland from before the war, Totenberg found the Philharmony totally reorganized, with 16 new first desk men from the Pozman Orchestra, and from Katowice, Lodz and Krakow. Philharmony has three conductors of which Skorwacewski is due as guest conductor with the Cleveland Orchestra in the States next season.

Philharmony gives three concerts a week in Warsaw in a brand-new concert hall. Poland's one concert hall to escape bombing is at Krakow, the country's Pittsburgh, which city the combatants spared for reasons of statesmanship.

Under the present regime Poland's cultural music affairs are run by a Government concert agency, Pagart, which supplies conductors, soloists, commissions composers and arranges auditions and tours.

While Totenberg was here he recorded two Bach concerti for the Nagrania label.

Metro Reported Ready To Sell Brit. Studios, Its Empire in London

London April 15.

Metro is hoping to unload two of its major physical assets in Britain. The company, it is learned authoritatively, is looking for buyers for its West End showcase, the Empire, Leicester Square, and for its studios in Elstree.

Asking prices are not revealed but it is accepted that, on its real estate value alone, the Empire Theatre would be worth upwards of $2,000,000. When the freehold was first acquired back in 1925, the company, acting in partnership with the late Solly Joel, paid over $1,000,000 for the site. Metro bought out Joel's interest a few months after the theatre was opened in November, 1928. The Empire deal does not include the Ritz, which is adjacent to it, and which Metro has on a long lease.

Joseph R. Vogel gave the first public hint of the likely sale of Metro's British studios when he addressed the Allied States convention in Louisville last February. More recently, Robert H. O'Brien, the company's financial veepee, was in London to o.o. the situation.

The Metro-British studios, with seven stages covering over 73,500 square feet, and a vast exterior lot, is estimated in the trade to be valued at around $8,500,000.

It's understood that one of the main reasons why Metro is anxious to liquidate these assets is to repay outstanding bank loans.

PRESENT-DAY THEMES SEEN BEST FOR FILMS

Frankfurt, April 8.

"The film that's most likely to be a success today is one that has a contemporary theme," William Holden told the film press here during his personals for "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col). "The reason is that it is easier for the audience to identify themselves with the characters and happenings in it."

Holden felt that if the pic has true feelings and themes, told in a way that patrons can identify themselves with the actors, the film has most important element for success.

"There is no longer a Hollywood—it has become the universe," he stressed. "We have to appeal to people all over the world with a film in order for it to be a hit today."

French Film Academy Tabs 'Angry Men' Best

Paris, April 15.

The French Film Academy, made up of leading film creators and crix, gave its award for the best 1957 pic to "12 Angry Men" (UA). Marilyn Monroe took the best foreign actress award for her work in "Prince and the Showgirl" (WB). Prizes are crystal stars.

Best French pic pas Jules Dassin's "Celui Quit Doit Mourir" (He Who Must Die). Top foreign actor was Ake Gronberg in Ingmar Bergman's Swedish pic "Glycarnas Afton" (Naked Dawn). Best French thesps were Pierre Brasseur for "Porte Des Lilas" (Gates of Paris) and Mylene Demongeot for "Les Sorcieres De Salem" (Witches of Salem), based on Arthur Miller's play "Crucible."

Ireland Cinema Trade Down 10%

Dublin, April 8.

Boxoffice returns are down an average of 10% for 1957, as compared with 1956, according to Edmond A. Grace, chairman of Theatre and Cinemas Assn. here. Grace is spearheading a campaign to secure a cut in the Entertainment Tax in the government budget due April 23.

Exhibitors in rural areas claim that their biz is off 15%, and figure that emigration to cities, to Britain and to U. S. is one of the causes. They can't blame the tele in most cases because Ireland hasn't a service, and the fringe reception of English stations is only possible in a few places.

Irish Cinemas group, subsidiary of J. Arthur Rank Organization, has warned that it may switch the policy of the 3,500-seat Theatre Royal here to on all-film house, instead of cine-variety operation using a high proportion of Irish talent. Currently, the theatre gets a rebate of 30% for part-live show. However, directors say this is insufficient to meet the cost increase. If the switch is made, the problem will arise over the bar operation. The Royal has three bars now which it may operate because a part-live house.

See Bill Holden After 'Stein Dodge,' Native Japan Yarn, For Pix

Tokyo, April 8.

William Holden did not deny interest in the property "Stein Dodge," for which he is reported to be dickering for independent production. Before leaving for Hong Kong with Mrs. Holden for a week's stay, the actor waived comment on the subject although he is expected to enter into active negotiations when he returns here for a three-week layover.

This story, authored as "Shuten Doji" by Genzo Murakami, concerns a Dutch knight who was shipwrecked and washed to the beach of a Japanese fishing village where he is rescued by a dim-witted girl. Remaining in Japan, Dodge becomes the leader of a fierce raiding band. One time when the girl is brought before him, he tries to express his gratitude, but she perceives his true nature, tries to escape and falls off a cliff.

Toho is said to have approached Murakami for screening rights, but no commitment has been made. Daiei is also said to have expressed interest and Holden will have to toss his hat into the widening ring.

John Wayne's Batjac Productions is also said to be interested in the property. Wayne recently completed "The Barbarian" in Japan.

Ceylon's Clean Slate For 'Blackboard' (M-G)

The ban on "The Blackboard Jungle" (Metro) imposed by Ceylon's film censor board last November is expected to be unclamped, certified for adults.

C. R. Beligammana, acting Minister for Cultural Affairs, said in Colombo, Ceylon, he saw no reason why the film should be banned. "In fact, it contains some valuable instructions to parents how to bring up their children," Beligammana remarked.

YOU'VE SEEN 20TH'S FIRST QUARTER

PEYTON PLACE • A FAREWELL TO ARMS •
THE ENEMY BELOW • PLUNDER ROAD •
THE GIFT OF LOVE • DIAMOND SAFARI •
SING BOY SING • COUNT FIVE AND DIE •
AMBUSH AT CIMARRON PASS •
ESCAPE FROM RED ROCK • BEAUTIFUL BUT DANGEROUS •
THE RETURN OF SONG OF BERNADETTE

NOW GET SET FOR THE SECOND QUARTER

DAY AFTER DAY...WEEK AFTER

YOU

ONE OF THE GREAT ATTRACTIONS IN INDUSTRY HISTORY!

MARLON BRANDO · MONTGOMERY CLIFT · DEAN MARTIN

THE YOUNG LIONS

ALSO STARRING

HOPE LANGE · BARBARA RUSH · MAY BRITT

PRODUCED BY AL LICHTMAN

DIRECTED BY EDWARD DMYTRYK

SCREENPLAY BY EDWARD ANHALT

CINEMASCOPE

ALL THE SHOCK, FORCE AND POWER OF JOHN O'HARA'S HOTLY-DISCUSSED BEST-SELLER!

GARY COOPER

DIANE VARSI · SUZY PARKER

TEN NORTH FREDERICK

CO-STARRING

GERALDINE FITZGERALD

TOM TULLY

PRODUCED BY CHARLES BRACKETT

DIRECTED FROM HIS OWN SCREENPLAY BY PHILIP DUNNE

CINEMASCOPE

SHE WAS A WINK...A KISS... AN INVITATION...A G.I.'S PRIZE OF WAR!

FRAULEIN

DANA WYNTER · MEL FERRER · DOLORES MICHAELS

PRODUCED BY WALTER REISCH DIRECTED BY HENRY KOSTER

SCREENPLAY BY LEO TOWNSEND

COLOR by DE LUXE

CINEMASCOPE

INTO TOMORROW WITH THE FASTEST MEN ALIVE!

THUNDERING JETS

A REGALSCOPE PICTURE

REX REASON · DICK FORAN · AUDREY DALTON

BARRY COE · BUCK CLASS · ROBERT DIX

AND

THE MEN OF THE U.S. AIR FORCE

PRODUCED BY JACK LEEWOOD DIRECTED BY HELMUT DANTINE

WRITTEN BY JAMES LANDIS

A REGAL FILMS, INC. PRODUCTION

RELEASED BY 20TH CENTURY-FOX

THE BLAZING EPIC OF THE SHAPING OF THE NORTHWEST TERRITORY!

FLAMING FRONTIER

A REGALSCOPE PICTURE

BRUCE BENNETT · JIM DAVIS

PRODUCED AND DIRECTED BY SAM NEWFIELD

WRITTEN BY LOUIS STEVENS

A REGAL FILMS, LTD. PRODUCTION

RELEASED BY 20TH CENTURY-FOX

THE THRILL STORY OF THE GREAT UNKNOWN!

MISSILE INTO SPACE

A REGALSCOPE PRODUCTION

CO-STARRING

BILL WILLIAMS · LYNN THOMAS · WITH BOB ELLIS · PAUL FREES

PRODUCED BY BERNARD GLASSER

DIRECTED BY EDWARD BERNDS

A REGAL FILMS, INC. PRODUCTION

RELEASED BY 20TH CENTURY-FOX

20TH LEADS THROUGH STRENGTH

WEEK...
CAN DEPEND ON 20TH!

FROM THE PRODUCER OF "PEYTON PLACE"!

JERRY WALD'S production of WILLIAM FAULKNER'S

THE LONG, HOT SUMMER

PAUL NEWMAN · JOANNE WOODWARD · ANTHONY FRANCIOSA

ORSON WELLES · LEE REMICK · ANGELA LANSBURY

DIRECTED BY MARTIN RITT · SCREENPLAY BY IRVING RAVETCH & HARRIET FRANK, Jr.

COLOR by DELUXE CINEMASCOPE

FROM ONE END OF THE COUNTRY TO THE OTHER...THEY'RE WAITING FOR

FROM HELL TO TEXAS

DON MURRAY · DIANE VARSI

CO-STARRING CHILL WILLS · DENNIS HOPPER

PRODUCED BY ROBERT BUCKNER

DIRECTED BY HENRY HATHAWAY

SCREENPLAY BY ROBERT BUCKNER AND WENDELL MAYES

COLOR by DELUXE CINEMASCOPE

IT WILL SCARE THE WITS OUT OF YOU!

WATCH OUT FOR THE FLY

YOU'VE NEVER SEEN ANYTHING LIKE IT!

FILL YOUR BOX-OFFICE PRESCRIPTION WITH

Rx MURDER

RICK JASON · MARIUS GORING · LISA GASTONI

AND INTRODUCING SANDU SCOTT

PRODUCED BY JOHN GOSSAGE · WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY DEREK TWIST

CINEMASCOPE

RELEASED BY 20th CENTURY-FOX

"THE YEAR'S BIGGEST WESTERN!" —The Hollywood Reporter

CATTLE EMPIRE

STARRING JOEL McCREA

CO-STARRING GLORIA TALBOTT · DON HAGGERTY · PHYLLIS COATES

PRODUCED BY ROBERT STABLER

DIRECTED BY CHARLES MARQUIS WARREN

SCREENPLAY BY ENDRE BOHEM · ERIC NORDEN

COLOR by DELUXE CINEMASCOPE

THE MOB MOVED IN...AND A CITY BECAME A HELL IN CONCRETE!

GANG WAR

A REGALSCOPE PICTURE

CHARLES BRONSON · KENT TAYLOR · JENNIFER HOLDEN · JOHN DOUCETTE

PRODUCED BY HAROLD E. KNOX · DIRECTED BY GENE FOWLER, Jr. · SCREENPLAY BY LOUIS VITTES

A REGAL FILMS, INC. PRODUCTION

RELEASED BY 20TH CENTURY-FOX

EVERY MONTH OF THE YEAR!

L. A. Still Brisk; 'Windjammer' Fine $30,000, 'Lions' Whopping 48G, 'Pet' Mild 12G, 'Sayonara' Bullish $21,500

Los Angeles, April 15.

Local first-run outlook continues fairly bright this session, with two strong openers plus stout returns from some he dovers overshadowing the middling biz being done by other situations. "Windjammer," new Cinemiracle pic, is rated fine $30,000, opening a hard-ticket policy at refurbished Chinese.

"Young Lions" shapes smash $48,000 in four theatres. However. "Stage Struck" is only light $3,200 at Fine Arts. "Sayonara" tops holdovers with bullish $21,500 in third round, three cinemas. "Teacher's Pet" is only moderate $12,000 in fourth lap at Hollywood Par.

"Marjorie Morningstar" is so-so $11,000 in third session at Warner Bev. "Run Silent, Run Deep" looks tepid $11,000 in second week at trio of houses. "Merry Andrew" dipping to soft $7,200 in second at Pantages.

Hard-ticket holdovers still are flashy. "Around World in 80 Days" being hefty $19,100 at Carathay. "Seven Wonders of World" okay $17,200, and "Bridge on River Kwai" snappy $17,000.

Estimates for This Week

Chinese (FWC) (1,408; $1.75-$3.50)—"Windjammer" (NT). Fine $30,000.

Four Star, Fox Beverly, Loyola, Vogue (UATC-FWC) (668; 1,170; 1,248; 825; $1.25-$2.40) — "Young Lions" (20th). Wham $48,000. Last week, Four Star, Fox Beverly, Loyola, Vogue with Los Angeles, "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) 1st wk, Four Star; 4th wk, others), $21,100.

Fine Arts (FWC) (631; 90-$1.50) — "Stage Struck" (BV). Light $3,200. Last week, "I Accuse" (M-G) (3d wk), $1,500.

State, Hawaii (UATC-G&S) (2,404; 1,106; $0-$1.50) — "Viking Women" (AI) and "Astounding She-Monster" (AI). Mild $9,000. Last week, "10 Commandments" (Par) (3d wk), $11,000.

Hillstreet (RKO) (2,752; 90-$1.50)—"Man from Alamo" (U) and "Wings of Hawk" (U) (reissues). Slim $3,500. Last week, with Iris, Ritz, "Snow White" (reissues) (2d wk), $13,800.

SW Downtown (SW) (1,757; 90-$1.50)—"Country Girl" (Par) and "Proud and Profane" (Par) (reissues). Dull $2,500. Last week, "Song Bernadette" (20th), "Three Faces of Eve" (20th) (reissues) (2d wk), $4,800.

Orpheum, Hollywood, Uptown (Metropolitan-FWC) (2,213; 756; 1,715; 90-$1.50)—"Run Silent, Run

(Continued on page 20)

H.O.s Clip Cincy B. O. 'Majorie' Good $12,000, 'Lions' Wow 10G in 2d

Cincinnati, April 15.

Frontline film biz is firm here this week. Carryover of strong Easter assortment and solo newcomer, "Marjorie Morningstar," good at Albee, are withstanding opposition of new baseball season and annual Shrine Circus in Cincy Garden. "Bridge on River Kwai" continues to top the city for third week at Keith's. Potent holdovers are "Young Lion" at the Grand, "Run Silent, Run Deep," at the Palace, and "Long, Hot Summer" at Twin Drive-In. "Search for Paradise" maintains hotsy pace in 19th stanza at the Capitol.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; 90-$1.25)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB). Good $2,000 or near. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G), $9,500.

Capitol (SW-Cinerama) (1,376; $1.20-$2.65)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (19th wk). Holding to the sturdy $14,500 tempo of last week.

Grand (RKO) (1,400; 90-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Wow $10,000 after $15,000 preem. Holds a third.

Guild (Vance) (300; 50-90) — "Ladykillers" (Indie) and "To Paris With Love" (Indie) (reissues) (2d wk). Fairish $1,100. Last week, $1,200.

Keith's (Shor) (1,500; 90-$1.25)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (3d wk). Great $15,000 following $18,000 second round.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; 90-$1.25)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (2d wk). Good $8,000. Bowed in at $10,500.

Twin Drive-In (Shor) (1,500 cars; 90-$1.25) — "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (3d wk). Pleasing $6,500. Last week, $8,000.

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $725,700
(Based on 22 theatres)
Last Year $553,930
(Based on 25 theatres)

'Majorie' Wham 23½G in D.C. 2d

Washington, April 15.

Despite fact that there is not a single new first-run pic biz is holding well. Sole new bill, "Knights of Round Table" and "Ivanhoe," oldie combo at Columbia, shapes sock. "Bridge on River Kwai," in fifth stanza at Trans-Lux, continues to top city. "God Created Woman," in 23d session at the other T-L house, the Plaza, is being hypoed by new promotion campaign. "Marjorie Morningstar" is smash on second week at two spots.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador-Metropolitan (SW) (1,490; 1,100; 90-$1.50)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Sock $23,500. Holds. Last week, $31,000.

Capitol (Loew) (3,434; 90-$1.25)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) (3d-final week). So-so $9,000 in final 5 days. "Ballet Russe" comes in for 2 days mid-week. Last week, $15,000.

Columbia (Loew) (1,154; 70-90)—"Knights of Round Table" (M-G) and "Ivanhoe" (M-G) (reissues). Sock $10,000 for brace of oldies at low scale. Last week, "Raintree County" (M-G) (2d run) (10th wk), $9,000 at titled scale.

Keith's (RKO) (1,850; 85-$1.25)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk). School recess upped this to torrid $13,000 after $16,000 opener.

Palace (Loew) (2,350; 90-$1.25)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (5th wk). Steady $12,000 after $14,000 in fourth.

Plaza (T-L) (276; 90-$1.25)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (23d wk). Brand new promotion campaign plus tourists boosting this to amazing $5,500 after $5,000. Stays.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (600; $1.25-$2)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (5th wk). Wow $20,000 after $22,000 in fourth. Stays.

Uptown (SW) (1,100; $1.25-$3)—"South Pacific" (20th) (2d wk). Robust $17,000. Last week, $24,500 in 10 days. Holds.

Warner (SW-Cinerama) (1,300; $1.20-$2.40)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (15th wk). Robust $14,000 after $16,000 (best to date) last week. Stays.

'MAJORIE' BIG 13G, INDPLS; 'LIONS' 9G, 2d

Indianapolis, April 15.

Biz is generally oke at first-runs here this stanza, holdovers still figuring prominently. "Marjorie Morningstar" opened big at Circle and will lead city. "Young Lions" in second week at Keith's still is sock. "Bridge on River Kwai" in fourth at Loew's is rated nice. "Jumping Jacks"-"Scared Stiff," reissue combo, is getting a moderate play at Indiana.

Estimates for This Week

Circle (Cockrill-Dolle) (2,800; 90-$1.25) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB). Big $13,000. Last week, "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk), $11,000 at 90c top.

Indiana (C-D) (3,200; 75-90) — "Jumping Jack" (Par) and "Scared Stiff" (Par) (reissues). Oke $7,000. Last week, "Lafayette Escadrille" (WB) and "Green Eyed Blonde" (Indie), $6,500.

Keith's (C-D) (1,200; 90-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Great $9,000. Last week, $12,000.

Loew's (Loew) (2,427; 90-$1.25) — "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (4th wk). Nice $8,000. Last week, $11,000.

Lyric (C-D) (850; $1.25-$2.20)—"Raintree County" (M-G) (9th wk). Big $10,000. Last week, $9,000.

'Holiday' Okay 9G, Mpls.; 'Lions' 8G

Minneapolis, April 15.

Another quantity low in Loop fresh offerings finds holdovers once more ruling the roost. There are three new entries, but only one, "Paris Holiday," merits the designation of being important. It is just okay at Orpheum. It's the 40th and seventh weeks, respectively, for the hard-ticket "Around World in 80 Days" and "Search for Paradise." Fifth session for "Bridge on River Kwai" still is big at Radio City. Third for "Run Silent, Run Deep" looks nice. Second of "The Young Lions" looks hefty but "Merry Andrew" is rated light in second.

Estimates for This Week

Academy (SW) (947; $1.50-$2.65)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (40th wk). It's the last four weeks and business continues brisk. Healthy $8,600. Last week, $8,500.

Century (SW-Cinerama) (1,150; $1.75-$2.65)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (7th wk). Going along at brisk $17,000. Last week, $18,400.

Gopher (Berger) (1,000; 85-90)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (3d wk). Can be proud of its showing here. Nice $4,500. Last week, $6,000.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; 85-90 — "Lafayette Escadrille" (WB). Slow $4,000. Last week, "Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (5th wk), $4,800 at 90-$1.25.

Radio City (Par) (4,100; $1.25-$2.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). They're still flock-

(Continued on page 20)

'Witness' Smash 25G Paces Toronto; 'Lions' Great 16G, 'Peyton' 15G, 8th

Toronto, April 15.

With biz still big at the deluxers here currently, such newcomers as "Witness for Prosecution," "Cinerama Holiday" and "Young Lions" doing night turnaways. "Bridge on River Kwai" is still topping the city in its fifth frame with a phenomenal take. Another hep holdover and exceeding last week's gross, is "Peyton Place," in eighth stanza at the Imperial, Canada's largest house. "Teacher's Pet," in three-theatre combo arranged by Famous Players (Canadian), is also big in second stanza. "Snow White" in second frame shapes great in second round.

Estimates for This Week

Carlton (Rank) (2,318; $1.25-$1.75)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Still wham at $36,000. Last week, $40,000.

Downtown, Glendale, State, Scarboro (Taylor) (1,059; 995; 698; 694; 50-75)—"Underwater Warrior" (M-G) and "Man from God's Country" (AA). Okay $12,000. Last week, "Oregon Passage" (AA) and "Bowery Boys in Money" (AA), $11,000.

Eglinton, Palace, Runnymede (FP) (1,080; 1,485; 1,385; (50-$1)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (2d wk). Hep $18,000. Last week, $23,000.

Fairlawn (Rank) (1,165; $1.25-$2.40)—"Bolshoi Ballet" (Rank) (8th wk). Okay $4,000. Last week, $5,000.

Hollywood (FP) (1,080; $1-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th). Smash $16,000. Last week, "Bonjour Tristesse" (Col) (3d wk), $6,000.

Imperial (FP) (3,344; 75-$1.25)—"Peyton Place" (20th) (8th wk). Great $15,000, an upsurge from last week's $14,500.

Nortown, Towne, Westwood (FP-Taylor) (959; 693; 994; $1)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk). Still turnaway biz at night for $25,000. Last week, $30,000.

Loew's (Loew) (2,098; 75-$1.25)—"Witness for Prosecution" (UA). Smash $25,000. Last week, "Raintree County" (M-G) (4th wk), $14,500 in 8 days.

Tivoli (FP) (955; $1.75-$2.40)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (35th wk). Okay $6,500. Last week, $7,000.

University (FP) (1,233; $1.50-$2.40)—"Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama). Near-capacity $16,000. Last week, "This is Cinerama" (Cinerama), $15,000.

Uptown (Loew) (2,075; 60-$1)—"Paths of Glory" (UA). Big $11,000. Last week, "Lady Takes a Flyer" (U), $10,000 for eight days.

York B&F) (745; $1-$1.25)—"Albert Schweitzer" (IFD) (3d wk). Neat $3,500. Last week, $4,000.

'Run Deep' Fast $12,000, Balto; 'Lions' Smash 16G, 'Pacific' Hep 15G, 2d

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $3,036,900
(Based on 23 cities and 245 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N. Y.)
Total Gross Same Week Last Year $2,568,109
(Based on 23 cities and 251 theatres.)

'Lions' Loud 25G, Cleve.; 'Run' 12G

Cleveland, April 15.

Despite holdover product predominating here this stanza, biz generally is strong. Lone bill aside from arty entries is "Ghost of China Sea"-"Bitter Victory," rated nice at Embassy. "Young Lions" is great in second Hipp round while "Run Silent, Run Deep" is okay in nine days at State. "Bridge on River Kwai" still is terrific in fifth week at the Allen.

Estimates for This Week

Allen (S-W) (3,800; 90-$1.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Wow $24,000. Last week, $28,800.

Continental (Art Theatre Guild) (850; $1.25) — "Don Giovani" (Indie). Fair $1,600. Last week, "God Created Woman" (Kings) (m.o.), $1,500 for eighth lap.

Embassy (Community) (1,200; 70-90)—"Ghost of China Sea" (Col) and "Bitter Victory" (Col). Nice $4,000. Last week, "Abductors" (20th) and "Cattle Empire" (20th), $3,500.

Heights Art (Art Theatre Guild) (925; $1.25)—"Nights of Cambiria" (Lopert) (2d wk). Sluggish $1,900. Last week, $2,600.

Hippodrome (Telem't) (3,700; $1.25-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Great $25,000 after $30,000.

Ohio (Loew) (1,244; $1.25-$2.75) —"South Pacific" (20th) (2d wk). NSH $10,000. Last week, $12,000.

Palace (SW-Cinerama) (1,523; $1.25-$2.40) — "Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (11th wk). Firming up to $15,500, after $14,500.

State (Loew) (3,500; 90-$1.25)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (2d wk). Okay $12,000 in 9 days after $15,000.

Stillman (Loew) (2,700; 90-$1.25) —"Merry Andrew" (M-G) (2d wk). Average $7,500 in 8 days. Last week, $8,000.

'Majorie' Mighty 20G, Denver; 'Summer' 11G, 2d

Denver, April 15.

"Marjorie Morningstar" is best bet here this session, with a smash total at the Paramount. "Bridge on River Kwai," still is great in sixth Centre week. "Long, Hot Summer" shapes fine in second round at the Denver. "Merry Andrew" is not so happy in second stanza at the Orpheum.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (1,400; 70-90)—"Snow White" (BV) (3d wk). Big $6,000. Stays. Last week, $6,000.

Centre (Fox) (1,247; 90-$1.25)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Great $17,000. Holds. Last week, $23,000.

Denham (Cockrill) (1,429; 70-90)—"Bonjour Tristesse" (Col) (2d wk). Fair $5,000. Last week, $7,000.

Denver (Fox) (2,586; 70-90)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (2d wk). Good $11,000. Last week, $24,000.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,596; 90-$1.25) —"Merry Andrew" (M-G) and "Underwater Warrior" (M-G) (2d wk). Mild $6,000. Last week, $10,000.

Paramount (Wolfberg) (2,200; 70-90) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB). Socko $20,000. Stays on. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Ft. Bowie" (UA) (2d wk), $11,000.

Tabor (Fox) (930; 90)—"Adam and Eve" (Indie) and "Blonde Blackmailer" (Indie). Big $8,000. Stays on. Last week, closed.

Vogue Art (Sher-Shulman) (442; 75-90) — "Novel Affair" (Cont). Fair $1,000. Last week, "Nights of Cabriria" (Indie) (3d wk), $1,500.

Baltimore, April 15.

Big guns are boosting the take here currently. Leading the field is "Bridge on River Kwai" which is torrid in fourth round at the Hipp. "South Pacific" is shaping great in second frame at the New.

"Run Silent, Run Deep" looks fast in opener at the Stanley. "Young Lions" is rated smash in first at the Century. "Razzia" finally nosed "And God Created Woman" out of the Cinema where it put in 21 weeks, a phenomenal run here. "Cinerama Holiday" is only fair in second at the Town. Announced sixweek run will be shortened.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Fruchtman) (3,100; 50-$1.50) — "Young Lions" (20th). Smash $16,000. Last week, "Farewell To Arms" (20th) (5th wk), $6,500.

Cinema (Schwaber) (460; 50-$1.25) — "Razzia" (Indie). Good $3,000. Before that, "God Created Woman" (Kings) (21st wk), $2,000.

Film Centre (Rappaport) (890; 50-$1.25)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) (3d wk). Oke $6,000 after $6,500 in second.

Five West (Schwaber) (460; 50-$1.25)—"Bride Much Too Beautiful" (Ellis) (3d wk). Nice $3,000 after near same in second.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,300; 50-$1.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (4th wk). Great $16,000 after $22,000 for third.

Mayfair (Fruchtman) (980; 50-$1.25)—"Witness for Prosecution" (UA) (7th wk). Holding at good $6,500 after $7,000 in sixth.

New (Fruchtman) (1,600; $1.50-$2.50)—"South Pacific" (20th), (2d wk). Upped to lively $15,000 after $13,000 opener.

Playhouse (Schwaber) (460; 50-$1.25)—"Ladykillers" (Rank) and "Paris With Love" (Rank) (reissues) (2d wk). Slow $1,500 after $2,000 in first.

Stanley (Fruchtman) (3,200; 50-$1.25)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA). Hep $12,000. Before that, "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk), $10,000.

Town (SW - Cinerama) (1,215; $1.25-$2.25)—"Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama). Slow $7,000 after $9,000 in first.

'Pacific' Slick $16,000, Pitt; 'Marjorie' $11,000, 'Lions' Sturdy 13G, 2d

Pittsburgh, April 15.

"Bridge on River Kwai" continues to be the big noise downtown here, with third week very strong at Harris and chances for setting run record growing all the time. "South Pacific" got away fast at Nixon. "Young Lions" looks big in second stanza at Fulton but holdovers of both "Marjorie Morningstar" at Stanley and "Run Silent, Run Deep" at Penn are disappointing.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Shea) (1,700; 99-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Fine word-of-mouth and continued press support helping. Can't miss doing better than $13,000, solid. Last week, $15,500.

Child (Green) (500; 99-$1.25)—"Gervaise" (Cont) (2d wk). Grim subject matter isn't helping widely. Down to okay $2,500. Last week, almost $3,000.

Harris (Harris) (2,165; 99-$1.50) —"River Kwai" (Col) (3d wk). Friday-Saturday business topped even the second session's but isn't likely to show the same strength on weekdays with the holiday week over. But still great at $20,000 or over. Last week, $24,500.

Nixon (Rubin) (1,500; $1.25-$3)—"South Pacific" (20th). First full week, launched with sellout benefit preem for Boys Town of Italy and personals of Mitzi Gaynor, France Nuyen and Margaret O'Brien, should finish close to $16,000. That's good for roadshow pic here.

Penn (UA) (3,300; 80-$1.25) — "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (2d wk). Only five days on this round, and not more than okay $8,000 looked for. "Merry Andrew" (M-G) opens today (Tues.). Last week, $14,000.

Stanley (SW) (3,800; 99-$1.50)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Another of the anticipated big ones that's barely getting by. Maybe $11,000, just okay. Last week, $14,000.

Warner (SW) (1,500; 50-$1.25)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (3d wk). Chief strength on weekends, with kiddie trade jamming it up. Should finish at fine $11,000. Last week, $13,500.

DETROIT SNAGS B.O. BUNDLE

Big Films Boost Chi; 'Pet' Giant $37,000, 'Lions' Boff 38G, 'Andrew' Merry 11½G, 'Summer' Hotsy 21G

Chicago, April 15.

Holdover blockbusters look to keep the Loop's tone bright this round. Top new entry moneywise is "Teacher's Pet," climbing to a giant $37,000 in Woods opener. "Smiles of Summer Night" shapes hotsy in first World frame. "White Huntress" and "Oklahoma Woman" combo is okay in first at Monroe.

"Young Lions" is boff in Roosevelt on second round while "Nights of Cabiria" looms good in second at Surf. "Escapade in Japan" eyes a nice second at the Esquire. "Merry Andrew" shapes bright in second at the Loop.

"Long, Hot Summer" is good in third frame at Oriental, while "Run Silent, Run Deep" looks socko at United Artists in third.

"Snow White" looks great at Garrick fifth, while "Bridge on River Kwai" is still smash in fifth at State-Lake. "Peyton Place" rates a big seventh session at the Chicago.

"South Pacific" is nice in third hard-ticket week at McVickers. "Around World" is holding strong in 54th round at Todd's Cinestage. "Seven Wonders" eyes a good 69th-final session at the Palace.

Estimates for This Week

Carnegie (Telem't) (485; $1.25) —"Miss Julie" (Janus) (2d wk). Oke $3,200. Last week, $3,300.

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 90-$1.80) —"Peyton Place" (20th) (7th wk). Big $22,500. Last week, $25,000.

Esquire (H&E Balaban) (1,350; $1.25-$1.50)—"Escapade in Japan" (U) (2d wk). Nice $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Garrick (B&K) (850; 99-$1.25)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (5th wk). Great $12,000. Last week, $13,000.

Loop (Telem't) (606; 90-$1.50)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) (2d wk). Happy $11,500. Last week, $13,000.

McVickers (JL&S) (1,580; $1.25-$3.30)—"South Pacific" (20th) (3d wk). Warm $27,000. Last week, $25,000.

Monroe (Jovan) (1,000; 65-79)—"Oklahoma Woman" (AI) and "White Huntress" (AI). Okay at $5,000. Last week, "Giant From Unknown" (Astor) and "She Demons" (Astor), $6,000.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 90-$1.50) —"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (3d wk). Good $21,000. Last week, $25,000.

Palace (SW-Cinerama) (1,434; $1.25-$3.40)—"Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (69th wk). Wow $30,000. Last week, $17,500. "Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) opens tomorrow (Wed.) with a benefit.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,400; 90-$1.80) —"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Giant $38,000. Last week, $43,000.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,400; 90-$1.80)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Smash $42,000. Last week, $52,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685; $1.50) —"Nights of Cabiria" (Lopert) (2d wk). Good $4,000. Last week, $4,000.

Todd's Cinestage (Todd) (1,036; $1.75-$3.30)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (54th wk). Sock $22,500. Last week, $19,000.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 90-$1.50)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (3d wk). Fancy $17,000. Last week, $22,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,200; 90-$1.50) — "Teacher's Pet" (Par). Huge $37,000. Last week, "Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (5th wk), $15,500.

World (Teitel) (606; 90)—"Smiles of Summer Night" (Rank). Bright $5,000. Last week, "Albert Schweitzer" (Cap) (reissue), $2,100.

Ziegfeld (Davis) (485; $1.25)—"Demoniac" (UMPO) (3d wk). Oke $1,000 in 3 days. Last week, $3,200.

George Roth Joins Davis

George Roth, sales v.p. for Trans-Lux Distributing, has resigned and is joining United Motion Picture Organization (Richard Davis) as sales head.

Ed Svigals takes over at T-L Distributing in the capacity of general sales manager.

'Glory' Bright $12,000, Buff.; 'Lions' Smash 16G

Buffalo, April 15.

Main strength at the wickets this stanza leans on holdovers. Lone newcomer, "Paths of Glory," is rated only nice at the Buffalo. "Young Lions" is top second-weeker, shaping smash in second round at the Center. "Bridge on River Kwai" looms socko in fifth Century session.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew) (3,500; 70-90)—"Paths of Glory" (UA). Fine $12,000 or near. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G) and "The Safecracker" (M-G), $13,500.

Center (AB-PT) (3,000; 70-$1.25) —"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Smash $16,000. Last week, $24,000.

Century (UATC) (2,700; 70-$1.50) —"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Socko $15,000. Last week, $19,500.

Lafayette (Basil) (3,000; 70-90)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk). Lusty $17,000. Last week, $24,000.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,000; 70-$1.25) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Good $13,000. Last week, $17,000.

'Lions' Boffo 28G, Philly; 'Kwai' 30G

Philadelphia, April 15.

Misty Saturday was supplanted by a balmy Sunday, and midtown area was jammed. However, there seemed to be more strollers than patrons and biz reflects this in many spots. "Saddle Wind," lone newcomer, never got started but holds anyway. Many second-weekers are down sharply from opening stanzas. "Young Lions" shapes lusty, however, in first holdover week at the Fox. "Marjorie Morningstar" looms fine in second at the Stanley. "South Pacific" is rated great in third Midtown round. "Teacher's Pet" looms nifty in third at the Viking while "God Created Woman" is still hefty in third in two houses.

Estimates for This Week

Arcadia (S&S) (526; 99-$1.80)—"Farewell to Arms" (20th) (7th wk). Okay $5,500. Last week, $7,800.

Boyd (SW) (1,430; 75-$1.80)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (2d wk). Good $12,500. Last week, $16,000.

Fox (National) (2,250; 65-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Loud $28,000. Last week, $40,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (2,250; 65-$1.25)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (3d wk). Sweet $17,000. Last week, $18,700.

Mastbaum (SW) (4,370; 99-$1.49) —"Paris Holiday" (UA) (2d wk). Quiet $10,000. Last week, $13,000.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,000; $2-$2.75)—"South Pacific" (20th) (3d wk). Great $17,500. Last week, same.

Randolph (Goldman) (1,250; 65-$1.25)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Wow $30,000. Last week, $39,000.

Stanley (SW) (2,900; 99-$1.80)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Fine $13,000. Last week, $21,000.

Stanton (SW) (1,483; 99-$1.49)—"Saddle Wind" (M-G). Slow $6,500. Last week, "Damn Citizen" (U) and "Day of Badman" (U), $7,200.

Studio (Goldberg) (385; 90-$1.89) —"God Created Woman" (Kings) (4th wk). Loud $5,000. Last week, $5,500.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 99-$1.80)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (6th wk). Tall $8,700. Last week, $9,500.

Viking (Sley) (1,000; 99-$1.49)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (3d wk). Nifty $11,000. Last week, $17,000.

World (Pathe) (500; 99-$1.89)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (3d wk). Hefty $4,000. Last week, $5,000.

'SUMMER,' 'KWAI' 'PACIFIC' ACES

Detroit, April 15.

A big bundle of cash — over $175,000 — is being pushed into the boxoffices at downtown deluxers here currently in one of best weeks in recent months. "South Pacific" is rated boffo United Artists. "Long, Hot Summer" is shaping great at the Palms. "Marjorie Morningstar" opened big at the Michigan. "Touch of Evil" looks okay at Broadway-Capitol.

Among the holdovers, "Young Lions" continues to roar lustily at the Fox in second round. "Bridge on River Kwai" stays wow at the Madison despite being in fifth week. "Search for Paradise" stays sturdy in 10th stanza at Music Hall. "Raintree County" rolls on nicely in eighth frame at the Adams. The 12th week of "And God Created Woman" at Trans-Lux Krim still is torrid.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Fox-Detroit) (5,000; $1.25-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Terrific $27,000. Last week, $34,000.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,100; $1.25-$1.50) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB). Started out big, with $25,000 likely. Last week, "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) and "Missouri Traveler" (BV), $27,000 in 9 days.

Palms (UD) (2,961; $1.25-$1.50) — "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) "Showdown at Boot Hill" (20th). Wow $26,000. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Fort Bowie" (UA) (2d wk), $20,000.

Madison (UD) (1,900; $1.25-$1.75) —"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Tremendous $30,000. Last week, $35,000.

Broadway-Capitol (UD) (3,500; 90-$1.25)—"Touch of Evil" (U) and "Day of Badmen" (U). Okay $11,000 or near. Last week, "Juvenile Jungle" (Rep) and "Young and Wild" (Rep), $10,000.

United Artists (UA) (1,667; $1.25-$3)—"South Pacific" (20th). Terrific $25,000. Last week, "Gift of Love" (20th), $8,000.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; $1.25-$1.50)—"Raintree County" (M-G) (8th wk). Fine $8,000. Last week, $9,000.

Music Hall (SW-Cinerama) (1,205; $1.20-$2.65) — "Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (10th wk). Swell $20,000. Last week, $27,000.

Trans-Lux Krim (Trans-Lux) (1,000; 90-$1.65) — "God Created Woman" (Indie) (13th wk). Swell $7,000. Last week, $6,700.

'Kwai' Fine-$9,000 in K. C., 'Lions' Ditto, 2d; 'Summer' NSH $6,500

Kansas City, April 15.

Biz is on a moderate keel currently with city full of holdovers. Only newcomer is "Slim Carter" in four Dickinson theatres, getting a mild play. "Young Lions" which was solo last week at the Uptown holds there and spreads over to the Granada. "Long, Hot Summer" in two houses looms moderate in second week. "Marjorie Morningstar" is fairish in second week at the Paramount while "Teacher's Pet" is only acceptable at the Roxy. "River Kwai" at the Midland still is bright in third week at the Midland, and may get extra time. "God Created Woman" continues strong in 10th week at the Kimo. "Seven Wonders of World" is picking up as it nears the finish at the Missouri.

Estimates for This Week

Glen Dickinson, Shawnee Drive-In, Leawood Drive-In (Dickinson) (700; 750; 1,100 cars; 900 cars; 75-90)—"Slim Carter" (U) and "Tammy and Bachelor" (U) (reissue).

(Continued on page 20)

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i.e., without usual tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however as indicated, include the U. S. amusement tax.

B'way Perks: 'Windjammer' Nice 68G, 'Blues' Good 27G, 'Lions' Sock 77G, 2d, 'Long' Hot 44G, 2d, 'Merry' 165G, 4th

Part of the Easter Week upbeat is being reflected in the fore part of the current session, and as a result Broadway first-run theatres are enjoying another highly profitable stanza. There are only two newcomers, but both are rated important.

Biggest news, of course, is the way "Windjammer," initial Cinemiracle production, is being received both by the crix and the public. Playing on a hard-ticket policy with only 12 performances, it is rated very nice $68,000 opening week at the refurbished and reseated Roxy. House currently is using only 2,600 seats as compared with 5,717 under the arrangement that had previously prevailed.

"St. Louis Blues" is heading for a good $27,000 or near opening round at the State. "Young Lions" looks to wind its second week with a sock $77,000 at the Paramount.

Still money champ is "Merry Andrew" with Easter stageshow which is heading for a great $165,000 in fourth week at the Music Hall. "Marjorie Morningstar" supplants April 24. "Long, Hot Summer" still is smash at $30,000 in second week at the Mayfair. It is comparatively bigger in second frame at Fine Arts where playing day-date.

"Teacher's Pet" is heading for a rousing $33,000 in fourth week at the Capitol. "Run Silent, Run Deep" looks sock $24,000 in third Victoria round. "Witness For Prosecution" still is big with $17,000 in current (10th) frame at Astor and great $12,500 in same week at Plaza.

Extra performances are boosting all hard-ticket pix this session. "Bridge on River Kwai" was near-capacity $49,500 for 16 shows at Palace in 17th week. "Around World in 80 Days" was capacity $45,000 for like number of performances in 78th round at the Rivoli.

"South Pacific" hit nearly capacity $64,100 for 23 shows in third week at the Criterion. "Search For Paradise" soared to $30,800 in 29th stanza at the Warner, also helped by extra shows.

New big arty pic, "Rouge et Noir" was smash $15,000 opening round at the Trans-Lux 52d Street. The amazing entry in the arty theatre field continues to be "And God Created Women," which pushed to a great $12,500 despite being in 25th session at the Paris.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,300; 75-$2)—"Witness For Prosecution" (UA) (10th wk). This round ending today (Wed.) looks like fancy $17,000. The ninth was $20,000. Continues.

Baronet (Reade) (430; $1.25-$1.70) — "Ladykillers" (Cont) and "To Paris With Love" (Cont) (reissues) (4th wk). Third week ended last Thursday was good $5,500. The second was $7,100.

Capitol (Loew) (4,820; $1-$2.50) —"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (5th wk). Fourth week ended yesterday (Tues). was rousing $33,000. Third was $31,000.

Odeon (Moss) (854; 90-$1.80)—"Desire Under Elms" (Par) (5th wk). This stanza finishing up today (Wed.) looks to land good $9,000. Fourth, $12,500.

Criterion (Moss) (1,671; $1.80-$3.50)—"South Pacific" (20th) (4th wk). Third round finished Sunday (13) was virtual capacity at $64,100 for 23 shows. Second, $46,000 for 17 performances.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; 90-$1.80) —"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (2d wk). Great $14,000 for second week. First week was wham $18,500, near top figure for house. Stays, natch!

Guild (Guild) (450; $1-$1.75)—"Marcellino" (Indie) (reissue) (2d wk). Initial stanza ended Thursday (10) was big $10,000. Continues.

Mayfair (Maurer) (1,736; 79-$1.80)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (2d wk). This session finishing up today (Wed.) looks like smash $30,000 or near. First was $37,000. Continues indef.

Normandie (Trans-Lux) (592; 95-$1.80)—"Three Faces of Eve" (20th) (reissue) (2d wk). First stanza ended Monday (14) was fine $4,500. Stays until April 22 when benefit preem for Actors' Fund will

(Continued on page 20)

'Brothers' Big $8,000, Omaha; 'Lions' Hot 9G, 2d

Omaha, April 15.

A pair of major league exhibition baseball games (White Sox-Cards, Giants-Indians) here over the weekend didn't hurt downtown first-runs much. Hence, biz remains on the strong side this session. "Brothers Karamazov" is a sock new entry at the State, but "Bitter Victory" is just so-so at the Omaha. Two holdovers, "Marjorie Morningstar" at Brandeis and "Young Lions" at Orpheum, are both big in second stanzas. Both may go three.

Estimates for This Week

Brandeis (RKO) (1,100; 75-90)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Wow $6,000 after $9,000 opener.

Omaha (Tristates) (2,066; 75-90) —"Bitter Victory" (Col) and "Domino Kid" (Col). Fairish $4,500. Last week, "Jumping Jacks" (Par) and "Scared Stiff" (Par) (reissues), $6,000.

Orpheum (Tristates) (2,980; 90-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Still smash at $9,000 after $14,500 debut.

State (Cooper) (850; 90-$1.25)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G). Torrid $8,000. Last week, "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk), $5,500 at 75c-90c scale.

'Evil' Fairish 10G, Frisco; 'Kwai' 21G

San Francisco, April 15.

First-run biz is quite spotty here this stanza although there are some strong pix even on extended-runs. "Young Lions" still is big in second round at the Fox while "Bridge on River Kwai" continues great in fifth session at St. Francis. "Marjorie Morningstar" and "Merry Andrew," both in second weeks are rated okay. "Stage Struck" is rated quite disappointing at the Stagedoor. "Search For Paradise" continues nice in fifth stanza a Orpheum. One of few newcomers, "Touch of Evil" is only fair at Golden Gate.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,859; 90-$1.25) — "Touch of Evil" (U) and "Girl Most Likely" (RKO). Fair $10,000. Last week, "Teacher's Pet"" (Par) and "High Hell" (Par) (3d wk), same.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; $1.25-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Big $15,000. Last week, $31,500.

Warfield (Loew) (2,656; 90-$1.25) —"Merry Andrew" (M-G) (2d wk). Oke $9,000. Last week, $15,000.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; 90-$1.25) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Okay $10,000 or less. Last week, $15,000.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; 90-$1.25) — "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Great $21,000. Last week, $28,000.

Orpheum (SW-Cinerama) (1,458; $1.75-$2.65)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (5th wk). Nice $21,700, with five extra kid shows. Last week, $24,500, with extra shows.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,207; 90-$1.25)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (3d wk). Down to disappointing $6,500. Last week, $11,500.

Stagedoor (A-R) (440; $1.25-$1.50)—"Stage Struck" (BV). Sad $2,500. Last week, "Song of Bernadette" (20th) (reissue) (2d wk), $1,900.

Presidio (Hardy-Parsons) (774; $1.25-$1.50) — "Spanish Gardener" (Cont) and "Loser Takes All" (Cont). Light $2,700. Last week, "Light Across Street" (UMPO) (2d wk), $4,000.

Vogue (S. F. Theatres) (364; $1.25)—"Smiles of Summer Night" (Indie). Torrid $5,000. Last week, "Three Faces of Eve" (20th) (reissue), $3,500.

Coronet (United California) (1,250; $1.50-$3.75) — "Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (68th wk). Okay $10,000. Last week, $12,000.

AFTER 70 RECORD-BREAKI

NOW 9 ALL-TIM

9 NEW YORK NEIGH

SET BY CECIL B.

THE TEN COM

THE GREATEST GROSSING PICTURE OF ALL TIME H

★ Loew's Paradise ★ Loew's 83rd Street ★ Loew's Va
★ Brooklyn Paramount ★ Calderone, Hempstead ★

PLAYING ONLY 3 SHOWS DAILY AT SPECIAL POPULAR PRI

THE ASTOUNDING TO

A PARAMOUNT PICTURE
VISTAVISION TECHNICOLOR

MAKE ARRANGEMEN

NG WEEKS ON BROADWAY

E RECORDS IN BORHOOD THEATRES

DeMILLE'S PRODUCTION

MANDMENTS

TS THE GREATEST WEEK'S GROSS OF ALL TIME AT

lencia ★ Loew's 72nd Street ★ Loew's White Plains ★
Stanley, Jersey City ★ Paramount, Staten Island ★

ES, BOXOFFICE RECEIPTS AT THESE 9 THEATRES REACHED

TAL OF $386,248

TS TO PLAY THIS GREAT GROSSING ATTRACTION!

Again That 1946 Myth: 90-Mil Tickets

Bernstein Report to AFL Film Council Raises Questions on Hardtop Vs. Ozoner Attendance

Film executives who have been studying "Hollywood at the Crossroads," the Irving Bernstein report on the motion picture industry prepared for the Hollywood AFL Film Council, take exception to a number of the facts and conclusions in the survey.

One is the statement that, in 1956, drive-in attendance was 34,-851,000 whereas the hardtops only drew 11,699,000. Best available estimates say that, even at the top of the drive-in season, attendance splits about 35% to the ozoners and 65% to the regular theatres. The drive-in audience drops considerable during the off season.

Averaging it out over the year, drive-ins represent approximately 18% 20% of total film rentals collected by the companies.

In the Motion Picture Assn. of America survey on "The Public Appraises the Movies" last year, 72% of those polled said they'd been at a drive-in at one time or another. Of the 72%, 30% said they preferred the drive-in to the regular theatres and 32% showed a preference for the hardtops.

Bernstein also uses the estimate of a 90,000,000 attendance back in 1946. Many in the industry say that this is an exaggerated "guess" figure which probably was never attained. Nor is Eric Johnston willing to stand by it.

The fault-finders also quarrel with Bernstein's use of 1946 as the year on which he bases all his comparisons. He said in the report that '46 wasn't unique—though it was a top year for the business—because "It was at that time that the industry and the economy took off on different paths."

It's pointed out that (1) The 1946 figures include the earnings of companies which then still had their theatre subsidiaries, and (2), they don't include United Artists, which was in bad shape in '46, but since then has skyrocketed under new management and last year became a public-owned company with very considerable assets, reversing the very trend which Bernstein dramatizes in the study.

Overall reaction to the report in the industry was that it offered little that wasn't already known, though it pulled the known facts together into a form in which they're really presented. Some regretted publication of the study on the grounds that, precisely because it added little that was new, it served merely to create negative impressions in the public's mind.

There were a number of comments on the need for the major companies to provide accurate statistics of their own to take the guesswork out of similar studies in the future.

ARKANSAS CONDEMNS POST-'48 SELLOFF

Little Rock, April 15.

Arkansas Independent Theatre Owners, a Theatre Owners of America affiliate, joined other exhibitor groups in condemning the sale of post-'48 pictures to television. Action was taken at the state-wide group's two-day annual convention, the 39th for the organization.

M. S. McCord, head of United Theatres, reviewed the Sindlinger report on the effect of tv sales and the Jameyson plan for the establishment of a trust fund for the purchase by theatremen of shares in film companies.

J. Fred Brown, Ft. Smith, was reelected prexy for a third time. Other officers named were Roy Cochran, North Little Rock, v.p.; Miss Nona White, secretary-treasurer, and K. K. King, Searcy, chairman of the board.

"IATSE Fights 'Lonely' Booths" story in VARIETY, detailed an arbitration involving the reduction in the number of projectionists from five to two men at the Boyd Theatrae and a Fabian house. The city in which the arbitration took place should have been Easton, Pa., instead of Philadelphia.

80c Per Car Load

Ft. Worth, April 15.

Parkaire Drive-In Theatre, operated here by L. C. Tidball, has an 80c admission policy "per car load" during the middle of the week to the ozoner.

He also stages a novel stunt by admitting free all patrons who attend on a specified night in a car of a special make, such as "Ford Night," "Chevy Night" and "Buick Night" among others.

Consent Decrees

Continued from page 7

Theatres to produce and exhibit CineMiracle films.

However, it's strongly doubted that the Government would permit a complete repeal of the consent decrees and allow a merger of the major studios with their former theatre affiliates or permit a major producer operating under the decrees to acquire a substantial number of theatres.

Loew's Inc., although it is not saying so openly, is hopeful that the new circumstances surrounding the industry as a whole will make it possible for it to prevent the final separation of the production-distribution division from its theatre affiliate. The $30,000,000 debt shared by both companies has had the effect of delaying time and again the final split between Loew's Inc. and Loew's Theatres. Despite the delays, however, realistic industryites believe that Loew's hasn't a ghost of a chance of preventing the split. The two companies may continue operating for some time as they are now until a portion or the entire debt is paid up, but the courts or the Dept. of Justice are not expected to agree to a calling off of the consent decree order.

In general, it's believed that the industry is barking up the wrong tree if it believes there will be any substantial changes in the consent decrees. A stigma of guilt, it's stressed, cannot be completely removed although it is possible that under present-day conditions more leniency may be shown.

Brigitte

Continued from page 7

the jam-up, particularly in towns that have only one art house.

4,000 Dates

The distributor (for Columbia Pictures) is frank to admit that the Catholic "C" rating is keeping down the playdate volume. It's figured the film will get about 4,000 dates on its first runthrough. What would it get with a "B" rating from the Legion? "Probably around 8,000 bookings and half the money," commented Horner.

(Ilya Lopert said Monday (14) that he expected to make some cuts in his Bardot film, "Une Parisienne," to meet Legion of Decency objections and to keep it from drawing a "C" rating. Fear of the Legion also caused cuts in DCA's "Rouge et Noir.")

The circuits have handled the film gingerly. United Paramount first rejected it in the New England area, then changed its mind and asked to play it where it hadn't been booked to the opposition. Circuit tendency is to carefully select the situations. Loew's chain, for instance, refused to book it in the New York metropolitan area, but did book it out-of-town. RKO has expressed an interest in playing it in New York.

The vast majority of bookings have been in the dubbed version, with only 15 subtitled prints in use. Many of the arties that normally wouldn't play dubbed films have booked it in the English version. Some exhibitors have "edited" the film themselves to avoid local problems.

In several places (Rockford, Ill., Abilene, Texas, Danville, Va., etc.) local censor boards went into action and stopped "God" from being shown. In some of these places, drive-ins on the outskirts of town are picking it up, since they are outside the reach of the city ordinances.

Kingsley-International has told exhibitors who ran into censor troubles that it'd supply them with the basic legal material to fight the case in the courts. However, exhibitors at times don't want to buck local Church pressure.

On the whole, the conclusion is that the "C" rating in this instance has helped rather than hurt, the attendance being such that—it is reasoned—it must include a good many Catholics. In some areas which are predominantly Catholic, the film has run into difficulties. But if anyone suggested to Kingsley today that he should seek a changed Legion rating, the idea would be rejected emphatically.

Why is "God Created Woman" such a success? Opinion on that seem to differ. Horner thought this week that it was "the first really erotic picture to come along." Kingsley, taking the more practical approach, said it was probably because the "chemistry" of Miss Bardot and sex clicked and "we gave people what they were led to expect. They weren't promised one thing in the ads and given something else on the screen."

Foreign Reviews

Continued from page 6

drama as the gangster uses her in an escape try.

This ends in a gunfight with the death of the gunman and love assured for the debutant nurse.

Only rounded character is supplied by Bernard Blier, authoritative as the gangster, with a fine assist from Madeleine Robinson as an elderly gunmoll. Others are conventional as is Herve Bromberger's directorial chore. Production dress is passable, and aided by shooting in a real hospital. Mosk.

Le Dos Au Mur (Back to the Wall) (FRENCH). Gaumont release of Francoise Chavane production. Stars Jeanne Moreau; features Gerard Oury, Philippe Nieaud, Claire Maurier, Colette Renard, Jean Lefebvre. Directed by Edouard Molinaro. Screenplay, J. P. Roncoroni, Jean Redon, Chavane from novel by Frederic Dard; camera, Robert Lefebvre; editor, Robert Isnardon. At Biarritz, Paris. Running time, 100 MINS.

Pic unveils another young director, Edouard Molinaro, with his first feature. He shows a sure technical grasp with a background denoting knowledge of Yank thrillers. But his insistence on a documentary unravelling of a fairly complicated murder setup makes the outcome inevitable. This emerges a slickly-made film with good local opportunities but chancy Yank possibilities. It does not measures up to its U.S. counterparts. General theme could make this an okay dualer.

A rich, young industrialist finds his wife cheating on him with a youthful, second-rate actor on coming home early from a weekend of hunting. He lays a trap to win her back via convincing her the actor is blackmailing her. She kills the actor and he covers up and all seems well again. Crime does not pay and she discovers his perfidy and kills herself but not before branding him the killer of her lover.

Director Molinaro lacks the verve to help gloss over many plot improbabilities. One - dimensional characterizations also rob this of the needed suspense. Jeanne Moreau is properly sensual as the cheating wife but Philipe Nicaud's pallid performance makes one wonder what she ever saw in the actor. Gerard Oury has weight as the husband. Technical credits are fine. Molinaro may emerge a fine technical addition to directorial ranks here. Mosk.

EV CALLOW'S EPAULETS

Pub-Ad Chief of Cinerama Now Under Frank Damis

Everett C. Callow has been named assistant zone manager of Stanley Warner's newly-created Philadelphia - Washington zone. He'll work under v.p. Frank Damis who is in charge of the new territory.

For the past four years, Callow has been national pub-ad chief for Cinerama as well as exec assistant to L. B. Isaac, national director of exhibition for Cinerama theatres.

Callow will assume his new post as soon as he returns from Buenos Aires, where a Cinerama theatre is being launched. Callow has been with the theatre chain since 1929. Previously he had been with the Morning World in N. Y. and was also affiliated with Paramount Publix. During World War II, Callow was a public information officer for the Marine Corps.

Moiseyev's Perpetual Pep Gang

Continued from page 1

ly plutocrats since the local peasants could scarcely afford the $15 tickets.

Notably absent from the premiere were U. S. diplomats. That may have miffed some of the Soviet personages but it had the considerable advantage of not clouding the artistic issue. The spotlight was squarely and solely upon the entertainment. One critic called it stupendous, apologizing for the weakness of the word. Another applicable term would be "stupefying."

There are demonstrations of casual skill that are almost unbelievable. One youth does high front kicks while on his haunches. A girl Cossack performs travelling turns, very fast, on her knees. A tall young man with a mustache, while staying within group discipline, deadpans a subtle bit of delicious hokum. The cavalry illusion achieved in the Cossack patrol (against unseen Germans) is itself stagecraft of the highest order of imagination and implementation.

Possibly because it was the most touted item in advance, or because soccer is not a game much played in the States, this satire (all the numbers are credited to Igor Moiseyev personally) was not the expected wow, though amusing. What really provoked tumult from the opening nighters was the immediately following "Two Boys in a Fight," its laugh results being topped by disclosure that the two boys is one. This may be the finest realization of unilateral knockabout comedy which any average show-going American has ever seen.

The dancers -work in various-sized groups, filling the stage with colorful costumes (little or no scenery) and working a surprisingly diverse series of variations even within the conventional "Russian Dancing" known to theatrical oldtimers, circa "Chauves Souris" and the Marcus Loew vaudeville circuit.

Some of the Moiseyev company dates for Papa Hurok will be in arenas. This should present few difficulties. Indeed given adequate floor space these lively, super-disciplined young dancers (and miscellaneous musicians) could play anywhere with the certainty of exciting and delighten their spectators.

There is scarcely anything to criticize except possibly the Russian pretense that these are folk dancers. Nonsense, of course, since this is a company which could not be more "professional." Indeed they set and maintain standards of professionalism which will certainly command the respect of all knowledgeable in such matters. Others can just enjoy the show.

Moiseyev's Interview

Impresario Sol Hurok summoned the N. Y. and trade presses to his offices last week to meet the Russian dance director, Igor Moiseyev who gives his name to the company of 100 dancers now playing a three-week engagement at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Hurok himself was sometimes dissatisfied with the interpreter and helped out. For example, regarding the issue of "fingerprinting" which for a long time stymied cultural exchanges, Hurok cracked, "They all have fingers, but no fingerprints."

Moiseyev suggested that the language of art is the short route to understanding between peoples. He wishes to closely study American dance techniques while touring this country and contemplated adaptations for his Moscow performances later.

Other Russian entertainment will be imported by Hurok, himself a born Russian. The Philadelphia Orchestra's upcoming tour of the Soviet is in balance for the Moiseyev company.

Moiseyev said he especially wanted to see the New York City Ballet and to meet prima ballerina Maria Tallchief. (That company at the moment is in Japan).

Russian did not meet Bob Hope when the latter was in Moscow filming his tv show. When asked about jazz here, he observed that, in his opinion, it wasn't old enough to be part of the folklore of the U. S. Asked to comment on the popularity of rock 'n' roll, Moiseyev said he had seen some of it abroad, but not in Russia. He thought rock 'n' roll was a fad, nor would it become part of this country's folklore.

Hurok poured champagne for that the press conference could end on a toast.

Mrs. Harry Cohn

Continued from page 3

about four years ago. Korshak, in association with Arnold Grant, acted as attorney for Koolish and Stolkin at that time. However, they couldn't get RKO off the ground after the Wall St. Journal exposed their background.

In relation to the buyout of Mrs. Cohn's interests, it's known that the Wolfson group is seeking control of the Col board. The 240,-000 shares in the Cohn estate would not guarantee control, but it's probable that the group also has been buying Col stock on the open market.

Col insiders are confident that the management can retain control even if Mrs. Cohn sells her stock. Ralph and Bob Cohn, sons of the late Jack Cohn, control about 70,-000 shares and it's figured that they would throw that support behind the management headed by prexy Abe Schneider.

Wolfson, head of Meritt-Chapman, has been active for several in what has been regarded in some quarters as "raiding" other corporations for control. A couple of years ago he lost a costly proxy fight for control of Montgomery Ward, but in most every other battle he has been successful. There were rumors for a time that he was buying into Loew's, but he subsequently denied this.

This isn't the first time Korshak has tried—for clients—to buy Harry Cohn's stock interest in Columbia. When Cohn was alive, Korshak negotiated with him on at least two different occasions, but both times Cohn backed away from making a deal that would have taken him out of the company he helped found. It's taken for granted by those connected with Col who are aware of the negotiations with Mrs. Cohn that if the Wolfson group gets control of Col, it would probably result in liquidation of the company. Cohn's will empowered his widow to dispose of her proceeds of the estate as she saw fit.

There are 1,176,641 shares of Col common shares outstanding. In the first six months of the 1958 fiscal year, the company has shown a loss of 79c per share, but is expected to go into the black by June 30, the year's end, because of the grosses of "The Bridge On The River Kwai" and "Pal Joey." It's figured Col will gross at least $100,-000,000 in 1958 as compared with $101,600,000 in 1957 when the company earned $1.72 per share. The book value of the stock is estimated now at $27.55 a share.

Johnston

Continued from page 7

"central and transforming" idea of our time and pointed out that it would mean a trading area of 162,-000,000 people. He raised the possibility that the common market could be perverted into a weapon or club against other nations. "It is conceivable," he said. "It could come to pass. But I don't believe it." In fact, he held, Americans "should do all in our power to help it succeed."

Analyzing Johnston's position, there is a feeling that he speaks out of the conviction that the European Common Market for films, which has been the subject of much discussion, may never come about, at least not while Gemany maintains its current "no subsidy" policy. He may be convinced, too, that the governments concerned will not permit such things as a high common quota for all of the nations in the common market and that exhibitor needs for American product will eliminate the possibility of joint restrictive measures designed to boost the European film at the expense of Hollywood.

THE FIRST LERNER-LOEWE MUSICAL SINCE "MY FAIR LADY"

"'GIGI' promises to be as great a flicker as 'My Fair Lady' is a Broadway musical." — Ed Sullivan's nationally syndicated column, April 4, 1958.

THE GREAT COMING EVENT!

★

OPENS THURSDAY, MAY FIFTEENTH

ROYALE THEATRE

45th St. West of Broadway, N.Y.C. • All Seats Reserved

SELECTED ENGAGEMENTS WILL FOLLOW IN PRINCIPAL CITIES FOR JULY 4th HOLIDAY AND THEREAFTER.

★

With its hit songs flooding the air-waves, with newspaper columnists heralding a new show-world giant, with word-of-mouth sweeping the nation, M-G-M's "GIGI" headed for fame and fortune.

M-G-M
Presents

AN ARTHUR FREED PRODUCTION Starring LESLIE CARON

MAURICE CHEVALIER · LOUIS JOURDAN

HERMIONE GINGOLD · EVA GABOR · JACQUES BERGERAC · SABEL JEANS

SCREEN PLAY and Lyrics by ALAN JAY LERNER · MUSIC BY FREDERICK LOEWE

Based On the Novel by COLETTE

Costumes, Scenery & Production Design by CECIL BEATON

In CinemaScope And METROCOLOR

Directed by VINCENTE MINNELLI

MGM BACK ON TOP IN '58!

Skeptical Judge Prods Frisco Litigants

By WILLIAM STEIF

San Francisco, April 15.

Federal Judge Edward P. Murphy asked the hard, searching questions in the $8-million Embassy Theatre antitrust suit against eight major distributors last week. His Honor was taking a post-graduate course in the film business following the six-month-long Goldwyn antitrust trial. Judge went after two plaintiffs, Leland C. Dibble, co-owner of the Embassy with Daniel O. McLean.

All the questioning—indeed, the whole suit against 20th-Fox, Columbia, Universal, Paramount, RKO, Warner's, UA and Loew's, plus National Theatres and Fox West Coast—boiled down to one vastly complex consideration:

Did Dibble and McLean actually ever intend to operate the 1400-seat, 51-year-old Embassy in downtown Frisco as a first-run?

Despite the fact that Dibble and McLean claim they were deprived of first-run from 1938 to 1950 and of second-run from 1938 to 1947 and are the suit's plaintiffs, they are also in a very real sense their own suit's defendants. A formidable battery of defense lawyers have probed Dibble's and McLean's motives, their intent, and at this point, at least, it would appear that the two exhibitors have to establish that they're coming into court with clean hands.

Only three witnesses testified last week. They were Dibble, McLean and Raymond D. Smith, the real estate broker who arranged for the exhibitors to lease the Embassy from E. B. De Golia in November, 1938.

Dibble took the stand near the end of the week for direct examination by his lawyer, Robert Raven.

The exhibitor told how he went to work as an auditor for Frisco's Wobber Brothers, Herman, William and Arthur, in 1922, and acquired some experience around the edges of the film business, especially when Herman Wobber made him national manager of Ten-O-Win, a theatre comeon game invented by McLean, in 1936.

He testified to the condition of various first-run Frisco theatres in the late '30's and lawyer Raven invited the Judge on an inspection tour of most Frisco houses today, including the State (closed four years now) and the site of the Tivoli (now a parking lot). To this invitation, the Judge replied:

"That may be done later. I will think about it . . . we will do it, possibly, if there is no objection, during some stage of this trial."

'Little Circuit' Idea

Dibble testified he had interested Herman Wobber, then general sales manager of 20th-Fox, in becoming a partner to the Embassy operation in November, 1938, that Wobber mentioned the possibility of starting "a little circuit" because "Fox might be compelled, and his words were 'to saw off,' some group of theatres which they owned on account of some government action, and we might be able to acquire such theatres."

Dibble said the reason Herman Wobber, speaking for all three brothers, insisted on a 55 per cent interest in the Embassy was that the Wobbers had had a bad experience through owning a minority (40 per cent) of the Curran and Geary, two Frisco legit houses.

"From the beginning," said Dibble, "we contemplated a first-run policy."

But, he added, by the time (Nov. 22, 1938) the lease was signed "we had determined it wouldn't be possible to get first-run pictures."

Reason, said Dibble, was that "a day or two before" Wobber, whom Dibble and McLean had thought would help them get first-runs, "advised he'd be no help . . . all Fox pictures were under exclusive franchise to Fox West Coast theatres for a term of years." Dibble said he and McLean awakened rudely to the fact that Loew's, Warner's and Paramount also "all had given exclusive franchises or licenses to Fox West Coast" at this time, that RKO was tied up with its own Golden Gate, that Universal and Columbia were tied to the Orpheum and UA to the United Artists.

Dibble said Wobber "felt it would be utterly impossible for Dan McLean to license any first-run product for the Embassy," further "advised us he wasn't to be known in the deal at all, that he wouldn't take any part in assisting us" and didn't even want 20th-Fox's branch manager to know he was in on it.

You Were 'Surprised'?

Here the Judge threw in his first tough question:

"Did that come as a complete surprise to you?"

A.—Yes sir, it did.

The Judge questioned closely as to whether Wobber earlier had hinted or indicated that he might help McLean and Dibble get first-run and Dibble replied:

"I can't remember a specific statement of that kind . . we simply assumed too much there."

Judge: "When Wobber counter-proposed his 55 per cent interest (he'd originally been asked to take only a third), did you take up with him the matter of runs and clearances you were going to get?"

A.—No, it was not discussed.

Q.—Why wasn't it? Can you give me a reasonable explanation?

A.—The Embassy had previously been a first-run . . . not knowing of the arrangement for exclusive franchises, we had no idea it wasn't a free, open and competitive market.

Q.—Why didn't you ask the film companies?

A.—We didn't think it wise.

Q.—Why not?

A.—Unless we kept it quiet until we were able to get the lease, we might not be able to acquire it at all . . . others would move in and take it.

Q.—And operate on a first-run basis?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—He (the Wobber Brothers, actually) only put up about $4000, didn't he, of which $1700 was returned to him?

A.—$2250 was returned.

Q.—I am just trying to think out loud . . . it must have occurred to Mr. Wobber, who was certainly no tyro as far as theatre business is concerned and no tyro business-wise, that he could make the operation of that theatre, even on a second, third, fourth or fifth-run basis, profitable as an enterprise.

A.—Yes, but not by comparison with first-run.

Q.—I'm not talking about by comparison. I can't imagine Wobber going into any venture he didn't think he could operate at a profit.

A.—I can't either and we certainly anticipated making a profit . . .

Union Angles

But Dibble went on to cite such unanticipated problems as having to maintain a union stagehand ("now $147 a week") and two operators in the booth "doing one man's work."

Judge: "You didn't contemplate the union would require this additional manpower?"

A.—We didn't contemplate other than first-run until just about the time the lease was signed . . .

Judge Murphy returned the questioning to lawyer Raven here and Dibble continued, testifying the Embassy got second-run downtown in 1947 and that no one had ever sold third-run downtown since.

After the first shock of not getting first-run in November, 1938, said Dibble, "McLean started to go after first-runs," thought a deal was set with Republic and Monogram and then found out the deal has been nixed—somewhere, he didn't know where.

In mid-1939 McLean tried again, to no avail, and on June 22, 1940, Dibble and McLean bought out the Wobbers' interest.

The buyout occurred because Herman Wobber, in New York, wrote his brother, William, in Frisco, that "due to the government suit, executives of film companies were being called to testify and," said Dibble, "it's my recollection that he said somebody, a lawyer in his company or somebody . . . it wasn't desirable that Mr. Wobber have to say he had a personal interest in theatres in his capacity as general sales manager of Fox."

Suggested buyout price was $10,000, which netted $8,250 for the Wobbers. At the same time, Dibble took over licensing and booking for the Embassy—theatre lost almost $500 in first six months of 1940, said Dibble, and the two remaining partners were hard-pressed to pay the Wobbers. McLean had by then shortened the Universal and Columbia availabilities from 91 to 81 days and first thing Dibble did was to see all branch managers in an effort to get first-run with no luck.

18-Year Old History

Dibble and his lawyer then dived into the exhibitor's negotiations with each distributor for the 1940-41 season. Dibble claimed Paramount, for example, held a gun at his head, raised the price of top-bracket pictures from $200 to $350 a film and threatened to sell away to the Blumenfelds. The exhibitor felt "a great many small pictures" he didn't need were being foisted upon him, together with dozens of superfluous shorts. Much head-knocking reduced the prices.

Same was true with all the distributors, in the classic pattern of exhibitor-distributor relationships.

Dibble testified that in the fall of 1941 he again tried to get first-runs and made "frequent attempts" for shorter availabilities, mostly without success. This, however, was the season when Paramount, Warner's, Loew's, 20th-Fox and RKO started selling films in blocks of five to nine, and in 1942 the 20th-Fox branch manager, George Ballantyne offered Dibble three blocks (13 pictures) on a 58-day availability. Dibble jumped at the chance and purchased them.

A month later, he continued, Ballantyne informed him the Nassers, who hadn't been expected to buy these three blocks, had changed their minds and it was "absolutely impossible" to sell both the Nassers and the Embassy on a 58-day availability.

Ballantyne offered Dibble the concession of a 71-day availability if he'd relinquish the three blocks and Dibble gave them up reluctantly. When Dibble thought he was going to get 58 days from 20th-Fox, he broached the same proposition to the other distributors, who turned him down unanimously. Indeed, Warner's branch manager, Al Shmitken, told the exhibitor "that Fox was simply using me to whip Nasser Brothers into line."

But by the end of 1942 the Embassy had 71 days from everyone.

Price & Product

Negotiations for the 1942-43 season again were a dreary succession of quarrels over price and excess product, spiced this time by Dibble's protests that the Blumenfelds were getting first-runs at their Esquire and moveovers at their Tivoli, which heretofore had been a legit house, and why couldn't the Embassy enjoy some of this?

Then Dibble testified about the attempt of Charles Skouras to buy the Embassy in September, 1942, and about a similar attempt by Joe and Abe Blumenfeld in the spring of 1943. In both cases, said Dibble, the house was wanted for first-run product, and in both cases McLean and Dibble were amenable to a deal. But both Skouras and the Blumenfelds wanted absolute control of the house, said Dibble, which meant McLean and Dibble had to get a guaranteed income of $750 a week, by their lights.

Reason the Blumenfelds sought the Embassy was because they had first-run films "backed up."

Judge Murphy perked up here and asked:

"Did you explore that, did you attempt to find out from him (Joe Blumenfeld) how he had made arrangements to get first-run pictures when other exhibitors were unable to get them?

A.—Only to this extent, I had endeavored to contract for Universal, Columbia and UA pictures on first-run and was advised they were exclusively licensed to the Blumenfelds and they wouldn't license me.

Q.—I know, but did you mention that to Blumenfeld?

A.—No, I was talking to him about giving up half our theatre in order to get first-run.

Q.—I'm just wondering whether or not you asked him how he happened to get these contracts to exhibit first-run?

A.—No, I didn't ask him that particular question.

Q.—Didn't ask him that question . . . well, when the broad vistas of this litigation become more apparent, I suppose we will begin to have some explanation for the rather strange and anomalous situations that are occupied by some of these people whose names have been mentioned.

This remark, made in all judicial calm, smacks strongly of a suggestion, namely, that "some explanation" better be forthcoming.

Dibble went on to say, regarding the Blumenfeld offer:

"We knew nothing of Mr. Blumenfeld's integrity . . . but we had heard of theatres being taken over by circuits, being operated at a loss and the partners being required to pay their share of losses and eventually breaking them and they being put out of business."

For this reason, said Dibble, he and his partner insisted on "income equivalent" ($750 a week) to what they got "even under our late-run pictures" to let the Blumenfelds take over.

With Skouras the situation was identical.

Dibble, driving with Skouras from Sacramento to Frisco, "said to him very candidly we'd heard of situations where partners had lost out in the interest . . ."

Skouras' reply to such a display of candor is lost in history, but Skouras inspected the Embassy and told Dibble to write him a letter setting out partnership terms. The terms included Fox West Coast paying Dibble and McLean $25,000, plus a guarantee of $750 a week to the pair or a split of the net over $1500 a week. The Judge asked:

"Don't you think you were driving a pretty hard bargain, Mr. Dibble?

A.—It was a very important property . . . possibly tremendous profit.

Q.—Did you have any substantial hope?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You said Charles Skouras stated to you in no uncertain terms he didn't consider it a good business proposition to guarantee partners a particular sum, didn't you?

A.—He expressed that idea.

Q.—And I understand you incorporated that in your offer?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Then, did you think a man like Charles Skouras would be prone to change his mind in a matter of that kind?

A.—I was hopeful . . .

And again Dibble went on to explain his fear of a circuit making hefty financial demands on individual partners and putting them out of business . . . "I'd rather not have a deal than be put in that position."

Testimony of real estate broker Smith all revolved around two points:

(1) Whether Smith ever heard Dibble tell the theatre's owner, De Golia, that he was going to run first-run pictures, or was "trying to get first-run," or whether Dibble simply had said the lease could be consummated if he got "the run he wanted";

(2) The mystery of who removed a clause from the lease saying "lessee (is) using every effort to secure a franchise for the purpose of showing first-run pictures."

Smith, admittedly no film expert—this was his first and last theatre lease, insisted Dibble had told De Golia he was trying for first-runs.

Once Unsure

But Eugene Bennett, lawyer for Paramount, RKO, Warner's, Loew's and UA, brought out that Smith hadn't been at all sure of this when a pair of defense lawyers interviewed him less than a year ago.

Bennett also established that Smith has been a next-door neighbor and longtime friend of Dibble for more than 30 years.

Q.—You said . . . that you were an old friend of Dibble and you were not going to do anything to hurt him in this suit, didn't you?

A.—That's right, and I still maintain that.

Macklin Fleming, lawyer for Columbia and Universal, brought out that Smith didn't know De Golia was suing all the distributors, too—that suit depends on the outcome of the current one, obviously.

On the lease's clause, Smith said he made a rough draft following the lease held by the former tenant, Herman Cohen, who'd gone broke in mid-1938 running the Embassy as a first-run house.

But, said Smith, he decided to "take out anything peculiar" to the Cohen-De Golia lease that "would not be applicable to the proposed lease . . . also anything not pertinent to the final draft . . . anything I thought might be controversial . . .

"If De Golia wished (the disputed clause) inserted, he would have required it to be inserted."

However, Smith didn't recognize some pencilled notations alongside the clause suggesting its elimination. So far, no one has identified this writing.

McLean took a little bouncing around on the witness stand from the third main defense lawyer, Arthur B. Dunne, representing Fox. Dunne asked about a valance hanging from the Embassy marquee—the valance advertised the bar next to the theatre and Dunne wondered if this was appropriate for what McLean had described as "a downtown family theatre."

Dunne also brought out that Dibble and McLean had reduced the theatre's lobby in 1946 to put in the bar at one side and a coffee shop on the other, and that each exhibitor drew $100 a week from the bar-coffee shop operation, which was, and is, under their management.

Dunne then had another go at McLean for the exhibitor's understatement of grosses in the first 12 weeks of 1940—McLean a fortnight ago took "full responsibility" for this—and McLean explained he did it to the distributors because:

"I wanted to get those prices back to where they were in 1938 when I first bought pictures."

The lawyer went into considerable detail exploring the grossing capacity of the Embassy as compared to much smaller neighborhood houses and implied this was the reason the Embassy's film rents were higher than other subsequent-run theatres.

Raven started rehabilitating McLean by having him point out there were bars near a number of other theatres, then veered into a number of deals Dibble and McLean almost had made. One deal was for "a little jewel box" of a 400 or 500-seater in the St. Francis Hotel; another was for a new 2000-seater in the post-World War II Stonestown shopping center; a third was for a big new theatre in builder Henry Doelger's huge Westlake housing tract.

This last titillated the Judge and McLean explained why it fell through:

"The Doelger Theatre was—Mr. Doelger got—I wouldn't

(Continued on page 20)

...AND UA HAS IT!

FOR IMMEDIATE PROFITS... BOOK IT NOW!

ALL NEW!

THE RETURN OF DRACULA

FRANCIS LEDERER
NORMA EBERHARDT
with
RAY STRICKLYN · JOHN WENGRAF
VIRGINIA VINCENT

FOR THE GREATEST TWIN-HORROR SHOW EVER!

starring ARTHUR FRANZ KATHLEEN CROWLEY with ROBERT BROWN

Screenplay by PAT FIELDER and GEORGE WORTHING YATES • From a story by GEORGE WORTHING YATES

Directed by PAUL LANDRES • Produced by ARTHUR GARDNER and JULES V. LEVY

THRU UA

Picture Grosses

'Brothers' Boffo $9,000, L'ville; 'S' W.' Fancy 11G, 'Kwai' Great 15G, H.O.

Louisville, April 15.

Cold, rainy weather put a damper on downtown opening Thursday (10) but pace stepped up over weekend, and all houses report average or better biz. Brown, with "Brothers Karamazov" is socko. "Touch of Evil" and "Day of Bad Man" combo is okay at the Kentucky. "Snow White" shapes sturdy at Rialto in second week. "Bridge on River Kwai" still is smash in third at the United Artists.

Estimates for This Week

Brown (Fourth Ave.-Loew's) — (1,000; 99-$1.45) "Brothers of Karamazov" (M-G). Great $9,000 or near. Last week, "Farewell to Arms" (20th) (5th wk), $5,000.

Kentucky (Switow) (900; 50-85) —"Touch of Evil" (U) and "Day of Bad Man" (U). Okay $5,000. Last week, "Summer Love" (U) and "Big Beat" (U), same.

Mary Anderson (People's (1,000; 85-$1.25)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Okay $7,000 after first week's $11,000.

Rialto (Fourth Ave.) (3,000; 50-85)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk). Fancy $11,000 after last week's $16,000.

United Artists (UA) (3,000; 99-$1.45)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (3d wk.). Maintaining sock pace at $15,000, after last week's $18,000.

BROADWAY

(Continued from page 13)

be held for "Stage Struck" (BV), regular run starting April 23.

Palace (RKO) (1,700; $1-$3)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (18th wk). The 17th round ended yesterday (Tues.) was near capacity $49,500 for 16 performances. The 16th was $43,800 for 14 shows.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,665; $1-$2)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). This session ending today (Wed.) is heading for great $77,000. First week was $108,000, terrific. Stays on, natch!

Fifth Ave. Cinema (R&B) (250; $1.80) — "Gervaise" (Cont) (14th wk). The 13th round finished yesterday (Tues.) was big $4,200. The 12th was $4,100.

Paris (Pathe Cinema) (568; 90-$1.80) — "God Created Woman" (Kings) (26th wk). The 25th frame ended Sunday (13) pushed to great $12,500. The 24th week, $11,300.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (6,200; 90-$2.75) — "Merry Andrew" (M-G) and Easter stageshow (4th wk). Current week finishing today (Wed.) looks to hit great $165,000, helped by some extra shows in forepart of session which took in Easter Week. The third was $195,000, one of big Easter Weeks at Hall. Stays one week more, with "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) opening April 24.

Rivoli (UAT) (1,545; $1.25-$3.50) —"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (79th wk). The 78th stanza ended yesterday (Tues.) was capacity $45,000 for 16 performances. The 77th week was $44,000 for 17 shows.

Plaza (Lopert) (525; $1.50-$2)—"Witness For Prosecution" (UA) (10th wk). This week ending tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for big $12,500. Ninth was $14,500. Continues.

Roxy (Nat'l. Th.) (2,600; $1.75-$3.50) — "The Windjammers" (Nat'l). First session ending today (Wed.) looks like very nice $68,000 for 12 performances, after rave reviews in N. Y. dailies. There were 136 seats in Golden Circle of Loge opened up after pic preemed. This first film in Cinemiracle process was given a full day of special previews and a special preem Wednesday (9) night. Looks in for longrun.

State (Loew) (3,450; 50-$1.75)—"St. Louis Blues" (Par). First stanza winding up today (Wed.) is heading for good $27,000 or close. In ahead, "Saddle Wind" (M-G) (3d wk-8 days), $10,500.

Sutton (R&B) (561; 95-$1.75)—"Desire Under Elms" (Par) (6th wk). Fifth round finishing today (Wed.) looks like nice $8,100. Fourth, $7,900.

Trans-Lux 52d St. (T-L) (540; $1-$1.50)—"Rouge et Noir" (DCA) (2d wk). Initial week completed Monday (14) was smash $15,000, only the 2½-hour length of pic holding it back from bigger figure opening week.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,060; 50-$2) —"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (3d wk). Current session ending today (Wed.) shapes to get sock $24,000 or near. Second was $27,500.

Warner (SW-Cinerama) (1,600; $1.80-$3.50) — "Search For Paradise" (Cinerama) (30th wk). The 29th stanza finished Saturday (12) was big $30,800, aided by some extra shows. The 28th week was $24,000.

'Marjorie' Brisk 7½G, Port.; 'Lions' 8G, 2d

Portland, Ore., April 15.

Town is bogged down with big holdovers, with the one new pic doing okay. "Bridge on River Kwai" continues for third rousing week at Orpheum. "Young Lions" stays big in second round at the Fox. "Run Silent, Run Deep" moves into third okay week at Paramount. "Marjorie Morningstar" is rated fine as lone new entry at the Broadway.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,875; $1-$1.50) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB). Fine $7,500. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G) and "Handle With Care" (M-G), $4,800.

Fox (Evergreen) (1,536; $1-$1.50) —"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Big $8,000 or near. Last week, $12,000.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,890; $1-$1.50)—"King Solomon's Mines" (M-G) and "Seven Brides Seven Brothers" (M-G) (reissues). Mild $5,000. Last week, "Paris Holiday" (UA) and "Ride Out For Revenge" (UA), $5,400.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,600; $1-$1.50)—"Bridge On River Kwai" (Col) (3d wk). Lusty $12,000. Last week, $18,800.

Paramount (Port-Par) (3,400; $1-$1.50)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Man On Prowl" (UA) (3d wk). Oke $5,500. Last week, $6,800.

MINNEAPOLIS

(Continued from page 12)

ing to this one. Big $12,000. Last week, $15,000. Stays on.

RKO Orpheum (RKO) (2,800; 75-90)—"Paris Holiday" (UA). Very well liked, Bob Hope having large local following. Oke $9,000. Last week, "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk), $9,000.

RKO Pan (RKO) (1,800; 75-85)—"From Hell It Came" (AA) and "The Disembodied" (AA). Light $3,000. Last week, "Long Haul" (Col) and "Hard Man" (Col), $3,500.

State (Par) (2,300; 85-90) — "Merry Andrew" (M-G) (2d wk). Hasn't caught on as well as expected. Modest $5,500. Last week, $7,000.

Suburban World (Mann) (700; 85 —"God Created Woman" (Kings) (2d run). First and exclusive nabe run after its sensational six weeks downtown. Big $3,500. Last week, "Three Faces of Eve" (20th) (2d run), $2,300.

World (Mann) (400; $1.25-$1.50)— "Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). One of season's b.o. topnotchers. Hefty $8,000. Last week, $10,000.

'Blues' Okay $12,000, St. Loo; 'Arms' 10G, 4th

St. Louis, April 15.

Despite obvious tie-in and bally, "St. Louis Blues" shapes only okay in opening session at the Fox. Opening bally included personals by Nat "King" Cole, Pearl Bailey and the Nelson Riddle orch. Several holdover houses continue strong, too, with "Bridge on River Kwai" in a smash fifth round at Esquire, "Merry Andrew" still is fair at Loew's in second week. "Farewell to Arms" rounds out a fourth and final week in fine shape at the St. Louis.

Estimates for This Week

Esquire (Shukart-Levin) (1,500; $1.50-$2.50) — "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Fifth week ending today (Tues.) looks like great $14,300. Last week, $15,300.

Fox (Arthur) (5,000; 60-75)—"St. Louis Blues" (Par), okay $12,000. Last week, "Ft. Dobbs" (WB) and "Sing Boy Sing" (20th), $14,000.

Loew's (Loew) (3,200; 60-90)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) and "Handle With Care" (M-G) (2d wk). Fair $7,500. Last week, $10,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (1,900; 60-90)—"Witness for Prosecution" (UA) (7th wk). Fancy $7,500. Last week, $8,000.

Richmond (Arthur) (1,000; $1.25) —"Bride Is Much Too Beautiful" (Ellis) (m.o.). Trim $2,500.

St. Louis (Arthur) (3,800; 90-$1.25)—"Farewell to Arms" (20th) (4th wk). Solid $10,000. Last week, $14,000.

Shady Oak (Arthur) (560; $1.25) —"Sins of Casanova" (Times). Good $2,000. Last week, "Bride Is Much Too Beautiful" (Ellis) (2d wk), $3,000.

KANSAS CITY

(Continued from page 13)

Modest $4,000. Last week, "Tall Stranger" (AA) and "Blonde Blackmailer" (AA), same.

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; 90-$1.25) —"God Created Woman" (Kings) (10th wk). Bright $2,500; holds. Last week, $3,000.

Midand (Loew) (3,500; 90-$1.25) —"Bridge On River Kwai" (Col) (3d wk). Nifty $9000; may go extra days. Last week, $14,000, but not up to expectations.

Missouri (SW-Cinerama) (1,194; $1.25-$2) — "Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (34th wk). Stepped up pace as closing week approaches at big $10,000. Last week, $7,500.

Paramount (UP) (1,900; 75-90)— "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). So-so $5,000. Last week, $7,000.

Rockhill (Little Art Theatres) (750; 75-90)—"All At Sea" (M-G) (2d wk). Oke $1,400. Last week, $2,300, best in several stanzas.

Town, Fairway (Fox Midwest) (2,100; 700; 75-90)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) and "Blood Arrow" (20th) (2d wk). Medium $6,500. Last week, including Granada, $11,000.

Uptown, Granada (Fox Midwest) (2,043; 1,217; 75-90) — "Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). In Uptown, first week at Granada, pleasing $9,000.

Ed Wall Into Realty

Albany, April 15.

Edward J. Wall, who went off the Paramount payroll January 1, after more than 15 years as its field representative in the Albany and Buffalo district, and after a 29-year-span with the company, has returned to realty—the field in which he started with Paramount.

Wall worked in the latter's realty department, after being a realtor in Odessa, Tex., before a transfer to tub-thumping.

He has been appointed assistant secretary and selling agent of a new concern, DV Development Inc., which will build the Capital District's first cooperative-ownership apartment building at a cost of approximately $1,250,000.

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 12)

Deep" (UA) and "Cross-Up" (UA) (2d wk). Down to $11,200. Last week, $28,000.

Pantages (RKO) (2,812; $1.25-$2.40)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) (2d wk). Slow $7,200. Last week, $12,900.

Warner Beverly (SW) (1,612; $1.25-$2.40)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk). So-so $11,000. Last week, $12,000.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (2,296; 90-$1.50)—"Paris Holiday" (UA) (3d wk). NSG $4,400. Last week, $6,700.

Downtown Paramount, Wiltern, New Fox (ABPT-SW-FWC) (3,300; 2,344; 765; 90-$1.50)—"Sayonara" (WB) (1st multi-run) and "Forbidden Desert" (WB) (3d wk). Big $21,500. Last week, $32,400.

Iris, Ritz (FWC) (825; 1,320; 90-$1.50)—"Snow White" (BV) and "Tammy and Bachelor" (U) (reissues) (3d wk). Dull $3,000.

Hollywood Paramount (F&M) (1,468; $1.25-$2)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (4th wk). Modest $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

Los Angeles (FWC) (2,097; $1.25-$2.40)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (5th wk). Pale $4,500.

Egyptian (UATC) (1,503; $1.25-$3.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (17th wk). Okay $17,000. Last week, $22,200.

Warner Hollywood (SW-Cinerama) (1,384; $1.20-$2.65)—"Seven Wonders" (Cinerama). Started 45th week Sunday (13) after big $17,300 last week.

Carthay (FWC) (1,138; $1.75-$3.50)—"Around World" (UA) (69th wk). Hefty $19,100. Last week, same.

Crest, Sunset (Lippert-Cohen) (800; 540; $1.25-$1.50)—"Smallest Show on Earth" (Bev) and "W. C. Fields Festival" (Bev) (2d wk). Slow $2,700. Last week, $4,800.

'Summer' Hot $9,000, Prov.; 'Run' Nice 10G

Providence, April 15.

Holdovers hold the spotlight here currently, and are carrying nicely after a hefty Easter week. State is still tops in coin with "Run Silent, Run Deep" but actually the best showing is being made by "Long, Hot Summer" at Majestic also in second. "Marjorie Morningstar" is carrying on good in second at Albee. Strand is also steady with "Teacher's Pet" holdover.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 65-80)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Good $7,000 after short first session gave it $6,500.

Elmwood (Snyder) (745; 90-$1.25) —"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (27th wk). Holding at just so-so $3,000. Last week, same.

Majestic (SW) (2,200; 65-80)— "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) and "God Is My Partner" (Indie) (2d wk). Hep $9,000 or near. First week, $10,000.

State (Loew) (3,200; 65-80)— "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Ride Out For Revenge" (UA) (2d wk). Nice $10,000 or near. First week, $13,000.

Strand (National Realty) (2,200; 65-80)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) and "Spanish Affair" (Par) (2d wk). Fair $5,000 after $6,500 on opener.

RKO At Peace With AFM

Hollywood, April 15.

RKO Pictures, division of RKO Teleradio Pictures Inc., has inked an interim agreement with AFM. Pact will allow RKO use of musicians "when needed" to score product in this country.

Signing follows by one week RKO prexy Tom O'Neil stating his company was reentering production via bankrolling of indie pix.

Storm Sloughs Hub Biz; 'Stage' Rousing $11,000 'Marjorie' Fast 14G, 2d

Boston, April 15.

Biz was perky until bopped by northeast storm to make weekend spotty. However, best Sunday weather in months helped somewhat. "South Pacific" is one of hottest things in town with rousing gross at Saxon. New product looms disappointing with "Cole Younger, Gunfighter" barely okay at Paramount and Fenway. "Stage Struck" was lofty in first week at Capri. Holdovers dominate currently, with "Run Silent, Run Deep" good at Orpheum in third round. "Witness for Prosecution" is fine in eighth week at the State. "Bridge on River Kwai" is holding hotsy in 16th frame at Gary, going ahead of last week. "Long, Hot Summer" shapes fancy in second round at the Memorial.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,372; 75-$1.25)— "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Slick $14,000. Last week, $17,000.

Beacon Hill (Sack) (678; 90-$1.50) —"Goddess" (Col). World preem tomorrow. Last week, "God Created Woman" (Kings) (9th wk), wow $6,000.

Boston (SW-Cinerama) (1,354; $1.25-$2.65)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (21st wk). Fine $17,500, helped by extra matinees. Last week, $14,000.

Capri (Sack) (990; 50-$1.50) — "Stage Struck" (BV) and "How to Murder a Rich Uncle" (Col). Second week began Saturday (12). First week was rousing $11,000.

Exeter (Indie) (1,300; 75-$1.25)— "Lucky Jim" (Indie). Opened Sunday (13). Last week, "Man Escaped" (Cont) and "Naked Eye" (FR) (4th wk), $4,000.

Fenway (NET) (1,373; 60-$1.10) — "Cole Younger, Gunfighter" (AA) and "Missouri Traveler" (BV). Oke $4,000. Last week, "Juvenile Jungle" (Rep) and "Young and Wild" (Rep), $3,000.

Gary (Sack) (1,340; $1.50-$2.75) — "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (16th wk). Pushed to wow $24,000, aided by more shows. Last week, $21,000.

Kenmore (Indie) (700; $1.25-$2) —"Henry V" (Rank) (reissue) (4th wk). Good $5,000. Last week $6,500.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 60-$1.10) —"Long Hot Summer" (20th) (2d wk). Fancy $14,000. Last week, $17,000.

Metropolitan (NET) (4,357; 70-$1.10)—Taken over by Metropolitan Opera Company for week. Last week, "Teacher's Pet" (Par) and "Spanish Affair" (3d wk-4 days), oke $2,500. Second week, $6,500.

Paramount (NET) (1,700; 60-$1.10)—"Cole Younger, Gunfighter" (AA) and "Missouri Traveler" (BV). Good $11,000. Last week, "Juvenile Jungle" (Rep) and "Young and Wild" (Rep), $8,500.

Pilgrim (NET) (1,000; 60-$1.10) — "Cowboy" (Col) and "Going Steady" (Col). Modest $6,000. Last week, "Three Faces of Eve" (20th) and "No Down Payment" (20th) (reissues), $4,500.

Saxon (Saxon) (1,100; $1.50-$3.30) —"South Pacific" (20th) (2d wk). Second week starts tomorrow, Wednesday (16). First week was great $28,000.

Trans-Lux (Trans-Lux) (730; 75-$1.25) — "Miller's Beautiful Wife" (Indie) and "Flesh Is Weak" (Indie). Oke $4,000. Last week, "Maid In Paris" (Indie) and "Adorable Creatures" (Indie), $5,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (2,900; 75-$1.25) — "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Quiet American" (UA) (3d wk). Good $10,000. Last week, $12,500.

State (Loew) (3,600; 75-$1.25)— "Witness For Prosecution" (UA) (8th wk). Fine $8,000. Last week, same.

Skeptical Judge Prods Frisco Litigants

Continued from page 18

say frightened, but he decided not to build it because Golden State Theatres put up a big sign right opposite to the entrance into Westlake saying they were going to build a big theatre there."

Said the Judge (who had heard similar testimony of the Naify circuit's tactics in the Goldwyn case): "I find this very, very interesting."

Then the Judge asked:

"Did you contemplate having first-run in those theatres?

A.—Stonestown or Westlake, maybe second-run . . . the theatre in the St. Francis Hotel about like the (Herbert Rosener-Irving Ackerman) Stagedoor, which has played such films as "Guys and Dolls," "Ten Commandments" and "Raintree County" . . .

Q.—Did you have any assurance you would be able to establish such a policy?

A.—No, we didn't.

Q.—You just hoped?

A.—Hopeful, yes sir—go out and fight for it.

Raven got McLean back on the track by having him judge grossing capacity of the Embassy with most other downtown houses, and McLean felt the Embassy could have matched any of them as a first-run except for possibly the (4,500-seat) Fox and possibly Loew's Warfield during World War II. The exhibitor's comment about the 400-seat Cinema, owned by Fox West Coast, was especially colorful:

"Right now it's about as bad a sex house as I have ever seen."

(Fox West Coast must have felt that way, too, since the circuit took the lease away from Ralph Dostel only last month and gave it to Irving Ackerman.)

With McLean still on the stand, Raven introduced a huge mass of statistical data aimed at showing how the Embassy had been jobbed in rents paid on individual pictures.

Start of one chart on "Gulliver's Travels" showed the Embassy paid $200, for two to four days playing time on a 91-day availability. The neighborhood El Rey paid $175 for five days on a 59-day availability. The neighborhood Palace paid $110 for four days on a 59-day availability. And so on down the line through all this picture's playdates and through the playdates of dozens and dozens of other films—all showing how the Embassy rent was higher for no more playing time on much longer availability.

How much ice this will cut with Judge Murphy is problematical, for it's now very clear that original intent, like Original Sin, may be the deciding factor in this case.

"MACABRE" SHOCKS NEW ENGLAND TODAY!

GIANT SIX-STATE SATURATION LAUNCHES ALLIED ARTISTS' EXPLOITATION SHOCKER WITH HOT TV, RADIO, NEWSPAPER BLAST!

BOSTON ..... PARAMOUNT and FENWAY	PROVIDENCE ..... ALBEE	NEW HAVEN ..... PARAMOUNT
HARTFORD ..... ALLYN	BRIDGEPORT ..... WARNER and MERRITT	SPRINGFIELD ..... PARAMOUNT
WATERBURY ..... STATE	NEWPORT ..... STRAND	MANCHESTER ..... STRAND
LAWRENCE ..... BROADWAY	DANBURY ..... EMPRESS	NEW BRITAIN ..... EMBASSY
LEWISTON ..... STRAND	LOWELL ..... STRAND	NORTH ADAMS ..... MOHAWK
GLOUCESTER ..... NORTH SHORE	PORTSMOUTH ..... COLONIAL	BROCKTON ..... BROCKTON
AUGUSTA ..... COLONIAL	PITTSFIELD ..... STATE	NEW LONDON ..... GARDE
FITCHBURG ..... FITCHBURG	WAREHAM ..... WAREHAM D.I.	BRATTLEBORO ..... PARAMOUNT
ATHOL ..... YORK	WHITE RIVER ..... LYRIC	GREENFIELD ..... LAWLER
TAUNTON ..... PARK	WATERVILLE ..... HAINES	PLYMOUTH ..... OLD COLONY
CONCORD ..... CONCORD	HOULTON ..... TEMPLE	KINGSTON ..... DRIVE IN
NASHUA ..... STATE	BERLIN ..... PRINCESS	ROCHESTER ..... SCENIC
MILFORD ..... IDEAL	BRUNSWICK ..... CUMBERLAND	ST. JOHNSBURY ..... STAR
WILLIMANTIC ..... GEM	RUMFORD ..... STRAND	ELLSWORTH ..... DRIVE IN
SOUTH NORWALK ..... PALACE	DOVER ..... UPTOWN	WEST ENFIELD ..... DRIVE IN
TORRINGTON ..... PALACE	ST. ALBANS ..... BELLEVUE	BELLOWS FALLS ..... OPERA HOUSE
HOLYOKE ..... STRAND	VAN BUREN ..... MARILYN	SANFORD ..... CAPITOL
SAYBROOK ..... SAYBROOK	KEENE ..... SCENIC	STONINGTON ..... OPERA HOUSE
MADISON ..... MADISON	CLAREMONT ..... MAGNET	WINTHROP ..... GULL
BUZZARDS BAY ..... BUZZARDS BAY		NEWPORT ..... PLAYHOUSE

Coming up! MICHIGAN SATURATION INCLUDING ENTIRE BUTTERFIELD CIRCUIT!

Coming up! NATIONWIDE CIRCUIT BOOKINGS...INTERSTATE, RKO, VIDEO, MARTIN THEATRES, CRESCENT AMUSEMENT CO., GEORGIA THEATRES AND MORE, MORE!

DON'T LIVE TO REGRET NOT BOOKING "MACABRE"!

Allied Artists Productions, Inc.

Indie Producer Theory on Breaking Downtown Bottlenecks: Let Class Nabes 'Declare Selves' 1st-Run

Hollywood, April 15.

Creation of a new hookup of first-run situations to break the bottleneck caused by blockbusters tying up the current first-runs via long engagements was advocated by indie producer Roger Corman over the weekend. This glut of big product has created a shortage in subsequent runs, according to Corman, with both the exhib and producer affected.

This new hookup, he pointed out, could be accomplished simply by a number of first-class nabe houses close to where the prime theatre-going public lives declaring themselves first-runs. There would be no clearance problems.

This would have the obvious value of busting the dam and freeing product for playing time in more theatres, Corman said. He stressed that most of the coin accruing to film-makers comes out of first-runs, and playoff in nabes is more or less meaningless with the $10 to $20 rentals. If this were done nationally it would solve major problems of both producers and exhibs, and among other things would provide faster buy-off and be more efficient for distribs, according to producer.

The proposed practice would be better for exhibs, too, Corman declared, because they could play off product faster and they would have the advantage of pooling advertising expenses with other exhibs in on the run and with distribs. This would give theatres which have no way of advertising except in listings the opportunity of breaking loose and creating major ads for their houses, he said.

In addition to presenting more fresh, new, lively product on more theatre screens, such new first-runs, too, would be a major step forward in bringing people into theatres in greater numbers. With more and more people moving to the suburbs and less inclined to make the traffic-blocked trek to regular first-run situations, Corman pointed out new audiences would thus be created for general overall bigger theatre returns.

UPTOWN, HOUSTON, TO HOUSE 'SOUTH PACIFIC'

Houston, April 15.

Uptown here has been leased to Rowley United Theatres for the showing of Todd-AO pictures. The house was built by the late Will Horwitz in 1935. With the leasing of the Uptown the Iris Theatre is the only Horwitz operated theatre in the city. Fred Cannata, manager of the Uptown, will move over to the Iris where he started many years ago with the founder of the circuit.

Rowley will take over the Uptown on May 15 and will remodel the house, with new carpets, new seats and special Todd-AO equipment installed at a cost of around $100,000. The new Uptown is scheduled to open as a Todd-AO theatre June 26 with "South Pacific" (20th).

New manager of the Uptown will be Jeff Wolf who comes here from Corpus Christi, Tex.

Allied-COMPO

Continued from page 3

Ben Marcus, former Allied president and now honorary chairman, was designated the Allied rep on the COMPO governing committee, which now includes Pinanski, as rep of the Theatre Owners of America, and Abe Montague, for the Motion Picture Assn. of America.

Marcus replaces Robert W. Coyne, COMPO's special counsel, who had doubled as triumvirate member.

Meeting also saw a vote extending for three years the employment contracts for Coyne and Charles C. McCarthy, information director, and moves looking to the collection from exhibitors of their share of expenses for the industry's business-building campaign.

Waszynski for Figaro

Michael Waszynski, who has served as production manager and casting director for several American film companies shooting pix in Italy, has been appointed European representative for Figaro Inc., the Joseph Mankiewicz indie firm.

Waszynski has spent the past two months in New York and the Coast huddling with Figaro execs on forthcoming European productions. He returned Monday (7) to Rome where he will make his headquarters.

Sol Wurtzel, Vet Producer Who Brought Stardom to Many Thesps, Dies at 67

Hollywood, April 15.

Film producer Sol M. Wurtzel, whose lifetime in motion pictures brought stardom to Shirley Temple, Will Rogers and Tom Mix, died last Wednesday (9) in his Westwood home after an illness of some seven years. He was 67.

The producer's picture career spanned 30 years at one studio followed by a number of years as an independent filmmaker. A native of New York, he joined Fox Film Corp. as a stenographer in 1914, later became secretary to William Fox and in 1917 moved to the Coast to open up Fox's Western Avenue studio.

Wurtzel served as Fox general manager until the company's 1935 merger with 20th Century Pictures, then became an executive producer at the new 20th-Fox. He continued producing at a prolific pace, heading the studio's B-picture unit and during one seven-year period alone he personally helmed 190 features. During his years of picture-making he supervised more than 700 films and at times had as many as five pictures in production during a single month.

In 1933, when his Western Avenue lot was threatened with a three-month shuttering, Wurtzel went to bat for his staff, refusing to take anyone off salary. The studio remained open, and costs were charged to his later productions.

There were numerous people and things that highlight Wurtzel's life. Besides launching Miss Temple, Mix and Rogers in their film careers, he put Jane Withers into her first picture. An expert on public taste, he was one of the first to concentrate on series films and was responsible for "Charlie Chan," "Mr. Moto" and "Jones Family" segments.

Wurtzel's long list of credits is topped by the Will Rogers starrer, "A Connecticut Yankee" and includes "Salome," "Young America," "The Dangerous Years" and "Strange Journey." Perhaps his most ambitious project was the filmization of "Dante's Inferno," an epic that brought Rita Hayworth into the movies but few people into the theatres. Wurtzel's independent productions became one of the first blocks of films to be sold to television for home viewing.

The producer was noted as a man to know talent, and he often employed discarded directors and writers, then watched them climb to the top again. Providing entertainment for moviegoers was his prime concern, and Wurtzel made it evident that he wanted people who could get the job done whether he liked them or not. "If a man does a good job," he once said, "he's fulfilling his part of the bargain, and he should not be penalized because of my personal opinions."

In 1912 Wurtzel married Marian Bodner, who survives him. He also is survived by a son, Paul, an assistant television director; a daughter, Mrs. Lillian Semenov; two grandchildren; and three brothers, Henry, Ben and Sam. Funeral services were held Sunday (13) in Hollywood's Temple Israel, the synagogue he helped found.

Maturity in Des Moines

Des Moines, April 15.

"And God Created Woman" is now in its fifth week at the Uptown Film Art Centre without incident. The Uptown, former neighborhood for re-runs was reopened by Tri-States Theatre Corp. March 7 after being closed since January, 1957. The stated policy at the time of opening was that as an art theatre "mature and provocative films" would be shown.

Other films scheduled are "How to Murder a Rich Uncle," "The Golden Age of Comedy," "The Bride's Much Too Beautiful," "08/15," "Smiles of a Summer Night" and Sir Lawrence Olivier in "Henry V."

Without IATSE

Continued from page 7

"on strike." But William Donnelly, IATSE special representative, avers the men have been "locked out" and they're bannering the ozoners to that effect.

Key issue in the dispute is the owners' insistence on a reduction of the number of projectionists to a booth from two to one.

Donnelly says the union offered to accede to that provision in the proposed new contract's second year if the drive-ins would continue the operators' seven-day scale in 1959, but put them on a five-day week, adding "swing men" for the other two days.

The operating cost per booth would have been reduced from about $270 to between $170 and $190 a week, he asserts.

On behalf of the driveins, Mann offered to increase the projectionists' weekly pay from $137.50 to $148.50 in the contract's second year if the union agreed to one-man operation of the booths.

While the union has filed strike notice now against the driveins, there has been no lockout notice by the driveins which contend the fact that no contractual relationship exists with the union obviates such necessity.

The state labor conciliator office doesn't classify the dispute as either a strike or a lockout; but as a "request for conciliation," the notice for same having been filed by the union with it. The office will hold a meeting this week with both sides in attendance.

Prior to the ozoners' opening a "projectionists wanted" newspaper ad had brought 80 applicants for the 11 jobs, including mostly war veterans, so that there was no difficulty in manning the booths, according to Mann. One application was from a 11-year old boy who claimed he's capable of operating the machines.

Truck members of the Teamsters' union are refusing to cross the picket lines to make film and concession stand deliveries, but there have been no incidents thus far.

Ozoners' business in Minnesota last summer was off up to 25% and more last summer, with daylight saving time for the first non-war period blamed. There'll be DST against this summer.

EASTERN ANIMATORS SEEKING 10% RAISE

Screen Cartoonists Guild, Local 841, eastern unit of animators, will ask for a 10% across-the-board wage hike in negotiations with animation companies and commercial film outfits. Talks for a new pact, which will also call for "elimination of inequities" in the present contract, are scheduled to commence shortly.

The charges the union hopes to bring about include extension of freelance period from two to five weeks, more adequate notice of layoffs, quicker payment of severance, payment of time and half after 35 hours instead of 40, and a three-week vacation.

This year's negotiations will include all the studios in the east—theatrical, commercial and optical. Producers have again retained Sy Sheib as their attorney for the talks.

Publisher Buys Drive-In

Mt. Pleasant, Tex., April 15.

Pleasant Drive-In Theatre, formerly owned by Mrs. Robert Sleigh and Mrs. Kenneth Sleigh, has been sold to Robert Palmer.

He's co-publisher of the Titus County Tribune and the Lone Star Tribune.

Soundtrack

Continued from page 4

ing the screenplay for Samuel Goldwyn's "Porgy and Bess." Nash's next undertaking will be the stage production of his next play, which is still untitled . . .

Charlton Heston's Russell-Lake Corp., a Michigan firm, will enter the film story market with a N.Y. editor to be set . . . Paul Gregory and Raoul Walsh, associated on former's "The Naked and the Dead," have partnered up in Gregwal Productions Inc., for production of three pix during coming year . . . Jerry Wald set Sept. 8 as starting date of William Faulkner novel, "The Sound and the Fury" . . . 20th-Fox bought Broadway play, "Blue Denim," about teenage abortion for production late this year or early 1959 . . . Paul Lukas off to Equatorial Africa for costar role in Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Roots of Heaven" for 20th-Fox release.

Jerry Wald is "talking about" making Bob Hope's "Have Tux, Will Travel," the comedian told Jimmy Tapp last week on CBC-TV'er from Montreal.

A Canadian correspondent notes that, a few pages after VARIETY's story (2) on Hollywood AFL Film Council's protest against shooting U.S. scenes in Spain, is a review of the Paramount release of Burt Balaban & Arthur L. Mayer production "High Hell." Reviewer says, "Ostensibly laid in the Canadian Rockies (and actually shot in the Swiss Alps) . . ." Why, correspondent asks, take a production unit overseas to fake the Rockies when the real thing could have been shot just across the border in Alberta or British Columbia? . . .

Items From Madrid: "John Paul Jones" (Warners), jumping off on April 17 at CEA Studios, has dragnetted Continent-based Yank thesps for feature roles . . . Rome's Bruce Cabot will sail on Jones' The Ranger, Frank Lattimore will handle the eyeglass on The Bonhomme Richard and Alfred Brown portrays the weakling commander in Jones' squadron . . . Madrid talent agent Niels Larsen heads up the Sam Bronston—John Farrow casting office . . . Raoul Walsh due in with London cameraman Otto Heller to o.o. location sites for Danny Angel's "Sheriff of Fractured Jaw," to star Jayne Mansfield and Kenneth More for 20th-Fox release . . . French film director Julien Duvivier rolls cameras at the Sevilla Fair and exteriors on Andalucian soil through April with Brigitte Bardot and Antonio Vilar . . . British producer Maxwell Setton, actor John Mills, director John Guillermin and location unit planed back to London for interiors following Gibraltar, Algeciras and Tangier exteriors for "Monty's Double," based on the true-to-life war adventures of Clifton James, who wrote the book and plays himself in film . . . Jules Dassin's "Celui qui doit mourir" (He Who Must Die) won golden Don Bosco award at third annual Valladolid Religious Film Week . . . Albert Closas, who starred in last year's Madrid stage hit, "The Girl from Valladolid," has lead in film version now shooting at Charmartin Studios.

German Musicians Union, which is "cooperating" with striking American Federation of Musicians, has approved working on Robert Aldrich's "Phoenix" on grounds it is an Anglo-Swiss production. Film slated finish in two weeks, with scoring set immediately thereafter.

Vogel Still

Continued from page 4

Ira Guilden and Philip A. Roth. Latter was named vice chairman of the budget and finance committee. Although Green thinks highly of the ability of Guilden and Roth, he is said to have been somewhat disappointed that they had been invited to join the board, feeling that they had been brought in to serve as a "brake" on himself and Newman.

A third faction on the board may be said to consist of Samuel Briskin, who is the representative of the two Wall Street banking houses closely associated with the Loew's situation—Lehman Bros. and Lazard Freres, and Joseph Tomlinson, who is the largest single stockholder of the company and who launched the unsuccessful proxy fight. The Briskin-Tomlinson tie is believed to be one merely of convenience rather than of staunch loyalty or belief in the same approach in meeting the company's problem.

There are indications of an alliance between the Green-Newman and Briskin-Tomlinson forces. Green and Newman, who between them control some 150,000 shares, are also said to have the support of the proxies of Lehman, Lazard and Tomlinson, Guilden and Roth, who control some 40,000 shares, are reported to be anxious to add to their holdings so they can take a stronger position in the company.

The fourth faction is made up of the loyal Vogel supporters who are in the majority. The basic conflict is said to boil down to a difference of opinion between the film men and the financial men. Within the financial group, there is said to be one faction that is particularly interested in liquidating as much of the company's assets as possible that will bring good returns. The financial men are expected to push for possible consolidation of studio facilities with other companies and for mergers of distribution facilities.

Vogel, who has been harassed since he took over the presidency more than a year ago, is still not in the clear. He has been subjected to numerous irritations from the various factions and has had his hands full in trying to satisfy them all. In addition, he has been confronted with the tremendous task of improving the results of Metro's production program. While he has been successful in halting the production of the big losers, he hasn't succeeded as yet in coming up with a big winner.

Some of M-G's new films have fared satisfactorily at the boxoffice, but so far there hasn't been a real blockbuster that could compare, for example, with a "Peyton Place" or a "Bridge on the River Kwai." The job of assembling suitable packages has been enormous and Vogel met numerous frustrations in this direction. Some intimates of Vogel's have stated privately that the chieftain is a little tired of the constant bickering and problems involved in the efforts to bring Loew's back in the win column. Whether this "tiredness" will result in any specific action on his part in abandoning the fight is still a matter of speculation.

Vogel's assumption of the post of chairman of the executive committee again puts him back more solidly in the driver's seat. He succeeds George Killion, a staunch Vogel supporter who was named chairman of the board when the directors re-created that position after the stockholders' meeting of Feb. 27. Killion continues as a member of the committee. Other members of the executive committee are Guilden, William A. Parker and John L. Sullivan.

Serving on the budget and finance committee with Newman and Roth are Green, Ellsworth C. Alvord, Melniker, Robert H. O'Brien, Parker and Vogel.

Children's Cinema

Continued from page 3

are run by the Rugoff & Becker circuit under Clem Perry.

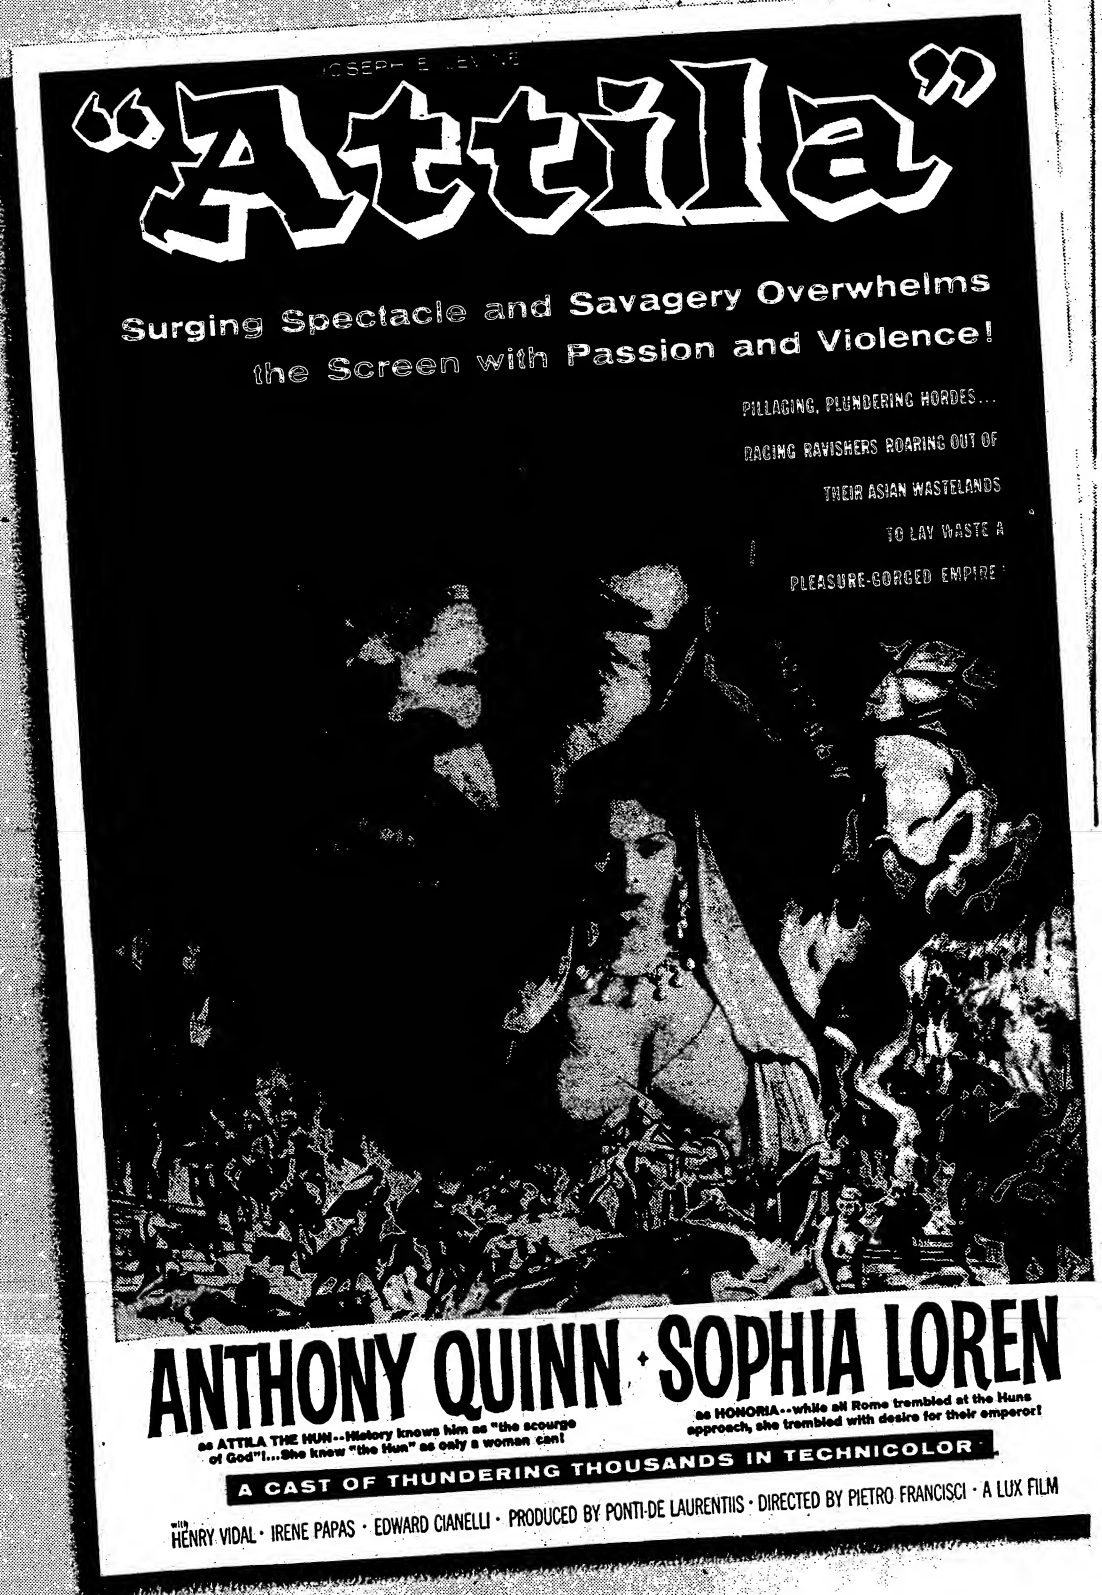
"Exhibitors are beginning to realize that there is something to be done with children's shows, if they are properly organized and the programs are carefully selected," Vogel said. He added that, as the Beekman, the kid audience age range 4-8) was extremely well behaved. Vogel and Johnnes selected their own films. "We didn't call in any educators because they tend to be over-cautious," Vogel explained.

What ate up the profits of the venture the first time 'round was promoting it. Cinema 16 sent out over 20,000 mailing pieces. Also, said Vogel, "We didn't get the press support which we more or less expected." He said he was confident that the project would expand on its second time 'round and would show a profit. So far neither he nor Johnnes have made a penny on the series.

"Attila" TAKES THE NATION BY STORM!

Top SITUATIONS across the NATION equals true SATURATION!

Teeing off with Smash, All-Out, Saturation Campaigns by Terry Turner following the pattern he set with "The Conqueror."



IN NEW ENGLAND
WARNER · PARAMOUNT
DAYTZ & ARTHUR HOWARD CIRCUITS · AMERICAN THEATRES
LOCKWOOD GORDON THEATRES INTERSTATE CIRCUIT
300 THEATRES · APRIL 23

IN LOS ANGELES
50 THEATRES · MAY 14
IN NEW YORK CITY
R.K.O. THEATRES
100 THEATRES · MAY 17
IN PITTSBURGH
STANLEY · MAY 10

IN PHILADELPHIA
STANLEY & 50 THEATRES during MAY
IN WASHINGTON, D. C.
MET and AMBASSADOR THEATRES
MAY 14
IN MILWAUKEE
WARNERS · MAY 15

NEW ENGLAND EMBASSY PICTURES
WEST COAST FAVORITE FILMS (RED JACOBS)
NEW YORK ALBANY · BUFFALO (GEORGE WALDMAN)
PHILADELPHIA FANFARE FILMS (GEORGE WALDMAN · JOE SOLOMON)

Pix, Sports and Culture To Vie On Six Channels In Cleve's Pay-TV Plan

Cleveland, April 15.

A spectacular $25,000,000 leased-wire, paid-tv public service as well as commercial programming plan embracing six channels is being proposed by WERE in a move set to cover at least 1,000,000 Greater Cleveland outlets.

According to Dick Klaus, WERE vice president, test runs are being planned for within a year as soon as cables, engineering and camera facilities are cleared.

"We seek to bring to homes in our area a greater expanse of educational and scientific film and live tv programming that will utilize the vast and untapped sources of such organizations as medical groups, boards of education, etc." said Klaus.

The revolutionary scheme, nearly a year in the planning stage has already elicited the warm support of George Medinger, vice president of the Cleveland Indians who last October told VARIETY that "toll television must come and sports will lead the way. With its financial offerings it will be a success."

At present, the Indians are committed to a 56-game tv schedule with WEWS.

WERE's plans using Channels 2, 4, 6, 7, 9 and 10, at an estimated $10 cost per home, as follows:

Channel 2: First-run films, on the air 11 hours a day. The films would be repeated for three or four days. No commercials except at station breaks.

Channel 4: Rerun films from Channel 2 with commercials. Also available to theatrical, musical, national groups, and network shows unable to appear locally.

Channel 6: Feature presentations, including theatrical film, sporting or musical. Operative only during top evening hours.

Channel 7: WERE-AM would duplicate Radio WERE, making radio programs available to video viewers.

Channel 9: Sports: Indian-away from home games, and all other sports. Klaus says preliminary talks have been held, but that no definite commitments have been made.

Channel 10: WERE hi-fi music. This channel would make use of tv's FM audio tube and by-pass the video tube for those listeners who want hi-fi music only, thus making television a complete entertainment center.

Klaus pointed out this direct-wire system would in "no way affect the operation of Cleveland's other three free stations on present channels, 3, 5 and 8."

He maintained that recent experiments with direct-wire (Oklahoma) have not proved conclusive, and that WERE's projected multiple channel offerings would provide a vast potential to the home owner, one "wider than he has ever had."

Dan Haworth Tests On Road

San Antonio, April 15.

Daniel F. Haworth, field representative of the Motion Picture Research Council of Hollywood, was here making a survey of theatre projection practices, with special regard to lamp operation, alignment, lens quality and screen reflection abilities.

This activity is part of a nationwide survey in an effort to get better projection in the theatres and to make presentations of the producer's production.

Plots Frisco Film Fest

San Francisco, April 15.

Irving M. Levin, director of the Frisco Film Festival, conferred with Floris Luigi Ammannati, director of the Venice Festival, and Domenico Meccoli, head of the Italian Film Journalists Union, last week.

Pair, together with actress Giuletta Massina, were en route to Italy after Amademy Award festivities, discussed technicalities of putting on a festival with Levin. Frisco showman also got advice from R. Favre Le Bret, Cannes Festival director, who was also in California for Oscar party.

Levin departs next week for Variety International convention in London, will then take in Cannes fete and make trips to Rome and Paris to contact producers' associations.

Bullfighting

Continued from page 5

dren should not be allowed to see it," and said his objection was a private matter not involving SPCA. "It's not good when small groups try to impose a censorship," he added.

His action was prompted, he explained, by the case last week of a 17-year-old Vancouver youth who had "played matador" with a dog and finally had strangled the animal. Hughes "felt" that films of this nature "could have" been responsible.

Protection league separately petitioned local film censor R. W. Macdonald, whom Mrs. Hepner quoted as saying "I'm sorry for the horses."

Theatreman Freedman said he had never heard of objection elsewhere to "Torero," and that "Business was good the first week. It slid right off during the second," because of, or in spite of, publicity about the protests appearing at start of second week.

Wrong Application

Newhall, Cal., April 15.

All this do-it-yourself has now apparently extended into exhibition, too.

When the manager of the local drive-in opened up for business t'other night he discovered someone had stolen the CinemaScope lenses and a print of "Farewell to Arms."

Filmites vs. Times

Continued from page 4

too literal and doesn't bother to counterbalance them with other, more positive, facts.

In the area of film reviews, the trade blows hot and cold. There is a feeling that the Times' write-up today mean more than ever. If the Times' Bosley Crowther likes a picture, he's a hero. When he pans it, he becomes the blackest of villains, particularly in the foreign film field where the influence of the Times is virtually unbeatable, though there have been some exceptions to prove the rule.

For most industryites, the "right" of the Times to review pix as it sees fit is a declaration that goes but skindeep. The true industry attitude was summed up quite succinctly in Paris recently by 20th-Fox prexy Spyros P. Skouras in an interview with a columnist. Stating that reviewers weren't always fair to his pictures, he suggested the possibility of withdrawing 20th advertising from the papers involved. It is a weapon which a great many industry execs would like to use more to bring the critics "into line." With and without using it, they have already succeeded in convincing several newspapers and reviewers to appraise films in a more positive light, the argument essentially being that "we all sink or swim together."

The Times so far has withstood this reasoning and some say they are glad of it. Yet, there is no question that the attempts to get the Times to "go easier" on film reviews will continue and that advertising plays a prominent part in the thinking of those who seek to bring about a change and who, somewhat illogically, point to the Herald Tribune as an example of "what can be done."

Amusement Stock Quotations

Week Ending Tuesday (15)

N. Y. Stock Exchange

1958 High	1958 Low		Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net Change for wk.
177⅛	14	ABC Vending	180	20¾	16⅞	17⅛	+ ½
16¾	13	Am Br-Par Th	181	16⅝	15¾	16½	+1
29¾	24½	CBS "A"	106	29½	28	29¼	+ ⅞
29½	24⅛	CBS "B"	90	29½	27½	29	+1⅛
16¼	12½	Col Pix	89	15	14⅝	14⅝	— ⅜
16¼	13⅞	Decca	78	16⅜	14½	15	+ ½
21½	14	Disney	59	20½	19	20¼	+ ¾
107⅜	97⅛	Eastman Kdk.	103	105¾	101½	105¾	+ ⅝
4⅝	3¾	EMI	363	4⅞	4⅜	4⅞	+ ⅝
7⅞	6¾	List Ind.	19	7¼	6⅞	7⅛	+ ¼
15½	12⅞	Loew's	240	16⅜	11⅞	13⅝	+ ¼
9	7⅜	Nat. Thea	89	8⅞	8⅜	8¼	— ½
38⅜	30⅝	Paramount	50	33⅝	33	33½	+ ¼
17⅛	12⅜	Philco	216	15	14	14⅝	—
65¾	43½	Polaroid	409	64	60⅛	62¾	+2⅛
35	30¼	RCA	158	31½	30⅞	31¼	— ¾
7⅛	5	Republic	17	5½	5¼	5¼	— ⅝
11⅛	9½	Rep., pfd	4	10⅛	10	10¼	— ½
18	14½	Stanley War.	207	17⅞	16¾	17½	+ ½
24½	20	Storer	10	23¼	22¼	23¼	+1
25½	21¾	20th-Fox	108	25⅛	24½	24½	+1
20½	15¼	United Artists	46	20⅜	19⅞	19½	—
22⅝	19	Univ. Pix	4	20⅜	20¼	20½	+ ¼
71	63	Univ., pfd	*80	63	63	63	—3
19½	16⅞	Warner Bros	17	19⅝	16¾	19	— ½
75¾	67½	Zenith	45.	74¼	70½	74	+2

American Stock Exchange

3⅜	3	Allied Artists.	69	3¼	3	3¼	—
9	7	All'd Art., pfd	1	7½	7½	7½	—
10	8⅜	Assoc. Artists	71	10	9⅝	9⅞	—
½	⅜	C. & C. Tele	70	7/16	7/16	7/16	+ 1/16
4⅝	3	DuMont Lab	14	3⅞	3½	3¾	—
3⅜	2⅝	Guild Films	78	2⅞	2⅞	2⅞	—
7	5⅝	Nat'l Telefilm	84	6¾	5⅞	6¾	+1
6	3⅝	Skiatron	63	4⅛	3⅞	4	— ¼
4⅜	3½	Technicolor	92	4¾	3⅝	4½	+ ⅜

Over-the-Counter Securities

	Bid	Ask
Ampex	58¼	61½	—
Chesapeake Industries	1¾	2⅛	— ⅛
Cinerama Prod.	1⅝	2	+ ⅛
DuMont Broadcasting	7⅞	8½	—
Magna Theatre	2¼	2⅝	—
Official Films	1⅛	1⅜	+ ⅛
Teleprompter	6	6⅞	—
U. A. Theatres	4⅞	5⅛	+1¾

* Actual Volume.

(Quotations furnished by Dreyfus & Co.)

Levey: 'Tide Now Rolls For Toll'

Skiatron Report Hits Propaganda Against Pay-See Which Temporarily Sidetracked Trials

Delay in the start of over-the-air subscription-tv trials is no more than that and "the tide . . . has turned in favor of subscription television."

This optimistic appraisal of the toll situation was contained last week in the annual report of Skiatron Electronics & Television Corp. for 1957. Prexy Arthur Levey lashed out against the network-and-exhibitor "lobby" which, he said, had won a temporary victory when it succeeded in getting both House and Senate committees to call on the Federal Communications Commission to call off trial runs.

FCC originally was to have considered station applications for threeyear toll runs starting March 1. In the wake of the Congressional resolutions, the Commission called off its plans and said it wouldn't consider any applications until 30 days after Congress had adjourned.

Levey said Skiatron TV, which has licensed the Skiatron Subscriber-Vision patents, was making "great progress' in the area of wire tv. "We believe that sufficient evidence is at hand to indicate an important improvement in the outlook for 'wired' subscription television in both the U. S. and Canada," the report read.

Skiatron Electronics in 1957 showed a net of $15,380 on a total gross of $613,728. Costs (material, labor, overhead, etc.) ran to $576,267. With $22,081 in unapplied charges, the company at the end of the year showed a $42,224 deficit.

Report established that Skiatron Electronic had received cash advances of $233,637 from Skiatron TV (Mathew Fox) over a threeyear period including 1957. Money was spent on preparing the application before the FCC and on engineering and research. It's repayable to Fox out of royalties due Skiatron Electronics from Skiatron TV if and when pay-tv gets going.

'Condemned' for Library

Minneapolis, April 15.

Taps have sounded for another local house, the lower loop grind Crystal. The city has acquired the property via condemnation proceedings as part of a site for a new public library. Award to the owners was $54,000.

Out in the territory the only theatre at Maple, Minn., tossed in the sponge, but the houses at Rugby and Hannah, N. D., relighted, and the Cloquet, Minn., theatre resumed full seven-day operation.

Rhoden

Continued from page 3

put 'The Miracle' into immediate production."

Rhoden feels that it is healthy that a "roadshow" enterprise could have been launched at so (relatively) a modest cost. For example, "The Windjammer" only represents a $2,500,000 production cost ("although the bills are still coming in," says he) and, in toto, Cinemiracle, with everything included, is a $4,000,000 item. (In this day and age of multimillion dollar production costs this may be considered modest.)

At the time of Charles P. Skouras' death, says Rhoden, his predecessor as NT president had only a $25,000 projector investment and it was Rhodens' decision whether to spend more or throw it away.

After he borrowed some experimental film from Cinerama he decided to build cameras. He called in Smith-Dietrich and their research and building cost $1,000,000, the largest extra-curricular cost on top of "The Windjammer" production cost.

The two cameras cost $500,000 alone. These costs will come down of course. Cinemiracle has four cameras all told, two in each unit. The Roxy's installations represent a $100,000 item—tearing out the stage, masking the first mezzanine, installing the equipment.

(The parallel installation at Grauman's Chinese can't be similarly calculated since the long overdue airconditioning was simultaneously installed; the rectangular-shaped theatre with its 32-inch rows was converted into 40-inch rows; and yet the 1,900 capacity, cut to 1,440, was not as marked as the Roxy's 5,717 seats cut to 2,600. April 24 in Oslo; May 14 at the Odeon, London; June 1 at the 2,400-seat Opera House, Chicago, is the timetable for the other deluxers, with 65 more slated.)

Rhoden feels that the Roxy's projectionists, with their several dry runs, achieved a better audience impact than the Chinese's cold opening.

20th Favors

Continued from page 5

the run-of-the-mill films which they need to operate year 'round.

There's an additional reason for 20th's balancing its sked. Though market conditions indicate favorable public response to the "blockbuster," i.e. expensive, type of films, a concentration on topcost films has certain inherent dangers, for one resounding flop could be a tremendous blow to a company. There's a certain "insurance" in volume, which acts as a cushion and, in the case of 20th, also takes advantage of a situation which sees theatres crying for smaller films.

Harrison last week said he had his doubts re the values of "tearing down" an established distribution organization, though he agreed that, with their sharply reduced skeds, some of the companies probably didn't need to maintain the elaborate sales apparatus of yesterday. "We're distributing our films at the lowest per-reel cost in the industry," Harrison said. "Show me how it can be done cheaper, and maybe I'll go along. For the moment, we can't see any benefit in either merging or closing up any exchanges. In fact, we might very well lose business that way."

Agents Eye USSR

Continued from page 1

language and make a deal on the spot. He had no one to answer to, was willing to gamble on the returns, and had the financial means to carry out any deal that was made.

The important thing is that major agencies seemingly have a yen now for virtually anything Russian, in distinct contrast to a few years ago, when anything that reflected favorably upon the USSR would have been considered "subversive."

UA Tops

Continued from page 5

first reflected in the pictures released during 1958 and (2) the company's upcoming program — including complete pictures and those on the drawing board. He estimated that six pictures screened by VA execs in 10 days would gross $50,000,000 in the world-wide market.

The UA topper revealed that the company already had 17 pictures lined up for 1959 and that its production program includes 1960 and beyond. For 1959, UA plans to release between 36 and 48 pictures at the rate of two big films per month.

At the progress report session, Krim was flanked by his top-echelon cabinet.

New York Theatre

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • CI 6-4600
DANNY KAYE
in "MERRY ANDREW"
co-starring PIER ANGELI
BACCALOBI • NOEL PURCELL • ROBERT COOTE
In CinemaScope and METROCOLOR
An M-G-M Picture
and THE MUSIC HALL'S GREAT EASTER STAGE SHOW

PRODUCER WANTED
For movie production of the story "Nine in a Station Wagon." I have the story, the music and 5000 ft. of 16mm colored movie films to help tell the story.
LESTER W. HANNA
R. #1, Box 210, Forest Grove, Ore.

ART MOVIE THEATRE FOR LEASE
VERY ATTRACTIVE,
500 SEATS
ALL EQUIPMENT
PHOENIX, ARIZONA
Write BOX V-4747-58, VARIETY
154 W. 46th St., New York 36

THE YEAR NBC HAD IT MADE

Mutual's Poetic Budget Trim

George Vogel, new manager of the recently-reorganized Mutual network, has sent out the following memo to all network personnel:

The telephone is a handy tool
Unless you use it like a fool
Lest brown corditis cause a din
Let's all resolve to stop, think and pitch in
There's still the pen and ink and philatelics
Not to mention several other tricks
Let's not forget good old papyrus
If worse comes to worse you can always wire us
So while I love American Tel & Tel
Excessive calls can sure raise h--l.

Switch of Metop B'casts Accents Growing Strength of NBC and CBS

Switch of the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts to CBS Radio next season by Texaco after 27 years on ABC serves to spotlight the theory that many industry execs have been proclaiming—that network radio inevitably must settle down into a two-network affair.

Not that ABC, nor Mutual, for that matter, is throwing in the sponge yet, but both have been radically altered from their one-time status as "programming" networks and are now concentrating their efforts at survival in news service and sales. As this happens, NBC and CBS are being strengthened by virtue of getting the mode durable and valuable properties either cast off or lost by ABC and Mutual.

Metopera broadcasts aren't the first example of this. Three years ago, when Charles Ayres moved from ABC Radio to head up NBC-AM, he convinced the NBC brass that commercial religious programming should be carried on the web, and the result was a large-scale shift of sponsored religious shows from ABC to NBC. More recently, when ABC decided on its illfated "live music & personality" format, it dropped its potent morning soap lineup. NBC grabbed off "My True Story" and made it one of its toprated daytimers as well as a heavily commercial operation. Just a couple of weeks back, CBS took on "Whispering Streets," another of the once-powerful ABC block.

It's entirely possible that ABC and Mutual can make a go of their news-only operations, operating on a conservative basis. But their identities as networks in the traditional sense of "program and sales" units have been all but lost. Meanwhile CBS and NBC are mopping up whatever gravy is left and thereby strengthening themselves by reinforcing their own identities as programmers in the process. Whether a two-network economy will survive far into the future is still a matter of conjecture.

WINS Dilemma on Frisco Giant Games

Radio station WINS definitely owns the New York audio rights—for which they indicate they have paid a substantial cash sum—to the 77 home games of the San Francisco Giants. But the station cannot find a sponsor and the reason given is that advertisers fear listener resentment toward a baseball team that deserted New York for the Coast.

WINS is offering the complete 77-game package at a time-talent charge of $250,000.

The Giants opened their regular season yesterday (Tues.) against their old Brooklyn (now L. A.) rivals, the Dodgers.

Saudek's 90-Min. 'Virginian' Spec

Robert Saudek Associates is planning a 90-minute live outdoor version of Owen Wister's classic, "The Virginian" for next fall. Project is not slated for "Omnibus," but is mapped as a one-shot Saudek special outside the "Omni" (and for that matter, the joint specials planned by Saudek and Metro) sphere.

Saudek is talking to Tony Perkins about doing the lead. Perkins, currently starring on Broadway in "Look Homeward, Angel," is no stranger to westerns, having starred in "The Tin Badge" currently on the cinema circuits. Saudek wants to do the drama live as a locationer remote from the New Mexico or Arizona desert, in color if enough remote equipment is available. If the live angle doesn't work out, he'd film the show. Saudek will present the package to networks and advertisers as a multiple-sponsor possibility.

AN EVALUATION OF 2 NETWORKS

By GEORGE ROSEN

The Nielsen nosecounting tabulation (14-city report for March 1) which gave NBC-TV a seven-out-of-Top-10 status as the climactic touch to the "NBC comeback" represented a high mark of achievement unparalleled in NBC archives for more years than the network would care to concede. In a season that can be labelled as anything but distinguished for its program content, the Nielsen nosegay is perhaps of dubious distinction (as a matter of fact, insofar as seasonal citations are concerned, this is the semester when the Peabody-Emmy impresarios could just as well have sat it out). But the mere fact that it happened to NBC is perhaps what gives it the "gee whiz" connotation.

Even in the face of NBC hitting the comeback trail on the rating charts, it's pretty much of a nip-and-tuck affair in trying to pick the network with the more enviable program roster. Certainly a perusal of the program schedules suggest that, with the possible exception of one or maybe two pivotal shows per evening, NBC terminates the season with a big fat nothing—in this respect no better, no worse than CBS or ABC.

Yet the fact remains that '57-'58 was the season Bob Sarnoff & Co. practically came out of hiding to match and sometimes pass CBS on the popularity front—a feat tran-

(Continued on page 40)

L&M's '58-'59 Sked: 'Gunsmoke,' 'Oasis,' Fisher OK, Buys 'Canyon'

Trendex Top 10

(Week of April 1)

Gunsmoke	CBS	34.9
Restless Gun	NBC	33.4
Perry Como Show	NBC	29.8
Bob Hope Show	NBC	28.8
Danny Thomas	CBS	28.0
Price Is Right	NBC	27.5
Wells Fargo	NBC	27.4
I've Got a Secret	CBS	25.8
What's My Line	CBS	25.3
Wyatt Earp	ABC	24.8

NBC-TV Affils Hit Cuffo Plugs; New Option Hours Bid

NBC-TV has proposed a shift in network option hours during the afternoon to the exec committee of its affiliates group, which is meeting in New York this week. Web is proposing that instead of 2:30 to 5:30 p.m., its daytime option hours be moved forward to 2 to 5, making it more competitive with CBS-TV, whose afternoon schedule starts at 1:30.

Affils' exec body is taking that

(Continued on page 38)

Liggett & Myers, via McCann-Erickson, has just about finalized its plans for the new ('58-'59) tv season, with the purchase of a new half-hour telefilm entry, "Steve Canyon." This will give L&M a minimum of four major nighttime properties. Still to be resolved, however, is which shows goes where.

Here's the scorecard on next season's roster: "Gunsmoke," the toprated show this season, will, of course, remain intact at the ciggie company's major package. Both Eddie Fisher and "Club Oasis" will be retained by the company, though the time slots are still up in the air. NBC-TV has been considering a newly-revamped George Gobel-Fisher musical format for the Monday night 10 to 11 period as replacement for "Suspicion." "Club Oasis," currently berthed Saturday nights 9 o'clock alternate weeks on NBC-TV, may also be shifted to new period.

Frank Sinatra definitely goes off (although L&M has exclusive option for a couple of one-hour FS specials if he decides to do them). It's probable, too, that L&M will drop "Dragnet" after its longtime sponsorship, with NBC planning to shift the Jack Webb package into the Monday night 7:30 slot. Chances are that "Steve Canyon," which L&M acquired from the William Morris Agency, may go into the Thursday period currently tennanted by "Dragnet."

"Canyon" is an air adventure series based on the newspaper strip, which will be done in cooperation with the U.S. Air Force.

L&M Filters Eyes 'Brain and Brawn'

L&M Filters is closing a deal for sponsorship of "Brain or Brawn," the French quiz-participation tv'er which pits athlete prowess against intellect and which is a runaway hit on the French Broadcasting Co.'s tv network. L&M is buying the show from the William Morris agency, which reps the property for the French, but hasn't yet decided on a time slot or network for the quizzer.

Deal for L&M was set by its agency, Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, which had a busy week. Apart from the L&M deal, D-F-S sewed up four renewals for General Mills for next fall, all of them on ABC-TV. General Mills renewed "Lone Ranger," alternate weeks on "Wyatt Earp" and daytime segments in "Mickey Mouse Club" and "American Bandstand."

Pitt Prefers News To Souped-Up Soap Opera So 'Life' Gets Bumped

Pittsburgh, April 15.

Local CBS outlet, KDKA-TV, has dropped "Love of Life" with extention of that soaper from 15 minutes to half an hour at noon time. Station couldn't see its way clear to give up the 12 o'clock news of Bill Burns, its toprated newscaster, which would have been necessary in order to carry the whole of "Life."

Opening up of the other quarter-hour as a result is bringing back to KDKA-TV Florence Sando, who was an important figure there few years ago before she retired to get married (to Arthur Manson, now Cinerama ad-publicity director here) and raise a family. She'll do a strip of interviews, comments and impressions aimed at the femmes for 15 minutes, Monday through Friday.

ONCE A YEAR . . .

The broadcasting industry gathers for its national convention. This year the NAB conclave is in Los Angeles April 27 to May 1.

VARIETY will distribute its issue of April 30th at the convention, to the assembled broadcasting industry while the meeting is still news and not history.

Take advantage of VARIETY's "demand" readership to showcase your sales message. Ad deadline is April 25. Reservations at any office listed below.

VARIETY

NEW YORK 36
154 West 46th St.

HOLLYWOOD 28
6404 Sunset Blvd.

CHICAGO 11
612 No. Michigan Ave.

ABC-TV AFFILS TO BARROW PROBERS: 'DON'T TAMPER WITH RULES OF GAME'

Washington, April 15.

Sharp exception to major recommendations of the Barrow Report was taken before the Federal Communications Commission today (Tues.) by the ABC-TV Affiliates' Select Committee.

Committee views were presented by Alexander C. Keese of WFAA-TV in Dallas; Joseph C. Drilling of KJEO-TV in Fresno, Calif.; Charles B. Britt of WLOS-TV in Asheville, N. C.; and Martin Umansky of KAKE-TV in Wichita, Kan.

As chairman of the Committee, Keese told the Commission the ABC-TV affiliates have emerged from a period of scarcity in network programs, are beginning to benefit from "healthy" competition, and "fear that any tampering with the rules of the game will destroy the progress they and their network have made."

Training his guns on the proposal to ban option time, Keese testified that such an action "would disrupt program continuity at considerable cost to the affiliate and with no corresponding benefit to the public."

A high level of clearance of ABC programs, he said, "does not indicate an abdication of the station's control of program selection" but is a recognition that the network provides programs "far superior" to those which most affiliates could produce with local talent.

Furthermore, he said, some affiliates fear that loss of option time "could actually create, rather than discourage, monopoly because only the largest advertisers would have the necessary financial resources to buy and own top talent and best film."

Keese said the ABC affiliates know from experience the value of option time. Before the merger with United Paramount, he related, option time was not so important because there were so few ABC programs. The affiliate had to "go out and forage," search the film markets, develop local talent. But he still had a shorter schedule than his competitor.

"With the advent of new network management and more and better programs," Keese testified, "the ABC affiliate found that he could give the public better fare, increase his audience and devote more time to the community itself."

Keese also opposed proposals to make public affiliation contracts, to retain the two-year affiliation agreement, to make available to non-affiliates network programs not given clearance, to require networks to publish ratemaking procedures for enforcement of network regulations.

Experience in dealing with networks and advertisers, he said, shows that "it is just impossible to have the right of first call and territorial exclusivity without option time. One has no meaning or use without the other."

Keese emphasized that the Committee has operated with "complete independence" of either the ABC network or its o.&o. stations.

Drilling, whose UHF station competes in an intermixed market,

(Continued on page 40)

Hope's '58-'59 Pact

Hollywood, April 15.

NBC has picked up Bob Hope's option for next season—much to nobody's surprise.

His pact stimpulates he will star in six hour-long shows next season, and the comic cracked: "That worries me—I don't know if there are that many countries," meaning he's running out of foreign originations. In season just closed his show touched visited Japan, Korea, Morocco, Hawaii, Russia, etc.

Storer Bid: Up VHF Ownership To 7 Stations

Washington, April 15.

If the Federal Communications Commission wants to encourage a fourth tv network, it should allow multiple owners to have seven instead of five VHF stations.

This "bold" proposal was made to the Commission last week at Barrow Report hearings by Storer Broadcasting Co., nation's largest Indie station operator, in the face of the Network Study Staff's recommendation to ultimately eliminate multiple holdings.

However, Storer exec veepee Lee B. Wailes, said under questioning that his company would not attempt to set up a fourth network but that some other multi operator might if the proposal were adopted.

Wailes told the Commission that a fourth network would be "economically possible" if:

1. It were limited initially to markets in a rectangular area embracing Boston, Washington, St. Louis and Milwaukee.

2. It were interconnected, at least in part, by low-cost privately-owned intercity transmission facilities.

3. It owned and operated seven VHF stations in the top 25 markets.

While the networks have done a good job in programming, Wailes said that today's schedules "do not fill completely the need for high quality program material of a type that is beyond the resources of the individual station to produce on a regular basis.

"Even today, the affiliates could use additional network programs, provided these programs were available for commercial sale by the affiliate, either on a 'co-op' basis or under compensation arrangements more nearly approaching the revenue received from sale of local programs.

"In the foreseeable future, when the supply of feature motion pictures has been exhausted, the affiliates will have an even greater need for additional network program material which would be available for sole to local sponsors.

Wailes contended that under present ownership ceilings and FCC policy discouraging private intercity relays there is little chance for a fourth network to sustain itself. However, he said, if these policies were changed through "bold and far-sighted actions," barriers to development of a fourth web would be removed.

Wailes recalled that DuMont was making progress until 1955 when ABC started its "real growth." Although it was in competition with

(Continued on page 38)

CBS-TV Ups Milford

Bob Milford has been named general manager of the CBS-TV program dept. in New York. He'll handle all budgeting, control and business affairs in the department and will be available on that basis to all the web's Gotham programming execs.

A vet in the entertainment business, Milford has been production manager of CBS-TV. Prior to joining the network, he was in the legit field for many years.

FTATATEETA

To Be Introduced By JIMMY NELSON
On the "JIMMY DEAN SHOW"
CBS-TV, Saturday, April 26, 1958
Management: Directional Enterprises, 200 West 57th Street, New York.
Booking: William Morris Agency.

Reuss Bill Sets New Standards As Revamp for FCC

Washington, April 14.

Major changes designed to raise FCC standards were proposed in a bill introduced yesterday (Mon.) by Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.).

Measure would increase terms of Commissioners from seven to 14 years, raise salaries from $20,000 to $22,000, demphasize political considerations in appointments, prohibit acceptance of honorariums, ban informal contacts between outsiders and agency on pending matters, provide for expenses for attendance at two industry meetings a year, and impose a Code of Ethics.

In addition, agency would be required to adhere to a definite criteria in awarding broadcast licenses and in situations where applicants are equally qualified, the license would go to the highest bidder, proceeds to go to Treasury. Under present procedures, Reuss said, "it's too esay for the Commission to grant licenses on the basis of who-do-you-know.

Reuss said his purpose is to prevent "future scandals," to elevate commissioners nearer to status of judges and to give agency greater independence from politics.

WTOP'S TV COURSE FOR SECRETARIES

Washington, April 15.

Secretaries trained by tv may soon become part of the capital's vast army of office workers. WTOP, in cooperation with D. C. Public School System, has teed off a new series of live, practical educational tv shows, with a course in shorthand the initial subject.

Shorthand was selected as starter for series because of crowded conditions of classes in this subject in city's free night schools. Secretarial help, in a town where government is big business, is at a perennial premium. In addition, the subject lends itself to visual instruction.

Teleclasses starting April 26, will be held 7:15-8 a.m. every Saturday. Course will be presented by public school teachers in three progressive stages of 18 weeks each.

ABC-TV's Bingo

ABC-TV is planning to launch its own version of bingo—on a national scale—Monday, May 12. Cross-theboard slotting will be 3 to 3:30 p.m.

Details of the format are still under wraps.

McGannon on Barrow: 'Convulsive'

Washington, April 15.

Donald H. McGannon, prexy of Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., told the Federal Communications Commission last week that the recommendations of the Barrow Report are "convulsive and destructive" and predicated on approaches which most readily lead to "pre-crystallized conclusions."

Lashing out at major proposals of the Report, McGannon urged the Commission to re-examine the "circumstances" of the study. "Theorizing or thinking 'in a vacuum,'" he warned, "could result in actions which will be destructive of an industry structure and in turn set it back substantially, with severe public loss."

Television is too young, said McGannon, to be subjected to the treatment the Barrow Report advocates. As it matures, he suggested, "the relationships between all the elements of the industry will correspondingly be adjusted, even as they are being adjusted each new day between network and affiliates, the industry and the advertiser, the industry and the viewer."

But to "go back and start over," change practices and patterns under which the medium has developed, he said, would punish the American public.

The Report's recommendation on multiple ownership, said McGannon, "reaches its zenith . . . on its flight through theory and abstract philosophy in arriving at conclusions that are not supported by any facts, data, or circumstances set forth in the work."

Westinghouse, which owns five tv stations, has no competitive advantages over single owners, McGannon asserted, in areas of film purchasing, national spot sales, or affiliation agreements. "There is not one scintilla of truth," he said, in the Report's contention that multiple owners have advantages in these areas.

With Bow & Barrow on a D.C. Safari; Salant: 'Even Our Crises Have Crises'

One of the most forthright indictments yet of the broadcasting "mess in Washington"—the endless round of Congressional and Government brickbats and inquiries—was delivered last week before the Ohio Assn. of Broadcasters by Richard Salant, CBS' staff v.p. who covers most of the legal-Government basis for the corporate CBS body.

Salant pulled no punches, titling his talk after the current best-seller, "Where Did You Go? Washington. What Did You Do? Nothing." Terming "our life in Washington since 1954" as sounding "like Walt Whitman out of Danny Kaye, printed in the Federal Register," Salant listed the following chronology:

"Since the beginning of 1954, there's been the Plotkin Report, the Jones Report, the Potter Report, the Bricker Report, the Cox Report, the Evins Report, the Celler Report—and the Barrow Report. We've dug out and submitted literally thousands of pieces of paper for the Evins Committee, the Celler Committee, the Moulder Committee, the FCC Network Study Staff and the Dept. of Justice. When one group gets finished with them, they return them; we file them; then we disinter them all over again when the next group decides to go over exactly the same issues.

"Between May 1954 and March 1958, eight CBS officers have appeared in formal hearings 15 different times as witnesses before nine Federal Investigating groups. And there's no end in sight. Next month we are scheduled to appear before the Communications Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce on the Smathers Bill dealing with music and broadcast-

(Continued on page 40)

More 'Suspicion' Coin

Phillips-Van Heusen Co. has picked up half-sponsorship of NBC-TV's "Suspicion" on three dates, May 26, June 2 and June 9. Shirt company is in on a summer deal, with previous bankrollers signed for summer sponsorship including Sterling Drug, Procter & Gamble and Bell & Howell.

Deal was set through Grey Advertising.

AFL-CIO's 700G To Tell Union Story, TV-AM

Washington, April 15.

AFL-CIO plans to spend nearly $700,000 for radio and tv for the year starting July 1 as part of a public relations campaign to tell the union story. A proposal to expend this amount may be approved by union officials this week.

Plan is to spend $400,000 for radio and $260,000 to $300,000 for tv. In addition, the 135 affiliated unions may be asked to sponsor tv shows on their own.

William C. Doherty, chairman of the AFL-CIO's public relations committee, said last week the union may drop its two 15-minute radio news shows now carried on ABC. Decision will be made April 28. It's probable, he said, that more five-minute shows will be substituted.

Meanwhile, AFL-CIO prexy George Meany called on Federal Communications Commission Chairman John C. Doerfer to investigate an arrangement by which the National Assn. of Manufacturers made available to 27 tv stations one-hour kinescope summaries of telecasts of Senate hearings on the Kohler Co. strike. The hearings were carried live by DuMont station WTTG in Washington.

It's understood that NAM purchased the kines from WTTG and offered them free to a list of stations for use, sponsored or otherwise, as "public service."

Questions to be determined are whether the stations disclosed the source of the films and whether, under the law, they were required to.

East Anglian Com'l Setup

London, April 15.

The Independent Television Authority has advertised for program contractors to operate the new East Anglian commercial tv outlet which is to go into operation in the Fall of next year.

The new station, which is to be sited near Stowmarket in East Suffolk, will serve an area with a population of more than 1,750,000.

Name Wynn to FM Concert Network

Lawrence Wynn, formerly with the American Broadcasting Co. and DuMont, has been made management consultant of the Concert Network, the first and only FM interstate network in operation.

Four stations makeup the network, WNCN, N.Y.; WBCN, Boston; WHNC, Hartford, and WXCN, Providence. The signal area of the four stations reportedly covers one-seventh of the total population of the country. Both live and recorded programs will be featured.

Wynn, who will make his headquarters at WNCN, the network's headquarters, starts his present assignment by reorganizing the Concert Network's programming structure and sales presentation. A strong pitch will be made to ad agencies for national accounts, Wynn said, based on the fact that there are more than 2,650,000 FM sets in the New York area alone.

AFM Wants Full WABD Staff Orch

First contract dickers with Gotham tv station WABD were begun late last week by local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians. Negotiations were called by the New York musicians' local as the result of the station's campaign to do more live local tv programming, some of which is musical.

It was reported that the labor group's principal demand was that WABD, belonging to DuMont Broadcasting, agree to signing a staff contract for a full orchestra. At present, the station says it has seven musicians working there, six on Art Ford's "Greenwich Village Party" and one, a pianist, on "Leonard Sillman Show." None of them are staff musicians. As a matter of fact, no New York tv indie carries staff musicians at this time.

THE BIG PITCH: JOB SECURITY

Strike Hampers Sale of Shows

One serious though little-noticed effect of the IBEW technicians strike against CBS is the way it has slowed down the network's fall selling operations. With virtually the entire network (and spot) sales staffs out handling camera, booms, and other equipment necessary to keep the network on the air, sales activity has slowed to a virtual halt, except for the very top echelon.

It couldn't have come at a worse time, as far as the network is concerned. For April is the month that some of the big fat orders begin to be tied down, while the more recalcitrant advertisers are at least exposed to the web's sales pitches. But at least one sales exec was even shipped out to the Coast last week—he was so proficient at his job that he was included in a crew of N.Y. execs flown out to do "Studio One" live Monday night (14).

More Liberal Benefits as NBC-TV Overhauls Its Discount Structure

NBC-TV has overhauled its discount structure for the first time since 1953, and the new plan, which takes effect Oct. 1, provides more liberal discount benefits for alternate-week advertisers and those sponsors who spread their billings out in daytime as well as evening. At the same time, the new discount plan encourages advertisers to use more extensive station lineups and in one instance, tends to penalize sponsors who use short nighttime lineups by excepting them from discounts.

New plan's hourly discount structure is based on biweekly volume, rather than weekly as in the past. Advertisers sponsoring two or more program periods in each of 13 consecutive fortnights (26 weeks) receive hourly discounts in proportion to volume. Discounts are based on the aggregate percentage of the hourly rate (add percentage of hourly rate of each eligible program), with an aggregate of 80% to 119% getting a 4% hourly discount on the lower end, and an aggregate of 320% or over getting a 10% hourly discount.

The new annual discount also provides for the alternate-week advertiser, and permits the combination of daytime and nighttime sponsorship for annual discount purposes. Defining alternate-week sponsorship of the same program over a 52-week period as a "run" (weekly sponsorship is equal to two "runs"), following discounts apply: one run, 5%; two runs in different rate classifications (day and night, for example), 10%; two runs or more in same rate classification, 15%.

Web also offers a "comprehensive discount" in lieu of hourly and annual discounts of 25%. Eligibility for the comprehensive consists of sponsorship of an aggregate of 320% of the hourly rate in each fortnight of the entire discount year, provided each program period is ordered for at least 100 interconnected stations.

In daytime, those advertisers ordering lineups of 100 or more interconnected stations get a lineup incentive discount ranging from 1% for up to 109 stations for 136 or more.

Hour Mysterioso Summer Series

NBC-TV has finalized an hour-long live mystery series as the summer replacement for the Tuesday night 8 to 9 Eddie Fisher-George Gobel hour. Show will be packaged by MCA, will originate in New York and will be telecast in color. MCA's S. Mark Smith will produce the series, tentatively titled "The Investigator."

Web originally was dickering with Albert McCleery, exec producer of "Matinee Theatre," to do the show live from the Coast. However, that deal fell through for budgetary reasons and the decision was made to do the show from N.Y. It starts June 3 and runs through Sept. 16.

P&G To Ride For 5th Season on NBC-TV 'Life'

Procter & Gamble has signed a renewal on NBC-TV's "This Is Your Life" for next season, which will mark P&G's fifth consecutive year on the Ralph Edwards stanza. P&G bought in for half-sponsorship with Hazel Bishop, which launched the show a year earlier, back in 1954, and took on full sponsorship two years later.

NBC also got a renewal last week from American Tobacco (Pall Mall) for its alternate-week sponsorship on "Tales of Wells Fargo."

NBC's Day-&-Date Press Teletyping To 40 Key Cities

With television one of the hottest space-grabbers and circulation-builders the nation's daily newspapers have seen in many a moon, NBC's press department last week finalized plans to establish direct teletype communications with 40 of the country's top newspapers by June.

Installation of equipment has already begun, and within two weeks, the direct wires will go into operation at 30 of the dailies. The remainder will get service by June. Newspapers are located in some 28 cities, these including the 20 Trendex markets, non-Trendex cities like Boston, Pittsburgh, Miami, Milwaukee and Memphis and coast cities including Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and Fresno.

NBC is paying the cost of installing the teletype printers at each of the newspapers involved, as well as line charges (only thing the daily pays for is the cost of the paper rolls). Press department is utilizing the wires already used by NBC's station relations department, which has a teletype system to all affiliates, and will cut into this network for its daily teletype. Latter will consist of hard news, program corrections and additions, late announcements, etc., with a heavier load Mondays and Tuesdays to catch the Sunday editions

(Continued on page 40)

CULLIGAN, SUGG ON NBC EXEC COUNCIL

NBC's executive council, the web's overall policy-making body, has added Joe Culligan, v.p. in charge of NBC Radio, and Buddy Sugg, v.p. in charge of o&o's and spot sales, to its ranks. Culligan's appointment reflects the growing prestige accorded the radio operation with the company. Sugg succeeds former exec v.p. Charles Denny to the council, as he took over Denny's primary duties at the web.

Group now consists of prexy Bob Sarnoff, exec v.p.'s Bob Kintner, Dave Adams, Mac Clifford and Ken Bilby and Culligan and Sugg.

MAJOR ISSUE IN UNION HASSLES

By ART WOODSTONE

Search for "job security" by labor has become a continuing source of strife within the broadcasting industry. The question of higher wages is a thing of the past and, even at its most tumultuous, never had the importance attached to it that job security does today.

Since Jan. 1 of this year, the two words have been the underlying cause of every single labor problem that has arisen. Pay increases has not once been the vital issue. Job security is not only a tough nut for employer groups, but may even prove tougher between unions. It's a foregone conclusion that there will be numerous jurisdictional hassles in the future. Many of them have already taken shape, and all of them, as analyzed by various knowledgable tradesters, can be attributed to desire to find and keep employment.

Backgrounds IBEW Strife

There are many forinstances in last week's headlines:

For the first time in tv history, a technical union had a fullscale strike. CBS offered the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers a new top weekly minimum of $185, and nobody with any authority at the union complained. But a majority of the members in the CBS shop rejected the new contract, and the permeating attitude seemed to be that CBS had not offered enough security.

IBEW was angry over a little-discussed point—the "unsettling" of 32 to 35 unionites who work at the laboratory division of CBS Inc. CBS plans to move the labs out of New York City, a step which is going to result in either the layoff or displacement of the engineers it now employs.

Second point, and concerning a much greater number of IBEWians, is that the network is unwilling to guarantee a shorter work week. This is also a problem between National Assn. of Broadcast Employees & Technicians and NBC and ABC, who also are in negotiation for a new contract. Lastly, and also concerning many of the 1,300 rank-and-filers in on-the-air engineering, is CBS' resistance to "clarifying" jurisdiction of tape video to IBEW's satisfaction.

Tape video, an electronic method of producing tv programs, is considered by tv unions as another method of automation. Certainly, it can lead to a shorter work week, since it enables networks to produce weekend stanzas within a Monday-to-Friday work week. The end result, unions fear,

(Continued on page 42)

Norman-Craig-K: 'What Recession?' Seeks Key Aides

If the recession is being felt on Madison Ave., as reported in the wake of axings and exec salary trimmings, Norman, Craig & Kummel agency, for one, is going thataway and paying it little heed. Agency is now on the prowl for some key personnel, it reports, having just acquired some additional Colgate billings, on behalf of its Vel product, to the tune of $2,000,000. This ups the agency's overall billings to $30,000,000—about 45% of which is being channeled into tv through spots or network programming.

Agency says it has just finished up its biggest quarter in N-C-K annals and from the looks of things is headed for a banner year.

In addition to Colgate, agency's major accounts include Speidel, Maiden Form, Warner-Lambert, Willys and Seaman Bros., all of which have earmarked coin for either spots or web shows.

'Some Give' by Both CBS & IBEW In D. C. Dickers; Peace More Hopeful

...Of Strikes & Smiles

IBEW technicians strike against CBS had its comic relief last week. Here were some instances:

George Bartholemew, an assistant director doing emergency strike duty for the web, is a commuter, and for some early shows he was literally up with the milkman. In fact, he met the milkman one morning, and the guy was all sympathy.

"It's a shame, this strike," the dairyman told Bartholemew. "You fellas have to get up and work at all hours. The strikers aren't getting paid any they've got families to support. Even the public is suffering. Why I must have seen booms and shadows and stagehands crossing the set a dozen

(Continued on page 40)

CBS-TV in Throes Of a Giant Chess Game on '58-'59

Newest CBS-TV plot in what one network exec despairingly calls "the giant chess game" of juggling program schedules for the fall is the tentative slotting of the new Garry Moore hour show on Tuesday night at 8 to 9. Web sees no problem in clearing the decks at 8 to 8:30, since "Mr. Adams & Eve" doesn't figure to be back next season and R. J. Reynolds, "Adams" sponsor, is interested in Moore since it already bankrolls him on "I've Got a Secret."

The 8:30 period represents some difficulty, however, in that Toni is in there with "Wingo," which just started. If "Wingo" clicks—so far it hasn't taken off as expected—that'll block the Moore hour. If "Wingo" folds, however, CBS can see its way clear, particularly since Toni has been a Moore devotee via his morning show.

CBS originally had planned to slot the Moore show on Mondays 10 to 11, in the likely event that "Studio One" does a foldo. Now, however, the plan is to utilize the new "Pursuit" series in that slot. In the weeks-long juggling act, "Pursuit" had been mentioned as a possible replacement for "Climax" in the event Chrysler cancels, but now the likelihood is that Chrysler will retain at least part of "Climax." The CBS chessboard now has "Rawhide" Mondays at 7:30 to 8:30 and "Pursuit" at 10 to 11; Garry Moore Tuesdays at 8 to 9 and "Ellery Queen" Wednesdays at 7:30 to 8:30.

Curiously enough, the switch to Tuesday of the Moore show is going to be accompanied by a reverse switch of Eddie Fisher-George Gobel on NBC. They'll be moving from the Tuesday 8 to 9 slot that Moore would occupy on Columbia to Monday 10 to 11, slot that was originally planned for Moore.

CRITIC SHULMAN JOINS GRANADA-TV

London, April 15.

Milton Shulman, one of Britain's most forthright and feared drama and film critics, is to join Granada-TV next month in "an executive capacity." Shulman could not define for VARIETY the exact nature of his duties, but hinted that he would be in charge of a department.

Shulman, whose ruthless theatre criticisms in the Evening Standard are admitted to be shrewd and readable even by those he knocks, will continue in his capacity as the Standard's reviewer. However, he will have to throw up his job as Sunday Express pic critic.

There was "some give" by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and CBS in yesterday's (Tues.) dickers, a union spokesman in New York declared. Just how far both sides in this 10-day labor deadlock retrenched in meetings with a Federal mediator was not disclosed.

At the time of the afternoon meetings yesterday the attitude of the participants was described as more hopeful than previously. Union and web are meeting separately with the mediator.

As the strike against CBS entered its ninth day yesterday (Tues.), the weaknesses and strength of both union and network had become fairly clear. The protracted strike, brought on when the union and the network failed to agree on a new two-year technical contract, is the longest by any national bargaining unit in tv's history.

Meanwhile, CBS and IBEW met for the third successive day to break the deadlock. Much of the time, the union or CBS were meeting separately with George McCutcheon of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The trade is in general concurrence about CBS' ability to continue operating most of its regular programming, thereby gaining for itself an advantage in the war of nerves with IBEW. The longer the web can continue operating with a semblance of normalcy, the longer it can hold out.

But the 300 network executives and administrative personnel, it is felt, cannot continue indefinitely doubling in brass. The network disclosed that included among the men doubling on cameras and switches in the absence of regular technical personnel were many from CBS Labs, including prexy Peter Goldmark, who "did some work"; from publicity, programming, traffic and "all CBS departments," except CBS International. The efficiency of their normal functions for the network has of needs been lowered by the double duty, so that time was becoming an important element on both sides.

Prior to yesterday's talks in Washington, CBS brass contended that the major issue contin ued to be one of wages, while the union persisted that job security was the bone of contention. However, on Tuesday morning a CBS spokesman declared that the "union ducks and weaves and bobs and twists" whenever it gets down to talking about

(Continued on page 38)

4 ABC-TV Entries Bite Dust in April

Hollywood, April 15.

The rug will be pulled out from under four ABC-TV shows this month. Ending thir 26-week cycles will be "Love That Jill," off April 28; Betty White, off April 30; Mike Wallace, off April 19, and "Colt 45," firing its last shot tonight but hopeful of reloading for next season.

Frank Sinatra closes out his season June 28 and ABC has no definite commitment for his return next fall. Moving into his slot July 11 is "ESP," (extra-sensory perception).

Balancing off the cancellations are six renewals for next season: two Lawrence Welk shows by Plymouth-Dodge; "Wyatt Earp" by Procter & Gamble; "Lone Ranger" by General Mills, "American Bandstand" by Carter Products, and Wednesday night fights by Mennen and Miles Laboratories. John Guedel's "Anyone Can Play," sponsored by R. J. Reynolds, takes over the "Scott Island" Sunday spot following "Maverick" July 6.

Contingent of ABC brass is due out from N. Y. next weekend for station managers meet April 25, two days before opening of NAB convention.

DCA's 35-for-TV 'Later' Releases; Many Have Boxoffice Track Record

For the first time, the complete list of Distributors Corp. of America pix being made available to tv has been secured.

The pix, some of which are now in theatrical run, are on a delayed availability to tv as long as three years from now. The package of 35 includes such boxoffice toppers as "Rodan," the Jap monster pic, and "Frisky," starring Gina Lollobrigida and Vittorio De Sica.

Some of the pix were bandied around to tv stations before they had a theatrical run. Flamingo Films is the sales agent for DCA on the package.

Rundown, secured from sources other than Flamingo Films and DCA, illustrates a principal of features to tv syndicators regarding foreign imports. Syndicators would rather have the pix make their theatrical debut before being sold to television, for by that method a boxoffice track record is established for the import and pic gets an exposure which builds a word-of-mouth following for the telecast.

In fact, one syndicator said he couldn't handle a foreign import cold, without a prior theatrical release, because the tv film station buyers would give such an untested cinematic the brush. All the non-English imports in the DCA package have been dubbed in English. All are of recent vintage—no pre-'48's.

This is the list of titles and their respective tv availabilities: "Long John Silver," currently available; "I Am a Camera," ditto; "Hunter of the Deep," May, '58; "Frisky," June, '58; "Please Murder Me," July, '58; "Wages of Fear," August, '58; "Gold of Naples," November, '58; and "The Widow," December, '58.

The following are available for telecasting in 1959, in the months enumerated: "Rock, Rock, Rock," January; "Green Man," February; "Half Human," March; "Monster from Green Hell,' April; "Miller's Beautiful Wife," May; "Jedda," June; "Hell in Korea," July; "Please, Mr. Balzac," August; "Scandal in Sorrento," September; "Devil's General," October; "Silken Affair," November; and "Battle Hell," December.

In 1960, these are the titles available: 'Bermuda Affair," January; "Baby and the Battleship," February; "Every Second Counts," March; "Loser Takes All," April; "Teenage Wolf Pack," May; "Grave Robbers of Outer Space," June; "Teenage Bad Girl," July; "Panic in the Parlor," August; "Blondes and Bondage," September; "Three Men in a Boat," October; "Liane," November; "Time Lock," December, and "Rodan," in January, 1961.

'Bowling Queens' For Syndication

Chicago, April 18.

"Bowling Queens," all-girl kegler matches which ran live for 33 weeks on WBBM-TV here, is being filmed for syndication with national distaff champions by Tenpin Tattler, Inc., a new corporation formed for the purpose. Show is being produced and narrated by Sam Weinstein, who as the "Tenpin Tattler" has been a longtime local bowling reporter on tv and producer of such earlier opuses as "Bowl the Professor" and "Bowling Clinic."

Understood an attempt is being made to shoot the whole 26-week series of half hours at a budget of $150,000, including the prizes. Filming will be by a Chicago studio not settled on as yet, and begins around the end of May. Company is also negotiating for a distributor.

Format is that of the usual bowling show except for a jackpot angle. Winner of each show has the option of taking a $500 prize or trying for an additional $500 the following week. If she loses the second match she forfeits half the first week prize, and that gets dumped into the jackpot. Losers get $100.

Autry, Rogers Pix Still Strong In 7th Go-Round

Those Gene Autry and Roy Rogers western features, now in their seventh run in some markets, continue to show rating strength, according to an MCA-TV 16-month survey of the "The Top Ten Features" listing compiled by American Research Bureau and VARIETY.

Over the 16-month span, the Autry, Rogers features have appeared in the top ten lists 43 times in various markets, including Baltimore Portland, Ore., Indianapolis, Kansas City and Houston. Many stations are stripping the features, 123 titles in toto.

Bank of America Loves Those Vidpix

Hollywood, April 15.

Bank of America has hiked its bankrolling of vidfilms by more than 100% in the past year, it's revealed by A. H. Howe, assistant v.p. in charge of the entertainment division of the main branch in L. A., and Thomas C. Deane, v. p.-manager of the main office.

Banking execs made it clear that they are continually seeking additional vidfilm deals, and that their financing includes pilots as well as series.

"Our policy is practically the same as it has been. We look for deals and are making them right along. We will finance pilots made by any responsible person with a background of experience. Naturally, we would hesitate to make deals with anyone whose qualifications didn't include wide experience.

"We are now looking for good tv film deals. It makes no difference whether the series are for syndication or network—we base our financing on the producer's experience, reputation and background," said the pair.

NAB Meet To Spark Unveiling of Fresh Feature Pix For TV

The National Assn. of Broadcasters convention in Los Angeles starting April 27, will be the occasion for taking off the wraps of a number of new feature packages.

Of course, the largest will be the Paramount library, being handled by MCA-TV, which will be sold singly, or in a bundle, with a price tag on each pix. MCA-TV evolved the sales plan with the knowledge that the Department of Justice is looking over its shoulder. Latest Justice Department suit is against the Columbia, Screen Gems, subsid/licensing deal for distribution of Universal's pre-'48 backlog.

National Telefilm Associates is expected to have a new package of about 50 pix, mainly from 20th-Fox, for broadcasters to o.o. RKO Teleradio Pictures will have 18 post-'48's for sale, one as recent as 1956. Called the "Showcase Package," titles include "The Americano," "Glenn Ford," "Clash by Night," in which Marilyn Monroe had a role; and "Sea Devils." All had been handled by RKO Pictures as indies initially released theatrically.

Uncut 'Romeo & Juliet' As WOR-TV Weekender

WOR-TV, N. Y., will present the uncut version of J. Arthur Rank's "Romeo and Juliet," which runs two and a half-hours, on Saturday (26) and Sunday (27), beginning at 7 p.m.

Shortened version of the pic will be played twice nightly on "Million Dollar Movie" during the week of the 21st. Reason for the extra uncut weekend telecasting is the interest of educators in the pic, which has been promoted extensively in the city's schools.

THE HONEY DREAMERS

Guest artists on the Canadian Broadcasting Co., Toronto, May 15.
Records Transcriptions
Mgmt: ART WARD Direction
Oxford 7-9034 MCA

Vidpix Chatter

Jack Bower has been named eastern sales and service for the commercial and industrial film division of Loew's, Inc. He formerly was motion picture consultant for W. J. German, Inc. . . . Movielab Color Corp. has issued a special Movielab Memo describing 10 different color processes for the production of 35m and 16m release prints . . . "X Minus 80," film dealing with the U. S. Army's official story of "Explorer 1," produced by the Army Ballistic Missile Agency and the California Institute of Technology, was telecast yesterday (15) by WPIX, N. Y. . . . Robert T. (Bud) Donnelly, formerly of Screen Gems and Ziv, joins CBS Film Sales as an account exec, working out of the Chicago office.

ABC Film Syndication will hold its first national sales meeting month since the appointment of Phil Williams as syndication sales topper, under prexy George Shupert.

New Jersey State Assembly has commended WPIX, N. Y., for the station's hour-long presentation of "The Russian Revolution," consisting in part of footage compiled from "Tsar to Lenin," shown theatrically in 1937. Resolution praised the station for "presenting this timely story which helped to provide an understanding of the events that led to the present slavery of the Russian people." . . . Frank D. Benson and Floyd (Irish) Blakenship have been added to ABC Film Syndication's sales force. Benson, most recently with WALA-TV, Mobile, as an account exec, will cover portions of the south and Blakenship, formerly with KMGM-TV, Minneapolis, will cover the midwest . . . Paula Kash, secretary to CBS Film Sales topper Leslie Harris, married Sunday (13) to Damon Polcini in N. Y. . . . Lillian Eisenberg, who helped to compile the American Research Bureau-VARIETY charts, has resigned her job at ARB . . . Sam Gang, foreign exec for National Telefilm Associates, has returned from a trip to the Orient . . . Lee Tracy, starred in "N. Y. Confidential" has arrived from Hollywood to start shooting.

FLOCK OF NEW SALES FOR ZIV'S 'TARGET'

Ziv's "Target" has racked up a round of new sales, representing buys of supermarkets, banks, brewers, et al.

Schlitz Brewing has purchased the Adolph Menjou hosted skein for Denver, to be aired by KLZ-TV, and for Midland, Tex., on KMID-TV. In Denver, Schlitz will alternate with Carter Oil.

Olympia Brewing, which had previously bought the series for 35 Pacific Coast markets, has boosted its lineup to 41. Globe Brewing has inked for Baltimore, WBAL-TV. In the food field, Ventré Packing has bought the series for showing on WSYR-TV, Syracuse, and WTRI-TV, Schenectady-Albany. Other sponsor categories include utilities and public service such as Capitol Hospital Service which inked for the series in Harrisburg.

Station buyers include WHDH-TV, Boston; WSAZ-TV, Huntington; KSYD, Wichita Falls, and KGGM-TV, Albuquerque.

Anti-Trust Rap? It's Fashionable

Federal antitrust suit filed against Columbia and Universal Pictures and Screen Gems, along with the confirmation that the Dept. of Justice is investigating MCA's acquisition of the Paramount library, serves to confirm the fact that everybody engaged in television is a potential heavy insofar as the Government is concerned.

While the networks have been fighting the "battle of Washington" (see story of CBS v.p. Dick Salant's speech before the Ohio Assn. of Broadcasters), the socalled competing interests in the industry have also been getting their share of Government scrutiny and action. Government already has a case in the courts against five syndicators on charges of block-booking in feature film sales. Government recently entered into a consent decree with the Assn. of American Advertising Agencies in respect to the 15% Commission. MCA and the William Morris agency are being investigated for possible antitrust violations on the talent end.

Where the situation takes on a somewhat ironic flavor is in the fact that the selfsame syndicators who are now defendants in the antitrust suits were once the key government witnesses in charges of monopoly against the networks. The syndicators, it was then charged, were being blocked out of local prime time because of the nework option time feature, and syndication's advertisers were suffering because of the option time arrangement. This was one of the key arguments in a series of statements and reports by Congressional and other committees.

Yet, the plain fact of the matter is that the syndicators, characterized by Congressional committees as "the little fellows," are behind the antitrust eightball. The networks, though far from being in the clear, have not yet been hit with antitrust action. All of which seems to prove you just can't win in this business.

Cyanamid's 64-Market Deal as TV Puts in a Bid for Farmer Audience

Television may be on its way toward capturing a share of the immense farm-directed advertising budget, a field in which it's long been a poor last to magazines and newspapers. What may prove to be a pilot series for tv in the field is a weekly 15-minute farm newsreel sponsored in 64 markets by American Cyanamid's Farm & Home Division and titled, aptly enough, "American Cyanamid Farm Newsreel."

Series is still in its first cycle, and although Cyanamid and its agency, Cunningham & Walsh, didn't plan on continuing through the summer because it's an off-season for Cyanamid farm products, they are now scrambling for a way to hold on to their time slots and maintain their momentum through the fall, when they will begin another cycle of 13 films.

Philosophy behind the operation— and it's a hardsell one, pitching feed products utilizing Cyanamid's Aureomycin and several other products including chemical weed killers—is simple enough, to hit the farmers where they live. The weekly newsreel deals exclusively with farming and farmers. It's mostly spot news, the Presidential farm veto, the California floods, new feeding techniques, along with a filmed profile of the "Farmer of the Week."

Series is produced by the agency (with account exec Tom DeHuff riding herd) and INS-Telenews, which hands special assignments to its regular stringers and also uses an editor-in-chief, Andy Andrews, to cover feature stuff as well. Reel is edited and printed (with different commercials for different sections) Tuesday nights and goes out airmail for playing on Wednesday through Sunday of the same week. Commercials are all animated, to keep the urban viewers interested as well as selling the farmers.

Because of the difficulty of reaching the farmer when he's not at work, some 60% of the stations carrying the show do so between 6 and 7 p.m., usually coupling with

(Continued on page 38)

3d Year for Religioso 'This Is the Answer'

Fort Worth, April 15.

The inspirational, religioso telefilm series "This Is the Answer" this month started its third year on the air, docking a record of being telecast by more than 200 U. S. tv stations on a continuing basis.

Series also is televised in Hawaii, Australia, Korea and the Philippines and is scheduled to start in Japan.

Rev. Paul M. Stevens, director of the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission, which films the series in Hollywood, reported that all new production on the series is being done in color.

AAP's Separate Gold Mine Unit

Associated Artists Productions has formed a new division to handle sales on all the celluloid in the house except for the Warner Bros. features and the "Popeye" cartoons. New outfit is being called Gold Mine Division.

Shift in selling format was attributed by the company to the need to release salesmen exclusively to the sale of Warner flicks and "Popeye" animations. Gold Mine will handle the selling (mostly rerun) of the other features in the house, including several comedies and mysteries acquired before the Warner 750, half-hour syndications, including a Gabby Hayes group, and then there are the Warners' "Looney Toon" cartoons.

Sales chief Bob Rich took two of the AAP staffers and added three new men to handle Gold Mine sales. Veteran Len Hammer will handle eastern sales and Lester Tobias the west coast areas. New men are James C. Stern, for the southeast; Sam Posner, for midwestern selling, and Bill Mattingly for southwestern markets.

Gold Mine Division was opened last week.

'Secret Agent 7' On MCA TV Roster

New first-run syndication properties being pitched to stations include MCA TV's "Secret Agent 7," starring Lloyd Nolan.

CBS Film Sales will be offering "Border Patrol" for the fall. ABC Film Syndication definitely will offer another 39 of "26 Men." National Telefilm Associates has "George Jessel's Showbusiness," and Screen Gems "Dial 116," the latter for fall airing. Other syndicators are prepping additional properties, the majority of which are aimed for fall telecasting.

Denny to TPA As Key Gordon Aide

Television Programs of America is continuing to solidify its top brass with new talent.

Latest addition is Charles E. Denny who becomes a v.p. and administrative assistant to prexy Milton A. Gordon. Denny, who has an extensive background in advertising, broadcasting and tv station management, resigned as director of advertising and assistant to the exec v.p. of Grace Line, Inc., to assume his new post. The move-over is effective May 1.

Recently, Albert Ward, formerly with BBD&O as tv account exec and producer, joined TPA as eastern program director, a newly-created post.

$100,000,000 SYNDICATION BIZ

H'wood Committing Sins of Fathers?

Washington, April 15.

The Justice Department is increasingly concerned that Hollywood, in its dealings with the tv industry, is turning back to the trade practices pattern which led to the big anti-trust suit of the 1940's in the film industry.

Latest evidence of that concern is the anti-trust suit filed against Columbia Pictures, its subsid Screen Gems, and Universal, seeking to upset the Screen Gems-Universal deal under which SG is distributing pre-'48 Universal features to tv.

Additionally, the Justice Department is investigating the $50,000,000 deal of past February in which Paramount sold its pre-'48 backlog to MCA. In this connection Justice is probing whether MCA, via its subsid, Management Corp. of America, is compelling block booking and preventing proper competitive opportunity for tv stations to acquire some of the valuable Paramount backlog. Justice also wants to know what more there is to the deal between Paramount and MCA than appears on the surface.

The developing situation, which promises more legal fireworks in the offing, first got underway last year when the Anti-Trust division filed a suit to eliminate alleged block-booking to tv by Loew's, National Telefilm Associates, Associated Artists Productions, C & C Super, Screen Gems and United Artists. The film distributors were charged with forcing stations to buy "dogs" in large blocks in order to get any of the good older films. The suit is still pending.

U.S. Slaps Anti-Trust Suit on SG, Col, Universal in TV Sale of Pix

The Department of Justice has slapped an anti-trust suit against Columbia Pictures, its subsid Screen Gems, and Universal Pictures, the complaint growing out of Screen Gems' distribution of Universal pre-'48 features.

Filed in N. Y. Federal District Court, the suit seeks to declare illegal the Screen Gems-Universal feature agreement of last August, under which SG secured exclusive license to distribute some 600 Universal pix to tv.

Complaint charges that the agreement is part of an "illegal conspiracy" to fix prices and eliminate competition between Columbia and Universal in the field of tv distribution, in violation of the Sherman Act. It also charges violation of the Clayton Act which makes it unlawful for a corporation engaged in interstate commerce to acquire the assets of another corporation when the effect may be substantially to lessen competition.

The complaint, in scouting the terms of the Screen Gems-Universal deal, stated that Screen Gems guaranteed to Universal an annual minimum totaling $20,000,000 during the first seven years of the contract. During terms of the 14-year exclusive licensing arrangement, according to the complaint, the Columbia subsid and Universal will share in the proceeds of tv distribution of U pix. After certain deductions, Screen Gems

(Continued on page 38)

'Lassie' Reruns Into 30 Cities

More than 30 smaller market tv stations have lined up for deals on "Jeff's Collie," off-network reruns of "Lassie," accounting for more than $100,000 in gross biz to Television Programs of America.

The station lineup was secured via TV Stations, Inc., a station-owned organization representing stations in smaller markets. According to Herb Jacobs, exec v.p. and general manager of TV Stations, Inc., it was the first time that particular stations in the group responded so soon and in such great number to a property. TV Stations doesn't do any group buying, but negotiates for its members on a completely individual basis.

Michael M. Sillerman, TPA's exec v.p. felt that the deals via TV Stations marks his company's continued policy to give large and smaller stations an equal shake at properties far in advance of their airing dates.

Several in the TV Stations group bought other TPA properties.

Stations buying "Jeff's Collie" include WRBL-TV, Columbus, Ga.; KVOS-TV, Bellingham, Wash.; KHSL, Chico, Calif.; WCHS, Charleston, W. Va.; KIDO, Boise, Id.; WKOW, Madison, Wisc., and KXLF, Butte, Mont.

Another 39 For '26'

Second year production on "26 Men" will begin early this summer in Phoenix.

ABC Film Syndication topper George Shupert, who gave the greenlight for another 39 episodes, feels that 85% of the current sponsors will renew on the show.

Key Station Deals Block Syndicators On Regional Sales

Getting key station deals prior to putting a property into general syndication has its merits, but according to one syndicator such a selling procedure tends to block regional deals.

Official Films ran into that problem with its "Decoy" series, with WPIX, N. Y., KTTV, Los Angeles, and others inking for the series on the basis of a pilot prior to its general release. Official, in its deal with the stations, left itself a deadline date prior to which the stations had to accept a regional sponsor desiring to ride on the series. The syndicator found, though, that after the deadline date lapsed, it was blocked out of key markets, with the particular station picking up its own local sponsor, and refusing to bump the local advertiser for the larger regional buyer.

"Decoy" was one of the series in which stations had a small financial participation.

Television Programs of America, following a similar procedure with "N. Y. Confidential," minus the participation, has kicked off its selling of the skein much earlier, giving TPA more time to insure clearances for the regional sponsors.

HUB'S 'ACADEMY WEEK' LATE NITE PIX DRAW

Boston, April 15.

Hubbites netted circles under the eyes with WNAC-TV's "Academy Award Week" last week when "Johnny Eager," "Lavender Hill Mob," "Snake Pit," "Mrs. Miniver," "Champion," "How Green Was My Valley," "Sudden Fear" and "Bwana Devil" kept 'em up late.

Station promoted with sleep tablets to tv writers and 1,000 line ads six times plus 225 line ads nightly in all Boston newspapers. Campaign was continued by Jim Pike, station film director, in trailers on the air, and Phyl Doherty, adv. and p. r. director in the press and columns.

'57-'58 LIKELY TO SET MARK

By MURRAY HOROWITZ

Syndication, for the first time in its short-lived history, should pass the $100,000,000 gross barrier in 1958.

That's the savvy "in excess of $100,000,000" forecast made on the basis of a tiptop first quarter for CBS Film Sales, NBC's California National Productions, Ziv, Television Programs of America and others.

Last year, the gross, both domestic and foreign, was estimated at over $80,000,000 a record year for the young giant. The estimated figures, for '57 and '58 are exclusive of features to tv grosses, another major area of the biz.

CBS Film Sales topper Leslie Harris reports first quarter biz for his company 75% ahead of the same period last year. NBC's California National Productions reports '58 first quarter sales as 226% higher than those for the first quarter in '57, and 11.4% higher than the company's previous quarterly peak, achieved in the second quarter of '57.

TPA's v.p. Michael Sillerman also recently reported a hefty first quarter gross for his company. Ditto for Ziv's topper John Sinn.

Parenthetically, it should be noted that "all that glitters is not gold," a chestnut apropos of the situation. While grosses are up for many of the major syndicators, so are costs, and the profit picture will not match the gross climb in the same proportion. Not that a pretty penny won't be turned over to the profit side of the ledger, though.

For example, costs of production are running higher in syndication, with many series budgeted above what had been the $28,000 per episode ceiling. The share in the take of actors, producers, et. al. In a series also has grown. (Adolph Menjou owns a piece of "Target"; Broderick Crawford is cut in on "Highway Patrol".) Servicing in terms of publicity, promotion, sales personnel and general overhead also has been on the upgrade.

Syndication of telefilms also has become a complex, big biz with the majors getting the lion's share of the gross—and a few smaller organizations' operating a "flying squad" sales team of a few men for the entire country, trailing way behind.

All the major syndicators feel confident that the climbing sales curve for the first quarter will continue upward for the remainder of the year, recession notwithstanding. In fact, some are of the belief than in a softer economy, many advertisers will ride the syndication route, eschewing networking,

(Continued on page 38)

SAG'S TELEBLURB VOTE

Agency-Producer Contract Wins Overwhelming Ratification

Screen Actors Guild membership overwhelmingly ratified the codified commercial contract negotiated a few weeks ago with producers and advertising agencies. The final returns of a SAG referendum are in and out of a total of 5,532 votes, 5,398 rank-and-filers voted to accept the deal.

The final vote was the largest referendum reply ever received by SAG and puts into effect a blurb contract carrying over into 1960. The affirmative vote was 98.5% of the total with 80 nays and 54 votes voided for one reason or another.

Contract was vociferously opposed by the Caucus of Performers in Filmed Television Commercials, a group organized to assert the "pay for play" principle on wild spots. Group said it represents some 1,000 members of the N. Y. SAG local who embraced the spirit of a letter sent out last week saying in effect that SAG negotiators had sold the rank-and-file short via the new contract.

Guild Downbeat on Syndication; Cole Moves in Other Directions

NTA's O'seas Setup

National Telefilm Associates has established three new overseas offices, in Paris, Rome and Brussels, with Leo Lax, a vet of the European film industry, in charge of the tri-city operation.

Lax will remain president of his own firm, Leo Lax Films. Filippo Ottavi, who has been associated with Leo Lax Films, will manage the Paris office. New offices will supply filmed programming for tv on the Continent, supervise the theatrical release of NTA features and handle production and co-production activities of new properties. Initial series available for sale will be "Sheriff of Cochise."

AFTRA Peace With SAG Blows Up in Charges

Hollywood, April 15.

An attempt for peaceful resolution of the jurisdictional dispute between Screen Actors Guild and AFTRA regarding electronic video tape collapsed here, with the SAG board rejecting an AFTRA proposal, and AFTRA countering with the charge that SAG was guilty of violating an agreement anent press releases. Furthermore, it was contended by AFTRA, SAG had "misinterpreted" the AFTRA peace proposal.

AFTRA's proposal to establish a joint administrative-negotiating committee in the field of tape video would, claimed SAG in its turndown, in effect create a third "authority," or union with "attendant problems greater than the one we are trying to solve."

AFTRA Coast exec Claude McCure retorted "it is most regrettable that the resolution of AFTRA was misinterpreted by SAG, with respect to the way in which new studios producing on video tape would be handled. AFTRA did not propose that the joint committee negotiate and administrate new contracts for studios, but instead proposed the joint committee determine which of the two unions' commercial contracts would cover companies as they developed."

As for SAG's notifying the press of its rejection of the proposal, the angered McCue stated "we had an understanding there would be no press releases, and we are surprised they gave the release to the press before we got it. I have no comment in reply to their statement until we have received it, and then we will have meetings to consider it," he said.

In its letter to AFTRA, SAG's board stated it unanimously felt that the welfare of members of both unions would be best served "by obtaining substantial equality of rates and conditions in the field of taped commercials. To that end we are prepared to cooperate with

(Continued on page 38)

CHANNEL 'NAVY LOG' INTO SYNDICATION

Add "Navy Log" to the next off-network series upcoming for the syndication route. Now, in its fourth year on ABC-TV, CBS Film Sales plans to release the skein in October for syndication, whether or not it's renewed on the net.

Others among the "first-run off-network" parade include "Lassie," retitled "Jeff's Collie" for syndication by Television Programs of America; "Robin Hood," Official Films; "Jim Bowie," ABC Film Syndication; "See It Now" and "Adams & Eve," CBS Film Syndication.

Guild Films, which has been producing telefilm for syndication since 1953, became the first of the distribs in that line to declare that it is "not making any more shows for syndication." Word came from John Cole, who three weeks ago took over the reigns as president from founder Reub Kaufman.

The economics of producing new half-hour product for the syndication route just don't make any sense to Cole at this time. Just so long as the current economic climate and sponsor attitude prevails Guild won't make any more half-hours for stations or local or regional advertiser sale.

Cole laid down a multi-point program for Guild, some of which he implemented within a few days of his takeover.

(1) He has "arranged for financing solely for acquisition of theatrical product" new to television. He wouldn't specify the Hollywood sources he was dealing with, but he said that Guild now has available $1,000,000 "in cash" to buy the theatricals. He said that he is dealing with two separate Coast groups for the flicks.

(2) Cole has inked a deal with Robert Stabler, producer of "Gunsmoke" and "Have Gun, Will Travel," to make a pilot for a western-adventure series to be called "Joaquin Murrieta." Like "Light of the World," which Guild recently optioned off to ABC-TV, the pilot on the Mexican adventurer is strictly for network sale.

Still Big on Barter

(3) Apart from feature film, which Guild obviously doesn't have yet, its primary dealings with local television will be on an increased barter basis. Cole, who, as a custom, declined going into details on his barter dealings, did say, however, that he is in the throes of lining up some $15,000,000 worth of barter time, from stations, which he hopes shortly to sell to a new television advertiser or a group of new tv advertisers.

(4) The foreign department, which some Guild execs described in the not distant past as "haphazard," was reorganized immediately after Cole left his job as general sales manager to replace Kaufman. He hired R. Gould Morrison to work out of London, head-

(Continued on page 38)

Flamingo Sets 'Riffi' & 'Hulot'

Flamingo Films, the Herman Rush-Ira Gottlieb helmed operation, has been busily engaged in picking up new properties for syndication, the latest being two successful foreign imports, "Riffi," dubbed in America, and "Hulot's Holiday."

Flamingo, which has increased its sales organization from eight to 14 account execs over the eight-month period, marking the new management's inception, also is out selling off-network reruns of "O.S.S." and its first-run "Citizen Soldier." Outfit is acting as sales agent for Distributors Corp. of America, which has a bundle of about 20 pix, all of recent vintage, in a delayed release schedule to tv. Flamingo bought "Riffi" and "Hulot's Holiday" from Richard Davis. It was a negative deal for the duration of Davis' American distribution rights on the films, which has a number of years to run. Already inking for the two pix are KTLA, Los Angeles; KPIX, San Francisco; WHDH, Boston, and WNBQ, Chicago. WRCA-TV, N. Y., has a handshake deal for the duo.

Twenty-six episodes of "O.S.S." has been sold to WABD, N. Y., KTLA, L. A., and smaller markets such as Salt Lake City, El Paso, Phoenix, Tucson and Winston-Salem.

Newspaper Vs. TV Battle For Ad Dollar Breaks Out Anew —On Other Madison Ave. Fronts

By JACK BERNSTEIN

Newspapers, television's arch foe for commercial dollars, is on the warpath again in what appears to be a concerted drive to snare network and spot spenders away from TV and return them to print. The campaign by national publishers is no small thing and weekly editorials appear in the country's leading TV columns telling of the ineffectiveness of television as a selling medium; the high cost of tv, and the lack of sponsor identification on the screen.

The most recent attack on television occurred last week in the N. Y. World Telegram & Sun. An article appearing in the business section on April 7, said in part: "Now that tv has switched swaddling clothes for long pants, the problems encountered by all media are beginning to have their effect. The newness, glamour and excitement have died down. The economic factors rear their ugly heads.

"The 'facts' are that cutting of tv budgets is going on and that much of the money is going into print, though at the moment it's hard to measure the extent of the same." The article gives a handful of the sponsors who are withdrawing partially from the medium with no mention that the same handful of clients will probably pick a different network fare or engage in heavy spot saturation campaigns.

ANPA's Stand

The Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. when shopping for a director last April, frankly admitted that the one main qualification for the job was the ability to lead a virulent anti-tv campaign. Harold S. Barnes, former director of the Publishers Assn., stated in January of 1956 that the organization would conduct a drive to divert national advertisers from tv to newspapers and would launch an attack on television weaknesses.

Daily columnists will state "off the record" they are supposed to knock the commercial effectiveness of tv. "For the record," the same columnists will judiciously deny they have received instructions of any sort.

Brochures and pamphlets have been flooding the markets setting forth the case of print media. One promotion piece "Spots Before Their Eyes But," put out by the Bureau of Advertising, questions whether" station break spot announcements are remembered, even if only briefly." The brochure contained a study by C. E. Hooper which showed the percentage of spots observed and recalled was 2.1%, only slightly better than one out of 50 and that as compared with intregated program commercials—which produced 26.8%—the tv spots fared only one-tenth as well. Other brochures telling of the ineffectiveness of advertising on television and prepared by the Bureau are entitled "The Little Woman Who Wasn't There and "Speaking of TV."

Television Bureau of Advertising, whose job it is to propagandize the effectiveness of commercial television, feels the fact that the medium is always being measured for commercial effectiveness speaks for itself. TvB, under the helm of Norman Cash, is the spokesman for commercial television. TvB grinds out figures which show the effectiveness of tv, i.e., the medium is consistantly selling more sets, there are more people watching television than ever before, etc.

Despite recession talk and echoed sentiments that tv has outpriced itself, plus concerted drives by newspaper interests, most agency executives feel that clients will not be readjusting their budgets from tv to print although there may be some shift within the tv medium itself, i.e. from network program by some advertisers to specials or heavy spot saturation campaigns. Secondly, the ad men point out they feel if there is any cutback by national advertisers, it will be on all fronts and they doubt if tv will be affected any more than any other medium. As for the attacks by the newspaper reps and publishers, the tv industry feels the commercial effectiveness and the sales success stories that have come out of the medium speaks for its self.

B&B on Triple Spotting

Benton & Bowles, one of the agencies carrying on the fight against triple spotting of commercials, has issued the following interoffice memo to members of the media department. "The practice of inserting more than two spot commercials between two network programs in prime evening time is growing. More individual stations throughout the U.S. are cutting network promotions or network credits and in this manner have available to them more than the normal 30 seconds of time to place spot commercials. These then schedule three announcements, sometimes two 20's and a 10-second announcement and sometimes two 10's and a 20-second announcement. Logically, this means that each individual announcement so scheduled is of less value than ever before."

Memo goes on to say how many of the agencies, including Benton & Bowles, have complained to the networks and the individual stations without success. B&B solution to the problem is 1) TV announcements that are triple spotted should not be purchased under any conditions unless special permission is obtained from the associate media director. 2) All buyers must insist on being informed by the reps and stations whether the availabilities submitted to them are triple spotted, or not. 3) If permission to buy triple spotted commercials is obtained, the estimated rating of these spots should be reduced 20%.

Other agencies including Geoffrey Wade, North Advertising and Compton have issued similar decrees making triple spotting of clients commercials taboo. Not only have many of the ad agencies declared they are opposed to triple spotting but national advertisers are now calling for non-payment to the stations that violate the practice.

The station rep feeling on this subject is that many of the agencies who think the non-payment practice will eliminate the practice in the larger markets are naive. In New York and in other large marketing areas the reps claim that stations are not going to give up time in which they could slot on extra 10-second plug. National sponsor or not. The reps go one step further and claim the number one and two stations in a large market deliver the most homes and ratings and these are the ones who can get away with triple spotting. If a national advertiser wants to reach the most people in a commercial then he is going to have to face the facts and his commercial will get triple spotted. In the smaller market areas which prove less desirable because the advertiser is reaching less people, the reps feel that the agencies might be able to enforce their ban.

SHORTS: The Kenyon & Eckhardt salary slash is not the first one to be felt by the agency. The agency has had four previous cutbacks but in previous instances retroactive payments, from the day of the cut, were returned to the employes.

O. E. McIntyre Advertising moved to 375 Park Avenue this past week.

LOST & FOUND: Wexton has landed the ad account of Westminster Recording Sales Corp.

Young & Rubicam's Toronto office picked to handle the ad account of Resdan hair product, made by Whitehall Pharmacal (Canada).

Fuller & Smith & Ross named by the Dollar Savings Bank of New York for its ad account.

SWITCHES: Norman Glenn, radio-tv account supervisor at Young & Rubicam, has earned veepee stripes.

Edward Kletter, v.p. and director of advertising for Pharmaceuticals and J. B. Williams, named to board of directors.

Peter G. Peterson, assistant to Marion Harper Jr. at McCann-Erickson and former manager of the Chicago office, is expected to announce his resignation shortly to take a position with Bell & Howell.

REPS: Adam Young reppery which suggested Pulse radio reports show ratings in the trading areas by quarter-hour units and in three-hour units for the metropolitan areas, received favorable response in a mail survey of agencies and advertisers. The Young plan is to have Pulse's radio survey include the entire trading area as well as the metro area.

Dodge division of Chrysler Corp., and its agency, Grant Advertising, have won first place in the second nationwide spot radio commercial survey, sponsored by John Blair & Co.

A new presentation for "decision making advertising and sales executives" has been created by Peters, Griffin, Woodward. Designed for desk top use, the presentation uses a custom developed miniature tape recording supplemented by transparent color slides.

Joseph M. Friedman, formerly administrative sales manager of KPIX, San Francisco, has joined H-R Television in that city.

Chi Agencies

By LES BROWN

Chicago, April 15.

Grant Advertising, which had recently completed a merger with the six offices of Abbott-Kimball agency, has absorbed another, this time in a merger with Burke Co. Advertising of Seattle, Wash. The merger strengthens Grant's facilities and services in the Pacific Northwest, ups its yearly billings to around $100,000,000, and gives the agency its ninth office in the U.S. Grant has 31 other offices in foreign markets.

Among the 27 new accounts Grant has gained are Alaska Airlines, Dorie Hotels, Bell Boy Boats, and Wash. State Dairy Products Commission. William Burke, former prez of the Seatle agency, becomes v.p. and manager of the Grant Pacific Northwest branch. His partner, Roland H. Burke, will also remain with the office as a veepee.

The remaining Swift & Co. products that were resigned by J. Walter Thompson agency several weeks ago, after a 65-year agency-client relationship, have been awarded to Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample here. The account includes Pard Dog Food, Swift'ning, Jewel Oil and commercial shortenings.

Foote, Cone & Belding sending 40 staffers to NBC today (Tues.) for a color tv seminar and demonstration. The tour of WNBQ comes under the training and orientation program the agency is conducting.

Kastor & Sons picked up Carl Buddig & Co. account and are buying newspaper, radio and tv for a Buddig's Smoked Sliced Beef campaign.

Mohr & Eicoff, three-month-old agency here, plucked Tabutrex insect repellent account for Glenn Chemical Co. Ad budget of $180,000 may be the highest yet for the promotion of an insecticide ingredient. Campaign will use the print and broadcast media.

North Advertising named N. T. Garrabrant media director.

Per Hogestad, ex-Leo Burnett, named Chi art director for Campbell-Mithun.

Latest Leo Burnett additions: Ray Young, former Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles in New York, as a copy supervisor; and Kathryn Mahan, previously with Erwin, Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ray, as production supervisor.

Reach, McClinton & Co. picked up the Stevens Candy Co. business.

William N. Latshaw upped to art dept. manager of Waldie & Briggs.

Bill Maslowe left the Shrout Agency in Morton Grove, Ill., to join the local CBS shop as WBBM-TV publicist. He's a former reporter for the old Chicago Times.

Doyle W. Lott was named a v.p. at Grant Advertising and upped to account exec on the Dodge Division business. He had been director of Detroit regional account activities.

Preston Selz upped to senior writer at Keyes, Madde & Jones.

Hotpoint, shopping for a single agency to handle all its billings, understood to be considering only the top 10 agencies.

TV-Radio Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY

William Dozier in from the Coast last week for huddles with CBS-TV exec v.p. Hubbell Robinson on fall programming . . . Walt Framer, "Big Payoff" producer, leaves tomorrow (Thurs.) for Europe on a combination biz-vacation trip. Hopes to make arrangements to film a week of "Payoff" shows at the Brussels World's Fair . . . Arlene Francis to host the Lively Arts luncheon for United Cerebral Palsy at the Waldorf-Astoria April 24 . . . Charlotte Manson and Susan Douglas into cast of "Second Mrs. Burton" . . . CBS Radio music director James Fassett leaving for Rome to tape the first of his "World Music Festivals" series for the web . . . WOR Radio's Flying Traffic Reporter begins operations Friday (18) . . . Sen. Styles Bridges was Mutual's guest Monday (14)on "Reporters' Roundup." . . . Metropolitan Educational Television Assn. will launch a four-week introductory course-in basic astronomy in cooperation with the American Museum-Hayden Planetarium on Monday (21), via WPIX, from 11:30 to noon . . . Mutual's "Game of the Day" series kicked off its regular schedule Monday (14) . . . Staats Cotsworth has returned from the Coast where he completed a stint as a featured player in Revue's "Way of the West" pilot. Cotsworth, who also is a painter, will be the principal speaker tomorrow (Thurs.) at the annual American Watercolor Society dinner . . . "Newsworthy," half-hour commentary on current events, is being telecast on WPIX, produced by the N.Y. Board of Education and META . . . The National Doubles Bowling Championship will be presented on WOR-TV Tuesday (22) night, with Pabst Brewing picking up the tab . . . Composer J. Fred Coots and Vivian Blaine guests on WOR-TV's "Ted Steele Show" Monday (14) . . . On Monday (14), WINS began a series of on-the-air auditions for a new deejay, with candidates holding down a post-midnight slot—and using their own choice of format—until program chief Mel Leeds picks the gabber he wants on staff . . . Jim Reeves, who until recently had his own cross-the-boarder on ABC Radio, is gonna do a guest one-shot for the sister ABC-TV, via the Saturday (19) "Country Music Jubilee" telecast . . . On Sunday (13), there was quite a nostalgic reunion of veteran radio names on the city's own WNYC, when singer Bob White (son of Joe White, "Silver Masked Tenor") appears as guest of "Singing Lady" Ireene Wicker; on same show will be White's God-father, Tommy Cowan, 72-year-old gabber who was WJZ's (now WABC's) announcer and is currently a staffer at the city key . . . WNYC topper Sy Siegel goes back into Navy blue next month, for a two-week stint in the Pentagon for the National Naval Reserve Policy Board . . . Donald Woods to Coast to do Friday (18) "Matinee Theatre" lead, in "Washington Whispers Murder" by Leslie Ford . . . U Maung Maung, Burma Broadcasting Service news editor and newscaster U Aung Khin visiting New York (in particular WNYC) this week . . . As of last Sabbath (13), at 9 p.m. on WBAI-FM, a series of weekly mystery dramas commenced—"Dr. Morelle" was done by BBC-TV with Cecil Parker in lead and Shelia Sim as femme interest.

John Beal, who's been hosting a feature film segment in New Haven for the past couple of years and sandwiching in occasional tv roles, has decided to quit the hosting job to devote more time to acting and directing. He's on the Coast this week for filming of a "Millionaire" segment . . . Paul and Ruth Tripp, of "On Carousel," and Ray Carter, musical director of the show, to Brussels for exhibition of "The Horse Who Couldn't Talk," a nine-minute puppet cartoon tv pilot filmed with Lou Bunin and written and narrated by Tripp and his wife . . . Jean Sullivan set to handle Warner-Lambert blurbs on "Tic Tac Dough." Lester Lewis Associates also set Bud Palmer to handle the "Post Fight Beat" segment Fridays on NBC-TV for Bristol-Myers . . . Elizabeth Lawrence set for "My True Story" on NBC this week and next and plays the lead Sunday (20) on "Frontiers of Faith" . . . Will Glickman and Joe Stein set to script the Phil Silvers May 13 special for Pontiac on CBS . . . WRCA (and TV) lost producer William E. Osterhaus to the U.S. Army (drafted for a two-year hitch), but got back Wally Stark of its traffic dept., who completed a sixmonth tour . . . Gordon Hyatt upped from the traffic dept. to the audience promotion staff at WRCA-TV . . . Bill Tabbert, B'way musical comedy lead, finished a straight dramatic stint on "Verdict Is Yours."

IN HOLLYWOOD

Louise Paget, who appeared in many "Playhouse 90" shows, rejoins her sister, Vivienne Segal, on CBS-TV's "The Magnificent Montagues," . . . Guy della Cioppa, CBS-TV program veepee, upped Hunt Stromberg Jr., to director of program development. He came to CBS from ABC two years ago . . . James Fonda, longtime with CBS radio and tv, moved over to Harry Ackerman's production staff at Screen Gems. He recently completed the pilot of "The Sergeant and the Lady" for CBS-TV . . . Harold Graham, formerly with McCann-Erickson, joined CBS-TV as liaison between the web and ad agencies . . . Harfield Weedin, ABC veteran producer-director, swung over to KNX for triple duty on "Matinee." . . . Jack Beck, director of KNX newscasts, refused a pooled tape coverage of the inquest into the death of Johnny Stompanato, boy friend of Lana Turner, because "there's got to be a bottom some place in our business and I feel this was it. Broadcast media has always aspired to a higher level of taste than some of the sensational press. It's good tabloid stuff but not for us." . . . Meredith Willson has decreed that only Dinah Shore can use "76 Trombones" (from his Broadway smash, "The Music Man"). He likes the prismatic effect . . . Newest writing team to break through is Paul Schneider and his frau, the daughter of Sam Perrin, who heads up Jack Benny's writing battery . . . Sid Fox, former Salt Lake station owner, and Arnold Marquis, veteran NBC producer, are hatching a new series for tv.

IN CHICAGO . . .

Eddie Hubbard made the swing to tv last Saturday (12) as host of WGN-TV's "Your Big Night" . . . Bud Donelly, ex-Ziv film salesman out of Cincinnati, now working Chi and Minneapolis for CBS Film Sales under Hank Gillespie . . . Jim Lounsbury's Saturday "Record Hop" on WBKB being expanded to 90 minutes . . . Latest publicists in the CBS shop are Bill Maslowe (WBBM-TV), ex-adman and onetime reporter on the old Times, and Alan Eton (WBBM), formerly of Gov. William Stratton's p.r. crew . . . Bouchelle Rug Cleaners renewed Dorothy Fuller's Friday fashion show on WBKB for 13 more weeks . . . WBBM-TV's Len Dresslar tapped for solo chores in Paul Whiteman's all-Gershwin concert at Orchestra Hall, April 26 . . . Daily News columnist Tony Weitzel doing a half-hour stint on educational channel WTTW on the benefits of home ownership . . . To celebrate the fifth anni of "Music 'Till Dawn" on WBBM, Jay Andres remoted the show, "live," on Monday (14) from the American Airlines ticket office—but during the wee hours, till 5 a.m.

IN SAN FRANCISCO .

Roman (Bob) Wassenberg, ex-KSFO general manager and lately a KGO salesman, named new boss of Grant Wrathall's KSAY to succeed Walt Conway. Switch is in line with Wrathall's policy to quit pitching exclusively for Negro r&b audience, seek general pops audience . . . KGO-radio aired the Johnny Stompanato inquest, despite program director Bob Cooper's original rejection of the material as unfit for home listeners. ABC brass overruled Cooper, who then ate humble pie on

(Continued on page 32)

FCC'S ALL-CLEAR ON CHANNELS

Nielsen's Top 10: 6 Oaters

(Two Weeks Ending March 22)

CBS-TV grabbed off five out of 10 places in the Nielsen Top 10 for the two weeks ended March 22, with NBC nabbing three and ABC two, latter's both westerns and NBC's two-out-of-three westerns. With CBS also pitching in with a pair of westerns, the oaters grabbed off six notches in the Top 10 list, as well as sweeping the top three.

AVERAGE AUDIENCE

Gunsmoke (CBS)	44.8	The Restless Gun (NBC)	34.4
Wells Fargo (NBC)	38.1	Wyatt Earp (ABC)	33.8
Gun, Will Travel (CBS)	36.4	Cheyenne (ABC)	32.6
Danny Thomas Show (CBS)	35.7	GE Theatre (CBS)	32.5
I've Got a Secret (CBS)	34.7	You Bet Your Life (NBC)	32.0

TOTAL AUDIENCE

Gunsmoke (CBS)	46.0	Gun, Will Travel (CBS)	37.7
Wells Fargo (NBC)	40.4	Danny Thomas Show (CBS)	37.6
Cheyenne (ABC)	39.8	I've Got a Secret (CBS)	37.2
Perry Como (NBC)	38.9	Restless Gun (NBC)	36.5
Wagon Train (NBC)	38.2	Ed Sullivan Show (CBS)	36.0

WOR Radio's 'It Pays To Talk'; Gab Station Hits Banner Biz

While most of the other radio indies in N. Y. are engaged in a hot competitive struggle via the music (top 40 disks) and news, WOR Radio, in a counter-programming attack, has gone gabby.

The gab from John B. Gambling from 6 in the morning to Long John Nebel for the 5:30 a. m. next day's windup is aimed at adults, with the gabbers selected with the view to appeal to different segments of the adult population, with what is described as "provoking talk."

Not that there isn't music on the station, but the accent is on the gab and a heavy news schedule, 15 minutes of news on the hour every hour. There is music in the form of "live" standards and semi-classics played on Gambling's morning stint, and the nightly stretch, "Music from Studio X," lush instrumentals and standards. There's no attempt to appeal strictly to the teenagers' musical tastes. Station operates on the policy that the adults control the spending and they're the audience to wean for advertisers.

After the elder Gambling, this is how the day-in-day-out schedule looks, 45 minutes usually allocated to each of the gabbers Martha Deane at 10:15; "McCann's at Home," "Fitzgeralds at the Astor," Carlton Fredericks, "Kate Smith Show" (Mutual). The vet radio femme personality brings the clock to 3:15. She's followed by Gambling, which is a disk show of standards and instrumentals, and "Radio, N. Y.," a service type show, with news, sports, and music interspersed. What follows is two hours of solid news from 6 to 8

RKO Teleradio station, which is affiliated with Mutual, only carries three Mutual newscasters, Gabriel Heatter Cedric Foster, and Fulton Lewis Jr., the rest of the roster being station's own newscasters.

Prior to "Studio X" opening up nightly, there's a travel chatter program. Weekends there's Jean Sheppherd of the "night people." The formula, built bit by bit over the two-year stewardship of station topper Robert Leder and program director Robert Smith,

'Woody' at Nite

Kellogg is experimenting with "Woody Woodpecker" as a nighttime show. The half-hour cartoon series, produced by Walter Lantz and shown Thursday afternoons for a moppet viewership on ABC-TV, has been slated for dual exposure at night in network markets.

Repeat of the afternoon version started last week at 9 p. m., one night a week on WMAL-TV, Washington. Kellogg, via Leo Burnett, slotted a repeat of the cartoon in another market, but the name of the location was unavailable. Object is to see how parents take to the stuttering bird, which has become a big afternoon rating hit (with Nielsens in the 20's).

$4,000,000 Unit For WXYZ in Det.

Detroit, April 15.

Construction of a $4,000,000 radio and tv facility, housing all activities of WXYZ-TV and radio, will be started in the next few weeks. Completion of the new studio, office and transmitter buildings in a suburb northwest of Detroit, is scheduled for next May. However, all broadcasting facilities are scheduled to move to the new location this fall.

Radio and tv studios will be housed in a two-story building 200 feet long by 180 feet deep on the 93-acre rolling site. A large farm house on the property will be remodeled for use as an employee cafeteria.

GMC Truck Biz To McC-E; Who Gets Frigidaire?

The GMC Truck & Coach divisions account of General Motors with estimated billings of approximately $2,000,000 has followed the major shift of General Motors business to McCann-Erickson. Later dropped the Chrysler account worth an estimated $26,000,000 to take on the $24,000,000 Buick division account.

Appointment of McCann-Erickson came as no surprise to agency insiders who felt that Marion Harper Jr., prexy of McCann, had an ace up his sleeve when he dropped the larger billing Chrysler account to take on the General Motors business.

The shiftover from Kudner Agency, which had handled the GMC billings for the last eight years, is slated to take place on Sept. 1 according to executives at General Motors.

Still up for grabs is the estimated $8,000,000 Frigidaire division of General Motors. Approximately 10 agencies have been invited by Frigidaire to give presentations, which began Monday, (14) in Dayton. Executives at Frigidaire stated they expected to appoint an agency within the next couple of weeks.

Speculation now arises as to whether McCann-Erickson will attempt to corale the Frigidaire business giving it a clean sweep of the General Motors accounts resigned at Kudner. McCann currently handles Westinghouse products which are in direct conflict with Frigidaire. Although McCann execs denied they were pitching for the Frigidaire biz, there have been recurrent reports that Westinghouse and McCann have not seen eye to eye on the handling of the account.

13-YEAR LOGJAM FINALLY BROKEN

Washington, April 15.

The FCC today (Tues.) broke a 13-year-old logjam in the controversial clear channel issue by proposing new rules which would open up 12 of the nation's 24 50kw clear channels to new stations.

Purpose of the proposed new rules is to provide primary service in localities which now lack it because the existing clear-channel signals do not get into them in full force. These locations are primarily rural and in the west. Proposals do not affect daytime-only stations operating on clear channels.

Rules, on which comment must be filed with the FCC by July 15, would break down the 12 affected channels into two groups, one consisting of five clear channels, the other of seven. The first group consists of 660kc (WRCA, N.Y.), 770kc, (WABC, N.Y.), 880 kc (WCBS, N.Y.), 1100 kc (KYW, Cleveland) and 1180 kc (WHAM, Rochester). Above-named stations have had exclusive use of these channels at night, and the Commission proposes to take away this exclusivity.

It would do so by permitting five new major Class I station assignments (50kw stations) in specified western states. These new Class I stations would have directional antennas to protect both new and existing Class I stations from interference. Arizona would get the 1100 frequency, Idaho the 1180, Montana the 660 and Wyoming the 880. New Mexico is the other state affected, but assignment of a frequency there is being deferred pending the outcome of the KOB suit over the 770 kc wavelength. Later, additional Class II stations (operating on clear channels but with lower power) would be permitted.

The other seven clear channels affected are 670 (WMAQ, Chicago), 720 (WGN, Chicago), 780 (WBBM, Chicago), 890 (WLS, Chicago), 1020 (KDKA, Pittsburgh), 1120 (KMOX, St. Louis), and 1210 (WCAU, Philadelphia). On these channels, the FCC proposes the authorization of additional Class II stations in certain locations to "provide needed primary service" where such service is lacking. Commission did not pinpoint these locations, and presumably will authorize more than seven stations, depending on the number of locations involved. Daytime and nighttime power on these stations will be determined on the basis of local needs and on protection for other stations using the same channel.

Commission avoided the question of higher power for clear channel stations at this time. It said it will consider petitions for authorization of power above 50kw later, both for the 12 channels unaffected by the new proposals and the seven clear-channels which will be supplemented by new Class II service.

Acceptance of applications for the new clear channel assignments must await adoption of appropriate amendments to the rules, the Commission said. After such adoption, the Class II assignments will be considered first. Afterwards, the five new Class I assignments will be taken up, following determination of precise locations within the five states and conditions, under which they will operate.

The record on the clear channel proceedings was closed 10 years ago, and the Commission admitted that the record itself was inadequate due to the changes that have occurred in that period. It acted, however, to break the logjam in order to do something about those not receiving primary service. One factor in making it move was the insistence of the courts hearing the KOB case that the FCC take quick action on the matter.

WNTA (AM&TV) Program Revamp; Cott's Offbeat Live & Film Patterns

National Telefilms Associates has mapped out general program plans for WATV and WAAT-AM-FM when it officially takes these Newark stations over on May 7. WATV will change its name to WNTA-TV and adopt a flexible program format, for which the backbone will be a Monday-Wednesday-Friday exposure of 86 20th-Fox feature films. The radio sisters, changing call letters to WNTA-AM-FM, are going to emphasize "talk" shows, partially reversing the music-news trend in local radio.

Current owners of WATV, the Rosenhauses and Pollocks, originally bought the 86 Fox flicks from NTA and, when the sale of the station to the distributor was consummated, held them off for the use of the new owner. Ted Cott, who bosses NTA owned & operated stations, has charted an exposure plan of three first-run features a week. Each flick will be repeated three times in the same evening—either Monday, Wednesday or Friday—and the viewers will be informed that "this feature film will not be seen again for at least six months." Pix, according to Cott, will be uncut versions and will begin at 7:30 p.m. for the three-ply playing.

The o&o chief said that the station, since it will be in "open competition" with other New York tv'ers for further NTA-Fox features, has no guarantee of getting other NTA product first. Cott added that at present he is shopping for feature film from outside the NTA shop.

The programming in tv is under the aegis of Jack Lynn, who left WABD, N. Y., as film chief. Lynn, who has had a varied station background (WCAV, Norfolk: KVER, Albuquerque, etc.) as program boss and on the administrative level has decided to go live between 7 and 7:30 p.m., just before the feature sked, with a series of five panel shows a week, two of which will be called "Gags to Riches" and "Beauties and the Beast." Cott explained that they will be internally produced.

Richard Willis Strip

Moreover, Richard Willis has been inked by NTA to do a live for-the-gals gab session at 6-6:30 cross-the-board come May 7. Cott did not say what was planned for 6:30 before the panelers.

With Monday, Wednesday and Friday mapped out for first-run features, Cott and Lynn have decided to turn Tuesday from 7:30 on into "sports night," and the first series will be called "Celebrity Bowling," with entertainment biz personalities, in the main, facing off against each other. It'll go on from 7 to 8 (probably making Tuesday only night when 7 p.m.

(Continued on page 40)

NAB's 'Love That Dinah'

Washington, April 15.

Dinah Shore will be saluted as one of the outstanding and best-liked entertainers in radio and tv at a luncheon in her honor May 1 at the National Assn. of Broadcasters convention in Los Angeles. Tribute will be given by NAB prexy Harold E. Fellows.

Sharing the speakers' platform will be John H. DeWitt, prexy of WSM in Nashville where Miss Shore started as a radio singer more than 20 years ago. DeWitt was the stations' chief engineer at the time.

NBC Radio Leads 'Sponsored Time' With 40% Share

NBC Radio has piled up a substantial lead over CBS in "sponsored time," the NBC index which compiles the four-network commercial hours-per-week the first week of every month. The unofficial index, based on an exchange of information among the webs and on BAR reports, gives NBC a 13-hour lead over CBS and a 40% four-network share for March. That 40% share is NBC's second best showing since January of 1950, when the index was established.

The NBC total sponsored time of 44 hours and three minutes is the second highest total for NBC since 1953, exceeded only by last November's pre-Christmas total of 47:37. Current total is up by 54.3% over last March, while CBS' total of 31:03 is also up over last March, but by 7.7%. NBC's March total represents an increase of 20.1% over the previous month, February, '58, but the CBS figure represents a 9.2% decline.

As to the four-network totals, webs had combined total of 109 hours and 52 minutes for March, up 10.1% over March a year ago and also up 4.7% over February. The network shares of this 109:52 total are 40.1 for NBC (its share was 28.6 in March of '57), 28.3% for CBS (vs. 28.9% a year ago), 19.1% for ABC (down from 20.6% last year) and 12.5% for Mutual, down from 21.9% a year ago.

RALPH LEVY QUITS BENNY AFTER 7 YRS.

Hollywood, April 15.

Ralph Levy is quitting Jack Benny after seven years of directing and producing his tv shows. He leaves this week for N. Y. to discuss with CBS similar duties on the upcoming Garry Moore hour night time show. The parting is amicable, said Levy, who wants a closer affinity with the theatre and is hopeful of producing a Broadway play.

Hilliard Marks is executive producer of he Benny skip-weeks for Luckies and monthly "Shower of Stars" for Chrysler.

John White Named Chief Of ABC Radio Sales

John H. White has taken over the sales chieftancy of ABC Radio from Thomas Harrison, who ankled the web last week, shortly after the departure of Robert Eastman, the man who hired him. White actually bears a different title, that of director of national sales, while Harrison was veepee in charge of sales.

New radio boss Edward DeGray upped White, who for the previous seven months was national sales manager under Harrison.

3 TV Webs Up In Feb. Billings

The three television networks, ABC, CBS and NBC collectively, billed $44,636,018 in gross time this past February, $5,250,811 more than they made together for the same month of 1957. Information was contained in the second monthly gross time billings report done by Television Bureau of Advertising.

The combined Jan.-Feb. result was a heartening sign, in times of recession elsewhere. The webs for the first two months of 1958 grossed a total of $94,228,361, which is 13.7% or $11,341,158 better than the corresponding two months last year.

In February, ABC grossed $8,427,396 in time sales, CBS $19,410,741 and NBC $16,797,681. Each web showed an improvement over the previous February: ABC a 36.5% rise, Columbia 6% and NBC 12.7% rises.

'Tony' Comes In Twins In Bumping Of WCBS-TV Award Ceremonies

For the second year running, the American Theatre Wing, Pepsi-Cola and WCBS-TV, N. Y., had the props knocked out from under their annual telecast of the Tony Awards from the Waldorf-Astoria. And for the second year running, it was Local 1212 of IBEW that had a hand in the last-minute cancellations.

This time, of course, it's the IBEW technicians strike against CBS that was responsible. Though the station has been using executive personnel to man its cameras (as has the network) and it was ready to cover the Tony Awards banquet Sunday night (13), Local 3 of the IBEW stepped in to stop the telecast. Local 3, though not engaged in radio-tv, is the electricians union at the Waldorf, and in sympathy with their fellow IBEWites, refused to give WCBS-TV power for the telecast.

Year ago, it was a jurisdictional dispute between Local 1212 and the Stagehands Local 1 of IATSE that knocked out the telecast. Local 1212 members ordinarily handle lighting on special events remotes that do not involve "staging"; on an event involving "staging," the IATSE unit handles lighting. Dispute last year centered on who would light the telecast, and when WCBS-TV tapped the stagehands, IBEW refused to do the show. Subsequently CBS filed suit against Local 1212 and the argument is still in litigation.

Again, American Theatre Wing, which depends on its rights fee for the telecast for financial support, got stung (though last year it was paid anyway, even though the telecast fell through), and Metropolitan Pepsi-Cola Bottlers, scheduled sponsors on the show, were hit. Pepsi last year had spent in excess of $15,000 for promotion. This year's expenditures aren't known.

Similar Local 3 action in support of Local 1212 took place a few years ago when IBEW was striking WOR and WOR-TV, N. Y. At that time, WOR-TV was unable to televise the Brooklyn Dodger home games because Local 3, which has jurisdiction over the electricians at Ebbets Field, refused to furnish power for the WOR-TV cameras.

WABC-TV Jumpin' In First Quarter

In the not-too-distant past, WABC-TV, though in the biggest of the ABC owned & operated markets, had the reputation of being last both in audience and sponsor coin among the chain's keys. But the latest financial report for the Gotham tv'er was the best in the station's history and is understood, from other than local station sources, to be far-and-away the biggest money earner in the ABC owned station lineup.

Tally is in for the Jan.-March quarter, when WABC-TV posted a net profit 20% better than the next-best quarterly return in its history. That was the last quarter of 1957, when Xmas biz drove the station to an alltime profit high. The first quarter of the year, generally off in a post-holiday slump, really reversed itself this year. Latest Jan.-March returns were also 65% higher than the same quarter of 1957.

Robert Stone, station boss, said outlet got a good start on the last quarter by closing for $500,000 worth of gross time sales in the five-days just before last Xmas, that normally being a period among most stations when selling falls off badly.

It appears the big money boost came directly as the result of the ABC network's improved rating position. In the afternoon, for instance, web's 3 to 6 p.m. programming decisively leads the market. And two of the web half-hours (both "American Bandstand") at 3 and again at 4:30 are open for co-op station sales. WABC-TV reportedly reaped a fortune here since they are SRO with 10 spots a day inside the show plus having an SRO position on all afternoon adjacencies.

KCOP Buys 'Bingo'

Hollywood, April 15.

Success of "Bingo At Home," which has been airing Monday through Friday over WABD-TV in N. Y., has been so marked in upping station's ratings that giveaway program is now set for an early May debut on KCOP.

3 SPONSORS RIDE WITH PHILLIES IN N.Y.

WOR-TV, N. Y., began its telecasts of the Philadelphia Phillies yesterday (Tues.) with three sponsors riding the games, the schedule remaining one-quarter unsold.

The three sponsors are United Vintners for G & D Vermouth and Petri Wines, Bayuk Cigars for its Phillies brand, and General Tire Dealers in the Metropolitan Area. According to the station, the three-sponsor lineup gets the RKO Teleradio indie outlet "off the hook" as far as costs go. Understood station committed itself for about $600,000 for telecasting rights to the schedule of 78 games.

'High Adventure' Segs Sold For '58-'59 Season

United Motors Division of General Motors will bankroll four more of Lowell Thomas' "High Adventure" specials on CBS-TV next season. United's Delco-Remy operation sponsored seven of the one-hour travel shows on Columbia this season. Dates and times of the quartet for next season aren't set yet, but Thomas' Odyssey Productions will produce the shows.

Deal was set through Campbell-Ewald agency.

NBC-TV Dickers BBC 'World Theatre' Series; 'Medic' Set For O'seas

London, April 15.

Alvin Ferleger, manager of international program sales for NBC International, returned to New Yok last weekend after a week in London, during which time he finalized a deal for the "Medic" series to be shown on British commercial tv. The skein has been acquired by ABC-TV, the company which operates the Midlands and Northern outlets at weekends, and the program is due to go on the air around next June.

During his London stay, Ferleger has also continued negotiations with BBC-TV to purchase U. S. rights to the state web's "World Theatre" series which wound recently with the presentation, over two consecutive Sundays, of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude." Kines of three of the programs are being sent to New York for viewing by NBC program toppers.

Although he recognizes and defends the principle and necessity of a British screen quota on commercial tv, the NBC International exec contends that the existing 86% quota does not give the webs sufficient leeway, and may cause them to miss out on programs of social significance and cultural value. He favors a more elastic quota, which, he believes, would be a valuable aid to network contractors in helping them to set the pace for an improved viewing standard and avoid a recurrence of what happened in the United States when the networks were driven by the public.

With the growing importance of the European market and particularly the British territory, Ferleger is contemplating four to five trans-Atlantic trips a year.

Schenectady—Noel "Bud" Johnson is now director of promotion for WRGB-TV. He had worked in the continuity department for six years; prior to that, was on the staff of Utica Club Brewery

Inside Stuff—Radio-TV

WCAU, Philadelphia, snagged the lion's share of first prizes in the annual awards made by the Pennsylvania Associated Press Broadcasters Assn. Philly stations WIP and WPEN were also singled out for honors.

WCAU garnered six first-place spots for outstanding news operations for outstanding reporting in the "Operation Outer Space" program; outstanding coverage of a special event (Little Rock segregation story); live broadcasts by reporter Ken Mayer; distinguished contribution to freedom of information, to Charles Shaw, the station's news director; outstanding commentary, Shaw's program "As I See It," and outstanding farm news, "Rural Digest" by Amos Kirby.

WIP won third place honors for news operation. Station WPEN was judged second in freedom of information and commentary categories. WCAU-TV awards included a first prize for outstanding news operation; second for outstanding coverage of a special event, a film of a blind Boy Scout being taken on a tour of Valley Forge during the jamboree; and third, for the best commentary, a film made in Japan about the William Girard case the day before the soldier went on trial in a Japanese court for shooting a civilian.

Society of Silurians, which includes men who, 25 or more years ago, worked on N.Y.C. dailies in various editorial capacities, is considering opening its membership to qualified newsmen in radio and tv. This marks a radical departure in the former thinking of Silurians.

Members have been urged to attend annual meeting at Overseas Press Club on Thursday, May 1, to vote on an amendment to the constitution and bylaws permitting membership to radio and tv personnel by amending the words "news associations" in Silurian constitution to "news media."

Silurians, at present, consist of past or present newspaper reporters, editors, photographers, artists or illustrators.

Show biz personalities will be pitching in on WOR Radio's, N.Y., two programs on behalf of Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York, to be aired two successive Sundays from 5 to 5:30 p.m., starting April 20.

Roster includes Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Jimmy Durante, Jimmy Rodgers, Nat King Cole, Anna Maria Alberghetti, Lawrence Welk, the Lennon Sisters, Brian Sullivan, Jules Rudel, and others. Francis Cardinal Spellman will officiate.

Formal presentation to the Columbia U. Libraries of the original scripts, correspondence and related documents pertaining to the radio series, "The American Story" will be made on Friday afternoon (18) in the Butler Library. Carl Haverlin, prexy of BMI, will present the material to Dr. Richard H. Logsdon, director of libraries. Previously BMI had presented "American Musicanna," a collection of original manuscripts, to the Library of Congress.

A Crosley Broadcasting Corp. offer by James D. Shouse, board chairman, to underwrite an objective study of juvenile delinquency problems is to be put in motion within a few weeks.

The study, as concerns the community and services of Juvenile Court, is favored by Oris Hamilton, Cincy safety director, and Hamilton County Juvenile Judge Benjamin Schwartz. It will be made by a staff headed by Prof. Richard Clendenen of the Ohio State U. faculty, an authority in the field of juve delinquency.

Keystone Broadcasting System is tying in with Pet Milk Co. and WSM's (Nashville) "Grand Ole Opry" for a nationwide contest to discover a new country and western artist. All KBS stations will hold individual contests, and finalists will have a showdown on "Opry." Winner gets a recording contract and a showcasing on "Opry," one of the coveted showcasings in the c&w field.

From the Production Centres

Continued from page 30

the air by saying: "KGO stated that it would not carry this program, but this decision has been changed because of unprecedented interest on the part of our listeners" . . . San Mateo's KVSM off its hillbilly kick and into pops . . . Emily Barton and Floyd Buick celebrated their 10th year together on KFRC . . . KCBS's Dave McElhatton found recent floods did $5,000 damage to his San Carlos home . . . Don Sherwood getting a half-hour amateur show together for KGO-TV's Wednesday nights.

IN BOSTON . .

Everly Bros. and Teresa Brewer in for Bob Clayton's WHDH-TV Boston Ballroom . . . Channel 5 to sign on earlier each a.m. . . . Ken Mayer launched "Midnight Police Beat" on WBOS . . . Pat Dale, of Pat & Ray show WHDH, honored by Gridiron Club as only outside femme to guest its beard . . . WBZ-TV made gift presentation of 25-kilowatt RCA amplifier to WGBH-TV, which looks to be operating on 100 kilowatts next Sept. . . . Major changes in personnel going into effect at WORL with disk jock Larry Welch, "Voice of the Turtle," coming in from WMEX to take over the 6 to 9 a.m. platter show; Norm Tulin taking over noon to 2 p.m. show; while Greg Finn, relieved of platter spinning, slips into the sales dept.; Stan Richards continues with his regular 9 a.m. show . . . Norm Knight, prexy Yankee Div. RKO Teleradio Pix, presides at luncheon Friday (18) for General Motors veep, Edward T. Ragsdale . . . Tom Gorman, WEEI gen. mgr., off on anni sales trek to west coast doing L.A. and S.F.

IN LONDON . . .

Sarah Vaughan and Marvin Rainwater headed the "Sunday Night at the Palladium Show this week (13) . . . Cornell Borchers, German film star, makes her U.K. tv debut for BBC on April 22 in a play entitled "Call Me a Liar" . . . Yehudi Menuhin exchanges his fiddle for a seat on the BBC "Brains Trust" on Sunday . . . Fleur Cowles will appear in "Mainly for Women" on BBC-TV on April 23. She'll assert that "this is a woman's world" . . . ABC-TV start a new U.S. Western series on Saturday (19). It's "Maverick" . . . Associated Rediffusion's "Cool For Cats" chalks up its 100th program on May 2 with an alltime bumper list of disk stars . . . First Yank singer to appear in ATV's "Top Tune Time" show will be Charle Gracie on April 27 . . . Liberace and Julie Wilson will top "Sunday Night at the Palladium" on Sunday (20).

IN PHILADELPHIA . . .

Lloyd E. Yoder, NBC veepee and general manager of WRCV, WRCV-TV, received special citation in recognition of his efforts for the Boys' Towns of Italy. He served as co-chairman with film exec William Goldman for a special preem of "South Pacific." Proceeds which netted $22,000 were donated to the Boys' Towns . . . Mike Wallace spoke before the Anti-Defamation League at the Sheraton Hotel (14) . . . WPEN sports director Matt Goukas to emcee the celebration banquet for Haverford High School, PIAA state basketball champions . . . Gladys Webster, WCAU's hostess for the two-a-day series, "Acme Markets Ring Your Bell," presented with the "Award of Merit" by the Phila. Club of Advertising Women, for her outstanding radio scripts . . . WVUE deejays Joe Grady and Ed Hurst played the first record hop in the Marine Ballroom of Steel Pier, Atlantic City, N.J. (13) . . . Vince Leonard made debut as WRCV-TV newscaster, replacing Taylor Grant (14) . . . "Name That Tune" host George DeWitt to visit Gimbel's toy dept. (17) . . . Jack Rattigan, former WDEL, Wilmington, Del. deejay, preemed "Rattigan Rascals" on WRCV.

IN WASHINGTON . . .

Rupe Werling, ex of WIBG, Philadelphia, has joined promotion staff of WMAL-ABC to handle tv sales promotion . . . Demonstrations of Ampex videotape recorder and an RCA closed circuit tv system will highlight U.S. exhibits at international trade fair at Milan, Italy, this summer . . . Charles Crawford, account exec for WTOP radio, named national contact and sales development manager for station . . . Felix Grant, WMAL d.j., has been given an additional three hours of air time daily, and has been made co-producer of his weekly live jazz tv show . . . Indie station WOL, in conjunction with Pontiac, baseball sponsor, has debutted a new 24-hour daily baseball score service.

IN DETROIT . . .

Paul Carey, formerly of the WJR announcing staff, has been promoted to assistant sports director at the station . . . WJBK-TV's "TV College" series will offer "American History to 1865" as the second U. of Detroit college credit course beginning April 21. The first course, "Introductory Psychology," which ended April 4 marked WJBK-TV as the first commercial station in Michigan to offer a regular university credit course . . . Bud Haggart, formerly employed by Flint radio stations, has joined the WWJ announcing staff . . . Chrysler Corp. and its Plymouth Division have signed for the fifth consecutive year to co-sponsor the midwest football "Game of the Week" over WJR . . . WXYZ has shifted its disk jockeys around. Paul Winter moves into the 10 a.m. to 12 (noon) spot, followed by Mickey Shorr until 3 p.m. Fred Weiss, long an announcer at the station, will take over the 7:15 p.m. to 1 a.m. spot daily. Ed McKenzie and Jack Sorrell retain their present times.

IN CLEVELAND . . .

When Dorothy Fulheim takes (21) a WEWS tour through Europe, WHK's disker Bill Gordon will pinchhit emcee chores on "One O'Clock Club" . . . Ernie Anderson scouting the new DuMont WHK purchase . . . FCC has okayed WJMO going into FM operation . . . Rue de Gravelles exiting KYW-TV production staff with Dominick Ortuso named as director . . . WEWS saluting Gene Carroll for 10 years emceeing weekly Sunday kiddie amateur show . . . KYW program manager Mark Olds won National Big Brother Week Media Award.

IN MINNEAPOLIS . . .

As a public relations gesture WCCO Radio during Holy Week replaced the middle commercials on its six major 15-minute newscasts with one-minute meditations . . . As one of Time, Inc., five radio and tv stations, WTCN-TV and Radio here now carry the news reports and analyses from its expanded Washington bureau . . . National Television Associate's local KMGM-TV changing call letters to KMSP-TV now that Metro pictures no longer has an interest in it . . . Hakon Torjesen, WCCO Radio special events reporter, resigned to become news information director for the Minnesota Republican party . . . KSTP-TV claims 59,366 separate entries, or at the rate of 14,841 per week and 2,968 per day, the largest mail pull in the station's history, for an "Easter Wardrobe" prize contest . . . Jack Horner has resigned as KMGM-TV sports director and announcer to enter another line of business, but will handle St. Paul American Association baseball games telecasts for station this summer . . . Announcer Don Reilly leaving KSTP-TV and Radio to join a Seattle, Wash., station . . . Disk jockey Leigh Kamman resigned from WLOL to go to KSTP . . . Robert J. Wetheral, former Mankato, Minn., radio news director, an addition to the WCCO Radio news staff.

Tele Follow-Up Comment

Wide Wide World

"Wide Wide World" is at its best when it doesn't stop for poetry or reflection, but crams its 90 minutes with people, things and places and reels 'em off at a fast clip. It did so with "Headline City," a looksee at Washington and its press corps, and Sunday's (13) segment was one of its best and most exciting.

Good deal of the show was sightseeing, which while interesting and informative, didn't compare for excitement with some excellently integrated film and live sequences showing the gathering and distribution of news. Sequence on the wire services, as done with the cooperation of United Press, was a beaut, infecting the viewer with deadline fever. It started at a Presidential press conference (filmed), showing the course of the conference, the Merriman Smith "Thank you, Mr. President" breakaway and rush for the phones. Then, it caught Smith on the phone to the UP office, dictating his lead story. Cut in were sequences with an earphoned typist doing the story in takes, turning it over to the copy editor, who after a fast editing job shot it out to the teletypist.

In other sequences, the New York Daily News Bureau, the St. Louis Post Dispatch office and INS were used to illustrate the various techniques in newsgathering as well as bureau organization and administration. An effective technique was the staging of interviews between newsmen and their State Dept. and other sources, showing how the newsmen get background information and angles for their yarns. Still another sequence was devoted to the columnists, with Arthur Krock, Frederick Othman, Marquis Childs and Roscoe Drummond doing off-the-cuff essayals of various headlines and the column treatments they'd give them.

Other segments included a talk with James Hagerty at Presidential headquarters at Augusta, a visit with the "Meet the Press" gang prior to telecast, a pickup at the National Press Club and films of some of their dinners, a hop to Winston-Salem to show what happens to the wire service feeds at the other end of the line, a quickie glimpse of a local tv news show in preparation, even a looksee through the offices in the National Press Bldg., including VARIETY's.

Ted Rogers, producer on this "WWW" segment, did an amazing job of integrating hundreds of people and places and a wide variety of different types of interviews and pickups into a coherent whole. Harold Azine's script was terse and businesslike, Chan.

Lucy & Desi

The Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz one hour romp on Monday (14) over CBS-TV was a laugh-productive affair. The script had a fresh setting in Sun Valley, the benefits of a Fernando Lamas guestint, and some hard writing that hit the target at will.

Of course, there were times when an hour seemed a long time for the plot demands of this script. There was an occasional drag in the action department, which was made up by frequent intrusions of comedy. Overall, it was a rewarding show.

Plotwise, the show concerned itself largely with having Miss Ball concentrate on making her husband jealous. Lamas provided the other necessary corner in this triangle. Latter incidentally, shows a liberal batch of Latin charm and ability to go along with a laugh.

One added item was a bit of singing by William Frawley with an oldtimer's savvy. Although it won't knock anybody off the bestseller list, it's a representative bit of corn not too difficult to absorb.

The other staples in this layout, Vivian Vance as Ethel Mertz, and Richard Keith as the son of the title couple, filled their allotted chores creditably. Jose.

Today

Many illuminating facets of a day in the life of an American teenager were revealed during the week-long series slugged "The Threshold Years" on "Today" over NBC-TV from April 7 through 11. Dave Garroway, in particular, was intelligently probing in his interviews with various personalities and the idea of focusing attention on the whys and wherefores of present-day youngsters over a week's span was sound and decidedly worthwhile.

Caught at length was the program "Teen-Age Mores and Customs" (10) featuring the distinguished anthropologist, Dr. Margaret Mead from Radio City, and the lesser-known but more vociferous panjandrum of present-day rock 'n' roll, Alan Freed, from the stage of the Ford Auditorium, Detroit. To demonstrate the agitating, gyrating behaviour of rock 'n' roll, Freed brought on Jerry Lee Lewis who in turn acrobated the piano and cackled "Breathless" and "Down the Line," two recent dillies.

One learned a great deal from this specific program. Kids, for example, are currently wild about the chemise look and headbands, mind you, are big, too, while on the Coast white bucks have been replaced by sneakers. Blue jeans and sideburns are out and crew neck sweaters go for both sexes. Teenagers, according to a group of youngsters in the N.Y. studios, do not dress the way they do as a sign of rebellion against their parents. Dr. Mead thought adults were not paying sufficient attention to the needs of youngsters. She observed that we had too many bad schools, bad housing and that each generation must work out its own style. Teenagers today sprinkle their speech with such phrases as "cool," "chick," "don't mess me," "You can't snow me," "the most" and "that rod's really cooking." This secret lingo, said Dr. Mead, is created for the defense and solidarity of the younger set. Carol Lynley and Burt Brinckerhoff of the "Blue Denim" cast did a teenage telephone bit pointing up the behaviour and speech pattern of contemporary children.

Dick McCutcheon of the Detroit NBC staff interviewed Freed, the latter insisting that rock 'n' roll has a good effect on kids and that "it is today's music for today's kids" just as swing was the vogue when he went to school. Freed said he created the phrase "rock 'n' roll" and that it aptly describes the beat of the music. He insisted that the lyrics of rock 'n' roll are not important, only the beat is of consequence. Moreover, today's rock 'n' roll lyrics are clean and wholesome, Freed said, adding they may have been off-color in the past, but no more. When rock 'n' roll dancers were asked to describe their feelings, one youngster, sighed: "rock 'n' roll dancing is like sitting on a pink cloud." Garroway closed with the crack that today's rock 'n' roll lyrics continue to disturb him.

Programs in "The Threshold Years" series dealt with the teenager and authority, religion, self-expression and what's ahead for the youth of America. All in all, a crackerjack, timely look-see into the poignant problems of adolescents. Rans.

Playhouse 90

To get a fast line on what was coming up, the viewer needed but to put together the title ("The Dungeon") and the early identification of Paul Douglas as a wealthy eccentric. That's the way it came off even though Dennis Weaver exclaimed, "it isn't possible in this day and age." It put a strain on credulity and took the long way around to prove its point but those who stuck it out may have found the exercise warranting their vigil over hill and dale of the eerie melodramatics.

What Weaver thought not possible was that an ex-judge meted out his own ideas of justice to innocent and guilty alike by having his victims caged up in a dungeon high above the ground. He attended all murder trials and once the defendant was sprung by his lawyer, Douglas had him spirited away to his mansion and incarcerated. There they were attended and fed by his imbecilic daughter, Patty McCormack, to the dismay of his slightly askew sister, Agnes Moorehead.

All attempts by three caged victims to break out having failed, Weaver hit upon the scheme of dognaping Miss Moorehead's pet pooch by dropping a trap with the ravelings of a sweater acting as the ropee. It worked and Miss Moorehead released Weaver as reward for releasing her pooch. It then became a game of hide-and-seek between Weaver and Douglas while the police were closing in on another trail. The suspense was beginning to thin out when Douglas put a bullet through his own head, under the bust of his father, who left him the heritage of seeing justice done when, in his warped mind, the courts failed of their bounden duty.

Weaver came off with the acting honors to prove that he is as capable of strong drama as his lighter role in "Gunsmoke." Douglas measured up to the eccentricities of his role, and the Misses Moorehead, McCormack and Julie Adams were capably assistant. Script and direction of David Swift had strong emotional impact. Helm.

BASEBALL PREVIEW
With Mel Allen, Howard Cosell, Frank Frisch, Al Rosen, Phil Rizzuto, others Producer: Edward Silverman
Director: Jack Sameth
Writers: Edward Silverman, Howard Cosell
60 Mins., Sun., 10:00 p.m.
ABC-TV (live & film)

This was a four-bagger for baseball fans. It had all the ingredients plus the flavor of the grapefruit circuit, the smell of liniment, preseason predictions and the inevitable conclusion that the Yanks would again take the American League pennant. "Baseball Preview," (13) was part film, part live over ABC-TV with Howard Cosell interviewing (on film) ball players, managers, etc., down south and Mel Allen narrating and participating in a roundtable chinfest with such knowledgeable personalities as Frank Frisch. Al Rosen and Phil Rizzuto. Cosell, well-grounded in baseball lore, came up with solid interviews with Lew Burdette, Robin Robins, Bill Rigney, Frank Robinson, Ted Kluszewski, Casey Stengel, Jim Piersall, Early Wynn, Herb Score, Ted Williams, Al Kaline and others.

As usual in panel discussions, Frisch was the scene stealer with his flow of shrewd comment on all aspects of ball playing. In this instance, he sounded off on the Baseball Hall of Fame with the observation that the citadel of honor should have players in it when they can enjoy the distinction, not later. He said Rizzuto deserved a niche, but real soon. Both Rizzuto and Frisch thought the Yanks would again take the AL pennant. Rosen, on the other hand and understandably so, wanted to see the Yanks finish in eighth position. A sad, touching note in the 60-minute show was a film flash of Roy Campanella during a Dodger party in L.A. at which he spoke feelingly of his 1958 coast plans. Consensus was that Milwaukee would again clinch the NL pennant in 1958. The only thing missing on the show was Hilda Chester, the grandstand tummler. Rans.

Foreign TV Reviews

MISS OLIVE
With Patricia Heneghan, Gareth Jones, Geoffrey Toone, Naomi Chance, Ronan O'Casey, Yvonne Warren, Patricia Webster, Sheila Gallagher, Natalie Lynn, Vilma Ann Leslie, Mark Baker, Jay Evans, Robert Ghisays, Bill Edwards
Writer: David Osborn
Director: Philip Saville
75 Mins.; Sun., 9:35 p.m.
ABC Network from Manchester

American writer David Osborn, an ex-public relations huckster, has written a slice of Manhattan life, in "Miss Olive" which owed its impact largely to a sensitive and highly moving performance by Patricia Heneghan. Osborn describes his play as a "brutal" one and certainly he pulled no punches in describing the bitter story of a typical New York executive secretary who, highly successful careerwise and financially, nevertheless misses out in the love stakes. Osborn is clearly most concerned with the problem of these talented women who live vicarious and frustrated lives and are doomed to spinsterdom, as a result of their business success.

"Miss Olive" concerns one such woman. Love has passed her by until one night, at an office party, she falls for one of her colleagues who gives her a fast line in romantic talk, leads her gently up a garden path which gives promise of a rosy future and then loses his nerve and walks out on her next day. Osborn's theme is that this is the usual state of affairs with America's career women which is obvious nonsense and his play might have been stronger if he had turned his clinical eye on the many spinsters in the late thirties and early forties who suffer the same way but without the soothing compensation of a well-paid and interesting job.

Nevertheless, "Miss Olive" is full of shrewd observation and his characters, though mainly routine ones, come to life most vividly. Patricia Heneghan is a vital actress with offbeat looks but compelling personality and she eagerly seized some excellent opportunities provided by the author. The scene in which she and Gareth Jones, as the feckless lover, discover each other was richly gripping and the moment when she realized that she had been stood up and dumbly and miserably looked at the absurd Easter bonnet she had bought for the anticipated date was poignant in the extreme.

This was mainly Miss Heneghan's night but there were also some effective performances by Jones, Geoffrey Toone and Ronan O'Casey as business tycoons, Yvonne Warren as a gabby junior with a string of boy friends and an outstanding small piece of thesping by Naomi Chance as a secretary who desperately wants to find a man of her own for keeps but has to be content with a once-a-week rendezvous with an obstinate bachelor.

Philip Saville's direction was ably controlled and caught the atmosphere of a successful New York office excellently and for this he was also indebted to the realistic, glossy sets of Voytek. Osborn's writing was at times a shade too rhetorical but he shows a keen intuition and a compelling turn of phrase. Rich.

THE EMPEROR JONES
With Kenneth Spencer, Harry H. Corbett, Connie Smith, Uriel Porter, Van Boolen, Stan Simmons, Frank Blaine, Harold Holness, Bari Johnson, Jimmy Moore, Cleo Dupont, Rita Lester, Raymond McClean, Bill Patterson, David Biraza, Chief Odongo
Producer: William Kotcheff
Adapted by Terry Southern
75 Mins., Sun., 9:35 p.m.
ABC-TV, from Birmingham

Eugene O'Neill filled the drama slot on both the British networks last Sunday (30). While the second part of "Strange Interlude" was being aired on BBC-TV, "The Emperor Jones" was being given the treatment by the commercial outlet in a production emanating from ABC TV's studios. Coincidence or not, it was certainly a unique tribute.

"Emperor Jones" is hardly the type of program to command and hold a mass audience. At the best of times it would not be an easy-going play but the adaptation by Terry Southern and the addition of ballet sequences to illustrate the nightmare of the haunted man hardly eased the way.

The dramatic highlight of the production was the performance by Kenneth Spencer in the title role. A man whose stature measured up to the character, he had an authority and presence which enriched the role and gave it depth and meaning. The arrogance which he displayed in the first act hit the right note and the mental torture he suffered as he tried to escape—knowing his end as a tribal ruler had come—had a grim air of real-

(Continued on page 42)

PANTOMIME QUIZ
With Mike Stokey, host; Howard Morris, Carol Burnett, Milt Kamen, Stubby Kaye, Denise Darcel, Tom Poston, Carol Haney, Dorothy Hart; Don Russell, announcer
Producer: Stokey
Director: Alan Dinehart
30 Mins., Tues., 9:30 p.m.
ASSOCIATED PRODUCTS INC.
ABC-TV, New York
(Grey)

Mike Stokey likes to kid himself about the fact that his "Pantomime Quiz" cannot find a winter berth, except in some dark cave. Only difference, he pointed out on h's latest "replacement show" premiere, is that this time he had to come out of hibernation earlier than usual.

Now in its 11th season, "Panto" is as sensible a summer show as one is likely to find, but for the last couple of summer seasons, a distracting note of professionalism has been noted in the format and the preparation of the competing four-man pantomime teams. Stokey chooses the most charming and exuberant of guests (as the roster for the first stanza indicates), but there's little vicarious pleasure left in the parlor game; the way it's played on the air is too proficient and the formatting is considerably more polished than at home.

There should be little doubt in any homescreener's mind that the participants are going to get all the answers. Very fact that they can get such things as "Incredible Shrinking Man — or Who's Got Short Shorts? and Crowbar — Saloon That's for the Birds," in under a minute is a sign of just how professional the professionals on "Panto" have become. The signs are caught too quickly, leaving little of the pleasant anguish that comes of not being able to put a bit of mime across.

Stokey programmed only punch lines and puns that to ordinary might seem completely impossible to convey without words. And to think that in a living room "To be or not to be" can take the full two minutes! Art.

SWING INTO SPRING
With Benny Goodman, Ella Fitzgerald, Harry James, Jo Stafford, McGuire Sisters, Ray Eberle, Bambi Linn & Rodd Alexander, Red Norvo, Teddy Wilson, Dave Garroway
Producer: Charles Dubin
Musical Director: Ralph Burns
Writer: Sarett Rudley
60 Mins., Wed. (9), 9 p.m.
TEXACO
NBC-TV, from N.Y. (in color)
(Cunningham & Walsh)

"Swing Into Spring," a one-time Texaco shot pitching for the motorists' seasonal tune-up biz, was a spotty musical stanza that failed to make maximum use of the available talent. As a reminiscence of the swing era of two decades ago, it produced some nostalgic notes, but the drive and the excitement which typified the pop music of the 1935-40 period was missing, except for the performances of Ella Fitzgerald and Jo Stafford, solo and in tandem.

Benny Goodman, billed in his heyday as "King of Swing," fronted a big orch with a beat and a sound that was much more refined and polished than the early BG organization. Perhaps it was the memory lane accent in the script, but the old swing standards sounded like carbons of the real thing even though such superlative sidemen as Teddy Wilson, on piano; Harry James, on trumpet; and Red Norvo, on vibes, were on hand for some solo riffs. The flat camera work during the instrumentals didn't provide any visual lifts either.

The show was much more successful in the vocal department. Although Miss Fitzgerald was not too impressive in her opening number, "Riding High," she hit her usual solid groove in a midway "jam session" routine with "I Gotta Right To Sing The Blues," and "Hard-Hearted Hannah," and, together with Miss Stafford, in great versions of "St. Louis Blues" and "It's Gotta Be This Or That." Miss Stafford, in her solo spots, was at the very top of her form on "I've Got It Bad" and "Let's Get Away From It All."

The McGuire Sisters contributed a tricky arrangement of "Blue Skies" and, together with some okay hoofing, "I'd Rather Lead A Band." Ray Eberle, who was part of routine in which the sounds of the old Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey bands were recreated, also did well on his one song, "Blue Champagne," but here again the cameras monotonously trained on his face throughout the number.

As a showcase for Goodman's clarinet, there was a preem of a new Ralph Burns' composition, "Spring Rhapsody," which had a pretty melodic line, but this segment was presented with a stiff formality that slowed down the proceedings. As narrator, Dave Garroway's bland style and clinched script also failed to infuse any vitality in the show Herm.

BOSTON BALLROOM
With Bob Clayton, host; Everly Bros., Jimmy Durante, Cambridge Catholic High School students, others Producer-Director: Sid Pike
60 Mins. Sat. (12), 8-9 p.m.
WHDH-TV, Boston

Here is a fine example of live locally produced tv fare which is Channel 5's challenge to the nets on prime time. Slotted opposite the two Perrys, Como and Mason, show, which segued in following the Dick Clarke Show, nabbed an unbilled walkon from Jimmy Durante, appearing in a nitery date at Blinstrub's. Teresa Brewer, who had been billed, was unable to come in due to illness, but dancing of the high schoolers to disks spun by Bob Clayton plus numbers by Everly Bros., Durante and interviews filled up nicely.

WHDH-TV has mounted the show for the teeners, but Clayton makes slick pitch to "older" viewers by explaining terping of the youngsters and also interview chats with the principal, teachers, etc. in which he brings out smoothly comments on the present generation contrasted with parent's days. Kids illustrated "The Stroll" to a recording by the Diamonds. Durante yocked it up with Clayton to open the show and pitched for his new album. Show got off to great start with camera panning on Durante's phiz for opening shot and Durante rushing about shouting "Where's Clayton?"

Station should be kudosed for its enterprise in taking up this type of show and fashioning it into a well paced quiet version with decorum.

That show has impact is already determined by WHDH-TV decision to keep it going indefinitely following three showcases and running of pilot film of a high school record hop at Bridgewater High. Guy.

VARIETY-TELEPULSE CITY-BY-CITY PROGRAM CHART. VARIETY's weekly chart is based on the 22 major markets regularly reported by Telepulse each month, in addition to 133 other Telepulse tabulated U.S. markets, covered over the course of a year. Cities will be rotated weekly. The VARIETY chart is a compilation of data on syndicated films, as well as network and live programs, in each market. Under the top 10 multi-weekly heading, the (†) stands for local programming and the () for network shows.*

LOS ANGELES

Stations: KABC, KCOP, KHJ, KNXT, KRCA, KTLA, KTTV. TV Homes: 1,892,000. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	Bob Hope (Sun. 9:00-10:00)	KRCA	39.7
2.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	KNXT	37.3
3.	Groucho Marx (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	KRCA	33.1
4.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	KNXT	31.3
5.	Climax (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	KNXT	28.8
6.	Perry Como (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	KRCA	28.2
6.	Bob Cummings (Tues. 9:30-10:00)	KRCA	27.4
7.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 8:30-9)	KNXT	27.4
8.	What's My Line (Sun. 10:30-11:00)	KNXT	25.9
9.	$64,000 Question (Tues. 9:00-9:30)	KNXT	24.8

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6:00)	KABC	16.2
2.	*Queen for a Day (M-F 1:00-1:45)	KRCA	12.8
3.	†Big News (M-F 10:30-11:00)	KNXT	11.6
4.	*CBS News (M-F 6:15-6:30)	KNXT	11.1
5.	*Art Linkletter (M-F 11:30-12:00)	KNXT	11.0
6.	†New—Geo. Putnam (M-F 10-10:15)	KTTV	10.6
7.	†6 O'Clock Report (M-F 6:00-6:15)	KNXT	10.4
8.	*Matinee Theatre (M-F 12:00-1:00)	KRCA	9.7
9.	†Popeye (M-F 6:00-6:30)	KTLA	9.6
10.	†Little Rascals (M,T,Th,F 7-7:30)	KHJ	9.5

TOP TWENTY SYNDICATED SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRIB.	AV. RTG.	AV. SH.
1.	Star Performance (Sat. 9:30)	KNXT	Official	20.3	31
2.	Highway Patrol (Mon 9:00)	KTTV	Ziv	15.3	22
3.	Sheriff of Cochise (Sat. 7:30)	KTTV	NTA	15.0	35
4.	Death Valley Days (Thurs. 7:00)	KRCA	U.S. Borax	14.8	23
4.	Honeymooners (Thurs. 7:00)	KNXT	CBS	14.8	23
5.	I Search for Adventures (Thurs. 7)	KCOP	Bagnall	14.4	23
6.	San Francisco Beat (Sat. 9:30)	KTTV	CBS	13.4	21
7.	Frontier Doctor (Sat. 7:00)	KTTV	HTS	12.9	21
8.	Men of Annapolis (Thurs. 7:30)	KNXT	Ziv	12.8	19
9.	Whirlybirds (Mon. 7:30)	KHJ	CBS	12.5	22
10.	Sea Hunt (Mon. 7:30)	KTTV	Ziv	11.3	20
11.	Star Performance (M, W 10:00)	KNXT	Official	10.2	16
12.	Harbor Command (Mon. 9:30)	KTTV	Ziv	9.9	15
12.	If You Had a Million (Tues. 10:00)	KNXT	MCA	9.8	16
14.	Popeye (M-F 6:00)	KTLA	AAP	9.6	21
15.	Little Rascals (M,T,Th,F 7:00)	KHJ	Interstate	9.5	19
16.	Studio 57 (Sat. 8:00)	KTTV	MCA	9.3	14
17.	26 Men (Mon. 7:00)	KRCA	ABC	8.9	16
18.	Badge 714 (Mon. 8:30)	KTTV	NBC	8.8	13
19.	Boots and Saddles (Tues. 10:30)	KRCA	NBC	8.6	18

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
Gisele MacKenzie	KRCA	15.4
Studio One	KNXT	21.2
People Are Funny	KTTV	21.9
Honeymooners	KNXT	14.8
Death Valley Days	KRCA	14.8
Honeymooners	KNXT	14.8
Death Valley Days	KRCA	14.8
Star Performance	KNXT	20.3
Perry Mason	KNXT	22.5
Tic Tac Dough	KRCA	18.2
Sea Hunt	KTTV	11.3
Whirlybirds	KHJ	12.5
This Is Your Life	KNXT	23.6
Studio One	KNXT	20.3
Californians	KRCA	16.9
6 O'Clock Report	KNXT	10.4
CBS News	KNXT	11.1
Mr. Adams and Eve	KNXT	19.2
Perry Como	KRCA	30.2
Burns and Allen	KNXT	18.9
Tales of Wells Fargo	KRCA	21.0
Big News	KNXT	11.9

SAN FRANCISCO

Stations: KGO, KOVR, KPIX, KRON, KSAN, KTVU. TV Homes: 807,600. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	KPIX	40.9
2.	Perry Como (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	KRON	37.1
3.	Groucho Marx (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	KRON	35.2
4.	Bob Hope (Sun. 9:00-10:00)	KRON	34.2
5.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	KPIX	33.3
6.	Burns and Allen (Mon. 7:00-7:30)	KPIX	29.9
7.	Tales of Wells Fargo (Mon. 8:30-9)	KRON	29.4
8.	Twenty One (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	KRON	29.0
9.	Boxing (Fri. 7:00-8:00)	KRON	28.7
9.	Shirley Temple (Wed. 7:30-8:30)	KRON	28.7

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†Popeye (M-F 5:30-6:00)	KRON	19.1
2.	*NBC News (M-F 6:15-6:30)	KRON	18.3
2.	†Shell News (M-F 6:00-6:15)	KRON	18.3
3.	*Queen for a Day (M-F 1:00-1:45)	KRON	15.8
4.	*CBS News (M-F 6:15-6:30)	KPIX	14.7
5.	†Giant Movie (M,T,Th 10:30-Signoff)	KRON	14.4
6.	†Channel 5 News (M-F 6:00-6:15)	KPIX	14.2
7.	†Big Movie (M,W,F 10:00-Signoff)	KPIX	14.0
8.	†Fireman Frank (M-F 5:15-5:30)	KRON	13.9
9.	†Golden Gate Playhouse (M-F 3-5)	KRON	13.3

1.	Honeymooners (Thurs. 7:00)	KRON	CBS	26.5	45	Big Story	KPIX 19.5
2.	Sheriff of Cochise (Sat. 6:30)	KRON	NTA	24.5	48	Perry Mason	KPIX 20.7
3.	Martin Kane (Sat. 9:30)	KPIX	Ziv	23.9	36	Lawrence Welk	KGO 22.0
4.	Highway Patrol (Tues. 6:30)	KRON	Ziv	23.2	42	Name That Tune	KPIX 15.2
5.	Science Fiction Thea. (Thurs. 6:30)	KRON	Ziv	22.9	42	Sergeant Preston	KPIX 16.2
6.	Harbor Command (Wed. 6:30)	KRON	Ziv	21.9	42	X Minus 80 Days	KPIX 14.2
7.	Silent Service (Sat. 7:00)	KRON	NBC	21.2	35	Perry Mason	KPIX 19.5
8.	Dr. Hudson's Secret Jour. (Sat. 10)	KPIX	MCA	20.9	39	Mike Wallace	KGO 16.5
9.	Big Story (Thurs. 7:00)	KPIX	Official	19.5	33	Honeymooners	KRON 26.5
10.	If You Had a Million (Tues. 7:00)	KRON	MCA	19.2	32	Mr. Adams and Eve	KPIX 24.9
10.	San Francisco Beat (Sat. 10:30)	KPIX	CBS	19.2	37	Your Hit Parade	KRON 17.9
11.	Popeye (Mon.-Fri. 5:30)	KRON	AAP	19.1	48	Mickey Mouse Club	KGO 10.6
12.	Gray Ghost (Fri. 6:30)	KRON	CBS	18.9	33	Leave It to Beaver	KPIX 19.7
12.	I Search for Adventure (Thurs. 7:30)	KPIX	Bagnall	18.9	27	Tic Tac Dough	KRON 23.5
12.	Men of Annapolis (Mon. 6:30)	KRON	Ziv	18.9	38	Robin Hood	KPIX 15.9
13.	State Trooper (Sun. 7:00)	KPIX	MCA	18.2	42	Sea Hunt	KRON 17.4
14.	Sea Hunt (Sun. 7:00)	KRON	Ziv	17.4	41	State Trooper	KPIX 18.2
15.	City Detective (Sun. 10:30)	KRON	MCA	16.2	35	What's My Line	KPIX 23.2
16.	Decoy (Tues. 9:30)	KPIX	Official	14.9	24	Bob Cummings	KRON 27.5
17.	Little Rascals (M-F 5:15-5:30)	KRON	Interstate	13.9	47	Fun at Five	KGO 10.0

ST. LOUIS

Stations: KSD, KTVI, KWK. TV Homes: 560,200. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	KWK	41.9
2.	Perry Como (Sat. 7:00-8:00)	KSD	40.8
3.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 8:30-10:00)	KWK	36.4
4.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	KWK	35.5
5.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 8:30-9)	KWK	35.2
6.	December Bride (Mon. 8:30-9:00)	KWK	34.9
7.	Alfred Hitchcock (Sun. 8:30-9:00)	KWK	34.7
8.	I've Got a Secret (Wed. 8:30-9:00)	KWK	33.3
9.	What's My Line (Sun. 9:30-10:00)	KWK	32.9
10.	Red Skelton (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	KWK	32.0

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†10:00 Report (M-F 10:00-10:15)	KWK	18.6
2.	*Art Linkletter (M-F 1:30-2:00)	KWK	16.2
3.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6:00)	KTVI	15.7
4.	†Latest News (M-F 6:15-6:30)	KSD	14.9
5.	†Wea., Sportsview (M-F 6:00-6:15)	KSD	14.6
6.	*Amer. Bandstand (M-F 3-3:30, 4-5)	KTVI	14.3
7.	*Queen for a Day (M-F 3:00-3:45)	KSD	13.7
7.	†Wrangler's Club (M-F 5:00-5:45)	KSD	13.7
8.	†Movie (M-W 10:30-Signoff)	KWK	13.6
9.	*Price Is Right (M-F 10:00-10:30)	KSD	13.5

1.	Death Valley Days (Sat. 9:30)	KWK	U. S. Borax	31.0	52	Your Hit Parade	KSD 17.9
2.	Boots and Saddles (Fri. 9:30)	KWK	NBC	27.2	45	Basketball	KSD 19.0
3.	State Trooper (Tues. 9:30)	KSD	MCA	26.2	41	Passport to Danger	KWK 20.2
4.	Whirlybirds (Tues. 10:00)	KSD	CBS	24.9	47	10:00 Report	KWK 17.7
						Movie	KWK 17.7
5.	Frontier Doctor (Thurs. 10:00)	KSD	HTS	24.2	45	10:00 Report	KWK 22.0
						Warner Brothers	KWK 19.0
6.	Harbor Command (Wed. 9:30)	KSD	Ziv	22.9	36	Circle Theatre	KWK 26.9
7.	Annie Oakley (Sat. 6:00)	KWK	CBS	22.0	67	Cartoons	KSD 6.0
						Farm Newsreel	KSD 6.3
8.	Star Performance (Wed. 10:00)	KWK	Official	20.5	42	Studio 57	KSD 17.4
9.	Highway Patrol (Thurs. 9:30)	KSD	Ziv	20.2	30	Playhouse 90	KWK 35.7
9.	Passport to Danger (Tues. 9:30)	KWK	ABC	20.2	32	State Trooper	KSD 26.2
10.	Honeymooners (Sun. 6:00)	KTVI	CBS	17.9	35	My Friend Flicka	KSD 18.5
10.	Martin Kane (Mon. 10:00)	KSD	Ziv	17.9	39	Silent Service	KWK 17.9
10.	Silent Service (Mon. 10:00)	KWK	NBC	17.9	39	Martin Kane	KSD 17.9
11.	Damon Runyon Theatre (Tues. 9:30)	KTVI	Screen Gems	17.5	27	State Trooper	KSD 26.2
12.	Studio 57 (Wed. 10:00)	KSD	MCA	17.4	35	Star Performance	KWK 20.5
13.	Cisco Kid (Sat. 5:30)	KSD	Ziv	17.2	52	Paul Winchell	KTVI 8.9
14.	Sky King (Sat. 11:30)	KWK	Nabisco	16.5	56	Fred Moegle	KTVI 8.5
15.	I Search for Adventure (Sun. 10:00)	KWK	Bagnall	16.4	35	Jane Wyman	KSD 16.2
16.	Big Story (Fri. 9:30)	KTVI	Official	14.5	24	Boots and Saddles	KWK 27.2
17.	Frontier (Sun. 10:30)	KSD	NBC	14.2	33	News—E. Brown	KWK 16.7
						Sports Page	KWK 14.7
17.	Sea Hunt (Thurs. 9:00)	KTVI	Ziv	14.2	20	Playhouse 90	KWK 36.5
17.	The Tracers (Sun. 5:30)	KSD	Minot	14.2	31	Lone Ranger	KTVI 16.2

CLEVELAND

Stations: KYW, WEWS, WJW. TV Homes: 484,100. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WJW	42.9
2.	Perry Como (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	KYW	41.2
3.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	WJW	38.1
4.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	WJW	36.9
5.	Wyatt Earp (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WEWS	35.9
6.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WJW	32.2
6.	Sugar Foot (Tues. 7:30-8:30)	WEWS	32.2
7.	Playhouse of Stars (Fri. 9:30-10:00)	WJW	31.5
8.	Climax (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	WJW	30.8
9.	Maverick (Sun. 7:30-8:30)	WEWS	30.7
9.	Red Skelton (Tues. 9:30-10:00)	WJW	30.7

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†Popeye (M-F 5:30-6:00)	KYW	23.8
2.	†Sohio Sports Final (M-F 11-11:15)	WJW	19.8
3.	*Amer. Bandstand (M-F 3-3:30, 4-5)	WEWS	17.8
4.	†6 O'Clock Adventure (M-F 6-7:00)	KYW	17.4
5.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6:00)	WEWS	17.0
6.	*CBS News (M-F 6:45-7:00)	WJW	15.5
7.	†Dinner Theatre (M-F 6:00-6:30)	WEWS	15.2
8.	†News—T. Field (M-F 11:00-11:15)	WEWS	15.1
9.	†11th Hr. News, Wea. (M-F 11-11:15)	KYW	14.9
10.	*Comedy Time (M-F 5:00-5:30)	KYW	14.8

1.	Silent Service (Sat. 10:30)	WJW	NBC	31.2	48	Your Hit Parade	KYW 18.5
2.	Highway Patrol (Tues. 7:00)	WJW	Ziv	23.9	42	6 O'Clock Adventure	KYW 18.4
3.	Popeye (M-F 5:30)	KYW	AAP	23.8	53	Mickey Mouse Club	WEWS 17.0
4.	Frontier Doctor (Mon. 7:00)	KYW	HTS	22.9	38	Badge 714	WJW 19.2
5.	Annie Oakley (Sat. 6:30)	WJW	CBS	22.2	55	Bowling Stars	WEWS 15.0
						Liberace	WEWS 13.3
6.	Death Valley Days (Thurs. 7:00)	KYW	U. S. Borax	21.5	38	If You Had a Million	WEWS 19.5
6.	San Francisco Beat (Wed. 7:00)	WJW	CBS	21.5	38	Captain David Grief	KYW 19.9
7.	Studio 57 (Fri. 7:00)	KYW	MCA	20.2	36	My Little Margie	WEWS 18.5
8.	Captain David Grief (Wed. 7:00)	KYW	Guild	19.9	35	San Francisco Beat	WJW 21.5
8.	Kit Carson (Sun. 6:00)	WEWS	MCA	19.9	50	Boats and Saddles	WJW 11.5
9.	Gray Ghost (Tues. 10:30)	WJW	CBS	19.5	37	Code Three	WEWS 18.2
9.	If You Had a Million (Thurs. 7:00)	WEWS	MCA	19.5	34	Death Valley Days	KYW 21.5
10.	Badge 714 (Mon. 7:00)	WJW	NBC	19.2	32	Frontier Doctor	KYW 22.9
11.	Charlie Chan (Sat. 7:00)	WJW	TPA	18.5	48	City Detective	KYW 10.5
11.	My Little Margie (Fri. 7:00)	WEWS	Official	18.5	33	Studio 57	KYW 20.2
11.	Waterfront (Thurs. 10:00)	WEWS	MCA	18.5	26	Playhouse 90	WJW 39.2
12.	Code 3 (Tues. 10:30)	WEWS	ABC	18.2	34	Gray Ghost	WJW 19.5
12.	Sheriff of Cochise (Thurs. 10:30)	KYW	NTA	18.2	26	Playhouse 90	WJW 37.4
13.	Range Rider (Sun. 6:30)	WEWS	CBS	17.9	46	Jane Wyman	WJW 14.2
13.	Sea Hunt (Fri. 7:00)	WJW	Ziv	17.9	32	Studio 57	KYW 20.2

(Continued on page 36)

Britain Has Its Own Version Of TV Tape—'Vera'

London, April 15.

The BBC's Vision Electronic Recording Apparatus—already tagged "Vera"—will revolutionize the present form of tele-recording it was claimed at a special demonstration of the apparatus on which BBC technicians have been working for nearly two years. "Vera" provides immediate reproduction from a tape-recording. At the demonstration a recording in sound and vision was flashed on to the screen within a minute of viewers seeing the original program. A telerecording would have taken several hours.

Cecil McGivern, deputy director of BBC television, claimed that the tape recording method would be particularly useful to the news, outside broadcasting and talks. Quality was excellent, lacking all the fuzziness usually associated with telerecording.

In America tape recording has been in use for about two years but the BBC claims that in many respects its method is better. Whereas in the U. S. special wide tape is needed, the BBC uses magnetic tape of half-an-inch width which is obtainable from any manufacturer. The BBC is to offer "Vera" for development to any interested manufacturer with a view to export and eventually adaptation to home use.

"Vera" will shortly be put into experimental service at the BBC's Lime Grove Studios.

META Educ'l Spec In 'Concept' Bow

A two-hour educational "spec" centering on the meanings and concepts of freedom will be produced by META (Metropolitan Educational Television Assn.) and presented on WCBS-TV, the CBS flagship in New York, on May 4. Sunday presentation will run from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m.

Program is the first of a series to be done by META for the station under the working title of "Concept." Series will examine the concepts basic to 20th Century man, including such topics as law, the state, education, science, etc. For the first show on freedom, host and star will be Prof. Charles Frankel, philosophy teacher at Columbia U. in N. Y.

Format will have Frankel exploring the concept of freedom from every philosophical angle, and utilizing various forms of discussion, i.e., straight lecture, interviews, panel sessions. Program will be produced by META program chief Dick Heffner and will originate from META's own production setup at the Carnegie Endowment Institute Bldg., in N. Y.

B'CAST PIONEERS TO HONOR DE MILLE

Hollywood, April 15.

Cecil B. DeMille will be guest of honor and speaker at the 17th annual dinner-meeting of the Broadcast Pioneers, Tuesday, April 29, at the Statler Hotel. De Mille will be awarded a special citation for his contributions to radio and tv drama. Additional awards will be announced at the gathering.

John F. Patt, head of WJR, Detroit, and prexy of the Broadcast Pioneers, announced that four additional chapters have been organized: Northern Ohio, Michigan, Southern California and Heart of America (Kansas City, Mo.).

Carl George, WGAR, is prexy of Northern Ohio group; Don DeGroot, WWJ, heads up the Michigan chapter; Robert O. Reynolds, KMPC, preside over the Southern California chapter, and E. K. Hartenbower, KCMO, Kansas City, is spearheading the Heart of America unit.

'I Was A Coward For The AAU'

By JO RANSON

It was 9:47:03 a.m. and on my ciggy-stained desk was another one of the boss' curt green notes attached to a public notice from a morning daily. The note read: "Rans, who?" and the notice said "WANTED: Men in good physical condition to play aggressive contact sport on tv show in preparation. High potential money prizes. All sizes and weights. Apply in person. Wilton Productions . . ."

This was right down my athletic alley. I owned dumb bells, read musty copies of Physical Culture and possessed a P.S.A.L. pin from P.S. 157, Brooklyn. The boss, with unfailing perspicuity, had chosen the right man for the assignment. So I thought.

I called on Wilton Productions and met one, Gordon Auchincloss, who said he was readying a tv affair called "Free For All," in which brawn for a change would replace brains. "This program is designed to get away from the plethora of intellectual quiz programs now on the air," he said. You know, all the brainy shows. It's high time the muscle boys, the lads with physical ability got a chance on the air. Here's an application blank and be sure to fill out the "How do you rate yourself?" section. It read: "Very brave," "Fairly brave," "Courageous," and "Coward." The blank also asked: "Do you wish to maintain your amateur standing in any particular sport?"

Auchincloss, who is co-producing "Free For All" with Happy Felton, said he is seeking male teams of five to compete in various obstacle course games and encounters similar to "Prisoner's Base" and "Capture the Castle." Competitions would be staged in arenas such as Ebbets Field and Polo Grounds and portions of the events would be telecast. One of the regular features would be to hide money and keys to new cars in the arena and have spectators swarm on the field in search of the prizes. This would be called "Land Rush." Teams could win as high as $100,000 to $125,000, according to Auchinloss. Many of the games would be based on tough army manuals and physical education books.

Response to the ad for athletic men produced such types as former paratroopers, ex-Marines, stunt men, dynamiters, prospective cops, a jailer, a PH.D in economics residing at the Harvard Club and a junior exec with J. P. Morgan Co. To date he's had 100 personal applicants and 50 phone calls. Auchincloss said one of the problems he faces is the AAU and what happens to the amateur standing of contestants. Major tv outlets have shown considerable interest in "Free for All," he said, and it was his hope to launch the show next month. He thought it would be more interesting to watch than the Roller Derbies that got tv off to a shoving, elbowing start a decade ago. Auchincloss looked at my application blank. "You forgot to rate yourself," he said.

"Put me down as a coward," I replied, turning the pale green of VARIETY's anni cover.

Six Radio-TV Specials Set For 300 Stations On Israel's 10th Anni

Three hundred radio stations and many tv outlets in the U.S. will broadcast special programs on the 10th anni of the founding of the State of Israel beginning April 24. Saul Carson, radio director and producer of the American Committee for Israel's 10th Anniversary Celebration, is fashioning six special programs for the occasion. In this project he's being counseled by Robert M. Weitman, CBS veepee of program development, and Morris Novik, radio-tv labor consultant. Both Weitman and Novik are members of a large showbiz committee hailing the occasion.

Opening ceremonies in the American celebration will take place at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, on April 24. Former President Harry Truman will be one of the speakers and the nets will carry this event.

Carson is readying three 15-minute transcribed shows, "Israel Is Born," a documentary with voices of outstanding Israeli leaders and "Israel Sings," two programs with folk songs plus English continuity. Also in the works are three 30-minute productions, among them a "Salute to Israel," with Carl Sandburg poems, music by Ernest Bloch; narration by Dr. Allan Nevins, Prof. of American History at Columbia U., Gen. Lucius D. Clay; Dr. Channing H. Tobias, chairman of the board of NAACP, and former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, general chairman of the entire anni project.

Other 30-minute shows are "The Governor Salutes Israel" featuring tributes from seven American governors, and "To Israel a Thanksgiving," a religious show with religious leaders of various faiths.

David Ross will play the role of poet and prophet on two 30-minute shows. Announcers will be John Causier and Chet Gould.

Committee members from broadcasting include Tex McCrary, Harry Maizlish, Dr. Frank Stanton, Steve Allen, Sid Caesar and Ed Sullivan.

DOZIER SETS RUBIN FOR HR. FILM SERIES

Hollywood, April 15.

CBS Coast program chief William Dozier has signed Stanley Rubin as a producer, and assigned him to a new hour-long filmed series. Ruban has been a producer at TCF-TV, and prior to that was at RKO.

Rubin will produce an untitled dramatic series about an airline detective. Series will have a continuing character in the lead role, and will be located all over the world. Pilot script was penned by Irwin and Gwen Gielgud, and the pilot film is due to roll in the next 60 days.

Rubin was a producer at RKO when Dozier was production chief there.

Ralston, Miles Buy 'Beaver,' ABC-TV

"Leave It To Beaver," the George Gobel-owned situation comedy package, got a reprieve on next season, but on a different network. Ralston-Purina and Miles Labs, who currently co-sponsor "Broken Arrow" on Tuesday nights over ABC-TV, have inked as a team again and next season are inserting "Beaver" at 8:30 p.m. Fridays on ABC.

Meantime, Procter & Gamble bought Tuesday at 9 on ABC. Slot currently holds "Arrow." The soap company will insert "The Rifleman," a package acquired from Wm. Morris, in the slot.

"Beaver" spent this season on CBS, first Fridays at 7:30 and then Wednesdays at 8. For the summer, ABC is inserting a live musical show from Hollywood in the 8:30 Friday anchorage. It's called "Stars of Jazz."

'DOTTO' INVITES $1,000,000 SUIT

A $1,000,000 damage suit has been filed by David Robbins, film producer and packager, this week against Frank Cooper Assoc., Sy Fischer, CBS, Colgate-Palmolive Co. and Ted Bates agency for alleged use of a quiz game entitled "Who's Dot?", the format of which it's claimed is the same as "Dotto," currently being aired over CBS.

Robbins in a complaint filed in the Supreme Court of New York, claims to have presented the format to the Cooper talent organization in Nov., 1955. Robbins contends that he and Cooper representatives entered into negotiations for the talent organization to represent Robbins but that negotiations were never completed.

Louisville—Jim Bollinger, announcer at local radio stations for the past 11 years, joins the sales staff of WAVE radio, effective April 7.

BBC Having Trouble With Its Comics; Was Sellers In Bad Taste?

London, April 15.

There has been a tiff between comedian Peter Sellers and the BBC; and Sellers, who, as one of the Goons, is one of the UK's star tv and radio funsters, is still pretty touchy about it. It all started when the BBC frowned on a proposed Sellers' sketch concerning the Prime Minister which, it opined, was bad taste. At the end of the show Sellers pattered: "It's all lies. All lies. It's Tom Sloan's fault"— and then added a reference to liniment. Sloan's is the name of a well-known liniment and Tom Sloan is acting boss of BBC's tv light entertainment.

Sloan sent Sellers a letter of rebuke, describing the comment as "inexcusable and unforgiveable." With no further BBC dates on his books Sellers decided that he was out, but now the BBC has offered him a tv date on May 3. It says: "We do not consider there is any quarrel now. Mr. Sloan has not taken offense about the remark made about him." Whereupon Sellers agreed to take the date but cautiously added that "he will think twice about doing a half-hour program of his own on BBC."

Another Goon comedian, Spike Milligan, frustrated by tv's attitude to his particular zany type of comedy, has left for Australia with dark hints about it being for good.

400G ABC Radio Biz

ABC Radio has inked four sponsors worth $500,000 in gross sales to its remaining sked. Ex-Lax, GMC Truck & Coach, Kitchen Art Foods and Miller Brewing are the bankrollers.

Ex-Lax is co-sponsoring the "Weekday Newscasts" Tuesdays and Thursdays at 10:55 a.m. and Mondays and Fridays from 1:55 to 2. GMC taken "Late Sports," a nightly five-minute strip, and Kitchen Art has two segs on Don McNeill. Miller has taken the biggest sked, signing for 50 ABC five-minute newscasts weekly.

TV Zooms In a Tornado

Wichita Falls, April 15.

Probably the first time in the history of the fifth estate, tv was in a position to bring viewers a first-hand picture of an approaching and terrifying tornado.

Syd Grayson, prexy of KSYD-TV, CBS affiliate, reported that on April 2, at 5:35 p.m. the station was warned of an approaching tornado. One minute later he ran outside and saw it heading toward the city and forming directly over the tv station. At 5:37 p.m. his cameramen and chief engineer had their cameras on a parking ramp and pointed smack at the oncoming tornado.

At 5:40 p.m. Bill Hood, KSYD's news director, was on the air describing the formation of the monster.

The tornado struck at 5:42 p.m. with the funnels hitting the ground less than 100 yards from the live cameras. The Zoomar lens of the tv cameras had them in perfect detail on live tv. Hood then went on to describe the location and progress of the funnels. The telecast of the event was continued until 5:58 p.m. at which time the danger had passed over the city.

KSYD was flooded with communiques hailing the staff for remarkable coverage of a nightmarish 20 minute battle with nature.

Lotsa Dodgers, Giants Telecasts On Tap for N.Y.

WNTA-TV, the Newark-New York tv station which just became part of National Telefilm Associates, is about to close deals with the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals—but only for the games these two National League teams play against the Dodgers and the Giants. A completion of negotiations will give the Gotham video outlet 44 Dodger and Giant games to televise in the town where the teams were homebased last year and where interest in them reportedly still rides high.

It's understood the Pirates deal with WNTA-TV has been closed, all but for the final inking. The dicker with the Cards is still going on. The Dodgers and the Giants play 11 games in each of the cities they visit, so, as the arrangement shapes up, they'll each provide 22 games for New York homescreeners. Add these 44 games, to the 22 others the Frisco Giants and the L. A. Dodgers play in Philly, and the New Yorkers have three-quarters of their away skeds available on New York tv. WOR-TV will be carrying all of the Philadelphia Phillies' home games.

WNTA is going after the Dodgers and Giants through St. Louis and Pittsburgh to skirt extensive expense in line charges from the Coast. Pittsburgh is relatively close to New York, and St. Louis is not half-way across the country, as compared to the 3,000-mile coaxial needed for Coast emanations.

DuMont's 243G '57 Net Income

After losing $899,593 in 1956, DuMont Broadcasting Corp. showed a 1957 net income of $243,460 or 15.8 cents a share. For the last seven months of 1957, the earnings of New York radio station WNEW, acquired by DuMont last spring, were added to those from WABD, N.Y. tv'er, and WTTG, another video station in Washington.

Company's gross revenues were $10,293,587 as opposed to 1956's $5,564,913. The new profit is not subject to Federal tax since there was a tax loss carried forward from 1956.

Company in which there were 6,983 stockholders at the end of 1957, as holding its annual stockholders powwow May 12 in New York. Principal item on the agenda will be to vote on changing the company name from DuMont Broadcasting Corp., a partial carryover from the old days of the DuMont Television Network, to Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp. Feeling among company's top execs is that the DuMont name forces a comparison with the former network despite the fact that there is little, if any, corporate similarity remaining. They also figure that, comparisons being odious, it's difficult to live down the fact that there were once dozens of stations connected with the DuMont name (after founder Allen B. DuMont) while DuMont Broadcasting only owns four stations, two in tv and two in radio, latter two added in the last 12 months. Besides WNEW is a Cleveland radio station, WHK, on which an official closing still pends.

Incidentally on May 5, DuMont Laboratories, from which DuMont Broadcasting was spun off a couple of years back, is having its own annual stockholders' meeting. That is expected to take place in New Jersey, at the manufacturing company headquarters.

Mull Andy Williams AS Boone Summer Sub

Singer Andy Williams is being mulled by sponsor Chevrolet as Pat Boone's summer replacement.

Boone will take a 13-week hiatus from his Thursday-at-9 half-hour sometime early this summer. He'll definitely be back on ABC-TV next fall.

VARIETY-TELEPULSE CITY-BY-CITY PROGRAM CHART.

VARIETY's weekly chart is based on the 22 major markets regularly reported by Telepulse each month, in addition to 133 other Telepulse tabulated U.S. markets, covered over the course of a year. Cities will be rotated weekly. The VARIETY chart is a compilation of data on syndicated films, as well as network and live programs, in each market. Under the top 10 multi-weekly heading, the (†) stands for local programming and the (*) for network shows.

(Continued from page 34)

CHICAGO

Stations: WBBM, WBKB, WGN, WNBQ. TV Homes: 1,791,700. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 9-9:30)	WBBM	38.2
2.	Perry Como (Sat. 7-8:00)	WNBQ	36.2
3.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 8-8:30)	WBBM	32.5
4.	What's My Line (Sun. 9:30-10:00)	WBBM	31.7
5.	Loretta Young (Sun. 9-9:30)	WNBQ	28.7
6.	Tales of Wells Fargo (Mon. 7:30-8:00)	WNBQ	28.5
7.	Bob Hope (Sun. 8-9:00)	WNBQ	28.3
8.	December Bride (Mon. 8:30-9:00)	WBBM	28.2
8.	Lassie (Sun. 6-6:30)	WBBM	28.2
8.	Wyatt Earp (Tues. 7:30-8:00)	WBKB	28.2

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6:00)	WBKB	23.1
2.	†Susan's Show (M-F 4-4:30)	WBBM	22.8
3.	†News Roundup (M-F 10-10:15)	WBBM	19.9
4.	†In Town Tonight (M-F 10:15-10:30)	WBBM	16.1
5.	*Verdict Is Yours (M-F 2:30-3:00)	WBBM	15.5
6.	*Big Payoff (M-F 2-2:30)	WBBM	15.1
7.	†Bugs Bunny, Friends (M-F 6:30-7:00)	WGN	14.5
8.	*Art Linkletter (M-F 1:30-2:00)	WBBM	14.3
9.	†Feature Film (T-F 10:00-11:45)	WGN	14.1
10.	*Beat the Clock (M-F 1-1:30)	WBBM	13.3

TOP TWENTY SYNDICATED SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRB.	AV. RTG.	AV. SH.
1.	State Trooper (Wed. 9:30)	WNBQ	MCA	22.2	34
2.	Silent Service (Tues. 9:30)	WNBQ	NBC	21.5	34
3.	Annie Oakley (Fri. 6:00)	WGN	CBS	19.5	43
4.	Cisco Kid (Mon. 6:00)	WGN	Ziv	17.0	41
5.	African Patrol (Tues. 9:30)	WBBM	Gross-Krasne	16.5	26
5.	Sheriff of Cochise (Wed. 10:00)	WNBQ	NTA	16.5	30
6.	Brave Eagle (Tues. 6:00)	WGN	CBS	16.0	37
7.	Sky King (Thurs. 6:00)	WGN	Nabisco	14.9	38
8.	Bugs Bunny & Friends (M-F 6:30)	WGN	AAP	14.5	26
8.	Men of Annapolis (Mon. 9:30)	WGN	Ziv	14.5	22
8.	Sea Hunt (Wed. 8:30)	WGN	Ziv	14.5	22
9.	Death Valley Days (Mon. 10:00)	WNBQ	U.S. Borax	14.2	24
10.	Stories of the Century (Tues. 9:30)	WBKB	Guild	13.7	22
11.	Captain David Grief (Sat. 6:00)	WNBQ	Guild	13.2	31
11.	Highway Patrol (Fri. 8:00)	WGN	Ziv	13.2	20
11.	Honeymooners (Thurs. 9:30)	WGN	CBS	13.2	20
12.	Flash Gordon (Sun. 12:00)	WNBQ	Guild	13.0	38
13.	City Detective (Fri. 9:30)	WGN	MCA	12.2	18
13.	Mr. District Attorney (Thurs. 9:00)	WBKB	Ziv	12.2	18
13.	Studio 57 (Tues. 10:00)	WNBQ	MCA	12.2	23

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
Circle Theatre	WBBM	21.4
African Patrol	WBBM	16.5
⟨ News—Bentley	WBBM	13.3
⟨ CBS News	WBBM	13.7
⟨ News—Bentley	WBBM	11.7
⟨ CBS News	WBBM	10.7
Silent Service	WNBQ	21.5
⟨ News Roundup	WBBM	23.7
⟨ In Town Tonight	WBBM	18.7
⟨ News—Bentley	WBBM	14.0
⟨ CBS News	WBBM	14.3
⟨ News—Bentley	WBBM	12.0
⟨ CBS News	WBBM	11.7
Disneyland	WBKB	21.2
Studio One	WBBM	24.4
I Got a Secret	WBBM	24.7
⟨ News Roundup	WBBM	17.7
⟨ Fair Store Movie	WGN	16.7
Silent Service	WNBQ	21.5
CBS News Special	WBBM	12.5
Phil Silvers	WBBM	26.2
Playhouse 90	WBBM	26.2
Kit Carson	WBBM	9.5
Person to Person	WBBM	26.5
Playhouse 90	WBBM	27.5
⟨ News Roundup	WBBM	18.3
⟨ In Town Tonight	WBBM	14.7

DETROIT

Stations: CKLW, WJBK, WWJ, WXYZ. TV Homes: 986,700. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 10, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10-10:30)	WJBK	39.5
2.	Wyatt Earp (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WXYZ	36.2
3.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 9-9:30)	WJBK	35.5
4.	Maverick (Sun. 7:30-8:30)	WXYZ	35.0
5.	Perry Como (Sat. 8-9:00)	WWJ	33.0
6.	Sugarfoot (Tues. 7:30-8:30)	WXYZ	32.8
7.	Broken Arrow (Tues. 9-9:30)	WXYZ	31.5
7.	Jim Bowie (Fri. 8-8:30	WXYZ	31.5
8.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	WJBK	30.1
9.	Have Gun, Travel (Sat. 9:30-10:00)	WJBK	29.2

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†Popeye (M-F 6-6:30)	CKLW	27.9
2.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6:00)	WXYZ	24.6
3.	*Amer. Bandstand (M-F 3-3:30,4-5)	WXYZ	18.5
4.	†News—Jac Legoff (M-F 11-11:15)	WJBK	18.4
5.	†Detroit Bandstand (M-F 5-5:30)	WJBK	15.9
6.	*Art Linkletter (M-F 2:30-3:00)	WJBK	15.8
7.	*Trust Your Wife (M-F 3:30-4:00)	WXYZ	15.3
8.	*Price Is Right (M-F 11-11:30 a.m.)	WWJ	14.7
9.	*Verdict Is Yours (M-F 3:30-4:00)	WJBK	14.3
10.	†Soupy's On (M-F 11-11:30)	WXYZ	14.2

1.	Highway Patrol (Tues. 10:30)	WJBK	Ziv	29.9	51	⟨ Hockey	WXYZ 16.7
						⟨ Don Wattrick	WXYZ 15.7
2.	Popeye (M-Sun. 6:00)	CKLW	AAP	25.5	43	Premiere-Parade	WWJ 25.5
3.	Annie Oakley (Tues. 6:30)	WXYZ	CBS	24.5	47	Mickey Rooney	CKLW 13.9
4.	Honeymooners (Sat. 10:30)	WJBK	CBS	23.5	38	Your Hit Parade	WWJ 17.2
5.	Death Valley Days (Mon. 7:00)	WWJ	U.S. Borax	19.9	39	Badge 714	WJBK 14.2
5.	Stories of the Century (Fri. 6:30)	WXYZ	Guild	19.9	35	Brave Eagle	CKLW 17.9
5.	Topper (Wed. 6:30)	WXYZ	Tele Star	19.9	36	Bugs Bunny	CKLW 15.4
6.	Silent Service (Thurs. 7:00)	WJBK	NBC	19.7	36	Boots and Saddles	CKLW 18.9
7.	Boots and Saddles (Thurs. 7:00)	CKLW	NBC	18.9	34	Silent Service	WJBK 19.7
7.	Last of the Mohicans (Fri. 7:00)	CKLW	TPA	18.9	31	Dr. Christian	WJBK 17.5
8.	Ramar of the Jungle (Sat. 2:00)	WXYZ	TPA	18.5	43	Hockey	WJBK 13.2
8.	Sheriff of Cochise (Wed. 7:00)	CKLW	NTA	18.5	33	Amos 'n' Andy	WWJ 15.9
9.	Brave Eagle (Fri. 6:30)	CKLW	CBS	17.9	31	Stories of the Century	WXYZ 19.9
9.	Frontier Doctor (Sun. 6:00)	WXYZ	HTS	17.9	29	Premiere-Parade	WWJ 25.5
10.	Dr. Christian (Fri. 7:00)	WJBK	Ziv	17.5	29	Last of the Mohicans	CKLW 18.9
10.	Sky King (Thurs. 6:30)	CKLW	Nabisco	17.5	34	N.O.P.D.	WXYZ 15.2
10.	Three Musketeers (Mon. 6:30)	WXYZ	ABC	17.5	35	Frontier	WWJ 14.5
11.	Men of Annapolis (Tues. 7:00)	WJBK	Ziv	17.2	31	Casey Jones	WWJ 15.2
12.	Captain David Grief (Mon. 10:30)	WXYZ	Guild	16.2	27	Studio One	WJBK 21.7
13.	Amos 'n' Andy (Wed. 7:00)	WWJ	CBS	15.9	28	Sheriff of Cochise	CKLW 18.5
13.	Tracer (Sat. 10:30)	WXYZ	Minot	15.9	26	Honeymooners	WJBK 23.5
13.	26 Men (Sun. 6:30)	WXYZ	ABC	15.9	27	Premiere-Parade	WWJ 26.5

BUFFALO

Stations: WBEN, WBUF, WGR. TV Homes: 352,400. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10-10:30)	WBEN	41.2
1.	Wyatt Earp (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WGR	41.2
2.	Sugarfoot (Tues. 7:30-8:30)	WGR	40.0
3.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 9-9:30)	WBEN	38.2
4.	Broken Arrow (Tues. 9-9:30)	WGR	34.5
5.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	WBEN	34.2
6.	Maverick (Sun. 7:30-8:30)	WGR	33.2
7.	Ozzie & Harriet (Wed. 9-9:30)	WGR	31.9
8.	Lawrence Welk (Sat. 9-10:00)	WGR	30.6
9.	Rin Tin Tin (Fri. 7:30-8:00)	WGR	30.3

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6:00)	WGR	26.6
2.	†11 O'Clock News (W-F 11-11:15)	WBEN	24.5
3.	†Esso Reporter (M,T,Th 11-11:15)	WBEN	22.3
4.	†News, Poth, Wea (M-F 11-11:15)	WGR	20.1
5.	*Amer. Bandstand (M-F 3-3:30,4-5)	WGR	19.5
6.	*Trust Your Wife (M-F 3:30-4:00)	WGR	18.3
7.	*Captain Kangaroo (M-F 8-8:45 a.m.)	WBEN	17.5
7.	†Wea, Sports Rev (M-F 11:15-11:30)	WBEN	17.5
8.	*Art Linkletter (M-F 2:30-3:00)	WGR	16.1
8.	†Popeye Playhouse (M-F 9-9:30 a.m.)	WBEN	16.1

1.	Sea Hunt (Sun. 3:30)	WGR	Ziv	33.5	64	50th Film Feature	WBEN 14.7
2.	Sheriff of Cochise (Fri. 7:00)	WGR	NTA	32.0	63	Sword of Freedom	WBEN 10.2
3.	Highway Patrol (Tues. 10:30)	WGR	Ziv	30.2	48	Decoy	WBEN 20.9
4.	Silent Service (Sat. 10:30)	WBEN	NBC	29.5	45	Harbor Command	WGR 19.7
5.	Captain David Grief (Tues. 7:00)	WGR	Guild	24.4	47	Annie Oakley	WBEN 19.5
6.	Gray Ghost (Wed. 7:00)	WGR	CBS	22.9	48	26 Men	WBEN 17.2
7.	My Hero (Thurs. 7:00)	WGR	Official	22.9	48	Studio 57	WBEN 16.5
8.	Honeymooners (Sun. 10:30)	WGR	CBS	22.0	35	What's My Line	WBEN 25.2
9.	Men of Annapolis (Mon. 9:30)	WBEN	Ziv	21.5	31	Top Tunes & New Talent	WGR 32.5
10.	Decoy (Tues. 10:30)	WBEN	Official	20.9	34	Highway Patrol	WGR 30.2
11.	Mike Hammer (Mon. 7:30)	WGR	MCA	20.9	34	Robin Hood	WBEN 22.9
12.	Whirlybirds (Mon. 7:00)	WBEN	CBS	20.7	44	Meet Corliss Archer	WGR 17.5
13.	Code 3 (Fri. 10:30)	WGR	ABC	20.5	31	Person to Person	WBEN 30.2
14.	Harbor Command (Sat. 10:30)	WGR	Ziv	19.7	30	Silent Service	WBEN 29.5
15.	Annie Oakley (Tues 7:00)	WBEN	CBS	19.5	38	Captain David Grief	WGR 24.4
16.	Casey Jones (Sun. 6:00)	WGR	Screen Gems	18.2	43	I Love Lucy	WBEN 19.5
17.	Long John Silver (Sat. 11:30)	WGR	CBS	17.5	47	Andy's Gang	WBUF 11.2
18.	Meet Corliss Archer (Mon. 7:00)	WGR	Ziv	17.5	37	Whirlybirds	WBEN 20.7
19.	Whistler (Mon. 10:30)	WGR	CBS	17.5	28	Studio One	WBEN 27.2
20.	26 Men (Wed. 7:00)	WBEN	ABC	17.2	36	Gray Ghost	WGR 22.9

COLUMBUS

Stations: WBNS, WLW-C, WTVN. TV Homes: 173,600. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10-10:30)	WBNS	46.0
2.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 9-9:30)	WBNS	40.2
3.	Perry Como (Sat. 8-9:00)	WLW-C	36.2
4.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	WBNS	34.0
5.	Have Gun, Travel (Sat. 9:30-10:00)	WBNS	33.5
6.	December Bride (Mon. 9:30-10:00)	WBNS	32.2
7.	Lineup (Fri. 10-10:30)	WBNS	31.5
7.	Person to Person (Fri. 10:30-11:00)	WBNS	31.5
8.	Tales of Wells Fargo (Mon. 8:30-9:00)	WLW-C	31.2
9.	G.E. Theatre (Sun. 9-9:30)	WBNS	30.9
9.	What's My Line (Sun. 10:30-11:00)	WBNS	30.9

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6:00)	WTVN	22.4
2.	†Popeye Theatre (T-F 6-6:30)	WBNS	21.8
3.	†Looking Long (M-F 7-7:15)	WBNS	21.6
4.	*CBS News (M-F 7:15-7:30)	WBNS	21.3
5.	†News—Pepper, Wea (M-F 11-11:15)	WBNS	21.2
6.	†Casper Capers (M-F 4-5:00)	WTVN	20.6
7.	*Capt. Kangaroo (M-F 8-8:45 a.m.)	WBNS	15.1
8.	*Art Linkletter (M-F 2:30-3:00)	WBNS	14.1
9.	†News, Weather (M-F 11-11:15)	WLW-C	13.5
10.	†Romper Room (M-F 9-10:00 a.m.)	WTVN	13.3

1.	Death Valley Days (Sun. 9:30)	WBNS	U.S. Borax	30.9	43	Bob Hope	WLW-C 28.2
2.	Highway Patrol (Tues. 10:30)	WBNS	Ziv	28.9	60	Studio 57	WLW-C 11.5
3.	Last of the Mohicans (Sat. 10:30)	WBNS	TPA	27.0	40	Something Different	WTVN 20.9
4.	Honeymooners (Sat. 7:00)	WBNS	CBS	26.9	49	Midwest Hayride	WLW-C 17.0
5.	Whirlybirds (Thurs. 7:00)	WTVN	CBS	23.2	41	⟨ Looking—Long	WBNS 20.7
						⟨ CBS News	WBNS 20.3
6.	Popeye Theatre (T-F 6:00)	WBNS	AAP	21.8	53	Casey Jones	WTVN 16.5
7.	Annie Oakley (Mon. 6:00)	WBNS	CBS	21.5	50	Hopalong Cassidy	WTVN 15.5
8.	O. Henry Playhouse (Fri. 7:00)	WTVN	Gross-Krasne	20.9	44	⟨ Looking—Long	WBNS 21.7
						⟨ CBS News	WBNS 21.3
9.	Sky King (Fri. 6:30)	WBNS	Nabisco	20.4	55	Johnny Mack Brown	WTVN 10.9
10.	Frontier (Tues. 6:30)	WTVN	NBC	19.9	51	Outdoors With Mack	WBNS 11.4
10.	Harbor Command (Fri. 9:30)	WTVN	Ziv	19.9	28	Playhouse of Stars	WBNS 26.5
11.	Sea Hunt (Thurs. 8:00)	WBNS	Ziv	19.5	27	Groucho Marx	WLW-C 26.7
11.	Soldiers of Fortune (Thurs. 6:30)	WTVN	MCA	19.5	47	Martin Kane	WBNS 15.9
12.	Mama (Wed. 6:30)	WBNS	CBS	19.2	52	Colonel Bleep	WTVN 11.5
13.	Captain David Grief (Thurs. 7:30)	WBNS	Guild	18.9	31	Circus Boy	WTVN 25.9
13.	State Trooper (Mon. 10:30)	WTVN	MCA	18.9	30	Studio One	WBNS 22.7
14.	Gray Ghost (Fri. 7:30)	WBNS	CBS	18.2	32	Rin Tin Tin	WTVN 26.2
15.	Waterfront (Sun. 6:00)	WBNS	MCA	17.2	34	Best of MGM	WLW-C 17.5
16.	Casey Jones (Tues. 6:00)	WTVN	Screen Gems	16.5	44	Popeye Theatre	WBNS 18.7
16.	Silent Service (Mon. 7:00)	WTVN	NBC	16.5	30	⟨ Looking—Long	WBNS 21.7
						⟨ CBS News	WBNS 21.7

The firm and unshakable endorsement of NBC Radio's MONITOR by national advertisers has sky-rocketed billings to a record $5,000,000 annually!

MONITOR is doing the job it set out to do. At low cost it is delivering and selling to huge audiences. Here are some current MONITOR campaigns:

NATIONAL ADVERTISER	LISTENER-COMMERCIAL IMPRESSIONS PER WEEKEND
AMERICAN MOTORS CORPORATION	21,461,000
GENERAL MILLS, INCORPORATED	21,962,000
LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO COMPANY	10,102,000
THE NESTLE COMPANY, INCORPORATED	20,600,000
PABST BREWING COMPANY	21,962,000
PLOUGH, INCORPORATED	21,461,000

Already in 1958 more than 70 national advertisers have used MONITOR.

MONITOR is vital, always on the move, going places faster than ever with audiences—and advertisers. You can go places, too, on... MONITOR

THE WEEKEND RADIO SERVICE OF NBC RADIO

Guild Downbeat on Syndication

Continued from page 29

ing up the overseas sales operation. Moreover, Cole decided almost at the same time to capitalize on Spanish market telefilm sales in a manner such expanded from previous south-of-the-border undertakings by Guild, and he started dubbing of "Captain David Grief," "Minutes of Prayer," and "Kingdom of the Sea."

(5) Shortly prior to his takeover, Cole's opinion obtained and Guild decided to put some 500 RKO comedy shorts on the market. Not counting barter, the sale of "Big Rascals," a batch of former theatrical short subjects, is the other point of direct sales contact with stations. In nine weeks, Guild reports it has closed sales in 18 east coast markets on 133 Leon Erroll flicks.

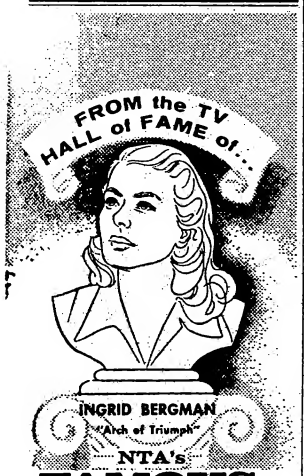
(6) A moratorium on foreign production was called by prexy Cole, since any production made from here on in overseas could not be ready for sale to a network until January, a time Cole feels is inopportune for national selling. Kaufman had incepted plans to produce a series in England and on European location called "Sabotage." This was only one of three deals which were suspended when Cole took over, he explained.

(7) Not least important, are the executive changes at Guild. Kaufman, under pressure from his board of directors and having only recovered from ill health, reportedly withdrew as president voluntarily, recommending sales chief Cole for his job. Since the change, Cole has taken over Kaufman's office space, and the former chief (and still chairman of the exec committee under a "longterm contract"), who moved into a smaller office, is presently helping on the production of "Light of the World" with the regular production staff.

At least 10 persons have left since Cole's takeover, many of them Kaufman's old associates or members of his family. They constituted only a minor part of the overall "home" staff. Then too, men such as Irving Feld, the new general sales manager, have been signed on.

As reasons for dropping plans for new syndicated product completely, Cole said "It's because the tremendous amount of high-budget theatrical product that's been released has grabbed too much playing time and the advertisers are just as happy to participate in these features more than once a week rather than buy one weekly half-hour program.

"No one appreciates that a distributor pays a $1,200,000 or a $1,500,000 to make a half-hour show. If it makes a small rating you stand to lose a great deal of money. There is less margin of risk in features, where it is easier to predetermine what its history on the air will be. Two or three syndicated failures and a company can go out of business entirely."



Here is programming that is head and shoulders above the crowd. Through NTA's FAMOUS FILMS, pioneering programming service plan for TV stations, almost 1,000 hours of "Hall of Fame" TV programming are available, by subscription, at huge savings!

At a fixed low price . . . you can subscribe to this tailor-made, flexible, new TV station programming service, giving you the most of the best programming . . . for the least cost . . . and gain a terrific competitive edge in your market!

You'll telecast these other top-quality TV Shows:

Fabulous Feature Films
from such outstanding producers as:
20th Century-Fox — David O. Selznick
J. Arthur Rank — Sir Alexander Korda

Great Half-Hour Shows starring such top stars as:
Pat O'Brien — Ida Lupino
Joan Blondell — Teresa Wright
Boris Karloff — Paul Lukas

Famous Cartoons and Short Subjects
Including the following, many of them Academy Award Winners:
"Little Lulu" — George Pal "Puppetoons"
Grantland Rice "Sportlights" — "Speaking of Animals"
"Unusual Occupations"

NTA's
FAMOUS FILMS
Programs for Television
10 Columbus Circle, New York, N. Y. JUdson 2-7300
8721 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. OLympia 2-7222

AFTRA-SAG

Continued from page 29

AFTRA to the fullest extent. Many things can be done in this direction by mutual assistance. In our negotiations just concluded we were immeasurably aided by many members of our fact-finding and negotiation committees who are primarily AFTRA members.

"A planned interchange of members, board members and staff, on each of the negotiating committees of the two unions in this field of mutual interest would seem most desirable. We have therefore, appointed a committee, consisting of Leon Ames, John Lund, Rosemary DeCamp, George Chandler, Art Gilmore, executives and counsel, with the hope that you will appoint a similar committee to conduct meetings toward these ends."

SAG emphasized after considering the AFTRA proposal in the so-called "gray" area in taped teleblurbs, it found it unacceptable. And as far as jurisdiction is concerned, said SAG, it feels it has been "properly, fairly and practically delineated" in its recent past with ad agencies.

Screen Actors Guild said it was willing to have committees from the two unions meet to discuss the situation, but carefully declined to go along with the AFTRA proposal for a joint administrative-negotiating group.

Anti-Trust Suit

Continued from page 29

will receive 27½%, which will be increased to 30 and 40% when Universal's share of the proceeds has reached $12,500,000 and $20,000,000.

Taking cognizance of Screen Gems' distribution of Columbia and other pix, the complaint further charges that as a result of the acquisition, Universal has been eliminated as a competitive factor in tv film distribution and that there has been an undue reduction in the number of competing enterprises in the field.

In filing the suit, assistant attorney general Victor R. Hansen said the Justice Department recognizes that features constitute a substantial part of tv programming and the department hopes to foster competition in that area.

Universal prexy Milton R. Rackmil said he had not seen the papers filed with Department of Justice, but "we are fully convinced that there is nothing in the contract between Universal and Screen Gems which we feel is improper."

This is the second anti-trust action to hit Columbia and Screen Gems in the feature field, the initial one growing out of the anti-block booking suit brought against Screen Gems and other feature distributors, now pending in the courts.

Syndication Biz

Continued from page 29

or supplementing web shows via syndication.

In the year that syndication is coming of age, breaking the $100,000,000 barrier, these are the key factors for its growth: greater acceptance of the biz by major regional advertisers and top ad agencies; proven impact on sales; fuller use of syndication by local advertisers, as well; in addition to other reasons, need for local programming by stations, etc.

Another reason why the major syndicators wax rosy about this year is the depleting supply of features to television. Last year, at this time, the cinematics were making a coast-to-coast rumble, many of the major libraries having been introed in September. This year, upcoming is the Paramount library, some post-'48's and the residue from the pre-SAG bundle, not nearly as competitive as 1957, when, even with the pix competition, telefilms scored the estimated $80,000,000.

Cyanamid

Continued from page 28

network or local quarter-hour news shows. C&W has done some research, and has found that it's getting something like a 33% share among farm families. Still too early to tell about its effect on sales, but the general response among distributors, dealers, etc., has made Cyanamid enthusiastic about the series.

Fact is that the farmer is probably the most broadsided consumer in the U. S. when it comes to advertising. He's hit by ads in the general magazines, by the farm journals, by the newspapers, direct mail, even to a lesser extent by radio. Cyanamid has found a way to hit him with television, and it's been the medium history that the competition won't stand still for it.

CBS Strike

Continued from page 27

a settlement. "The union first says it wants money, and then its job security." The spokesman added, "You never know what the issues are."

Bomb Scare

Before the morning talks convened, CBS was hit by a bomb scare. At 8:50 yesterday morning, a CBS switchboard operator received an anonymous call warning of a bomb having been placed in 485 Madison Ave., network headquarters. CBS security force was notified immediately and the police, in turn, were notified. N.Y. cops spent 45 minutes searching the building for signs of a bomb but none were found. In the meantime, personnel arriving for work were locked out of the building, yet those already within the building were allowed to remain.

3 Return in Chi

It is difficult for the union, with CBS locals in seven U.S. cities to keep everybody in line. In Chicago, for instance, IBEW's walkout at CBS gave signs of disintegrating in the ranks as three technicians returned to their jobs last Wednesday (9), two days after the strike began.

Both CBS stations, WBBM and WBBM-TV, have been operated since the onset of the strike by administrative personnel, most of whom had to learn on the spot because the local shop had never held an emergency training program for all personnel. Operations have run smoothly under the white collar staff so far. Station was off the air only three minutes when the walkout occurred and lost only 20 minutes of planned programming the first day. None of the administrative personnel in Chicago has been working overtime as a result of the strike.

Syndication Follow Up

Sea Hunt

Producer Ivan Tors allowed himself to get caught with writing "bends" in this outing of the Ziv series, dealing with the rivalry between "hard hat" and "skin" divers, and the wild possibility of recovering Hitler's body in a sunken submarine.

Comparing the kickoff episodes and the Sat. (12) night outing on WCBS-TV, N. Y., the series has become sogged with not up to par scripting. The adventure contained in the undersea footage, nevertheless, still had impact. The initial outings, incidentally, set a high standard for pro action-adventure drama, utilizing more workmanlike scripting.

As penned by Peter R. Brooke, Saturday's episode was drowned by unrealized potentialities. The ideas, both of which were good, were sketched in very hazily, and hardly realized. For the uninitiated, a "hard hat" is a diver using the old fashioned paraphanalia, the big steel globe, oxygen line, etc., as opposed to the trim, agile skin diver.

When the lumbering plot lines were left above water, and the viewer followed freelance skin diver Lloyd Bridges beneath the sea, the episode had moments of high adventure. Otherwise it was implausible hocus-pocus.

Gene Roth and William McGraw were okay in supporting roles. Director John Florea could have done better by concentrating on the stronger points of the show, the underwater aspects.

Horo.

'Book of Knowledge' TV Rights Acquired

Licensing rights to base films on "The Book of Knowledge," using puppets and live actors, has been acquired by Walter Christian Duennhaupt Film Productions. The license was granted by the Grolier Society, publishers of "Knowledge."

Projected series will be aimed for theatrical exhibition, as well as tv. The puppets are a development of Duennhaupt, who has been co-producing, directing and writing for the European film industry for more than 30 years.

NBC-TV Affils

Continued from page 25

proposal under advisement, but meanwhile is raising a row with the web over a renewed outbreak of free plugs by the network's talent. Affiliates claim some stars are going way overboard on the cuffo product plugs, and demanded that the network clamp down on the situation.

Free plugs are traditionally a sore point with affiliates, who feel the product is getting for free what it ordinarily would have to pay for in terms of buying airtime. The plugs, they say, are robbing them of potential spot revenues.

Storer

Continued from page 26

three nets, he said, DuMont's billings were rising despite the limited number of markets which were interconnected by A. T. & T. facilities and which had four stations.

There is no danger to the public in a seven-VHF station ceiling, Wailes argued, since present rules permit single ownership of seven 50,000-watt radio stations and no "undue concentration" has developed.

Furthermore he said, he is not impressed with the argument that the potential of VHF is 600 stations. Ingenuity of American engineers to solve the allocation problem, he asserted, should not be underestimated.

Greshler's 'Fables'

Hollywood, April 15.

"Fables of the Orient," based on ancient Japanese and Chinese folklore, is set as a new teleseries, to be produced by artsist' agent Abner J. Greshler.

Segments will be fashioned around a running star character, that of a young merchant.

CBS Film Probes New Client Areas

While finding biz better this year than ever before, CBS Film Sales has inaugurated a long-range research project to explore the new areas of possible biz for syndication.

According to topper Leslie Harris, "syndicators going back to the same clients year after year are just making the easy sale. With only a comparative limited potential, each syndicator, in effect, is taking biz away from another."

Instead, more dough should be sunk into studying the ways and means of widening the area of the syndication biz. Such a project is being launched at CBS Film Sales, Harris pointed to many large advertisers that are hardly wet in syndication, picking out travel for one, and reeling off plumbing, paint manufacturing, filing, hardware, furniture manufacturing, sporting goods, and others.

Hudes Set Deals For Foreign Films on TV

Ted Hudes, flack-turned-film salesman, who returned lately from a three-week European swing, inked to handle two foreign filmers here, both theatrically and for television. He's repping the Gallic outfit Concord Films and also has a similar arrangement with E. B. Rose of England.

Concord is supplying a series of half-hour documentaries. It's also going to distribute a series of quarter-hour interviews (with Albert Camus, Madame Beauvoir, Marcel Ayme, Jean Anouilh and Andre Maurois). Hudes simultaneously acquired rights to Marianne Oswald's biographical flick on the last of he "Living French Fauves," the painter Vlaminck. They're both for tv and theatrical release in the U. S. All of the French celluloid is being dubbed with English narration.

In This Week's Post

THE FUNNY MEN'S ACE IN THE HOLE!

He's the highest-paid TV gag writer in the business ($9,500 a week for the Perry Como show) —and Jack Benny, Milton Berle and Tallulah Bankhead are just a few of the other top entertainers who owe much of their fame, fortune and funny-bones to Goodman Ace.

Now, in this week's Saturday Evening Post, the king of the gag men tells how he does it—along with his not-so-funny remarks about some of the famed comedians he's worked with. You'll learn why he quit working for Berle, how he soothed an angry Tallulah Bankhead, and of some of the zany goings on in a Perry Como show gag-writing session.

It's all there, including Ace's own version of how he got from Kansas City to a castle on Park Avenue. Be sure to read "King of the Gag Men" in this week's Post.

In all: 9 articles, 3 stories 2 serials, many cartoons.

Get your copy today—wherever magazines are sold!

The Saturday Evening POST

A CURTIS MAGAZINE

"DECOY," starring Beverly Garland

One look and ten of America's top stations bought "DECOY" within two weeks after sales began. Six weeks later, "DECOY" had been sold in 17 of the 25 major markets, plus 36 key secondary markets. Now, "DECOY" is sold in 80 markets — 24 of the 30 major ones and 56 secondary markets!

First ratings prove "Decoy" is winner by a landslide against every kind of opposition.

Oklahoma City...34.1 A.R.B....Friday 9 PM
Against "Cavalcade of Sports" 18.9,
"Walter Winchell File" 6.9

Boston...24.3 A.R.B....Sunday 10:30 PM
Against "State Trooper" 10.5 "What's My Line" 7.6

Buffalo...25.8 A.R.B....Tuesday 10:30 PM
Against "Highway Patrol" 25.3 "O'Henry Playhouse" 7.7

New Orleans...28.9 A.R.B....Thursday 10 PM
Against "Gray Ghost" 14.3,
"News and Million Dollar Movie" 2.8 and 0.1

Produced by Pyramid Productions

"Decoy" looks—and IS—No. 1! For ratings like these, call

OFFICIAL FILMS, INC.
25 West 45th Street, New York
PLaza 7-0100

REPRESENTATIVES: Atlanta / Jackson 2-4878 • Beverly Hills / Crestview 6-3528 • Chicago / Dearborn 2-5246 • Cincinnati / Cherry 1-4088 • Dallas / Emerson 8-7467 Fayetteville / Hillcrest 2-5485 • Ft. Lauderdale / Logan 6-1981 • Minneapolis / Walnut 2-2743 • San Francisco / Juniper 5-3313 St. Louis / Yorktown 5-9231

The Year NBC Had It Made

Continued from page 25

scending in industry interest and importance any individual program kudosing. Not much more than a year ago (to be precise at the Dec. '56 Miami affiliate confab) the network was still in a mess, trying anew after half a dozen years of exec upheavals and reorganizations to put its house in order. Year after year there were constant threats (sometimes translated into actuality) of affiliate defections, with Gen. David Sarnoff in person on occasion called into action to stamp out the fires. The prexy scorecard in a few short years read: Niles Trammell, Joe McConnell, Frank White, Gen. Sarnoff, Pat Weaver and Bob Sarnoff.

There are those who take the position that the NBC reemergence in '57-'58 was achieved by default, a situation stemming from the fact that CBS, after many years of program supremacy, stubbed its toe this time around. But such an appraisal fails to take into consideration some aggressive moves on the part of the NBC management —over and above the reshuffling of the program schedules—in areas which were stuffed off at CBS.

Promotion Factor

Not the least of these was the promotion job incepted by the network, long before the '57-'58 season got under way, with the on-the-air drumbeating of the NBC virtues, culminating in a major closed-circuit dress parade and pre-season press conference. Along with this came a 1,000,000-line co-op campaign in print media, with the affiliates and the network splitting the tab.

Almost equally as effective was the "getting to know you" series of personalized letters addressed to the nation's tv-radio editors; an innovation on the part of prexy Bob Sarnoff which perhaps did more to solidify his stature among the newspaper-mag fraternity than any other single gesture. His last such communique, on radio in general and NBC Radio in particular, drew an unprecedented press, being compounded of honesty, factual data (two years ago NBC would have shuddered at the thought of revealing a $9,000,000 deficit) and conttroversy.

Along with the letters, inspired by the beefs from out-of-town editors that the "New York boys" were getting all the breaks by virtue of their proximity to the homeoffice, NBC, at an additional cost of $100,000, has incepted an "instantaneous communication" system (see separate story) by day-and-date teletyping of news-as-it-breaks to tv editors in 40 key cities through the use of privately leased wires.

There's no doubt but that, on the radio front, Joe Culligan's own personality and industry have played a major role in the AM comeback, not only among station men but on the sponsor front. Indeed, Culligan would appear to be the key word in any reevaluation of the radio web's status, his flair for projecting his own identity becoming more and more pronounced.

No small factor in increased station support—in contrast to the days of affiliate disenchantment—has been the emergence of Jack Paar. Almost single-handedly he's been licking the late night feature pix bugaboo, with stations clamoring for "Paar Time." Hardly a week now goes by but that some CBS or ABC affiliate doesn't put in a bid to ride with the show.

Any realistic appraisal of the two networks must certainly encompass CBS' outstanding contribution in the area of public affairs programming. Also Columbia's more enviable gross-and-profits statement, a reflection of top management braintrusting. But all things being equal on the day-to-day program front, it was that extra zing through which NBC sold itself to the public and its affiliates that made the difference.

Salant

Continued from page 26

ing. Senator Magnuson has announced that his Committee plans another go-round on pay television next month. The same committee will hold hearings on Senator Bricker's bill to regulate networks. And Senator Monroney has said he plans to have hearings on ratings in the near future.

Around D. C. in 80 Years

"And so it goes—as far as the eye can see. We seem to be in orbit—going around and around the world of Washington in 80 years with different Committees tracing the same ground when they can't think of anything new. If there's a lull, they take care of that with a continuous series of attacks on the floor of the Congress. The Congressmen and Senators lay into us on pay television, on monopoly, on the Khrushchev broadcast, on why we affiliated with Station X instead of Y, on juvenile delinquency, on violence, on commercials, on Westerns, on quizzes, on censoring Stephen Foster lyrics, on not censoring other lyrics, and—to borrow from Yul Brynner's King of Siam (Rodgers & Hammerstein-ASCAP—if Washington is listening)—et cetera, et cetera, et cetera."

Remarking that partisan politics stop when it comes to broadcasting and that "radical and reactionary turn into harmonious barber shop quartets to attack us," Salant observed that "perhaps networks' most unique contribution to American history will be that they've beaten politics to hollow in the process of making strange bedfellows: Senators Morse and Bricker. (For purposes of that sentence, discretion dictated that I omit reference to Miss Hennock.)"

Remarking that the continuous required presence in Washington of the network toppers "was a heckuva way to run a railroad—a sobering comment, in light of what's happening to the railroads," Salant described the hotelroom postmortem in Washington after CBS' testimony on the Barrow report:

"Our conversation was continually being interrupted — New York was on the tie-line. There were crises with talent; crises with programs; crises with sponsors; even crises with crises. Maybe our business—of programming and selling time—wasn't falling around our ears, but chunks were falling from the ceiling. And all we could do was stay in Washington waiting for the next day's testimony, while we were trying to continue the business of running a network by remote control."

Factors in Probes

Salant admitted he doesn't know the cause or the cure—"I'm not sure how we ever got into this mess in Washington; I'm even less sure how we can get out." But he did "suggest some of the factors which may be contributing to this sport of making the network presidents the most investigated, criticized and harassed businessmen since the robber barons of the railroads during the last century, or since the days that FDR had his fun with the money-changers in the temple back in the '30's."

Kudos for Candor

NBC President Robert Sarnoff is being cited this year by the American Public Relations Assn. for establishing a public relations program designed to broaden public acceptance of network activities.

The association's Certificate of Achievement specifically calls attention to Sarnoff's series of letters to tv-radio editors for informal discussion of major industry issues and as such incepting "a new era of candor in the broadcasting industry."

Of Strikes & Smiles

Continued from page 27

times last night on the Jack Paar show!"

*

One CBS publicity man on strike duty was a little surprised when he got his assignment. He wears a hearing aid, and naturally, he was assigned to audio control.

* * *

There were some pretty sore execs the other morning at "Sunrise Semester," the WCBS-TV 7 a. m. educational show starring Prof. Floyd Zulli. It's a two-camera, one-set show, but a 15-man crew was on hand at 5 a. m. that morning, of whom no more than eight were needed. Among the grumblers, though, was one slightly puzzled gent who kept on asking why he was there, a research manager who was doubling as a sound effects man.

* * *

As far as grumbling is concerned, the guy who had the most justifiable beef was the sales exec who was told to come in at 4:30 a. m. Sunday morning (13). His job: to get the WCBS-TV test pattern on the air.

WNTA

Continued from page 31

paneler is not aired). NTA is also mapping out plans for in-studio wrestling or in-studio boxing, a format Cott used at WABD a few years ago, after 8.

On Thursday, station will commence with "special event night," a series of specially-edited shows, one, for instance, being a combining of the Kefauver and Army-McCarthy committee hearings into an hour-and-a-half one-shot.

And speaking of one-shots, Cott emphasized the fact that WNTA-TV will be doing a host of them throughout the sked. He figures they have sizeable audience appeal (e.g. WPIX's highly-rated "The Russian Revolution" a few weeks back, which took the market lead between 9 and 10 p.m.).

Cott did not spell out all the programming plans, but he did say that he's figuring on feature films with sports hooks as the early afternoon Saturday set up. Early Sabbath afternoons will be documentary features. NTA expects to run all second-run features in narrow frameworks such as the aforementioned.

Mary Margaret McBride

Ray Nelson leaves the NTA Film Network, which he bossed, to take over the management (as president) of WNTA-AM-FM, under Cott. Cott said stations, which temporarily will hold to the same programming, will regenerate an "old idea in radio—mostly talk, but in this case, with some music, and the music, he stressed, will avoid the top 40 format since "it utilizes less than 1% of the available record repertoire."

In his personality search, Cott has already inked Mary Margaret McBride. She'll do an hour a day in a traditional 1 p.m. anchorage.

Herb Sheldon, who first worked with Cott and WRCA and then at WABD, is joining the radio stations as the 7 to 9:30 a.m. show fronter. The morning strip with Sheldon will contain a series of specially recorded comedy bits. Cott is talking to iconoclastic comedian Mort Sahl to provide a daily transcribed inclusion, and ditto Bob & Ray (for "Mary Backstage") and Harry Hershfield (for a "Story of the Day" kind of thing).

Cott said WAAT longtime Paul Brenner will continue working a four-hour broadcast day, but WNTA will be dropping the well-known "Requestfully Yours" format and insert a new setup as yet unspecified. WNTA will be confining rock 'n' roll to one show and has hired former WOV gabber Jocko Henderson to front a daily 3 to 4:30 p.m. stint in that genre.

Bert Lee Jr., like Brenner, is staying on with the Newark 5,000 watter. He'll handle two radio chores: a 7 p.m. recreation of a baseball game and a midnight-to-1:30 a.m. talk-about-sports show from some metropolitan eatery.

On Sunday, from signon to signoff, some 18 hours, NTA plans to vary the menu by devoting the time to a different musical theme each week, viz., a "Bing Crosby Day" or a "Richard Rodgers Day."

NBC Teletyping

Continued from page 27

before makeup. To establish the setup requires a $100,000 financing out of operating funds. It's figured the teletype system will more than make back its cost by eliminating last-minute longdistance phone calls to the papers involved and regular telegrams. Some newspapers approached, incidentally, refused the teletype offer, claiming they take up too much room in the city room, managing editors didn't want 'em etc., but the overwhelming reaction has been acceptance.

Webs currently have teletype service into the New York dailies and the wire service offices in N. Y., as well as to o&o's and affiliates. However, this is the first widespread network-to-newspaper teletype operation set up.

Affils vs. Barrow

Continued from page 26

testified that although KJEO-TV serves as many families as the VHF facility "we still face the strong prejudice of some New York ad agencies who believe that the service offered by UHF is insufficient."

Britt urged adoption of a Barrow proposal to resolve proceedings regarding A.T.&T. rates and authorization of private relay systems. He said "exorbitant" line costs force WLOS-TV and other North Carolina stations to rely on off-the-air pickups for certain programs with consequent weakening of quality of the picture.

Umansky told the Commission that "normal economic forces, plus an increase in stations, are rapidly equalizing the networks. "If there have been inequities in the relationships between the networks and the station in the past," he said, "they are being removed consistently by free competition."

'Spring Festival' Set as Ambitious Canada AM Series

Toronto, April 15.

A two-hour musical gambit is first of replacements, tagged "Spring Festival," slotted for the next seven weeks at 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. (Saturdays) on the trans-Canada network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. Featuring some of the leading dance band and choral groups in Canada, with former stressing jazz, Dixieland, Latin-American, Western and standard pops, the new CBC-sponsored series tees off April 19 with an hour of Chico Vallee to be followed by an hour of Lucio Agostini's music.

Subsequent sked will have three modern-jazz groups—Moe Koffman, Harry Freedman, Art Morrow; two one-hour jazz shows, Phil Nimmons and Dave Robbins, May 31; Neil Chotem's orch.; an hour of current and past hit-parade numbers played by Bert Niosi and his orch, to be followed by an hour of Westrn tunes; an hour of folk music and two half-hours of choral music; Dave Woods orch for an hour, to be followed by a half-hour each of the Dick Crow Trio and the Lance Harrison Dixieland group. Chorus groups will include the Leslie Bell Singers and the Elmer Iselor Choir, both also of Toronto.

Grey Industries, GM Buy Mutual Shows

Mutual has drawn some fresh sponsor coin, with Grey Industries, Inc., and the General Motors Truck Division moving in for a ride on the net's news shows.

Grey Industries, makers of resilvering and silver cleanser products, bought a schedule of two-a-day five-minute news segments for 13 weeks.

The GM Truck Division, which also bought some time on NBC Radio, lined up MBS for a second-year ride on news shows beginning mid-May and running into the summer months. GM bought Gabriel Heatter and another news show for a two-a-week campaign for about $39,000.

Cleveland — WERE, for the eighth consecutive year, will broadcast the entire Cleveland Indians schedule for Central National Bank, Carling Brewing Corp. and Standard Oil. Jimmy Dudley and Bob Neal again doing play-by-play and Tom Manning handling the pregame "Baselines" stanza.

Charleston, W. Va. — Robert Sinclair has been named station manager of WCHS here. Sinclair, who's been sales manager of the Tierney Co. outlet for the past three years, reports to John T. Gelder Jr., v.p.-general manager of Tierney.

STEVE McNALLY STARS IN ZIV'S ALL NEW IMPACT SERIES!

TARGET

"5 HOURS TO LIVE" The father of a 10-year old boy holds the stolen $100,000. An international criminal holds the serum that can save the boy's life. Will the exchange be made in time to save the boy's life?

SUSPENSE!

NOW SHOOTING AT ZIV STUDIO!

WESTON
ROMANTIC ESTATE FOR SALE IN LOVELY WESTON
7 acres; small, private, well-stocked lake; excellent tennis court; sandy beach; 9 room house; 4 baths; handsome paneling; screened porch; outdoor terraces; many unusual 'extras'; 3-car garage; beautiful flower gardens and orchard. Offered at $110,000; terms to suit. Phone Westport, Capitol 7-5974, or MU 3-2773 (weekdays) for appointment to inspect, or write Box 772-B, 300 W. 43 St., N.Y. 36

WHATEVER THE SHOW HE'S THE GREATEST!
DOUG. ANDERSON
Currently: 'The Magic Clown'
For BONOMO TURKISH TAFFY on Channel 5, New York Sundays at 10:00 A. M.
Phone . . . Pioneer 7-5761

'Comedy Unlimited'
Sharp Original
NEW SPECIAL PRO. MATERIAL
STAGE TV RADIO NITERIES
Monologues, Bits, Stories, etc., etc.
Special Monthly Script..... $7.50
Les Mate 1739 N. Orchid Hollywood 28, California

THE WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY is proud to represent an artist who is a SPUTNIK an ATOM BOMB a HORSE a WONDER has CLASS

and is life's compensation...

He Opens April 17th at the COPACABANA, New York

EDWARD SCOTT, Havana Post

The one thing which always has been verboten in the Scott family is to become moist of eye. What I mean is that we are a sentimental people, deeply sentimental, but the Anglo-Saxons and the Caledonians are supposed to feel without being demonstrative.

Exception must be made in the case of Jimmy Durante. When I see that crazy, lovable class mate of mine, and hear him sing those songs of the days before me beard wuz grey, I feel as if mine is the world and all that's in it, and in order to celebrate my condition of joy, I have the temptation to shed a solitary, nostalgic tear.

For my money, Jimmy Durante, currently appearing at the Casino Parisien of the Hotel Nacional, is a wonder of the 20th Century, ranking with the *Atomic Bomb and the *Sputnik.

You know, when two *horses stand side by side, one from a milk wagon, and one from the Whitney stables, they have many things in common. They each have one head, four feet and a single tail. Both of them are members of the species Equus caballus, but there is a world of difference between them. That differnce is what is known as *class.

What Jimmy Durante has, which separates him from the rest of the world's hundreds of thousands of entertainers, is *class. He has a special type of personality, and when performed by him, a gesture assumes proportions of artistry and humor.

Jimmy the Schnozzle is the greatest thing I ever have seen on the stage and anyone who does not avail himself of the opportunity of seeing him at the Casino Parisien in his present season, simply does not know about *life's compensations.

XXX

WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY, Inc.

Established 1898

NEW YORK • BEVERLY HILLS • CHICAGO • LONDON • PARIS • ROME

Foreign TV Reviews

Continued from page 33

ism. But the visions of his unsavory past in the form of apparitions in a wood were out of character.

Spencer completely dominated the first act with a towering performance. It was easy to believe that this escaped convict could have charmed himself into the leadership of a native tribe by means of a silver bullet which he himself described as his rabbit's foot. In contrast, there was a cringing performance by Harry H. Corbett, the cockney trader. The contrasting teamwork was admirable and while the director kept to the basic script, his production was faultless. It strained viewers' loyalty, however, when it entered the realm of fantasy, although that does not imply an unjust criticism of the Boscoe Holder Dancers. Their team work was fine; it just didn't fit naturally into the scheme of things. Myro.

BLUE EYES' TOKYO DIARY
With Linda Beech, Ken Nillson, Maggie McVeigh, George Furness, Jun Hamamura, Toshiko Hatori, Seijiro Hatori, others
Director: Takatanori Yamamoto
30 Mins.; Sun., 7 p.m.
JOKR, from Tokyo

Kickoff show on Sunday (6) went smoothly and should climb once wheels start clicking together for this Japan "first" inasmuch as it is the first live situation comedy shown here and first program of any dramatic value to mix U. S. cast with Japanese. Mixtures are basis of series which has young Yank couple (he's a mag scribe) set up house in Tokyo under older and somewhat arrogant eyes of mag bureau chief and wife.

Next door Japanese neighbors are more or less ordinary folks with wife leaning toward Western culture and father and grandfather staying with the traditional. Their two children add to the movement as does an eccentric photographer and goo-goo eyed secretary.

Eye tint of title is translation of Japanese idiom referring to "foreigner" and therein lies basis of comedy when cultures clash. Comedy story lines are new to tv here where past and other shows resort to revue formats with heavy play on slapstick.

First stanza of "Blue Eyes" lagged in spots and closed slowly with final scene mugged too long due to undertime. But opener served function of establishing scene and characters and showed where each principal player stood re East-West joust. American cast members were topnotch, especially when their limited pro experience is considered. Miss Beech and Nillson were particularly effective as lead duo with former popping Japanese eyes and ears by being a blonde looker with an almost-fluid facility with the language. Show is all in vernacular except for a few English lines to "keep it straight."

Sponsor Snow Brand Dairy Co. went far out on an experimental limb for this one and early returns seem to justify. Technical credits were upper drawer and a nod goes to Kazuhiko Fujita who is responsible for much of the production and who uncovered the U. S. talents. Jamp.

COMPASS
With Neil Paterson, emcee; John Lindsay, Jack House, others
Director: James MacTaggart
30 Mins., Wed., 10:15 p.m.
BBC, from Scotland

This is a brand new program aiming at giving a magazine picture of Scot affairs and trends. First of the series had promise. Program, still in shaping stage, had dull patches and rough edges, but will surely slicken up as it proceeds on fortnightly pace.

Neil Paterson, novelist and film scripter, who has worked on screenplay of both British and American pix, handles the introducing chores with confidence and a dignified urbanity. Topics covered, in interviews and film material, included poachers in Scotland, the manufacture and devising of school tawse (punishment straps for classrooms), and drinking trends on dour Scot Sundays. John Lindsay, local commentator, handles some of the interviewing bits, using rural Highland types as his subjects. Jack House, Glasgow newspaper scribe, offered amusingly a survey of what shape school starps take and have taken. The program has possibilities if it doesn't get bogged down too much in dignified sameness. Gord.

THE KILLING STONES
With Donald Wolfit, Donald Pleasence, Vanda Godsell, Geoffrey Palmer, Colin Douglas, Earl Cameron
Writer: Wolf Mankowitz
Producer: Leonard Brett
Director: Cecil Petty
30 Mins., Sat., 8 p.m.
Associated TeleVision from London

Scripted by Wolf Mankowitz, this play cycle in six parts sets out to prove that diamonds are a man's worst enemy. The basic theme behind "The Killing Stones" is that nobody can escape the unwholesome effects of working with diamonds, and that illicit diamond buying can only lead to a bad end. Linking the six stories together is Donald Wolfit as a diamond polisher with flexible scruples, who relates the tales. Much of the material was lensed in the South African diamond territory to give authenticity. Production on the first episode was good, but a thin story spoiled the effect.

Subtitled "The Carefulness Of Kleiber," it set out to prove that diamonds are a guy's worst friend by picking on a careful, meticulous and honest, but dull diamond assayer as an example. From a dreary, plodding existence his life was changed by his nagging and unfaithful wife, discovered in compromising circumstances with an insurance peddler. The assayer began to pocket some of the uncut stones and finally, with a pocketful of sparklers, was set to start a new life in South America when he lost his sanity and got shot.

Wolfit gave a good performance, and Donald Pleasence as Kleiber was convincing. Story started out strongly and built up characters well, but the effort to condense the plot into 30 minutes, resulted in an unsatisfactory and unconvincing close. Bary.

Foreign TV Followup

Val Parnell's Saturday Spectacular

Latest of Val Parnell's "Saturday Spectacular" shows (5) gave such an all-round nod to American show biz that British performers might have developed something of an inferiority complex, except that these very amiable Yank troupers offered nothing that could not have been done just as well by home artists. There was nothing highly spectacular about this routine string of competent singing acts.

Hollywood's operatic tenor, James Melton, topped the bill and had much to thank the femme side of his company for his success. He started with "To The End of the Earth," with Barbara Meister, a rather coy offering, followed it with David Rose's "Holiday For Strings," backed with three girl fiddlers, and continued with "Make Believe" from Show Boat," before rounding off the act with "Round the World We Sing For You." The result? Average entertainment which caused no blood vessels to burst. Melton is a handsome guy and Miss Meister a charmer, but there seemed little evidence offered as to why they should be topping a tv bill 6,000 miles away from home base.

Among the other U. S. entertainers were June Christy, easy on the eye thrush who gave with "I Wanna Be Happy" and "Midnight Sun" very adequately, and Charlie Gracie, who with his guitar, sang "Tryin' " and "99 Ways" and managed to lift a gag from Britain's own Dickie Henderson in the course of his brief patter. Best item on an uninspired bill were The Hilltoppers, who slickly and warmly put over a number of songs from the 20's, starting with "Swanee" and winding up with "I Can Do Without Broadway," a sentiment which clearly, but sadly, cannot apparently be echoed by the sponsors of this run-of-the-mill show. Des O'Connor as emcee and Doreen Stephens, together with the George Carden Dancers and Jack Parnell's musical outfit represented local talent with no more, but no less effectiveness than their starred American "opposition."

Albert Locke's production could not be faulted, but it was never severely put to any test. Rich.

Sunday Night at the Palladium

Originally it had been hoped that Paul Robeson would headline this layout (6), but when it became known that his passport was still being withheld by the State Department, Associated Television Television brought Pat Boone back for a return engagement. Quite a difference in style and appeal, of course, but the Hollywood singer is a very personable young man, with a relaxed appearance, and a pleasant easy on the ear voice. His routine was amiable and well balanced, and included clicko entries such as "April Love" and "Love Letters in the Sand," while his rendition of "You'll Never Walk Alone" was a fitting ending to the Easter show.

In a complete switch from previous policy, the bill included a lengthy excerpt from a current West End comedy, "Touch It Light," which was introed by Jon Pertwee and featured Victor Maddern and Harry Locke, among others. Hardly a vaude attraction, but the barrack room scene was good for a few laughs. Les Mathurins, comedy acro duo, put on a slick tumbling display which registered effectively. Tommy Trinder, fully back in his stride, took good care of the emceeing chores as well as steering the "Beat the Clock" participants. Myro.

Job Security

Continued from page 27

will be fewer men needed to do the job.

NBC has an almost entirely automated shop at its Buffalo owned and operated station. Again a question of automation having the potential of replacing people.

But, as pointed out, the "job security" problem doesn't stop in bargaining with employers. All but one of the current jurisdictional squabbles are the result of "job security."

Screen Actors Guild and American Federation of Television & Radio Artists each wants control of tape video. This is an expression of the problem in its most superficial terms, but control of tape for one of these unions could mean the death of the other, since tape promises to be the biggest method of tv program reproduction. This is not easy to explain as a conflict based on job security, but, nevertheless, it is, according to practical observers. Fear of one union "putting the other out of business" runs indivisibly and concurrently with the fear that members of the losing union might never become well entrenched enough in the other to work in tv again. This may not be reasonable but it is still a motivating factor in the hassling.

There's IATSE, Too

International Alliance of Theatrical & Stage Employees is ready to oppose IBEW and NABET for control of tape's technical aspects, in a magnification of the same fears besetting SAG and AFTRA. Here the problem is more realistically set down. A relatively small percentage of card carrying actors work in tv, and it may be assumed that, regardless of which union they carry a card in now, they will continue being sought by producers, even if the producers work in tape. For the rest of the actors, the problem of tape becomes academic, yet for engineers and technicians in radio-and-tv unions—all of whom are full or nearly fulltime employees—tape can replace many of them. Hence, it stands to reason, by their way of thinking, that the union gaining tape control will be the union whose men continue working. There are just so many technical tv jobs available.

Chances of consolidating any two unions are slim. Too much skepticism and jealousy mar the picture, so the fighting is likely to continue and get worse as tape and other technical improvements come closer.

The one squabble beyond the sphere of tape is going on between IBEW and IATSE for control of remote lighting at the networks. With technical improvements, television is increased its capacity for remote productions, and the union to get jurisdiction will be the union whose men have increased the likelihood just that much of continuing on the job.

Philadelphia—John Raleigh, former WRCV radio newscaster and war correspondent, has joined the WFIL staff. Raleigh will take over the supervision of the station's "newscruiser," succeeding Shelly Gross, who resigned.

Radio Followup

Bert Parks' Bandstand

Brought back by "popular demand" Friday (11) was "Vaudeville Day," which NBC's "Bert Parks' Bandstand" did as a one shot on March 14. While this informal revival hardly rejuvenated the old two-a-day, it nevertheless was a nostalgic 55 minutes as Parks & Co. rolled back time to the early 1920s.

An effervescent type by nature, Parks not only emceed the proceedings with gusto but also took part in duets with Richard Hayes in singing such standards as "Toot Tootsie Goodbye" and "Give Me That Old Soft Shoe." Further atmosphere was provided by Jim Wager & Paul Carroll who reprised a variety of oldtime tunes. Their harmonizing was particularly effective on "That Old Gang of Mine."

Bob Carman's script also conjured recollections of strawhat and cane routines with such phrases as ". . . melodies of '23 bring memories you will agree of mah jong, dance marathons and when immortal prose flowed from the pen of Billy Rose." Skitch Henderson's band and ragtime piano backed the session nicely. When Hayes et al. weren't chiming in with a lusty "Ain't She Sweet," there was even some community singing betwixt some spot announcements that ranged all the way from Ex Lax to Bab-O cleanser. On the whole "Vaudeville Day" was pleasant listening. Gilb.

'PERRY MASON' SALE FOR DOWN UNDER

The first sale to Australia of a full hour telefilm series has been made by CBS Film Sales, which sold 39 "Perry Mason" episodes.

Purchaser was the Melbourne Herald and Sydney Times which operates stations in the two cities.

Mgt. William Morris Agency

STORY EDITOR — Fomerly with TV Network, seeks similar position with web, packaging or ad agency. Purchased and doctored manuscripts. Developed new TV writers.
Box VD-7229, Variety,
154 W. 46th Street,
New York 36

HOWARD E. STARK
BROKER AND FINANCIAL CONSULTANT
RADIO AND TELEVISION STATIONS
50 EAST 58TH STREET
NEW YORK 22, N.Y. ELDORADO 5-0405
ALL INQUIRIES CONFIDENTIAL

EVERY DAY ON EVERY CHANNEL TV
BROOKS COSTUMES
3 West 61st St., N.Y.C. • Tel. PL 7-5000

MY STUDIO AND I WILL WORK FOR YOU
My background has been working with people as a theatrical agent. My studio is 30' by 50', 28' ceiling. Has been used for TV performances and Broadway rehearsals. Midtown location. Phone OR 9-2479.

CROSS RIVER — ESSO BLDG.
N.Y.S. REALTY
New furnished 4 bedroom house
— 2 Baths — 2 Acres —
Studio 20' x 30' Appliances
2 Year Lease—$290 Mth.
So. Salem 3-5400

THEY LOVE ME IN SALT LAKE CITY

29.9
KTVT-TV, ARB
Wed., Feb. 5
9:45 P.M.
MGM-TV
Contact: RICHARD A. HARPER, General Sales Mgr.
MGM-TV, a service of Loew's Incorporated
1540 Broadway, New York 36, N. Y. • JUdson 2-2000

CASEY JONES Rates HIGH . . . EVERYWHERE!
34.9 NORFOLK . . 20.4 DETROIT . . 29.2 CHARLESTON . . 30.8 SCRANTON-WILKES-BARRE
Source: ARB
March, 1958
SCREEN GEMS, INC.
TELEVISION SUBSIDIARY OF COLUMBIA PICTURES CORP.
711 Fifth Avenue, New York 22 PL 1-4432
NEW YORK DETROIT CHICAGO HOLLYWOOD MIAMI HOUSTON TORONTO

thank you...

The men from Cunningham & Walsh say, "Thank you, Benny Goodman, for the wonderful TEXACO show: Swing into Spring last Wednesday night on NBC-TV." • We said it right after the show, but we just want to say it again—to all of you who helped put it over in a big way, "Thank you"—

ROD ALEXANDER · BOB BACH · BRUCE BASSETT · BILL BENNINGTON · EDDIE BERT · RAPHAEL BRETTON · HARRY BREWER · LEROY L. BURNES · RALPH BURNS · KENNY BURRELL · BILLY BUTTERFIELD · JOHN CASAGRANDE · EMILE CHARLAP · FRED CHRISTIE · BUCK CLAYTON JACK COFFEE · HOWARD COOLEY · BUSTER DAVIS · ROBERT DAVIS · CHARLES DUBIN · RAY EBERLE · NAT B. EISENBERG · CARL ERSKINE · ELLA FITZGERALD · MORT FLEISCHMANN DAVE GARROWAY · DON GILMAN · BERNIE GLOW · BENNY GOODMAN · URBIE GREEN · TOM HARMON · MART HOCHSTEIN · JOHN W. HOINS · MELVIN HOWARD · JERRY IRELAND · HARRY JAMES · HANK JONES · HARRY KALCHEIM MURRAY KANE · HERB KAPLAN · ETHEL KIRSNER · AL KLINK · MARCIA KUYPER · GEORGE LAURENCE · NOREEN LAURENZI · GENE LAW BILL LEE · WALT LEVINSKY · BAMBI LINN · VERNON LOWELL · TOM MADIGAN · JACK MARSHALL ANDY McCAFFREY · LOU McGARITY · McGUIRE SISTERS · BRINK MEYER · RED NORVO · NORMAN OGG · GREG PETERS · ALLAN POSAGE · SOL RADAM · HEINO RIPP · SARETT RUDLEY AL RYLANDER · RUSS SAUNDERS · SOL SCHLINGER · JAN SCOTT · JOHN SCUOPPO DOC SEVERINSEN · HYMIE SHERTZER E. G. SHIPMAN · ZOOT SIMS · DICK SMITH · JO STAFFORD · NOEL TAYLOR · DON VAN ATTA · EDWIN VANE · JEAN VAUGHAN · JANE WETHERALL · TEDDY WILSON · DOUGLAS WOOD · MURIEL ZUCKERMAN

Cunningham & Walsh, Inc.

NEW YORK
CHICAGO
HOLLYWOOD
LOS ANGELES
SAN FRANCISCO

"... a priceless hour ... a beautiful, sentimental show, exquisitely staged in color."
Harriet Van Horne, N. Y. World-Telegram & Sun

"... solid musicianship ... production came off very smoothly."
Hollywood Daily Variety

"... something to see and hear."
John P. Shanley, New York Times

"... gay, colorful presentation."
Boston Herald

"... dandy ... over-all production excellent ... step in the right direction for TV jazz."
Sid Bakal, N. Y. Herald Tribune

"... joyous and jubilant ... was a treat."
Ben Gross, N. Y. Daily News

"... plenty of zing."
Harry Harris, Philadelphia Inquirer

"Should be preserved as a TV heirloom."
Guy Wright, San Francisco News

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By HERM SCHOENFELD

Toni Arden (Decca): "PADRE" (Ross Jungnickel*), a blend of romanic and religioso motifs, is given a highly sentimental and commercial reading by this songstress. "ALL AT ONCE" (Rosemeadow*), is a fair conventional ballad.

Sarah Vaughan (Mercury): "PADRE" (Jugnickel*), which is getting wide coverage, gets another excellent workover by Miss Vaughan who'll share in the spins. "SPIN LITTLE BOTTLE" (Planetary*) is a routine teenage-angled entry.

Frankie Laine (Columbia): "A KISS CAN CHANGE THE WORLD" (Exeter*), a bright ballad with an excellent lyric, is sung by Frankie Laine with a light beat for one of his best sides in some time. "LOVIN' UP A STORM" (Planetary*) is another rhythm side with strong potential.

Tommy Sands (Capitol): "TEEN-AGE DOLL" (Central†), a solid juve-angled item, could go all the way via Tommy Sands' strong belting job. "HAWAIIAN ROCK" (Tri-Park†) is rock 'n' roll going native with fair results.

Connie Francis (MGM): "I'M SORRY I MADE YOU CRY" (Feist*), a well-written ballad in the contemporary manner, is attractively vocalled by Connie Francis for strong impact. "LOCK UP YOUR HEART" (Wildcat*), with a pronounced slow beat, is also belted all the way home by this songstress.

Frankie Lymon (Roulette): "MAMA DON'T ALLOW IT" (Joy*), a clever, rocking entry, is socked across for top results by this savvy vocalist. "PORTABLE ON MY SHOULDER" (Kahl) is okay juve-angled stuff.

Julius LaRosa (RCA Victor): "TORERO" (Leeds*), an amusing bullfight story, is infectiously projected to earn some spins, although this type of material lacks fundamental pop impact. "MILANO" (Europa†) is an Italo-flavored melody that builds into a strong finish.

Johnnie Ray (Columbia): "ENDLESSLY" (Meridian†), a ballad with an all-out romantic lyric, is delivered in restrained style by Johnnie Ray. "LONELY FOR A LETTER" (Beechmont†) is a ballad with a pleasing oldfashioned music hall beat.

Chas. McDevitt Skiffle Group (Kapp): "JOHNNY-O" (Peter Maurice*), a charming folk-type ballad, is brightly skiffled by this British combo with Nancy Whiskey handling the vocal. "SING, SING, SING" (Acuff-Rose†), a country number, is another pleasing slice with Tiny Kohn as the lead vocalist.

Lindsay Crosby (RCA Victor): "WHY-O-WHY-YOU" (Duchess†), a rhythm tune with a cute lyric, is a fine showcase for this Crosby's preem on the Victor label. Lindsay has a bluesy voice with a good beat suitable for the current pop song vogue. "FRIENDSHIP RING" (Time†), a rocking ballad, is also handled with a smooth, savvy attack.

Guy Lombardo Orch (Capitol): "THE LETTER GETS BETTER" (Kassner*), a catching tune with a neat lyric idea, is given a typically listenable production by Guy Lombardo's orch with Kenny Gardner vocalling. "OVER AND OVER" (Mills*) is another smooth ballad also featuring Gardner.

Lee Andrews & The Hearts (United Artists): "TRY THE IMPOSSIBLE" (Spinmill-G&H†), an above-par slow rocking ballad, is neatly sold by vocalist Lee Andrews and his combo. "NOBODY'S HOME" (Spinmill-G&H†) is a fair uptempo side.

Kay Starr (RCA Victor): "STROLL ME" (Wemar†), another tune taking off on the "stroll" idea, shapes up as mediocre material for Kay Starr. "ROCKIN' CHAIR" (Starstan†), no relation to the Hoagy Carmichael classic, is a routine rhythm item.

Eddie Lawrence: "THE PHILOSOPHER STRIKES BACK" (Merrick†), the latest chapter in Eddie Lawrence's comedy philosophics, is not the best in the series, but there's still plenty of laughs in the script. "FRANKENSTEINER POLKA" (Chatham*) is a broad takeoff on the "Lichtensteiner Polka" hit with Lawrence doing the kraut dialect.

Alan Dale (ABC-Paramount): "WE'RE TOGETHER" (Rosemeadow*), an okay Latin-pegged ballad, is handled in ace style by Alan Dale, a fine singer who has not been lucky on wax in recent years. "THE VALLEY OF THE MOON" (Rosemeadow*) is a more pretentious entry also with a Latin flavor.

Danny Bell & The Bell Hops (Fraternity): "CHILI WITH HONEY" (Buckeye*) is a nifty mix of Latin and rock 'n' roll ideas in a solid instrumental slice. "WHEN I'M ALONE" (Robbins*) is a melodic ballad simply arranged with a good beat.

Ronnie Deauville (Era): "CRAZY, WONDERFUL" (Fairway†) is a pleasing ballad with a light rocking beat which is handled in a smooth crooning style. "HONG KONG AFFAIR" (Robbins*), title song of the Allied Artists pic, is an okay romantic ballad with some Oriental motifs in the background.

Rosemary June (Paris): "PERSON TO PERSON" (Greta†), a Latin-formatted tune, is brightly chirped by this songstress. "I'LL ALWAYS BE IN LOVE WITH YOU" (Shapiro-Bernstein*), the standard, is dressed up with a rocking beat for new spins.

* ASCAP † BMI

Best Bets

TONI ADEN (Decca) — PADRE / All At Once

SARAH VAUGHAN (Mercury) — PADRE / Spin Little Bottle

FRANKIE LAINE (Columbia) — A KISS CAN CHANGE THE WORLD / Lovin' Up A Storm

TOMMY SANDS (Capitol) — TEEN-AGE DOLL / Hawaiian Rock

LAWRENCE WELK

Presents LARRY DEAN Singing "Pony Tail." B W "All the Time" (Brunswick No. 55056).

Album Reviews

Don Elliott & His Choir: "The Mello Sound" (Decca). One of the releases in Decca's "Mood Jazz In Hi-Fi" LP series, this set neatly blends the pretty and relaxing sounds of the "mood music" genre with the more freewheeling arrangements of jazz. Result is an attractive, toe-tapping musical session featuring Don Elliot on mellophone, trumpet and vibes, a fine small combo of versatile sidemen, and six-voice choir which is used as part of the instrumental framework. In addition to several numbers written by Elliott, there are standards like "It's Only A Paper Moon," "Dinah," "Play A Fiddle Play" and "Poinciana."

"Trouble In Tahiti" (MGM). The pop opera, "Trouble In Tahiti," which had its preem six years ago and is now getting a revival, is another striking work by Leonard Bernstein who wrote the words and music. It's a pointed and occasionally poignant comment on married life in the suburbs etched in seven brief musical scenes. Beverly Wolf and David Atkinson, as the married couple, give standout performances while Miriam Workman, Earl Rogers and Robert Bollinger, as a modern Greek chorus, add an important dimension to the work which has been batoned authoritatively by Arthur Winograd. The libretto is printed in large type on the doublefold album jacket.

"The Magic of Andy Russell" (RCA Victor). Andy Russell's smooth crooning style is showcased here in a rich setting of standards and Latin tunes. Russell belts strongly, but effortlessly, on a program consisting of tunes like "Besame Mucho," "You Belong To My Heart," "Amor," "Laughing On The Outside" and "They Say It's Wonderful," among others.

Mort Sahl: "The Future Lies Ahead" (Verve). Recorded during a performance at the hungri nitery in San Francisco where Mort Sahl is highly regarded, this set presents a couple of monologs by this young comic-commentator on the socio-political scene. "Whatever Sahl's talents are on a nitery floor, they do not wear well on wax, at least as far as these examples go. Sahl's informal gal routine is peppered with occasional sharp comments, but the constant laugh accompaniment on this disk is by a pre-sold audience. All he has to do is mention Ike, Nixon, Dulles, Russian missiles, loyalty oaths and a handful of other headline items, and this hungry audience goes into convulsions. On LP, this stream-of-consciousness, quasi-intellectual chatter shapes up as lightweight satirical stuff with long arid stretches of "liberal" cliches.

Marty Gold Orch: "Hi Fo Fo Fum" (Vik). One of the most inventive arranger-conductors now around, Marty Gold conducts another bright musical progrm with a wide palette of instrumental coloration. Gold parlays strings and brass in lush arrangements of standards and semi-classics including "March of The Toys," "Humoresque," "The Comedians Gallop,"

(Continued on page 49)

RETAIL ALBUM BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail album best sellers based on reports from leading stores and showing comparative ratings for this week and last.

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(R. H. Macy Co.)	Boston—(Jordan Marsh Co.)	Albany—(Ten Eyck Record Shop)	Washington—(Disc Shop)	Philadelphia—(Midtown Records)	Pittsburgh—(National Record)	Chicago—(Lyon-Healy)	Miami—(Spec's Record Shop)	Dallas—(Titche-Goettinger)	San Antonio—(San Antonio Music)	Louisville—(Shackleton Piano)	Atlanta—(Rich's Dept. Store)	Memphis—(Trent Wood Records)	Indianapolis—(Ayres)	Minneapolis—(Dayton's Dept. Str.)	Cleveland—(Highbee's)	Kansas City—(Katz Drug Co.)	Portland—(6th Av. Record Shop)	San Francisco—(Sherman Clay Co.)	Denver—(Denver Dry Goods)	Hollywood—(Wallich's Music City)	Seattle—(Frederick & Nelson)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	MUSIC MAN (Capitol) Original Cast (WAO 990)	1	8	7	2	2	3	1	1	3	5	5	..	7	1	1	1	1	4	2	1	5	2	168
2	2	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) Come Fly With Me (W 920)	2	3	3	1	5	..	6	2	2	3	7	..	1	2	9	..	5	..	..	..	6	3	116
3	3	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) Warm (CL 1078)	3	..	4	..	..	6	2	4	4	..	1	3	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	5	82
4	5	SOUTH PACIFIC (Victor) Soundtrack (LOC 1032)	9	4	..	1	..	4	3	1	1	..	9	..	..	..	3	4	..	10	..	4	..	79
5	7	AROUND THE WORLD (Decca) Soundtrack (DL 9046)	8	..	..	5	9	..	3	10	..	4	2	5	..	9	2	..	2	..	..	..	10	..	63
6	8	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Till (KL 1081)	..	7	..	..	..	5	..	9	..	2	..	6	4	..	..	6	7	..	..	5	..	1	58
7	4	MY FAIR LADY (Columbia) Original Cast (CL 5090)	5	..	1	..	3	..	5	..	..	..	4	10	..	..	3	9	..	..	..	4	..	..	55
8	17	SOUTH PACIFIC (Columbia) Original Cast (B 2579-80)	..	1	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	6	..	7	..	4	39
9	16	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) Good Night Dear Lord (CL 1119)	10	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	1	1	..	..	..	35
10	6	CARMEN CAVALLARO (Decca) Remembers Duchin (DL 8661)	..	8	..	..	7	..	5	9	..	6	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	7	32
11	10	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) Johnny's Great Hits (CL 1133)	..	6	..	..	..	2	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	9	..	..	..	2	..	30
12	..	MANTOVANI (London) Film Encores (LL 1700)	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	27
13	20	MARIO LANZA (Victor) 7 Hills of Rome (LM 2211)	..	2	..	3	..	9	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	23
14A	14	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Fabulous Fifties (KXL 5000)	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	22
14B	19	RICKY NELSON (Imperial) Ricky (IMP 9048)	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	8	8	..	..	..	..	6	..	7	6	..	..	..	..	..	22
16	12	PAT BOONE (Dot) Pat's Great Hits (DLP 3071)	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	20
17	..	BILLY VAUGHN (Dot) Sail Silvery Moon (DLP 3100)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	5	..	..	4	..	..	8	19
18A	18	OKLAHOMA (Capitol) Soundtrack (SAO 595)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	7	6	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	18
18B	23	PERCY FAITH (Columbia) Viva (CL 1075)	..	..	..	7	..	10	..	7	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	18
20	9	PAL JOEY (Capitol) Soundtrack (W 912)	..	..	4	..	..	..	6	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	16
21	..	WAYNE KING (Decca) Dream Time (DL 8663)	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	12
22	11	KING & I (Capitol) Soundtrack (W 740)	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	11
23A	..	BRIDGE ON RIVER KWAI (Col.) Soundtrack (CL 1100)	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10
23B	..	DAKOTA STATON (Capitol) Late Late Show (T 876)	4	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10
25	..	GIGI (MGM) Soundtrack (E 3641)	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	9

LP: LOW-PRICE BLOCKBUSTER

Stereo Disk Ready For Big Spin As Columbia Adopts '100%' System

With Columbia Records' decision to go along with the so-called 100% stereophonic disk which has been strongly advocated by RCA Victor, the road to a broad stereo marketing campaign is now wide open. Within the next couple of weeks, several stereo disk releases, conforming to the new industrywide standards, will be on the shelves under several indie labels.

By summer, it's expected that both Victor and Columbia will have their initial stereo disks on the market with virtually all other important companies following suit by the fall.

After a couple of weeks of confusion during which it appeared that a couple of different stereo disk systems would confront the ultimate consumer, the picture was completely cleared up last week when Columbia disclosed that it was going along with the rest of the industry in producing a stereo line which will not be compatible with present monaural phonograph equipment. Last week, Peter Goldmark, prexy of CBS Laboratories, came out in favor of a so-called compatible disk, but he apparently was not speaking for Columbia Records, another CBS subsid.

Goddard Lieberson, Columbia Records prexy, stated that "it is our intention to produce for commercial sale in the near future a so-called non-compatible, stereophonic disk which will contain every element necessary for full stereophonic effect. This stereophonic disk will not in any way affect our monaural catalog which is, and will continue to be, the world's largest LP catalog."

Lieberson said that "our point of view has always been that the introduction of the stereophonic disk is merely a refinement, not a revolution, in the realm of LP recording. Various methods for reproducing stereophonically have been developed and others are still in the laboratory stage. The Columbia full stereophonic disk will conform to the technical standards adopted by both the record and phonograph industries."

He added that "we have no doubt that in time existing technical problems will be solved. For ex-

(Continued on page 49)

HMV LINE TO CAPITOL AS RCA DEAL RUNS OUT

Hollywood, April 15.

EMI, which owns Capitol Records, is turning over it's HMV line of classical music to Cap when the deal with RCA Victor finally runs out this spring. Previously, latter label released the HMV line. It's understood that Cap will take it over sometime in the fall.

Cap will then probably release under the HMV tag as well as the Capitol Classics and Angel labels.

Seeco Label Sets Deals With Madrid Telefunken

Sidney Siegel, Seeco Records prexy, is back in New York after a two-week overseas hop. During his European trek, he set a deal with Telefunken of Madrid, a subsid of the German company, to press and release Seeco and its subsid Dawn lines in Spain.

Test pressings of material that Siegel selected in London and Paris are now being shipped to N. Y. where the material will be further screened for U. S. release potential. Indie diskery also will be receiving three albums a month, throughout the balance of the year, of Spanish material.

Siegel also is planning to bring his label into the stereo tape field. Albums by Jose Melis, Elsa Maxwell, Aldo Brusci and the Triads Plus will make up the first stereo releases.

Ricky Nelson's 1G-A-Wk.

Hollywood, April 15.

Ricky Nelson's new five-year pact with Imperial Records calls for $1,000 weekly guarantee plus royalty. Under the royalty clause, he will receive 5% of gross yearly sales exceeding $1,155,500 less 10% which is figured for returns.

Previous contract called for royalty payment only.

Can. DJ's Play Disks to Death Prior to Release

Vancouver, April 15.

There's an odd situation here in the single disk biz, says Knox Coupland, RCA Victor topper in this region. One or two deejays are killing pop disks before they are released in Canada. Jockeys pick up the latest releases in Seattle, and within the week's lag between stateside and Canadian release dates, rocket some to the top of the local rave list.

Situation occurs around other Canadian border cities. Consequence is, the kids are weary of the tunes before RCA can get them pressed in eastern Canada, he said.

Most recent victims of the pre-release local exploitation are RCA's "My Jimmy" by Jeannie Johnson, and the Floyd Cramer version of "Flip Flop & Bop."

Coupland states that Red Robinson, teener's deejay at CKWX, hoisted these two platters into pre-release oblivion. "But we can hardly complain," he said, "Robinson does well for us." "Wild Child" by David Hill is said to be another RCA single that the pressers have pencilled for Canadian dealers.

As far as albums are concerned, Canada's disk jockeys are sticking to Canadian releases, he said.

Shifrin Roading It

Jerry Shifrin, Roulette Records' new national sales manager, headed out on the road this week for his first sales junket to label's distributors.

He'll be out two weeks covering the south and midwest.

20% OF MARKET, $60,000,000 A YR.

Low-priced LP platters are currently the most dynamic sales phenomenon in the disk biz. The growth in this field has been mainly sparked by the steady expansion of outlets in over 20,000 supermarkets and chain stores and the marked improvement in the physical packaging in the last year or two. It's estimated that the low-priced field now accounts for about 20% of the total market or over $60,000,000 annually.

In the past few months, low-priced disks have also been hypoed by the downward trend in the general economy. In distressed economic areas, such as Detroit, where regular disk sales have been hurt badly by the actuality and fear of unemployment, low-priced disks have significantly held up and even improved.

One disk exec explained it as follows: It's likely that a person worried about the state of his bankroll would not make a visit to his regular retail store for the special purpose of buying a record. However, when the same person sees a disk in a supermarket, where he or she must go to pick up the groceries, the impulse factor may play a role in the platter purchase. An additional consideration is the attractive disk price.

Up to recently a handful of indie labels have been the dominant forces in the low-priced field. Such companies as Tops, Design, Somerset, Remington, etc., have had wide exposure in the department stores and supermarket racks.

At the present time, the majors have become important contenders. Camden Records, the RCA low-priced label, has undergone a spectacular growth since last fall

(Continued on page 49)

Haley's R&R in Spanish For South American Trek

Bill Haley & His Comets, who took off for a tour of South America yesterday (Tues.), have readied new Spanish language versions of their string of rock 'n' roll hits. Their latest number climbing for Decca is "Skinny Minnie."

Combo opens in Caracas, Venezuela, tomorrow (Thurs.) and then heads for Rio De Janeiro, San Paolo and Porte Allegre in Brazil. They're also set to play Buenos Aires and Montevideo.

Kaye Takes ASCAP Over the Coals, Defends BMI Operation All the Way In Senate Hearings on Smathers Bill

Washington, April 15.

The operation of Broadcast Music Inc., which has been under persistent attack by a group of ASCAP writers for the past four years, was defended on all counts in Senate hearings on the Smathers Bill, aimed at divorcing broadcasters from the music biz. Championing BMI's cause in a public forum for the first time was Sidney M. Kaye, chief organizer of the licensing organization, its present board chairman and member of the law firm of Roseman, Goldmark, Colin & Kaye.

Kaye's statement to the committee, which heard from the bill's proponents a couple of weeks ago, covered in detail the following questions: (1) Performance licensing and the positions of ASCAP and BMI in this field; (2) alleged evidence of discrimination by broadcasters against ASCAP music; (3) ownership of BMI stock by some broadcasters; (4) great expansion of music during BMI's 18-year lifetime; and (5) the Smathers Bill and its specific effects.

Under point one, Kaye asserted that BMI was set up in 1939 by the broadcasters as an organization which would make available a competing supply of music to that of ASCAP which, he called, "a practically complete monopoly." At the present time, 624 out of 4,000 stations own BMI stock, while the networks owns about 20% of the total.

'Open Door' Policy

Kaye explained that at the time of its formation, BMI adopted an "open door" policy to all publishers and writers not "encompassed within the ASCAP monopoly." As a result, such categories as Latin music, country & western and

(Continued on page 46)

Dot Veeps Tom Mack

Hollywood, April 15.

Tom Mack, for the past two years in charge of album repertoire for Dot, has been named a veepee by prexy Randy Wood. Mack's new post will be planning, production and packaging of all Dot album product.

Wood, Mack and veepee Bob Thiele, who is quartered in N.Y., will meet for two weeks of confabs which Christine Hamilton, sales chief, will also attend.

SPA Seeks Gabs With Publishers On a Basic Pact

The Songwriters Protective Assn. will launch discussions for a new basic pact with publishers within the next few months. The current agreement actually expired at the outset of 1957 but SPA has asked publishers to extend the operation of the pact until May 1 of this year. Pending the negotiations, SPA is now asking for another extension through Dec. 31 of this year.

Since there is no single organization representing the 900 publishers which have signed with SPA, the cleffer organization has requested a meeting with various publisher reps to work out a feasible method of negotiations. The Music Publishers Protective Assn., representing about 50 of the major firms, will sit in on the bargaining sessions. It's likely that the recently formed Assn. of Independent Music Publishers, repping several dozen publishers ranging from big to small, will also be present to discuss the SPA terms.

Upcoming SPA pact talks are expected to cover such topics as performance licensing of tunes for films, deductions from disk royalties for promotional expenses and other questions related to the current phase of the music biz in which disks, rather than sheet music, are of paramount importance.

COURT KO'S SEECO MOVE TO GANDER FOX'S BOOKS

Seeco Records' effort to examine all publisher licenses issued through the Harry Fox office since 1950 as well as the accounting of all disk companies for the same period was kayoed in N.Y. Federal Court this week in a ruling by Judge R. H. Levet. Ruling was made in the long-standing suit of nine publishers against Seeco for alleged non-payment of complete disk royalties.

Seeco, in pre-trial examination, has attempted to establish the point that it has been trade practice for diskeries to pay royalties on all platters that are sold rather than on the manufacturered total. Hence the request for the books of Fox, publishers' agent and trustee who licenses the mechanical rights. The publishers, through their attorney, Arnold J. Bernstein, of Abeles & Bernstein, contend that licensing agreement with Seeco calls for payments of manufactured disks and, no matter what deals have been accepted in some cases, the plaintiffs have the right to insist upon full conformance to the licensing agreement.

COL'S CARIOCA CONFAB

1st Latin-American Gab For N.Y. in June

Columbia Records will hold its first Latin-American convention in New York in late June. Attending will be company managers, artists & repertoire men and artists from Col's directly owned companies in Mexico, Argentina and Brazil. Also at the meet will be representatives from affiliate companies from Chile, Colombia, Cuba, Peru and Uruguay.

The convention will be held to help establish coordination of releases of latino repertoire in the south-of-the-border countries and to work out problems in the handling of new product.

RETAIL SHEET BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail sheet music best sellers based on reports obtained from leading stores in 13 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

* ASCAP † BMI

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Title and Publisher	New York (MDS)	Boston (Mosher Music)	Philadelphia (Charles DuMont)	San Antonio (San Antonio Mus.)	Chicago (Lyon-Healy Music Co.)	Detroit (Grinnell Bros.)	Cleveland (Grossman Music)	Minneapolis (Schmitt Music Co.)	Indianapolis (Pearson's)	Kansas City (Jenkins Music Co.)	Los Angeles (Freeman)	San Francisco (Pac. Coast Music)	Seattle (Capitol Music Co.)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	*Catch a Falling Star (Marvin)	5	1	1	..	1	3	4	1	1	1	3	10	9	92
2	2	†Sugartime (Nor-Va-Jak)	2	4	..	5	2	4	1	5	2	2	1	..	8	85
3	5	†Tequila (Jat)	..	5	3	10	..	1	10	..	..	..	2	1	7	49
4A	11	*World in Hands (Chappell)	1	..	5	6	9	6	8	..	6	9	10	..	1	45
4B	4	*76 Trombones (Frank)	..	3	5	..	..	..	..	3	9	..	5	3	4	45
6	9	*Who's Sorry Now (Mills)	6	..	7	..	6	5	..	8	8	7	9	..	3	40
7	..	†Lollipop (Marks)	3	6	..	..	..	2	..	4	..	5	8	..	..	38
8A	8	†Are You Sincere (Cedarwood)	..	..	8	..	10	8	9	..	5	4	7	2	..	35
8B	3	*Silvery Moon (Joy)	8	..	9	..	..	9	7	..	4	3	6	7	..	35
8C	7	†Shepherd Blues (B.-Kahl)	..	2	..	4	..	..	6	6	7	6	..	..	..	35
11	6	†Wonderful Time (Fowler)	..	..	..	9	..	..	5	2	3	8	..	8	..	31
12	10	*All the Way (Maraville)	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	9	..	19
13	..	*Arriverdici Roma (Connolly)	..	7	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	13
14	13	†26 Miles (Beechwood)	..	..	..	..	..	10	3	..	..	10	..	..	..	10
15	12	*Too Soon to Know (Morris)	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	8

Kaye Defends BMI All The Way

Continued from page 45

rhythm & blues, for which, Kaye stated, "ASCAP had not been paying," came to BMI. Kaye contrasted BMI "open door" to writers and publishers with ASCAP's policy then of tight restrictions on admitting new members. "Under pressure of competition," Kaye stated, "ASCAP opened its doors to new members but, as I shall indicate, the cashier's wicket for new publishers and writers still remains pretty tightly closed."

Kaye, in contrasting the distribution systems, stated that while BMI pays off in the main for current local station performances, ASCAP pays out most of its money for network plugs. A substantial portion of ASCAP's payoff, moreover, is made on the basis of factors other than current performance averages. Kaye also pointed out that of the over $20,000,000 distributed annually by ASCAP, about $5,000,000 a year goes to three publishers, two of which, he pointed out, were owned by film companies.

Explains Guarantees

BMI's system of giving guarantees to its members was likened by Kaye to ASCAP's system of giving the "established writers and publishers what amounts to a fixed income." Moreover, Kaye stated, BMI only has 14 contracts in which it gives guarantees of any substantial amounts. He said the guarantees, or advances were made to "enable publishers to go into business and function. These advances and guarantees are ultimately measured against performances and if they are not justified, they are reduced or withdrawn."

Kaye denied that the broadcasters discriminate against ASCAP music. He quoted a statement to this effect made in 1956 by Richard Murray, ASCAP exec, in pretrial examination in the ASCAP songwriters' suit versus BMI. Kaye quoted ASCAP's statistics in 1955 to the effect that 85% of music on radio was ASCAP and 90% on television. According to BMI, only one-third of local station performances in 1956 were BMI, the balance being ASCAP. Moreover, the highest percentage of BMI music is performed by independent stations not affiliated with any network or owning any stock in BMI, Kaye stated, adding, "all of this is utterly inconsistent with discrimination."

'Patent' Conspiracy

Kaye pointed out that the total number of people responsible for the selection of music runs in the "tens of thousands," many of whom are ASCAP members. He stated that "if any substantial portion of these tens of thousands of persons was directly involved in a conspiracy to discriminate against ASCAP music, the conspiracy would be as patent as daylight." Kaye dismissed complaints of discrimination made by some ASCAP writers a couple of weeks ago before the committee as having no basis in fact. He said that the episodes cited by ASCAP witnesses, after 18 years of BMI's operation, are "so irrelevant, so trivial, so easily susceptible of explanation that they lack not only individual but cumulative probative force."

Testimony by both Oscar Hammerstein 2d and Arthur Schwartz, leading figures in the ASCAP writers' fight against BMI, were spotlighted by Kaye. He stated that Hammerstein's statements before the committee should be "contrasted with the testimony that he gave under oath in the private lawsuit. He was asked: 'Do you know of any act of discrimination by any network or station?' He answered, 'No.'"

As for Schwartz, Kaye stated that "it would be as unfair to ascribe Mr. Schwartz's comparative failure to a conspiracy on the part of broadcasters as it would be to ascribe Mr. Hammerstein's dramatic success to such a conspiracy."

Martin Block

Kaye also went into the case of disk jockey Martin Block who, in a BMI publication, urged other jockeys to play BMI, rather than ASCAP, tunes. At the present time, Kaye pointed out, Block has both ASCAP and BMI firms and receives more from the former than from the latter. Kaye also asserted that an examination of Block's programming logs would demonstrate that he played ASCAP music 3 to 1 over BMI music both while on WNEW and currently on ABC.

The BMI pact with the Aberbachs, in which there was a clause which prohibited Jean and Julian Aberbach from exploiting songs in their non-BMI firms, was also justified by Kaye. At the time the pact was made, the Aberbachs had three non-BMI firms which were, however, not connected with ASCAP either. Subsequently, one of these Aberbach firms affiliated with ASCAP and freely exploited the catalog. Aberbach's ASCAP income, Kaye disclosed, rose from $3,500 in 1950 to about $100,000 in 1956.

Kaye rejected charges made by Seymour Lazar, Coast attorney, that BMI indulges in payola. "It is unfair to try to identify BMI with a practice which has so long antedated its existence."

Kaye said that the divorce of broadcasters from BMI, as urged by the proponents of the bill, would lead to the stifling of competition in the licensing field. Both BMI, divested of broadcast ownership, and ASCAP, he said, would have the same motives of "favoring and protecting the insiders and preventing the newcomers from gaining too great a foothold in the economic arena."

Kaye concluded by stating that the ASCAP proponents of the bill "still thirst for the monopoly that they once enjoyed and that their sole purpose is to eliminate effective competition in the field of music licensing."

British Disk Bestsellers

London, April 15.

Magic Moments (RCA) ..... Como
Whole Lot'a W'm'n (MGM) ..... Rainwater
Maybe Baby (Vogue-Coral) ..... Crickets
Nairobi (Decca) ..... Steele
Don't (RCA) ..... Presley
La Dee Dah (Decca) ..... Dennis
Shepherd Blues (Decca) ..... Heath
Tequila (London) ..... Champs
Story of My Life (Columbia) ..... Holliday
Too Soon to Know (London) ..... Boone

LONDON LABEL'S 'MAY IS FOR MANTOVANI'

For the seventh consecutive year, London Records is pitching May as "Mantovani Month." The program gives dealers a straight 10% discount on 22 Mantovani LP's and 55 EP's.

Plan, which gives dealers a delayed payment until July 10 and a 100% exchange privilege, is pegged on selling 700,000 LP's during the run of the campaign. The 10% discount will allow the dealers to price the Mantovani LP's at a suggested retail price of $3.29 each.

In a move to push the Mantovani campaign, London is going out on a co-op ad drive as well as a display program for retailers' windows, counters, floors and browser boxes.

Latin-American Beat Takes Beating in Brit.; Romancing Skiffle-Rock

London, April 8.

The popularity of Latin-American music in Britain has taken a steep nosedive. It's been sacrificed to the all-consuming offbeat monsters, rock 'n' roll and skiffle.

Decline first seemed apparent when Latino airings became less frequent on BBC radio. Where at one time there were several regular band spots in the L-A style, there is now only one, and that is being retained only because the particular band, led by Edmundo Ros, has a popular personality pull.

A BBC dance music spokesman told VARIETY that something had to suffer when r&r and skiffle came along. Obviously, more air time was needed to get across enough of the new popular music to satisfy the demands of the listeners, so the least popular, in the BBC's opinion—Latin-American—was sacrificed. Only a couple of years back, L-A bands were given several hours weekly to themselves to air their style of music; now, out of an average of around 30 hours of dance music each week aired by the BBC, only 45 minutes is given to the Latin beat. The spokesman said that even this 45 minutes didn't really count as the listeners were attracted by Ros' personality and not particularly by his music.

Blame for the decline of the music has been placed with British publishers. One said that L-A catalogs had been neglected, probably for too long. It was now highly improbable, he said, that the music could ever latch on with its old popularity.

Elvis' 1,000,000 Around His 'Neck'

Just for the record, since it ain't news anymore, Elvis Presley has come up with another 1,000,000-disk seller in his latest RCA Victor release, "Wear My Ring Around Your Neck." It's his 16th straight gold platter since joining the Victor label a couple of years ago and his first since being drafted into the Army last month.

Steve Sholes, Victor's pop artists & repertory chief, plans to stage recording sessions with Presley whenever necessary on the GI's off duty.

MGM'S OPERA SERIES AND $4.98 LONGHAIRS

MGM Records is launching a new "Twentieth Century Opera" series and on May 1 the label is upping the price tag on its longhair LP's from $3.98 to $4.98. The price pattern was set by RCA Victor several months ago which has been followed by most of the other companies. Columbia, however, is still holding its classical Masterworks line at $3.98.

Kicking off MGM's opera line is Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble In Tahiti." Package features Beverly Wolff, David Atkinson, Miriam Workman, Earl Rogers and Robert Bollinger. The disk appeared simultaneously with the first performance of the Bernstein work by the New York City Opera Co. Sunday (7).

RETAIL DISK BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail disk best sellers based on reports obtained from leading stores in 22 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(R. H. Macy Co.)	Long Island—(Arcade Assoc.)	Boston—(Mosher Music)	Albany—(Van Curler Music Co.)	Washington—(Super Music)	Philadelphia—(John Wanamaker)	Pittsburgh—(Stedeford's)	Miami—(Spec's Record Shop)	Memphis—(Trent-Wood)	Louisville—(Variety Record)	Dallas—(Titche-Goettinger)	San Antonio—(San Antonio Music)	Chicago—(Hudson-Ross Music)	Detroit—(Grinnell Bros.)	Indianapolis—(Ayres)	Minneapolis—(Don Leary Music)	Cleveland—(Customs Distrib Co.)	Kansas City—(Katz Drug Co.)	San Francisco—(Columbia Music)	Hollywood—(Wallich's Music City)	Denver—(Denver Dry Goods Co.)	Seattle—(S. Clay Music Co.)	TOTAL POINTS
1	2	LAURIE LONDON (Capitol) Whole World in His Hands	3	6	..	6	..	7	2	..	2	1	6	..	1	1	1	2	..	1	4	2	..	1	130
2	1	CHAMPS (Challenge) Tequila	1	4	..	..	1	2	..	..	4	2	5	1	4	..	7	..	5	..	1	4	2	7	115
3	6	PLATTERS (Mercury) Twilight Time	..	1	1	..	..	..	1	3	..	..	1	8	2	2	..	8	2	7	10	3	..	5	100
4	..	DAVID SEVILLE (Liberty) Witch Doctor	5	2	..	10	..	..	..	2	..	..	2	..	3	..	9	..	1	6	..	1	..	6	74
5	4	CHORDETTES (Cadence) Lollipop	2	..	4	..	7	3	9	10	8	..	3	..	..	6	8	4	7	10	..	7	..	10	67
6	7	PAT BOONE (Dot) Wonderful Time Up There	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	4	..	..	..	4	..	..	2	..	..	4	3	44
7	3	ANDY WILLIAMS (Cadence) Are You Sincere	6	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	5	10	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	10	7	4	41
8	9	MONOTONES (Argo) Book of Love	..	8	..	2	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	3	..	2	6	..	9	40
9	..	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Wear My Ring Around Neck	10	..	..	4	..	..	..	1	..	..	8	..	..	..	6	..	..	4	..	5	..	..	39
10	20	DEAN MARTIN (Capitol) Return to Me	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	3	..	..	..	7	..	..	6	..	7	..	..	2	38
11	..	RICKY NELSON (Imperial) Believe What You Say	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	4	..	..	7	..	..	4	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	31
12	8	CONNIE FRANCIS (MGM) Who's Sorry Now	..	..	..	..	5	6	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	30
13A	12	KATHY LINDEN (Felsted) Billy	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	10	4	..	..	8	..	..	6	..	8	..	..	8	..	25
13B	5	PERRY COMO (Victor) Catch a Falling Star	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	25
15	23	ART & DOTTY TODD (Era) Chanson D'Amour	..	3	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	10	4	..	..	..	..	..	24
16A	11	HUEY SMITH (Ace) Don't You Just Know It	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	3	..	9	..	..	8	..	..	..	23
16B	15	McGUIRE SISTERS (Coral) Sugartime	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	6	..	23
18	18	DON GIBSON (Victor) Oh Lonesome Me	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	8	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	22
19	14	PAT BOONE (Dot) It's Too Soon to Know	..	..	..	..	4	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	21
20	17	FOUR PREPS (Capitol) 26 Miles	..	..	8	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	20
21	24	MITCH MILLER (Columbia) March From River Kwai	..	..	9	..	..	9	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	7	..	..	..	..	3	..	18
22	..	RICKY NELSON (Imperial) My Bucket's Got a Hole in It	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	8	16
23	..	ED TOWNSEND (Capitol) For Your Love	4	7	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	15
24A	..	FOUR LADS (Columbia) There's Only One of You	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	13
24B	16	LOU MONTE (Victor) Lazy Mary	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	13

THE BEST OF HOLLYWOOD IS ON RCA VICTOR RECORDS

The unusually beautiful Max Steiner music comes from what is going to be one of the biggest movie successes of all time. Watch this sensational album zoom to first place... fast!

And look at this great advertising support: Exciting national campaign including ads in Esquire, Holiday, The New Yorker, Saturday Review • Special full color point-of-sale material • National radio and television exposure • Local radio spot announcements • Tremendous nationwide newspaper coverage.

P. S. And... be sure to get your share of the profits from the Ames Brothers' great Pop single, "A Very Precious Love"—the big hit song from this great movie.

RCA VICTOR
RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA

Top Record Talent and Tunes

VARIETY DISK JOCKEY POLL

This compilation is designed to indicate those records rising in popularity as well as those on top. Ratings are computed on the basis of ten points for a No. 1 mention, nine for a No. 2, and so on down to one point. Wherever possible, only records with two or more mentions are listed, even though their total points are less in some cases than those which receive only one mention. Cities and jockeys will vary from week to week to present a comprehensive picture of all sectors of the country regionally.

* ASCAP † BMI

Pos. this wk.	Pos. last wk.	No. weeks in log	Artist	Label	Song	EAST: Peter Tripp—WMGM—New York	Jerry Strong—WMAL—Washington	Arnie Kuvent—WGAN—Portland, Me.	Bob Leonard—WMEX—Boston	Tal Hood—WFGM—Fitchburg	Jay Dunn—WKOX—Framingham	Dick Smith—WORC—Worcester	Ray Harris—WKBR—Manchester	Bob Wells—WEBR—Buffalo	Nick Nickson—WBBF—Rochester	Earle Pudney—WGY—Schenectady	Larry Ford—WCRO—Johnstown	Bud Brees—WPEN—Philadelphia	SOUTH: Dixon-Medway—WALA-TV—Mobile	Wiljohn Miller—WBRD—Bradenton	Bob N. Perry—WCKR—Miami	Dick Pike—WNOP—Newport	Ed Hamilton—KENT—Shreveport	Bill Sanders—WTOB—Winston-Salem	Bob Stevens—KILT—Houston	Roger Clark—WGH—Norfolk	Joe Murray—WLEE—Richmond	MIDWEST: Eddie Hubbard—WGN—Chicago	Buck Leigh—WTRC—Elkhart	Bob Bradley—WLOL—Minneapolis	Chuck Norman—KSTT—St. Louis	Bill Wood—KODY—North Platte	Johnny Bell—KYW—Cleveland	Will Lenay—WSAI—Cincinnati	Bill Dawson—WLMJ—Jackson	Chuck Phillips—WEMP—Milwaukee	FAR WEST: Dick Gilbert—KPOK—Scottsdale	Al Radka—KFRE—Fresno	Frank Evans—KRHM—Hollywood	Don Lamond—KFOX—Long Beach	Art Kevin—KBMS—Los Angeles	Bob Holmes—KSJO—San Jose	Len Ross—KDB—Santa Barbara	Tony Larson—KUDY—Denver	Ron McCoy—KLUB—Salt Lake City	TOTAL POINTS
1	2	6	Laurie London	Capitol	*Wh'le W'rld in His H'nds	5	1	1	6	3		6		2	7		1	4	10			6		9	1	2	1	3	3	2	2		2	10	4	2		7				2				3	192
2	11	2	Platters	Mercury	†Twilight Time	2		2	7	2	4	1		1			5			1		1	4	8	1	4	5	7	5		1	8	1												155
3	1	8	Champs	Challenge	†Tequila	1		4									10	1	1			6	1	5	3	2	10	1		5		3		1									2		120
4	4	8	Connie Francis	MGM	*Who's Sorry Now	7	2							6	3		9			3	3			3				9		8	5		6	6								3	4	98
5	10	5	Four Lads	Columbia	*There's Only One of You			9	9				8		8	4		8			6			8				7	6						8	4	2	1	1		5		6	97
6		1	Art & Dotty Todd	Era	*Chanson D'Amour				1		8		1	8								10							5				8		5	1		4	2	3		1		10	87
7	3	6	Chordettes	Cadence	†Lollipop	4							9				2	3				8	3						6	1	9	7		5			3	10				1		83
8A	5	10	Andy Williams	Cadence	†Are You Sincere		6		10						2	3		9	9				6	6	10						4			3								1		83
8B	13	3	Dean Martin	Capitol	*Return to Me							7		7			2						2	7	9							3		3		3	2		4			7		5	1	81
10	12	10	Pat Boone	Dot	*It's Too Soon to Know		8											6	5		4					6	6			7														2	81
11		1	David Seville	Liberty	*Witch Doctor	6		8				4		10																						4				3			10	51
12	9	7	Pat Boone	Dot	†W'derful Time Up There									3	1					7				4								6		2				2		1		10		45
13	22	3	Huey Smith	Ace	†Don't You Just Know It				4	1			5				6																2											43
14	7	14	Perry Como	Victor	*Catch a Falling Star		3											3	7										1	9															40
15	6	4	Kathy Linden	Felsted	*Billy	8	9																													1						4		37
16	44	6	Vic Damone	Columbia	*Gigi		7									2																1	9	3								7	5	35
17	8	9	Chuck Berry	Chess	†Sweet Little 16					7								2				4				2									1							2			32
18	18	13	Four Preps	Capitol	†26 Miles		5						6				5			5				8				9				10												31
19A	30	2	Monotones	Argo	†Book of Love	9						3					4			8				10				4														9			29
19B	25	6	George Hamilton IV	ABC-Par	*Now and for Always						1		2							2																									28
21	26	6	Ames Bros.	Victor	*A Very Precious Love		4								9												7																		28
22A	17	5	Lou Monte	Victor	*Lazy Mary	10									10																			9								3			27
22B	14	7	Don Gibson	Victor	†Oh Lonesome Me					8				5			7											8							8				5			5		7	24
22C	..	1	Ed Townsend	Capitol	*For Your Love	3		6						4															7					4										24
25A	..	1	Sinatra-Smith	Capitol	*How Ya' Fixed for Love					9	6					1																7													24
25B	..	1	Aquatones	Fargo	†You				3				4																								9		8						22
27A	..	12	Patti Page	Mercury	*Belonging to Someone								7																			4													22
27B	36	13	Perry Como	Victor	*Magic Moments				8													9																							20
29A	..	4	Sam Cooke	Keen	*Lonely Island																	1																					4			20
29B	..	6	Johnny Nash	ABC-Par	*My Pledge to You			3		3		10						8					7												7			5							17
29C	..	3	5 Discs	Emge	*I Remember			2				3																																17
32	..	1	Joe Dodo	Victor	†Groovy												3			3																									17
33	15	5	Roger Williams	Kapp	*Arriverdeci Roma													9																											16
34		1	Marti Barris	Keen	†Scottish Fling																															8			1						15
35A	35	2	Ricky Nelson	Imperial	*My Bucket's Got a Hole																		5														3								14
35B	42	4	Voxpoppers	Mercury	†Wishing for Your Love																			4		8		8																	13
35C	..	1	Doris Day	Columbia	*Teacher's Pet							10																			2												8			13
38A	..	1	Perry Como	Victor	*Dance Only With Me																								4														5			13
38B	16	5	Crickets	Brunswick	†Maybe Baby									4	7																														12
38C	..	1	King Sisters	Capitol	*76 Trombones																									3				7											12
38D	..	1	Jackie Wilson	Brunswick	*To Be Loved					5																													4			6			12
42A	..	5	Eddie Platt	ABC-Par	†Tequila																												5												12
42B	..	1	Elvis Presley	Victor	†Wear My Ring																							3															8		11
44A	34	2	Billy Eckstine	Mercury	*Gigi																								4							7									11
44B	..	1	Ricky Nelson	Imperial	†Believe What You Say																									6								3						9	10

(Copyright Variety, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

Berry to Aussie, Japan April 29; Shapiro Off To Europe for Columbia

Arnold Berry, Columbia Records' director of international relations, will wing out on a tour of Australia and Japan April 29. In Australia, he'll attend the annual deejay meet sponsored by Coronet Records, Col's Down Under affiliate. In Japan, he'll huddle with the brass at Nippon-Columbia and Epic Records. He'll be accompanied by arranger-maestro Ray Coniff.

Meantime, Nat Shapiro, director of Col's international artists & repertoire division, left for Europe yesterday (Tues.) to confer with label's Philips affiliate in Holland, Italy, France and England. During his overseas stay, Shapiro will work on promotion for the London preem of "My Fair Lady" (April 30).

From The PARAMOUNT PICTURE of the same name
ANOTHER TIME ANOTHER PLACE
Recorded by PATTI PAGE Mercury
PAT O'DAY Victor
VERA LYNN London
DON CHERRY Columbia
MARY KAYE TRIO, Decca
Famous Music Corporation

2 NEW R 'n' Rs
By PAT BALLARD
STOP, BABY
FOUR PREPS
CAPITOL
TRUE TO YOU
GENE VINCENT
CAPITOL
BOURNE, INC.

"A VERY PRECIOUS LOVE"
from the Warner Bros. Production
"MARJORIE MORNINGSTAR"

THE AMES BROS.	RCA Victor
DORIS DAY	Columbia
THE JOHNSTON BROS.	London
BONNIE GUITAR	Dot
SLIM WHITMAN	Imperial
JACK JONES	Capitol
DICK HAYMES	Hallmark
SOUND TRACK ALBUM	RCA Victor

M. WITMARK & SONS

THE BROTHERS KARAMAZOV
Love Theme from
The Brothers Karamazov
ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION

VARIETY Scoreboard OF TOP TALENT AND TUNES

Compiled from Statistical Reports of Distribution Encompassing the Three Major Outlets

Coin Machines Retail Disks Retail Sheet Music

as Published in the Current Issue

NOTE: The current comparative sales strength of the Artists and Tunes listed hereunder is arrived at under a statistical system comprising each of the three major sales outlets enumerated above. These findings are correlated with data from wider sources, which are exclusive with VARIETY. The positions resulting from these findings denote the OVERALL IMPACT developed from the ratio of points scored, two ways in the case of talent (coin machines, retail disks) and three ways in the case of tunes (coin machines, retail disks and retail sheet music).

TALENT

POSITIONS This Week	POSITIONS Last Week	ARTIST AND LABEL	TUNE
1	3	LAURIE LONDON (Capitol)	Whole World In His Hands
2	1	CHAMPS (Challenge)	Tequila†
3	8	PLATTERS (Mercury)	Twilight Time†
4	2	CHORDETTES (Cadence)	Lollipop†
5	4	PAT BOONE (Dot)	It's Too Soon to Know* / Wonderful Time Up There†
6	5	CONNIE FRANCIS (MGM)	Who's Sorry Now*
7		DAVID SEVILLE (Liberty)	Witch Doctor*
8	7	ANDY WILLIAMS (Cadence)	Are You Sincere†
9	9	MONOTONES (Argo)	Book of Love†
10	6	PERRY COMO (Victor)	Catch A Falling Star* / Magic Moments*

TUNES

POSITIONS This Week	POSITIONS Last Week	TUNE	PUBLISHER
1	4	*WHOLE WORLD IN HIS HANDS	Chappell
2	1	†TEQUILA	Jat
3	3	†LOLLIPOP	Marks
4	2	*CATCH A FALLING STAR	Marvin
5	5	*WHO'S SORRY NOW	Mills
6		†TWILIGHT TIME	Porgie
7	6	†ARE YOU SINCERE	Cedarwood
8	8	†SUGARTIME	Nor-Va-Jak
9	7	†WONDERFUL TIME UP THERE	Fowler
10		*WITCH DOCTOR	Monarch

(*ASCAP †BMI F-Films)

Blockbusters

Continued from page 45

when it converted to four-color packaging and the use of the real artists' names on its albums instead of pseudonymns. Every month, Camden has been racking up new sales with March having been the best in the label's history, going 40% ahead of the previous month. Camden has been helped by the release of newly recorded material such as Al Goodman's "South Pacific" set, as well as the exploitation of oldies from Victor's vaults.

Columbia Records, meantime, has been pushing its low-priced Harmony label series. Harmony is made up of reissue material from the Columbia catalog and also features the four-color jackets on albums sealed in polyethelyne bags, a merchandising angle now widely used in the low-priced field.

Album Reviews

Continued from page 44

"The Breeze and I," "May I" and "Fantasia Mexicana." Vik also has released another Gold album under the title of "Sticks and Bones."

Hal March: "The Moods of March" (Dot). This is an engaging mood music album maestroed by the w.k. quizmaster Hal March, who once was a bandleader-vocalist under the name of Hal Mantell. Once again a group of standards is performed in lilting style by a large stringed orch with Paul Horn, a versatile woodwing instrumentalist, furnishing the clarinet and flute solos.

Fred Waring & The Pennsylvanians: "The Music Man" (Capitol). The score that Meredith Willson devised for his clicko Broadway tuner, "The Music Man," fit right into Fred Waring's interpretive groove. The melodies are homespun and the lyrics are out of the grassroots, making it an overall blending that Waring works with best. His orch and chorus rarely have been heard to better advantage.

"The Worst of Morris Garner" (Thunderbird). First there was Erroll Garner, then there was a so-called "Irving Garner" on the Verve label and now comes "Morris Garner" on the Thunderbird label. But "Morris," unlike "Irving," doesn't sound like a joke. He sounds exactly like Erroll. In fact, it could very well be Erroll and Erroll ought to look into the matter because either somebody is kidding at his expense or there's an expert keyboard mime at large.

Herm.

Stereo

Continued from page 45

ample, CBS laboratories recently demonstrated a brilliant technical breakthrough in the achievement of a compatible stereophonic disk. It should be borne in mind that stereophonic effect is by no means an absolute quality with rigidity specified characteristics. Much remains to be investigated in the area of artistic taste and public acceptance."

The immediate future of the stereo market will be determined by the public's acceptance of the playback equipment which, in general, will have a 50% higher tab than equivalent monaural machines. Whether the current economic recession will affect stereo machine sales is yet to be seen. In the fall, however, when the manufacturers will push their new wares at the various audio fairs, the answer for this year's sales will be given.

Diskery Pactings

Patti Austin, seven-year-old songstress who has appeared on several tv shows, has been inked to a term pact by United Artists Records.

Design Records, low-priced LP line, has expanded its talent roster via new pacts with Connee Boswell and Lanny Ross. Miss Boswell is set to cut an album of Irving Berlin tunes, while Ross will record a 25th show biz anni package.

Nick Venet, formerly with RCA Victor, pacted by Imperial Records. His first disk includes one of his own tunes, "Darlin' Sue."

Gloria De Marco, of the Five De Marco Sisters, signed for solo vocals by Arrow Records. Indie label also has pacted The Beau-Belles, two girls and a boy, and a 16-year-old rock 'n' roller, Buzz Clifford.

Local 47 Suspends 2 From L.A. Philharmonic For Support of MGA

Hollywood, April 15.

Sinclair Lott and Gareth D. Nuttycombe, both members of the L.A. Philharmonic Orchestra, have been suspended from Local 47, AFM, for violation of union's bylaws.

Pair are charged with siding in with Cecil F. Read's newly formed Musicians Guild of America, which has been termed dual unionism by the AFM.

Meanwhile, Henry Kaiser, top legal brain for the Federation, is back at his offices in Washington, D. C., following a quickie visit to the Coast for meets with NLRB field reps anent MGA. Kaiser urged the NLRB to disqualify the new guild's petition on the grounds that it has failed to make an adequate showing of strength to justify an election among musicians involved in the current strike against the major studios.

The HIT! OF THE WEEK
CONNIE FRANCIS
I'M SORRY I MADE YOU CRY
and
LOCK UP YOUR HEART
MGM 12647
M-G-M Records

THE LONG HOT SUMMER
LEO FEIST, INC.

To The Top Again . . .
•WHO'S SORRY NOW
CONNIE FRANCIS on M-G-M
•I'M GETTIN' SENTIMENTAL OVER YOU
NELSON RIDDLE on Capitol
•BILLY
KATHY LINDEN on Felsted
•ONE MORNING IN MAY
JOSE MELIS on Seeco
MILLS MUSIC, Inc.

KAY MARTIN AND HER
BODYGUARDS
Currently YEAMEN'S, Detroit; May 5 (two weeks) TROPICS, Dayton; May 19 (two weeks) BERGHOFF GARDENS, Ft. Wayne; June 9, GRAND VIEW INN, Columbus and July 1, RETURN ENGAGEMENT FOR TEN WEEKS, MAPES HOTEL, Reno
ROULETTE RECORDS
ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION
JOE GLASER, Pres.

745 Fifth Ave.	203 N. Wabash Ave	407 Lincoln Rd.	8619 Sunset Blvd.
New York 22, N.Y.	Chicago, Ill.	Miami Beach, Fla.	H'wood 46, Calif.
Phone: PLaza 9-4600	Phone: CEntral 6-9451	Phone: JEfferson 8-0383	Phone: OLympia 2-9940

GAC Near Absorbing Gale Agcy., Accenting Big-Sized Arena Tours, Pkge. Control; 3d Major Takeover

Negotiations are being finalized for the absorption of the Gale Agency by General Artists Corp. Under present plans, it's indicated that Tim Gale, Gale Agency prexy, will go to GAC as a veepee in charge of plotting touring arena and theatre shows.

Talks between the Gale office and GAC have been going on sporadically for the past two years. Discussions have been leisurely and exploratory. However, last week's gab indicates that a deal is near.

GAC has long sought to find new avenues for many of its disk names. The Gale office on the other hand, has had long experience in the arena field and Gale's services would provide the big touring show ingredient to GAC, which has long been regarded as the No. 3 office in the industry, next to Music Corp. of America and the William Morris Agency.

GAC in recent years has gone in for an expansion program which has included mergers and absorptions of other offices. The first major acquisition was purchase of the George A. Hamid agency which put them in a frontline position in the outdoor field. A separate subsidiary, GAC-Hamid Inc., was formed to handle this new business. Other major acquisition was American business of the Lew & Leslie Grade Agency of London. Eddie Elkort, who headed American operations for that firm, was made a veepee in the GAC setup. The Grade domestic business, plus a tie with the Grade office in London, have made GAC an important entity in Continental talent bookings, as well as the importation of acts.

The Gale Agency has long been one of the important offices in the rock 'n' roll and rhythm & blues field. Agency has had a large enrollment of Negro as well as white singers, and was among the first to go in for large arena shows with a strong lineup of record names.

GAC is one of the top agencies for record singers. As a result of its strong list of chirpers, it has been able to crack television packaging. Included in its roster are Perry Como, Nat King Cole, Johnnie Ray, Johnny Mathis. GAC has had its performers out on arena tours as well as theatre one-nighters, but generally on packages controlled and booked by other agencies. With Gale plotting tours, GAC would then be in complete control of packages, although it is conceded it would still probably go to other offices for fill-in turns.

DELAY CHI 2-A-DAY TO FALL WITH AN 'IF'

Chicago, April 15.

Likelihood is growing that the proposed two-a-day vaude plan for the Erlanger Theatre will be deferred till next fall, with some doubt it'll get off the ground even then.

Mount Royal Productions, formed for just that purpose, planned originally on an April 6 entry at the Studebaker, then shifted to a May 9 unveiling at the Erlanger, which has more seats and airconditioning. Would-be vaude producers haven't been able to land a headliner, getting turndowns so-far from Harry Belafonte and Milton Berle. Its' known other stars have also been approached to no avail.

Only thing that seems definite now is that the layout—if, as and when—will have a revue format with cohesive scripting. A local writer-director hase been verbally pacted to handle the assignment.

Atty. Katz Joins S&R

Henry M. Katz, former resident counsel of the American Guild of Variety Artists, has joined the law-firm of Silverstone & Rosenthal. Latter were at one time counsel for AGVA and are presently counsel for the AGVA Welfare Trust Fund.

Katz has been in private practice since leaving AGVA.

Winchell's 70G In Vegas For Funds

Columnist Walter Winchell will play the Tropicana, Las Vegas, for two weeks starting May 27 at $35,000 weekly. Deal was made last week by the Trop's producer Monte Proser. Winchell will get all the coin, with no commissions deducted, and sum goes to the Walter Winchell Foundation which pays the expenses of the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund, from which no deductions are made. One of the reasons Winchell took the Tropicana assignment was the Foundation's decreased income because of cancellation of his Revlon telefilm show.

Winchell made the deal on Friday (11) and returned to the Coast. He'll be back in Las Vegas April 23 to participate in the Dessert Inn Golf Tournament, in which he'll partner with Frank Sinatra against Bob Hope and Bing Crosby.

With Winchell's acceptance of the Tropicana date, he'll precede Ed Sullivan who opens at the Dessert Inn July 1 with a cast which includes Julia Meade.

Pleasure Beach Acts

Pleasure Beach, Bridgeport, has started lining up its talent for the season. First show to go in will be a three-day stand of the Great Alexander starting April 30. First one-nighter in the ballroom will be May 31 with Joni James and the George Williams band.

Park is being booked by Leon Newman agency out of New York.

Wildwood Earmarking Some of That $16,000,000 Bank Hike for Name Acts

Wildwood, N. J., April 15.

Encouraged by the $16,000,000 increase in local bank deposits last season, name booking fever appears to be more pronounced. In fact as of this date more big names have already been signed than in any previous early April. Leading the Las Vegas-like parade will be Martha Raye, Dean Martin, Liberace and Johnny Mathis.

Diamond Beach Lodge will embark on second season of Beach Club June 28 when Charlie Spivak band opens for 10 weeks.

Beach Club has also pacted Miss Raye for two stands; Corinne Calvet, Denise Darcel, Henny Youngman, Dick Haymes, Peggy King, Lou Monte and Gypsy Rose Lee. Spot is negotiating with the room record-holders, the McGuire Sisters along with Jayne Mansfield and Vic Damone.

Oscar Garrigues of the Manor Hotel Supper Club has inked Dean Martin for a July stand, while Liberace fills a return engagement starting July 18.

Ben Martin's central-city Club Bolero has Johnny Mathis for July 4 holiday week, followed by the Andrews Sisters and Harvey Stone. Mid-July will bring Sam Cooke and Connie Francis. Tommy Leonetti is pencilled in as one of the August billtoppers along with homecoming engagement of Pepper Davis and Tony Reese, comics who first joined forces at Wildwood's Club Hof Brau.

New dash is being added in other sections of the resort with a virtual Gold Coast of new motels rising along the oceanfront in Wildwood Crest. Along the boardwalk, four amusement piers are undergoing great expansion with a new Funland pier set at Convention hall.

Another touch is the installation of Meteor Monorail on the boardwalk by Gilbert Ramagosa of Carll & Ramagosa. Wildwood thus sets another precedent in becoming one of the first resorts in the world to establish Monorail.

Tentative arrangements call for the McGuire Sisters to appear week of August 1 at the Beach Club. The trio holds the house record but are also mulling a competitive bid from Atlantic City's Steel Pier.

Other clubs reported set to jump on the name wagon include Harry Roesche's Beachcomber, Jake Diamond's Martinique, John Caterini's Riptide, Lou Booth's Chateau Monterey, Eddie Suez's Club Avalon, Charlie Johnson's and Ben Martin's Mardi Gras.

ALAN GALE VAUDE TOUR BOWING IN HUB AT $4.95

Boston, April 15.

Alan Gale arrived here yesterday (Mon.) to set his Alan Gale Show for a round of legit theatres, opening next Monday (21) at the 1,717-seat Shubert for seven performances, no matinees. With Gale are Fran Warren, the Dunhills and Arnold Dover. Show will troupe to Montreal, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago.

The Shubert stand is pegged at a $4.95 top, and b.o. advance was reported good for the nitery comic. Gale's previous effort in the vaude medium was in Chicago to pre-sold houses.

Name Raine Ringmaster Of B'port Barnum Fest

Bridgeport, Conn., April 15.

Kenneth E. Raine, executive director of Columbia Records' plant here, is the new Ringmaster of Bridgeport's 1958 Barnum Festival. He replaces Arthur R. McNeil who resigned following a damage suit filed against him by a woman who accused him of beating her.

Raine has been active in Festival affairs in recent years. The annual all-city celebration commemorates P. T. Barnum's contribution to the town.

"...one of the most exciting song stylists in the business..."*

MISS ROBERTA MAC DONALD

Currently appearing on

NBC-TV's "TODAY"

Every Day, 7 A.M. to 9 A.M., April 14-18

HY GARDNER
New York Herald Tribune
"This striking brunette opened at Le Cupidon and proved to be* one of the most exciting song stylists in the business."

DON HEARN
Washington Daily News
"She's stunning. She's delightful. She's vibrant. She sings like a million bucks and has more class than a Tiffany window."

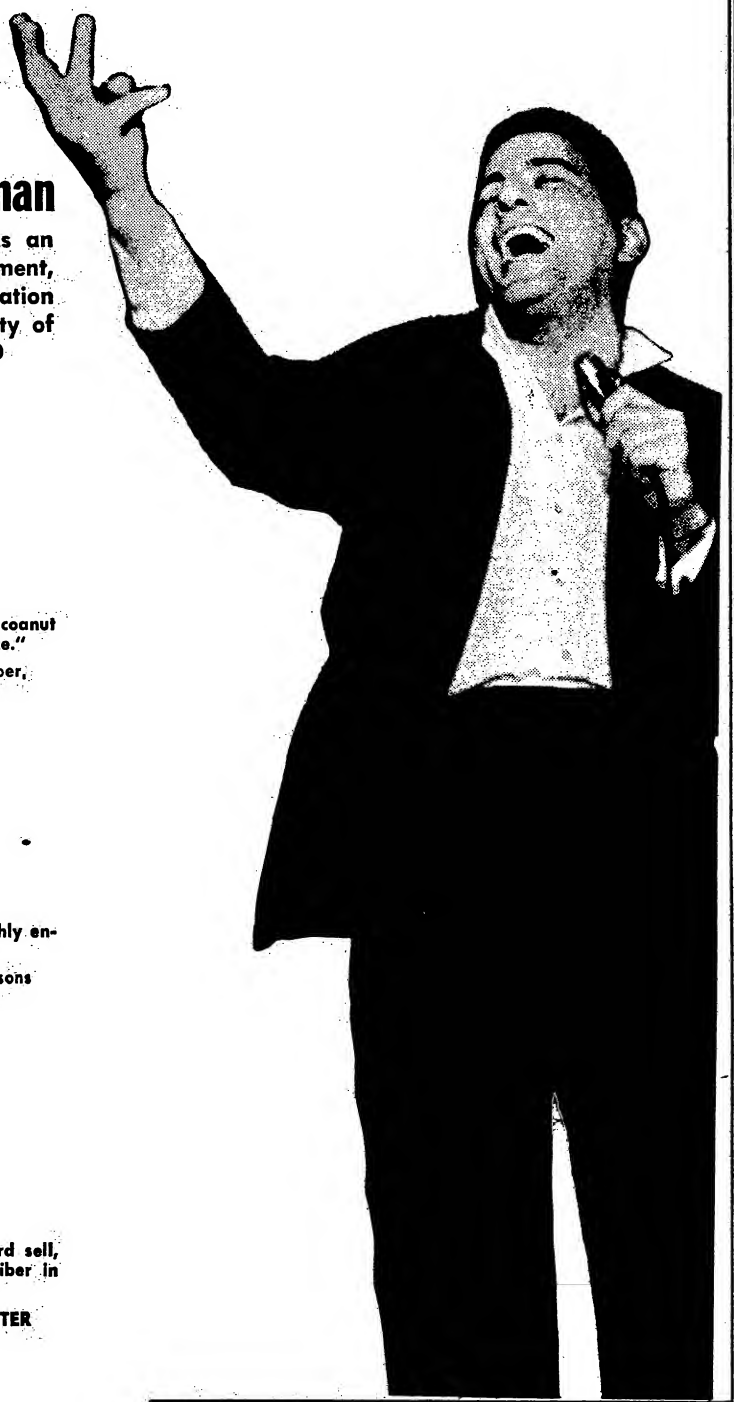
SIM MYERS
Times Picyune, New Orleans
"When one listened to her at the Blue Room of the Roosevelt one could only sit and know that she can be one of the really big entertainers of the day."

VARIETY "She's a sexy singer who throws a lot of feeling and sincerity into a lyric and has excellent diction. She had no trouble wooing her audiences."

Direction GAC

TONY BENNETT

at the COCOANUT GROVE



Bennett Again Superb Showman

"Bennett's debut at the Cocoanut Grove was an emotional experience of breathless excitement, charm, persuasiveness and the unusual combination of frenzied and delicate handling of a variety of songs." —BILLBOARD

"He's comparable to a baseball pitcher that throws a ball in any direction the catcher signals, for Bennett will pitch a tune in any direction the audience clamors. And by the reaction of the rounders, all his throws were true and on target."
—Daily Variety

"Tony Bennett proved the magnet at the Cocoanut Grove for an enthusiastic big name audience."
—Hedda Hopper, L. A. Times

"A dynamic singer . . . When Bennett gets wound up he grabs a hand mike and traverses his stage like a dancer. At the end of nearly an hour the audience is almost as limp as he."
—John L. Scott, L. A. Times

"I'm a fan of Tony Bennett's . . . I thoroughly enjoyed him."
—Louella Parsons

"One of the country's most popular vocalists, Bennett has an amazing versatility in his songs and style . . . his vitality is tremendous and he really 'sells' a song."
—Wylie Williams, HOLLYWOOD CITIZEN-NEWS

"Bennett has become a master of the hard sell, exhorting, pleading, coaxing with every fiber in his body."
—HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

NOW!
at the RIVERSIDE
RENO, NEVADA

My warmest thanks for your kind words—
Tony Bennett

Hard-Ticket Vaude

The Next President

Frank B. Nichols production of two-act (12 scenes) revue. Stars Mort Sahl; features Jimmy Guffre 3), Folk Singers (8), Anneliese Williams. At Bijou Theatre, N.Y., April 9, '58; $5.75 top.

"The Next President" is a loosely contrived revue serving as a vehicle for night club comic Mort Sahl. As a revue, it's far below the level of Broadway acceptance, but as a showcase for a talented stand-up monologist it serves the purpose adequately if not wholly.

Sum and substance of the revue is Mort Sahl whose peculiar type barbed patter has been too-long absent from the Broadway scene. Comic does four monologs of varying length that cover just about all the mores of modern America, from motivational research to psychology to politics to sports cars to education—and none of these subjects is safe from his sardonic wit.

Just how long this show — at $5.75—will last is doubtful. Sahl has built a loyal following on the saloon circuit he frequents (hungry i, San Francisco; Crescendo, Hollywood; Village Vanguard and Blue Angel, New York), and the avant garde set will undoubtedly turn out to see their hero, but whether he has the general appeal for Broadway is to be doubted.

Show opens with the Folk Singers (8) who do a number titled "The Chorus Of Collective Conscience" which sets the mood via clever dialog and then group segues to one of their folk numbers. "Cry Holy," which seems strangely out of place with the rest of the show. Mort Sahl does his first monolog on current events with special emphasis on foreign policy. Sahl's patter is delivered very fast and his is not the relaxed, easy-going style of a Benny, but he probably gets in more one-liners and snappers in a shorter span of time than any other comedian extant. His humor is sharp and biting and whether you like him or hate him you can't ignore him.

The Jimmy Guffre 3 deuces with a set of their outer-space music that seems to come through to those in the same orbit but is pretty far out for those who are used to at least a little melody and rhythm in their music. Anneliese Widman does a modern dance bit to the Guffre music that serves as little more than a change of pace and is only adequate. Folk Singers fcllow with another "Deep Blue Sea" and Sahl returns for a first act windup that is perhaps his best bit in the show.

Second act is almost an exact repeat of the first except that Sahl does two stints back-to-back at the finale. Among his best routines are one that touch on a bank robbery featuring a bank teller with a Ph.D degree, a Greenwich Village bit featuring dialog with convicted Russian spy Rudolph Abel, and commentaries on Life magazine and J. Edgar Hoover (his latest book is titled "How To Turn Your Friends Into The FBI For Fun and Profit") and all score heavily.

Staging credits are almost non-existent since an absolutely bare stage is used throughout with lighting following the night club pattern rather than conventional Broadway use. Props consist only of stools and two telephones that are used in the opening skit and are never replaced.

As a master of the topical joke Sahl has no peer. His material is always as up-to-date as the latest edition of the daily papers or the latest newscast. His particular brand of humor necessitates constant attention and if any real criticism can be leveled at Sahl it is the fact that he is on too long and exhausts the audience well before his material gives out. "The Next President" is not a distinguished entry for the first Broadway appearance of one of our cleverest comics. It detracts more from his performance than it contributes and therein lies the rub.

Syd.

Joyce Grenfell

Roger L. Stevens & Laurier Lister presentation of Joyce Grenfell with George Bauer at the piano, music. Richard Addinsell; written by Miss Grenfell; gowns, Victor Steibel; opened at Lyceum, N.Y., April 7, '58; $5.75 top.

Joyce Grenfell, the British character delineator, in her second Broadway recital, brought a fresh batch of characters into the Lyceum for a four-week run. Talented mime, who possesses a good singing voice, has apparently lavished a lot of love on her character creations. She seemingly has seen them through a lot of birth pains and has watched them grow into adult individuals.

Having thus mothered her creations, Miss Grenfell can be forgiven for not giving them an additional sense of maturity and a gift of tears. She is a lot of fun in many respects. Her takeoff on a clubwoman, and her portrayal of an idiosyncratic woman of wealth contain a lot of laughs which sometimes smacks of a "stiff upper lip" kind of humor. But there are a lot of belts for the audiences. Her "Wibberly" bit, the sardonic humor of the sketch depicting a writer of children's books and her ride on the ferris wheel, are all excellent highspots that provide for an enjoyable evening.

Her music is the product of Richard Addinsell and has a high melodic content along with an excellent adaptability to Miss Grenfell's type of humor. The musical highspot is her interpretation of three girls in an oratorio at Albert Hall. A lot of her work, though, in the song department has a degree of flatness, her major affection being lavished on the sketches.

Miss Grenfell's sole lack is her failure to give greater depth and dimension to some of her characters. Such procedure would have her work greater variety. But even so, Miss Grenfell provides a rewarding evening.

George Bauer at the piano backs Miss Grenfell competently and his solo piano interludes give her a chance to change into other fetching Victor Steibel gowns. Jose.

Industrial Shows

Portland Home Show
(EXPO. BLDG., PORT.)
Portland, Ore., April 12.

Julius LaRosa (with Joe Arnell), Dolores Hawkins, Four Knights, The Valenos (2), Half Brothers (2), Vincent Sciortino, Bruce Vanderhoof, George Arnold Orch (12); produced by Al Learman; staged by Fred Oppenheimer. At Exposition Bldg., Portland, April 11 to 20, '58; 90c admission.

In past years, producer Al Learman has always booked a big stage-show to hypo action at the Home Show. This year, he has a smash on his hands and the turnstiles should click to a new house record. The showmandiser has converted the arena into a 5000-seat showcase that is nearly plush. One stub is good for all exhibits and stageshow. Two shows are presented nightly with matinees on weekends.

Layout, loaded with entertainment, is held to 70 minutes for benefit of exhibitors. Despite the numbers of chirpers on the bill, they are all different types.

Julius LaRosa is making his debut in the Pacific Northwest and was a little light to follow the show-stopping acts up ahead. Amiable guy wins the audience with his charming, boyish style of current poppery and a medley of his platter tunes. He works easy, relaxed and with good change of pace. Pianist-arranger Joe Arnell batons the house crew from the 88.

The Half Bros. (2) get things underway at a fast pace and the entire bill continues at the same clip without lagging. Two guys wow with skillful comedy juggling and unicycle work. Dolores Hawkins in the trey spot slams out some standards that are tops. Gal is well stacked, easy to ogle and can really sing. The Four Knights stop the show with their harmony, comedy and cutting up. They run the gamut from r&r to spirituals and beg off.

The Valenos (2), next-to-closing, also grab big mitts. Petite femme is put through her paces by male partner in adagio-ballet. Tenor Vincent Sciortino is making his professional debut on this show and from all indications is stellar material. Handsome youngster has all the makings of a bigleague act. His voice is exciting, with depth and genuine quality. With some added showmanship and a little more experience, he will knock on the door.

George Arnold orch (12) played a great show. Bruce Vanderhoof keeps the show moving at a good pace and handled the m.c. chores nicely. Fred Oppenheimer is in for credit with staging the layout.

Feve.

Sports Show
(State Fair Park, Dallas)
Dallas, April 12.

Richiardi Jr., Swede Fuller & His Golden Retrievers, Royal Canadian with Frankie Peloquin, The Yokoi Family (5), The Kovacs (4), The Midwesterners (8), Bill Brown, Billy Mayo Orch (10). At Automobile Bldg., State Fair Park, Dallas, April 12-20, '58; 90c admission.

This is the 10th annual showcase for the local Sports, Boat & Vacation Show in the huge automobile building on the Texas State Fairgrounds. These Martin Kelly productions have grown successively in the past decade (they only added "boats" to the billing last year, since Texas is dotted with inland waters), and the nine-day exhib pulls hefty biz. Emcee Bill Brown, a regular here, keeps the show "on the road" and this year's outing betters previous efforts. Nightly show, with weekend matinees, will pull viewers into the huge building, where multiple commercial firms have exhib space.

Richiardi Jr. headlines and he's a smash in four illusion bits. He thrusts swords into a small trunk containing a femme, opens the sides to reveal to grandstand viewers that only crossed blades are visible; he pours fruit juice from a lofted pitcher and spectators never see it enter a moppet's mouth. The Peruvian magician does his w.k. levitation stunt. Sock windup is his trunk stunt, ending his headline stint with salvos.

Steve Fuller's six Golden Retrievers pull hefty mitting from

(Continued on page 54)

Inside Stuff—Vaude

Steve Harris denies his 16-year-old Club Hollywood in Chicago's suburban Franklin Park is up for sale, per a report in the March 19 VARIETY. Boniface says he's not actively looking for a buyer, although he might sell if he's made an attractive offer. Earlier report from his wife Olga who founded the spot, verified the for-sale intention and said Harris's health was the reason. Nitery currently has crooner Nick Noble and comic Bill Falbo.

Three appearances in recent weeks on the Jack Paar NBC-TV show had made Pittsburgh singer Ed Scotti a hot property around there in the niteries. Tenor opened a two-week engagement Monday (14), at the Vogue Terrace and several other dates have also been set for him during the summer.

Scotti and Paar were Army buddies and have remained close friends since. Paar used him on the first program that came through Pittsburgh (WWIC) March 24 and had him back again just last Monday. Result was that Pitt agents began to display a sudden interest in Scotti after he'd been unable to get anywhere with them for a long time.

Pittsburgh Press, Scripps-Howard daily, closed its books on the raging storm between music writer James Ball and the admirers of Victor Borge by turning the letters column over to Borge last week for a three-column say. Tempest started when Ball penned a tongue-in-cheek notice of Borge's sellout one-man show recently at Syria Mosque. On the surface, it sounded like an unqualified pan but too many people missed the point, with result that the Press was flooded with protests. This went on for two weeks until finally the newspaper decided it was time to call a halt by giving Borge the floor himself. He said, among other things: "Judging from the reaction of so many readers, Mr. Ball has apparently written the least understood document since the Einstein theory. I accept Mr. Ball's review as a compliment, just as I would respect his opinion if it had been uncomplimentary. I hope this evaluation of Mr. Ball's review now restores law and order to Pittsburgh."

Jimmy Joyce, Boston opera singer who doubles as a comic in niteries and on club dates, has come up with his own opera company which he has dubbed "Station Wagon Opera Company." Traveling by station wagon with costumes, his six-person company gives "Don Pasquale" in highschool and college auds.

Joyce, who leads a double life as comic and opera piper, is rapidly acquiring stand-in fame in the Hub, with boniface Stanley Blinstrub calling him in to replace whenever his featured performers can't go on. Latest was Saturday (12) when Joyce replaced Jimmy Durante at matinee at the 1,700-seater before 1,500 femmes attending a fashion show. The announcement came over the mikes, "presenting Jimmy—— Joyce," and there was a big gasp from the femmes expecting Durante. Durante's layout didn't make the matinee, it was reported, because of illness of Eddie Jackson.

Vancouver PNE's Grandstand Play After Absence

Vancouver, April 15.

Pacific National Exhibition takes a flyer at staging a grandstand show this summer in its first attempt in seven or eight years. Bait this time is Boston-based "Snyder's Water Follies" from the Brussels World's Fair, to open at PNE Aug. 18.

There had been a couple of flops on previous grandstand attractions. Jimmy Durante was brought into the Forum eight years ago, backed by a big production, but the expo dropped about $14,000 on it. Ditto Edgar Bergen the year before.

This year's show goes into 12,000-seat Empire Stadium which has been partially roofed to seat 4,000 to 5,000 under cover, and large centre-stage is being built to bridge the aquashow's pair of tanks.

PNE has laid out $415,000 on fairgrounds appointments, in anticipation of a 1,000,000 gate. That breaks down into $130,000 worth of grading and power lines for new Gay-Way, operated by Burrard Amusement Co.; $100,000 to refurbish the stadium and install roofing; $30,000 into additional auto parking; $80,000 to facelift commercial building, now labeled Pacific Show Mart, $75,000 went into a general paint-up job. Gay-Way operates from July 1.

Beowoulf Productions Inc. has been authorized to conduct an entertainment business in New York, with capital stock of 200 shares, no par value. Sidney Solway Miller of Manhattan was filing attorney at Albany.

THERE IS NO LACK OF TALENT . . .
but a lack of talent to recognize talent . . .
I am now in the position to manage and guide the careers of a limited number of professional performers . . .
Send pictures and histories to
BOB LESLIE
1697 Broadway
New York 19, N.Y.

YVONNE MORAY
WOLHURST COUNTRY CLUB
LITTLETON, COLO.
ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORP.
Joe Glaser, Pres.

BILL HALEY AND HIS COMETS
"SKINNY MINNIE"
Getting to Be a Fat Decca Record
Leaving April 16
To Play Major Cities in South America
Returning to Headline
STEEL PIER, ATLANTIC CITY
May 30, 31 and June 1
For Available Dates Call
JOLLY JOYCE AGENCY
NEW YORK CITY
234 West 48th St.
PLaza 7-1786
PHILADELPHIA
1001 Chestnut St.
WAlnut 2-4677

BILLY GLASON'S FUN-MASTER
PROFESSIONAL COMEDY MATERIAL
for all Theatricals
"We Service the Stars"
Big Temporary Special on All
35 Gag Files for $15, Plus $1.00 Postage
Foreign: $1.50 ea., 35 for $40
● 3 Parody Books, Per Bk. . . . $10 ●
● 4 Blackout Books, Per Bk. . . . $25 ●
● Minstrel Budget . . . $25 ●
How to Master the Ceremonies $3 per Copy
No C.O.D's "Always Open"
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., N.Y.C. 19 Circle 7-1138
(WE TEACH EMCEEING and COMEDY)
(Let a Real Professional Train You)

CHARLIE GRACIE
CAMEO RECORDING ARTIST
Currently Appearing
ENGLAND'S LEADING THEATRES
And Television Shows
(Repeat tour within six months)
Home Again, May 19th
For Availability Contact
BERNIE ROTHBARD
SUEZ-ROTHBARD THEATRICAL AGENCY
250 South Broad Street
Philadelphia 2, Pa.
Kingsley 5-1665

An Evening with TONY LAVELLI
ACT I "CONCERT IN VARIETY"
ACT II "SONGS, DANCE & COMEDY!"
(A One-Man, Two Hour Show)
BOOKERS, CHAIRMEN, PROMOTERS
Write for Terms, Dates and Free Literature
13 East 55th Street, New York 22 PL 5-7436

See Salaries in Vegas Stabilized; Riviera Banking on Ex-B'way Tuners

Talent prices in Las Vegas have been virtually stabilized only because they aren't able to go any higher and permit the hotels to make money. With the present crop of performers, there is no possibility of any appreciable wage increases, says Ben Goffstein, exec v.p. of the Riviera Hotel there.

Goffstein is in New York looking around for legit properties. Having done fairly well with "Damn Yankees," he's trying to get the rights to "Oklahoma" as well as other Rodgers & Hammerstein shows. The paucity of names on the loose has forced the hotel to look into further legit bookings, Goffstein says, and likelihood is that with a few legiters, plus a sprinkling of names he can count on, these would comprise the bulk of his schedule.

Goffstein is also on a selling tour as well. He's shopping around for conventions for the new 1,500-seat convention hall being completed as an adjunct to the Riviera. The addition is expected to be open by the end of the month, and already there are about 10 major meetings set.

Goffstein stated that it matters little which hotel gets a major convention, every inn on the Strip benefits. There are some powwows too large to be accommodated in any one hotel. Consequently, the surrounding hostels get a lot of registrations. Again, once conventioneers are in town, they attend the shows at most of the other spots.

Goffstein will be in New York for several days before planing out to London for the Variety Clubs Convention, and will then go to Paris and Brussels before returning to the U.S.

Raincheck Easter 125,000 A.C. Draw

Atlantic City, April 15.

This resort "week after" Easter parade, washed out on the 6th by an all-day driving rainstorm, drew a crowd of 125,000 Sunday (13). That was well below the usual Easter influx of 250,000, but pleasing to hotel, amusement and restaurant interests which had gone along with City Commissioner Richard Jackson's idea for the "raincheck" holiday.

The day was nearly everything that rainy Easter Sunday should have been—plenty of sunshine, temperatures in the 60s. The boardwalk was well filled, with judges in rolling chairs to pick the 10 women wearing the most attractive Easter hats and the 10 best dressed men, an annual resort promotion.

Advertising placed in metropolitan newspapers plus radio and tv space and plugs had much to do with the bringing in of a crowd to salvage something from wrecked Easter. Hotels were filled to about 75% of capacity while restaurants did near top business in the late afternoon.

Steel Pier had gone along with the idea of the raincheck Easter weekend and George A. Hamid Jr., one of its operators, reported okay business. While not near that of a normal Easter Sunday, it was much better than just marking the rainy Easter off as a lost day, he said.

Pier booked Charlie Spivak orch Sunday in the Marine Ballroom with Paul Judge band in Saturday. The Four Aces and Denise Lor were vaude headliners both days.

Bygraves' Straight Pic

Glasgow, April 15.

Max Bygraves, a leading English comedian, who planed in here for a "Six-Five Special" teenage telecast from city's Albert Ballroom, is soon to play his first straight film role in "Cry from the Street." He will later make another film with Johnnie Ray.

Bygraves brought his young son Anthony to work a gag with him in the BBC-TV show here.

HELP WANTED: A NAME TO REOPEN CHI CHEZ

Chicago, April 15.

Chez Paree, aiming for an April 25 reopening, may have to push the date back for lack of a headliner. Nitery has been dark since March 17, the first Lenten fadeout in the spot's 25-year hictory.

Only booking that's firm now has Tony Bennett in May 16 for nearly three weeks, with the possibility he'll be joined by comics Rowan & Martin. A June or July entry may be Jimmy Durante, who played the Chez last winter prior to the holidays.

Birdland in Dallas

Dallas, April 15.

Birdland, newest night spot in downtown area, has been opened here on site which once housed the old Harmony Lounge.

Birdland features music by Finney Mo & His Goofers, five-piece combo. Extra-added on weekends is Sherry, a sepia exotic. Other performers are Johnny "Guitar" Watson and Curly Mays.

Victor Borge will appear at Ovens Auditorium, Charlotte, N. C., Friday (18).

Closed-Circuit Cafe

The Round Table, N. Y., opening on the site of the Versailles, with a press preview May 4, will have a talent lineup including the Count Basie orch, Joey Bushkin Quartet and the Teddy Wilson Trio.

One of the innovations in the spot will be a closed-circuit tele booking screen in an upstairs room to be known as Celebrity Nook, which will get the show from the main room. Spot is to be operated by Morris Levy and Phil Kahl.

Havana Booking; Capri's Aug. Pact As Hotels Dive

Despite the current violence in Havana and rebel activity throughout the island, the hotel operators there are extremely confident. They have assumed a "business as usual" stance, even to the extent of signing future dates for talent. Last week, Shiela Reynolds was pacted for an August date at the Capri Hotel, Havana. Deal was made by Music Corp. of America, representative of which presumably made his way through the no mans' land of the Havana streets to talk to Capri casino manager Nat Harris.

The investors in the major hotels

(Continued on page 54)

2 'Elvis Editions' Rise; Okla. Kid & Occidentally-on-Purpose Hirao

ACTS IN ST. P. HOTEL AFTER LONG DROUGHT

St. Paul, April 15.

In an effort to perk up downtown St. Paul, one of its two leading hotels, the St. Paul, will experiment with floor entertainment in its Gopher Grill, Music Corp. of America is booking.

Bistro kicks off with the Musical Keyboards, to be followed by the Richie Bros. There'll be no cover or minimum.

It marks first time in years that any St. Paul hotel has gone in for acts. The Twin Cities' only supper club has been the Hotel Radisson Flame Room in Minneapolis which continues to book singles.

Hibbler's U.S. Return

Glasgow, April 15.

Al Hibbler, headlining at Empire Theatre here plans an early return to the U. S. for summer dates. He's accompanied by his wife and pianist John Melachi. Singer has been making a short U. K. tour.

He's pacted for a spot on the Ed Sullivan CBS-TV show May 11.

Shrine Indoor Circus will open its 16th annual appearance May 5 at Municipal Auditorium, Atlanta.

Elvis Presley is in the Army. The race is on.

Bartlesville, Okla., April 15.

A new teenager rock 'n' roll combo, in a special appearance at the Osage Theatre, stood 500 local teenager on their ears recently in a performance that literally shook the building. The group was booked in following the regular feature of "Paths of Glory." A special rerun feature "Rock Around the Clock" followed the stageshow.

The combo, called the "House Rockers," featured 16-year-old Wesley Reynolds of Oklahoma City, who patterns after Elvis Presley but retains enough originality to be interesting.

Howard Walker, Cincinnati Saxophonist, virtually stole the show with dance antics, jokes between numbers and good harmonizing with Reynolds on some of the songs.

Theatre manager Robert Getter, who is fighting a business slump and the world's first Telemovie operation, said he caught the act recently at a Theatre Owners of Oklahoma convention and booked them for the show. He also arranged for the combo to make an appearance at a local skating rink prior to the show. The skating rink was packed, Getter reported.

Socko Masaaki

Tokyo, April 8.

The latest and most imposing of

(Continued on page 57)

The Modernaires

Modernaires Swing In

The Modernaires are now and have been for a good many years one of the most agreeable, and most musical, singing units to be encountered on disks or TV. Their mass communication is really massive. ..... they whip through a sparkling and inventive show, one of the fastest 45 minutes to be put in on the circuit.

LES RICH
Houston Post

Modernaires Draw Cheers

The four men-one gal combination is doing a bang-up job in the International Club's Continental Room.

The group is more than just a stand-up-and-sing organization. They add a touch of magic, a heavy overlay of comedy, some juggling, trumpet playing, break up in singles, doubles and other combos for certain arrangements.

PAUL HOCHULI
Houston Press

VARIETY
NIGHT CLUB REVIEWS
International, Houston

The Modernaires, dean of the nation's singing groups, showed at their opening here April 3, just why they have been around for so long and with such success. This is a top act, as smooth and solid as the Glenn Miller tunes they sing so well.

Their sense of comedy is highly professional, as is shown in "I Can't Carry a Tune" in which sweet-voiced Paula Kelly, only gal in the group, mimics with sandpaper-style tonsils that flatten every note that scratches its way past them.

To an audience largely new to the Mods, Dick Cathcart's trumpet playing is an added surprise to a vastly entertaining evening in this plush room at the Shamrock Hilton Hotel. Cathcart, ranking with the best, gives superb imitations of Harry James, Bunny Berigan and Clyde McCoy.

Top applause comes when group makes with their best known songs; those they made famous while with the old Glenn Miller outfit. Harr.

Under the direction of
MCA

EXCLUSIVELY ON CORAL RECORDS

PERSONAL MANAGEMENT
Sheils & Bruno
ASSOCIATES

Lillian Roth's Sequel To All That

By ABEL GREEN

When a theatrical memoir has that ring of authenticity—Gypsy Rose Lee, Fred Allen, Dick Maney's books come to mind—it must command attention. It was true of Lillian Roth's "I'll Cry Tomorrow," which followed the pattern set by Ethel Waters' tell-all "My Eye Is On The Sparrow," followed by Billie Holliday's "Lady Sings The Blues," right down to Diana Barrymore's "Too Much, Too Soon." And in another vein it's true of Miss Roth's new sequel to her shoddier days. As "Cry" ended on a hopeful note, as Miss Roth found new happiness in a fifth marriage and a new religious faith, the 46-year-old songstress (age is her own revelation) dwells on that post-Alcoholics Anonymous career in her second book, "Beyond My Worth" (Fell; $3.95).

If there is a preoccupation with her born and still ingrained Jewishness versus the Roman Catholic dogma which apparently is her religioso support, it is obviously a sturdier support than the glass crutch—the bottle—when she was in the dregs of alcoholic degradation.

There is complete awareness that she is not a hapless Pollyanna, nor that she and Burt McGuire, her husband and also an AA alumnus, forever believe in fairies—or miracles. Her innermost thoughts, put into printer's ink, reflect an adult approach on those occasions when boorish nitery owners and unfeeling cafe personnel tempt her, spurn her, berate her and question her reformation. The agonizing periods when a normal drinking person would reach for the solace of a friendly cup that cheers were denied her because of never fully trusting herself to the test.

Instead of the spirits she and her husband found spiritual succoring in the Church. It is here that a preoccupation with the appraisal of the faith of her fathers and Catholicism asserts itself. In fact it runs almost throughout the book, given lesser accent in some quarters but fundamentally the underlying basis of this followup memoir.

Her New Ambition

A VARIETY critique at the Hotel Plaza's Persian Room by Trau (Leonard Traube), which she republishes in full to point up the raison d'etre for her new thinking and her new career, is given as the springboard to that new career. Her ambition now is to become a dramatic actress. The nitery reviews stressed that her performance is a full-blown professional job, sans any "sympathy" angles, and the audience reaction evidenced that she was "accepted for herself," meaning devoid of the curiosity appeal that she sensed—rightly—comes from a "reformed drunk," along with the church phase.

When Miss Roth essayed some tv dramatic shows thereafter she was critically appraised and praised, further tending to support her decision to give up cafe dates which took her from $1,000 to $5,000 to $10,000 and $12,000-a-week (latter in Vegas) and settle in that Palm Springs "dream house."

In most respects "Beyond My Worth" is a success story. It is literally and literaturely a soberer book. It is still clinically self-appraising but it is no longer self-debasing.

She writes—incidentally, no collaborators or ghosts get billing—with full awareness that she's the author of a successful bestseller, translated in many foreign languages and—of which she is most proud—also Braille. Previous book had Gerold Frank (collaborator in Diana Barrymore's subsequent confessional) and Mike Connolly as collaborators. Present volume is generously illustrated with interesting photos from past pix successes, and current shots showing her attending the premiere of the Metro filmization of "Cry." (Susan Hayward played Miss Roth, a picture with which the author apparently differed). There are other photographic memorabilia. There's also a closeup of her with Maurice Chevalier posed with the French edition.

Revealing Opinions

For those concerned with clerical distinctions there are some revealing opinions. On the one hand she recounts an appointment with a young rabbi who wanted to know where Judaism failed her, which is coupled with a recognition that (a) she resented some biddies at a church tea making anti-Semitic cracks ("I was introduced as Mrs. McGuire so they didn't know") and so told them off; (b), did the same thing when an eager-beaver fund-raising priest also put on too strong a pitch for a new church building fund by stating something along the lines that "the Jews who love money do give generously to their places of worship." However, this is in contrast to her opinion that she "is too advanced into Christianity ever to return to the fold."

None the less, this confessional is in juxtaposition to her interview with the young rabbi which she states "upset me very much."

A glowing example of her faith in human rehabilitation is warmly and poignantly pointed up in that Chapter 10 which both This Week magazine, last January, and the Catholic Digest (April 1) reprinted. It had to do with the war-shocked Korean veterans whom she entertained. The manner in which she was able to strike a spark in their nerve-torn darkness was not without parallel in her own darkness and despair during her accute alcoholism. While warned that these 60 "lost men," schizzophrenics living in their private hells, would be totally unresponsive, Miss Roth's excursion to that VA hospital was not without its rewards.

Unlike the sordid details of "Cry Tomorrow" she is nice-Nellie in disguising the identities of those cabaret characters—the one in Canada and the one in the midwest—who gave her such a rugged time, and which would have driven many a performer to a bolstering drink or into quitting, which was the intent. One feels they might have mentioned by name for general information, especially intra-trade, because it's not enough to opine that those in the trade can guess or know.

There is no disputing, above all, that the faith of the Scriptures as against the bottle has been complete surcease and support for Miss Roth in her rehabilitation, her success, and her new-found faith.

Lou Walters Adds Acts To Betty Hutton Bow Bill

Lou Walters, who will operate the forthcoming Cafe de Paris, N. Y., is continuing to sign opening talent. He has retained the writing team of Livingston & Evans to do the music. With Betty Hutton headlining, he has pacted Rafael & His Model, whom he and his booker Cass Franklin caught at the Dorchester House, London. The Szonys and Sherry Britton have also been inked.

Cafe, which will seat 1,200, will have no lounge. Walters believes that a lounge on Broadway may bring in some undesirable citizens, and thus he'll concentrate on customers who can pay the required minimum.

Walters is aiming for a May 6 preem with a press preview and a formal opening the day after. There are several banquet dates set.

Greensboro Used Car Lot Cuffos Miller Circus

Greensboro, N.C., April 15.

Gate City Motor Co. sponsored the appearance here for two days last week of several units from Miller Bros. Circus. Performances were free on the motor firm's used car lot.

The circus units, traveling through the state enroute to the season's opening May 1 in Washington, gave continuous performances from 4 to 7 p.m. both days.

Units played recently in Lexington, High Point, Charlotte and Concord on their trip from Pigeon Forge, Tenn., headquarters.

Havana

Continued from page 53

and casinos are resigned to a siege of extremely bad business stemming from the current political unrest. Travel has been scared off because of the news reports and hotels have received a lot of cancellations.

However, the hotelmen and casinos are confident that Havana business will bounce back stronger than ever after political conditions have become settled. They point out that tourism has become an increasingly important item in the Cuban economy. Much of the island's development in the future will depend on the amount of coin from the travelers.

Whether the rebel side wins or whether President Batista is able to overcome the opposition, it's evident to the operators that the Cuban government will do everything it can to encourage new capital and continuation of the high level tourist business.

Olga Guillot, billed recently for a date at the Caribe Hilton in San Juan, has been cancelled for the time being. She was reported unable to leave her native Cuba. Pepe Lara has been held over at the Caribe instead.

Everyone is sweating it out.

Vaude, Cafe Dates

New York

Jimmy Nelson is booked for the Copacabana June 5 . . . Dick Haymes into Club 802, Brooklyn, April 25. He's also inked for the Cliche, Detroit, July 18 . . . Pat Wilson, who's dated for the Maisonette of the St. Regis Hotel, N.Y., is pacted for the Statler, Detroit, April 21 . . . Henny Youngman is signed for the Eden Roc, Miami Beach, April 30 . . . Al Bernie goes there May 14 . . . Sophie Tucker has been tapped for four days at the Brant Inn, Burlington, Ont., July 16 and the Latin Casino, Philadelphia, in October . . . The Ashtons have been signed for the Latin Quarter April 23 . . . The Morlidors open there in July . . . Agent Eddie Jarrett of the Lew & Leslie Grade Agency, London, on a brief N.Y. stopover yesterday (Tues.) to confer with Eddie Elkort of General Artists Corp. before taking off for Australia.

Victor Borge to one-night at the 5,500-seat Municipal Auditorium, Atlanta, April 23 for benefit of scholarship fund of Atlanta Music Club . . . Ving Merlin & Linda, just returned from Europe, start a stateside tour at Harrah's, Lake Tahoe, May 2 . . . Don Marlowe to the Henry Grady, Atlanta, April 24 . . . Denise Lor going to the Eden Roc, Miami Beach, May 21 . . . Walt Burns Jr., Leo B. Meyer and David K. Rosario have formed a talent office, Burmyro Associates.

Jane Froman has cancelled out of the Fairmont Hotel, San Francisco, because of illness . . . Pat Suzuki inked for the Flamingo, Las Vegas, on June 5 layout topped by Ray Bolger . . . Martha Raye into the Sahara, Las Vegas, yesterday (Tues.), will repeat Sept. 30 . . . Patachou goes into the Queen Elizabeth, Montreal, May 16 . . . Tony Lavelli in for eight weeks at the Village Barn . . . Bob McFadden to the Twin Coaches, Pittsburgh, April 25 . . . Dolores Hawkins returns to Flamingo Hotel, Las Vegas, July 31 . . . Somethin' Smith & Redheads to the Berghoff Gardens, Ft. Wayne, May 2, and the Copa, Dayton, May 19.

Hollywood

Fran Jeffries opened a two-week stand at Marshal Edson and Mike Garth's Ye Little Club yesterday (Tues.) . . . Andrews Sisters have cancelled all their bookings prior to June 1 date at the Riverside, Reno, because of Maxene's attack of virus pneumonia . . . Mike Nichols & Elaine May open a two-week engagement at the Mocambo April 25 . . . Hollywood Royal Room reopened with Joe Darensbourg's Dixieland band . . . Pat Suzuki set for four weeks at the Flamingo, Las Vegas on the Ray Bolger revue beginning June 5 . . . David Rose set as guest conductor for New Orleans Symphony at city's Municipal Auditorium Aug. 8-9.

Glasgow

Maxine Daniels set to top disk-name vaude season week at Metropole May 19 . . . Donald Peers topping at same vaudery May 5 . . . Michael Holliday pacted for Empire May 12 and Tommy Steele due there May 26 . . . Jerry Lee Lewis, with The Treniers, doing one-nighter at Odeon May 29 . . . Olsen & Johnson to Empire in "Laffing Room Only" . . . Sarah Vaughan set for one-nighter at Odeon April 21.

Atlanta

Jim Scott Duo remains in Dogwood Lounge, Paradise's cocktailery . . . Exotic Bambi Brooks bowed Monday (14) at Club Peachtree on same bill with another exotic, Michelle, pianist Eloise and strolling troubador George Petras. . . . Recently-opened Latin Quarter offers Latin dance team, Themis & Emilio, exotic Mitzi Dore and thrush Bette Blue . . . Latin stripper Tongolele, juggling unicyclist Joanna Dore and emcee-comedian Red Thornton are in spotlight at Mae Brandt's Harem Club . . . Ivory thumper Bill Harris held over at Georgian Terrace's Red Carpet Lounge . . . Warblers Elie & Frede remain at Leb's Pigalley. . . . Exotic Cee Gon and rock 'n' roller Mark Denning staying with comic Dave Gardiner at Chick Hedrick's Domino Lounge in Imperial Hotel.

Industrial Shows

Continued from page 52

canine lovers. The Royal Canadians, in a canoe grab attention with Frankie Peloquin casting from the stage. The Yokoi Family—father, mother and three daughters—give a dazzling display of bicycle and unicycle riding. Skilled cyclists give an eye-catching demonstration and the daughters are lookers, adding to the eye-appeal.

The Kovacs, trampoliners, score with a neat net stint. The Midwesterners (8), from WLW-TV, Cincinnati, get the 60-minute show on and off with fast-paced square dancing, which almost encroaches into the tap field. But they're good, and the bright costumes add to the entertainment value, sight and sound.

Billy Mayo's orch, back for the 10th straight year, cuts a neat show.

Show, per usual, is sponsored by the Dallas Morning News and its radio-tv properties, WFAA and WFAA-TV. Bark.

Off-B'way 'Compass'

The off-Broadway cafe movement seems to be snowballing. Newest small-cast book show to open in a cafe will start tomorrow (Thurs.) at the Cherry Lane Restaurant.

"Compass" will have a five-performer cast in a show produced by Lawrence Arrick & David Sheppard. Performers are Rose Deitch, Barbara Glenn, Severn Darden, Del Clise and Arrick. Layout has been in Chicago and St. Louis.

"THE COMEDIAN"
The Only Real Monthly PROFESSIONAL GAG SERVICE
THE LATEST — THE GREATEST — THE MOST-UP-TO-DATEST
Now in its 92nd Issue, containing stories, one-liners, poemettes, song titles; hecklers; audience stuff, monologs, parodies, double gags, bits, ideas, intros, impressions and impersonations, political interruptions. Thoughts of the Day. Humorous Views of the News, etc. $24 yearly. 3 Yrs. $60—Single Issues $3
Foreign: $35 Yr.—3 Yrs. $90
Single Issues $4—No C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54 St., New York 19

KEN BARRY

Currently PALUMBO'S
PHILADELPHIA
Mgt.: Stu & Will Weber, New York

CHARLIE BOYER and THE EXTROVERTS
Currently
WAGON WHEEL SALOON
Lake Tahoe, Nevada
William Deutsch Agency, Inc.
HOLLYWOOD 9034 Sunset Blvd CRestview 4-7121
LAS VEGAS 130 S. Fourth St. DUdley 4-7976
NEW YORK 200 W. 57th St. Circle 7-1420

CAB CALLOWAY
Featured in
PARAMOUNT'S
"ST. LOUIS BLUES"
Mgt. BILL MITTLER, 1619 Broadway, New York

JOAN BISHOP
Currently
No. 1 5th Avenue
HOTEL
New York

JACK WAKEFIELD
One of the Funniest Comics Ever To Hit The West Coast
Now Appearing
SLATE BROS. CLUB
Personal Management: HARRY ADLER
165 West 46th Street, New York 36
PL 7-2535

The DEEP RIVER BOYS
Starring HARRY DOUGLASS
9th International Tour
Currently
ELMWOOD
Windsor, Canada

Direction: WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY
Pers. Mgr.: ED KIRKEBY

Plaza, N.Y.

Jane Powell with Dick Pribor and Jack Constance, Ted Straeter and Mark Monte Orch; $2.50-$3 cover.

If Jane Powell hadn't been discovered by Hollywood more than 10 years ago and if the motion picture business were the industry it used to be, she'd probably be on her way there now on the basis of her appearance and performance at the Plaza Hotel's plush Persian Room. Her striking beauty combined with an appealing voice and professional know-how make for a parlay that would attract the talent diggers.

As it is, Miss Powell is a young Hollywood veteran who has taken to the nitery circuits because they aren't making sufficient pictures that meet the requirements of her talent. She's a radiant, all-American type who captures the audience from the moment she opens with "It's A Most Unusual Day."

Miss Powell has an act, but to her credit, it's not an over-gimmicked one. She whirls elegantly around the floor, perches on the piano, does separate duos with her piano and bongo accompanists, and employs a jewel box and its contents as a prop for two tunes. It may sound busy, but it's done simply and unpretentiously.

Armed with clever musical arrangements, Miss Powell is sufficiently adventurous to tackle off-the beaten-path numbers. An aria from Leonard Bernstein's "Candide" gives her a chance to reveal her coloratura training. She accomplishes, too, a difficult feat by effectively taking a musical lead (sans lyrics) and employing her voice as if it were a third instrument in combination with the piano and bongo.

As part of her songalog, actress-singer dips into some of her musical films, extracting "Too Late Now" from "Royal Wedding" and "Goin' Courtin'" from "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers." She clicks, too, with her interpretation of "Baubles, Bangles and Beads" from "Kismet."

Miss Powell's altogether pleasant 45-minute stint also features a calypso tune and "St. Louis Blues," both with the stress on the bongo accompaniment.

Miss Powell, gowned simply in a white sheath with fly-away panels, is a gracious performer. She strongly spotlights the contributions of Dick Pribor, her pianist; Jack Constanzo, who is on the bongos, and Ted Straeter and his orch, which lend solid support. Straeter's crew alternates with the Mark Monte orch for customer terping. Holl.

Mocambo, L. A.

Los Angeles, April 11.

Roberta Sherwood, Frankie Sands Trio, Paul Hebert Orch (5); $2 cover.

It's been some time since the walls of the Mocambo felt the brushing of an overflow crowd that turned out at Friday's (11) opener to greet Roberta Sherwood. This was a rare sight since most of the Strip niteries have been doing spotty business, but it proved that the right act will bring the rounders out. Making her first return here in over a year, she was introed by Walter Winchell, credited with discovering this stylist.

In modest attire, with shawl over shoulders, Miss Sherwood makes her usual entrance singing from the back of the room and 60 minutes later winds with "Bill-Bailey." Her repertoire is as great as her singing and includes "Lonesome Road," an Irving Berlin medley, "Avalon," "If I Can Help Somebody," a spiritual done impressively; "I Used to Love You," "Lost In His Arms," "Lazy River," "All the Way," "Just in Time," and "You're Nobody." The matronly type singer also did several numbers from her new Decca LP, "City Girl Sings Country Music," also belted real well.

Ernie De Lorenzo, on piano, and Red Newmark, guitarist, regular accompanists, sat in with Paul Hebert's house band to aid in the backing. They too were effective in their assignments. Frankie Sands Trio holds over as good intermission entertainment. Show stays through April 24. Kafa.

Intercontinental, S. Juan

San Juan, April 15.

Yma Sumac, Moises Vivanco, Bruni Roque, Joaquin Banegas, Tropicoro Dancers, Lito Pena Orch. Bobby Hicks Orch; $2.50-$3.50 minimum, $1.50-$2.50 cover; opening night, $5 minimum, $5 cover.

One-hour nitery package is divided about evenly between Yma Sumac and a colorful buildup production titled "The Princess of the Stars." The star does five numbers, introducing her songs in both Spanish and English, and delivers special material with her customary aplomb and powerful performance. The lady from Peru sells and dominates her nitery audiences.

First part of show lays elaborate groundwork for Miss Sumac's entrance. Attractively costumed, heavily feathered and scantily clad dolls suddenly are revealed by lights all over the sides of the Tropicoro auditorium and find their way to the stage where they do extremely competent if standard business along with the expert dancers Bruni Roque and Joaquin Banegas.

Choreography is by Jose Padres and entire production was created and produced by Milton H. Lehr. It is effective for the Tropicoro and goes down well with the patrons.

Club Tropicoro and its adjoining Casino has played only name acts to date, since February opening. Band is onstage to play for the show and customer terpsing. Auditorium is stepped in familiar theatre nitery style for visibility, with bar at one side cut off from auditorium by large glass pane. Bar patrons can see but not hear the show. Maitre d' is Sylvan A. Groell from the Sheraton in Washington, D.C., and his assistant, Lucas, has moved over from the neighboring Caribe Hilton. Rein.

Eden Roc, Miami Beach

Miami Beach, Apri 12.

Billy Daniels with Benny Payne, Bettey Kean & Lew Parker, Eileen O'Dare, Mal Malkin Orch; $3.50-$6 minimum.

Current package is last of the big-budget deals, and is earning its way at a time when the slackening period sets in hereabouts to point of low returns.

Billy Daniels is back for his second shot—he opened the season in December—and is as volatile as ever in his smartly paced session. Per always, he mixes the croonings, the guttural sex tones, the driving stylings to the femmes' fluttering delight and their escorts' high acceptance. On the latter score, Daniels seems to have a strong and well-heeled following. When he and longtime ace accompanist-conductor Benny Payne join in zingy duets they peak a sock stint that brings encore demands.

Betty Kean & Lew Parker's new teaming is working out into a strong entry for the cafe circuit and other mediums. When Miss Kean gives out with her broad clowning to Parker's musicomedy-vaude schooled know-how in straighting and playing the comedy angles on his own, it builds a goodly load of laughs. Still in the shape-up stage, overall the canto gives them plenty of motivations for her cutups and his slick delivery. Key spots are the spoof on "My Fair Lady" and revival of "The Bickersons" from radio which allows for full play of sharp timing and build on aud's risibilities. They wind into a huge palm payoff.

Eileen O'Dare tees off matters in sprightly style with her grasp-raising acro-flips and mitt-spurring spins areound stage. Mal Malkin emcees in smooth, amiable fashion and per always, is the well-versed batoneer. Due on April 17 are Patachou, Sonny Howard and Lisa Jayne. Lary.

Amato's, Portland

Portland, Ore., April 9.

Paris Sisters (3) (with Ken Brown), Los Zeas (2), Claydettes (6) (with Dee Peters), Julian Dreyer Orch (6), Dualtones (2); $1.50 cover, no minimum.

The Paris Sisters (3) are making their debut in this plush nitery and from all indications will become regular returnees. Cute, well stacked youngsters keep the mitts going throughout 30-minute stint, selling every number with enthusiasm and freshness. In addition to belting out various standards, gals close in for ballad stuff that garners big returns. Ken Brown assists on the bongos and batons the house crew during the ballad foray.

Los Zeas (2) get things underway with standard terping. Handsome darkhaired guy and blonde looker go through four routines that run the gamut from ballroom to sambas, done easily and with grace. The Claydettes (6) are on for two production numbers with Dee Peters in a specialty spot. Precision tap and rhumba numbers are outstanding.

The Dualtones (2) are held over in the lounge and continue to please with their piano, bass and vocals. Julian Dreyer and his house crew play for the show and dansapation. Gale Robins opens April 22. Feve.

Ambassador Hotel, L. A.

Los Angeles, April 11.

Dean Martin (with Ken Lane), Lois Ray, Freddy Martin Orch (20); $2-$2.50 cover, $3 minimum.

Dean Martin took permanent possession of the Como Cup, a new trophy for the leading contender among performers in the casual look, with his opening at the Ambassador's Cocoanut Grove (9). He could not have been more casual if he had been asleep. Not without lying right down supine, he couldn't. Martin announced early in the program that he was glad to be there and then came clean and said frankly he would rather be home in bed. Some minutes later he confided, "I hate singing serious songs" (in the midst of singing one), and later elaborated on this by admitting, "I hate singing songs."

Despite these and other self-knocks that are becoming part of the public personality, Martin looked trim, tanned and terrific. His material, as formless a mass of words as ever answered that description, was funny (although sometimes a bit broad), and when he cared to cut loose with full voice, scored again and again. It is a smash act that will see the velvet rope up for his two-week stay ending April 22.

Martin opened with special material taking note of the fact that this was his first Grove appearance and went from that into a dozen of his hits, ranging from "That's Amore" to "Oui, Marie." In between he did other pops or standards, "Memories are Made of This," "When You're Smiling," "True Love," etc. Sometimes his heart doesn't seem to be in his songs, and sometimes, as he candidly admitted, his voice wasn't either. But he capitalized either way, for vocal effects when he did open up and for humor when he didn't.

Martin was on for 52 minutes opening night, accompanied by his arranger, Ken Lane, preceded by an eight-minute turn by a good looking and leggy brunet, Lois Ray, who did a short dance routine to warm things up. Freddy Martin had a four-minute overture with "Midnight in Paris," and also played for dancing. Powe.

Beverly Hills, Cincy

Cincinnati, April 11.

Connie Towers, Georgie Kaye, Dorothy Dorben Dancers (10) with Clay Mundey, Mary Fassett, Don Little, Jean Repinski, Marijo Leyanna; Gardner Benedict Orch (10), Jimmy Wilber Trio, Barbary Coast Boys (2); $3 minimum, $4 Sat.

Connie Towers, click local newcomer, and Georgie Kaye, established fave, combine for a natural in the current two-framer at this plush northern Kentucky casino. Backstoppers in a classy 70-minute cabaret array are the Dorothy Dorben steppers and vocal specialists in two dazzling routines, and the band of Gardner Benedict.

Along with promising ability as a dramatic soprano, Miss Towers has natural charm and distictive styling. A young blonde beauty, sans facial makeup, she has the appearance of a teenager in a first recital, except for the stunning mounting of an hour-glass figure, and the poise of an artist. First-nighters admired her in a silver metallic sheath gown with bustle. Her half-hour repertoire is highlighted by a "Carousel" medley and "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing."

Comic Kaye, who is becoming an annual dater with Greater Cincinnati cafegoers freshens his rapid-fire 25-minute routine with gag changes while sticking to his standard clinch takeoff of the twitchy psychiatrist and his trademarked brand of terps.

Carol Channing tops the show opening April 25. Koll.

Americana, Miami B'ch

Miami Beach, April 13.

Jane Morgan, Paul Gray, Mario & Floria, Jackie Heller, Lee Martin Orch; $3.50-$5 minimum.

Prexy Larry Tisch has developed into a shrewd booker for the Bal Masque; his shows are always carefully balanced, as illustrated in the current package which is a click all the way.

Jane Morgan played here successfully before, but this time out hits with biggest impact, thanks to a smartly devised act to allow for multi-changes in costumes. A blonde looker, Miss Morgan is a class chirper with an eye-arresting chassis and gowning to match. She is an authoritative performer who takes on her arrangments with zest and purveys them with distinction.

Her hold on the aud is illustrated by lack of any calls for her recent hit platter "Fascination" until just about the time auditors think she is ready to depart the stage. Instead, they are absorbed by her special stagings, highlights being her repolished "Around The World In 8 Minutes" medley of international chansons, tricked out with hats to set change of locale. Other sock item is a finale medley of "Ziegfeld" days and stars, with the tunes they were associated with. Use of hats and other little costume items is a showmanly staging idea that winds her into begoff.

Paul Gray, another repeater here, had his option picked up for three returns during the year. The move was spurred by his big click with the regulars—furthered by a raft of new material—and high laugh score with the tourists. Gray is a smooth, bland guy with a Robert Benchley touch in his manner and material. He works out a series of funny topical routines that sound like they're right out of the day's news. He can toss in a more familiar line when the aud warrants, to continuing laugh rise. Spoof on songsters is a high point, the lampooning sharpened by use of smart lines and between-chorus self-kidding gab. He keeps them yocking all the way.

Mario & Floria are of the vet school of ballroomologists, working out a smooth flow of terping with authority. They top their canto with comparison of the Turkey Trot and the current rock 'n' roll dances. It's a prime invent that gets them off to heavy plaudits. Lary.

Athletic Club, Det.

Detroit, April 9.

Doretta Morrow, Andre Moons Puppets (2), Dick Barlow Orch (6); private club.

For the final show of the season, M. C. Callahan packaged a contrasty show that caught the fancy bf Detroit Athletic Club members. Miss Morrow, sheathed in a gown so tight she had to hop, rather than walk, was a strikingly chic contrast to Andre Moons, who worked behind a nondescript waist-high screen and wore a black shirt and dark glasses. Moons' wife, who served as prop lady, was tastefully gowned, however.

Miss Morrow combines the psychological effects of beauty, high fashion and a well-modulated voice to good advantage. She shuns a mike and a stage—couldn't climb in that gown, you know—keeps her voice soft and the audience gives her respectfully silent attention. While the staging is very effective, her material lacks continuity, so there is no buildup to a climax. She roams from the Italian "Little Flower" and "Arriverderci Roma" that would have been more effective without the elaborate embroidery she weaves into it, to a stool-sitting session with folksongs that just aren't right for her cultured voice and the gowning. However, Miss Morrow has a sweet voice that does nice things with "I Feel Pretty," from "West Side Story," "Song of Love" and "Stranger in Paradise." These earn her an encore of a medley from her role in "The King and I." A second encore of "These Foolish Things" is especially effective.

Andre Moons and his wife are Belgians who probably will be more successful here once they have improved the staging of their puppet show. As is, the half-screen serves no purpose except to divide the audience's attention between the excellently manipulated puppets and the puppeteers. Show begins with a line of five chorus girls who get some laughs with their exaggerated high kicks. A baldheaded acrobat does some realistic handstands and other feats for good applause. An appealing bellringing elephant and a forgetful soprano who continually refers to notes are the next two acts. Recorded music is used throughout. Tew.

Blue Note, Chi

Chicago, April 9.

Errol Garner Trio, John Young Trio; $3 minimum.

Erroll Garner is probably at the peak of his jazz 88ing. On disk or live, he's perhaps the hottest the idiom has to offer just now, the sock b.o. of his current Blue Note stand looking to be a tribute to the guy.

Pianist improvises as good as any and better than most, playing with a brilliance, but without striving for technical or intellectual effect. He caricatures music, though, with affection, humor and superb skill, the net result being a unique showmanship that doesn't compromise depth of artistry. His library, per usual, favors the chestnuts, the buffs responding with extra oomph to a mercurial "Almost Like Being in Love" that bubbles with all kinds of patented Garner touches.

Johnny Young Trio, with a more cerebral approach, gives a technical gloss to a "progressive" library that should suit aficionados. Pit.

Riviera, Havana

Havana, April 11.

Roberto Iglesias Spanish Ballet (16), Felix Guerrero and Casino de la Playa Orch.

One of the brightest spots in gloomy Havana is the Roberto Iglesis Ballet at the Riviera. Among the best Spanish troupes that have performed in Cuba in recent years, it provides a welcome relief from run-of-the-mill shows seen ordinarily at Havana bistros, usually featuring hackneyed Afro-Cuban numbers and/or the usual lineup of U.S. chorines.

Iglesias is a young man with apparently indefatigable feet. Mexican-born, he is ably seconded by his petite American wife, Aida. They do a precisely coordinated duet which climaxes with a remarkable demonstration of endurance, a lengthy ruffle of stamping feet.

With a guitarist and male singer in the background, gray-suited Iglesias also does an eye-catching, ear-filling solo which undoubtedly causes him to lose a number of pounds each night. Aida later does her own highly competent solo.

Iglesias does one highly sexy number with Rosario Galan, one of the Galan twins in the show. The number, in addition to a good deal of fiery Latin passion, also features a revolving stage which slowly turns the two dancers around, facing each other, in an effectively dim light.

A light touch is provided by Antonio Espanol and Esperanza Galan dancing a humorous Mexican zapateado. The gay number ends with Esperanza carrying Antonio bodily.

Rosario Escudero, a featured dancer, does a fine number with singer Pepe Segundo and Guitarist Felix de Urtera providing plaintive background music. Despite a long train, Rosario is able to dance, twirl, crack her castanets and fiercely stamp her feet. Singer Maria Fabregas solos with a rich, lively voice.

The production numbers, based largely on village love themes, are performed in a variety of costumes native to different Spanish provinces. The costumes are bright, the music and songs are gay and the women are shapely, pretty and smilingly charming. Jay.

Drake Hotel, Chi

Chicago, April 11.

Connie Moore, Jimmy Blade Orch (6); $1.50 cover.

Connie Moore looks much as she did in her motion picture days a decade and more ago. That's a plus in itself, yet she doesn't rely on sleek beauty and erstwhile screen credits to carry her. Instead, femme comes across with a strong chanteuse image that's a click on its own.

Her tunes are wisely chosen, the best of it being special stuff. "Observe the Niceties" is cleverly sardonic advice to wives with errant husbands, and "Texas Against the U.S.A." is an only slightly less satisfying paean to the Lone Star State.

Miss Moore keeps her patter bright and in check, and thankfully free of references to her celluloid past. Jimmy Blade's AFM-ers give fine support. Singer is here through April 29. Pit.

Viennese Lantern, N. Y.

Kitza Kazacos, Ann Tori, Ernest Schoen Orch; $3.50 minimum.

Max Loew's Viennese Lantern has gone far astray from Alt Wien in his present talent collection. He has a Greek chanteuse Kitza Kazacos headlining, and has Ann Tori, a local gamine (New Acts) playing her first pro engagement. The result is a rather fetching bill loaded with interest from all angles.

Miss Kazacos, a sexy looker whose sights are aimed in that direction, comes to the Lantern via a circuitous route which included a stand at the Cafe de Paris, London, as well as a term on BBC. She has thus some choice experience for English-speaking audiences. Her work is internationally flavored. She flits from Greek to French and English. Many are ardent love tunes. Her demeanor as well as costumes indicate greatly the direction of her songs. Included in her catalog are more familiar items such as "Whatever Lola Wants" and a few French numbers.

Miss Kazacos needs further seasoning for American audiences before she can venture downtown, but she has the makings of a chanteuse who can be whipped into good cafe fodder.

The music for the backing and for listening is led by fiddler Ernest Schoen who contributes vocally as well as instrumentally. His crew delivers a tasty Mozart medley during this show. Jose.

VARIETY BILLS

WEEK OF APRIL 16

Numerals in connection with bills below indicate opening day of show.

NEW YORK CITY

Music Hall 17
Corps de Ballet
Great Barton
Malini
Lucile Cummings
Rockettes
Glee Club

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE
Tivoli 21
Shirley Bassey
Vic Hyde
Lili Berdie
Clifford Guest
Curtibas (4)
George Holmes
Neal & Newton
Eleanor Gunter
Joe Martin
3 Winds
Jimmy Jeff
David Merle
Irene Bevans
Rae Morgan
Reg Prlestman
Norman Thorpe
SYDNEY
Tivoli 21
Larry Griswold
Johnny Lockwood
Eagle & Man
A Robins
Rayes & Faye
Anny Berryer
Medlock & Marlowe
Winnetou & Squaw
B & D Stuchbery
Jimmy Parkinson
Edit Juhasz
Frank Ward

BRITAIN

ASTON
Hippodrome 14
Dave Gray
Melfi Kids
Mum & Dad
Toni Kaye
J & P Sharrap
Peter Small
Jack Roxy
Jean Broidey
BIRMINGHAM
Hippodrome 14
Charlie Gracie
Candy Sis
Sally Barnes
June Day
R & J Jover
3 Baranton
O'Neill & Haig
BRADFORD
Alhambra 14
Jimmy Clitheroe
Miles 2
Jack Watson
Calantas
Cox 2
Duncan's Co.
Alicia Dells
GLASGOW
Empire 14
Olsen & Johnson
Marty May
Jimmy Johnston
Fraser Hayes 4
Ossie Noble
Konyots
LEEDS
Empire 14
Hilltoppers
Gold & Cordell
Authors & Swinson
Rhoda Dian
Johnny Mack
J & J Dawson
Alan Clive
Marguerite & Charles
LIVERPOOL
Empire 14
Michael Holliday
Hal Monty
De Vere Co.
Peter Crawford 3
El Granadas
Bernie & Barbara
LONDON
Palladium 14
Liberace
Dick Shawn
Timmie Rogers
Andrea Dncrs
Margo Henderson
Joan & Arnaut
Brick Bros.
Mr. Murphy
Palladium Girls
NEWCASTLE
Empire 14
Russ Hamilton
Margo & John Kordites
Dennis Spicer
Carl Barriteau
Don Arrol
Jim Couton
Taylor & Valerie
NORTHAMPTON
New 14
Terry Cantor
Red Preston
Toiya Kee
Julie
Colleen Laine
Beverley Lambert
Kenny Cantor
Barry Young
Dale Warren
Specialities
NOTTINGHAM
Empire 14
Terry Dene
3 Skylarks
Swan & McGhee
Barry Anthony
Lane Twins
Hal Roach
Fey Jover
Kelty & Della
SHEFFIELD
Empire 14
Eddie Clair
Rey & Ronjy
Londonairs
Manetti 2
Jeff Lenner
Barbara Law
Templar & Janette
SOUTHAMPTON
Grand 14
Bamburger & Pam
Averill & Laurel
Kish & Valaire
F & A Atkins
Maree Manou
De Vere Girls
SUNDERLAND
Empire 14
Dickie Valentine
Fuller & Janette
Jimmy James
Paulos
Hill & Billie
Roy Castle
Ron & Rita

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

Blue Angel
George Lafaye
Anita Ellis
Dorothy Loudon
Bart Howard
Jimmie Lyon Trio
Bon Soir
Sylvia Syms
Larry Storch
Jorie Remus
Three Flames
Jimmie Daniels
Casanova
Donna Dunn
Margrit & Adrienne
Chateau Madrid
Beatrice Kraft Ders
Elsa Marvel
Candi Cortez
Ralph Font Ore
Panchito Ore
Copacabana
Jimmy Durante
Sonny King
Jack Roth
Cathy Carr
Ted Morrell
Mimi
D & G Prior
Michael Durso Ore
Frank Marti Ore
Downstairs Room
Julius Monk
Ronny Graham
Ceil Cabot
Ellen Hanley
Jean Arnold
Gerry Matthews
Stan Keen
El Chico
Marisa Terol
Lucerite Tena
Carlos & Myrna
Mellitas Del Campo
No. 1 Fifth Ave.
Phyllis Diller
Bob Downey
Dean Sheldon
Harold Fonville
Joan Bishop
Hotel Pierre
Stanley Melba Ore
Joe Ricardel Ore
Betty Bene
Hotel Plaza
Jane Powell
Ted Straeter Ore
Mark Monte Ore
Hotel Roosevelt
Sammy Kaye Ore
Hotel Statler
Xavier Cugat Ore
Hotel Taft
Vincent Lopez Ore
Hotel St. Regis
Bill Hayes
Florence Henderson
Milt Shaw Ore
Ray Bari Ore
Latin Quarter
Sallie Blair
Bernard Bros.
Bob De Voye 3
Francis Brun
Queti Clavejo
Jo Lombardi Ore
B Harlowe Ore
Le Cupidon
Monique V. Vooren
Ish Ugardi Ore
Old Romanian
Harvey Stone
June Perry
Bob Brooks
Mac Pollack Ore
McKenna Line
Tyson Mountry
Jack Carter
Johnny Conrad Ders
Ann Weldon
Ned Harvey Ore
Sicari Ore
Viennese Lantern
Kitzia Kazacos
Ann Tori
Ernest Schoen Ore
Paul Mann
Village Barn
Tony Lavelli
Pete Nederson
Marshalls
Larry McMahon
Pitue Pete
Bobby Meyers Ore
Village Vanguard
Roger Price
Thelonius Monk
Waldorf-Astoria
Maurice Chevalier
Emil Coleman Ore
Bela Babai Ore

CHICAGO

Black Orchid
Johnny Mathis
Gary Morton
Joe Parnello (3)
Blue Angel
"Tropical Holiday"
Carmen Romano
Pedro Roman
Glamazons
Lord Christo
Blue Note
Harry James Orc
Cloister Inn
Eddie Higgins Trio
Beverly Kelly
Ramsey Lewis Trio
Drake Hotel
Connie Moore
Jimmy Blade Ore
Gate of Horn
P Amaya & C. Torres
Will Holt
London House
Teddy Wilson (3)
Mister Kelly's
Anita O'Day
Shelley Berman
Marx & Frigo
Palmer House
Varel & Bailly
Les Chanteurs de Paris (7)
Mata & Hari
Tippy & Cobina
Martha Schlamme
Ben Arden Ore

LOS ANGELES

Avante Garde
Ruth Olay
Don Adams
Eddie Cano Trio
Ben Blue's
Ben Blue
Kay Cee Jones
Barbara Heller
Sammy Wolf
Joan Kayne
Dick Bernie
Ivan Lane Ore
Coconut Grove
Dean Martin
Lois Ray
Freddy Martin Ore
Crescendo
Jeri Southern
Paul Gilbert
Renet Touzet Band
881 Club
Annette Warren
Johnny Walsh
Interlude
Cal Tjader Quintet
Largo
Connee Boswell
Doodles Weaver Bd.
Larry Potter's
Supper Club
Phyllis Inez
Sandy Sims
Mocambo
Ann Mason
Frankie Sands Trio
Paul Hebert Ore
Moulin Rouge
De Castro Sisters
Royal Guards
Dick Stabile Ore
Slate Bros.
Jimmy Wakefield
Tommy Gumina
Statler Hotel
Lucille Norman
Lucille & Eddie Roberts
Ed. Berman Ore
The Seville
Lecuona Cuban Boys
Steven Peck & Lita
Ye Little Club
Abbey Lincoln

HAVANA

Capri
Luisa Chavens
Somavilla Orc
Calvet Orc
Hilton
Xioniara Alveres
Nacional
Betty Reilly
Parisien Dncrs
Dancing Waters
W Reyes Orc
Riviera
Iglesias Ballet
Aida Ramirez
Maria Fabrigas
Antonio Espanol
Pepe Segundo
Felix Ultrera
Rivera Orc
Sans Souci
Tony Foster
Gloria & Rolando
Victor Alverez
Miriam Barreras
Elena Burice
Raquel Mata
Kary Russi
La Serie Ore
Ortega Orc
Tropicana
Erlinda Cortes
Alberto Rochi
Blanca Varela
Gladys & Freddy Riveron
Guaracheros
Monica Castel
Tropicana Ballet
S Suarez Orc
4 Romeu Orc

LAS VEGAS

Desert Inn
Gordon MacRae
Sheila Stevens
Jay Lawrence
Van Alexander
Donn Arden Dncrs
Carlton Hayes Orc
Dunes
Frankie Laine
Jack E. Leonard
The Belmonts
Dunes Dancers
Cee Davidson Orc.
El Cortez
Dubonnet Trio
Dick Saunders
Marcie Miller
Deedy & Bill
El Rancho Vegas
Joe E. Lewis
Rita Moreno
Barry Ashton Dncrs
Dick Rice Orch
Flamingo
Tony Martin
Alan Drake
Don Cole
Flamingoettes
Jack Cathcart Orc
Dick Contino
Fremont Hotel
Jodimars
Make Believes
Magnetics
Shirl & Earl Mortensen
Golden Nugget
Harry Ranch
Jig Adams
Charlie Boyer
L & F Maynard
Riviera
Mickey Rooney
Joey Forman
Lanegons
Novelites
Cavahaughs
Ray Sinatra Orc
Sahara
Martha Raye
4 Step Bros.
Sons of Morocco
Saharem Dncrs
Mary Kaye Trio
Louis Basil Orc
Beachcombers
Sands
Frank Sinatra
Bennet & Patters'n
Copa Girls
Antonio Morelli Or
San Souci
"Midnight in Paris"
Bobby Morris
Pat Moreno
Ray Parsons
Sherry Shone
Cindy & Alberto
Jeanne Masson
Mlle. Zabuda
Bobby Blue Orc
Showboat
Hank Penny
Shirley Scott
Garr Nelson
Showboat Girls
Vic Arrese Orc
Silver Slipper
Hank Henry
Annie Maloney
Peggy Dieterick
Kim Athas
Jimmy Cavanaugh
Sparky Kaye
Mac Dennison
Geo. Redman Ore
Thunderbird
Frank Gusto
Joe Fornaro
Tropicana
Ernie Kovacs
Edith Adams
Elaine Dunn
Dante D'Paulo
George Chiris
Lizanne Truex
Jack Ackerman
Nat Brandywynne

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

Americana
Mindy Carson
Billy Williams 4
R. Fayne & Velvel
Jackie Heller
Lee Martin Ore
Maya Ore
Avalon
Rip Taylor
Hal Winters
Bobby Dukoff Ore
Anita Boyar
Red Smith 3
Balmoral
Charlie Farrell
Irving Fields 3
Billy Mitchell
Mickey Gentile
Jose Curbelo Ore
Carillon
Lenny Kent
Betty Mac Lean
McKay & Charles
Dick Sterling
Jacques Donnet Orc
Desauville
Dan Dailey
Collins Kids
Four Guards
Camille Williams
Clark & Cross
Johnny Silver
Bob Regent
Tito Puente Ore
Eden Roc
Billy Daniels
Betty Kean & Lew Parker
Eileen O'Dare
Jonah Jones
Rascha Rodell
Mal Malkin Ore
El Patio
Windy Manone 4
Rudy Ferguson 3
Bobby Sherwood
Empress
Barry Sisters
Larry Best
Fontainebleau
June Valli
Rowan & Martin
The Szonys
Sacasas Ore
Pupi Campo Ore
Carmelina Buddy Rich 4
Flip Phillips
Paragons
Lucerne
Havana Mardi Gras
Diosa Costello
Miles Velarde
Don Casino
Tonia Flores
Tony & Francella
Juan Romero
David Tyler Ore
Luis Marin Ore
Nautilus
Bas Sheva
Mac Pepper
Carlos & Yvonne
Syd Stevens Ore
Sans Souci
Mickey Katz
Freddy Calo Ore
Paul Secon
Saxony
Gelsha Girl Revue
Ming & Ling
Toy & Wing
M. Shurree
Tony Toyada
Tong Bros.
Kabuki Dncrs.
Charles Faye
Henry Levene Orc
Seville
Barry Gray
Dolores Leigh
Pete Brady 3
Marty Franklin 3
Bob Sennett
Murri & Ruth Sherborne
Cappiellos
Leonard Young
Len Dawson Orc
Lord Flea Calypso
Voyager
Damita Jo
Berj Vaughn 4
Roy Branker

RENO

Harolds Club
Wiere Bros.
Carl Ipazzia
Knox & Korral
Wilder Bros.
Harrah's
Johnny Ukelele
Joe Karnes
Glenn Henry 4
Holiday
Barons
Salmas Bros.
Mapes Skyroom
Nancy Lazzia
Woo Woo Stevens
Jack Melick 3
Riverside
Tony Bennett
Wonder & Banks
Don Dellair
Starlets
Bill Clifford Orc

SAN FRANCISCO

440 Club
4 Sharps
Lenny Bruc
Gloria Padilla
Backstage
Joanne Beretta
Bernard Bragg
Blackhawk
Buddy De Franco
Vido Musso
Easy Street
Kid Ory Orc
Crest Lounge
Pete Daily Orc
Fack's If
Frances Faye
Fairmont Hotel
Mills Bros.
E. Heckscher Orc
Gay 90's
Bee, Ray & Ray K. Goman
Joy Healy Dncrs &
Wally Rose Orc
Hangover
Earl Fatha Hines Orc
Muggsy Spanier
Joe Sullivan
Hungry I
Ada Moore
Marsh Bros.
Gateway Singers
Jazz Showcase
Paul Bley 4
Purple Onion
Lil Greenwood
Lou Gottlieb
Tin Angel
Marty Marcos.3a Orc
365 Club
Toni Dalli
Joy Healy Dncrs
Alex Duchin Orc

SAN JUAN

Intercontinental
Tito Guizar
Marquez Sisters
Lito Pena Orc
Jimmy Stevens Orc
Club Caribe
Pepe Lara
Pace, Michel
Del Campo Twins
Rene
Richard Timm
Miguelito Miranda Orc
Joe Blanco Orc
Escambron
Maria Montano
Raoul Ferreiro
Voodooers Orc
Cotillion Room
Tobaco Muniz
Flamboyan Club
Roberto Iglesias
Aida Irizarry
Polito Galindez
Cesar Conception Orc
Joe Vallejo Orc

Barrett-Cum-Bach

Continued from page 2

mising programs is universal but that it is amazingly widespread today."

Immigrant Come-On

Barrett suspects that there will be a law of diminishing returns in respect to "imported novelties." He agrees with the critics who have found some managements scraping the bottom of the European barrel for attractions to draw out the immigrant colony trade in the big U. S. urban centres rather than true music audience.

"Too much concert music this past season have been hardly more than a rehash of the kind of formless, pretty tunes fed over the Muzak circuits. I think that concert show business will grow only with loftier programming. The new public buys concerts more and more, in my experience, by the music, less by the musician alone. Hackneyed surefire concertos are not the answer to get them back to the solo piano recital."

When Jan Peerce and Eileen Farrell appear with the Bach Aria Group they are given no star billing, just alphabetically among the 11 artists. Promotion and ads stress the program content. This group's two-month road tour for 1959 is already fulled booked.

Rivals Say 'Attaboy'?

Barrett mentions, with humor, that his rival managers are among his greatest boosters. "I don't know whether they want me to ride for a big fall, or whether what I'm doing is what they would like to do." That he is sticking to his pattern is evident in the new groups lined up for next season—Clarion Concerts, Piccola Academia Musicales.

Barrett is able to boast that the only series to completely sell out this season was the fifth season of the American Opera Society under Allen Sven Oxenberg. It drew to Town Hall just short of 8,000 subscribers at $14 top. They came to see and hear works rejected by the regular opera, given in concert version with a chamber orchestra under Arnold Gamson.

Preview performances of each of the four works on another subscription series in the Grace Rainey Rogers Auditorium of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, likewise sold out months in advance, and a fifth non-subscription performance by the American Opera Society at Town Hall offered the first U. S. hearing in 28 years of Offenbach's "La Grande Duchesse de Gerolstein" to a capacity audience. Booked by Barrett last year on the Emma Feldman All-Star Series at Philadelphia's Academy of Music, the American Opera Society likewise created such a sensation at the boxoffice with its presentation of Cherubini's "Medea" that the veteran Philadelphia impresaria, for the first time in her operating history, reengaged the Society for a series-within-a-series, so to speak, presenting three performances by the Oxenburg-Gamson troupe this year, all to packed houses. While appearances of Eileen Farrell, Jennie Tourel, Giulietta Simionato, and Anita Cerquetti with American Opera Society undoubtedly created special interest, the majority of the participating artists were not boxoffice names per se, and there is clear evidence that the principal lure was the Society's adventurous repertoire.

Unit Reviews

Smalltacular

(DOWN IN THE DEPTHS, N. Y.)

Jack Vaughan production with Jean Shepherd, Earl C. Hall, Dottie Love, Rudy Tronto, Mary Harmon, Elly Stone, Nancee Ward; choreography, Nelle Fisher; music, Bob Atwood; staging, lyrics, script by Vaughan; $5 minimum.

The small-show format, successful in many nitery situations, has moved over to the eastside with the opening of "Smalltacular," a seven-people show produced by Jack Vaughan who did the successful "Bits of Burlesque" which had a run at Carnegie Hall. In this revue, Vaughan has assembled a lot of clever material and whipped it into the shape of a gay nitery charade that still needs lots of work, especially in the cutting and pacing department. A few more evenings may make this a prime cafe show.

The cast is topped by Jean Shepherd, the deejay who would work only for night-people. He's still to learn the mores of cafe work, which is somewhat different than working before a mike while spinning disks. However, he seems to be catching on despite a habit of trailing off at the end of a speech or routine. It lowers the level of what he had already built up by virtue of hard work. He ought to look into the paramount finishes of the oldtimers. But there are times when his presence gives a note of mature humor to the proceedings and he has a cool and knowing way which should make him a valuable asset in this effort, once it gets down to its fighting weight.

As it now stands, the show has a lot of quiet and reflective moments, many of which, if inserted into faster moving skits, would provide neeessary changes of pace. One of the top bits is a takeoff on rock 'n' rollers with Rudy Tronto in front. He is also instrumental in putting a harem scene on top. Other male in the session is Earl C. Hall who shows a lot of strength in his own specialties and does well in the skits.

The entire theme is formatted to Madison Ave.'s frantic search for togetherness. Although the numbers go far astray from the initial statement, Shepherd brings the show back to the agency motif.

The femme contingent is a particularly talented group; most of them can sing, or turn a line and even show a sprinkling of choreography, at least as much as this postage stamp stage permits. Nancee Ward, who came out of "Bits of Burlesque," is a vivid performer who does what's expected of her with an efficiency that would do credit to a stage vet. Dottie Love has a pleasant voice and an ability to fall into the mood of whatever's presented, while Elly Stone seems like a performer with a cool eye on what's going on. Mary Harmon is a warm looker who seems like she'll do virtually anything for a laugh.

At this point, Vaughan, who staged the show as well, hasn't brought out all the possible warmth from this cast, but the layout looks promising. Nelle Fisher, credited with the choreography, is naturally limited by the diminutive stage, but at least the performers move about gracefully and don't bump into each other, even during moments of fast action.

There are some tuneful numbers contributed by Bob Atwood with Vaughan contributing lyrics, and the Mickey Leonard Trio does a good job at backstopping. Jose.

Easter Parade of Stars

(COLISEUM, OTTAWA)

Ottawa, April 8.

Ken Reynolds productions with Sonny James, Buddy Knox, Jimmy Bowen & Rhythm Orchids (4), Sid Kind & Five Strings, Jerry Reed, Don Lanier, CFRA Happy Wanderers; at Coliseum, Ottawa, April 7, '58; $1.75 top.

Sonny James paid the Canadian capital his second annual visit Easter Monday with a unit on a week's tour of mainly Canadian cities. Opened Easter Eve in Hamilton, Ont., with other dates North Bay, Toronto, Sudbury, Ont., and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Carl Perkins and orch, with a date in Alabama might before, missed both shows and hadn't been heard from next day, although advertised.

Frank Ryan's radio station CFRA brought the unit—its Ken Reynolds selecting and booking the acts—and its Happy Wanderers combo opened two-hour show with instrumentals and a hectic solo by Bobby King. Then Joe Brown, another local singer, did "Ballad of a Teenage Queen," whose "music" is the old nursery tune "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star" with infinitesimal variations. It got over big with teeners as well as with a flock of seven-and-eight-year olds who happily wandered through the aisles most of the time.

Sid King & The Five Strings of Columbia's c&w wing were all geetars except traps and sax. They had the youngsters dancing in the aisles till house cops stepped in. Three of them gyrated presleyotically for one number; then they ground out a lugubrious but strong-beat rendition of "Tequila," rich with grunting effects perhaps representing the labor pains of a Mexican mule. They also backed Sonny James, who closed first half, introed by CFRA deejay Gord Atkinson in a loud, clear voice.

James stayed for 20 minutes and had to beg off. He was greeted with almost the solid screaming Presley got here last year, and similarly wore a blinding gold-spangled jacket and of course a guitar. He did a bit of comedy with saxman Mel Robinson, leader Sid King and Trapman Paul Ross, then offered an effectively mixed bag.

Post-intermish, with hard-working Five Strings still backing, a tousle-haired kid named Jerry Reed worked Presley style and very raucous. Norm Curtis, another CFRA spinner, brassily introed Jimmy Bowen & Rhythm Orchids—three guitars and traps. Bowen, husky, darkhaired, trick-voiced and sport-jacketed, was also a do-it-yourself Presley. After one writhing number he was spelled by Don Lanier, another frenzied young man who drew yocks and cheers with interpolated patter and floor-pounding with some bluesy numbers.

Buddy Knox, a young brush-cut in a sports jacket, leaped in with "Oh Boy!" and from then on one could feel the building rock. Half the house joined him in "Rock Around the Clock," and the finale, "Partly Doll," with an electric guitar screaming like a soul in torment, roused them to a zenith of squealing frenzy.

That ended the program, but a solid hour later Sonny James and the others were still trapped in the dressing rooms by a surging, howling, mainly female mob, which gradually melted as dinner hour approached. At one point they broke through a cordon of house cops into the dressing-room corridor, but the doors held.

Wet snow on the country roads around kept total attendance down to 3,500 (1,600 matinee, 1,900 evening), with gross just under $5,000 in the 4,000-seater.

This is Ken Reynolds' second touring unit in here this year; next, May 29, is headed by Nova Scotia-born Hank Snow. He's also sending a unit headed by Johnny Cash on a 12-date tour Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, teeing off April 28 in Campbellton, N.B., and still another headed by N.S.-born Wilf Carter & His Daughters, June 9 at North Bay, Ont. They're doing 11 solid weeks—66 nights—west to Alberta then back through Ottawa to the Maritimes, closing Aug. 23. Similar tours of Reynolds' have gone 14 weeks and covered British Columbia as well, but the Centenary Festival there this year was figured too heavy competish. Gard.

Films at Brussels

Continued from page 1

by the American industry during the festival.

There will be a Cyclorama exhibit at the fair, sponsored by Westinghouse. It involves a circular screen, which surrounds the viewer with the image.

Several other countries, notably France and the Soviets, will present their new films at the fair and have exhibits drawing attention to their film industries.

Films for the cavalcade are being contributed by the Museum of Modern Art film library and several of the film companies are lending prints. Each program will be on the screen for a week. Producers of nontheatrical films will be repped at the fair and several of them will be represented as part of the American exhibit.

Palladium, London

London, April 8.

Liberace (with Darius, Gordon Robinson), Dick Shawn, Margo Henderson, Andrea Dancers (3), Arnaut, Joan & Arnaut, Brick Bros. & Mr. Murphy, George Carden Dancers, Reg Cole Orch.

Whatever the reason, the Palladium vaude season this year is being restricted to a modest six weeks, with three U.S. headliners sharing the honors. For the opening bill, which teed off over the Easter weekend, Liberace insured a flying start, even though the audience may not have been made up of regular Palladium supporters. But capacity spells sellout in any language, and that's the prospect for the fortnight ahead. Opening night crowds caused a jam around the theatre, and mobile police had to be called to keep traffic on the move.

On his first appearance in Britain a year or so ago, Liberace had the backing of brother George and his orch onstage, and Mom in the stalls to take a bow on cue. This time around he's on his own, apart from the fact that he has Gordon Robinson as his musical conductor and Darius to provide bongo accompaniment. But, to his credit, he sustains his stint admirably, even though he has an obsession about making cheap jibes at the press, and seems to resent some of the cracks that have been made about his appearance.

In a manner that is completely redundant, Liberace draws attention to his flamboyant style of dress. Who, for example, would have failed to notice his well cut tails with their diamond buttons; or the diamante waistcoat and bowtie which completed the ensemble? They're as much a part of his act as the Steinway which he pounds, the candelabra which illuminates, and the corny gags which seem to delight. In other words, it's a triumph of showmanship over matter, personality over material; average pianistics which rouse the audicence, and patter and byplay which could be embarrassing from any other artist. Liberace knows how to get away with it, how to hold a packed house with a conventional Gershwin medley, how to get roars of applause for an indifferent calypso and above all, how to establish complete identification.

Dick Shawn, who played the Palladium some four years back, knows his way around a London audience, and many of his gags have the correct local tag to guarantee quick response. But one of his best cracks had recently been exploited by another visiting comedian, and a hep first night audience seemed to be well aware of that fact. Easily his best sketch is his Civil War story which, with a little more repetition, could earn the stature of Danny Thomas' yarn about the car jack. His Elvis Presley takeoff has obvious pop appeal, and his Othello payoff suggests a personal frustration. All in all, a highly amusing half-hour, but a little overlong for the occasion.

Remainder of the bill is of standard quality. Margo Henderson, on her first Palladium date, shows up as a talented impressionist, with a wide range of takeoffs; the Andrea Dancers, w.k. adagio act, impress with the smoothness and polish of their routine; Arnaut, Joan & Arnaut do a bird act which has a very familiar look; and Brick Bros. & Mr. Murphy are a duo of trampolinists with a chimpanzee as their special gimmick. The George Cardan Dancers and the Reg Cole orch complete a professional layout.

Timmie Rogers, colored American singer, had been billed for the program, but was omitted from the show caught as it was running considerably overlength. Myro.

Majestic, Vancouver

Vancouver, April 15.

Four Champs, Henri French, Stan Andy Stewart, Gloria Torlai, Bob Hart, Carl de Santis Orch (5); "Revolt of Mamie Stover" (20th), "Private Hell Number 36" (Filmakers).

Bill last week was lean but this layout remits in full with the Four Champs a complete knockout (see New Acts).

Near show-stealer is Henri French, with horseplay and acro-antics on bikes similar to what Henri French pere clicked with on same boards some 40 years ago. This dapper, smiling trouper comes on, convincingly hushed, on a unicycle, and makes futile tries to upflip his grounded skimmer with cane; then after a pair of pratfalls, swings into amazing feats on a regulation bike, copping boffos. High spot is a rodeo ride on a reared-back bike which heaves and thrashes around stage like a bloodshot Brahma bull. Windup is audience participation, riding a tiny bike for a small reward.

Gloria Torlai reveals ringing pipes and a fetching way with torch and upbeat cleffings. She's a warm, confident personality, adroit with her intros and all-round easy to take, with exceptions being some gauchery on entrance and encore-salaams, and a hefty figure that's unsuited to flared fluffy garb, which as worn, lends kewpie doll aspect. Gets mitting.

Stan Andy Stewart, sometime "Andy" of "Life With Elizabeth" vidseries, offers somewhat of a freak stint that trades on impreshes of Harry Richman, Cyril Smith and Stan Laurel, mouthed to scratchy ricky-tick diskings of old goodies amid a railroad station set. Card tricks, some sleighting with cigs, and a brace of explosions fill out this "theatre of the mind" stint which captures the crowd for no good reason, except nostalgia, and draws nice applause.

Bob Hart gets the show underway with a short greeting and a brisk song. Carl de Santis orch needs brass or string bass to present crew, and some p.a. amplification to integrate sounds sent out front. Orch otherwise first-rate. Films are reissues. Toms.

Apollo, N. Y.

Sammy Davis Jr., Fran Warren, Will Mastin, Redd Foxx, Cole & Atkins, Hortense Allen Chorus (7), Mort Stevens Band (17); "Edge of the City" (M-G).

Sugar Ray Robinson has been called the best boxer pound for pound ever to enter the ring, but in show biz Sammy Davis Jr. would be a contender for the top honors. Audiences at the Apollo and elsewhere rank him as a heavyweight.

Many topnotch Negroes have gotten their start in show business by appearing on the Wednesday night amateur show at the Harlem vaude flagship, but perhaps the most talented alumnus is Davis, a performer with unlimited talent who excels in almost every department. Perhaps Davis can do some wrong but it is not evident nor is it obvious at the 125 St. theatre where he softshoes and hoofs masterfully, proves to be a solid vocalist, and holds his own in beating the drums and blowing the trumpet. For over an hour Davis holds his audience captive; and when he seems to run out of gas he perches himself on a stool and proves to be a suave gabber and storyteller. Davis performs with a full head of steam through most of the session and his stamina is almost as amazing as his talent.

Sammy Davis Sr., who suffered a heart attack a few months ago, does not accompany his son to the Apollo although the third member of the trio, Will Mastin, gets into the act briefly and shows he is still a fine hoofer.

Sharing honors with Davis on the Apollo bill is Fran Warren, a talented chirper and a real looker. Distaffer scores with "I Want a Sunday Kind of Love" and "Do It Again," as well as with a host of other tunes. Miss Warren, with her vocalizing, styling and showmanship shows why she rates with the best of them.

The rest of the bill is so-so, Redd Foxx, who played this house about two months ago, returns for this session. Foxx is a funnyman who doesn't take full advantage of his talent. He has the ability to hold the house together but the gags he told on his last visit here are the identical ones he uses this week. Cole & Atkins are dancers who are better than average but could use a different routine. Bill is opened by the Hortense Allen Chorus which is badly off on its timing. The seven lovely misses, scantily dressed, add little to an otherwise tip-top show. Bern.

Empire, Glasgow

Glasgow, April 9.

Al Hibbler (with John Malachi), Ernest Arnley & Gloria, Duncan's Collies, Tassi, Hill & Billie, The Kid & I, Miles Twins, Bobby Dowds Orch.

Al Hibbler, in on current limited tour of U. K., is handicapped here by one of the poorest support layouts for months. It is unfair to headline a U. S. act, however known or unknown, and give him this type of unattractive support, not guaranteed to bring in the customers.

As is, Hibbler scores in his own distinctive style, though limited by his own blindness for free movement about the stage. He does a somewhat overlong act (maybe to balance the slightness of support), and garners mitting for "I'm A Lucky So and So," "Don't Get Around Much Any More," "He" (which he dedicates to Easter) and, of course, "Unchained Melody."

Hibbler, billed as "The Unchained Melody" man, has arrived too late to cash in on his major hit. He is not the type of act that merits top billing in a vaudery where rock 'n' roll and lively comedy take biggest tricks, however. Johnny Malachi does his musical director chores with skill.

Of support bill, Hill & Billie, mixed duo, are liveliest offering. Male plays mouth-whistle and uke at same time, and distaffer, a pert looker, scores in "This Ole House." Pair's madcap melody on harmonicas, guitar and hillbilly skiffle-board aids in energizing the layout.

Miles Twins decorate the dance opening spot. Ernest Arnley & Gloria just get by with some unfunny, outdated crosstalk, and are best in a red Indian takeoff. Duncan's Collies, a too-familiar act hereabouts, close the first half of bill with their antics and that well-worn ambulance-accident sketch.

Tassi, Continental juggler, reviewed in New Acts, contributes a second high-speed balance act with a teenage boy to good mitting. Gord.

Foreign Ice Show Review

Wonderful World

(Casa Carioca, Garmisch)

Garmisch, April 10.

"Wonderful World," 17th edition of the Casa Carioca Ice Show, produced, directed, choreographed and costumed by Terry Rudolph; musical director and arrangements, Ernest Meletzky; sets, Werner Schachteli; narration, Hans Difflipp, Lloyd Loeweke; vocals, Hans Difflipp; with Peter Voss, Faye Allen, Inge Benkert, Hans Difflipp, Bill Hinchy, Inge Jell, Dagmar Lippe, Lloyd Loeweke, Mary Bambusch, Lisbeth Kaufman, Agnes Martens, Bob McCoan, Wolfgang Schmidt, Pieter Van Gils, Franz Zwerger, Carioquettes (8). At Casa Carioca, Garmisch, Germany, April 9, '57; $1.50 top.

With ice shows getting bigger and better and more spectacularized every year, it's nice to report that a "little" production with a low budget and high imagination, auspiced by the U.S. Army in Europe, has been a tremendous success here for the last eight years; and deservedly so, as the latest show proves.

This is a frappe within a night club, built originally by the Third Army as a rest centre in 1945, converted the following year to a richly decorated cafe seating 700. The club has its own ice plant, supplying one of the largest nitery rinks in the world—right under the huge dance floor.

Most of the imagination in this internationally-themed show is due to the Garmisch entertainment director, Miss Terry Rudolph, who singlehandedly masterminds production, direction, choregraphy and costumes—and it's a wonder some of the big U.S. ice shows haven't lured away this versatile former ballerina, who knows how to create cinemascopic splendor without much money. Miss Rudolph, incidently, is credited with being the originator of ice revues in story form, and she's developed the art to a fine degree.

Star is handsome Peter Voss, twice junior champion and later senior champ in pair skating in Germany. But heaviest mitt goes to an astounding jumper and comedian, Detroit-born Lloyd Loeweke, former serviceman now civilian skater. His glorious leaps in the gypsy number "Roumanian Rhapsody" and high-diving on ice comedy in "The Swimming Lesson" easily stole the show. This rubbery-faced skater shows a fine flair for dramaatics along with his exceptional skating skill. He's now appearing in his seventh Casa Carioca ice production.

Skaters have been recruited from all over the world for this production, at one of Germany's top winter resorts. Ice talent has come from England, Holland, France, Australia, Austria, Belgium, as well as Germany and America, to lend authenticity to the "world" theme.

Among knockout production numbers are a highly stylized delicate scene on an Oriental beach, a splendid rock 'n' roll, and an imaginative skit that takes a group of lighthearted peasants from the village through the forest (where they encounter spooks among the trees) to a gypsy camp, where they're diverted by the gypsy dances. An African fantasy, backgrounded with drums and bamboo and foregrounded with really horrid masks, is a splendid contrast for the pretty skate-dancing girls. Haze.

New Acts

ANN TORI

Songs
9 Mins.
Viennese Lantern, N. Y.

Ann Tori is obviously a newcomer to the business. She gives a gamine-like appearance with a short hairdo and a dead black skirt and sweater. She has a deal of charm and apparently an innate ability to get a tune into the plus column. Since this is her first cafe date, there are a lot of kinks to be ironed out and many corrections to be made, but it's also evident that she shows natural ability.

One of her top items is a rhythmic "Over the Rainbow" and she does an appealing "When My Ship Comes In." Her voice shows that she has taken a lot of time in its cultivation. But all that study hasn't obscured inherent personality and sincerity.

Miss Tori is a familiar figure in the entertainment firmament. Most of her groceries come from the hatcheckery at the Russian Tea Room. Jose.

BUD DASHIELL

Folksongs
16 Mins.
Purple Onion, San Francisco

This sandy-haired, pleasant-looking young fellow is one of the better practitioners of folksinging in the basement bistro circuit—the qualification, of course, is how much folksinging an audience can stand.

Dashiell, unlike many of his contemporaries, doesn't try to corn up his fairly esoteric material and this is in his favor. He comes on with "Last Train for San Fernando," moves into "Johnny, I Hardly Knew You" (the morbid immediate predecessor of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home"), picks out a fine, relaxed guitar solo, sings a popular basement-bistro French ballad "Raspberries, Strawberries," and winds up with the Mexican "La Bomba."

Though all this seems to be standard fare among today's folksingers, it is presented tastefully, melodically and with a minimum of sidebar chatter. Dashiell has a disarming lack of pretense and performs well. Result is a pleasing, if not spectacular, interlude. He's booked through mid-May. Stef.

TASSI

Juggling
8 Mins.
Empire, Glasgow

Tassi, Continental juggler, is a man of nimble fingers and speedy eye. Act, though largely to juggling pattern, wins through via its rapidity and dexterity. Standard balancing of ball on head, ditto while skipping, moves into ultra-fast club tossing and standard audience-throw-balls-back routine.

Tassi offers a separate act, equally fast, of highspeed balance with a teenage boy. Quickness of movement is his main asset. Needs sharpening and extension of juggling to make act a standout, however, and some novelty ideas would be useful. Okay meantime for general run of vauderies. Gord.

FOUR CHAMPS

Songs
20 Mins.
Majestic, Vancouver

Since switching from barbershop to go pro and modern a year ago, the Four Champs achieved a vigorous new sound and some success by way of club/lounge frames. Current vaude booking is group's first try in Vancouver, and result is socko.

Foursome are basically tenors who manage a rich and wide spread of harmony that labels Dave Satre as bass, and leader Don Coughlin as treble, often falsetto, and their overall flavor comes cousin to the w.k. high-riding contrapunto of the original Merry Macs.

Champs are a cleancut, close-cropped quartet, whose white-tuxed, white-shod presence clicks well, and they radiate easy confidence and showmanship savvy, coming out strong on all counts. Songalog is half upbeat standards such as "Get Happy," and half is a medley of competitive groups' trademark-tunes which, per Champs, come near equal to original Ink Spots, Hi-Los, et. al. They do boffo spoofings on glee-club or jamboree rousers for elosers. Jay.

JIMMY CLARK TRIO

Songs
25 Mins.
Chaudiere, Ottawa

Youthful Jimmy Clark Trio gives the impression of an inability to make up its mind whether to be a chant or a terp act. Actually the group is billed as chant but is so over-choreographed it splits the customers' attention to the detriment of the entire stanza.

Piping is lost with the boys away from the microphone so often. Session needs plenty tightening and restyling to bring either song or dance to the fore, group showing ability in both categories. Gorm.

RONNIE MARTIN

Comedy
25 Mins.
Carousel, Hotel Bradford, Boston

Ronnie Martin, tall, slim youngster (and a brother of comic Corbett Monica), is essaying the saloon route as a standup comedian after a stretch in midwest bistros. Out for a time, youngster impresses with well paced routine which includes all the familiars, topical jokes, softshoe, vaude routines. However, he has a slick drunk act, his magnum opus, in which, with dishevelled clothes, he warbles tender ditties for big aud reaction. His fast impresh bits of Al Jolson, Cantor lead into a nostalgic vaude bit of Palace days which he brings to a finish with a flurry of steps.

A good bit, on the offbeat kick, is an impresh of the cornball entertainer type in which he portrays an effusive, overbearing vaudevillian. He segues from this, with nice pacing, into a burlesque comic's routine with a hilarious "cheese 'n crackers" bit, for big mitting. Martin looks to go places with pleasant assurance and bright material. Should prove topnotch in niteries, tv, vaude spots. Guy.

Elvis Editions Rise

Continued from page 53

the Japanese editions of Elvis Presley confessed that he does not understand the records that are his inspiration and just tries to imitate the sound in Japanese accompanying himself on a guitar and with the gymnastic knee-bends that he has studied from his idol's motion pictures.

Twenty-year-old Masaaki Hirao was the principal inciter during a recent "Western Carnival" show at this city's mammoth Nichigeki Theatre that drew 50,000 screaming and squealing schoolgirls during the seven-day run. This figure is seen in proper perspective when it is considered that it was achieved during the slack February season. Shows preceding and following at the 2,000-seater averaged 1,500 a day.

Hirao, who wears calculated curls that fall over his forehead and ears in the tradition of the cult, told VARIETY that he was among the most surprised at that reception although he could not contain his joy at the same time.

"But," he complained, "I still feel it's just a lot of noise as far as the audience is concerned. I know I'm doing something crazy and like to see the audience go half-crazy too, but I wish they would yell and scream at the right time. When they do it while I'm singing, I not only try to ignore it, but try to down it out by singing louder."

Sore Throat, Gnawed Finger

This battle of bellows, he revealed, often results in a sore throat.

The slender, clamoring contortionist, who caused such unrest in one of the faithful during a performance that she pulled him offstage and gnawed at his finger, said he does not think his display is a contributor to juvenile delinquency.

"If they want to play hookey and stay at the theatre all day, they'll do it because of anything they like—jazz, mambo, anything. Like any other country, teenagers here are seeking an emotional outlet."

For King Records, Hirao has done "Little Darlin'" backed by "Butterfingers" and "Jailhouse Rock" with "Lonesome Cowboy" on the flip side. The disks were released early in the year and indications show brisk sales although no figures are available yet.

American Opera Cycle

(N. Y. CITY CENTER)

Tale For a Deaf Ear

Mark Bucci did the music and book for this item, first subsidized by Samuel Weschler for Tanglewood, 1956, and now part of the Ford Foundation-financed spring cycle of American operas, at the N. Y. City Center. Musically there is much vocal appeal, though more than a little confusion in the libretto based on a short story by Elizabeth Enright.

Bucci has assigned to the offstage chorus the "explanation" necessary to understand the second portion. The chorus renders his words in fuzzy wool, leaving the spectator to guess why a very vernacular pair of Americans, lapping up drinks in an atmosphere of marital boredom and hostility, are suddenly involved with three Europeans, one a Scotch island dairy maid, one a 15th Century soldier, another an Italian mother.

Each of the apparitions (Beverly Bowerm, Lee Venora and Richard Cassily) sings richly, but in foreign languages in the midst of a contemporary Yankee situation.

The opera was well received at its premiere despite the sudden switch from wisecracking native realism to heavenly voices concerned with the revival of the dead. The contrasting segments, the one a colloquium between husband and wife, the other metaphysics of ancient flavor is an almost impossible tandem. Yet the work plays and sings, and leaves a net respect for its creator, exceptions noted.

Patricia Neway is especially standout as the sarcastic, but also contrite wife, who prays her husbank back to life after his death by heart attack only to have their bickering resume and the husband (appropriately if unrelievedly hostile as acted and sung by William Newman) have another and irrevocable seizure wasting the miracle.

Arnold Gamson, debuting, conducts with authority and Michael Pollock has staged the production, which involves snow falling outside the skeletal home. Some of the stage "business" was ashew opening night—the Italian praying for her baby to come alive, propping her hands, and, in illusion, dumping the infant upon the enactment of her Miracle.

But on the basis of "Tale For A Deaf Ear," finer and bigger work is to be anticipated from Bucci.

Land.

Trouble in Tahiti

To have the benefit of the Leonard Bernstein name (and his presence in the pit), the N. Y. City Center maestro, Julius Rudel, elected to include this item which was presented some years back as a legit offbeater alongside Tennessee Williams' "27 Wagon Loads of Cotton."

By no stretch is it opera, even opera comique. It is an ironic musical sketch of marital disenchantment. Though poignant, the work is also hokey. Though musical it's essentially Broadway in idiom and emphasis. The title is derived from a movie the heart-sick wife has seen and describes in a bitterly funny soliloquy set to rythm.

As originally enacted in legit by Alice Ghostley, a revue artist, this number was a tour de force. In the performance of Beverly Wolff it is quite effective for openers and for an operatic type singer. Though under strain vocally, Miss Wolff is commended for he performance, under the circumstances. She may well be able to mature the role to greater sureness.

Another debut was the husband role entrusted to David Atkinson, and well sung. Since the requirements of sardonic humor of this sort are very subtle, the limited rehearsals possible at this institution must be taken into account.

Pollock's staging is susceptible to considerable tightening. The property man, for a small detail, handed the handball champ a one-eared loving cup. The use of the "Little White House in Scarsdale" counterpoint on a giant television screen backstage is at some loss of clarity. The mocking trio in the legit version worked on top of the apron, for sharper articulation.

"Tahiti" in its own terms is quite diverting and about as brutal an attack on suburbia and married boredom as has come along in recent years. But it was unfortunate to put it on the same double bill with "Tale For a Deaf Ear," since this meant that bickering couples dominated the evening. The point of view in both "operas" is pretty much the same. So is the humor.

Versatile Leonard Bernstein is. But "Trouble in Tahiti" is a misnomer as American folk opera.

Land.

Lost in the Stars

"Lost In The Stars" ran 273 performances on Broadway in 1950-51, so hardly comes under the head of experiment or untried values. Rather, in the present spring cycle, it qualifies as a revival made worthwhile by the inherent merits of the Kurt Weill music and the Maxwell Anderson adaptation of Alan Paton's South African story, "Cry the Beloved Country."

Jose Quintero has staged the work for mobility on a series of platforms. Suggested "Scenery" flies from overhead and the large cast carries its own props on and offstage. Latter is occasionally awkward, especially when light cues are muffed. It is not an easy production to manage, since individuals weave in and out amidst masses. But the build-up is steady and the net result is stunning.

Accurately billed as a musical tragedy, the story of South African race prejudice and poverty is dominant over the music. Poignant human suffering and pathetic quest of faith and dignity is very moving. The totality of the Weill-Anderson effort stands the test of time.

Singling out credits in so large a cast is peculiarly difficult. There are 31 roles. The major laurel belongs to the tortured father-clergyman played by Lawrence Winters. Irina is beautifully acted and sung by Shirley Carter. The Negroes pace the whites in sheer acting, and all are excellent. Indeed the casting job is a "star" of the event. It is unusually knowing.

Yet why do stagers of operas, especially one so mixed as this between singers and non-singers and between races, not give special attention to the cast of characters as printed? What Law of Moses prevents parenthetic identification being inserted. It was the custom of printed programs of long ago. It had great value to ordinary theatregoers, certainly to reviewers. For example, what is the name of the Negro boy who sings one number at the end? He's first-rate, but it's too easy to give the wrong credit.

Among the actors, three males are architectural in their contributions to the building: Nicholas Joy, Frederick O'Neal and Louis Gosset.

Land.

The Taming of the Shrew

First-timing in Manhattan, "The Taming of the Shrew" proved excitingly scored by Vittorio Giannini and with generally understandable English lyrics by the composer and Dorothy Fee. As staged by Margaret Webster, the story is straight, vigorous, only occasionally stylized and in the process the two loving couples, Petruchio (Walter Cassell) and Katharina (Phylis Curtin), and Lucentio (John Alexander) and Bianca (Sonia Stolin) discharge plenty of audience-satisfying song.

Much more in the operatic tradition than the previous works in the spring cycle, Giannini's music in richly orchestrated, full bodied and well-suited to the telling of the tale. Peter Herman Adler and the N.Y. City Center trenchmen were warmly appreciated at the entre' actes, and it was indeed a major responsibility to carry off so demanding a score.

Land.

Show Out of Town

The Visit

Boston, April 9.

Producers Theatre production of three-act drama by Friedrich Duerrenmatt, adapted by Maurice Valency. Stars Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne. Staged by Peter Brook; decor, Teo Otto; Miss Fontanne's clothes, Castillo; lighting, Paul Morrison. At Shubert Theatre, Boston, April 9, '58; $5.50 top.

Hofbauer	Keneth Thornett
Helmesberger	David Clarke
Wechsler	Milton Selzer
Vogel	Harrison Dowd
Painter	Clarence Nordstrom
Station Master	Joseph Leberman
Burgomaster	Eric Porter
Prof. Muller	Peter Woodthorpe
Pastor	William Hansen
Anton Schill	Alfred Lunt
Claire Zachanassian	Lynn Fontanne
Conductor	Jonathan Anderson
Pedro Cabral	Myles Eason
Bobby	John Wyse
Police Chief	John Randolph
Grandchildren	Lesley Hunt, Lois McKim
Mike	Stanley Erickson
Max	William Thourlby
Blind Men	Vincent Gardenia, Alfred Hoffman
Frau Burgomaster	Frieda Altman
Frau Block	Gertrude Kinnell
Frau Schill	Daphne Newton
Ottilie Schill	Maria Adams
Karl Schill	Ken Walken
Dr. Nusslin	Howard Fischer
Alfredo	James MacArthur
Truck Driver	John Kane
Reporter	Edward Moor
Townsmen	Robert Donley, Kent Montroy

This adaptation of Swiss playwright Freidrich Duerrenmatt's Continental success is a macabre, stimulating drama, rampant with symbolism, about evil begetting evil and greed and corruption destroying a man and a town. It has a simple, relentless story of a redhead who becomes a whore, amasses a fortune and returns to her bankrupt hometown to offer its economic salvation in return for the life of the man who betrayed her in youth.

Lynn Fontanne, as the cigar smoking avenger who keeps a pet black panther, blind musicians, and two American gangsters who transport her in a chair of royal trappings, gives the role an eerie malevolence. Alfred Lunt turns in a tremendous performance as the man who seduced her and bribed witnesses in the bastardy case, but who realizes that he is doomed as his townsfolk begin to turn on him. He runs the gamut from friendly recognition through realization to frantic terror and finally to fatalistic acceptance.

Peter Woodthorpe gives an arresting performance as a professor who crumbles from idealism through corruption. Eric Porter is dominant as the town's head man whose character undergoes a series of changes as town sentiment veers against the victim.

The play opens in an aurora of symbolism with the arrival of Miss Fontanne as the avenging demon at the railroad station with an empty coffin, her slave-carried chair and her musicians, the pair who bore false witness against her and whom she has tracked down and blinded. She offers a fortune to restore the town, which she herself has undermined through the years by buying and shutting down plants, and a large sum to be distributed per capita, but in return she demands the life of her faithless former lover.

If overplayed, this melodrama could turn into hokum, but the staging is just right, the performance is convincing and the show is engrossing.

Guy.

'Young Lady' to Relight Las Palmas Theatre, L.A.

Los Angeles, April 15.

The darkened Las Palmas Theatre has been taken over by Sid Melton and Mike Cazden for their co-production, "There Was a Young Lady," new play by Paul Fenton, who also will stage legiter.

Piece opens next month, with Melton featured.

So They Say

"With ticket prices so high these days, the critics have a big responsibility to see that the people get their money's worth."—Thelma Ritter, star of the Broadway musical, "New Girl in Town," as quoted in Americada, new monthly publication of the American Academy of Dramatic Art, N. Y.

"Off-Broadway should no longer be limited to dreary classics and arty experimental message plays. Audiences downtown have as much right to expect to have fun in the theatre as audiences uptown."—Gus Schirmer Jr., director of the off-Broadway revival of "The Boy Friend," as quoted by Robert Coleman in the N. Y. Mirror.

"The prerequisite of good writing is something to say and a deep-down desire to say it."—Lyricist-producer Oscar Hammerstein 2d, as quoted by Mercury Robbins, in Today's Living magazine.

"Certain plays have pace and style; others drag themselves to destruction. These are enormous intangibles which I believe no critic can have an honest opinion about unless he has read the original script and gone through the tortures of rehearsal and out-of-town tryouts."—John McClain, drama critic of the N.Y. Journal-American.

Show on Broadway

Love Me Little

Alexander H. Cohen presentation of two-act comedy by John G. Fuller, adapted from the Amanda Vail novel of the same title. Staged by Alfred Drake; scenery, Ralph Alswang; costumes, Motley; production associate, Arthur C. Twitchell Jr. Stars Donald Cook, Joan Bennett; features Susan Kohner, Meg Mundy, Robert Dowdell, Joan Hovis, Nicholas Pryor; Dana White. At Helen Hayes Theatre, April 14, '58; $6.90 top.

Emily Whittaker	Susan Kohner
Amy	Joan Hovis
Jean	Sarah Hardy
Nancy	Lin Pierson
Sally	Marlene Cameron
Sue Fosburgh	Avra Petrides
Father	Donald Cook
Mother	Joan Bennett
Laurie Trumbull	Meg Mundy
Lester	Robert Dowdell
Stanley	Hal England
William	Nicholas Pryor
Greg	Dana White

Others: Joseph Cronin, June Deutsch, Marc Vinson.

There's enough physical production for "Love Me Little" to do for a play by S. N. Behrman, let's say, and starring Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. But "Love Me Little" is a slight and foolish antic that merely qualifies as one of the traditional mishaps of Broadway in the spring.

As he's done with other shows, Alexander H. Cohen has given this John G. Fuller adaptation of Amanda Vail's novel a sumptuous production, with elaborate scenery and costumes, two bright stars and an engaging cast. In this case it's even possible that there's more production than an essentially flyweight play can carry.

The basic trouble with "Love Me Little," however, is that it's just not very funny. It has an occasional laugh, although even these sparse rewards are marred by an impression that everyone is trying too hard. When the jokes don't click the effect is apt to be tedious, if not downright uncomfortable.

As anyone who may have skimmed the original book may recall with some effort, "Love Me Little" is a first-person account of a teenage girl's futile attempt to get sex knowledge during a summer vacation at the seashore with her affectionately bickering parents. Although certain details of the novel have been modified for the stage, the critical weakness of the play seems to be in the basic premise and characters.

Where the novelist-father in the original book actually had an affair with the fancy trollop at the summer resort, he merely goes through the motions of being interested in this stage treatment, although his wife carefully leaves the way open for him by taking a couple of days for shopping in town (this vestiginal latter bit is not explained in the dialog, however).

A more severe revision of the dramatization is the girl's attempted seduction of a prudish young Princeton stude during a nude bathing session on the beach. In the play the incident occurs during a boat club dance, and they're both fully dressed. In both cases, the toning-down treatment seems unimportant — the trouble is more basic.

The humor of "Love Me Little" is apparently supposed to lie in two assumptions. One is that the threadbare situation of the eager but awkward sex attempts of a teenage boy would have new humor if the principal were a girl. The other is apparently the inconsistency of the sophisticated novelist's straightlaced attitude regarding his daughter. Perhaps there's also supposed to be mirth in the mother's goodnatured estimate of both her daughter and husband as adolescents, although that has come to be virtually the standard cliche of contemporary domestic comedy.

The casting of the show looks expensive but out-of-balance. The stars, Donald Cook and Joan Bennett, are expert farceurs as well as poised and magnetic stage personalities. But they have secondary roles, so the more skillfully they play and authoritative they appear the more they tend to pull the slight story out of shape. Cook's role is the better of the two, with Miss Bennett having little to do except play a decorative, quietly-amused spouse, a sort of Harriett Hilliard characterization.

The key role of the narrator-heroine is played attractively enough by a Broadway newcomer, Susan Kohner. She's an appealing actress and gives a direct, winning performance. But she naturally cannot substitute youth and a refreshing manner for experience, at least on an equal basis with two such pros as Cook and Miss Bennett.

Of the others, Meg Mundy is understandably defeated by the shallow, unsympathetic role of the predatory summer neighbor, Robert Dowdell does well with the uncomplicated part of the very proper Princetonian, Nicholas Pryor and Hal England are acceptable as adolescent horrors, Dana White is divertingly blase as a selfconsciously of-age lifeguard, Joan Hovis is suitably lively as the heroine's reluctantly innocent roommate and Avra Petrides accents the affectedness of an "experienced" schoolmate.

Alfred Drake's staging stresses the sprightly approach, Ralph Alswang's turntable scenery is practical and handsome, if possibly a bit elaborate for such a small play, and the Motley costumes look stunning enough to knock feminine eyes out.

According to trade scuttlebutt, Amanda Vail, billed as author of the original book, is a pseudonym for Warren Miller, who has also written several other novels. Merely as speculation, perhaps the use of a femme nom-de-plume was to add plausibility to the girl-attitude story.

Hobe.

Dance Review

Les Ballets de Paris

Arthur Lesser presentation of a four-part ballet program starring Jeanmaire, Roland Petit. Features Veronika Mlakar, Dick Sanders, Ariel Auclerc, Jose Ferran, Jane Laoust, Rino Adipietro. Conductor, Marius Constant; scenic effects, Robert Petit. At Broadway Theatre, N.Y., April 7, '58; $6.90 top ($7.50 opening).

There is more consideration for spectacular effect than finess in the new engagement of Les Ballets de Paris at the Broadway Theatre. But life being what it is at the box-office that probably won't hurt at all.

The sizzling "Carmen" of Les Ballets de Paris is still their tour de force. Since the Roland Petit-Jeanmaire collaboration in their dance version of the famous Meilhac-Halevy opera last stood the town on its ear, nothing has happened, not even age, to intrude upon the lustiness of Petit's choreographic concept, or the execution by Jeanmaire and Petit as Carmen and Don Jose.

Three of Petit's new ballets have been introduced into the repertoire for this six-week engagement. The opener is "Contre-Pointe," to the jazz of Marius Constant, before a brightly splotched color backdrop by Poliakoff. It is chiefly a modern idiom acrobatic exercise. Although it has humor, it is too often disappointing in its failure to match the incisiveness of the score.

"La Rose des Vents" (program-translated as "The Weather Vane") concerns a mermaid doomed to be a seaport cafe waitress until a handsome sailor who has a mermaid tattoed on his chest falls in love with her and returns her to the sea. Darius Milhaud's music is as innocuous as the libretto, so that the chief advantage of this demurely unimportant tale is the opportunity it gives ballerina Jeanmaire, exuberantly supported by Petit, to exploit her happy gift for pantomimic characterization.

"La Dame Dans la Lune" is a play to the gallery, a dance whose form is dictated to show off talent. Against the witty box-like decor of Edouard Dermite, to Jean Francaix' sprightly musical conception, this ballet is replete with Gallic insouciance. After much hocus pocus of harlequinry, magician, butterflies and long-necked birds, it ends up with a can-can as only the French can can-can. It is the evening's peak for the corps de ballet and anybody who can see this can-can can't see a better.

But primarily it's "Carmen," which in this company, by definition, is Jeanmaire, with a noble lift from her choreographer-partner-producer-husband, Roland Petit. The story's impassioned essence is splendidly captured in swift, sharp vignettes, it is powerfully choreographed for tart emotion, and Mr. & Mrs. Petit trip it exquisitely together. Ballerinas are frequently known for a particular role, and it would be hard to dissociate Jeanmaire from this Carmen, for she is the witch, the coquette, the minx, the careless lover even in face of death.

Les Ballets de Paris offer showy theatre. The occasional lack of precision and inspiration may well be due to recruiting of personnel for a tour rather than the building up of a company. Among the support, however, Dick Sanders, Ariel Auclerc, Veronika Mlakar and dervish-like Jane Laoust give promising account of themselves.

Geor.

Regional Theatres Eye Tryouts; Now Dishing Up Wide Play Diet

Production activity on the university and community theatre level is taking on a broader scope.

The selection of plays is becoming more diversified than in past years, with increased presentations of largescale productions such as musicals and Shakespearean plays a contributing factor. And, in one area a project has been launched to promote the production of new plays.

The move to increase tryout presentations is being made by the South Eastern Theatre Conference. Thus far, 40 SETC member theatres have promised a combined total of approximately 150 performances for an unproduced property to be selected by a New Plays Committee, preferably by established authors. The number of participating theatres, which takes in a potential audience of 12,000-15,000, is expected double by the end of the year.

The project is scheduled to get underway next fall, with several scripts already under consideration. The Conference will handle all negotiations for its member theatres, in addition to other details such as taking care of packaging requirements, when necessary, and supplying publicity material.

Meanwhile, B. M. Hobgood, SETC executive secretary and editor of the Southern Theatre News, reports in the latter publication the result of a survey of produc-

(Continued on page 61)

George Freedley Cites Revival of 'Quarters'; Rodgers Adds 'First 50'

New York.

Editor, VARIETY:

Have just read the very interesting little piece on the two- and one-charcter plays and should like to add a little information from our files. "Close Quarters" by Gilbert Lennox, adapted from "Attentat" by W. O. Somin, was produced at the Golden Theatre, New York, March 6, 1939 [four years after London] and ran for eight performances with Eleana Miramova and Lee Chalzel. (VARIETY indicated that the Princeton break-in with Gladys Cooper and Philip Merivale had closed out-of-town and never came to Broadway, which of course, was true so far as the original U.S. stars were concerned in 1937.)

The English production (1935) of "Close Quarters" continued beyond the two weeks at the Embassy and moved to the Theatre Royal Haymarket in July, 1935. (The roles were created abroad by Oscar Homolka and Flora Robson—Ed.).

There has been a previous one-character play. It was "Courtesan" by Irving Kaye Davis, produced by Joseph Leone at the President Theatre, New York, April 29, 1930 for three performances with Elsa Shelley. It was reputedly based on the life of Isadora Duncan.

George Freedley
(Curator, Theatre Collection, N. Y. Public Library)

Also 'First Fifty Years'

Composer-producer Richard Rodgers recalls still another two-character play, "The First Fifty Years," a drama by Henry Myers, produced by the late lyricist Lorenz Hart (Rodgers' song writing partner) and Irving Strouse at the Princess Theatre (later Labor Stage and since razed), March 13, 1922, and played 48 performances. The cast consisted of Tom Powers and Clare Eames.

Howard Da Silva Will Join Chagrin Falls, O.

Cleveland, April 15.

Howard Da Silva will be director at the Chagrin Falls strawhatter this year. He'll stage six shows during the scheduled 12-week season, beginning early in June. The barn, which has been in operation two years, is on the outskirts of Cleveland.

Mrs. Jean Weinberger, wife of a local restaurateur and nitery owner, is managing director of the operation, which will employ an Equity resident company. Da Silva, incidentally, appeared on Broadway earlier this season in "Compulsion."

Mull German-Language Legit Group in Canada

Ottawa, April 15.

Canada may get a German-language theatre, but the location is uncertain. Because the 200,000-odd German immigrant and German-descent population is scattered in several major Canadian cities, the project may have to take the form of a traveling repertory company. The idea would be to vary the German language performances with a few German plays in English.

The project is being considered by Martin Schramm, who arrived in Canada last week with his wife. They'll visit their daughter in Saskatoon before deciding where to locate permanently. Schramm, 57, was for 30 years director of the Hamburg State Opera.

'Mame' to Coast, Roz to Return?

The Broadway production of "Auntie Mame" is tentatively slated to move May 31 to the Coast, with Rosalind Russell returning as star for the Los Angeles and San Francisco engagements. Greer Garson, currently starring in the show, is to withdraw when her contract expires, instead of continuing through June and perhaps into the summer on two-for-ones.

A separate Coast company, starring Eve Arden, had previously been mentioned as a prospect, but that would obviously be scrapped if the plan involving Miss Russell materializes.

ROBESON INTO CHURCH AFTER VETERANS' VETO

Pittsburgh, April 15.

Paul Robeson's concert here will come off next Monday (21) as scheduled but at the Central Baptist Church, in the Harlem district of Pittsburgh, and not at Soldiers & Sailors Memorial Hall. Lee Matthews, promoting the singer's local appearance for a charity organization, had originally contracted for the Soldiers & Sailors auditorium, only to be requested by the building's superintendent, Gilbert C. Cloonan, to return the lease on the grounds that "his (Robeson's) pro-Communist views would not be compatible with the memorial character of the hall."

Rev. Cornell Talley, pastor of Central Baptist, was next contacted by Matthews and he referred the request to the parish board of the 2,100-seat church. They okayed it as "a service to an artist" and said there were no political implications whatsoever.

Earlier Dr. Charles R. Gorman, of St. Matthews AME Zion Church in nearby Sewickley, had offered his church for the concert but the Central Baptist was picked because of its bigger capacity and more central location.

Nouveau Monde Troupe Has Busy Summer Sked

Montreal's French-Canadian legit company, Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde, has a busy sked lined up for the next few months. The group, which will put in two weeks at the Phoenix Theatre, N. Y., beginning April 29, will follow that stand with an appearance at the Brussels International Trade Fair.

After the overseas date, the company is scheduled to return to Canada for an Aug. 18-30 booking at the Stratford (Ont.) Shakespearean Festival. The latter presentation will be Moliere's "Le Malade Imaginaire," which the group will also present during its first week at the Phoenix. The second week's offering at the N. Y. house will be a program of three Moliere farces.

The company's Brussels offering will be "The Time of Lilacs," by Montreal playwright Marcel Dube.

Still a Local Boy

Mason City, Ia., April 15.

The State of Iowa may be backward in failing to name "The Music Man" as the official entertainment of the commonwealth, but Mason City is doing its part in publicizing the Broadway musical and its author - composer, Meredith Willson.

The local Chamber of Commerce is mailing its correspondence in envelopes on which is printed a boxed statement, "Home Town of Meredith Willson, "The Music Man."

N.Y.-London Production Group to Be 'Creative' A La The Playwrights

Breakthrough Production, recently formed to present shows on Broadway and in London, is apparently a sort of latter-day Playwrights Co. That is, its ostensible function is to accent the "creative" phase of legit producing, as the Playwrights sought to do when it was set up in 1938.

The initial venture for Breakthrough is to be a Broadway production of William Faulkner's "Requiem for a Nun," with Rush Ford and Zachary Scott costarring in the roles they played last fall in London. The firm also may partner with Broadway producer Roger L. Stevens in the U. S. presentation of a musical version of Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock."

Associated in the Breakthrough venture are John Osborne, British author of "Look Back in Anger" and "The Entertainer"; British stagers Tony Richardson and George Devine; Victor Samrock, general manager of the Playwrights Co., and Harry Saltzman, a U. S. promoter of various show biz operations. Authors' agent Harold Freedman, who represents Osborne, is also a sort of godfather to the setup, but is understood to be not financially interested.

The group reportedly plans to raise $250,000 capital for its initial season, starting with the production next fall of "Requiem for a Nun." Presumably the coin would also cover the next one or two Broadway presentations, after which the firm's own bankroll would be used or new financing would be sought.

In addition to "Requiem" and the O'Casey musical, Breakthrough is tentatively planning Broadway productions of a musical version of Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage," adapted by Sam and Bella Spewack with songs by Richard Adler, and a play of undisclosed authorship, titled "The Balcony."

Samrock, who will be partnered in the Breakthrough setup, denies a report from London that he intends resigning as general manager of the Playwrights, pointing out that Richardson and Devine will also continue their association with the English Stage Co.

Delay Denver Tunetent Debut Until Next Year

Denver, April 15.

Plans for a musical tent here this summer have been postponed until next year. Although the project is well under way, with purchase of a 16-acre site, it was felt that it's getting too late to have the operation fully ready for this year.

Another consideration, presented with some urgency by local officials, is that it might be advantageous to launch the tunetent more or less simultaneously with next year's Gold Rush Centennial. Also, it's expected that the scheduled completion next spring of a new super-highway near the showtent will help the legit project.

Mary Chase, author of "Harvey" and "Mrs. McThing," is heading the tunetent venture, with the assistance of Ben Segal, general manager of similar operations at Wallingford, Conn., and Warwick, R. I.

Legit-tv pressagent Arthur Cantor will become a Broadway producer with the presentation next fall of "The Dybbuk From Woodhaven" (tentative title), a comedy-drama by Paddy Chayefsky. Project is already financed.

ATPAM Prez, Business Agent Posts Shaping Up As Election Battles

Toledo Summer Season Depends on 15G Fund

Toledo, April 15.

Toledo may have a summer theatre season after all. Arthur Lithgow, who was managing director of the Shakespeare Festivals in previous seasons, plans to present an eight-week series of shows, provided he can obtain financing.

Through Festival Theatre Associates, he is trying to raise $15,000 in units of $10. The idea is to have a resident Equity company opening July 9 and playing through Aug. 31. Associated in the project is David W. Hooks.

Abbott Will Get 20% 'Drink' Net

George Abbott will get a healthy slice of the profits, if any, on the projected Broadway production of "Drink to Me Only." As director and nominal producer of the comedy, which George Ross is planning to present in association with John Robert Lloyd, Abbott is to receive 20% of the net profits, in addition to a $5,000 fee and 2% of the weekly gross.

The balance of the net profits on the venture will be divided evenly between the management and the backers, which means a 40% split for each. The project is being capitalized at $100,000, sans an overcall provision. An Oct. 8 Broadway opening is contemplated and the weekly operating cost is figured at around $15,500.

Abram Ginnes and Ira Wallach, co-authors of the play, have a basic Dramatists Guild contract calling for them to share in the weekly gross at the rate of 5% of the first $5,000, 7½% of the next $2,000 and 10% of the receipts in excess of $7,000. Ross, as general partner of the enterprise, is to get a producer's fee of $250 weekly in addition to $250 office expense until the cost of production is recouped. If more than one company is mounted, the same stipulation will hold.

Abbott got 10% of the profits of "Pajama Game" and "Damn Yankees," besides his regular fee and royalty as director. Neither of those musicals was billed as his "production," however.

SET OFF-B'WAY SHOW AT CHI UNIV. THEATRE

Chicago, April 15.

Chicago Univ. Theatre is making a pitch for short bookings of off-Broadway shows, starting May 22 with the original Cherry Lane company of "Endgame." Samuel Becket drama is in for four performances, with two evening shows Saturday (24).

It's understood "Endgame" on a percentage deal in the 1,000-seat Mandell Hall which can gross $7,000-$8,000 at $2.50 and $2, with a rakeoff to faculty and students. Profits, if any, will go to the theatre's summer operation.

It's the first time in the UT's 58 year history that it has brought in a New York show. In recent years, UT sponsored a pair of shows at Mandell Hall by local repertory companies, including last year's Goodman Theatre production of Beckett's "Waiting for Godot."

Frances Hyland Set For Stratford Return

Stratford, Ont., April 15.

Frances Hyland is not withdrawing from the upcoming Shakespearean Festival season here, as recently announced. The actress will appear in "The Winter's Tale," one of the two plays in which she was originally scheduled to perform.

Miss Hyland, who's featured in the Broadway production of "Look Homeward, Angel," is slated to leave the cast this month because of approaching motherhood.

Another election battle is brewing in the Assn. of Theatrical Press Agents & Managers. Hal Olver has indicated that he won't run for re-election as business agent, but will be a candidate for president. It's expected there will be wide-open contests for the two offices.

Olver reportedly has voiced dissatisfaction with the union's board and is campaigning for a more aggressive governing body. Meanwhile, a faction in the union has been trying to get Sol Jacobson to run for president. He's refused, but indications are that an attempt will be made to draft him.

The Jacobson movement is unusual in that he's a pressagent and the president has traditionally been a manager. However, it's understood that Jacobson's supporters include a number of managers. If Jacobson does accept the nomination, it's also understood the pressagents would concede the office of vice-president to someone from the managers group. That post has traditionally been held by a publicist.

William Fields who beat out Oliver M. Saylor in the veepee race last year, reportedly will not run for re-election. The other incumbent executives are Saul Abraham, president, and Milton Weintraub, secretary-treasurer. Incidentally, Olver is supporting Joe Moss as his successor as business agent.

The nomination of candidates is to be held at the ATPAM meeting in New York tomorrow (Thurs.).

Hard Times Will Come A-Knockin' for Actors, British Equity Warns

London, April 15.

A warning of a more difficult period ahead is made in the 27th annual report of British Actors' Equity. In this period, it is suggested, members' loyalty is likely to be sorely tried.

The introduction to the annual report points out that Equity cannot insulate itself from the general economic problems of society. "Inflation is with us and getting worse and the public, hard-pressed by rising prices, has less money to spend on entertainment," the statement observes.

The struggle for members to maintain their living standards would become harder, the report indicates. "Far from improving our position," it's noted, "we have to run as fast as we can in order to stay in the same place."

The Council urges members to strengthen their organization "in every way possible so that they may be equipped to tackle a very difficult period. The report notes that a total of 103 live theatres have gone dark in recent years and there is no evidence that the process has been halted.

Is This a Legit Plug Or Rap at Soviet TV?

Washington, April 15.

Television hasn't hurt the legit theatre in Russia, nor is it likely to, according to an article in the current issue of USSR Illustrated Monthly, published by reciprocal agreement between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

During the season starting last fall, writes Alexei Morov, the Soviet Theatre staged 977 plays by contemporary authors and 378 classics. Including musicals and puppet shows, the total comes to 3,541.

The theatre, says Morov, is "immensely popular" in Russia, the average house staging five or six new productions a season and some putting on as many as 20 plays, including hits of former seasons. Nation has 508 "professional" theatres, writer notes, with productions in "every one" of the 40 languages spoken in the Soviet.

Although receiving a government subsidy, Morov says the Soviet theatre generally pays its way. The subsidy "is used large to stage particularly expensive productions, to finance guest performances of entire companies and, most important, to sell tickets at a price to meet anybody's pocketbook."

B'way Brisk; Hayes-Healy $42,200, Holliday $58,800, 'Darling' $49,500, 'Time' 35G, 'Romanoff' 29G; 'Fair' 16G

Broadway was snappy last week, with business jumping substantially for practically all shows. Receipts took a sharp decline for only two shows, which had climbed the previous frame.

There were 23 Main Stem entries, of which eight were in the capacity groove. Holdovers in that category from the prior stanza were "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," "Look Homeward, Angel," "Music Man," "My Fair Lady," "Sunrise at Campobello" and "Two for the Seesaw." "Bells Are Ringing" rejoined the lineup after being out for some time, and "Say, Darling" went clean on its first full frame.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% City tax, but grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Auntie Mame, Broadhurst (C) (70th wk; 549 p) ($6.90; 1,214; $46,500) (Greer Garson). Previous week, $43,200; last week, over $46,200.

Back to Methusaleh, Ambassador (C) (3d wk; 21 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 1,155; $36,200) (Tyrone Power). Previous week, $14,800; last week, over $17,000. Closes next Saturday (19).

Bells Are Ringing, Shubert (MC) (72d wk; 572 p) ($8.05; 1,453; $58,101) (Judy Holliday). Previous week, $55,800; last week, almost $58,800. Performances will be suspended July 21-Aug. 9.

Blue Denim, Playhouse (D) (7th wk; 52 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 996; $31,500). Previous week, $17,600; last week, nearly $18,900.

Dark At the Top of the Stairs, Music Box (D) (19th wk; 148 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 1,010; $33,000). Previous week, $34,029; last week, over $33,400, with parties.

Entertainer, Royale (CD) (9th wk; 65 p) ($7.50; 1,050; $43,500) (Laurence Oliver). Previous week, $43,000; last week, nearly $13,600 for three performances.

Fair Game, Longacre (C) (23d wk; 185 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 1,101; $32,000) (Sam Levene). Previous week, $12,100; last week, almost $16,000.

Jamaica, Imperial (MC) (24th wk; 188 p) ($8.35; 1,427; $63,000) (Lena Horne, Ricardo Montalban). Previous week, $51,100; last week, almost $52,500. Performances will be suspended June 30-Aug. 9.

Li'l Abner, St. James (MC) (74th wk; 588 p) ($8.05; 1,614; $58,100). Previous week, $34,200; last week, over $42,300. Went on twofers last Sunday (13).

Look Back in Anger, Golden (D) (28th wk; 223 p) ($5.75; 800; $25,152). Previous week, $14,400; last week, over $16,200.

Look Homeward Angel, Barrymore (D) (20th wk; 156 p) ($6.90; 1,076; $40,716) (Anthony Perkins). Previous week, $41,400; last week, almost $41,200.

Music Man, Majestic (MC) (17th wk; 132 p) ($8.05; 1,626; $68,658) (Robert Preston). Previous week, $69,400; last week, same.

My Fair Lady, Hellinger (MC) (109th wk; 867 p) ($8.05; 1,551; $68,210). Steady at $69,200. Show is selling 20 balcony seats at each performance to students at 70 cents a ticket.

New Girl in Town, 46th St. (MD) (48th wk; 383 p) ($8.06-$9.20; 1,297; $59,085) (Thelma Ritter). Previous week, $32,200 on twofers; last week, over $35,200 on twofers.

Oh Captain, Alvin (MC) (10th wk; 79 p) ($8.35-$9.20; 1,331; $60,000). Previous week, $56,500, with parties; last week, almost $58,700, with parties.

Romanoff and Juliet, Plymouth (C) (27th wk; 212 p) ($5.75-$6.25; 1,062; $36,625) (Peter Ustinov). Previous week, $26,100; last week, nearly $29,000.

Rope Dancers, Miller's (D) (21st wk; 165 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 944; $27,850) (Siobhan McKenna, Art Carney). Previous week, $11,600 on twofers; last week, almost $14,000 on twofers. Closes May 3.

Say, Darling, ANTA (MC) (2d wk; 12 p) ($7.50; 1,185; $50,460) (David Wayne, Vivian Blaine). Previous week, $36,000 for first four performances and two previews; last week, nearly $49,500, with parties.

Sunrise at Campobello, Cort (D) (11th wk; 84 p) ($6.90; 1,155; $36,000) (Ralph Bellamy). Previous week, $35,900, with parties; last week, almost $36,600.

Time Remembered, Morosco (C) (22d wk; 175 p) ($9.60; 946; $43,000) (Helen Hayes, Richard Burton). Previous week, $40,500; last week, over $35,000.

Two for the Seesaw, Booth (CD) (13th wk; 100 p) ($6.90; 780; $31,700) (Henry Fonda). Previous week, $32,165; last week, almost $32,100.

West Side Story, Winter Garden (MD) (29th wk; 228 p) ($8.05; 1,404; $63,203). Previous week, $56,600; last week, nearly $51,600.

Who Was That Lady I Saw You With?, Beck (C) (6th wk; 48 p) ($6.90; 1,280; $47,000) (Peter Lind Hayes, Mary Healy). Previous week, $35,900; last week, almost $42,200.

Miscellaneous

Stratford Festival Co., Phoenix (C) (4th wk; 32 p) ($4.60; 1,150; $29,382). Previous week, $5,000 for eight performances, split evenly between "Broken Jug" and "Verona"; last week, around $6,000 for eight performances of "Jug." "Verona," the sole offering this week, wraps up the run next Sunday (20).

Opening This Week

Love Me Little, Hayes (C) ($6.90; 1,039; $30,000) (Donald Cook, Joan Bennett). Alexander H. Cohen presentation of play by John G. Fuller, adapted from novel by Amanda Vail; opened Monday night (14) to six pans (Atkinson, Times; Coleman, Mirror; Kerr, Herald-Tribune; McClain, Journal-American; Watt, News; Watts, Post) and one inconclusive (Aston, World-Telegram).

Off-Broadway Shows

Ardele, Cricket (4-8-58).

Asmodee, Theatre 74 (3-25-58).

Blood Wedding, Actors Playhouse (3-31-58).

Boy Friend, Downtown (1-25-58); moves April 29 to the Cherry Lane Theatre.

Brothers Karamazov, Gate (12-6-57).

Children of Darkness, Circle in the Square (2-28-58).

Clerambard, Rooftop (11-7-57); closes April 26.

Crucible, Martinique (3-11-58).

Dark of the Moon, Carnegie Playhouse (2-26-58).

Endgame, Cherry Lane (1-28-58); closes April 27.

Fools Are Passing Through, Jan Hus (4-2-58).

Garden District, York (1-7-58).

Threepenny Opera, de Lys (9-25-55).

CLOSED LAST WEEK

Bed Time, Royal (4-10-58).

Courageous One, Greenwich Mews (1-20-58).

PROFESSIONAL CARDS HONORED
Theatrical and TV Make Up • All Leading Cosmetic Lines • Imported & Domestic Perfumes • Distinctive Fountain Service.
FREE DELIVERY OPEN SUNDAYS
"The Drug Store of the Stars"
HADLEY REXALL DRUGS
1181 6th Ave., Cor. 46 St., NEW YORK
Telephone PLaza 7-0023

Pirandello's 'Characters' Off-B'way on 6G Budget

A revival of Luigi Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author" is planned for off-Broadway presentation on a $6,000 budget. At little more than one-third of that amount, $2,060, involves pre-production advertising and promotion costs.

The production is contemplated by Arnold Ducane for the 250-seat Greek Art Theatre, N.Y.

LAUGHTON-LANCHESTER IN EDINBURGH TRYOUT

Edinburgh, April 15.

"The Party," by Jane Arden, will open April 30 for a tryout at the Lyceum Theatre here, with Charles Laughton directing and starring. Elsa Lanchester (Mrs. Laughton) is in the cast.

After six performances here, play will go into London.

Al Fresco Shakespeare Season at Boulder, Colo.

Boulder, Col., April 15.

"Shakespeare Under the Stars" festival will be launched here this summer by the Univ. of Colorado. The productions will be presented at the Mary Rippon Theatre, with the initial repertory program taking in "Hamlet," "Julius Caesar" and "Taming of the Shrew."

The sked for the initial season covers two weeks from Aug. 2-16. J. H. Crouch is executive director of the operation.

Touring Shows

(April 14-27)

Auntie Mame (2d Co.)—Mem. Aud., L'ville (14-19); Victory, Dayton (21-26).

Auntie Mame (3d Co.)—Shakespeare Festival, Stratford, Conn. (19); Proctor's, Schenectady (20-22); Loew's State, Syracuse (23); Stanley, Utica (24); Veterans Mem. Aud., Providence (25-26).

Cat on a Hot Tin Roof—Aud., Beaumont (14); Aud., Houston (15); Aud., San Antonio (16); Fair Park Aud., Dallas (17-20); Liberty Hall, El Paso (22-23); Civic Aud., Albuquerque (24); Sports Palace, Tucson (25); H.S. Aud., Phoenix (26).

Damn Yankees—Ellis Aud., Memphis (14-19); Robinson Mem. Aud., Little Rock (17-19); Municipal Aud., Shreveport (21-22); Music Hall, Houston (23-26).

Diary of Anne Frank—Wilbur, Boston (14-26).

Firstborn (tryout)—Colonial, Boston, (14-26).

Happiest Millionaire—WRVA, Richmond (14-15); Owens Aud., Charlotte (16); Temple, Birmingham (17-19); Civic, New Orleans (21-26).

Jane Eyre (tryout)—Shubert, Wash. (16-26).

Long Day's Journey Into Night—Geary, S.F. (14-26).

Marcel Marceau—Royal Alexandra, Toronto (14-19); Shubert, Det. (20-26).

Most Happy Fella—Victoria, K.C. (14-17); Curran, S.F. (21-26).

My Fair Lady (2d Co.)—Shubert, Chi (14-26).

No Time for Sergeants (N.Y. Co.)—Public Aud., Portland (15-16); Temple, Tacoma (17); Capitol, Yacama (18); Coliseum, Spokane (19); Moore, Seattle (21-26).

No Time for Sergeants (Nat'l Co.)—National, Wash. (14-26).

Tunnel of Love (Coast Co.)—Hartford, L.A. (14-26).

Visit (tryout)—Shubert, Boston (14-19); Shubert, New Haven (21-26).

Visit to a Small Planet—Harris, Chi (14-26).

British Shows

(Figures denote opening dates)

LONDON

Any Other Biz, Westminster (4-10-58).
At Drop of Hat, Fortune (1-24-57).
Bells Ringing, Coliseum (11-14-57).
Beth, Apollo (3-20-58).
Breath of Spring, Cambridge (3-26-58).
Boy Friend, Wyndham's (12-1-53).
Bride & Bachelor, Duchess (12-19-56).
Cat on Hot Tin Roof, Comedy (1-30-58).
Dear Delinquent, Aldwych (6-5-57).
Dinner With Family, New (12-10-57).
Flowering Cherry, Haymarket (11-21-57).
Free As Air, Savoy (6-6-57).
Grab Me a Gondola, Lyric (12-26-56).
Iceman Cometh, Wint. Gard. (3-29-58).
Kidders, St. Martin's (3-18-58).
Lysistrata, York's (2-18-58).
Mousetrap, Ambassadors (11-25-52).
New Crazy Gang, Vic. Pal. (12-18-56).
Not in the Book, Criterion (4-2-58).
Plaisirs De Paris, Wales (4-20-57).
Potting Shed, Globe (2-5-58).
Rape of Belt, Picadilly (12-12-57).
Repertory, Old Vic (9-18-57).
Roar Like a Dove, Phoenix (9-25-57).
Salad Days, Vaudeville (8-5-54).
Share My Lettuce, Garrick (9-25-57).
Simple Spyman, Whitehall (3-19-58).
Touch of Sun, Saville (1-31-58).
Tunnel of Love, Majesty's (12-3-57).
Where's Charley, Palace (2-20-58).
Transferred.

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Brass Butterfly, Strand (4-17-58).
Expresso Bongo, Saville (4-23-58).
Duel of Angels, Apollo (4-24-58).
My Fair Lady, Drury Lane (4-30-58).

CLOSED LAST WEEK

Touch It Light, Strand (2-27-58).

SCHEDULED N.Y. OPENINGS

BROADWAY
(Theatres Set)

Firstborn, Coronet (4-29-58).
Jane Eyre, Belasco (5-1-58).
Visit, Lunt-Fontanne (5-5-58).

OFF-BROADWAY

Child Morning, Blackfriars (4-21-58).
Enchanted, Renata (4-22-58).
One-Act Musicals, Sullivan St. (4-23-58).
Playboy West'n World, 7 Arts (4-28-58).
Nouveau Monde, Phoenix (4-29-58).
Bonds Interest, Sheridan Sq. (5-7-58).
Sign of Winter, Theatre 74 (5-7-58).
Shaw Series, Downtown (5-12-58).
Judge, Theatre Marquee (5-13-58).
Comic Strip, Barbizon Plaza (5-14-58).
Sat. Night Kid, Provincetown (5-15-58).

Road Perks; Lunts $29,200 (6); Hub; Cornell-Quayle $24,300 in Toronto; 'Journey' 18G (7), S.F.; 'Fella' 32G, St.L.

The road rebounded last week from the Holy Week-Passover sag of the previous stanza. There were 15 shows on tour, with two each in Boston and Chicago.

Of the pre-Broadway tryouts, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne drew personal raves in Boston, but their Swiss-authored vehicle, "The Visit," proved to be cynical and unappetizing to the critics. Katharine Cornell and Anthony Quayle had a passable-gross week in Toronto.

Business is expected to taper off a bit for most tourers this week, and is due to decline fairly steadily through the rest of the spring period.

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification indicates Tryout. Also, prices on touring shows includes 10% Federal tax and local tax, if any; but as an Broadway, grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

BOSTON

Diary of Anne Frank, Wilbur (D) (1st wk) ($4.95); 1,241; $32,699) (Francis Lederer). Drew unanimous raves (Doyle, American; Durgin, Globe; Hughes, Herald; Maloney, Traveler; Melvin, Monitor; Norton, Post). Grossed almost $22,900 on subscription. Previous week, $18,000 at Shubert, New Haven.

Visit, Shubert (D-T) (1st wk) ($5.50-$4.95; 1,717; $52,000) (Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne). Opened Wednesday (10) to four favorable reviews (Durgin, Globe; Hughes, Herald; Maloney, Traveler; Melvin, Monitor), one yes-no (Norton, Record) and one no-opinion (Doyle, American). Grossed $29,200 in the first six performances.

CHICAGO

My Fair Lady, Shubert (MC) (23d wk) ($7; 2,100; $72,979) (Brian Aherne). Nearly $71,300. Previous week, $72,400.

Visit to a Small Planet, Harris (C) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,096; $39,000) (Cyril Ritchard). Almost $19,300 on subscription. Previous week, $17,500.

TORONTO

Firstborn, Royal Alexandra (D-T) (single wk) ($5.50; 1,525; $42,000) (Katharine Cornell). Over $24,300. Previous week, $24,000 at Hanna, Cleveland.

SAN FRANCISCO

Long Day's Journey Into Night, Geary (D) (1st wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,550; $42,000) (Fay Bainter). Nearly $18,000 in seven performances, on subscription. Previous week, $12,500 in three performances, at Aud., Denver.

WASHINGTON

No Time for Sergeants, National (3d wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,667; $39,500). Nearly $31,900. Previous week, $36,800 on subscription.

CINCINNATI

Auntie Mame (2d Co.), Shubert Theatre (C) (2d wk) ($5.09-$4.52; 2,000; $58,000) (Constance Bennett). Nearly $43,400. Previous week, $38,000.

ST. LOUIS

Most Happy Fella, American (MD) (single wk) ($6; 1,513; $47,000). Over $32,000. Previous week, $33,700 at Lyceum, Minneapolis.

PHILADELPHIA

Happiest Millionaire, Forrest (C) (2d wk) ($4.80-$4.40; 1,700; ($44,042) (Walter Pidgeon). Nearly $14,000. Previous week, $10,400.

LOS ANGELES

Tunnel of Love, Hartford (C) (1st wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,024; $29,600). Almost $19,800 on subscription. Previous week, gross not reported.

NEW ORLEANS

Damn Yankees, Munic. Aud. (MC). Over $34,900 for final eight performances. Previous week, $24,000 in four-performance split.

MONTREAL

Marcel Marceau, Her Majesty's (Panto.) (single wk) ($3.75; 1,704; $25,000). Nearly $13,800. Previous week, gross not reported.

SPLIT-WEEKS

Cat on a Hot Tin Roof (D) (Victor Jory). Totaled nearly $17,000 in six performances, as follows: single, Monday (7), Conv. Hall, Enid, Okla.; three Tuesday-Wednesday (8-9), Rogers Mem. Aud., Ft. Worth; single, Thursday (10), Munic. Aud., Amarillo, Tex.; single, Friday (11), Aud., Lubbock, Tex., and two, Saturday (12), Mem. Aud. Wichita Falls. Previous week, $20,000 in seven-performance split.

No Time for Sergeants (C). Totaled almost $30,800 in seven performances, as follows: two, Monday-Tuesday (7-8), Russ Aud., San Diego, $10,300; single, Wednesday (9), Granada, Santa Barbara, $5,000; single, Thursday (10), Harvey Aud., Bakersfield, $3,000; single, Friday (11), Civic Aud., Fresno, $6,000; two, Saturday (12), Civic Aud., Sacramento, $6,500. Previous week, $11,900 in four-performance split.

Stock Items

Selma Lynch has joined the Gloria Safier agency to produce and package summer theatre plays and musicals.

Robert Weiner, whose production of "No Time for Sergeants" began a stock tour last Monday night (7) at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Milburn, N. J., will launch another edition of the comedy May 29 at the Valley Forge (Pa.) Music Fair.

Gypsy Rose Lee will play the Ethel Merman role in a stock tour of "Happy Hunting."

The Finger Lakes Lyric Circus, Skaneateles, N. Y., has succeeded in a campaign to secure local support for a reopening next summer.

Jane Kean will costar with Johnny Ray in the Kansas City Starlight Theatre production of "Kiss Me, Kate."

John Houseman will direct the production of "Hamlet" at the American Shakespeare Festival, Stratford, Conn., this summer.

William Hunt's Red Barn Theatre, Northport, L. I., begins its sixth season June 10.

Leslie J. Mahoney has been appointed production director of the Peterborough (N.H.) Players, which goes into its 25th season July 2. Mrs. Edith Bond Sterns is producer and managing director of the operation.

Sidney Blackmer will tour the strawhat circuit in "Inherit the Wind" in a production to be packaged by Stevston Productions, headed by Leon Stevons and Joseph Brownstone.

Curt Conway, who was Edward G. Robinson's standby during the New York run of "Middle of the Night" and director of the touring edition of the show, will produce two packages of the Paddy Chayefsky play this summer, which will be booked by the Stage and Arena Guild of America.

BOWLING ALLEY IN MANHATTAN

- Syndicate for investment now forming
- Experienced management
- Exceptionally high return
- Completely modern, including 32 automatic lanes

SIDNEY LEVINE
565 5th Ave., New York, OX 7-7636

MUSICAL TENT PRODUCERS
IN NEED OF A DESIGNER

Experienced designer will prepare designs specifically for your stage and production complete in every detail — easily executed by your technician and painter.
Excellent background, experience, and references.
For information or appointment call GR 3-0047 or write to HAL SHAFER
63 E. 11th St., New York

Shows Abroad

Variation on a Theme

Glasgow, April 10.

H. M. Tennent Ltd. presentation of two-act drama by Terence Rattigan. Stars Margaret Leighton; features Tim Seely, Jean Anderson, Michael Goodliffe, George Pravda. Staged by John Gielgud; setting, Paul Anstee. At King's Theatre, Glasgow, April 7, '58; $1.20 top.

Rose ..... Margaret Leighton
Hettie ..... Jean Anderson
Ron ..... Tim Seely
Kurt ..... George Pravda
Fiona ..... Felicity Ross
Mona ..... Mavis Villiers
Adrian ..... Lawrence Dalzell
Sam ..... Michael Goodliffe

Terence Rattigan's new play, trying out here prior to London, is set in a luxurious villa in the south of France near Cannes. It is a variation of the Camille story, overwritten to point of boredom.

Margaret Leighton plays an earthy, wealthy English ex-secretary-typist who has acquired wealth in the course of having four rich husbands. She has a Scot aristocrat's daughter as companion-maidservant.

The femme fatale's current admirer is an arrogant German tycoon, but she throws him for a young ballet dancer type who after posing as a Continental, turns out to be native of the heroine's hometown, Birmingham.

Miss Leighton is visually striking and dramatically impressive as the mature heroine and there are capable supporting performances by Tim Seely as the young lover, Michael Goodliffe as his friend, Jean Anderson as the paid companion, George Pravda as the German suitor and Felicity Ross as the siren's daughter.

John Gielgud's direction is immaculate, Paul Anstee's setting is a standout and the costumes should have special distaff interest.

Gord.

The Brass Butterfly

Glasgow, April 4.

Merlith Productions Ltd (in association with E. P. Clift & Jack Minster) presentation of three-act comedy by William Golding. Staged by Alastair Sim; setting, Edward Seago; costumes, Hutchinson Scott; music and effects, Cedric Thorpe Davie and Howard Ferguson. Stars Alastair Sim. At Alhambra Theatre, Glasgow, April 1, '58; $1.30 top.

Mamilius ..... Jeremy Spencer
Captain ..... Jack Hedley
Postumus ..... George Selway
Emperor ..... Alastair Sim
Phanocles ..... George Cole
Euphrosyne ..... Eileen Moore
Sergeant ..... Geoffrey Matthews
Others: Stella Bretti, Gillian Muir, Pauline Sutton, Ron Scott-Dodd, Michael Gartred, Maitland Moss.

"The Brass Butterfly" is a whimsical comedy about a Roman emperor who's more interested in domestic tranquility than scientific progress. The locale is an island villa in Caesararian times and the principal characters are the emperor, his grandson-protege, his self-important prospective heir and a Greek inventive genius.

The play, trying out prior to London, is droll, and surprisingly entertaining. It's expertly played (and directed) by Alastair Sim, with capable support from George Cole as the eager young inventor, Eileen Moore as the love interest, young Jeremy Spencer as the prince and Jack Hedley as a backslapping captain.

Edward Seago's setting is handsome and Hutchinson Scott's costumes are colorful.

Gord.

Any Other Business

London, April 11.

E. P. Clift & Peter Bridge presentation of three-act (four scenes) melodrama by George Ross and Campbell Singer. Features Raymond Huntley, Jennifer Wright, Ralph Michael. Staged by Anthony Sharp; decor, Victor Friendly. At Westminster Theatre, London, April 10, '58; $2.35 top.

Joyce Anderson ..... Jennifer Wright
Geoffrey Harrison ..... John Barron
Jonathon Travis ..... Oliver Johnston
Sgt. Roberts ..... Edward Palmer
Julian Armstrong ..... Ralph Michael
Malcolm Turnbull ..... John Boxer
Sir Norman Tullis ..... Raymond Huntley
Harry Dodds ..... Trevor Reid
Charles Parkin M.P. ..... Richard Vernon
Martin Meadows ..... Charles Morgan
Stanley Griffiths ..... Ramond Mason

The boardroom of a public company is the unlikely setting for a whodunit that works out reasonably well in "Any Other Business." The problem is not to find a murderer, but to expose a company director who is passing over secrets in a counter-move to avert a takeover bid.

Intricacies of high finance are also an unusual subject for dramatization in a play of this kind, but the co-authors succeed in clarifying and making them an integral and absorbing part of the plot. The action is mainly confined to a boardroom and a surprising amount of drama and suspense is developed.

The play starts slowly and gradually builds forces until near the end of the first act when it comes to tense life in the dramatic interruption of the board meeting. The tension mounts steadily thereafter, apart from the wrap-up five minutes.

The various board members are neatly etched and believably interpreted by Raymond Huntley and a reliable cast. Jennifer Wright, the only femme player, is an attractive secretary and provides the superficial love interest. Anthony Sharp has staged the piece smoothly and Victor Friendly's divided set of board room and managing director's office is adequate for the production.

Myro.

Off-B'way Reviews

The Broken Jug

Phoenix Theatre presentation of the Stratford Festival Co. of Canada in a three-act adaptation by Donald Harron of a Heinrich Von Kleist play. Staged by Michael Langham; setting and costumes, Tanya Moiseiwitsch. At Phoenix Theatre, N. Y., April 1, '58; $4.60 top.

Bridget Turkeyfoot ..... Amelia Hall
Margaret ..... Diana Maddox
Judge Adam ..... Douglas Campbell
Dermot Huish ..... Douglas Rain
Quant ..... Eric Christmas
Georges De Moulinville ..... Bruno Gerussi
Jesse Gillick ..... Helen Burns
Achille De Moulinville ..... Powys Thomas
Eva Gillick ..... Ann Morrish
Sergeant ..... Jeremy Wilkin
Maj. Clovell ..... Eric Berry
Solomon Doolittle ..... Bill Cole
Joseph Baggot ..... John Gardiner
Abner Slee ..... Julian Flett
Humphrey ..... George McCowan

For its second presentation at the Phoenix Theatre, the Stratford Festival Company of Canada is offering Donald Harron's adaptation of a German classic, "The Broken Jug," written by Heinrich Von Kleist in 1808. Harron has transferred the setting from a Flanders village to an early settlement in Upper Canada, now Ontario, during the period of the War of 1812, when American forces from Detroit and Niagara invaded Canada.

The overall result of Harron's efforts, aided by the skillful romp of the Canadian visitors, is a friendly, old-fashioned farce that occasionally reaches a point of hilarity but generally proceeds on a chuckling keel. The first act is somewhat tedious as the relationships of the various characters are established, but once this hurdle is passed, "The Broken Jug" blossoms out as a merry-go-round of shouting, exasperation, chasing and running.

The situation is not an unfamiliar one, having overtones of Gogol's "The Inspector-General" and presenting the old saw of the guilty party acting as the judge in a matter in which he should be the defendant.

For the most part, the Canadian cast has mastered the spirit of the farcial and occasionally bawdy situations and the result is moderately pleasant entertainment. Eric Berry, as His Majesty's military representative, stands out as the put-upon minion of law, order and sanity forced to cope with a trickery, reprobate judge and his sly, conniving clerk.

It's almost impossible to detail the plot fully, but it involves neutralism, trading with the enemy—booze for tea, selling of draft exemptions, invasion of a lady's bedroom, illegal acquisition of property by town officials, and, of course, the breaking of the jug.

As Judge Adam, the licentious, amiable, crooked mayor-judge-general factotum, Douglas Campbell is suitably bombastic and obiquitous, although he employs all the time-worn tricks associated with farce. Douglas Rain is a conventional cunning and sniveling clerk out for the judge's job.

Good performances are given by Powys Thomas, as a proud French pacifist; Bruno Gerussi, as his anxious-to-fight son; Ann Morrish, as the latter's fiance and the victim of the judge's bedroom invasion; Helen Burns as her mother and proprietress of the broken jug; and Diana Maddox, as the judge's housekeeper-mistress.

With the exception of the slow first act, director Michael Langham has kept the proceedings going at a speedy clip, but his concept reveals nothing particularly original. Although Tanya Moiseiwitsch's set appears authentic for the period and place and provides easy movement for the actors, it could use more color to set the stage for a farce.

Holl.

Fools Are Passing Through

Segulee Productions presentation of William Gyimes production of a three-act comedy by Friedrich Duerrenmatt, adapted by Maximilian Slater. Staged by Slater; setting, Richard Mason; musical arrangements, Lazlo Revecz; costumes, Elizabeth Landis. At Jan Hus Theatre, N. Y., April 2, '58; $3.85 top.

Cast: Carl Low, Ben Ardery, Robert Barringer, Michael Green, Martin Waldron, Herbert Voland, Muriel Dooley, Gladys Holland, Sheppard Kerman, Robert Pirk.

Swiss playwright Friedrich Duerrenmatt has the distinction of two New York openings within a month. His "The Visit," co-starring Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, will arrive in early May, and the production of his "Fools Are Passing Through" is an off-Broadway precursor.

"Fools" is early Duerrenmatt and establishes him as a writer with a ranging mind and the ability to enunciate his various philosophies pithily. Excluding the early portion of the play, however, and the very end, there is a great deal of conversation away from the point, an exuberant desire to say everything that may be said about the world and its inhabitants during the two-hour stage traffic. That detracts from a play that is clever in concept and imaginative in execution.

Among other things, Duerrenmatt, via his characters, comments that "truth cannot be thrown into the fire —it is the fire," "once guns appear in respectable drawing rooms, all is over, all is lost," that only "fools passing through who are crazy might try to remake the world."

In a nameless European city and country an odd assortment of people frolic through the charade. Prominent is a self-righteous public prosecutor, played with admirable detail and size by Herbert Voland. There is his presumably Communist brother who has the unusual experience of being killed both at the very beginning and the very end of the play. In this part, Carl Low romps in and out of windows and doors, sporting a Mephistophelean beard, enunciating with snappy precision sophistries of the left.

Gladys Holland plays a husband-poisoning femme fatale, looking distractingly handsome in a series of black, white, blue and red gowns. Sheppard Kerman twinkles as a prime minister-elect, while Martin Waldron's chore is to be red-eyed and lovelorn, to make speeches of some length and occasional difficulty, and to provide Madame with poison in the guise of sugar for her coffee-drinking husband.

As well as adapting the play, Maximilian Slater has staged it with tongue-in-cheek amusement. It may have been symptomatic of the play's vagaries, however, that at the second intermission (only one was program-announced), some of the audience considered the show over.

Geor.

Regional Theatres

Continued from page 59

tions presented by member theatres last fall. The breakdown, covering more than 100 theatres, points up the wide variety of offerings presented and the increased play being given to tuners and Shakespearean presentations.

According to the survey, only five plays were presented more than five times, while 31 plays were given two or more campus productions and 17 two or more community productions. The hottest entries, with the number of productions listed parenthetically, were "Teahouse of the August Moon" (13), "Witness for the Prosecution" (10), "Reluctant Debutante" and "Thieves' Carnival" (7 each) and "Lady's Not for Burning" (6).

There were 18 musical comedy and 15 Shakespearean productions. The 18 tuners, however, took in 16 different entries, including "Can-Can," "Finian's Rainbow," "Of Thee I Sing," "Lady in the Dark," "Red Mill," "Carousel," "Annie Get Your Gun," "Oklahoma," "Pajama Game," "South Pacific," "King and I," "Call Me Madam," "Show Boat" and "Street Scene."

There were only eight new plays listed in the survey. Hobgood contrasted the wide variety of productions with the situation 20 years ago when "a dozen plays would often be produced to death by regional theatres."

Weiner's 'Sergeants' Co. $17,500 at Paper Mill

Robert Weiner's strawhat-touring production of "No Time for Sergeants" got off to a smash start last week in the first frame of a six-week stand at the 900-seat Paper Mill Playhouse, Milburn, N.J.

The comedy, playing to virtual capacity business, grossed nearly $17,500.

Brooks Atkinson, critic of the N.Y. Times, left yesterday (Tues.) with his novelist-wife, Oriana Atkinson, to open their country place at Durham, N.Y. They'll be away a week.

Literati

New Madison Ave. Mag.

The gray-flannel thoroughfare, except Madison Avenue, will be covered in a new monthly periodical called Madison Avenue. It will be a slick paper job appealing to the advertising business, according to the publisher-editor, Carl Rogers, former advertising agency exec.

It'll cover New York City and environs and will have a 10,000 controlled circulation. First issue will be off the press in May. Bill Greeley, formerly of TV Age, will be the managing editor. Contributors will include Bill Schneider, chairman of the planning board of Donohue & Coe; Suren H. Ermoyan, art director and senior veepee of Lennen & Newell, and Jerry Fields, director of Jobs Unlimited.

Other staff members will be Virginia Voss, formerly of Madamoiselle; Wade Greene of the Hartford Courant and Pat Paulson, production assistant of Bil Baird Puppets.

RKM Publishing Corp. is putting up the dough for Madison Avenue. Owners are Rogers and two Texans, Louis Kimple and Stuart Moore, both of Dallas.

U.S. Copyright Anthology

Benjamin W. Rudd has compiled and edited "Decisions of the U.S. Courts Involving Copyright 1955-1956," and is available from Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Govt. Printing Office or Register of Copyrights, Library of Congress, Washington. This bulletin is the 14th in a series compiled by the Copyright Office and contains substantially all copyright cases, as well as many dealing with literary properties, decided during 1955-1956 by either Federal or State Courts.

Cloth bound volume is $2.75.

Boston's Harvard Club

The Harvard Club of Boston, only one where backgammon still holds fanatical interest, celebrated its 50th anni Sunday (13). Especially honored were the Overseers. The club which houses one of the largest pipe organs in New England, which is seldom played, opened 50 years ago in the huge mansion at 374 Commonwealth Ave., which it still occupies. Its present membership is 4,000.

In the last three years it dropped its exclusive barriers long enough to admit members of the Ya'e Club of Boston extended guest privileges and to permit restricted use of facilities by Junior League and Radcliffe alumni.

Canada Admits 'Peyton Place'

Canada's federal tariff board has okayed "Peyton Place" (the book) for sale in Canada. Copies, banned at the border-to-now, can start entering Canada at once.

Board's decision called the book's language coarse and vulgar but not unnatural or forced in the mouths of the charcters speaking it. "The language," said the board's decision, "would be familiar to all but the most inexperienced of men and, perhaps would not be unfamiliar to many women."

The tariff board strongly recommended that future cases of this kind be handled by the courts.

New 'Horizon' In Sept.

American Heritage Publishing Co., publishers of Heritage, plans its publication, Horizon, in September. It'll be a hard cover magazine of all the arts and will appear in odd-numbered months. Joseph J. Thorndike Jr., editorial director of American Heritage and former m.e. of Life, will be in charge. William Harlan Hale will be the m.e.

The advisory board will be headed by Gilbert Highet and first issue will include pieces by Irving Stone, Julian Huxley, Marquis Childs. Future issues will have byliners from Louis Kronenberger, Joseph Wechsberg, Cleveland Amory, Lord David Cecil, Peter Quennell and Andre Malraux.

Lonelyhearts' Jackpot

Socialite Mrs. Morton Phillips, whose byline is Abby Van Buren, and whose "Dear Abby" lonelyhearts column is syndicated in 250 papers, will have her "Abygrams" book published this fall by Prentice-Hall. Her New York outlet is the Mirror. A first printing of 50,000 is part of the P-H deal.

Her twin sister, Ann Landers, also has a syndicated lonely hearts column and both are distinguished by a flip, comedy style that is a cut above the old-school advice-to-the-lovelorn, etiquette and kindred "advice" columnists.

Prentice-Hall's "Kids Say The Darndest Things!", by radio-tv's Art Linkletter, is a No. 1 bestseller with 250,000 copies to date.

P-H has Jack ("Dragnet") Webb doing an authorized book on the Los Angeles Police Dept., under the title of "The Badge." (There's another Jack Webb who writes whodunits, not to be confused with the tv series star). Kate Smith's "Company's Coming Cookbook," including recipes from her listeners, is a September item. Mrs. Babe Ruth's memoir of "The Babe and I," in collaboration with the N. Y. Mirror's Bill Slocum, will have as its central theme "the taming of the world's greatest athlete."

Sheean's Verdi Biog

"Orpheus at 80" by Vincent Sheean (Random House; $5) is a new biography of the Italian composer, Giuseppe Verdi. Bringing his familiar, brisk style to the work, Sheean flashes the account backward from Verdi's 80th year, when his "Falstaff" was produced at La Scala, Milan. From this point, which was the composer's actual farewell to the theatre, the author reopens the past to examine Verdi's exciting career as musician and patriot, and to report his complex personal life.

Book is well-paced and extremely readable. It is dedicated to Toscanini.

Rodo.

CHATTER

Isaac D. Levy, lawyer, CBS director and former owner of WCAU, Philadelphia, has donated his collection of Robert G. Ingersoll papers (about 200 items) to Georgetown University, Washington.

Herman Kogan's story of the Encyclopedia Britannica, the first account of the creation and history of the reference work, to be called "The Great E. B.," will appear under the imprint of the University of Chicago Press.

In recent months the Scottish Daily Record has had a flow of resignations following takeover by the London Daily Mirror. It was formerly a Kemsley sheet.

Since this is Belgium's year in the news, Farrar, Straus & Cudahy is contributing "The Belgian Cookbook," by Juliette Elkon, the only book on Belgian cooking in print in this country. Author, a native of Belgium, explains the differences between Belgian and French cooking.

Two works by Colette, "Mitsou" and "Music-Hall Sidelights," will be published in one volume by Farrar, Straus, & Cudahy, translated from the French by Raymond Postgate. Film version of "Mitsou" is due to open soon at the 55th St. Playhouse, N. Y. The theatre also provides a backdrop for the autobiographical "Music-Hall Sidelights," a sequence of sketches of Colette's life on tour with her manager, George Wague. It is translated by Anne-Marie Callimachi.

New syndicate "New York Today" column aimed at weeklies being readied by Ray Wilson.

Stage manager ("Say, Darling") and book reviewer Robert Downing, a stickler for spelling, again points up that Lillie Langtry was "The Jersey Lily" all right, but she spelled her first name that way. "Lily" Langtry is a commonly repetitive error. Her biog is being readied by Pierre Sichel for Prentice-Hall publication.

Money Guide Inc. has been authorized to conduct a publishing business in New York. Capital stock is 200 shares, no par value. Julian D. Fischer is a director and filing attorney.

Zenith Books Inc. has been chartered to conduct a publishing, printing and advertising business in Rockville Centre, N. Y. Grossman & Perlee of Manhattan were filing attorneys at Albany.

Bernard Schwartz, former counsel for the House Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight, is working on a book dealing with administrative law. Oceana Publications will issue it in September. It'll appear in England under the Pitman imprint.

Leavitt F. Morris, travel editor of The Christian Science Monitor in Boston, named to newly created post of cohsulting director of the Greater Vermont Assn. Morris is a weekend and summer resident of Lyndonville, Vt., and is chairman of the membership committee of the Society of American Travel Writers.

Bill Ornstein, former Metro publicist, has sold his piece on Disneyland, which originally appeared in the N. Y. Herald Tribune, to the Apu Lehti, Finnish, publication. With the 3,000-word article are five pictures for a behind-the-scenes layout of the Anaheim, Calif, operation.

Broadway

Barry Truex, son of actor Ernest Truex is currently stationed at the Brooke Army Hospital, Fort Sam Houston.

Alan Jackson, former story-play editor at Paramount now, in Europe scouting properties for several U. S. publishing houses.

Impresario-realtor Roger L. Stevens and Wall Streeters Charles Allen Jr. and Arthur Wiesenberger, both w.k. in show biz, on new Sheraton East (nee Ambassador Hotel) board.

Dance Perspectives Inc. has been authorized to conduct a publishing business in Brooklyn. Directors are: Adolph J. Pischel and Tennessee Wild Pischel, of Brooklyn and Sheppard Black of Manhattan.

Hotel Astor's Serge Obolensky and Pegeen Fitzgerald bearing down on hypoing the after-theatre biz in the Hunting Room where pianist Rudy Timfield has replaced the band to a no-cuv, no-min. policy.

A luncheon saluting Rev. J. H. Randolph Ray's retirement after 35 years as a rector of "The Little Church Around the Corner," Church of the Transfiguration, N. Y., will be held May 6 at the St. Regis Hotel, N. Y. Peggy Wood is chairman of luncheon committee, while Cornelia Otis Skinner will emcee. Church is home of the Episcopal Actors' Guild.

One Broadway showman had the idea of hiring Madison Square Garden directly after the Town & Country debacle for a one-woman show by Judy Garland, figuring it would have had the same sentimental mopup as when the initial Palace crowds reacted to her first "comeback." Claims it would have gone forward, too, but for the fact that the Ringling circus had just moved into the Garden.

Thanks to the extra $5,000 tacked onto the Ford Foundation grant of 105 G's, N. Y. City Center will have 30 young composers observing its stagecraft for two weeks. Too many would-be opera composers have never seen a rehearsal, have only a sketchy idea of theatre facilities. This is believed first instance of its subsidizing such look-see.

Madrid

By Ramsay Ames

(Castellana Hilton; 57-22-00)

Francisco Rabal will do "Oedipus" at the Espanol.

Antonio Vilar will figure in Brigitte Bardot's "La Femme et le Patin."

Jean Cocteau's "The Terrible Parents" will be done next month in Teatre de Camara.

Luis Mariano, currently in "Cancion al Amor Mio," off to Belgium, then to Paris to film "Colorado."

Pirandello's "Henry IV" will star Irene Lopez Heredia (voted the year's best legit actress) in Teatro Espanol.

New films on Gran Via: "The High Terrace" at Lope de Vega; Argentine "El Ultimo Perro" (The Last Dog) at Albeniz.

Aurora Bautista, now doing "Requiem For A Nun" here, will star in Euripides' "Medea" this summer at the outdoor Roman theatre in Merida.

Director Enrique Cahen Salaberry has started "Carlota," musical starring Ana Mariscal, Georges Rigaud, Juanjo Menendez, and Maria Dolores Pradera.

Monumental Cinema was SRO for Maria Callas' concert. General reaction was good. Star refused to grant any press interviews although allowing photogs to shoot.

Alfredo Fraile, one of Spain's top cinematographers, entering producing ranks. His first, to be adapted from Jaime Herranz's "El Hermano Pio," will have Vittorio DeSicca, Pepe Isbert, and Julio Nunez. Screen title will be "Han Robado un Nino" (They have Stolen a Child).

Portland, Ore.

By Ray Feves

"No Time For Sergeants" set for two nites at Auditorium under Ellison-White banner.

Arthur Duncan, Walton & O'Rourke and The Claydettes (6) at Amato's Supper Club.

Bud Mallett is in the process of signing a producer for the stage show for Annual Rose Festival this summer.

Rose Festival Committee paging Paul Whiteman and Dinah Shore to headline outdoor stage show in June.

"No Time For Sergeants" set for two-niter at the Auditorium by Ellison White for latter part of April.

The Stylemasters, Lois Ray, The Claydettes at Amato's Supper Club for two rounds. Paris Sisters and Los Zeas inked to follow.

KWJJ decided that there is enough trouble in the world and have a 15-minute daily broadcast of "Happy News" with plenty of sponsors.

Portland's much needed Entertainment & Recreational Coliseum is under way after many hassles. Land has been levelled and building gets going soon.

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz

(28 Rue Huchette; Odeon 49-44)

Yank singer Jenny Collins in for a stint at Ciro's.

Eddie Constantine, singer-actor, now turning to songwriting.

Dean of theatre critics, Robert Kemp, now in Academie Francaise.

Gustav Machaty in to start preparations for a remake of "Ecstasy."

Lew Kerner in to looksee foreign outlets for his upcoming pic "Studs Lonigan" (UA).

Mijanou Bardot, Brigitte's sister, gets her first starring pic role in remake of "Ramuntcho."

New Folies-Bergere, "Folies Legeres," reportedly cost $1,000,000, probably did cost $400,000.

N. Y. Herald Tribune columnist Hy Gardner seeing the sights with his wife, first time over — and honeymooning

Rossano Brazzi in to prepare two pic chores here: "A Certain Smile" (20th), to be followed by Metro's "The Blessing."

Harry Novak, ailing Columbia Films Continental manager, conducting biz from his bedside at the American Hospital in Neuilly.

John Osborne in to ogle Gallic legit version of his "Look Back In Anger," more peacefully monickered "Le Paix De Dimanche" (Sunday's Peace), at Theatre Mathurins.

Theatre De Paris brings back "Tea and Sympathy" in May with Micheline Presle taking over Ingrid Bergman role. She has been doing it successfully on the road.

Jean Anouilh sent his new play "L'Huberberlu" (The Scatterbrain) to Claude Dauphin in N. Y. This may mark Dauphin's return, or he may adapt it for Broadway and play it there.

Jean-Pierre Aumont finally found the cast for his legit adaptation of Irwin Shaw's "Lucy Crown" which will play Theatre De Paris early next season. Edwige Feuillere and Bernard Blier star and Jean Mercure directs. This is Aumont's fifth legit writing chore.

Ireland

By Maxwell Sweeney

(22 Farney Pk: Dublin 684506)

Govt. grants of $4,500 cut Dublin Grand Opera loss year to around $5,000.

Fan mag Film and TV Parade banned for six months by censorship board.

"Peyton Place" and "Farewell To Arms" (both 20th) nixed by film censor Liam O'Hara.

Irish Actor's Equity has asked government to nominate Equity officer to Independent TV Authority to be established here.

Cyril Cusack will play Joxer Daly in musical version of Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock" set for Broadway presentation by Playwrights Co. next fall.

Four Provinces Films have optioned Lennox Robinson's "Drama at Inish" for lensing in Ireland; company has dropped project to film J. M. Synge's "Playboy of the Western World."

Copacabana

Continued from page 1

of prices to be made, he'd rather lower them. He recalled that with last date of Frank Sinatra, he could have hiked the take via a far higher minimum, and thus made about $100,000 more on the deal. However, he feels that while good on a short run, he's in business for 52 weeks a year, and that would alienate the trade.

The Copa he said, is primarily a restaurant, with entertainment added. He says that he must compete with eateries without talent as well as other cafes. It's becoming increasingly tougher under present circumstances, he added. The Copa, he pointed out, grosses about $3,000,000 annually, of which $500,000 goes to the Government for the cabaret tax, which is a huge overage in the light of stiff competition from restaurants, television, theatres, etc.

The Government still thinks of night clubs as it did in the '20s when it was for the comparatively wealthy, he said. Conditions have changed considerably since then. It's become a mass business. In order to remain that way, it cannot take 20% off the top and survive, Podell said.

London

(COVent Garden 0135/6/7)

Prince Littler reelected prexy of Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund.

Roy Disney g. of h. Savoy reception at which he met reps from publishing industry.

Decca Records tossed a welcome party for Hilltoppers here to start their second British tour.

Lord Brabourne, a relative of Duke of Edinburgh, elected to executive council of British Film Producers' Assn.

Kenneth More sailed for Las Palmas to recuperate from a spine injury which he sustained during a Swiss vacation.

John Farrow hosted press reception for Robert Stack and Erin O'Brien, both of whom have been signed for "John Paul Jones," which rolls in Madrid.

New Sabre Production for Columbia release starring Jack Hawkins, originally titled "The Two-Headed Spy," has now been renamed "The Clock With A Face."

Arthur T. L. Watkins, president of the British Film Producers' Assn., joined governing body of a new non-profit making company which will operate Edinburgh Festival.

Harry Morris, operator of Colony Restaurant, will pour for Tootsie and Robert J. O'Donnell when they arrive April 21 for International Variety Convention. International officers and London crew with their respective wives will also be invited.

Chicago

Buttery of Ambassador West celebrating its 20th anni.

Charlie Ventura Trio at Rigger Restaurant, southside Italian eatery.

Greg Harris, columnist on Chicago Defender, now a deejay on WBEE.

Jeff Richards due in to bally debut of "Jefferson Drum" on WNBQ April 25.

Vogue Ballroom started Sunday afternoon record hops emceed each week by a local deejay.

Nick Noble toplining at Club Hollywood, with comic Billy Falbo and terpers Heller & Helene.

Herb Rogers holding auditions at Russell Wood Hall for singing and dancing corps of Highland Park Music Theatre.

Edgewater Beach Playhouse to open its second season June 23. Name policy prevails again for a 10-week term of five plays.

Bill Norton on leave of absence from Todd organization. Harvey Shapiro replaces him as house manager at Todd's Cinestage.

Count Basie giving jazz concert at Orchestra Hall. Warmup by local jazz team of Johnny Pate and Ahmad Jamal. Deejay Sam Evans is promoting.

Warren Slee, onetime Chi Metro publicist, coming from Seattle to take over as press rep for "Cinerama" at Palace, replacing the late Ralph Kettering.

Film critics Eleanor Keen (Sun-Times) and Anna Nangle (Tribune) in Europe together for six weeks of rubbernecking. They're spelled at their respective gazettes by Glenna Syse and Will Leonard.

Erwin Weiner, special services director for Chicago Park District, says Soldier Field will get more use in 1958 than in any other year in its history. More than 50 events are scheduled in a 66-day span, among them Christiana Circus and Chi Tribune's Chicagoland Music Festival.

Vienna

By Emil W. Maass

(Grosse Schiffgasse 1 A; Tel. 35-61-56)

"80 Days" preemed at Palace.

Leontine Price will sing "Aida" in State Opera.

Rudolf Nitsch elected president of Carinthian Art Society.

Detroit singer Eleanor Schneider inked by Volkspera for various parts.

First Austrian tv studio finished "Mr. Z. Gossips" directed by Wolfgang Glueck.

Volkstheatre preparing James M. Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows" for late this year or early next season.

Miami Beach

By Lary Solloway

(1755 Calais Dr.; Union 5-5389)

Carillon setting full sked of weekly shows for summer.

Miami Music Theatre will resume tent operation in May.

Buddy Rich, long-term holdover at Johnina's Dream Lounge, bought a home here.

Bobby Sherwood and Phyllis Dorne switched to Lucerne hotel's lounge as host-entertainers.

Screen Gems shooting tv-films based on Sheriff's office, Criminal Investigation Bureau and the Highway Patrol. Walter Matthau is the lead.

Ben Novack won final court decision and is now in full control of the Fontainebleau. Arnold Kirkeby waiting for the $3,000,000 plus check that will buy out his 40%.

Bea Kalmus dickering for a spot of her own with view to staying here year 'round. She's due to close out her WKAT midnight airer at Di Lido hotel soon.

Washington

By Florence S. Lowe

Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong and his All-Stars at Uline Arena for one-nighter.

"South Pacific" (20th) preemed at Warners' Uptown as benefit for local Cancer Society.

Natalie Wood in town to tee off an eight-city tub-thumping fashion tour for "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB).

Clare Luce due April 21 for a one-woman dramatic stint as part of Library of Congress' literary series.

Clark Gable, here to drumbeat for "Teacher's Pet" (Par), shook hands with President Eisenhower and toured White House under guidance of Cabinet Secretary Maxwell Rabb.

Omaha

By Glenn Trump

Comic Bob Hart held over at Seven Seas.

Al Lamm Trio vice Bob Pell Trio at Colony Club.

Jim McGowan headlining at Westward-Ho, Jr.

Omaha Community Playhouse presenting "Therace."

Pee Wee Hunt into Peony Park for a one-nighter April 19.

Babe Bergen Trio into Yacht Club, formerly Grand Bar.

Omaha Theatre manager Carl Hoffman bedded with pneumonia.

Ex-Tristates Theatres city manager Bill Miskell filed for county commissioner.

Brandeis Theatre manager Ed Force filed for election to city school board.

Don Romeo set Zsa Zsa Gabor as featured attraction of this year's Beau Arts Ball at Carter Lake Club May 10.

Ottawa

Glenn Gould Capitol concert sold out.

Cindy Lane billtops in Aquarium Room, St. Louis Hotel, Hull.

Lois Marshall, Toronto thrush, in for guester with Ottawa Philharmonic.

Guilda returns for second stint at Interprovincial Hotel where Aurele Groulx batons house band.

Local television-radio-filmers' annual aid to Red Cross one-night blitz raised $130,000 in less than four hours.

Future pactings for the Circus Lounge in Ottawa House include Carmen MacRae, Vicki Benet, Buddy Greco, Diahann Carroll.

Show Business

Continued from page 3

"the usual routine" and "remains in the same rut."

Demand More Efficiency

Although there are a number of liquidator-inclined men among the Wall Streeters, generally there is a feeling that "there is a place for movie-making," but that efforts must be made "to build a better product at less cost and with better efficiency." The bankers, Wall Streeters and influential stockholders agree that the film executives "know what's wrong" with their business, but that they are inclined "to fight" the suggestions of the financial sources. There is still a stigma surrounding the name of Wall Street, the bankers note, and it's pointed out that every time an outside financial man introduces a suggestion it is met with the reply "but this is show business," the point being that show business cannot be made to operate like any other business.

The Wall Streeters counteract this argument with the view that while they may not be able to produce a picture and select talent or properties, they are acutely aware of business economics and are convinced that the motion picture industry cannot continue successfully if basic changes are not made that will substantially reduce costs and streamline the overall operation. Concretely, the Wall Streeters are demanding action and not talk.

Hollywood

Buddy Adler off to England.

Vanessa Brown on jury duty.

Esther Williams divorced Ben Gage.

Sol Saks off on Tokyo-Hong Kong holiday.

Dorrell and Stuart McGowan back from Gotham.

Jerry Lewis skied to London for his Palladium engagement.

Steve Broidy will chairman 1958-59 Community Chest drive.

Robert Siodmak named European rep for Kirk Douglas' Bryna Productions.

Carole Sylvane ankled Al Kingston agency to open own pub-management bureau.

Scotland

"Legend of the Lost" (UA) into Savoy Theatre, Glasgow.

Billy Rusk, Penny Nichols and Boyer & Ravel heading new vaude at Pavilion, Glasgow.

Jimmy Logan doing solid biz with his own vaude show at H. M. Theatre, Aberdeen.

Ella Fitzgerald and "Jazz at Philharmonic" unit skedded for Odeon, Glasgow, May 13.

John McGregor stood-in for sick Fulton Mackay in "Look Back In Anger" at Citizens' Theatre, Glasgow.

Sir Alexander King, cinema topper, to London for filmed interview in defense of entertainments tax cuts.

Scot indie tv now televising "Dance & Skiffle Party" three times weekly from Glasgow, with Rikki Fulton as emcee.

Kenneth McKellar, Scot. tenor, mulling offers for New Zealand and Australia tour in early 1959 to link with Robert Burns bi-centenary celebrations.

Big show biz contingent guests at Loch Loinonside wedding of soubrette Fay Lenore and Highland Games champ Jay Scott. She rejoins Howard & Wyndham's "Five-Past Eight" revue at Alhambra, Glasgow, May 16.

Palm Springs

By A. P. Scully

(Fairview 4-1828)

Art Baker around.

Lauren Bacall in from N. Y.

Bonita Granville at L'Horizon.

Jimmy McHugh's Golden Nugget Ball netted 5G for Desert Hosp.

Bill Gargan, Mike Romanoff, Phil Harris, Roberta Linn, Jimmy Van Heusen among those touring Texas to drum up trade for P. S. Circus Week.

Estimated 5,000 teenage Eastertrippers on the loose packed the jail as well as the hostels. One kid had $1,500 on him. Cops checked his father in Beverly Hills. "Does he need more?" asked the wayward parent.

Rosemary Clooney, Jose Greco, Phil Harris, Buddy Lester, Amin Bros., Billy Winters and Buddy Cole's band featured at Bing Crosby's show Sunday (13) at Chi Chi for Most Sacred Heart Church being built at Palm Desert where Groaner is Hon. Mayor. First time Bing has headed a nitery unit.

Boston

By Guy Livingston

(344 Little Bldg.; HAncock 6-8386)

Bob Hope in for p.a.'s.

Ink Spots current at the Frolic, Revere.

Dakota Staton at George Wein's Storyville.

Bob Hope in for p. a.'s at Paramount Theatre.

Alan Frazer, American columnist, back from California vacash.

Toshiko, Japanese jazz pianist, in return date at Bradford Carousel room.

Teddi King and Tom Lehrer did WBZ-TV's first video tape, "Storyville Jazz Show."

Ben Sack world preems Paddy Chayefsky's "The Goddess" at his Beacon Hill arter.

Sam Berger in to set Alan Gale Show at Shubert. Opens April 21 with Fran Warren, Dunhills, Arnold Dover.

Golden Cage, new Hub nitery being readied by Louis Cohen on Boylston St., to have stage atop bar and gay 90's murals.

Las Vegas

By Forrest Duke

(DUdley 2-6100)

Newlyweds Leland C. Mikesell and Frances Farmer ringsiding at Desert Inn following ceremony here.

Sands lounge a rendezvous for progressive jazz devotees—Jackie & Roy, and Red Norvo combo are appearing.

It finally happened after 81 performances without a mishap. Mickey Hargitay slipped while swinging Jayne Mansfield around in the Tropicana show.

OBITUARIES

SOL M. WURTZEL

Sol M. Wurtzel, 67, longtime producer who was with 20th-Fox and its predecessor company for 30 years, died April 9 in Westwood, Cal.

Details in film section.

JOHNSON J. MUSSELMAN

Johnson J. Musselman, 68, one of the few oldtime showmen in the Louisville area, died April 8, in Louisville. He was manager of the Rialto Theatre, and supervisor of other show properties owned and operated by the Fourth Avenue Amusement Co.

For years, Musselman, known as Aska The Magician, presented full two-hour shows in school auditoriums, churches, and halls, assisted by his wife Pauline. He organized his magic show in 1910. He first developed an interest in show biz as a child, when he passed out handbills and ushered at Louisville's old Macauley's Theatre.

Prior to taking up his magic show activities, the vet sohwman toured in vaude in a singing-dancing-talking turn, with a femme partner. Later he went to Chicago and appeared in short subject films with Mary Pickford, Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, William S. Hart, "Broncho Billy" Anderson, John Bunny, Flora Finch, and others.

He received frequent newspaper coverage for his promotional stunts, some of which brought objections from the law. One was a gimmick during the showing of "Greatest Show on Earth," several years ago. He had sawdust spread on the lobby floor and outside the theatre to add atmosphere. When the sawdust was tracked all over the main stem. Louisville officials made Musselman remove it.

His wife, the former Pauline Caple, survives.

In Loving Memory

MAURICE ABRAHAMS

MELVILLE BAKER

Melville Pratt Baker, 56, playwright and film writer, died April 10 in Nice, France. Baker's best known works were his adaptation of "The Swan" by Ferenc Molnar, which Gilbert Miller produced in New York in 1923 and "Next Time We Love," the film which introduced James Stewart in 1935.

He was the son of Robert M. Baker, also a playwright, and was graduated from Harvard. He started work for Daniel Frohman as a playreader. He did the adaptation of the Molnar play the next year after two playwrights had failed to produce a script to Miller's satisfaction.

In the next two years, he did adaptations of two more Molnar plays, "Carnival" and "Tale of the Wolf." From 1930 to 1940 he lived in Hollywood, writing numerous screenplays.

With Jack Kirkland, he wrote "Now and Forever," starring Shirley Temple and Gary Cooper; "Zoo in Budapest" and "The Gilded Lily." In 1943, he wrote "Above Suspicion" which starred Joan Crawford. Two years ago, he moved to the French Riviera to work on the adaptation of French plays.

Wife, son and daughter survive.

Paul du Pont

April 24, 1906 - April 20, 1957

CHUCK WILLIS

Chuck Willis, 30, one of the leading rock 'n' roll vocalists and songwriters, died April 10 in Atlanta following an operation. He had been suffering for some time with ulcers but was still active as performer and tunesmith. A few months ago, he was given several awards in New York by Broadcast Music Inc. for writing several hits last year.

Willis, who last recorded for Atlantic Records, cut seven records for that label and came up with six hits, including such sides as "C.C. Rider," "Juanita," "It's Too Late," "Betty Ann Dupree' and his current "Hang Up My Rock 'n' Roll Shoes" backed by "What Am I Living For." He was discovered in 1952 by Danny Kessler who then was artists & repertoire chief for Okeh Records, the Columbia Records rhythm & blues subsid.

Willis also wrote numerous hit songs for other artists, including some in the pop field. Among these were "What a Dream," "From the Bottom of My Heart," "Close Your Eyes" and "Let Me Explain."

Survivors include his wife, two daughters and one son.

WALTER K. SCOTT

Walter K. Scott, retired chief of U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's motion picture service, and silent screen actor, died April 9 in Washington, D. C., after a long illness. Well known in government and documentary film circles, he started his career as an actor opposite Pearl White in the "Perils of Pauline" series. He also worked as producer and lenser in silents, and developed a special behind-the-screen sound effect which was a forerunner of the "talkies."

Scott also worked as a newsreel photographer for Fox Movietone and was an indie producer of films in Germany after World War I, and later in Puerto Rico, Society Islands and Canada. He entered Government work in 1934 with Dept. of Interior and switched to Agriculture several years later. He was variously cameraman, director, head of production, and finally chief of Agriculture's film section, largest producer of motion pictures in federal government. He retired in 1956, when he became associated with Capital Film Lab in Washington.

HERMAN H. LIGHT

Herman H. Light, 61, manager of the Barrymore Theatre for many years, died April 12 in New York.

A first cousin of J. J. Shubert and the late Lee Shubert, he was with the Shuberts all his life. He began his career on the staff of the old Hippodrome and managed the Barrymore and various other Shubert houses until last year when he became company manager of the NBC Opera.

In 1954 he was company manager for Gian Carlo Menotti's "Saint of Bleecker Street" and at the time of his death was company of the Ballet de Paris at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y.

Wife, Mrs. Frances Light, an artists' rep and Equity agent and a brother, Norman Light, manager of the Winter Garden Theatre in N. Y., survive.

WES CORNELL

Wes Cornell, actor, composer, author, pianist-singer, who also wrote special material for many leading performers, including Sophie Tucker, Gracie Fields and Robert Rounsville, died April 2 in New York.

Cornell began his career when he was six years old, and for many years appeared in numerous top vaudeville houses and niteries throughout the U. S. He later appeared in a number of touring legit shows, including "Mary Had a Little" with Edmund Lowe. His songs included "More Babies for Ike" and "Christine."

He also wrote tv scripts and a play, as yet unpublished, called "The Queen Is Trumps." He appeared for two years in the now defunct Cambridge Club in Philadelphia, and made recordings on his own label, Devil Records.

Wife, son, mother and three sisters survive.

ADELYNE H. PHIPPS

Adelyne Hood Phipps, longtime radio singer and musician, died April 11 in Pittsburgh. Known as "Aunt Caroline," she had broadcast over WCAE and KDKA in that city for four years, from 1941 until 1945, when she married A. J. Phipps, a food broker, and retired.

A graduate of the U. of Alabama and the Juilliard School of Music, she was the first "Aunt Jemima" in radio in New York and presented violin concerts in Europe and throughout the U. S. before turning to broadcasting. Mrs. Phipps also was a pianist.

Likewise noted as a singer of folk songs, she made many records before going on radio. In addition to her musical programs, she took part in a number of radio dramatic shows, too.

Besides her husband, she leaves a brother.

ROYAL C. STOUT

Royal C. Stout, 84, an actor and co-owner of a summer stock theatre at Lake Nuangola, Pa., died April 2 in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

He began his career as a member of a one-night-stand troupe touring the midwest. He later appeared in numerous Broadway plays, including "The Wisdom Tooth," "Cousin Sonia," "High Gear," "A Divine Moment," "Cradle Snatchers," "Yesterday's Orchids," and most notably "The Royal Family," written by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber. He also appeared at the Savoy and Prince theatres in London, with his wife, actress Eleanor Kennedy.

His wife survives.

THOMAS CHARLES BYERS

Thomas Charles Byers, 92, a former hotel and legit company manager, died Jan. 13 in Bradenton, Fla.

He began his career as a hotel manager in 1893 in Resort, Pa. He left the hotel to form a legit stock company. He later managed the Lincoln Square Theatre in New York. Known to theatrical friends as "Uncle Tom," he also worked for 30 years as manager of the Wallace Post Advertising firm in Watertown, N.Y.

His wife survives.

SAMUEL M. GOULD

Samuel M. Gould, 70, one of Pittsburgh's pioneer theatre owners, was found dead April 8 at the Arcadia Theatre, which he owned and operated on the city's Northside. An early member of Tent No. 1 of the Variety Club, he had been active in exhibition for nearly half a century. He previously owned houses in Ambridge, Pa., and Ellwood City, Pa., but the Arcadia was his only theatre at the time of his death.

He leaves his wife and two sisters.

JOSEPHINE L. SEYL

Josephine L. Seyl, 69, former concert singer and operator of a French-language school for children in Evanston, Ill., died there April 7. She also directed, produced and acted in several amateur French plays in the Chicago area and sang professionally as a soloist.

Survived by two daughters and a son.

WILLIAM LARNER

William Larner, 48, radio announcer and program director, died April 5 at the Will Rogers Hospital, Saranac Lake, N. Y., after a long illness. At various times he was associated with stations WHAW, Weston, West Va.; WMFF, Plattsburg, N. Y., and WKRT, N. Y.

Surviving are his wife, mother and a sister.

LEON LE VERDE

Leon Le Verde, 58, female impersonator, died April 5 in New York after a lengthy illness. Le Verde worked for many years in niteries throughout the country and had produced the shows at the Howdy Club, some years ago.

His last job was at the Savannah Club, N. Y., where he worked as a waiter.

JOHN L. MCCURDY

John L. McCurdy, 66, retired motion picture executive who was active in the Fort Wayne, Ind., area before moving to Florida, died March 10 in Sarasota, Fla. He was a member of the Motion Picture Pioneers.

Surviving are his wife, son, daughter and three sisters.

Theodore A. Huber, 72, a life member of Local 10, American Federation of Musicians, died April 5 in Chicago, where he had been a trombonist in the Medinah Temple brass band for 30 years. Survived by his wife.

Thomas R. (Ray) Tyldesley, 51, secretary of Vancouver Local 145, AFM, a member since 1930, and president of Tyldesley's Ltd., auctioneers, died April 10 in Vancouver. Survived by wife and daugher.

Alexander Marshall Harbinson, 61, author of many short stories and magazine articles and co-author of a play, "It Seems To Be Spring," died April 8 in San Francisco.

Fred G. Flatt, 70, manager of the Taft Auditorium and Masonic Temple Co. in Cincinnati for 33 years, died March 31 in that city. Surviving are his wife, son and daughter.

James M. Price, 72, a voice teacher and former oratorio and concert tenor, died April 11 in New York. Wife and daughter survive.

Wife, 59, of John P. Dromey, chief booker for Great Lakes theatres circuit, died April 7 in Waukegan, Ill. Son, daughter and a sister also survive.

Pietro Costa, 56, a member of the Metropolitan Opera company in the 1930s and '40s, died March 29 in San Jose, Cal. His wife and daughter survive.

Mrs. Max Weinstein, 73, mother-in-law of Leonard Goldenson, president of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, died April 11 in New York.

Edward H. Schulze, 71, for 30 years a projectionist in the Variety Theatre, Evanston, Ill., died April 4 in Chicago. Wife and son survive.

Mrs. Albeana Beckwith, 54, a Toledo, O., bandleader for 25 years, died April 7 in that city. Her husband, two sons and daughter survive.

Father, 72, of Harry Paul, former VARIETY correspondent, now ad-pub exec and Newport Music publisher, died April 7 in Chelsea, Mass.

Mrs. Irma R. Kaufman Zacharias, 79, violin teacher and former first violinist of Dorian String Quartet, died April 5 in New York, after a long illness.

Son, Peter, six, of producer-writer Arch Oboler, drowned April 7 in a water-filled excavation at home in Malibu, Cal.

Wife, 67, of J. Frank Young, former Chi office manager for 20th-Fox, died March 30 in Reseda, Cal. A son, daughter and a sister also survive.

Mother, 83, of tv producer Beulah Zachary ("Kukla, Fran & Ollie"), died April 4 in Brevard, N. C. Survived also by another daughter and a son.

Father, 75, of composer-pianist Alec Templeton, died April 11 in Los Angeles. Also surviving are his wife and two daughters.

Nice-Nasty Nazis

Continued from page 1

radically changed from the Irwin Shaw novel to make him a basically decent human being, who recoils from the Nazi atrocities and, in the end, is completely disgusted with war and killing when, more or less by accident, he's killed himself.

Not As Shaw Said It

There is but surface resemblance between the "Young Lion" painted by Shaw, and Brando's figure on the screen. Since the figure of the German is so prominent in the picture, however, the natural audience tendency would be to consider the concentration camp and other scenes as dramatic sidelights and to generalize Brando's approach to the war as "typical."

Whether by accident or design, and some suspect it is a bit of both, Hollywood has decided that most of the Germans were simply misled by their leaders and, as decent people, were horrified by the deeds of their government, even though they may have been called on to perform them.

This approach has elements of the commercial in it, since the German market today is an important one for American films, and the studios have little desire to offend their German customers.

Another upcoming film (July release) to soft-camera the Hitlerite period is Universal's "A Time to Love and a Time to Die." Germany after the war is dramatized in "Fraulein" and again in the currently shooting "Phoenix," being lensed in Berlin.

Tougher In Vaterland

All this is in sharp contrast not only to Hollywood's "hate the German blitzkrieg credo" pitch before and during the war, but also to the films since made by the Germans themselves, which have been extremely outspoken at times and have tended to call a spade a spade. Germany's Academy Award entry this year, "Nachts Wenn Der Teufel Kommt" (At Night, When the Devil Comes) is out-and-out anti-Nazi, and so have been a number of prior German productions, including "The Devil's General," which left no doubt in anyone's mind that the responsibility for what happened under Hitler did not rest solely and exclusively with Hitler and his group of thugs-in-uniform.

Almost as soon as the war was over, and the need for "propaganda" had presumably vanished, Hollywood switched its approach and hued the official State Dept. line. A film like Anatole Litvak's "Decision Before Dawn" bore witness to this state-of-mind and it was one of the first to hit the new note of "there were more decent Germans than we had suspected."

MARRIAGES

Sascha von Scherler to Paul A. Mayer, New York, April 11. Bride is actress-daughter of Mrs. Stephen Litscher, former actress known as June Dayton; he's writer-son of playwright Edwin Justus Mayer.

Paula Kash to Damon Polcini, New York, April 13. Bride is a staffer of CBS Film Sales.

Iris M. Hatfull to Alan G. Millar, Vancouver, April 12. Bride's tv singer Terry Dale; he's an emcee with CBUT-TV there.

Anita Ciavola to Robert Nashick, Covington, Ky., April 12. He's KYW-TV, Cleveland, ad-production manager.

Betty Jane Pike to Bill Butler, New York, April 11. Bride's a Powers model; he's orchestra leader at the Lord Simcoe Hotel, Toronto.

Diane Waterman to Anthony Gilpin, London, April 10. Bride is a dancer in the Festival ballet company; he's her manager and twin brother of dancer John Gilpin.

Carol Ann Hooper to George A. Gamache, Nottingham, N. H., recently. He's a staffer of the Civic Theatre, Portsmouth, N. H.

Sharon Wickam to Bob Weatherford, Fort Worth, recently. Bride is a secretary with the Interstate circuit; he's a cameraman with KFJZ-TV there and son of Frank Weatherford, city manager for Interstate.

Jill Andre to Richard Franchot, New York, April 13. She is an actress; he's a legit producer and stage manager.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Newman, daughter, New York, April 1. Father is a production assistant at WCBS-TV.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Russell, daughter, New York, Feb. 18. Mother is actress Paulette Sanmarchi; father is an actor-singer.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Crean, son, New Rochelle, N.Y. Father is tv playwright.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Cervini, son, New York, April 3. Father is a contact representative with the NBC station relations dept.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kempley, daughter, New York, April 7. Father is a comedy writer with the Jack Paar show.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Williams, daughter, Pittsburgh, April 4. Father's a disk jockey on KDKA.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Miller, daughter, Pittsburgh, April 5. Mother's the daughter of Harry Brooks, of WHC.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Eisner, daughter, Pittsburgh, April 3. Father's with Al Marsico band at New Nixon; mother is Alice Gerber, a singer.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wiley, daughter, Philadelphia, April 7. Father is ad-promotion director for WRCV, WRCV-TV.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Ross, daughter, Los Angeles, April 1. Father is disk jockey at KDB, Santa Barbara.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Borah, son, Houston, Tex., recently. Mother is Kitty Watkins appearing in "Soundtrack" on KTRK-TV in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stevens, son, Houston, Tex., recently. Father is disk jockey on KILT in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Fredric H. von Stange, son, Bethpage, L.I., April 10. Father is a writer-producer for the U.S. Information Agency, Voice of America, in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Okun, daughter, New York, March 19. Father is sales service representative for CBS Radio.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Papalia, son, Teaneck, N. J., March 26. Father is general manager of Precision Film Laboratories in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Britton, son, New York, April 11. Father is on the production staff of the Broadway presentation of "Oh Captain."

Jay Carmody

Continued from page 5

U. S. entry, "Brothers Karamazov."

Nathan Golden, Dept. of Commerce film boss, and a veteran of film festivals, will be at Cannes but in an unofficial capacity, after attending Variety Clubs' convention in London.

Meantime, talk of a Washington Film Festival was being revived here by city officials. Suggestion has been made that the capital, with its estimated 3,000,000 summer tourists, would be a natural as show case for pix biz. Perle Mesta, internationally known hostess and former diplomat, is being plugged as the perfect chairman for a film competition. However, entire project is still in the talk stage, and, according to one spokesman, could hardly get off the ground until 1960.

"the one and only"

JOSÉ GRECO

with his company of

SPANISH DANCERS SINGERS AND MUSICIANS

Pictures:

DANCING STAR
Mike Todd's
"AROUND THE WORLD IN 80 DAYS"
(in Todd-AO)

Television:

DINAH SHORE SHOW
NBC
April 20

•

Hotels:

ROOSEVELT HOTEL
New Orleans
May 1 thru May 14

•

STATLER-HILTON
Dallas
May 16 thru May 28

•

QUEEN ELIZABETH
Montreal
June 9 thru June 29

•

Theatres:

GREEK THEATRE
Los Angeles
July 7 thru July 12

•

LEWISOHN STADIUM
New York
July 19

•

TRANS CONTINENTAL THEATRE-CONCERT TOUR
Begins Jan. 1959

Direction, WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

Personal Management, JOHN F. NONNENBACHER, JR.

FILMS | VIDEO | TV FILMS | RADIO | MUSIC | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 35¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $15. Single copies, 35 cents.
Entered as second-class matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.
COPYRIGHT, 1958, BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
VOL. 210 No. 8 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1958 64 PAGES

IVAN & SAM MAKE WITH 'CULTURE'

Brussels' Big 'Atomium'

Brussels, April 22.

Three of the nine balls of the Atomium are inter-connected by escalators, each with some industrial display (Sylvania, Westinghouse etc.), and the Carlton Restaurant from downtown Brussels has the de luxe eatery in the top ball with its commanding view of the entire Exposition. A lift makes a fast ascension of the 60-metre height in a minute. Service, naturally, was slow the opening night and the prices are as high as the 20-story rise of the Atomium whose nine huge balls of chromium-like metal gleam and command a view of the entire 450 acres. The balls represent the nine atoms of a crystal of steel enlarged 160 billion times.

Three of the balls are still deemed unsafe but escalators connect the rest. Just below the peak eatery there's a cocktailery, a la the Eiffel Tower, in Paris, with its two levels for public drinking-dining.

The balls appear as if suspended in air by some skillful juggler and, like the Trylon and Perisphere of the N.Y. World's Fair, are the Atomic Age symbols of the 1958 Exposition.

Less Fear in Hollywood Studios Today Of Over-Shooting Taste of Public

Having always hopefully banked on the concept of the "maturing audience," Hollywood now is really going after more serious—and difficult—themes. Sometimes, the treatment matches the subject.

Where, in the past, films have nibbled around the edges of intellectualism, always fearful of shooting over the heads of the mass audience, the new approach seems to take it for granted that the attraction of "offbeat" encompasses not only "shocker" themes, but also a degree of thoughtfulness.

Producers are now willing to buy books and plays that say something, and the gist of the material is quite frequently reflected in the film itself, despite the continuing emphasis on the popular and visual values. Increasingly, too, there is a willingness to experiment.

"The public is ready for more serious pictures," director Martin Ritt said in N.Y. last week. "There will be more and more really 'good' pictures coming from Hollywood, films that strive to combine a lot of things. And the reason why these pictures will be made is that we have to make them if we want to survive."

Ritt directed "The Long, Hot

(Continued on page 19)

Poetry With Jazz In Cafes Makes Bad Rhyme Out of Bohemians & Minimums

In the quest for new sounds and moods, niteries have latched onto a lot of cycles, one of the late ones being poetry readings.

Kenneth Rexroth, who has been declaiming in San Francisco, has now taken his iambics east and has settled down in a storefront in N.Y.'s lower East Side, inhabited by the bohemians, intelligentsia, artists, and a lot of characters in the genuine sense of the word.

In fact the location where Rexroth is now working looms

(Continued on page 6)

Lunt & Fontanne Nite On B'way in Spades May 5

Next May 5 will be Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne night on Broadway in spades. Not only will the husband and wife acting team be opening that night at the new Lunt-Fontanne Theatre in "The Visit," but immediately following the preem performance they'll be saluted with a ball in their honor in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor.

Proceeds from the ball, at which the Lunts will receive the annual Mary MacArthur Memorial Fund Award, will go toward the support of that fund, which was founded to honor the memory of the daughter of Helen Hayes and the late Charles MacArthur.

Dr. DuMont Out Of B'casting Biz; May Drop Title

Dr. Allen B. DuMont, who founded the DuMont Television Network as an adjunct of DuMont Laboratories, is now completely out of the broadcasting business—in both name and body. DuMont is being replaced on the board of DuMont Broadcasting Corp., the chain of stations that evolved when the network folded, by David J. Mahoney.

Mahoney, a former key executive with Ruthrauff & Ryan advertising and now president of Good Humor, is the only new name added to the DuMont board for 1958. He will be written in as a board member on May 12, when the stockholders vote. Something else they'll vote on is changing the

(Continued on page 6)

BRUSSELS' BATTLE OF THE PAVILIONS

By ABEL GREEN

Brussels, April 22.

Belgium's 1958 Exposition was previewed for the world press last Tuesday (15), two days in advance of King Baudouin lighting a symbolic torch on a lagoon in front of the main Exhibition Hall. As expected the expo at once became a race between the Russian and the Western ideologies.

While Brussels looms as a "fun" fair, which is what all fairs should be, and from the Belgium tourist viewpoint should emerge as a boffo expo, there are a number of new overtones—mostly Sam vs. Ivan on how to make friends and influence peoples.

The Russians are reputedly shooting a $50,000,000 bankroll to get the word across here. Included in their costs is an "Expo News" in four languages—Russian, French, English and Belgium's second language, Flemish. Against the Russian hard sell the Americans, crimped by an economy-minded Congress, may be too much on the soft sell.

The Russians will crowd in their Bolshoi Ballet, David Oistrakh, the

(Continued on page 14)

WW's Charity Turn Taxable as Wages

Hollywood, April 22.

Even though Walter Winchell contributes the entire $70,000 from his upcoming Tropicana, Las Vegas, appearance to charity, he must consider this coin as earnings, he was advised by the Treasury Dept. Ruling still will hold even if the checks for his two-week stand are made out directly to the charity involved and if he never sees the money.

"In other words," Winchell said, "The Government in effect is telling me how much it will allow me to give to charity." Involved is the Walter Winchell Foundation, which pays the operating expenses for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

In his Vegas act, starting May 27 at $35,000 weekly, he'll do a softshoe routine with 24 chorus girls and a mambo with Lita & Steven Peck.

WABD MEMORIAL FOR MIKE TODD

An hourlong memorial telecast for the late Mike Todd will be done by WABD the night of May 7. The New York tv station and Bill Doll, Todd's longtime friend and press-agent, have teamed up on the project and plan to parade a bevy of show bizzers who at one time or

(Continued on page 16)

Chayefsky's Boston Brannigan; Denies Calling N.Y. Crix 'Incompetent Drunks'

Boston, April 22.

Did Paddy Chayefsky call the New York drama critics "incompetent drunks?" He denies a Boston Globe story of last Tuesday (15) reporting that he made that and a few other frank statements to a group of Harvard students. The paper didn't print his denial, and editors expressed confidence in the reliability of the Harvard correspondent who had sent in the story.

Chayefsky, here for the premiere the following day of his film, "The Goddess," at the Beacon Hill Theatre, also made an appearance at the Dunster House Drama Workshop at Harvard. "An author, when he puts something on the stage, is in a sense naked, and vulnerable to criticism," he was reported to have told the student group. "When attacked, he can do nothing about it.

"Writers suffer more from the attacks of the nine incompetents—who are usually drunk—than they would from the most violent personal onslaught." What he had actually told the students, the playwright-scenarist explained, after the publication of the Globe story, was that "you cannot dismiss a whole city's critics as incompetent drunks." He never even mentioned the number nine, he told the United Press, as there are actually seven first-string daily critics in New York.

Chayefsky was also quoted in the Globe story as saying that he had received a nasty letter from playwright Arthur Miller, who had erroneously assumed that "The God-

(Continued on page 6)

Steve Allen's $5,000 Nitery Debut in N. Y.

Steve Allen will play his first cafe date in New York. He's been booked for the Roundtable starting June 2 for one week, at $5,000. He will head an all-star jazz combo which will include Terry Gibbs on the vibes and Gus Bivoni on clarinet. Deal was made through Joe Glaser's Associated Booking Corp. The club is opening May 4 on the site of the Versailles.

Shortly after the conclusion of this date Allen will leave for Europe for an eight-week vacation.

Chevalier, Jane Hit It for Hilton, Schnoz for Copa

New York's midtown hotel entertainment rooms are doing excellently with Maurice Chevalier's date at the Waldorf-Astoria and Jane Powell at the Plaza appearing to be the top draws in town. On the nitery front, the Copacabana, with Jimmy Durante toplining, is similarly doing very well. The other major nitery room, the Latin Quarter, preemed formally last night (Tues.) after a series of paid previews. It's been in the process of refurbishing for the past few weeks.

For the Chevalier date the Empire Room has a $4 couvert, but it seems no deterrent to business. He

(Continued on page 19)

WCBS-TV's News Flashes To Oppose N.Y. Times

Competition between television and newspapers takes on a new flavor shortly when WCBS-TV, the CBS flagship station in New York, will go into competition with the N.Y. Times with the erection of an electric news sign in the Times Square area. It's WCBS-TV's intention to flash news "15 to 30 minutes faster" than any other news sign on Broadway, meaning of course, the Times' famed bulletins atop the Times Tower.

The WCBS-TV sign will be erected by Douglas Leigh Inc., builder of the Times Sq. spectaculars, on the Broadway blockfront between 44th and 45th St., facing the Hotel Astor. New equipment developed by the Naxon Telesign Corp. will enable the sign's operator to type the news flashes, as he receives them over leased telephone cables from the WCBS-TV newsroom.

There's Something About Vancouver Niteries That Makes Comedians 'Blue'

Vancouver, April 15.

Standard wail of comics playing Vancouver is against smutty material. Most recent squawk comes from Stu Allen, who played the Cave Supper Club three weeks ago, and said, "I haven't worked this dirty since I started playing the strip joints in Chicago." Comic complained that he had started the fortnight "clean," had to spice up his material more and more, "because I was dyin'." He said he had received a letter from Simmy Bow, who had played the bistro for previous two weeks, which said, "PS. Work dirty!"

Same beef about Vancouver tastes in comedy lines was aired by veteran Lennie Gale, who said, "God, they like it low!" Gale's stint preceded Bow. During the past year, down the line of comics to play Vancouver, including Antone & Curtis, boffos have been reserved for smutty patter, with top howlgain reserved for homosexual innuendo or direct spoof.

U.S. Show Biz Names, British Brass Help Launch Int'l Convention Of Variety Club in London; 700 Attend

London, April 22.

The biggest-ever contingent of American show biz personalities to hit London at one time has assembled for today's (Tues.) opening of the International Convention of the Variety Club. Nearly 700 delegates and their wives have come in from all parts of the U. S. and Canada.

The confab opens with a business session at the Savoy Hotel this morning. The initial meeting is being followed by a luncheon at which the American Ambassador to Britain, John Hay Whitney, is guest of honor. The first major social event of the conclave will be a welcome banquet at the Guildhall tonight, when the chief guests will be the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of London and the Earl and Countess Mountbatten.

Tomorrow (Wed.), the delegates will assemble for a one-hour session at the Savoy to elect international officers for the coming year and will then head for Elstree, where Associated British will play host at a luncheon. In the evening, a visit to the Victoria Palace Theatre to see the current "Crazy Gang Show" will be followed by a supper dance at the Savoy, sponsored by Coca-Cola.

Thursday's session will open with a meeting of the Judging Panel to decide the Heart Awards and that item will be on the agenda also for the afternoon. That night Pepsi-Cola will host a dinner party in the Grand Ballroom at Grosvenor House.

Highlight of the Convention will be the Hearts Award Dinner at the Dorchester Hotel at which the

(Continued on page 62)

Sen. Humphrey Casting: Marian Anderson, M. M.

Washington, April 22.

Joint appearance of singer Marian Anderson and screen siren Marilyn Monroe at Moscow's Gorki Fair was suggested here past week by Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) as a display of American racial equality. The Minnesota solon made the intriguing suggestion in a plea for restoration of funds for the proposed American fair in Gorki Park.

U. S. exhibit, skedded to open August, but crippled by cut of $1,850,000 from original $2,200,000 appropriation, is to be partially financed by $15,000,000 allocated by Soviet Foreign Trade Ministry for purchases from American participants. Like all such projects, it is designed to put this country's best foot forward, and, at the same time, lure U. S. dollars to Moscow.

Amongst show biz projects suggested by Sen. Humphrey are a typical American ice revue a western rodeo and screenings of Hollywood films.

Jerry Lewis, Roger Price In Clicks at Palladium

London, April 22.

Two American comics clicked on the new Palladium bill yesterday (Mon.). Jerry Lewis was well received, while Roger Price found warm favor in this British variety flagship.

Lewis was better received as a soloist than when as a member of the comedy team with Dean Martin. Duo played this house five years ago. Lewis' act at the premiere was overlong and spotty.

Rest of the bill includes Marino Marini & Quartet, an Italian vocal and instrumental group; Kaye Sisters, local harmony trio; Raf & Julian Jover, comedy acrobats, and Skating Olandos, German quintet.

Layout is in for two weeks.

Howard Miller Easing Off TV; Quite Serious On Mayoralty Ambitions

Chicago, April 22.

Howard Miller is ankling his local WNBQ hourlong strip, formerly on the NBC-TV net, on May 16. Reasons: (1) Miller says he doesn't like to do television in the summertime; (2) he wants to devote some administrative time to the 250-watt radio station he has just purchased in Milwaukee; (3) and he wants to break some ground for his candidacy in next year's Chicago mayoralty elections.

Anent the latter, the Windy City's top ranking deejay says he is "60-40 serious." He does not yet know if he will run on a party ticket, which means presumably that since he has announced his willingness to run he will do it independently if not nominated by the Republicans. It's a foregone conclusion that the Democrats will run Mayor Richard J. Daley for re-election. Miller says he will probably start serious campaigning in the fall.

As to the Milwaukee AM-er, Miller's purchase of WFOX last week from Business Management Inc. should become effective by June 1. "It is not my intention to stay in Milwaukee to run the station," Miller said, "but it is near enough to Chicago for me to direct it from here. Perhaps in the future I'll do a show or two on it, but right now my interest in it is administrative." Miller revealed he is interested in buying other radio properties to build up and sell for capital gains.

The Chicago dejay will continue his morning radio shows shows on WIND and WBBM, but the resigning of tv will give him Saturday afternoons off for a rest.

Home too Small, Parents Establish a Night Club To Keep Teeners in Tow

San Antonio, April 22.

Like most parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Perry like to know where their youngsters are and what they are doing, so they encouraged them to brings their friends home.

The crowds got so big their house simply wasn't large enough to hold all the lively youngsters. The Perrys solved the problem by opening a night club here for teenagers in an empty store building.

This city, as well as other large cities in the state, plus the country on the whole, are surprisingly short on recreational facilities for teenagers outside of school activities. But the new Teens canteen is one of the few places where young couples can dance up a storm and generally have a good time without being exposed to liquor and all that goes with it.

At the same time, the teenagers are not being exposed to an awesome number of chaperones, although the Perrys themselves are on duty at all times to keep an eye on things.

The canteen looks like a night club. The lights are low, but not out. Music is furnished by a jukebox. Local disk jockies occasionally show up to put on record hops.

The canteen is open to all teenagers at a minimum charge. Hours are from 6 to 9:30 p. m. Wednesday and Sunday and from 6 p. m. until midnight on Friday and Saturday.

Europe-No. Amer. TV Link 'By '64'

Ottawa, April 21.

Possibly by 1964 there will be two-way television communication between Europe and North America, according to the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.'s report on the meeting of the European Broadcasting Union in Amsterdam. EBU technicians are reported as claiming transatlantic transmission is possible now and should be economically feasible in five or six years.

Speedup of newsfilm delivery from Europe to North America was strengthened at the EBU huddle. This would use the Eurovision network plus fast aircraft.

William Hogg, CBC's chief news editor, sponsored a resolution calling on EBU members to refuse to pay fees for covering news events by television. Meeting agreed, says CBC, that telefilm newsreel men should have the same privileges of coverage as press reporters and lensmen.

GI Actor-Winners Of Irving Berlin Trophy On Ed Sullivan's TVer

Washington, April 22.

Grand finalists in the all-Army entertainment competition for the Irving Berlin Trophy will compete at Fort Belvoir, across the river from Washington, D. C., on June 18 and 19. Winners will appear on the Ed Sullivan program over CBS-TV on June 29 and will also be featured in the world tour of the soldier show, "Rolling Along of 1958."

This marks the first time since the inception of the contest five years ago that it will be staged in the vicinity of the nation's capital. Two hundred contestants will attempt to chalk up points in the hope of their respective commands capture the Berlin trophy which was dedicated by the Secretary of the Army and established by the Adjutant General as a symbol of standout-performance in soldier shows.

Judges this year will be Paul Herron, Washington Post & Times Herald; Harry McArthur, Washington Evening Star; Don Hearn, Washington Daily News, and Florence Lowe, VARIETY, Washington.

Lynn Farnol, the old halleuljah man for various film divines, doing a survey for his cigar account, asking gents how old they were when they first tried a stogie, and where and how it happened and "how did you feel after smoking your first cigar?" . .

Robeson: Boxoffice Vs. Politics

At a time when his American manager is trying to reestablish Paul Robeson as a U. S. boxoffice attraction, the kind of attention he is receiving around the world from Communist "befrienders" may not help his professional comeback. The Communists are perhaps, in terms of their own propaganda advantage, being quite clever. That the word was out on Robeson's recent 60th birthday to use the incident to embarrass the Yanks appears clear.

A blunt characterization of Robeson's political blindspot and the Reds attempt to exploit his artistic reputation is reported in the story below from New Delhi, India. It is to be noted in the companion story out of East Berlin that the Reds there used a Robeson birthday party to call President Eisenhower "another Hindenberg."

Stories which follow have been collated for the pattern they spell out.

Red Rally in East Berlin Dubs Paul Robeson As 'State Dept. Prisoner 1'

By HANS HOEHN

Berlin, April 15.

East Berlin's Communists utilized the 60th birthday of American singer Paul Robeson to stage a two-hour "party" in the 3,000-seat Friedrichstadt-Palast. Hailing him as "State Dept. Prisoner Number One," the speeches and other ceremonies were put on television.

All in all the United States took a sharp prodding of sarcasm about not being, as billed, "the land of liberty."

Wolfgang Langoff, chairman of the East German Robeson committee, cracked, "A country which allegedly stands so much for freedom is keeping him from getting a visa." He added, "Dulles won't congratulate Robeson on his 60th birthday, but we do it herewith!" (Enthusiastic applause on the part of the audience.)

Peggy Middleton of the Paul Robeson Committee in London stepped up to the mike. She said that there were millions of people all over the world celebrating Robeson's birthday. She named a number of localities and read letters to the audience. Her speech was constantly interrupted by applause. She admitted: "In London I don't find such unanimous applause."

Highlight of Miss Middleton's speech was the reading of a letter by a Shakespearian expert by the name of Dover Wilson (or something like that); "In the name of Shakespeare, we appeal to Washington: Let Paul Robeson loose!"

Arnold Zweig, the writer, now 70 and somewhat shaky though firm of voice spoke as "honorary president of the Academy of Arts." He recalled visiting America in 1939 (from Palestine) to take part in a P.E.N. (poets, essayists, novelists) club meeting. While in U. S. "I then met Roosevelt in Washington, Albert Einstein in Princeton and Paul Robeson in Connecticut —three great, unforgettable Americans."

"But believe me," Zweig continued, "that was a different America, an America that cannot be compared with today's America.

(Continued on page 19)

Nehru, Others In India Raise Many Eyebrows With Robeson Tribute

By AUSTEN NAZARETH

New Delhi, April 15.

Indians hailed Paul Robeson on the attaining of his 60th year, but beneath the strains of "Happy Birthday" were audible sharp political undertones. A well-filled Sapru House was the scene of the birthday tribute to the great American singer.

Rajkumari [princess] Amrit Kaur, a former member of the Indian government and the chairman of the Delhi Robeson committee, and Dr. A. Krishnaswami, committee member and an M.P., made speeches; a chorus of African students sang; Ustad Hafiz Ali Khan played the sarod.

Climax of the celebrations was the special tape-recording of songs by Robeson himself, and a message from him of "warmest and heartfelt greetings to the people" of "beloved India." Politics did not come to the surface of the celebration itself. But the undercurrent of controversy was there.

What columnist Cassius said in the "Hindusthan Standard" perhaps summed up the average informed Indian view of Robeson the public figure. "His politics are woolly, as is the case with many artists," wrote Cassius. "That the Communists exploit his artistic

(Continued on page 6)

Polo Grounds Rally For Israel's Anni

Israel's first decade of independence will be saluted Sunday (27) at the Polo Grounds, N. Y., in a celebration that will be replete with show biz names. Scheduled to take part in the program are Ralph Bellamy, Melvyn Douglas, Henry Fonda, Teresa Wright, Mischa Elman and George London, among others.

Co-chairmen of the picture industry committee to assist in the celebration include Barney Balaban, Spyros Skouras and Jack L. Warner. Other members of the committee are Robert S. Benjamin, Samuel Goldwyn, Arthur B. Krim, Milton R. Rackmil and Dore Schary.

4/23

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00

Three Years—$39.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.
Syd Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y. JUdson 2-2700
Hollywood 28
6404 Sunset Boulevard, HOllywood 9-1141
Washington 4
1292 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445
Chicago 11
612 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984
London WC2
8 St. Martin's Pl., Trafalgar Sq., COVent Garden 0135

SUBSCRIPTION: Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Volume 210 (120) Number 8

INDEX

Bills	56	New Acts	56
Chatter	62	Night Club Reviews	57
Film Reviews	6	Obituaries	63
House Reviews	56	Pictures	3
Inside Legit	61	Radio	20
Inside Music	48	Radio Reviews	40
Inside Radio-TV	40	Record Reviews	46
International	10	Television	20
Legitimate	58	Television Reviews	27
Literati	61	TV Films	22
Music	45	Vaudeville	53

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a year. $20 Foreign.

'YANKEE TRADERS' FROM USSR

Earnings Trend Moves Up At Metro

Loew's is beginning to see a ray of hope as a result of its second quarter statement, covering a 16-week period, which disclosed net earnings of $1,800,000 or 34c per share. Earnings include income from theatres, still included financially with the production-distribution company, and from other subsidiaries such as music company, records and radio station.

These earnings reverse the trend of the two previous stanzas, both of which showed losses. As a consequence, total earnings for the first 28 weeks of the current fiscal year are $509,000 or 10c per share. In the first 12-week period, the company reported a loss of $1,291,000 or 24c per share. No comparison for quarterly earnings with the previous year are made because of a change in the company's accounting methods.

Although the financial report does not contain a breakdown of income from various sources, it's believed studio operation showed a hefty loss for the past six months. This remains the number one task facing prexy Joseph R. Vogel.

Metro's Hidden Darling, 16m Division; 50% Profit on $4,500,000 Gross

In the midst of Loew's production, financial and corporate problems, an almost unknown and unheralded division of the company has been bringing in a steady and substantial income into the treasury. The division is the company's 16m operation which racked up a gross revenue of $4,500,000 during 1957. At least 50% of thts income represents net profit.

The division, established in 1946 under the direction of Orton H. Hicks, has a history of steady growth each year, the gross income increasing from $30,000 in 1946 to the $4,500,000 in 1957. Originally, the 16m market consisted only of overseas countries. However, Canada was added in 1949 and the U. S. in 1956. The 16m U. S. operation was turned over to Films Inc., a subsidiary of the Encyclopedia Britiannica, which pays Loew's an annual royalty of $500,000. In Canada and abroad, Loew's maintains its own operation to the extent of having staffers working fulltime on 16m in areas where the business is particularly active. In other territories, one individual who has other duties is made responsible for the 16m activity. Loew's is the only company that has a separate homeoffice de-

(Continued on page 16)

Deserting Television?

St. Paul, April 22.

James Eshelman, manager of firstrun Strand and Tower Theatres, says he has evidence the good old days have returned. A kid was caught trying to sneak in.

It's the first time anything like that has happened in a number of years at either theatre.

About Cannes, '58 U.S. Distribs Are Moderately Glad

Generally satisfied with its selections for the Cannes film festival this year, Motion Picture Export Assn. still is groping for a new formula that would suit the American entries more directly to fest requirements.

There's been dissatisfaction for a long time with the manner in which the selections are made, and the issue was raised again last year, when "Friendly Persuasion" was the official American contender (and won the top prize).

The "official" entry at Cannes this year is Metro's "The Brothers Karamaov." Runners-up are "The Goddess" and "Desire Under The Elms." 20th-Fox, which doesn't make its films available to MPEA, has managed to get "The Long, Hot Summer" invited. Cannes starts May 2.

There are some in MPEA who wish the whole selection procedure could be dropped, with each company making available a list of pictures from which the festivals could pick. However, there are

(Continued on page 18)

Orton Hicks Quits Loew's; to Veep Dartmouth College

Orton H. Hicks, head of Loew's 16m operation and a member of the board of Loew's International, will leave the company on June 1 to become vice president of Dartmouth College. At the request of Dartmouth prexy John Sloan Dickey, Loew's topper Joseph R. Vogel agreed to release Hicks from the three remaining years of his contract. However, Hicks will be available as a consultant to Loew's until April, 1961. He will be succeeded by Jack Gordon, his assistant for the past two years.

A Dartmouth graduate of 1921, Hicks will be associated with the Dartmouth president in all phases of the college's public affairs work, particularly in fields of development, alumni activities and public relations.

Hicks, a pioneer in the distribution of 16m entertainment films, started his career with Eastman Kodak. Later he founded Films, Inc., now a subsidiary of Encyclopedia Britannica. During World War II, he served in the Army Signal Corps as a lieutenant colonel where he organized and directed the distribution of motion pictures to the armed forces. Following the war, Hicks was invited by Arthur Loew, former Loew's international chief, to join the board of Loew's International and to establish a worldwide 16m distribution system for Metro films.

SOVIETS' THEME IS 'MUTUALITY'

By FRED HIFT

While the Russians and the Americans recently agreed to agree about "exchange" of films, now that negotiations have begun in New York City it is apparent that the two countries do not agree on what it was they signed. A whole series of clarifications of the clarification must take place if anything is actually to happen.

Fine, subtle points of what constitutes an "exchange" are at the nub. The word itself is absent from the film section of the USSR-USA pact, though commonly used as to cultural (concert, dancing, symphony) "exchanges." In the instance of motion pictures, a series of privately-owned American distributors face one government arm.

Despite "official" meetings and ample interpretation, the two parties still don't see eye-to-eye on who should do what for whom, and how. Washington says one thing. The Russians say another. And the film industry, which hasn't been too eager for Soviet deals in the first place but was pushed into them by Uncle Sam is lost amidst the official fog.

Outwardly the Soviets clearly understand that there can be no "exchange" of films—but this does not stop a kind of expectation of doing so. VARIETY last week asked the Russians to state their position. The visitors applied clear and simple answers:

Soviet Russia will buy films only from those major American companies which are willing to acquire Russian features in return. This

(Continued on page 16)

A Candid Russian

There was something remarkably candid in the reply of Alexander Davydov last week when he was asked: Just why do you want to buy American films?

"It is not a question of love," replied the Sovexport boss. "We have signed an agreement, and we intend to live up to the letter and spirit of it."

Briskin: 3-Year Deal on Salary As Col. Chief

Hollywood, April 22.

Samuel J. Briskin yesterday was named head of Columbia Pictures' activities in Hollywood by a special committee comprising Columbia's board of directors. Briskin was signed to a three-year contract and is to begin work at the Gower street lot April 21. Board of directors is expected to name him v.p. in charge of Coast activities for the studio at its next meeting.

Columbia's disclosure Briskin had been tapped for the top job at the studio confirms the story pub-

(Continued on page 14)

Culver City Studio Overhead Remains Loew's Open Spigot And More Cuts Now Being Plotted

Efforts will be made to trim Loew's Inc. overhead by another $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. The necessity for additional cost-saving, although prexy Joseph R. Vogel has already cut $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 from the company's annual expenses, came up at last week's meeting of the board of directors.

Despite overall profit of $1,800,000 for the second quarter of the current fiscal year, studio operation showed a loss of $5,000,000 in the first six months of the fiscal period. The studio red ink, was wiped out by the substantial earnings of the company's record and music divisions, its radio station, and its income from the lease of pictures to television.

As a consequence, a number of members of the board pitched aggressively for additional belt-tightening so that the company's overall operations can move more solidly into the black and feel something drastic must be done to halt the continuing losses of the studio. Pictures made under the Vogel regime have fared satisfactorily and although there were money-makers among them, there were no blockbusters to level off overhead.

Several of the directors, it's reported, asked Vogel to come up with an overall, long-range production program. With the decision to retain Sol C. Siegel as studio production chief, it's expected that Vogel and Siegel will get together post haste to come up with production packages.

Financial experts on the board feel that progress is being made in getting the company back on an even keel, but it's acknowledged that there's still a long way to go.

More US-USSR Talks Take Place

Washington, April 22.

Russians are dickering for 16 Hollywood pix. Reps of both countries met at State Dept. here Monday (21) to report on progress of bargaining sessions with individual companies. Three-man Soviet delegation was augmented by newcomer M. Krilof, just arrived as cultural adviser to Russian Embassy.

Eric Johnston and Turner Shelton continue to head U.S. team with Thomas Beal, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, also present at Monday's huddle.

Russians continue to meet this week with reps of Warners, Universal, Columbia, United Artists and 20th-Fox on picture deals. Reds are interested in following pix:—"Helen of Troy," "Oklahoma," "Bridge on River Kwai" (which they saw in Moscow), "An Affair to Remember," they turned down Warners' Oscar Nominee, "Sayonara."

Talks now center on price, and such details as cost of negatives, etc. though Russians have never furnished numbers of theatres in their country, it is believed that USSR has about 20,000 conventional theatres, but exhibit films in an additional 30,000 halls, cultural centers etc.

Unofficial estimates place number of completed-and-available Russian pix suitable for distribution in this country at about half a dozen.

Delegations meet again Wednesday (23), with hopes that initial buying-selling phase of agreement can be completed.

Johnston and Shelton will trek to Russia in mid-summer as members of joint committee. This, too, is according to terms of original agreement.

Leo's New Man With the Whip: Sol C. Siegel

Sol C. Siegel will assume the top production post at Metro by May 1. Agreement on terms for Siegel, now operating at the M-G studio as an independent, was reached on Friday (18) in a meeting in New York attended by Siegel, prexy Joseph R. Vogel, Louis A. Green, key financial figure on the board of directors, director Ira Guilden, financial v.p. Robert H. O'Brien, and general counsel Benjamin A. Melniker. Finalization of the three-year deal, brewing for several months, came after a discussion of the terms at last week's meeting of the board.

Contracts are being drawn on the Coast and will be ready in about two weeks, but Siegel, who was once proposed for the presidency of Loew's, is likely to take over before the contract is finalized. Vogel, now on the Coast, officially revealed yesterday (Tues.) that an agreement had been reached with Siegel, but did not disclose the terms.

It's understood that Siegel did not sell his indie company outright to Loew's, but only some of its assets for a price of about $1,000,000. One report has it that Green, who played a leading role in the negotiations, convinced Siegel to accept $300,900 less than his original demand. By operating his own company and fulfilling his outstanding production commitments, Siegel will thus receive a percentage of the Metro production he himself makes. It's understood his salary will be $4,000 weekly.

Producer's remaining commitments are "Some Came Running" and "I Thank A Fool," which will star Ingrid Bergman. He also has

(Continued on page 18)

YANK FILM BIZ IN JAP POLITICAL FIRE; MAAS FILES DETAILED REPLY TO DIET

By DAVE JAMPEL

Tokyo, April 15.

Motion Picture Export Assn.'s Far East veep Irving Maas has responded to anti-American film charges hurled in Diet committee meetings with a letter of rebuttal to Toshihiko Sakai, Foreign Exchange Bureau of the Finance Ministry, "answering each and every charge."

Topic is a hot one here annually and especially this year during pre-allocation and import license announcement season when the U. S. film industry became caught in political crossfire coming under attacks influenced by Socialists in the Diet.

Maas' letter responds at length to various general charges with specific background and solidifies the U. S. film position here with clarities in place of innuendoes.

The Diet opposition appears to be spearheded by one Imazumi of Yamaguchi Prefecture. He argues that there are 2,000 theatres showing foreign product in Japan today, triple the pre-war figure, while film importation is now limited to 189 annually as against 300 before the war.

Maas' letter responds: "He forgets to point out, (a) Pre-war Japan was a free market until about 1938 at that time, by free choice of importers and to meet the expressed preference of the Japanese public, the American share of imported films rose 85% to 95% of the total. (b) In pre-war Japan, American films were imported and distributed almost totally by branches of the American parent company and only very rarely by the Japanese company."

Imazumi further argued that the present import system originated in 1950 under the Occupaton with agreement between Eric Johnston and the Finance Ministry.

Points

The MPEA letter says the above is untrue. It points out that the final SCAP Regulation 8 was dated 8 April 1950 and that the MPEA was not consulted in its formulation. The Regulation stated, "The motion picture industry of any country may bring into Japan in any one calendar year up to the maximum number of films imported from the country concerned and cleared for exhibition in any

(Continued on page 16)

Blockbusting Its Promotion, UA To Spend $9,000,000 on Bally; Mori Krushen Field Staff of 45

United Artists is set to spend $9,000,000 for promotion of its pictures over the next 12 months and in so doing will employ the largest bally staff in the company's history, Roger H. Lewis, ad-pub director, stated in New York this week. (Total of 45 field men are now either working under, or in liaison with, exploitation director Mori Krushen.)

In addition to the usual approaches, new avenues of communication to the public are to be put to use, Lewis said, these including close coordination with the UA music exploitation, seminars with women's groups, special appeals to the Negro market, etc.

Alfred H. Tamarin, v.p. of UA's music operations, said the work on the picture end serves to complement the publishing and record side and vice versa. Outfit, for example, has staged "record hops" in theatre lobbies which draw audiences to the picture product and at the same time expose them to the music.

This works particularly well, said Tamarin, since it's been established that the younger generation represents the big market for both pictures and platters. Further, record jackets are communicating more about UA's theatrical features.

Lewis, discussing straight picture promotion, said that the only effective campaign is the one that begins with the inception of the idea for the film, with the tub-thumping carried through from script stage right through to actual exhibition. In line with this he noted that pressagent Maria Van Slyke has been on the road a month making with the words about "On the Beach" despite the fact this Stanley Kramer production doesn't even go before the cameras until late summer or early fall.

Lewis said UA's operations in pictures, music and television all are as one, so far as promotion is concerned. There are no separate departments; instead, all personnel work together.

Ad-pub chief also had a few unkind words for exhibitors who, he insisted, are not doing their share toward shouldering the required promotional burdens.

N. Y. to L. A.

Jack Byrne
Julius J. Colby
Bob Chandler
Rene Fraday
Milton Goldman
Abel Green
G. U. (Johnny) Johnstone
Jack Lenny
Gregory Morton
Ellen Muir
Milton Pickman
George Rosen
Leon Roth
Leonard W. Schneider
Arnold Schulman
Ben Segal
Syd Silverman
Charles S. Steinberg
Herman Steinbruch
Frances Stillman
Joseph R. Vogel
L. Arnold Weissberger
Cornel Wilde

N. Y. to Europe

Harry Adler
Lyn Austin
Stephen Boyd
Reg Connelly
Leonard Field
Jean Goldwurm
Alan King
Edward L. Kingsley
Leo Lax
Walter A. Lowen
Philip Miles
Martin Ritt
Oscar Serlin
Trotter Bros.
Sam Zimbalist

Europe to N. Y.

Bob Considine
Wm. Randolph Hearst Jr.
Ken Giniger
Ben Grauer
Leonard Lyons
William Nichols
Richard Pack
Mike Santangelo
Horace Sutton

Lehman-Lazard Man to Succeed Sam Briskin On Loew's Directorate

Opening on Loew's board of directors, brought about by the resignation of Samuel J. Briskin to become Columbia's production chief, will probably be retained for a representative of the Wall Street banking firms of Lehman Bros. and Lazard Freres. Banking firms, whose proxy votes gained Briskin a seat on the board, want to continue with own spokesman in the inner conclaves.

Lehman and Lazard, as well as Louis A. Green, who with his associate, Jerome A. Newman, controls some 150,000 shares of Loew's stock, have favored a reduction in Loew's 19-man board. They have regarded a board of that size as unwieldy, but under present circumstances have agreed to go along with the situation in light of the fact that it would be embarrassing for prexy Joseph R. Vogel to ask for the resignations of board members who came to his help during the proxy fight for control of Loew's last year.

However, Lehman, Lazard and Green are expected to push for a reduction of the board when the right opportunity arises. At present Briskin will have to be replaced or the board will have to be cut to 17. It's considered unfeasible to go along with an 18-man board since no decision will be able to be made if there is a stalemate.

L. A. to N. Y.

Lawrence Bachmann
Frank Cooper
Hume Cronyn
Arlene Dahl
John Forsythe
Bud Getzler
June Havoc
Taylor Holmes
Henry Jaffe
Martin Jurow
Bernard Kamber
Fernando Lamas
Art Linkletter
Selma Lynch
Ralph Martin
Edwin Miller
Harold Mirisch
Charles Russell
Eva Marie Saint
Monty Schaff
Sol C. Siegel
Spyros P. Skouras
Ray Stark
W. Lee Wilder
William Wyler

Film Co. Dividends

Washington, April 22.

Film industry dividends for March totaled $3,772,000 as compared with $3,836,000 in same month of 1957. Aggregate for first quarter was $6,523,000 as against $6,920,000 a year ago.

Following companies paid same dividends in March this year and last: Allied Artists, $21,000; Consolidated Amusement Co., $55,000; Paramount Pictures, $1,094,000; 20th-Fox, $1,058,000; United Artists Theatre Circuit, $8,000.

American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres paid out $1,126,000 in March of 1958 but nothing same month of 1957. United Artists paid $350,000 this time but nothing a year ago. Universal Pictures paid $59,000 as against $314,000 in 1957. Du Art Film Labs. paid $1,000, nothing a year ago. Loew's Inc., paid nothing this time. In March last year it paid out $1,286,000.

TO CHARGE PRODUCERS TITLE REGISTRY FEE

Title Registration Bureau of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, operated since its 1936 inception on a gratis basis for participating producers, has now become a cost proposition. Film-makers are now to pay for the privilege of registering, and thus protecting titles, as a means of switching the Bureau to a self-sustaining financial basis.

This is part of the overall plan to reduce the MPAA overhead.

Currently, 280 independent producers utilize the title-filing service, which provides them with daily reports running 15 to 20 pages on registrations, withdrawals, transfers, priorities and protested titles. Service also has been provided to the nine MPAA member companies gratis; now all will pay the same service charge.

Bureau maintains a file of 50,000 titles of released pictures and 15,000 unreleased.

New cost setup requires each participating producer to pay an annual membership fee of $65, plus the fixed amount of $70 for each group of 10 titles registered up to a maximum of $1,470.

Cases of title conflict usually are resolved by either negotiation between the parties involved or arbitration.

Jimmy Allen's Accident

Dallas, April 22.

Jimmy Allen, recently named manager of the Texas Theatre, operated by Rowley United Theatres is currently recuperating in the Methodist Hospital from a leg broken in three places and broken ribs, suffered when his car was hit head on by another car.

Louis Hinton is pinch hitting as manager of the Texas.

MPAA Budget Cuts Mostly Domestic; Move Into Smaller N.Y. Quarters

Motion Picture Assn. of America board is mulling the possibility of combining its eastern budget with that of the Motion Picture Producers Assn. on the Coast. Move would have the effect of raising dues from some of the non-studio owning outfits.

Running parallel with this is an idea for changing the dues-paying formula. MPAA budget currently is computed on a percentage of each company's domestic gross.

MPAA has submitted a reduced budget to the board. Combining this with the Coast budget, it's felt, would bring about a more equitable distribution of "the load."

Though the Motion Picture Assn. of America last week presented a reduced 1958-59 budget to the board, the operations of the Motion Picture Export Assn. are not likely to be seriously affected. Most of the cuts will be made on the domestic side.

Board approved a scheme to put the title registration bureau of the MPAA on a self-sustaining basis. MPAA budget is financed on the basis of a percentage of every member company's domestic gross. Percentage changes depending on the gross. Due to conditions, dues collections naturally have been below those in prior years.

The MPEA budget is worked out and approved separately. Involved for the most part are the expenditures of the individual MPEA office. Some of the companies have been arguing that, considering their own determined efforts to cut corners, these MPEA costs have been too high.

At the same time, there is a good deal of sentiment against any substantial changes in the MPEA setup. It's realized that the foreign market today more than ever constitutes a vital part of the industry's functions (about 52% of total revenues come from overseas) and that the MPEA organization is needed to help keep the foreign situation from deteriorating.

Only difference is that, where MPEA has argued that additional men are needed in the field, there isn't likely to be any staff expansion, though there may be a redistribution of manpower. If, for instance, Charles Baldwin in London eventually decides to retire (which has been his intention), post probably would be filled by someone in New York or Washington. Both Ralph Hetzel, exec v.p., and

(Continued on page 16)

New York Sound Track

The "new" optimism: Alfred E. Daff, exec v.p. of Universal, told Philippine exhibitors that "after the next two years" business will be the best ever.

Barney Balaban, spending more time at the studio, winged out over the weekend for another visit . . . Jerry Pickman vacationing this week in Florida . . . Max Youngstein due back next from a onceover of indie production in Europe . . . Otto Preminger off next month for London, then Singapore, anent the production preliminaries on "Ways of Salvation." He bought rights to the Pierre Boulle novel last week . . . Irving Harris, working in New York, now casting "Quartet in H." Producer says the picture will have 87 speaking roles.

Louis E. Wolfson telegram commenting on report of his participation in "a purported offer to purchase the shares of Columbia Pictures held by Mrs. Harry Cohn," is quoted herewith: "Most emphatically I have never made an offer, directly or indirectly, to purchase these shares of Columbia Picture stock, and have under no circumstances authorized anyone to use my name in any negotiations."

A brother documentary film team—Albert and David C. Maysles—have returned from Russia with fottage for two films—"Psychiatry in Russia," said to be first on USSR mental hospitals, and "Russian Close Up," a view of Soviet citizens at their everyday work. They also filmed in Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia . . . Rhode Island Development Council pitching eight R. I. communities as a possible location site for Columbia's "Wreck of the Old 97." A newly-designed crystalite lenticulated screen will be installed in the legit Royale Theatre for the showing of Metro's "Gigi." Reserved seats go on sale May 1. Pic preems May 15 . . . Bernie Kamber, Hecht-Hill-Lancaster pub-ad chief, setting some kind of travel record. He flew to the Coast for two weeks of conferences, returned to N.Y. for a day, then headed for Miami for a week to bally the opening of "Run Silent, Run Deep." He returns to N.Y. and then hops to London May 1 to set up the unit for "The Devil's Disciple" production and for conferences with United Artists officials on the June opening of "Run Silent" in London . . . Stephen Boyd, young actor signed by Metro to portray the Roman Tribune, Messala in "Ben Hur," off to London over the weekend, enroute to Rome to begin preparations for the film . . . Metro's "The Sleepman" set for national release May 30, following saturations bookings in 150 theatres in the Denver, Salt Lake City, Oklahoma City and Dallas territories . . . Casts of Broadway shows saw the film version of "Uncle Vanya" at a special midnight showing at the Baronet Theatre last week. Same policy was followed last night (Tues.) for "Stage Struck" at Normandie Theatre . . . Loew's Theatres v.p.—John Murphy vacationing in Florida.

Vancouver highway approaches are mostly tollbridges, and last week at biggie Orpheum theatre wickets, where "Bridge on the River Kwai" currently preems, Sun scribe Jack Wasserman overheard patrons querying the cashier and smirking "So what's the toll?"

Clark Gable set for a second Perlberg-Seaton production, "But Not for Me," to follow "Teacher's Pet" . . . Hal Kanter will write-direct "How to Break Into the Movies" for Metro . . . Columbia Pix handed William Fadiman new contract as story dept. chief . . . Stephen Boyd takes on Messala character in Metro's "Ben Hur."

Film biz oldtimer and retired California professor Kenneth Macgowan is in residence temporarily at Modern Palas Hotel at Istanbul, Turkey . . . Eugene W. Castle addresses Los Angeles Breakfast Club today (Wed.) on "Why Cultural Exchanges with the Soviets? . . ." former industrial and home film producer (he sold out to U) is continuing his campaign against foreign spending on the grounds money spent overseas is running the domestic economy . . . woman at Mort Sahl's one-man revue opens program, says to companion . . . "say, guess who's in this show . . . Mort Sahl!" . . . Jack Perlis swears he overheard it . . .

Renee Francine after 10 years divided between Hollywood and European beats is back in Manhattan. First two writing jobs for Coronet: Plaza Hotel and John Huston. Also doing a piece on Erskine Caldwell for Cosmopolitan's Writers' Issue in August.

Broadway Street Scene: Teeners ogling the lusty stills and artwork at the New York Theatre where "The Witch" is given marquee billing as a "Frank Story of Sex and Passion . . ." Happy days, with "This-Performance-Sold-Out" signs posted at the "River Kwai," "South Pacific" and "Around the World" runs. Can it be the picture business is taking over the "Fabulous Invalid" role so long identified with legit? . . . Warners' "Stakeout on Dope Street" and UA's "Thunder Road" and "Enemy from Space" all skipping the showcases, opening in Brooklyn instead.

"The Long, Hot Summer" was brought in at only $1,600,000 . . . Alexander Davydov, head of Russia's Sovexport, is on first visit to the U.S. Had no time to do any sightseeing in N.Y. . . . French star Brigitte Bardot is currently represented with three voices in the U.S.—her own, the one in the dubbed "And God Created Woman" and now another one in "Une Parisienne," which Peter Riethof is dubbing. Doubtful anyone knows the difference . . . Fewer independent distributors going to Cannes this year than last. Too tough to make deals there . . . Metro's "The Hucksters" on tv must have had some soap advertisers bubble. Quote: "One soap's just like the other. The difference is only in the advertising." . . . The Mike Todd office is still getting mail addressed to Todd from people who haven't heard . . . Jerry Wald trying to convince William Faulkner to come to Cannes where "Long, Hot Summer" is a hot contender. Wald, director Martin Ritt, stars Lee Remick, Anthony Franciosa and probably also Joanne Woodward and husband Paul Newman are making the trip . . . Agent Peter Witt heading for Europe.

Reaching: WB publicity handout describes Audrey Hepburn as the granddaughter of a Dutch baron who once was Governor of Surinam in Dutch Guiana . . . Something new in European tours is planned by Gideon Bachmann, v.p. of the American Federation of Film Societies. It's a seven-country, month-long film archives trip via KLM. Tour leaves July 1 and covers archive screenings in London, Brussels, Paris, Turin, Milan, Rome and Copenhagen.

Greta Lauder, niece of the late Scottish comedian, Sir Harry Lauder, is assembling his diaries and notes to write his biography. During his lifetime Lauder wrote two autobiographies, "A Minstrel in France" (1918) and "Roamin' in the Gloaming" (1927).

Thrush Shirley Harmer's new M-G-M acting contract limits her tv appearances to two a year in the U.S., but permits as many as she likes in her native Canada. She was born in Thornton's Corners, 35 miles from Toronto, and starred in General Electric's Sunday night "Showtime" for three seasons before hitting Hollywood via a George Gobel appearance.

Eva LeGallienne into Hecht-Hill-Lancaster's "The Devil's Disciple," with Burt Lancaster, Kirk Douglas and Laurence Olivier . . . Maxie Rosenbloom goes into Gene Fowler Jr.'s "I Married a Monster from Outer Space" . . . 20th-Fox picked up Joanne Woodward's option for a fourth year . . .

Arch Oboler's "Night of the Auk" legiter bought by BBC-TV as a 75-minute spec . . . Tenth anni of founding of Israel to be marked by special MBS program Friday (25) . . .

FILM HOUSE WAGES AT 28%

Ozoners Victory: One-Man at $175

Minneapolis April 22.

An agreement having been reached on a new four-year contract's terms, IATSE union projectionists are back in the booths of Twin Cities area's 11 drive-in theatres which ran with non-union operators during the current season's first two weeks.

A settlement was arrived at after resumption of negotiations last Saturday (19), ending what the projectionists labeled a lockout and the ozoners a strike.

Under the settlement the outdoor theatres wil effect a considerable saving. Heretofore two men to a booth at $137.50 a week each, had been costing $275 weekly. The new contract calls for one projection to a booth at $175 per week, out of which 10% is alloted for pensions.

In each of the contract's three remaining years operators will receive an additional $3.50 per week, bringing them to a $185.50 maximum in 1961.

With the non-union men in the booths the ozoners had been functioning normally and, helped by favorable weather, business has been good.

Circuit owner Ted Mann, president of the Minnesota Enterprise's five outdoor theatres, represented all the drive-ins in the negotiations.

'If Market Requires, We'd Make 75 to 100 Features Yearly'—Spyros Skouras

Hollywood, April 22.

Twentieth-Fox will produce 75 to 100 pictures annually "if the market requires it," prexy Spyros P. Skouras stated at end of a three-day board of directors meet, first ever held by company on Coast.

Exec simultaneously said that that company is "wide open" to anyone with ideas and the kind of creativity to make quality productions, in an invitation to indie packages.

"Not until there is a steady flow of important pictures will the industry be on safe footing," company topper stressed. He pointed out that greater showmanship will be demonstrated by exhibs when they are assured of this source of supply.

Skouras added studio will provide "a climate offering the highest encouragement to young actors, producers, directors and writers."

In analyzing company's upcoming program of product, production chief Buddy Adler asserted: "The talent alone in such a backlog is enough to assure exhibitors a highly successful summer."

W. H. Harrison In Saddle As Comptroller at Loew's

William H. Harrison has officially assumed the post of Loew's comptroller following the approval of his appointment by the board of directors last week.

Harrison, formerly with Arthur Andersen & Co., Loew's accountants, succeeds Jesse T. Mills, who recently retired.

'SHAKE HANDS WITH DEVIL'

Cagney, Perkins In Indie for Marlon Brando

Hollywood, April 22.

Pennebaker Inc., Marlon Brando's indie company, will release "Shake Hands With the Devil," to costar James Cagney and Anthony Perkins, through United Artists. Pic, to start shooting in Dublin in September at an estimated budget of $2,000,000, will be scripted by Ivan Goff and Ben Roberts.

First Pennebaker production, tentatively tagged "Ride, Commanchero," to star Brando, will be distributed by Paramount on a one-picture deal.

Brazil Admission Change 'Hope'

There's a "reasonable chance" that the Brazilian exhibitors and the American distributors will convince the Brazilian price control board to allow equalization of admissions on all types of films and to grant a scale hike based on the overall cost-of-living increase.

This was the report last week from Robert J. Corkery, Motion Picture Export Assn. v.p. in charge of Latin America, freshly returned from a three-months trip to Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay.

Corkery said such price board concessions would go some ways in offsetting the new remittance rules now in effect. Regulations force the U. S. companies to remit at the free market rather than the official rate. Since the Brazilian cruzeiro is caught in a rising inflationary curve, and admission ceilings still prevail, this shapes as a sizable loss to the Americans. However, Corkery managed to remit $4,000,000 to the end of Jan. 31, '58, at the "official" rate during his recent stay at Rio de Janeiro.

One of the bright spots in the picture is the situation at Sao Paulo, where, following court action, admission prices were freed completely. The decision, which has seen prices rise to a range from 25-50 cr., is being appealed by the Government. Since Sao Paulo represents 35% of the total Brazilian gross, that income also will act to counterbalance the new remittance rate during 1958.

Exhibs in Rio plan to copy the Sao Paulo example and seek to obtain a writ of mandamus against the price board. This might at least force equal price scales on all films, whether they're 2-D, black-and-white, color or wide-screen; and it may bring about the cost-of-living boost.

Some of the foreign managers in N. Y., while eager for decontrolled admissions throughout Latin America, are of two minds about the advisability of pushing this process too far, the argument being that in this low-income area, it's possible to price oneself out of the market. An indication of what can be expected along that line apparently can be drawn from the attendance picture in Sao Paulo.

Corkery reported that the Argentines finally had definitely called off their threatened release tax which could have cost the U. S. distribs up to $1,500,000 on a $5,000 per picture basis. For the year, 200 U. S. films will be brought into Argentina, where Corkery powwowed with top official from the President down.

Another trouble spot is Uruguay, which has allocated only $1,500 to the ten American companies for the moment. In Uruguay, imports are regulated on the basis of exchange made available. Original allocation was for $3,000, but it was stipulated that half that amount had to be in dollars and the remainder in soft currencies. The American distribs originally asked for $10,000.

Ship Cinemiracle Gear To Oslo by Airplane For 'Windjammer' Premiere

Los Angeles, April 22.

So "delicate" is Cinemiracle projection equipment that National Theatres, which developed proces, air-shipped via the SAS polar route a complete Cine installation to Oslo, Norway, for first European opening of "Windjammer," Film preems at Colosseum Theatre there April 25.

Normal means of transportation, such as shipping, were regarded impractical by Russell McCullough, NT engineering chief; consequently the skyways were utilized. Same procedure will be followed in shipping projection equipment to London for May 14 opening at Tottenham Court Road Odeon Theatre.

PAR'S CHOREOGRAPHER FOR MEXICAN TRACK

Hollywood, April 22.

Paramount is sending choreographer Charles C. O'Curran to Mexico to supervise scoring of Hal Wallis' "King Creole." This marks first time a major has openly assigned a dance director to take charge of tuning chores.

Usually that is conductor-arranger's job, but since current musicans union strike against majors forbids them to work on Hollywood features Par turned to choreographer. Latter profession is well versed in musical chores.

Morningside Six-Picture Contract With Columbia

Hollywood, April 22.

Charles Schneer's Morningside Productions has inked a new six-picture deal with Columbia Pictures, to cover two-year period.

Program involves $3,000,000 production outlay.

Ludwig Back as Scribe

Hollywood, April 22.

William Ludwig has resigned as veepee of Jack Cummings Productions after a year with that indie company, but is retaining his production interest in the firm.

Ludwig, a screenwriter for 21 years, resigned because he wanted to return to writing. He had finished two scripts for Cummings—"Paint Your Wagon," Alan Jay Lerner-Frederick Loewe stage property, and "The Dragon Tree," from the upcoming Victor Canning novel.

However, Cummings is currently dickering financing-releasing deals with studios for those properties which are ready for production, so Ludwig decided to exit as v.p. and return to writing.

S. A. G. Swenson, head of A. B. Wivefilm, in from Stockholm on his annual Gotham visit.

Todd Jr. Preps Future Comedy; 'Don Quixote' Project Dropped; Son and Wife Divide Estate

Michael Todd Jr., now head of the Todd company, hopes to start filming a new picture later this year. It's a comedy idea which his father, the late Mike Todd, had for 15 years. Todd Jr. currently has a writer working on the script and he hopes to wrap up the property as a package, with script, director and three top stars.

The Todd company also may get involved in a tv spectacular.

Mike Todd's will was probated in N. Y. last week (18). It divides the Todd estate equally between Todd Jr. and Elizabeth Taylor. Former was named executor of the estate.

Todd Jr. confirmed that the "Don Quixote" project had been abandoned. The $150,000 to $200,000 already spent on it are written off as a loss.

With only about 375 dates realized on "Around the World in 80 Days," the playoff of the film is being pushed by Todd Jr. via the distributor, United Artists. Todd said the picture still needed $1,500,000 to break even. It's grossed about $14,000,000 in film rental to date.

Todd's will appoints Charles Seligson as substitute executor should Todd Jr. become incapacitated. Subbing for Seligson in turn would be UA board chairman, Robert S. Benjamin. Both Todd Jr. and Mrs. Todd were named trustees of the trusts established under the will.

Bert Pirosh Exits NT

Los Angeles, April 22.

Bert Pirosh, chief film buyer for National Theatres, has resigned, effective May 30.

He has been with National and its subsidiary, Fox West Coast, Theatres, for 21 years.

National Boxoffice Survey

1st Spring Weekend Bops Biz; 'Lions' New Champ, 'Kwai' 2d, 'Pacific' 3d, 'Summer' 4th

Arrival of summer weather in many keys around the country covered by VARIETY is putting somewhat of a dent in first-run biz this season. However, even with some new product, which has proved not quite up to par, trade has held up quite well in many key cities. In both L.A. and Frisco, the launching of major league baseball during the past week obviously has cut in deeply on cinema biz, especially in the former key.

"Young Lions" (20th) is the new boxoffice champ, supplanting "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col), which has held No. 1 spot for five weeks. "Kwai" is finishing a strong second. "South Pacific" (20th), playing in more locations than a week ago, again is winding up third.

"Long, Hot Summer" (20th), which was sixth last stanza, is pushing to fourth position. "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) is capturing fifth spot.

"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) is taking sixth money. "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) will be seventh. "Merry Andrew" (M-G) is dropping down to eighth as against fifth spot a week ago.

"Search For Paradise" (Cinerama) is winding up ninth while "Witness For Prosecution" (UA) will be 10th. "Teacher's Pet" (Par) is taking 11th position. "Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) rounds out the Top 12.

"St. Louis Blues" (Par) and "God Created Woman" (Kings) are the runner-up films.

"Macabre" (AA) shapes big in two Boston theatres. "Cool and Crazy" (AI) socko in K.C., is rated average in Detroit.

"Paris Holiday" (UA), good in Frisco and okay in Minneapolis, is not so hot in Washington and L.A. Another newie, "Windjammer" (Nat'l) is doing nicely in second round at N. Y. Roxy and is rated pleasing in L.A.

"Peyton Place" (20th) looms fine in Chi. "Desire Under Elms" (Par) shapes smash in Chi after an extended-run in two N. Y. houses.

"Paths of Glory" (UA), fine in Toronto, is sluggish in Providence and fair in St. Louis. "Rodan" (DCA) looks socko in Indianapolis.

"Escapade in Japan" (U) shapes good in K.C. as does "Raintree County" (M-G) in Indianapolis. "Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama), for first time out of top pix ratings because now playing in only three keys, is big in L.A., sock in K.C. and fine in Cleveland.

"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) shapes hefty in Chi, good in Pitt and nice in Toronto. "Touch of Evil" looms good in Cleveland.

"Cole Younger" (AA) is rated mild in Louisville. "All At Sea" is good in Pitt and Cleveland.

Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 8-9)

TOA SEEKS DATA FOR OPERATORS

How much should theatres spend for salaries, repairs, advertising, etc.?

An effort to come up with some figures to serve as a guide during the current depressed state of the industry has been attempted by Theatre Owners of America in a survey of its members. The exhibitor organization's first compilation, issued this week, covers some 500 conventional theatres and aims to determine what these theatres are spending percentage-wise in relation to their total gross. It is stressed that the results are merely an indication of general operating costs and should not be interpreted as constituting a definite yardstick since the sampling (500 theatres out of 18,000 in the country) is comparatively small.

Film grosses for the 500 houses involved, including firstrun, subsequent and neighborhood theatres, and a few art houses and specialized situations, totalled approximately $60,000,000. Population in the cities where the theatres are located varied from 5,000 to major metropolitan cities.

A basic breakdown of various costs disclosed that 28% was spent for salaries including that of the management; 7% for rent; 6.5% for depreciation; 4% for maintenance and repairs; 5% for taxes other than federal; 1.3% for interest on indebtedness; 14.7% for operating expenses including advertising, general and administrative costs; 3.5% for Federal taxes.

About half of the theatres in the TOA study are owned by operating companies. It's emphasized, therefore, that in wholly-owned operations the rent percentage probably would be lower, but the real estate taxes and depreciation percentages would be higher. In addition, it's pointed out that the percentages for utilities—fuel, water and electricity—will vary greatly in leased facilities.

Out of the total sampling of 500, TOA has made a further breakdown, giving more detailed percentages for 25 theatres. No drive-ins are included. The results were as follows:

	Percent
Shipping film	1.2
Newspaper ads	3.7
Other ads	2.8
House salaries	23.5
Travel	1.0
Telephone	.8
Postage	.4
Electricity	2.6
Fuel, water	1.3
Repairs	2.3
Supplies	2.1
General	.6
Management	5.8
Rent	7.0
Insurance	1.0
Local Taxes	4.3
Depreciation	7.0
Federal Taxes	2.5

Exhibitors are cautioned that a larger yardstick is required before it can be stated definitely that a specific theatre's expenses are too high if it does not coincide with the figures of the survey. As a consequence, TOA is continuing to send out questionnaires to its members so that it can assemble a more complete picture of the costs involved in theatre operation.

CHARGES 'SELF-INTEREST'

Louis Yager Fights List-Alden Amalgamation

Third separate stockholder suit seeking to prevent the merger of List Industries (RKO Theatres) and the Glen Alden Corp. was filed in the U.S. District Court in New York yesterday (Tues.).

Plaintiff is Louis Yager, who states he owns 15,000 Alden shares, and alleges Albert A. List is seeking to serve his own personal interests via the amalgamation. Yager further stated that directors of the two companies, in approving the merger, "failed to use independent judgment."

The Sheepman
(COLOR; C'SCOPE)

Boff western comedy. Liveller than its cryptic title. With Glenn Ford.

Hollywood, April 18.

Metro release of an Edmund Grainger production. Stars Glenn Ford, Shirley MacLaine, costars Leslie Nielsen, Mickey Shaughnessy, Edgar Buchanan; with Willis Bouchey, Pernell Roberts, Slim Pickens, Buzz Henry, Pedro Gonzalez Gonzalez. Directed by George Marshall. Screenplay, William Bowers and James Edward Grant; based on a story by Grant adapted by William Roberts; camera, Robert Bronner; music, Jeff Alexander; editor, Ralph Winters. Previewed in Hollywood, April 16, '58. Running time, 86 MINS.

Jason Sweet	Glenn Ford
Dell Payton	Shirley MacLaine
Johnny Buedsoe	Leslie Nielsen
Jumbo McCall	Mickey Shaughnessy
Milt Masters	Edgar Buchanan
Mr. Payton	Willis Bouchey
Choctaw	Pernell Roberts
Marshal	Slim Pickens
Red	Buzz Henry
Angelo	Pedro Gonzalez Gonzalez

The title of Metro's "The Sheepman" gives little indication of its content which is too bad, because this Edmund Grainger production is a fresh and delightful western comedy-drama. With Glenn Ford's name for solid boxoffice appeal and Shirley MacLaine's off-beat casting as a western heroine for an added starter, the picture could be a strong attraction.

The title will not work for it, however, giving no hint of the laughs and excitement, although some of this handicap may be overcome by the ad and exploitation campaign with which Metro is launching it. "The Sheepman" is a good bet in any case, a solid and satisfying production, an entertaining and absorbing show, directed by George Marshall.

The basis for conflict in "The Sheepman" is the historic one that arose between sheepmen and cattlemen in the West, late in the last century. The cattlemen thought the sheep would over-graze their land and they fought with every legal and extra-legal means to keep them out. Glenn Ford, who comes blithely into a cow town with a freight-train load full of sheep, explains his preference for the creatures briefly. He prefers them to cattle, or dislikes them less, "because they are easier to kick—woolier, you know." He fails to make a sale on this ground, however, mostly because the local big man, Leslie Nielsen, is an oldtime enemy who has the locals convinced he is the greatest gift to cattlemen since humans got a taste for roast beef. And Nielsen is intent on running Ford out of town—with his sheep—on personal grounds as well as economic.

The screenplay by William Bowers and James Edward Grant, from a story of Grant's adapted by William Roberts, does not neglect any of the action possibilities of the Colorado Rockies' background. It also fully exploits the usual gunplay and the romantic attachment Miss MacLaine forms for Ford. The comedy is both visual and in the dialoge, good, broad scenes and characters.

Ford gives a hard-bitten and sympathetic portrayal, much like the character he essayed in "Cowboy." His comic lines and cockeyed attitude do not soften his strength as a loner, determined to graze his sheep where and how he wishes. Not, as he points out at the end, because he is particularly attached to sheep, but because he is opposed—in the frontier tradition—to being ordered around and forced to conform just for convention's sake. Miss MacLaine is a mostly unlikely heroine in a sloppy felt hat and jeans, not at all dainty ginghamed darling of the plains. She is natural girl, a perfect comedy and romantic foil to Ford. Nielsen plays a good heavy, handsome and suave; Mickey Shaughnessy is another casting against type as a would-be villain but too bumbling and cowardly ever quite to make it, while Edgar Buchanan is a comedy standout as a town conniver. Others who do well with their good material are Willis Bouchey, Pernell Roberts, Slim Pickens, Buzz Henry and Pedro Gonzalez Gonzalez.

George Marshall's direction is sharp at pointing up the comedy and drama and most memorable in his composition of the sweeping outdoor scenes. There is one especially notable scene where the sheep in pasture stand out against a background of yellow aspens and snow-topped, granite-colored peaks. All these outdoor values have been realized to give the intimate story a feeling of being a big production. Robert Bronner's CinemaScope photography, in vivid Metrocolor, is a strong job. Others who contributed ably include art directors William A. Horning and Malcolm Brown, set directors Henry Grace and Hugh Hunt, editor Ralph E. Winters and soundman Wesley C. Miller. Jeff Alexander's music is sparing but important. Powe.

Another Time, Another Place

Soggy saga of a wartime triangle romance with two femmes involved in struggle for dead man's memory. Fair b.o. with Lana Turner topstarred.

Hollywood, April 18.

Paramount release of a Joseph Kaufman production. Stars Lana Turner, Barry Sullivan; co-stars Glynis Johns, Sean Connery; features Sidney James, Terrence Longdon, Doris Hare, Martin Stephens. Directed by Lewis Allen. Screenplay, Stanley Mann; based on a novel by Lenore Coffee; camera, Jack Hildyard; music, Douglas Gamley; editor, Geoffrey Foot. Previewed at the studio, April 14, '58. Running time, 95 MINS.

Sara Scott	Lana Turner
Carter Reynolds	Barry Sullivan
Kay Trevor	Glynis Johns
Mark Trevor	Sean Connery
Jake Klein	Sidney James
Alan Thompson	Terrence Longdon
Mrs. Bunker	Doris Hare
Brian Trevor	Martin Stephens

Paramount is rushing release of "Another Time, Another Place," the Lana Turner starrer made in Britain under Lewis Allen's direction, hoping to pick up some business on current headlines. Film will need some such stimulant, because otherwise it is a weeper without anything special to recommend it. A triangle-melodrama set in wartime Britain, "Another Time, Another Place," will have its greatest appeal to women; men are likely to wonder what all the agonizing is about.

Miss Turner plays an American correspondent in London, involved in a love affair with Sean Connery, a BBC commentator. Just before he flies off to cover a continental assignment, he tells her for the first time that he has a wife and child in his native Cornwall village.

When Connery is killed in a plane crash, Miss Turner breaks down emotionally and enters a nursing home. She emerges determined to make a sentimental pilgrimage to Connery's home, intending (she says) only to take a look and depart. But she meets Connery's widow, Glynis Johns, is invited into her home and settles down there for a lengthy visit. Miss Turner's association with Connery or even the fact that there was an association is unknown to Miss Johns.

The screenplay by Stanley Mann, which is based on a novel by Lenore Coffee (Titled "Weep No More" in Britain and published under the picture title here), gets into a conclusion that is neither satisfactory nor believable. The idea is that Miss Turner must inform Miss Johns of the love affair. This, it seems, will make everyone feel better. Miss Turner leaves with her publisher-fiance, Barry Sullivan, and Miss Johns is left with her late husband's best friend, Terrence Longdon.

Miss Turner is beautifully photographed by Britain's crack cameraman, Jack Hildyard, but she only occasionally cuts loose with the kind of dramatic fireworks the picture needs. Glynis Johns, less tenderly lensed, makes a poignant and convincing figure of the wife. Barry Sullivan is stalwart as the publisher, Sean Connery, who gets "introducing" billing, is a young Scots actor who is obviously capable but he plays somewhat pallidly for a romantic lead. Sidney James is a standout, bringing some needed humor to the otherwise soggy saga. Powe.

Violent Road

Production is good, but story lacks sufficient interest for universal appeal.

Hollywood, April 18.

Warner Bros. release of an Aubrey Schenck production. Stars Brian Keith, Dick Foran, Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Merry Anders; with Sean Garrison, Joanna Barnes, Perry Lopez, Arthur Batanides, Ed Prentiss, Ann Doran, John Dennis. Directed by Howard W. Koch. Screenplay by Richard Landau; from a story by Don Martin; camera, Carl Guthrie; film editor, John F. Schreyer; music, Leith Stevens. Previewed at the studio, April 11, '58. Running time, 85 MINS.

Mitch	Brian Keith
Sarge	Dick Foran
George Lawrence	Efrem Zimbalist Jr.
Carrie	Merry Anders
Ken Farley	Sean Garrison
Peg Lawrence	Joanna Barnes
Manuelo	Perry Lopez
Ben	Arthur Batanides
Nelson	Ed Prentiss
Edith	Ann Doran
Pat Farley	John Dennis

If Warner Bros.' "Violent Road" seems to lead to a dead end, it may be due to a repetitious storyline that runs over a mountain in three diesel trucks. Everything else about the action drama is fine—acting, direction, photography—but the Aubrey Schenck production fails to hurdle the first roadblock and therefore looms as a second feature whose greatest impact will be on the grease monkey trade. The Richard Landau screenplay is soundly constructed, with the initial problem being that the Don Martin story simply doesn't provide enough contrasting plot situations to sustain excitement for 85 minutes.

Six characters are brought together to truck tanks of explosive rocket fuel components across rough terrain, and to compound the excitement the chemicals will blow if jarred in the slightest. The half dozen drivers brave the dangers because each has something to prove and something to gain, namely $5,000. Driving the three trucks are Brian Keith who simply wants the money; Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., who developed the fuel and who set off the rocket that went wild, landed in town and killed his wife and two children; Dick Foran, a World War II marine who's out to prove he's not too old; Sean Garrison, out to prove he's not too young, additionally wants to use the money to cure his alcoholic brother; Perry Lopez, a young Mexican who wants the money to go to college; and Arthur Batanides, a gambler who wants the money to go to Las Vegas. Now that's a motley enough crew and to make things interesting for them, the added ingredients include rockslides, a careening school bus, a brakeless truck, and leaking acid which takes Foran's life though it seems totally unnecessary. The drivers do finally make it, however, and each has proved what he set out to prove.

Howard W. Koch directed with authority, making the dangerous scenes seem even more so and building each of the six characters with haste. Keith casts the appearance of the rough, tough boss in a good performance; Foran, Lopez, Batanides and Garrison are fine, and Zimbalist tops all in a sympathetic, sincere portrayal. On the femme side, Merry Anders is capable; Joanne Barnes and Ann Doran are too, and Venetia Stevenson, in a tight-fitting, uncredited scene, lends a luscious air.

Carl Guthrie's photography has caught some effective road action, and the Leith Stevens music helps things considerably. Ron.

Dragstrip Riot

Hot rods and switchblades for a fair teenage melodrama.

Hollywood, April 18.

American International release of an O. Dale Ireland production. Director, David Bradley; screenplay, George Hodgins; based on a story by Ireland and Hodgins; additional story and dialog by V. J. Rheims; camera, Gil Warrenton; music, Nicholas Carras; editor, John A. Bushelman. Previewed in Hollywood, April 18, '58. Running time, 68 MINS.

Janet Pearson	Yvonne Lime
Rick Martin	Gary Clarke
Mrs. Martin	Fay Wray
Bart Thorsen	Bob Turnbull
Marge	Connie Stevens
Silva	Gabe DeLutri
Cliff	Marcus Dyrector
Gramps	Ted Wedderspoon
Gordie	Barry Truex
Rae	Marilyn Carroll
Helen	Marla Ryan
Dutch	Steve Ihnat
Joe	Tony Butula
Betty	Carolyn Mitchell
Lisa	Joan Chandler
Gary	Marc Thompson
Mike	Allan Carter

"Dragstrip Riot" has a novel gimmick; all its teenagers are overprivileged delinquents. All its hotrodders drive Corvettes. The interesting angle is not explored, however, and the O. Dale Ireland production being released by American International is a conventional exploitation item paired with "The Cool and the Crazy." It is well-made and will rack up satisfactory returns for its kind of booking.

The romantic interest is supplied by Gary Clarke and Yvonne Lime, leading members of the Corvette set. Clarke has a small cloud hanging over him; a jail sentence for beating up a fellow teenager, and his mother, Fay Wray, has extracted a promise he will not fight again with anyone. This pledge gets knocked about when a black leather-jacketed motorcycle gang makes trouble for Clarke and chums, culminating in the accidental death of one of the cyclists. Clarke is suspected because of his "record," but everything is eventually cleared up.

There is a tendency in George Hodgins' screenplay, based on a story by producer Ireland and Hodgins, with additional dialog and story by V. J. Rheims, to pit parent against child for dramatic incident.

The largely youthful cast does a capable job, headed by Miss Lime and Clarke, with Bob Turnbull as the teenaged heavy, Gabe DeLutri, the motorcycle chieftain, and others including Connie Stevens, Marcus Dyrector, Barry Truex, Marilyn Carroll and Marla Ryan. Fay Wray and Ted Wedderspoon handle the adult level nicely.

David Bradley's direction keeps things moving at a good clip, even for a covey of Corvettes, and some of Gil Warrenton's camera setups are especially striking. Nicholas Carras' music is tuned to the story while John A. Bushelman's editing is slick. Powe.

Chayefsky

Continued from page 1

dess" is based on the life of Miller's wife, Marilyn Monroe. Miller is the best of the current playwrights, Chafeysky was reported to have added, "if he can shake off his sense of writing for posterity."

Chayefsky issued a denial of the quoted statements, implying that the whole affair was a sort of undergraduate prank. Referring to a highly publicized campus fad of a decade or so ago, he commented, "Harvard students have gone from swallowing goldfish to ribbing the critics."

It was learned that the Globe story had been handled by the sheet's news desk, not the drama department. A news editor said that the Harvard correspondent's previous stories have been accurate. No other local paper had carried the original story and like the Globe, none printed Chayefsky's denial.

Chayefsky, who authored the 1955-56 Broadway hit, "Middle of the Night," has nearly completed a new play, tentatively titled "The Dybbuk from Woodhaven," with which legit-television pressagent Arthur Cantor plans to make his managerial debut in New York next fall. He also wrote the screenplays for "Marty" and "Bachelor Party," and has scripted a number of successful television dramas.

Atkinson's Favorable Mail

Brooks Atkinson, N. Y. Times drama critic, has revealed that he received between five and 10 letters referring to the radio attack made on him recently by N. Y. Journal-American columnist and tv panelist Dorothy Kilgallen and her legit producer-husband Richard Kollmar, in their across-the-board chatter program on WOR, New York. There were also two telephone calls on the subject to the Times office during his absence, he says.

All the letters expressed indignation at the personal nature of the statements in the Kilgallen-Kollmar broadcast, the critic asserts. He was told by members of the Times drama staff that the phone callers also expressed resentment at the violence of the radio attack, which was based on Atkinson's unfavorable review of the Broadway show, "Say, Darling."

He was particularly interested, Atkinson commented, that virtually every letter he received noted the fact (which neither Miss Kilgallen nor her husband mentioned) that Kollmar had been co-producer of the recent flop Broadway musical, "The Body Beautiful," which he (Atkinson) had panned.

Poetry With Jazz

Continued from page 1

fair to become the new Greenwich Village. The Village itself has become too expensive for the authentic bohemians. The New York University building program has lopped off a healthy slice of that section. Large housing developments have forced its denizens to move, and the entire area has become so stylish that many can no longer afford that area. The lower East Side has now taken up the void that the old Greenwich Village left.

The Five Spot, where Rexroth backed by a jazz quintet now operates, has the feel of a smoke-filled room, where the area's inhabitants could solve the problems of the world over a bottle of beer on any given night if only the $2.25 minimum were removed.

Rexroth, a tall, mustached chap wearing a string bowtie, is an old-school declaimer. His readings have a touch of the dramatic. In a loud, clarion voice, he tells of the glories limned in lines by Sandburg, translations from the Chilean and the Chinese (Rexroth, apparently a scholarly citizen, is the translator). He lacks the romantic touch, but scholars are rarely one to stop long enough to look at the boy-girl angles.

In his ode on an abandoned Chinese courtesan, done with bass viol accompaniment, he thunders his lines. "Why," he asks, "Do the birds hate me?" He contemplates on these lines while the bassist takes a terrifically long strum on the strings. "Why," he continues, "do the flowers betray me?" and again the bass tries to find the answer in an esoteric melody. It's a sad, moody piece which could have been heightened had Rexroth had a voice that could even remotely resemble one that his subject should have been equipped with.

Rexroth is a voice for a new and deeper meaning to entertainment. Admittedly, he's not a gifted reader. However, he is pioneering a form of entertainment that has long been in eclipse. There was a period in the old days of the Village Vanguard when poets used to hold the floor. Other Village spots also hosted the mimes and minnesingers. There have been occasional periods when readers held forth. But a poet on the nitery floor is today a rarity. It could be that a cafe can again become a gathering spot for the intellectuals. Rexroth is, perhaps, a little ahead of this period.

Cafes have been unconsciously grooming themselves for something like this. The college kids and the intellectuals have been having an academic ball in some of the off-beat cafes. For example, there was a time when the balladeers took over. Now, there is something of a revue cycle in the smallies, and the jazz age has long been a topic of discussion among the savants. Poetry is a logical extension of this trend, but actually, a lot more spadework must still be done. Some of the more gifted and more handsome of the penurious actors with a poet's feel, must come in to follow up. Then perhaps, shall the minnesingers and the bards fill the air with their songs.

There are a lot of hindrances to complete acceptance of Rexroth at the Five Spot. The Pepper Adams Quintet hasn't the savvy as yet to fit itself into the poet's mood and give Rexroth's lines an added dimension. But no matter, the cafe historians will note a strong voice of the future calling for all bonifaces to emancipate themselves and turn the saloons into a haven for the intellectual, a citadel of culture and a hearth for bohemia. Jose.

India Robeson Tribute

Continued from page 2

reputation for the furtherance of their very inartistic purposes is no reason at all why men like [Prime Minister Jawaharlal] Nehru and Chagla [Bombay Chief Justice M. C. Chagla, president of the all-India Robeson committee] should not be associated with the celebration."

Two messages went out from Prime Minister Nehru on the occasion. A front-page story in the "National Herald" said that the text of the earlier message, which was not officially released in this country, had found its way to the United States and given instant rise to widespread unfriendly comment there. In this message Nehru had referred to Robeson as one who had "represented, and suffered for, the cause which should be dear to all of us—the cause of human dignity."

U. S. opinion was surprised, said the story, that Supreme-court and high-court judges and leading political figures should have joined in the Indian celebration.

"Pandit Nehru has presumably felt that in paying tribute to one distinguished individual on the auspicious occasion, it is not necessary to offend other people's feelings," the "National Herald" reported.

Dr. DuMont

Continued from page 1

name DuMont Broadcasting to Metrooolitan Broadcasting.

DuMont disclosed that he quit the board chairmanship of the radio-tv string last month as the result of a disagreement over changing the corporate name of the station operation.

A couple of years ago, founder DuMont was replaced as the operating chief of the lab setup by David Schulz, though he has remained a functioning consultant at the manufacturing operating. He said he continues on the laboratory board. Lab stockholders meet in the annual powwow on May 5, a week before the broadcasting arm gets together.

Bernard Goodwin, DuMont Broadcasting prexy said there will be no replacement for Dr. DuMont as board chairman for the time being. As prexy, he will preside over board meetings.

The Goddess

Semi - poetic, semi - realistic melodrama tracing the growth, degradation of a movie queen. May have exploitation values, if hurried to market.

Columbia release of a Milton Perlman production. Director John Cromwell. Stars Kim Stanley, Lloyd Bridges; features Steve Hill, Betty Lou Holland; with Burt Brinckerhoff, Gerald Hiken, Joan Copeland, Bert Freed, Elizabeth Wilson, Joyce Van Patten, Joanne Linville. Directed by John Cromwell. Screenplay, Paddy Chayefsky; camera, Arthur J. Ornitz; music, Virgil Thompson; editor, Carl Lerner. Previewed at the studio, April 10, '58. Running time, 104 MINS.

Rita Shawn ..... Kim Stanley
Dutch Seymour ..... Lloyd Bridges
John Tower ..... Steve Hill
Mrs. Faulkner ..... Betty Lou Holland

Hollywood, April 11.

If Columbia will get this show on the road in a hurry (if it can), its natural magnetism towards current headlines may make it a good deal more profitable than it would otherwise be. "The Goddess," produced by Milton Perlman and directed by John Cromwell, is about a motion picture star, how she got where and how she is, and the effect her life has on others, including her daughter and her mother.

Pictures about Hollywood have a reputation for being slow at the boxoffice and the title of this one is not likely to be an antidote to the tradition. Despite flashes of brilliance in the acting (by Kim Stanley) and in John Cromwell's direction, "The Goddess" is not going to be the picture to break that jinx. Not unless, that is, it can be fitted neatly into the public curiosity about the tragedy and heartbreak of being a motion picture personality.

Paddy Chayefsky wrote the screenplay for "The Goddess." Kim Stanley, making her picture bow, plays the actress. Chayefsky's first script excursion into the world away from his native New York is an episodic and self-consciously artistic effort to probe the "movie star" from her days of girlhood in a Southern slum community to her finish as a pill-ridden shell who goes thruogh her acting chores before the camera by rote.

The picture, shot much on location in the East, is divided into three parts: Portrait of a Young Girl; Portrait of a Young Woman; Portrait of a Goddess.

Kim Stanley, as the central figure, is hardly offscreen for a moment during the hour and three quarters of the picture, and although the construction of the screenplay does not allow her to create a finished character, she does show that she is as undeniably a movie personality in the fullest sense as the character she is portraying. She is too mature in appearance to be completely convincing as a teenaged girl, but other than that qualification, she displays great variety and virtuosity, keeping the story alive even through some stretches of hackneyed scenes and pretentious dialogue.

John Cromwell's return to screen direction undoubtedly was an aid to Miss Stanley because he keeps her keyed to the shifting moods of the character exactly, while maintaining also the underlying, unchanging personality, doomed to tragedy and defeat.

Lloyd Bridges is impressive as her second husband and Steve Hill is touching as her first, but neither characterization is ever thoroughly explored and remains unsatisfactory. Betty Lou Holland creates a vivid portrayal as a Tennessee Williams-kind of Southern woman, giddy in her youthful scenes and maddeningly serene later as a religious fanatic. Elizabeth Wilson is a standout as the secretary and nurse to Miss Stanley in her final scenes.

There is too much that is cliche in "The Goddess," viz., the studio head who signs Miss Stanley to a term contract and then informs her she is expected at his house that evening. There is also too much left unexplained and unpenetrated, so that the deck seems stacked for the author and against the star. The tragic conclusion seems not only inevitable but foreseeable and this disperses some excitement and interest.

Arthur J. Ornitz' camera does a superb job of catching the seamy backgrounds and the equally seamy characters in the foreground, more revealing often than the lines. Virgil Thompson's score is almost entirely restricted to entr'act (between the "portraits") music. It is charming and original.

The basic weakness of Chayefsky's screenplay is that it is not truly a Hollywood story. He is guilty therefore of the bogus qualities with which he would charge Hollywood, since Chayefsky has attempted to use the glamor and glory of Hollywood to give importance to an essentially ordinary and familiar story.

If it were not for Cromwell and Miss Stanley, this would make his picture more haekneyed than it otherwise seems. It would have been a better story if Chayefsky had stuck to the Bronx instead of trying a transplant to Hollywood and Vine. Powe.

Uncle Vanya

Off-the-stage filming of Chekhov classic. Well done, but strictly an art circuit entry.

Presentation of "The Uncle Vanya" Co. Stars Franchot Tone, George Voskovec, Clarence Derwent, Peggy McCay; features Gerald Hiken, Mary Perry, Shirley Gale; introes Dolores Dorn-Heft. Produced by Marion Parsonnet and Tone. Directed by John Goetz, Tone; from translation of Anton Chekhov play by Stark Young; music, Werner Janssen; art direction, Kim E. Swados. Previewed in N.Y., April 16, '58. Running time, 98 MINS.

Marina ..... Mary Perry
Astroff ..... Franchot Tone
Voinitsky ..... George Voskovec
Serebriakoff ..... Clarence Derwent
Sonia ..... Peggy McCay
Elena Andreevna ..... Dolores Dorn-Heft
Telegin ..... Gerald Hiken
Voinitskaya ..... Shirley Gale

Franchot Tone, who had a good deal to do with the success of Chekhov's "Uncle Vanya" when it was presented at David Ross' Fourth Street Playhouse in late 1956, again is very much in evidence in this filmed version of the play. He's the star, co-producer and co-director. And, for once, the one - man - band proposition comes off, the picture being a most faithful reproduction of this witty, often cynical piece.

There is never any pretension that "Uncle Vanya" is anything but a play on film. The only concession to the camera medium comes in the profusion of closeups. Some of the performers, notably Tone, Peggy McCay and Mary Perry, take to them like ducks to water. Others seem almost handicapped by this minute attention. Dolores Dorn-Heft, for instance, though a pleasure to look at, has too immobile a face to benefic from the closeup treatment.

The picture captures the essence of the bitter-sweet Chekhov opus. It is expertly acted and very competently directed by John Goetz and Tone. Being a play in which words must carry the burden of character development, the film suffers from an overdose of dialog. Were this done for the broad audience—which assuredly it was not—"Uncle Vanya" would serve as a standout example of how the needs of the screen differ from that of the theatre, though both have many elements in common.

Yet, the technique adopted by this production has its advantages, and it does avoid the static quality of one or two similar attempts in the past. The play and its characters come alive, the movement is well worked out and the Chekhov characters interact smoothly and believaby.

This is in essence the same cast that acted in the play originally. Tone is excellent as Astroff, the sensitive country doctor who has withdrawn into his work and falls in love with the beauty of a woman he cannot have. There is authority in the way he delivers his lines and the whole portrayal has depth and understanding. It's probably the best work Tone has ever done.

Matching him is Peggy McCay as Sonia, the girl who loves him and who, finally, accepts her fate as an old maid. It's a fine, sensitive performance and Miss McCay emerges as an actress of stature. George Voskovec plays the frustrated, love-smitten Uncle Vanya, a pathetic man, fumbling in a world that has passed him by. Clarence Derwent is standout as the pompous professor, married to a young wife.

Latter role is played by Dolores Dorn-Heft. Part is that of a languid, beautiful woman, bored with herself and with life. Miss Dorn-Heft is attractive, but she doesn't come across very convincingly. In the smaller parts, Mary Perry, Gerald Hiken and Shirley Gale all are very good. It's obvious from the film that this is a cast that has worked together.

"Uncle Vanya" shapes as top material for the carriage trade. It's made to order for the eggheads and the arties should snap it up. At any rate, it's a pleasant switch from Brigitte Bardot. Hift.

'Pacific' Into Egyptian, L. A.

Los Angeles, April 22.

"South Pacific" (20th) launches long-run engagement May 21 at Egyptian Theatre on a reserved-seat, 10-shows weekly basis.

"Bridge on the River Kwai" (Col.), current at Hollywood Blvd. showcase, winds 22-week run May 18.

Thunder Road

Robert Mitchum presenting himself, his son and his own script. Talky but some road action. Okay for program situations.

Hollywood, April 17.

United Artists release of DRM production (no producer credit). Stars Robert Mitchum; costars Gene Barry, Jacques Aubuchon; features Keely Smith, Trevor Bardette, Sandra Knight, Jim Mitchum. Directed by Arthur Ripley. Screenplay, James Atlee Phillips, Walter Wise; original story, Mitchum; camera, Alan Stensvold, David Ettinson; editor, Harry Marker; music, Jack Marshall. Previewed April 15, '58. Running time, 94 MINS.

Lucas Doolin ..... Robert Mitchum
Troy Barrett ..... Gene Barry
Carl Kogan ..... Jacques Aubuchon
Francie Wymore ..... Keely Smith
Vernon Doolin ..... Trevor Bardette
Roxanna Ledbetter ..... Sandra Knight
Robin Doolin ..... Jim Mitchum
Mary Barrett ..... Betsy Holt
Sarah Doolin ..... Francis Koon
Singer-Guitarist ..... Randy Sparks
Jed Moultrie ..... Mitch Ryan
Stacey Gouge ..... Peter Breck
Lucky ..... Peter Hornsby
Niles Penland ..... Jerry Hardin
Preacher ..... Robert Porterfield

"Thunder Road" was turned out by Robert Mitchum's own indie company from his own original story. Burdened with an overage of dialog and an abundance of uneventful footage, film still has plenty of fast auto action and with the Mitchum name for marquee draw so may get out in the melodrama market.

Men who transport illicit whiskey to southern markets and their trackdown by tax agents of the U. S. Treasury Department set the backdrop. Mitchum plays one of these transporters, whose Kentucky mountain family has been moonshining for generations. Plot ramifications are provided by a powerful racketeer trying to muscle in on the markets held by Mitchum and neighboring hideaway distillers.

Film is mainly interesting because of a series of auto chases and spectacular accidents, since narrative is routine. Singer Keely Smith is in for romancing by Mitchum and warbles a couple of songs, including "Whippoorwill," lyrics by Don Raye, music by Mitchum, not headed for Hit Parade. Jim Mitchum, star's 16-year-old son, makes his film bow here, acquitting himself reasonably well as Mitchum's young brother and bearing striking resemblance to his father. Pic carries no producer credit and Arthur Ripley's direction leans to the leisurely.

Mitchum's performance is rather colorless, due to lack of strong situations to give him opportunity for much more than walk-on. Gene Barry and Jacques Aubuchon as Federal agent and racketeer, respectively, handle themselves in okay fashion, and Sandra Knight is a fresh newcomer, playing part of a girl in love with Mitchum. Trevor Bardette is capable, too, as Mitchum's father.

Technical credits are well executed, Jack Marshall's music score contributing an effective note, Harry Marker doing a good job with his editing and fast photography provided by Alan Stensvold and David Ettinson. Whit.

The Cool and the Crazy

Standard teener exploitationer. Narcotics among the high-school trade. Good b.o. for its kind.

Hollywood, April 18.

American International release of an E. C. Rhoden Jr. production. Stars Scott Marlowe, Gigi Perreau, Dick Bakalyan, Dick Jones; features Shelby Storck; Marvin J. Rosen, Caroline von Mayrhauser, Robert Hadden, Kenneth Plumb. Directed by William Witney. Screenplay, Richard L. Sarafian; camera, Harry Birch; music, Raoul Kraushaar; editor, Helene Turner. Previewed in Hollywood, April 16, '58. Running time, 78 MINS.

Bennie Saul ..... Scott Marlowe
Amy ..... Gigi Perreau
Jackie Barzan ..... Dick Bakalyan
Stu. Summerville ..... Dick Jones
Lt. Sloan ..... Shelby Storck
Eddie ..... Marvin J. Rosen
Nancy Ryan ..... Caroline von Mayrhauser
Cookie ..... Robert Hadden
Marty ..... Kenneth Plumb
Mr. Saul ..... Anthony Pawley
Sgt. Myers ..... James Newman
Police Sergeant ..... Joe Adelman
Amy's mother ..... Jackie Storck
Amy's father ..... Leonard Belove
Blue Note Proprietor ..... Jim Bysol
Drunk ..... John Hannahan

American International's "The Cool and the Crazy" is a low-budget exploitation item but it has the irritating itch of reality about it. In some good scenes viewer gets feeling that these are real kids with terribly real problems, despite the fact that the story of teenage exposure to narcotics has been covered before. "Cool and Crazy" is part of a dual package (with "Dragstrip Riot") that lives up to its sensational advertising campaign.

Scott Marlowe plays the high-school student who drifts into pushing marijuana through his own use of the weed. He gets his classmates, Dick Bakalayan, Dick Jones, Robert Hadden and Kenneth Plumb, to try the stuff and almost gets them hooked, except for Bakalyan, who resists. Gigi Perreau is the nice young girl in school, whose good influence helps Bakalyan stay away from the marijuana and prevent his involvement in violence and killing that eventually entraps the rest.

Richard C. Sarafian's screenplay is often very adept at recreating the kind of language with which the young communicate—or fail to. A criticism is that some of the adults seem too dense and thoughtless in their handling of their juniors. But that's the way the kids see it, fair or not.

Scott Marlowe's performance, under William Witney's direction, is exceptional. His character is never made particularly sympathetic, except for a conventional swipe at background by showing a drunken father, but he generates genuine tenderness and sympathy. Miss Perreau, Bakalyan, Jones and the others in the cast perform capably under Witney's guidance.

Harry Birch's photography has a good documentary quality about it and Raoul Kraushaar's music simulates the unreality that the story's characters operate in.

The Elmer Rhoden Jr. production is the kind of seamy story, in which the seams are laid open and exposed so that every sweaty thread is seen, that almost approaches the Italian neo-realism. It is an exploitation picture but it also has some thought content. Powe.

The Camp on Blood Island

(BRITISH-MEGASCOPE)

Japanese prisoner of war meller with contrived situations, too much obvious brutality add too little stellar value to be a big click.

London, April 15.

Hammer (Anthony Hinds) production and release. Stars Carl Mohner, Andre Morell, Edward Underdown, Walter Fitzgerald. Directed by Val Guest. Screenplay, Jon Manchip White, Val Guest; camera, Jack Asher; editor, Bill Lenny; music, Gerard Schurmann. At London Pavilion, London. Running time, 82 MINS.

Piet Van Elst ..... Carl Mohner
Colonel Lambert ..... Andre Morell
Major Dawes ..... Edward Underdown
Cyril Beattie ..... Walter Fitzgerald
Lt. Bellamy ..... Phil Brown
Kafe Keiller ..... Barbara Shelley
Father Anjou ..... Michael Goodliffe
Tom Shields ..... Michael Gwynn
Doctor Keiller ..... Richard Wordsworth
Sergeant Major ..... Edwin Ritchfield
Corporal Yamamitsu ..... Ronald Radd
Captain Sakamura ..... Marne Maitland
Interpreter ..... Wolfe Morris
Jap Driver ..... Michael Ripper
Mrs. Beattie ..... Mary Merrall
Mala ..... LillaneSottane
Thin Woman ..... Grace Denbigh Russell

"Camp on Blood Island" is Hammer Films' latest and most ambitious project in a program of horror films which, currently, have been hitting the boxoffice jackpot. As usual, this Hammer film has been tagged with an "X" certificate, which means that youngsters under 16 cannot see it in Britain.

The yarn, based on a real life incident, takes place in a Japanese prisoner of war camp, ruled over by a sadistic commandant who has sworn to massacre all the British prisoners should Japan lose the war. The British officers learn on a secret radio that the war has ended but, somewhat implausibly, they manage to keep the secret from the Nips until the end of the film when they stage a highly successful revolt.

There are as many holes in the film as there are in a fishing net. Yet it holds the attention mainly because of the frightful realization that such things did actually happen in the war. It is a film which will jerk out of complacency any person who now tend to regard the Japanese as not being as bad as thought during the war.

The dialog and situations have been devised on the very simple premise that all Japs are rats. This lack of subtlety, both in writing and direction by Val Guest, mars the film and makes the prison scenes far less effective than those in "Bridge on River Kwai." Over dark and sometimes fuzzy lensing by Jack Asher does not help to lift the film out of a sombre rut.

Nevertheless, there are a number of very satisfying performances by Andre Morell, Carl Mohner, Michael Goodliffe, Michael Gwynn, Walter Fitzgerald, Marne Maitland, Wolfe Morris Edward Underwood and others as assorted British soldiers and Japs. The femme side has little opportunity to shine but Barbara Shelley, Mary Merrall and Jacqueline Curtiss grasp their limited opportunities with skill. The production side have done a convincing job in its sets and location work. Hence, it's a pity that the whole affair has the effect of being a rushed job. Rich.

Kathy O

Good comedy with no top names to help b.o.

Hollywood, April 18.

Universal release of a Sy Gomberg production. Stars Dan Duryea, Jan Sterling, Patty McCormack, Mary Fickett; with Sam Levene, Mary Jane Croft; also Rickey Kelman, Terry Kelman, Ainslie Pryor, Barney Phillips, Mel Leonard, Casey Walters, Walter Woolf King, Alexander Campbell, Joseph Sargent, Mary Carver. Directed by Jack Sher. Screenplay by Jack Sher and Sy Gomberg; from a magazine story by Jack Sher; camera, Arthur E. Arling; music, Frank Skinner; film editor, George Gittens. Previewed April 18, '58. Running time, 99 MINS.

Harry Johnson ..... Dan Duryea
Celeste Saunders ..... Jan Sterling
Kathy O'Rourke ..... Patty McCormack
Helen Johnson ..... Mary Fickett
Ben Melnick ..... Sam Levene
Harriet Burton ..... Mary Jane Croft
Robert "Bo" Johnson ..... Rickey Kelman
Lieut. Chavez ..... Ainslie Pryor
Matt Williams ..... Barney Phillips
Sid ..... Mel Leonard
Billy Blair ..... Casey Walters
Donald C. Faber ..... Walter Woolf King
Bixby ..... Alexander Campbell
Mike ..... Joseph Sargent
Marge ..... Mary Carver

For Patty McCormack, who plays "Kathy O'," this Universal comedy shows that a bad environment as well as a bad seed can concoct a brat. Evidencing the same staunch talent, Miss McCormack is not quite as mean as she was in "The Bad Seed," and this story about Hollywood turns out to be a satisfying comedy somewhat reminiscent of the farcical features of two decades ago. Because there's little top star value, however, it will take a hefty exploitation campaign before the return is commensurate with the offering. Pic's title tune, already cut for Dot Records by Miss McCormack, could possibly lend a helping hand.

Producer Sy Gomberg and director Jack Sher, both scripting from a SatEvePost story by Sher, have filmed "Kathy O'" with comedy, warmth and suspense. The comedy, especially an uproarious scene aboard a Pacific fishing boat, is delightful; the warmth may bring out a handkerchief or two; and the suspense—well, there's one scene that without question should raise as hearty a scream as Dracula could. With the tale set within the film industry, Universal has taken good advantage of Universal, using the Studio City lot for locations and adorning set walls with photographs of UI actors.

It's evident that no one connected with this picture had much faith in the Dodgers moving to Los Angeles, for a black hat marked "Angels" plays a major role in the film. It's a small point, really, but it is too bad something couldn't be done about all those references to a now non existent team.

Miss McCormack plays a little devil, uncooperative and spoiled beyond reason. As a child star "who's loved by millions and yet loved by no one," she is an orphan whose guardian aunt treats her more as an investment than a human being. Dan Duryea is a publicity man at the moppet's studio and is handed the unwanted task of keeping her in hand while she's being interviewed by Jan Sterling, a noted magazine writer who, incidentally, is Duryea's former wife.

There are two stories here—a tender relationship which develops between the young actress and the magazine writer plus a conflict between Duryea and his present wife created by the attention he pays to his former wife. The first is full and rich, the second innocent.

When the girl's aunt goes back on her word, the actress runs away to be with Miss Sterling, is intercepted by Duryea and taken to his home, and the whole affair turns into a reported kidnaping. Fear of reprisal keeps Duryea from turning the tot in, and she's not anxious to leave Duryea's two young sons anyway. Everything eventually turns out well, with the girl losing her blonde pigtails and her surly attitude.

Miss McCormack shows remarkable feeling for the many character changes she assumes in this film. Duryea and Miss Sterling do very well and Mary Fickett is tops in a tender, sympathetic portrayal of Duryea's wife. Sam Levene adds a good deal of comedy, with Mary Jane Croft and Ainslie Pryor sobering things up in good fashion. Rickey and Terry Kelman are joyously naive as the publicist's sons.

Arthur E. Arling's color photography is alluring, with Frank Skinner's score used nicely to set mood. The title song, ably written by Charles Tobias, Ray Joseph and Jack Sher, is sung on film by The Diamonds. Other credits—sound by Leslie I. Carey and Joe Lapis, art direction by Alexander Golitzen and Bill Newberry and editing by George Gittens—are handled with taste. Ron.

Jack Dahmer, city manager at Beaumont for the Jefferson Amusement Co., has been shifted to Port Arthur, Texas, in a similar capacity.

Major League Baseball Bops L.A. Biz But 'Lions' Solid $33,000 in 2d Wk.; 'Windjammer' Nice 22½G, 'Kwai' 15G

Los Angeles, April 22.

First three games between the L.A. Dodgers and Frisco Giants, launching major league baseball here, is obviously cutting into biz here this session since the three contests drew well over 100,000 paid admissions. Fine weather also took many folks away from the cinemas and to the beaches. "Young Lions" in second stanza in four theatres paces the city at solid $33,000. But other regular dates are suffering.

New entrants show little strength. "Brothers Karamazov," in first multiple-run, looks light $14,600. "High Cost of Loving" is pale.

Among the hard-ticket pix, "Windjammer," in second Chinese week, is pleasing $22,500. "Bridge Kwai" is steady $15,000 at the Egyptian in 18th week. Another hard-ticket film, "Around World in 80 Days" is strong $16,200 at Carthay in 70th stanza. "Teacher's Pet" is dipping in fifth week at Hollywood Paramount.

Estimates for This Week

Los Angeles, Hollywood (FWC) (2,097; 756; 90-$1.50)—"Lafayette Escadrille" (WB) and "Stakeout on Dope Street" (WB). Pale $9,000. Last week, Los Angeles, "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (5th wk-5 days), $3,300. Hollywood with Orpheum, Uptown, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA), "Cross Up" (UA) (2d wk), $10,900.

Hillstrect, Hawaii (RKO-G&S) (2,752; 1,106; 90-$1.50) — "Hong Kong Affair" (AA) and "Man from God's Country" (20th). Drab $5,300. Last week, Hillstreet, "Man from Alamo" (U), "Wings of Hawk" (U) (reissues), $3,200. Hawaii with State, "Viking Women" (AI), "Astounding She-Monster" (AI), $8,700.

State, Iris, Ritz (UTAC-FWC) (2,404; 825; 1,320; 90-$1.50)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (1st multiple house run) and "High Cost of Loving" (M-G). Light $14,600. Last week, Iris, Ritz, "Snow White" (BV), "Tammy and Bachelor" (U) (reissues) (3d wk), $2,700.

New Fox, Uptown (FWC) (765; 1,715; 90-$1.50)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (1st multiple-house run) and "God Is My Partner" (20th). Slow $6,700. Last week, New Fox with Downtown Paramount, Wiltern, "Sayonara" (WB), "Forbidden Desert" (WB) (3d wk), $19,000.

Downtown (SW) (1,757; 90-$1.50)—"Jumping Jacks" (Par) and "Scared Stiff" (Par) (reissues).

(Continued on page 18)

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $559,300
(Based on 22 theatres)
Last Year $828,800
(Based on 25 theatres)

'Crazy' Cool 20G, K. C.; 'Blues' 6½G

Kansas City, April 22.

Interest is centered this week on "Cool and the Crazy," new Elmer Rhoden, Jr., production having its preem in four Fox Midwest theatres and racking up a sock total. Like its predecessor, "The Delinquents," this one also was filmed here and looks to do as well at the boxoffice. Also new is "St. Louis Blues" at Paramount but it's only mild. Rest of city has holdovers, "Bridge on River Kwai" going a highly unusual fourth week at the big Midland. "Teacher's Pet" is in a third week at the Roxy as is "Young Lions" at the Uptown. "Seven Wonders of World" closed out Sunday at the Missouri with 35 weeks to its credit. Weather very springlike and obviously of doubtful value to theatre biz.

Estimates for This Week

Glen, Dickinson, Shawnee Drive-in, Leawood Drive-in (Dickinson) (700; 750; 1,100 cars; 900 cars; 75-90)—"Escapade in Japan" (U) and "All Mine To Give" (U). Ups the calibre of films here, but only modest $6,000 looms. Last week, "Tall Stranger" (U) and "Tammy and Bachelor" (U) (2d run), $4,000.

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; 90-$1.25)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (11th wk). Pleasant $2,200; holds. Last week, $2,500.

Midland (Loew) (3,500; 90-$1.25)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (4th wk). Unusually long run for this big house, fine $5,500. Last week, $8,000.

Missouri (SW-Cinerama) (1,194; $1.25-$2) — "Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (35th wk). Closes run with real money as late comers try to see pic. Great $9,000, in 5 days. "Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) opens this week.

Paramount (UP) (1,900; 75-90)—"St. Louis Blues" (WB) and "High Hell" (Par). Mild $6,500. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk), $5,000.

Rockhill (Little Art Theatres) (750; 75-90)—"Nights of Cabiria" (Lopert). Nifty $2,400. Stays on. Last week, "All at Sea" (M-G) (2d wk), $1,400.

Roxy (Durwood) (879; 75-90)—

(Continued on page 18)

'Blues' Fair $7,000 In Port.; 'Lions' Big 8G, 3d

Portland, Ore., April 22.

Although the city is loaded with holdovers and extended-runs, biz continues brisk here currently. Best newcomer appears to be "St. Louis Blues," which is barely fair at Paramount. "Bridge on River Kwai" shapes lofty in fourth Orpheum round. "Marjorie Morningstar" is rated nice in second inning at Broadway. "Young Lions" looks big in third Fox session.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,875; $1-$1.50) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Nice $7,000. Last week, $7,600.

Fox (Evergreen) (1,536; $1-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Big $8,000. Last week, $7,300.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,890; $1-$1.50)—"Girls On Loose" (U) and "Live Fast, Die Young" (U). Slim $4,000 in 6 days. Last week, "King Solomon's Mines" (M-G) and "7 Brides 7 Brothers" (M-G) (reissues), $4,700.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,600; $1-$1.50)—"Bridge On River Kwai" (Col) (4th wk). Lofty $12,000. Last week, $12,500.

Paramount (Port-Par) (3,400; $1-$1.50)—"St. Louis Blues" (Par) and "Alligator Named Daisy" (Rank). Fair $7,000. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Man On Prowl" (UA) (3d wk), $5,300.

'Andrew' Dull 13G Philly; 'Lions' 20G

Philadelphia, April 22.

Last Saturday proved to be about the only really sock day of current session here, with another balmy Sunday finding many folks heading for the outdoors rather than the cinema. "Merry Andrew," lone newcomer, is rather disappointing though total coin measured up fairly okay. "Young Lions" continued huge in third round at the Fox while "Bridge on River Kwai" still is listed as terrific in sixth Randolph stanza. "South Pacific" is holding very nicely in fourth round at the Midtown.

Estimates for This Week

Arcadia (S&S) (526; 99-$1.80)—"Farewell To Arms" (20th) (8th wk). So-so $5,000. Last week, $5,500.

Boyd (SW) (1,430; 75-$1.80) — "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (3d wk). Fair $10,000. Last week, $11,000.

Fox (National) (2,250; 65-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Huge $20,000. Last week, $28,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (2,250; 65-$1.25) — "Merry Andrew" (M-G). Okay $13,000. Last week, "Snow White" (BV) (reissue), (3d wk), $17,000.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,000; $2-$2.75)—"South Pacific" (20th) (4th wk). Holding at $15,000. Last week, $17,500.

Randolph (Goldman) (1,250; 65-$1.25)—"Bridge on River Kwai"

(Continued on page 18)

Hub Stout; 'Brothers' Wow $25,000, 'Macabre' Fat 24G, 'Summer' 12G, 3d

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross
This Week $2,524,500
(Based on 23 cities and 241 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N. Y.)
Total Gross Same Week
Last Year $3,424,100
(Based on 23 cities and 253 theatres.)

'Summer' Big 16G, St. Loo; 'Marj.' 14G

St. Louis, April 22.

Local pix patrons are having a problem this week deciding which cinema to turn to, since all first-runs except two are sporting new bills. "South Pacific" at the Pageant shapes sock. But the biggest coin is going to "Long, Hot Summer" at the Fox. "Witness for Prosecution" continues nice in eighth week at Orpheum. "Marjorie Morningstar" also is big at the St. Louis.

Estimates for This Week

Esquire (Shukart-Levin) (1,500; $1.50-$2.50) — "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (7th wk). Sixth was big $11,600. Last week, $14,000.

Fox (Arthur) (5,000; 60-75)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) and "Count Five and Die" (20th). Big $16,000. Last week, "St. Louis Blues" (Par), $12,500.

Loew's (Loew) (3,200; 60-90)—"Paths of Glory" (UA) and "Fort Bowie" (UA). Fair $8,000. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G) and "Handle With Care" (M-G) (2d wk), $7,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (1,900; 60-90)—"Witness For Prosecution" (UA) (8th wk). Nice $6,000. Last week, $7,500.

Pageant (Arthur) (1,000; $1.80-$2.25) — "South Pacific" (20th). Sock $10,000.

Richmond (Arthur) (1,000; $1.25)—"Wife for Night" (Indie). Fair $1,800. Last week, "Bride Much Too Beautiful" (Ellis) (4th wk), $2,000.

St. Louis (Arthur) (3,800; 90-$1.25) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB). Big $14,000. Last week, "Farewell to Arms" (20th) (4th wk), $10,000.

Shady Oak (Arthur) (560; $1.25)—"Paradise Lagoon" (Co). Oke $2,500. Last week, "Sins of Casanova" (Times), $2,000.

'Summer' Sharp $9,000, Seattle; 'Blues' OK 8G

Seattle, April 22.

First-run trade shapes spotty here this stanza although there are a few strong pix. "Long, Hot Summer" shapes socko at the Blue Mouse, for one of standout showings of week. "Bridge on River Kwai" still is great in fifth Paramount session. "Young Lions" looks slick in third Fifth Avenue week.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (800; 95-$1.50) — "Long, Hot Summer" (20th). Sock $9,000 or near. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (2d wk), $3,800.

Coliseum (Fox-Evergreen) (1,870; 95-$1.50)—"St. Louis Blues" (Par) and "High Hell" (Par). Oke $8,000. Last week, "Paris Holiday" (UA) (2d wk), $6,800.

First Avenue (Fox-Evergreen) (2,500; 95-$1.50) — "Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Slick $8,500. Last week, $8,700.

Music Box (Hamrick) (850; 95-$1.50) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (m.o.). Good $3,500 for third week downtown. Last week, "Gervaise" (Cont), $2,100.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,200; 95-$1.50)—"Saddle Wind" (M-G) and "Out of Clouds" (Bank). Drab $4,000. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk-4 days), same.

Orpheum (Hamrick) (2,700; 95-$1.50)—"Girls in Love" (U) and "Live Fast, Die Young" (U). Dull $5,000. Last week, "Run Silent" (UA) (3d wk), $4,800.

Paramount (Fox-Evergreen) (3,107; 95-$1.50)—"River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Great $11,500. Last week, $12,200.

Boston, April 22.

Hypoed by school vacations and great weather, crowds turned out this session to build grosses at first-run houses to the best in a long time. Of the new product in, "Brothers Karamazov" leads with a sock take at the State. "Macabre" is hotsy at Fenway and Paramount combo. Holdovers predominate with "Long, Hot Summer" still big in third Memorial round.

"Marjorie Morningstar" continues good in third week at the Astor. "The Goddess," world preeming at the Beacon Hill, is very sharp. On the hard ticket front, "South Pacific" is smasheroo in third frame at the Saxon. "Bridge On River Kwai" is powerful in 17th week. "Search For Paradise" is still great in 22d session at the Boston. Despite gloom merchants, Hub exhibs are feeling more optimistic after a series of winter-spring northeast storms, 19 in all, which invariably struck on weekends.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,372; 75-$1.25)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk). Good $14,000. Last week, $16,000.

Beacon Hill (Sack) (678; 90-$1.50)—"Goddess" (Col). First week was rousing $11,500. Holds.

Boston (SW-Cinerama) (1,354; $1.25-$2.65)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (22d wk). Great $17,500. Last week, ditto.

Capri (Sack) (990; 50-$1.50)—"Stage Struck" (BV) and "How to Murder Rich Uncle" (Col). Third week began Saturday (19). Second week was slick $7,500.

Exeter (Indie) (1,300; 75-$1.25)—"Lucky Jim" (Indie). Second week started Sunday (20). First was fair $4,500.

Fenway (NET) (1,373; 60-$1.10)—"Macabre" (AA) and "Hell's 5 Hours" (AA). Bright $8,500. Last week, "Cole Younger" (AA) and "Missouri Traveler" (BV), $4,500.

Gary (Sack) (1,340; $1.50-$2.75)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (17th

(Continued on page 18)

'Lions' Still Leads in Pitt, Rugged $12,000, 3d, 'Pacific' Stout 15G, 2d

Pittsburgh, April 22.

Warm weather and opening of home baseball season hurting some but the two downtown blockbusters, "Bridge on River Kwai" at Harris and "Young Lions" at Fulton are holding up solidly.

Only new picture downtown is "Merry Andrew" and it's dying while abbreviated third session for "Marjorie Morningstar" is doing nothing at Stanley. "South Pacific" at Nixon is showing strength in second round.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Shea) (1,700; 99-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Heavy weekend trade and continuing press support holding this to big $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

Guild (Green) (500; 99-$1.25) — "Gervaise (Cont) (3d wk). Looks like modest $1,600. Last week, $2,200.

Harris (Harris) (2,165; 99-$1.50)—"River Kwai" (Col) (4th wk). Dropping off some but Saturday and Sunday biz is still terrific with week heading for $14,000. Last week, $17,000.

Nixon (Rubin) (1,500; $1.25-$3)—"South Pacific" (20th) (2d wk). Starting to attract party trade and block ticket sales. Close to solid $15,000 on second 10 showings. Last week, $17,000.

Penn (UA) (3,300; 80-$1.25)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G). Most dismal showing a Danny Kaye picture has ever made here and a mystery since notices were generally very favorable. Be lucky to get a woeful $6,000. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (2d wk-5 days), $7,000.

Stanley (SW) (3,800; 99-$1.50)—"Majorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk). Getting only 4 days on latest h.o. and doesn't figure to do more than lean $5,000 in that period. Last week, $10,000.

Squirrel Hill (SW) (900; 99-$1.25)—"All At Sea" (M-G) (2d wk). First Alec Guinness this sure-seater has ever played to miss out. Less than $2,000, with "Bonjour Tristesse" (Col.) replacing. Last week, $2,500.

Warner (SW) (1,500; 50-$1.25)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue). Slowing down but nearly $10,000 isn't bad at this stage of run. Could possibly hold again. Last week, hotsy $11,000.

'Summer' Great $12,000, Tops Mpls.; 'Marjorie' Hep 11G, 'Search' 17G, 8

Minneapolis, April 22.

While there continues to be an abundance of holdovers, two sizzling new entries, "Marjorie Morningstar" and "Long, Hot Summer," will perk up the Loop substantially this stanza. Latter is especially smash.

Most holdovers are still pulling. It's 41st and eighth weeks, respectively, for hard-ticket "Around World in 80 Days" and "Search for Paradise"; sixth for "Bridge on River Kwai," fourth for "Run Silent, Run Deep," third for "Young Lions" and moveover for "Paris Holiday." Warm, pleasant weather has been cutting into patronage.

Estimates for This Week

Academy (Mann) (947; $1.50-$2.65)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (41st wk). Three more stanzas to go before "South Pacific" takes over. Good $9,000. Last week, $8,500.

Century (SW-Cinerama) (1,150; $1.75-$2.65) — "Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (8th wk). Hot $17,000. Last week, $17,300.

Gopher (Berger) (1,000; 85-90)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (4th wk). Bows out after satisfactory showing, having been solid in initial fortnight. Okay $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; 90-$1.25)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th). Upped admission no deterrent here. Looks great $12,000. Last week, "Lafayette Escadrille" (WB), $3,000. "Summer holds on.

Radio City (Par) (4,100; $1.25-$1.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Profits continue to roll in. Big $10,000. Last week, $12,000.

RKO Orpheum (RKO) (2,800; 75-90)—"St. Louis Blues" (Par) and "High Hell" (Par). One of the few twin bills for this house. Slow $5,000. Last week, "Paris Holiday" (UA) $8,000.

RKO Pan (RKO) (1,800; 75-90)—"Paris Holiday" (UA) (m.o.). Here after nice RKO Orpheum stanza. Oke $4,000. Last week, "From Hell It Came" (AA) and "The Disembodied" (AA), $3,000, at 85c top.

State (Par) (2,300; 90-$1.25) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB). Fancy $11,000. Stays over. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G) (2d wk, $4,500.

Suburban World (Mann) (700; 85)—"God Created Woman" (Indie) (2d wk) (2d run). Hasn't worn out its welcome, even though it ran six weeks downtown to great business previously. Lively $2,500. Last week, $2,900.

World (Mann) (400; $1.25-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Powerful $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

Big Pix Buoy Chi; 'Elms' Sockeroo $14,000, 'Search' Modest 13G, 'Lions' Smash 25G, 'Days' Fast 19G, 55th

Chicago, April 22.

Spring in full bloom figures to cut into overall Loop take this session though the big ones are holding to hefty biz. For-adults-only "Desire Under Elms" rates a socko $14,000 first round at the Esquire while "Search for Paradise" looks only slow $13,000 in first seven shows at Palace.

"Teacher's Pet" is headed for a bright Woods second round. "Young Lions" is sockeroo in a third stanza at Roosevelt. "Merry Andrew" is having a mild third round at the Loop.

"Long, Hot Summer" looms warm in Oriental fourth week. "Run Silent, Run Deep" eyes a nice fourth week at the United Artists. "Bridge on River Kwai" is boff in sixth at the State-Lake. "Snow White" shapes happy at Garrick in sixth. "Peyton Place" still is bright in eighth at the Chicago.

Of the hard-ticket pix, "South Pacific" looms a sparkler in fourth MeVickers session while "Around World in 80 Days" rates a solid 55th weeker at Todd's Cinestage.

Estimates for This Week

Carnegie (Telem't) (485; $1.25)—"Miss Julie" (Janus) (3d wk). Oke $3,000. Last week, $3,200.

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 90-$1.80)—"Peyton Place" (20th) (8th wk). Fine $18,500. Last week, $22,000.

Esquire (H&E Balaban) (1,350; $1.25-$1.50)—"Desire Under Elms" (Par). Smash $14,000. Last week, "Escapade in Japan" (U) (2d wk), $6,000.

Garrick (B&K) (850; 90-$1.25)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (6th wk). Hardy $9,000. Last week, $12,000.

Loop (Telem't) (606; 90-$1.50)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) (3d wk). Mild $7,800. Last week, $11,500.

McVickers (JL&S) (1,580; $1.25-$3.30)—"South Pacific" (20th) (4th wk). Fancy $26,000. Last week, $27,000.

Monroe (Jovan) (1,000; 65-79)—"Return of Dracula" (UA) and "Flame Barrier" (UA). Fair $5,800.

(Continued on page 18)

'Lions' Good at $8,500, Balto; 'Pacific' 14G, 3d; 'Kwai' Lusty 9G, 5th

Baltimore, April 22.

Sunny, warm weather came in over the weekend and exhibs are feeling the pinch. Looking nice in spite of it are "Bridge on River Kwai," good in fifth at the Hippodrome, and "The Young Lions," fine in second at the Century. "Razzia" shapes trim in second at the Cinema after a big opener. "South Pacific" is okay in third at the New. "Brothers Karamazov" opened warmish at Film Centre. "Run Silent, Run Deep" is tepid in second at the Stanley. But "Witness for the Prosecution" is holding its own in eighth at the Mayfair, where still nice.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Fruchtman) (3,100; 50-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th), (2d wk). Good $8,500 after $14,000 opener.

Cinema (Schwaber) (460; 50-$1.25)—"Razzia" (Kass) (2d wk). Trim $3,500 after $5,600 opener.

Film Centre (Rappaport) (890; 50-$1.50)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G). Oke $8,000. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G) (3d wk), $6,000.

Five West (Schwaber) (460; 50-$1.25)—"Bride Is Much Too Beautiful" (Ellis) (4th wk). Fair $2,000 after $3,000 in third.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,300; 50-$1.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Tall $9,000 after $16,000 in fourth.

Mayfair (Frutchman) (980; 50-$1.25)—"Witness for Prosecution" (UA) (8th wk). Holding nicely at $4,000 after $6,500 in seventh frame.

New (Fruchtman) (1,600; $1.50-$2.50)—"South Pacific" (20th), (3d wk). Near okay $14,000 after $15,000 in second.

Playhouse (Schwaber) (460; 50-$1.25) — "Novel Affair" (Cont). Slow $2,000. Last week, "Ladykillers" (Rank) and "Paris With Love" (Rank) (reissues) (2d wk), $1,500.

Stanley (Fruchtman) (3,200; 50-$1.25)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (2d wk). Light $6,000 after $12,000 opener.

Town (SW - Cinerama) (1,125; $1.25-$2.25)—"Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama) (3d wk). Fair $7,500 after $7,000 in second.

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i.e., without usual tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include the U. S. amusement tax.

'Lions' Smash 26G, D.C.; 'Deep' 16G

Washington, April 22.

Three new entries combined with heavy tourist trade are hypoing mainstem biz. "Young Lions" at Palace is pacing the town with hefty prospects, helped by marquee lure plus favorable critical reaction. "Run Silent, Run Deep" at Keith's is another solid newcomer. "Paris Holiday" at Capitol however, shapes on the disappointing side. "Marjorie Morningstar" still is fine in third week at two spots. "Bridge on River Kwai" continues sock in sixth stanza at the Trans-Lux. "South Pacific" is disappointing in third week at the Uptown.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador - Metropolitan (SW) (1,490; 1,000; 90-$1.50)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk). Fine $13,000. Stays. Last week, $20,000.

Capitol (Loew) (3,434; 90-$1.25) — "Paris Holiday" (UA). Disappointing $16,000 for a Bob Hope pic. May stay. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G) (3d wk), $9,000 for 5 days.

Columbia (Loew) (1,154; 70-90)—"Knights of Round Table" (M-G) and "Ivanhoe" (M-G) (reissues). So-so $5,000 after fine $8,500.

Keith's (RKO) (1,850; 85-$1.25)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA). Fancy $16,000, with critical kudos helping. Stays. Last week, "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk), $12,000.

Palace (Loew) (2,350; 90-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th). Pacing town with smash $26,000. Holds. Last week, "Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (5th wk), $12,000.

Plaza (T-L) (276; 90-$1.50)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (24th wk). Bright $5,000 after $4,500 last week. Stays on.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (600; $1.25-$2)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Sock $16,000 after $18,000. Holds over.

Uptown (SW) (1,100; $1.25-$3)—"South Pacific" (20th) (3d wk). Steady $12,500 after disappointing $13,500 in second. Remains below hopes.

Warner (SW - Cinerama) (1,300; $1.20-$2.40)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (16th wk). Fine $12,000 after $13,500 in 15th week. Holds on.

'Rodan' Rich $11,000 In Indpls.; 'Marjorie' 7G, 2d

Indianapolis, April 22.

Four holdovers on the card of five first-runs here this stanza have kept grosses generally in the moderate groove. "Rodan" pulled such a weekend surprise biz that it will be big opening week at the Indiana. "River Kwai," in fifth stanza at Loew's is holding okay. "Young Lions," in third at Keith's, shapes solid. "Marjorie Morningstar" is rated nice at the Circle on first holdover week.

Estimates for This Week

Circle (Cockrill-Dolle) (2,800; 90-$1.25) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Nice $7,000. Last week, $12,500.

Indiana (C-D) (3,200; 75-90)—"Rodan" (DCA) and "Dead in Small Doses" (Indie). Big $11,000. Last week, "Jumping Jacks" (Par) and "Scared Stiff" (Par) (reissues), $6,000.

Keith's (C-D) (1,200; 75-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Trim $5,000. Last week, $9,000.

Loew's (Loew) (2,425; 90-$1.25)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Hep $5,500. Last week, $6,000.

Lyric (Cockrill-Dolle) (850; $1.25-$2.20) "Raintree County" (M-G) (10th wk). $5,000 in four days. Last week, $9,500.

'Lions' Lofty $15,000 In Cleve.; 'Kwai' 13G, 6th

Cleveland, April 22.

Key houses are going along briskly with strong holdovers despite summer-like weather which is denting biz generally. "Lady Takes Flyer" is not getting off ground at the State though one of few new pix. "Touch of Evil" is rated good at Embassy. "Young Lions" still is great in third Hipp session. "Bridge on River Kwai" continues sturdy in sixth at the Allen, after getting a new house b.o. figure for first five weeks.

Estimates for This Week

Allen (S-W) (3,800; 90-$1.80)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Sturdy $13,000. Last week, $16,500.

Continental (Art Theater Guild) (850; $1.25)—"Only French Can" (Indie). Fair $1,900. Last week, "Don Giovanni" (Indie), $1,400.

Embassy (Community) (1,200; 70-90)—"Touch of Evil" (U) and "Fort Bowie" (U). Good $5,500. Last week, "Ghost of China Sea" (Col) and "Bitter Victory" (Col), $4,500.

Heights Art (Art Theater Guild) (925; $1.25)—"All at Sea" (M-G). Okay $2,200. Last week, "Nights of Cabrinia" (Lopert) (2d wk), $1,800.

Hippodrome (Telem't) (3,700; $1.25-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Excellent $15,000. Last week, $18,000.

Lower Mall (Community) (500; 70-90)—"Panic in Parlor" (Indie) and "Devil's General" (Indie) (reissues). Passable $2,500. Last week, "Smiles of Summer Night" (Indie) (2d wk), $2,000.

Ohio (Loew) (1,244; $1.25-$2.75)—"South Pacific" (20th) (3d wk). Okay $10,000 after same in second.

Palace (SW-Cinerama) (1,523; $1.25-$2.40)—"Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (12th wk). Nice $12,500 after $15,000.

State (Loew) (3,500; 90-$1.25)—"Lady Takes a Flyer" (U). Thin $8,000 in 6 days. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (2d wk), $10,000 in 9 days.

Stillman (Loew) (2,700; 90-$1.25)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (m.o.). Good $6,500. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G) (2d wk), $6,000 for 8 days.

'Lions' Loud 12G, Prov.; 'Cowboy' 6G

Providence, April 22.

Majestic's "Young Lions" is getting biggest play hereabouts, with a great session. State's "Paths of Glory" mild. Albee's "Marjorie Morningstar" is still good in third session.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 65-80) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk). Good $6,000. Second was $7,500.

Elmwood (Snyder) (745; 90-$1.25)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (28th wk). Fairish $2,500. Last week, $3,000.

Majestic (SW) (2,200; 65-80) — "Young Lions" (20th). Attracting most of the trade in town for sock $12,000. Last week, "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) and "God Is Partner" (Indie) (2d wk), $8,000.

State (Loew) (3,200; 65-80) — "Paths of Glory" (UA) and "Fort Bowie" (UA). Mild $8,000. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Ride Out For Revenge" (UA) (2d wk), $10,000.

Strand (National Realty) (2,200; 65-80)—"Cowboy" (Col) and "Going Steady" (Col). Fair $6,000. Last week, "Teacher's Pet" (Par) and "Spanish Affair" (Par) (2d wk), $5,500.

'Majorie' Huge 21G, Toronto; 'Wind' 16G

Toronto, April 22.

Warm weather generally is denting biz, but it still is terrific for such newcomers as "Marjorie Morningstar" and "Wild Is Wind." Trade on such holdovers as "Witness for Prosecution," "Young Lions" and "Paths of Glory," all in second stanza, still is solid. "Bridge on River Kwai," currently in sixth frame, has slipped some but still is hefty.

Estimates for This Week

Carlton (Rank) (2,318; $1.25-$1.75) — "Bride on River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Sudden dip to $22,000 but this is good here. Last week, $36,000.

Downtown, Glendale, State, Scarboro (Taylor) (1,059; 995; 698; 694; 50-75)—"Long Haul" (Col) and

(Continued on page 18)

Balmy Weather Crimps B'way Biz But 'Windjammer' Tall $62,000, 2d; 'Lions' Mighty 60G, 3d, 'Blues' Oke 19½G, 2d

Arrival of first, real spring weather over the weekend (Saturday-Sunday) and lack of any big newcomers will put a crimp in Broadway's film boxoffice this stanza. While Saturday (19) night found many first-runs busy handling crowds, there was a sharp drop at the wickets the following day (Sunday). And continued clear, mild weather on Monday (21) further deflated business.

The first Cinemiracle pic, "Windjammer," looks to hit fine $62,000 for first holdover round at the Roxy, with advance sale perking up starting this week. Although down sharply from fourth week, "Merry Andrew" plus Easter stageshow still is money champ at the Music Hall with a good $125,000 in current (5th) stanza.

"Young Lions" still is maintaining an amazing pace at the Paramount with a great $60,000 likely in third session. This is considerably more than many pictures have grossed opening weeks recently at the Par flagship. "St. Louis Blues" is down to an okay $19,500 in second round at the State. "Run Silent, Run Deep" still is strong with $17,000 in fourth stanza at the Victoria.

"Long, Hot Summer" continues stoutly, with about $20,000 likely in current (4th) session at the Mayfair and a big $12,000 in same week at the Fine Arts. "Witness For Prosecution" still is in chips heading for a sturdy $15,000 in 11th week at the Astor.

"Teacher's Pet" looks okay $23,000 in fifth Capitol frame, with "Stranger With Gun" due in next.

"South Pacific" continues big with $44,000 for fourth week at the Criterion, now being in fifth stanza. "Bridge on River Kwai" was near-capacity $36,000 for 18th sesion at the Palace.

"Around World in 80 Days" was smash $35,000 in 79th round at the Rivoli. "Search For Paradise" was fine $24,000 in 30th week at the Warner.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,300; 75-$2)—"Witness For Prosecution" (UA) (11th wk). This stanza ending today (Wed.) is heading for solid $15,000. The 10th was $16,000.

Baronet (Reade) (430; $1.25-$1.70) — "Ladykillers" (Cont) and "To Paris With Love" (Cont) (reissues) (5th wk). Four round ended last Thursday was fair $4,100. "Uncle Vanya" (Indie) opens Monday (28).

Capitol (Loew) (4,820; $1-$2.50)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (6th wk). Fifth round ended yesterday (Tues.) was okay $23,000 or near. Fourth, $32,000. Stays on with "Stranger With Gun" (M-G) due in next.

Odeon (Moss) (854; 90-$1.80)—"One That Got Away" (Rank). Opened yesterday (Tues.). Last week, "Desire Under Elms" (Par) (6th wk-5 days), lean $5,500 after $8,500 for fifth full week.

Criterion (Moss) (1,671; $1.80-$3.50)—"South Pacific" (20th) (5th wk). Fourth frame ended Sunday (20) was near capacity $44,000 for regular number of performances. The third was $64,000 for 23 shows.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; 90-$1.80)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (3d wk). This session winding tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like torrid $12,000. Second was $14,300. Stays on indef.

Guild (Guild) (450; $1-$1.75)—"Marcellino" (Indie) (reissue) (3d wk). Second round finished last Thursday (17) was fancy $9,500. Initial week, $10,000.

Mayfair (Maurer) (1,736; 79-$1.80)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (3d wk). This week ending tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for lively $20,000 or near. Second was $27,000, trimmed by slump after end of Easter week. Stays on for a number of weeks.

Normandie (Trans-Lux) (592; 95-$1.80)—"Stage Struck" (BV). Opens today (Wed.) following benefit for Actors' Fund last night (Tues.). In ahead, "Three Faces of Eve" (20th) (reissue) (2d wk-6 days), was okay $3,500. First full week $4,400.

Palace (RKO) (1,700; $1-$3) — "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (19th wk). The 18th session ended yesterday (Tues.) was near capacity at $36,000 for 12 performances. The 17th week, $49,500 for 16 shows.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,665; $1-$2)—"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). This stanza winding up today (Wed.) looks like great $60,000. Second was $77,000. Stays on indefinitely at this pace.

Fifth Ave. Cinema (R&B) (250; $1.80) — "Gervaise" (Cont) (15th wk). The 14th week concluded yesterday (Tues.) was okay $3,400. The 13th week, $4,200.

Paris (Pathe Cinema) (568; 90-$1.80) — "God Created Woman" (Kings) (27th wk). The 26th round ended Sunday (20) was lusty $10,500. The 25th week, $12,500.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (6,200; 90-$2.75)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) and Easter stageshow (5th-final wk). Present session ending today (Wed.) is heading for fine $130,000 or close. The fourth was $160,000, slightly below expectancy, but very big. "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) opens tomorrow (Thurs.) with new stageshow.

Rivoli (UAT) (1,545; $1.25-$3.50) —"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (80th wk). The 79th week concluded yesterday (Tues.) was smash $35,000 in 11 performances. The 78th was $45,000 for 16 shows. Stays indef at this gait.

Plaza (Lopert) (525; $1.50-$2)—"Witness For Prosecution" (UA) (11th wk). This round winding up tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like big $11,500. The 10th was $12,000. Stays, of course.

Roxy (Nat'l. Th.) (2,600; $1.75-$3.50)—"Windjammer" (Nat'l) (2d wk). First holdover stanza ending today (Wed.) looks like fine $62,000 for 10 shows. Initial week, $67,000. Stays on, with advance sale perking up this week.

State (Loew) (3,450; 50-$1.75)—"St. Louis Blues" (Par) (2d wk). This week finishing up tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for okay $19,500. First week was $27,000. Holding over. "Another Time, Another Place" (Par) opens May 2.

Sutton (R&B) (561; 95-$1.75)—"Desire Under Elms" (Par) (7th wk). Sixth round finishing today (Wed.) looks to hit good $7,000. Fifth, $8,100. "Night Ambush" (Rank) opens tomorrow (Thurs.).

Trans-Lux 52d St. (T-L) (540; $1-$1.50)—"Rouge et Noir" (DCA) (3d wk). First holdover frame finished Monday (21) was smash $11,800. Initial week, $15,000.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,060; 50-$2) —"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (4th wk). Present stanza winding up today (Wed.) looks to reach smooth $17,000. Third was $21,000. Continues on.

Warner (SW-Cinerama) (1,600; $1.80-$3.50)—"Search For Paradise" (Cinerama) (31st wk). The 30th week concluded Saturday (19) was fine $24,000 for 10 shows. This past week was first one with number of performances trimmed to 10. The 29th round was $30,800 for 14 shows.

Baseball Bops Frisco; 'Holiday' Cheerful 11G, 'Lions' Smooth 12G, 3d

San Francisco, April 22.

First-run biz is sluggish for most part this stanza, and start of the Frisco Giants in the National League no doubt was a distraction from the downtown cinemas. Major leagues arrived here when the Giants opened in town against the L.A. Dodgers. "Young Lions" is still excellent in third round at the Fox while "Bridge on River Kwai" continues great in sixth St. Francis week. Top newcomer looks to be "Paris Holiday," rated good at the United Artists. "Saddle Wind" shapes fair at Warfield but other new entrants are showing little. "Around World in 80 Days" still is champ longrunner, with an okay take in 69th stanza at the Coronet.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,859; 90-$1.25)—"Day Of Bad Man" (U) and "Violators" (U). Weak $6,000. Last week, "Touch Of Evil" (U) and "Girl Most Likely" (U), $10,000.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; $1.25-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Nice $12,000 or near. Last week, $15,000.

Warfield (Loew) (2,656; 90-$1.25) —"Saddle Wind" (M-G) and "Outlaw's Son" (UA). Fair $12,000. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G) (2d wk), $9,500.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; 90-$1.25) —"Chase Crooked Shadow" (W-B) and "Stakeout On Dope Street" (WB). Mild $9,000. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk), $10,000.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; 90-$1.25) —"Bridge On River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Okay $17,500. Last week, $21,750, with 5 extra shows.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,207; 90-$1.25)—"Paris Holiday" (UA)

(Continued on page 18)

Cold Weather Ups London; 'Wonders' Record $25,500, '80 Days' Wow $18,900 '10 C's' Great 21G, 'Dunkirk' Big 20G

London, April 15.

Arctic weather conditions over the Easter holidays, with snow and sleet on Saturday (5), contributed to a remarkable upswing in West End first-run returns.

The most notable results were scored by a trio of long-running pix. "Seven Wonders of World" set a new house record in its seventh Casino week with capacity for each of its 20 performances, to hit a new high of $25,500. "10 Commandments," in 20th Plaza session, landed a great $21,000. The 41st frame of "Around World In 80 Days" finished with a mighty $18,900 at the Astoria.

Sturdy holdovers include "Dunkirk," with a great $20,000 or more in its third Empire week; "Peyton Place," with over $9,200 in its third Warner stanza, and "A Farewell to Arms," with a solid $8,400 in its second Carlton week. The lone newcomer, "Desire Under the Elms," is heading for a brisk $11,200 in its initial sesh at the Leicester Square Theatre. "Bonjour Tristesse" was good $12,100 in second week at Odeon, Leicester Square.

Estimates for Last Week

Astoria (CMA) (1,474; $1.20-$2.15)—"Around World" (UA) (41st wk). Wow $18,900, better than for many weeks.

Carlton (20th) (1,128; 70-$2.15)—"Farewell to Arms" (20th) (3d wk). Steady $7,000 or near. Second was $8,400. "Young Lions" (20th) follows on April 24.

Casino (Indie) (1,337; 70-$2.15)—"7 Wonders" (Robin) (7th wk). Hit new house record of $25,500 for 20 performances or 100% capacity.

Empire (M-G) (3,099; 55-$1.70)—"Dunkirk" (M-G) (4th wk). Stout $18,000 or near. Third was $20,000. Holds.

Leicester Square Theatre (CMA) (1,376; 50-$1.70) — "Desire Under the Elms" (Par). Brisk $11,200, and above average for theatre.

London Pavilion (UA) (1,217; 50-$1.70)—"Quiet American" (UA) (3d wk). Neat $6,200. Second was $7,800. "Camp on Blood Island" (Col) opens April 18.

Odeon, Leicester Square (CMA) (2,200; 50-$1.70)—"Bonjour Tristesse" (Col) (3d-5 days wk). Current run ending with around $5,600. Theatre turned live over the weekend with Sarah Vaughan headlining vaude layout. Previous week was great $12,100, slightly better than opening round. "Teacher's Pet" (Par) preems April 17.

Odeon, Marble Arch (CMA) (2,200; 50-$1.70)—"Rooney" (Rank) (3d wk). Fair $5,000. Second was $8,300 and more than $2,800 ahead of opening round. "No Time to Die" (Col) follows April 17.

Plaza (Par) (1,902; 95-$2.80)—"10 Commandments" (Par) (20th wk). Great $21,000, one of best weeks ever at this theatre.

Rialto (20th) (592; 50-$1.30)—"Orders to Kill" (BL) (3d wk). Steady $3,400. Second, $4,000. "Farewell to Arms" (20th) opens April 17, day-date with Carlton.

Ritz (M-G) (432; 50-$1.30)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (4th wk). Great $4,000 or near. Third was $4,400.

Studio One (APT) (600; 30-$1.20)—'Old Yeller" (Disney) (3d wk). Fine $4,700. Second, $5,200, considerably better than opening round.

Warner (WB) (1,785; 50-$1.75)—"Peyton Place" (20th) (4th wk). Good $6,200. Third $9,000. "Young Invaders" (WB) preems April 24.

Spanish, French Meet In Rome Re Pix Pacts

Rome, April 15.

Series of international confabs are slated to be held here in the near future, all of them dealing with film industry relations. Current three-day session is on a Spanish-Italian huddle on co-productions and the exchange of pix. Reportedly the Spaniards recently have not been too satisfied with co-production arrangements with Italy, and likely will press for changes at the local session.

French delegation comes in next week for a four-day confab with local film officials. Late in May, a German pix industry group is expected here for talks.

Carib Dancers to Canada

Trinidad, April 22.

Beryl McBurnie's Little Carib Dancers (30) from the current West Indian Festival of Arts have been contracted for July 15-19 appearances in Canada at the Stratford, Ontaria, Shakespearean festival.

Dating resulted from presence here of Canada's Tom Patterson as a consultant to present Trinidad festival celebrating first parliament of brand-new Federated West Indies, newest component of the British commonwealth.

More Yank Films Planned in Greece

Athens, April 15.

Success of "Boy on a Dolphin" apparently opened the eyes of many producers to this vast unexploited field with its unique locale for original pix. After "Dolphin" and the gallic pic, "Celui qui Doit Mourir," another pic meant for worldwide distribution is to be shot here. A Greek-American production outfit, The Serenity Production will start shooting right after the middle of April on the first film, "Serenity," based on the novel by Elia Venezis.

As a matter of fact, director Gregory G. Marcompoulos of Serenity, who had worked with Hollywood directors, has been here two years ago searching for a good Greek story and studying possibilities of a production here.

Cast includes Norma Valdi and Vivien Virilii as well as Greek actors of the National Theatre.

Pic will be shot in Eastmancolor on a $250,000 budget. Anticipated location shooting in Lesbos and Anabyssos will be ended in June.

Rank Shuffles Publicity

London, April 15.

The Rank Organization announced a further reshuffle in its public relations setup. Sir Kenneth Grubb, consultant to the group, will now divide his time between the company's administrative h.q. in Victoria and at the South Street (Mayfair) executive offices.

Brian Dowling, group press officer, who is assistant to Charles Young, publicity co-ordinator, will take care of day-to-day press queries on group policy. Alec Hughes will be responsible for internal communications on public relations. Gerry Lewis remains the news contact at Pinewood Studios with Theo Cowan as the link between press and artists.

MARTHA SLEEPER'S REPRISE

Actress Now Dress Manufacturer In Puerto Rico

San Juan, April 15.

Martha Sleeper, refugee from Broadway and now a local dress manufacturer in old San Juan, will appear here next month in Shaw's "Pygmalion," sponsored by the Institute for Puerto Rican Culture.

Authors whose works have been chosen are playwrights Rene Marques, Francisco Arrivi, Manuel Mendez Ballester and Emilio S. Belaval. Ballets de San Juan will also perform during the festival.

$20,000 Cultural Grant In Jeopardy; Vancouver Has To Pony Up $6,000 Fast

Vancouver, April 22.

Officials of the Vancouver Symphony are attempting to wipe out last year's $51,000 deficit by April 30 in order that the organization may be eligible for a $20,000 cultural grant to be made by the new Canada Council. Proceeds of the grant would be used to finance the symph's forthcoming British Columbia centennial concert slate.

Canvass of patrons to date has raised $45,000 and the symphony remains $6,000 short of getting in the black. First centennial concert skedded is July 19. Presented by the Vancouver International Festival, event will be batoned by Bruno Walter with Maureen Forrester as soloist.

April Shapes as Record Month For Rome B.O.

Rome, April 15.

April shapes as one of the biggest boxoffice months in recent years here in the Italian capital. It's been a long time since four pix have maintained an over 1,000,000 Lire daily average (some $1,500) at a local house. But now there are four films in this category: "10 Commandments" (Par), "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col), "Young Lions" (20th) and "Farewell To Arms" (20th). "Witness for Prosecution" (UA) is also doing well in a small house while the same is probable for "Around World in 80 Days (UA).

"Kwai," helped by advanced prices, had already topped $33,000 in its first two weeks at the Fiamma. "Lions," playing three houses, hit over $40,000 in its first week. Both figures are very high for here. Other top grossers of recent weeks have been "Sayonara" (WB), "Peyton Place" (20th), as well as two Italo-made comedies, "Il Marito" and "Ladra Lui, Ladra Lei."

"Commandments" has copped several city records during its initial Italo dates, breaking previous figures in Milan, Florence, Turin, Bari, Catania, Naples and Genoa. It has been hitting high averages in all other centres played. In Rome, pic already has landed $180,000 via its initial Fiamma date and the moveover Supercinema stanza.

Puerto Rican Feature for Latin Market

Co-Opped Venture Made for $50,000—Columbia To Distribute 'Maruja'

San Juan, April 22.

A 10-reel feature film is to be cooperatively produced here on a bankroll of $50,000. This is "Maruja" (Little Mary) and it will be entirely shot locally via Probo Films, a new outfit. Columbia Pictures is expected to distribute the Spanish language effort for the Mexican, Central and South American markets.

Co-opping of Latin actors, directors and writers, with the blessing of the always expansion-minded Puerto Rican government and the Viguie film studio makes the venture possible.

Closing sequence of the film was shot in San Jose Church in Old San Juan, perhaps the oldest church in Western Hemisphere in continuous use. Other scenes were shot in nearby Bayamon.

Cast of 36 includes Martha Romero, Mario Pabon, Helena Montelban, Roberto R. Negron, and Axel Anderson. All are active here in local radio and tv.

Story by Jeronimo Mitchell, screen play by Manuel G. Pinera, direction by Orzabel Quintana. Songs and music are by Bobbe Capo, musical arrangements by Luis Benjamin. Producer is Jeronimo Mitchell and director of photography Luis Maisonet.

If film pays off after Latin-American distribution, producers will seek to have English titles dubbed in for the U. S. market. Otherwise its Stateside showing will be limited to the Spanish houses in the U.S.A. Film has aroused wide interest and enthusiasm among local actors, and is expected to have an arty flavor.

Quintana, the director is an Argentine who also directs a daily tv story of the soapy variety. Axel Anderson of Probo Films is an actor who comes from Berlin via South America.

Plan Change in Screenings for Crix In London; to Aid Scribes, Hypo Pix

London, April 22.

A move among leading distributors in Britain may soon lead to a complete change in policy in regard to advance screening of latest product to the national press crix. The question was carried a stage further recently when Sir Arthur Jarratt, president of the Kinematograph Renters Society, discussed the problem with the editors of the national dailies and London evening newspapers.

Hitherto, the practice has been, as a general rule, to screen new pictures for the critics a few days in advance of their West End preems. Press shows, to meet the convenience of the scribes, generally have been held on Mondays and Tuesdays of each week, with any overflow carried into the Wednesday. That timetable has helped the critics, whose weekly film columns are usually published on Thursdays and Fridays. Most of the Sunday scribes, too, by virtue of production problems, usually have to turn in their notices well before the weekend.

The basic idea behind the KRS talks with editors is to endeavor to find a formula which will yield an increasing volume of space for new pix and thus hypo business. In line with that thought was the suggestion that ordinary press shows should be abolished, that preems should be staggered through the week. Also that the critics should be invited with the regular audience just the way legit aisle-sitters cover their shows.

The latest idea being tossed around is that morning press shows as such should be withdrawn and instead there should be afternoon screenings only—on every day of the week if necessary. That suggestion, it is reported, was put forward by Sir Arthur Jarratt at a recent Publicity Circle. The flacks, it is believed in the main were either lukewarm or hostile to the idea, but no firm action will be taken until the KRS topper has had another opportunity of a full discussion with his own council members.

Fan Dancer Startles TV

London, April 15.

Redheaded fan dancer Rhoda Rogers startled viewers of the commercial tv vaude show, "Lady Ratlings On Parade," by wearing only a G-string and a couple of rosebuds at appropriate spots. During rehearsals producer Douglas Hern tried to persuade the hoofer to wear more but she refused.

"I'm decent, aren't I?" Miss Rogers asked. "A fan dancer has to consider her artistic integrity the same as any other artist. After all, what's the point of having a fan dancer if she doesn't need fans?"

New Yank Product Scores in Paris

Paris, April 22.

"Young Lions" (20th) roared into a record moneymaking first week here in four houses. Though not likely to equal the phenomenal showing of "Bridge on the River Kwai" (Col), it will probably emerge as one of the top Yank grossers of the year. This again points up French filmgoing tastes at the moment, which seems to go for hard, unromanticized look at the last war, with pacifistic overtones.

"Farewell to Arms" (20th), is below expectations as is "Sayonara" (WB), though both got fair reviews and have name values. Also doing well are such Yank suspense items as "Witness for Prosecution" (UA) and "The Killing" (RKO).

Some comedies and westerns, of name and quality calibre, are also pulling coin. "Funny Face" (Par) broke through the usual tune-tinter taboo to do fairly well here, and the recent tandem opening of Metro's "Les Girls" is also being watched.

With the growing need for foreign marts, the lack of world grossing qualities of U. S. musicals has long been a thorn in major company sides.

Granada Net Declines By $160,000 Over '56

London, April 22.

Although their trading surplus showed an improvement of nearly $30,000 over the previous year, the Granada Group's net profit has dipped by over $160,000. The accounts for the year ended last Sept. 30 show a trading surplus of $1,096,082 and a net profit of $444,393.

In the previous year the company, which is the parent group controlling the theatre chain and tv network, wound up with a trading surplus of $1,067,380 and a net profit of $610,971. The decline in profits, however, has not affected the dividend distribution, which is being maintained at 5% on the common stock.

The consolidated balance sheet does not reveal the separate earnings of either the theatres or the commercial tele station. But there is a note in the balance sheet to the effect that Granada-TV Network has been operating at a profit since April 30 of last year.

O'Dell to N.Y. on 2 Films

San Juan, April 15.

Jack O'Dell, who has made two films here expects to make a N. Y. hop next week to settle with United Artists the details about distribution of his product. Producing company is the local J. Harold O'Dell, Inc. The films are "Counterplot," with Forrest Tucker, Allison Hayes, Rita Tanno and Richard Verney; and "Machete," with Carlos Montalban, Carlos Rivas, Mari Blanchard and Juano Hernandez.

O'Dell plans to make a third film here, based on the 65th Infantry Regiment in the near future. O'Dell's "Counterplot" will preem here later this year. He and his brother David are also associated with Rafael Cobian Sr.'s film house management company, Commonwealth Management, largest owner of cinemas in Puerto Rico.

SAGAN BALLET ASKS $8.15 TOP IN BASLE

Zurich, April 22.

Francoise Sagan's two-act ballet "The Broken Date," with music by Michel Magne and sets by Bernard Buffet, will play three Swiss dates prior to its two months' U.S. tour.

Following stints in Britain and Holland, ballet, presented by Le Ballet-Theatre Francais, is set here at Stadttheatre Basle, Theatre de Beaulieu, Lausanne, and Kongresshaus Zurich. Tariffs are unusually stiff for this kind of attraction, with the top set at $5.60 for Zurich $8.15 for Basle. Latter is considered especially hazardous demand.

Dancers include Toni Lander, Vladimir Skouratoff and Noelle Adam. Roger Vadim is directing, and choreography is by John Taras and Don Lurio. Swiss tour has been lined up by Konzertgesellschaft Zurich in collaboration with the Pio Chesini agency in Basle.

Film Publicists Cool To Soho Fair Setup

London, April 15.

An attempt to enlist the close co-operation of the Film Industry Publicity Circle in this year's Soho Fair has been coolly received, with the FIPC indicating that each company must make its own decision as to whether it should support the event. Since Wardour Street (Britain's Film Row) is in the heart of Soho, it would have seemed logical that the pic people should rally to the fair, a popular summer attraction to the many tourists who visit London. Last year, an estimated 1,200,000 visitors penetrated London from abroad and around $504,000,000 in foreign currency came into the capital.

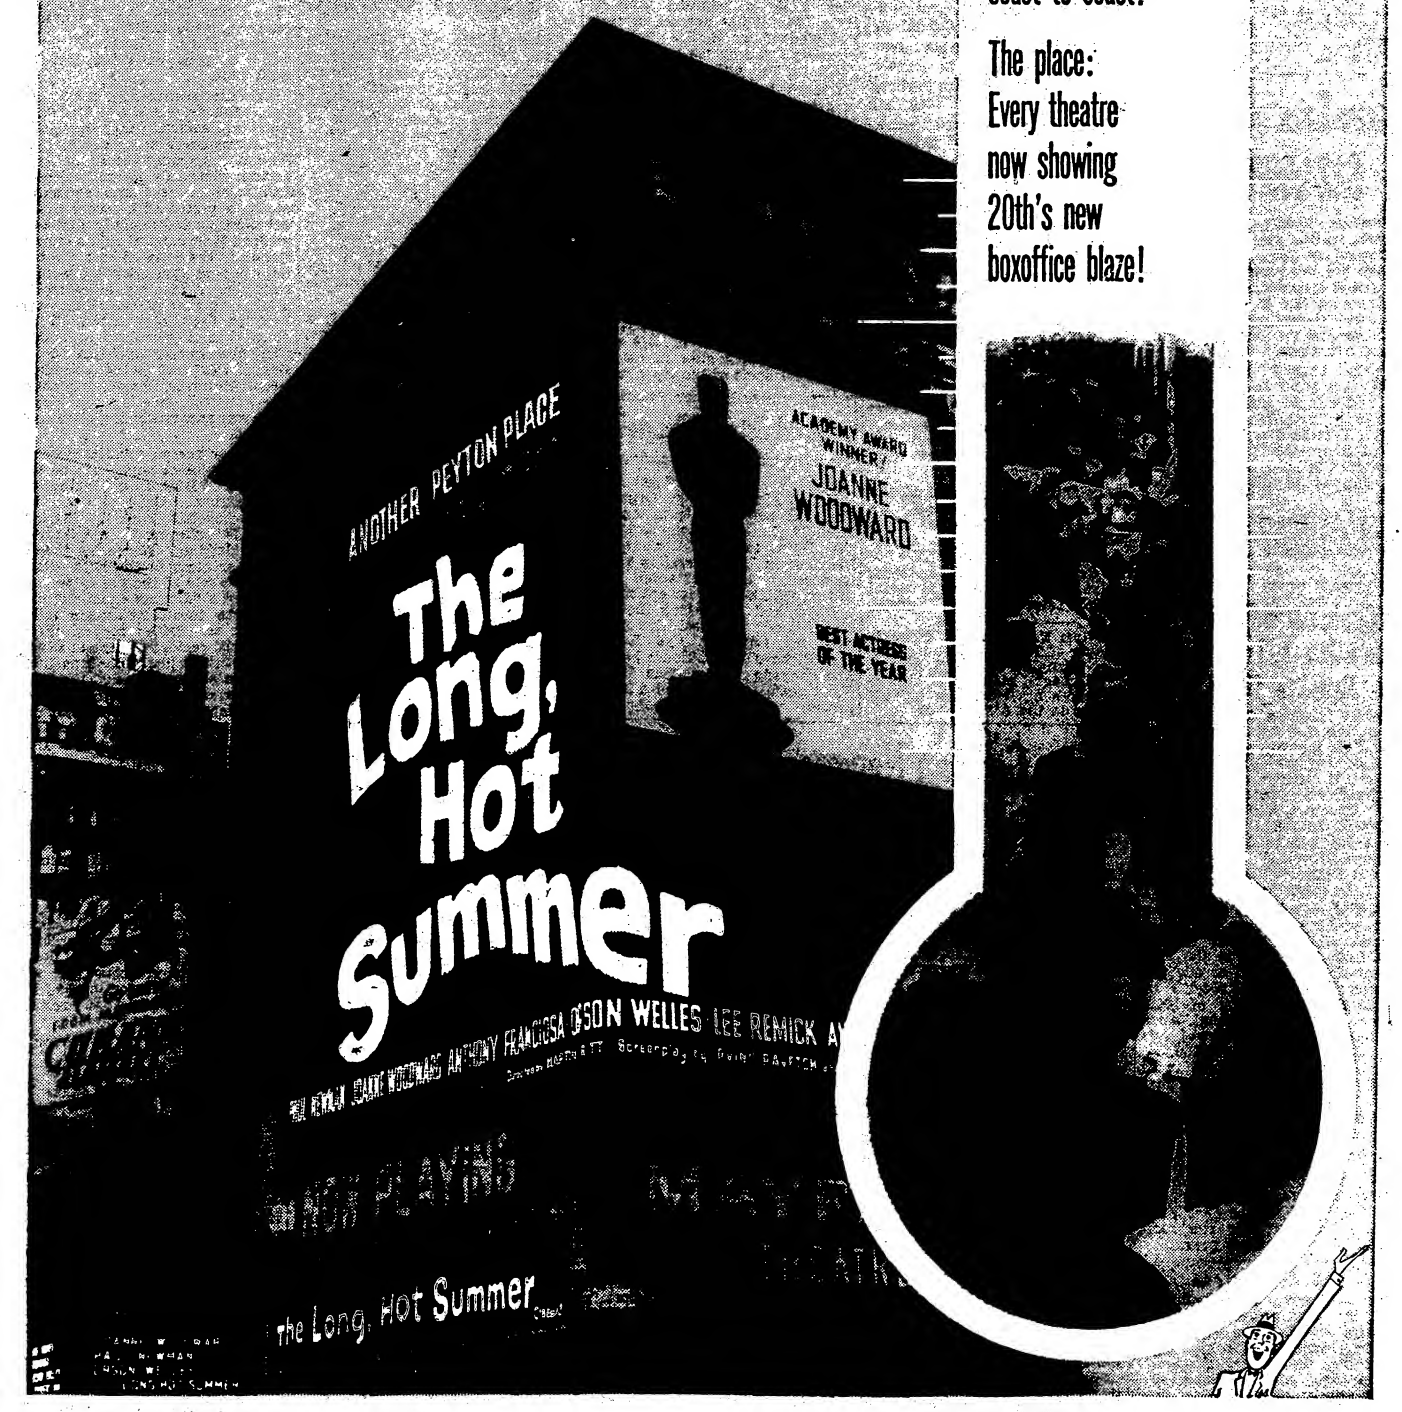
Apart from advertising in the fair's handbook, the main support from the film companies comes from 20th-Fox which is once again organizing a "Down Memory Lane" film exhibition.

Last year's "Write a Song of Soho" contest dealt with calypsos

THERE'S A 'SUMMER' HEAT WAVE SWEEPING THE COUNTRY RIGHT NOW!

The time:
Right now, from coast to coast!

The place:
Every theatre now showing 20th's new boxoffice blaze!



Two-Bit Admish for Juniors No-Go; Rivals Left Dickinson Drive-In Unsupported in Break With Custom

Kansas City, April 22.

Initial attempt to collect admissions for children under 12 at drive-in theatres has fallen by the wayside. Dickinson circuit which tried the policy in its first run drive-ins, Shawnee and Leawood, when the season opened in March abandoned it after a few weeks trial.

Other drive-ins were expected to follow the Dickinson lead, but no others put it into operation. Going it solo was not effective, circuit officials said.

A charge of 25c for children had long been considered here, especially at drive-ins playing first runs, as this would put them on a par with conventional houses. Other theatre executives have also advanced the idea on the basis that the no-admission-for-children policy is a hang-over from the initial days of drive-ins when it was a come-on for family trade.

As yet the majority of drive-ins here are sub-runs. Greater percentage of first run operation among them undoubtedly would spur interest in the admissions for kids all over again.

Trans-Lux's 'Best': $224,539 Profit

Trans-Lux Theatres Corp. last year "had its best year since 1945," the Trans-Lux Corp.'s annual report for the year ended Dec. 31, 1957, stated last week. Chain runs 11 houses in the East of which seven are first-runs, one is a newsreel house and the rest are neighborhood situations.

Circuit, headed by Richard Brandt, specializes in showing imports and offbeat American films. It recently acquired the Krim Theatre, Detroit. T-L prexy Percival E. Furber said it was planned to concentrate on urban first-runs and continue to dispose of the nabes.

Trans-Lux Corp. showed a $224,539 net for the year. This compares with $234,620 for the prior year.

Par Chain Attendance Up Since Jan. 1; 1st Quarter Equal to 40c a Share

Theatre business for the latter part of the first calendar quarter marked an improvement over the corresponding period a year ago, Leonard H. Goldenson, president of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, told stockholders this week. Although not fully up to last year's level for the entire three-month period, business "responded favorably" since last January 1, he said.

Chief exec reported an upturn in the profits statement. Operating income (before capital gains) went from $1,743,000 in the first quarter of 1957, equal to 40c per common share, to $1,854,000 or 43c, in the first quarter of 1958. With capital gains included, earning for the first quarter of this year amounted to $1,958,000, or 45c per share, compared with $1,779,000, or 41c per share, a year ago.

Goldenson, in a statement accompanying quarterly dividend checks amounting to 25c per common share, commented upon the continuing upbeat on the broadcasting end. He said ABC in the first quarter showed a 36% gross billings increase over the same period of the previous year.

W. R. Petty Very Ill

Teague, Tex., April 22.

W. R. Petty, owner of the Star Theatre is now in a hospital in Kansas where he is critically ill. He closed the theatre about two weeks ago after suffering two heart attacks.

Petty formerly owned theatres in Texas and Oklahoma.

Roger Corman's 14

Hollywood, April 22.

Roger Corman, who produced nine indie films last year, will up his program to 14 during 1958, including entry into "A" production with "A Funeral for Sabella," budgeted at $1,500,000. Producer is pitching for James Cagney for star role.

Films will be turned out for various releases, including Allied Artists and American International. A major release will be sought for "Sabella."

New 'Columbine' Shoots Feature

Denver, April 22.

Harlan Mendenhall, a local cameraman, has organized Columbine Pictures and plans to shoot four productions this year in Denver and its environs. He hopes to shoot twice that number in 1959, all within the state of Colorado which, he believes, has a great potential for film locations.

Columbia Pictures in N.Y. had no immediate comment on the "Columbine" name for the new outfit.) Colorado's state flower is the columbine.

Mendenhall has been working on his first feature, "Brand of Satan," which he plans to take to the Coast in May to screen for distributors. Pic stars Hope Mitchell, a local-born beauty, and Murray Smith, director of the Pasadena Playhouse in California. It cost $40.000 and will run from 80 to 90 minutes.

According to Mendenhall, he can find any kind of backdrop—from Times Square to the ticket wilderness—in a 100-mile radius from Denver.

Mendenhall, who scripted "Brand of Satan," is a prolific writer. He directed films for the armed forces during the last war. Until a year ago, he was head of the KOA-TV film department in Denver. Prior to that he made a weekly newsreel for Fox Inter-Mountain Theatres.

William T. Barrington, formerly manager of Tri-City Drive-In Theatres' Turnpike ozoner in Albany, named general manager of the circuit which has two other outdoor theatres in the Albany area.

JOE FRIEDMAN TO PAR

Succeeds Steinberg as Field Exploitation Director

Joseph Friedman is resigning as Warner's assistant director of field exploitation to become exploitation manager of Paramount. Latter post, which had been held by Herb Steinberg, was left open when Steinberg recently was shifted to ad-pub head at the Par studio.

David Judson, Par exploitation department staffer since 1950, will serve as assistant to Friedman.

Word to Exhibs On Biz-Building: Put It Up First

Film industry's institutional newspaper campaign, slated to cost $900,000 and set to run this month, has been put off pending the collection of monies from exhibitors. Also on the deferred list is a radio promotional push which had been earmarked at $350,000.

Meaning of the foregoing is being put into the simplest terms by New York distribution officers: Either the exhibs put up, as they had pledged, or there will be no Business Building (so-called) campaign for the picture business.

Overall bally push, blueprinted to cost $2,300,000, was agreed to by exhib leaders along with the member companies of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, each side to share the outlay on a 50-50 split basis.

Formal vote by the MPAA okayed the payment to the extent that each exhib dollar contribution would be matched.

Council of Motion Picture Organizations, which is running the show, last week sent out brochures to exhibs which outlined the details and urged the earliest remittance of funds. As of this week the checks were slow in coming, except for some of the top circuits.

Dowd Gets Chi Ziegfeld

Chicago, April 22.

United Motion Picture Organization has sold the lease on the Ziegfeld Theatre, Loop arty, to Tom Dowd, topper of Central Film Distributors. Consideration wasn't disclosed. Lease has seven years to run, with a five-year option.

Dowd had supervised the 485-seat filmery the past five years, first for importer Ilya Lopert, then Richard Davis. House has the French-made "Snow Was Black" (Continental) skedded for a May 2 preem.

Revise German Newsreels to Meet Television—Altered Situation

Television is forcing the German newsreels to adopt a new, feature-type format, Hinderikus Wiers, producer-in-chief of the Deutsche Wochenschau, revealed in New York last week. He's here to step up newsfilm exchange with News of the Day.

Deutsche Wochenschau produces two of the four newsreels being put out in West Germany today. They are the Neue Deutsche Wochenschau and the UFA Wochenschau. Though they're produced by the same outfit, separate crews work on each reel and there's an overlap only on the top stories. Even then, there's a difference in editing.

The reels are issued once a week and play about 4,600 houses. The two competing newsreels are Fox Toenende Wochenschau and Blick in the Welt, the latter an outgrowth of the French occupation reel, Actualites Francaise.

Wiers' reels are state-owned, though there is no interference whatever—editorially or otherwise—with the content of the reels. Deutsche Wochenschau is distributed by Bavaria and UFA handles its own reel, which of course plays the UFA circuit. Wiers disclosed that both UFA and Bavaria are in the process of acquiring a minority interest in the reels they distribute, i.e., they're buying the shares from the government. New ownership will not affect distribution terms.

Competition in the newsreel field is fierce, Wiers reported, and there's a lot of price-cutting, though his own company so far has refused to engage in it. "You can cut prices if you have volume bookings and put out a lot of prints. But it stops being profitable when you lose customers and cut down on your prints," he held.

Wiers said his reels had made the adjustment to the tv age (Germany now has about 1,500,0000 tv sets to the point where, in one recent issue, the actual news headlines took up just a few pictorial headlines and the rest of the reel was given over to a pictorial essay on the fact that Europe had no spring this year.

"If the newsreels are going to continue to exist they can't go running after the headlines. We're always going to be beaten in that game by tv," said Wiers. Deutsche Wochenschau so far doesn't make any footage available to German tv, but Wiers acknowledged that a special tv news department may be set up.

Hark! Only Exhibitor Silence On Exhib-Created DCA Sales to Video

Swiss Critics Choices

Zurich, April 22.

Three U.S. films are included in the 10 Best list just issued by the Association of Swiss Film Journalists covering 1957. Yanks are represented by "Baby Doll" (WB) in the fourth slot, "12 Angry Men" (UA) (seventh) and "Moby Dick" (WB) (10th).

Unanimous winner is Italy's "Nights of Cabiria," followed by two French entries, Rene Clair's "Porte des Lilas" and Bresson's "A Death Convict Has Escaped." Others include Charles Chaplin's "King in N.Y.," Jules Dassin's "He Who Must Die," Italy's "The Cry" and France's "Does One Ever Know?"

The scribes chose from among 69 nominated films.

'God's Little Acre' Gets 'B' & Dixie

"God's Little Acre," filmization of the Erskine Caldwell novel of 25 years ago, has escaped a threatened "C" (for condemned) rating from the Legion of Decency, Anthony Mann, producer-director of the feature, disclosed in New York. Legion originally had decided on the "C" but pulled the switch.

It was not so much the filmmaker's "conformity" with the Legion standards, he said, as it was "a matter of showing my willingness to help." Legion responded favorably after protracted discussions of the property in addition to repeated screenings.

Set in the south, "Acre" is a series of character developments and relationships, suggestive of a moral skid row. Mann related he retained the basics of the book in the picture with only minor changes. For one, the situation wherein the wife permits another woman to seduce her husband is still in the text except that the scene is changed from the home of the wife to someplace on the outside.

"Acre" is set to open in Augusta, Ga., May 12—and this too is significant. Mann said he originally planned to location the picture in this area but was thwarted by the objections of city officials. Extensive playoff in the south is planned following the Augusta bow.

"Acre," to be released by United Artists, has Robert Ryan, Aldo Ray and Tina Louise in the leads. Mann has another completed, "Man of the West," Gary Cooper starrer, which he made for the Mirisch Company, and recently purchased as his next production John MacPartland's novel, "Ripe Fruit."

'Kwai' and 'Young Lions' Extended Engagements Complicate Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, April 22.

Prospects of long runs for Bridge on the River Kwai" at Harris, now in fourth week, and "Young Lions" at Fulton, in its third, are giving Stanley "The Long Hot Summer," first 20th Century-Fox film in the history of that downtown SW deluxer. It opens there tomorrow (Wed.).

Harris and Fulton split the 20th product here and "Summer" was in the Harris allotment and set to follow "Kwai." But from looks of things now, Academy Award winner will be around for at least a couple of more months. Under ordinary circumstances, any 20th film that Harris couldn't handle out of its own share would automatically go to Fulton. However, the house has "Lions," which is still very strong and could conceivable go as long as "Kwai."

Since 20th is naturally reluctant to pull a winner while it's still on the up-beat and doesn't want to hold off "Summer" that long, there was only one alternative—the Stanley.

Exhibitor organizations have been charged by some industryites with following a "double standard" in their condemnation of distributors and in their efforts to keep post-1948 pictures off television.

It's pointed out, for example, that neither Theatre Owners of America nor Allied States Assn. raised as much as a peep in opposing the sale of some 35 recent pictures to television by Distributors Corp. of America. DCA, which is headed by former exhibitor Fred Schwartz and was brought into existence with exhibitor support, and which also has Harry Brandt, a leading N. Y. theatreman and head of the Independent Theatre Owners Assn., on its board of directors.

The DCA pictures, being handled by Flamingo Films for tv distribution, includes a large number of foreign language pix which have been dubbed for the tv exposure. In addition, the group contains such films as "Long John Silver," "I Am a Camera," "Rodan," "Rock, Rock, Rock" and "The Green Man." The pictures are being made available to tv on a delayed basis. Some of them won't be seen on video screens until 1961.

Exhibitor sources are somewhat squeamish in explaining the "double standard." For some, the silence represents a guilt feeling for not supporting the DCA films during their theatrical release. DCA was brought into existence during a period of a severe product shortage and many theatremen pledged their support to the organization in the form of both playing time and in funds for production purposes. A meeting, attended by a large number of exhibitors, was held at the Hotel Astor, N. Y. more than a year ago at which many theatremen agreed to supply financial support for DCA productions. However, immediately after the luncheon meeting the whole plan was apparently forgotten and shelved.

Another reason for the general exhibitor silence appears to be the position of DCA as a distributing organization. Until it came up with a boxoffice click in "Rodan," DCA is believed to have faced tough sledding. According to one exhibitor close to the DCA situation, the sale of the pix to tv represented a "distress situation" and therefore theatremen, who think highly of DCA topper Fred Schwartz, decided to remain silent. Many of them justify their position with the explanation that the DCA pictures do not represent potent opposition and that no comparison can be made with the unloading of top product by a major film company.

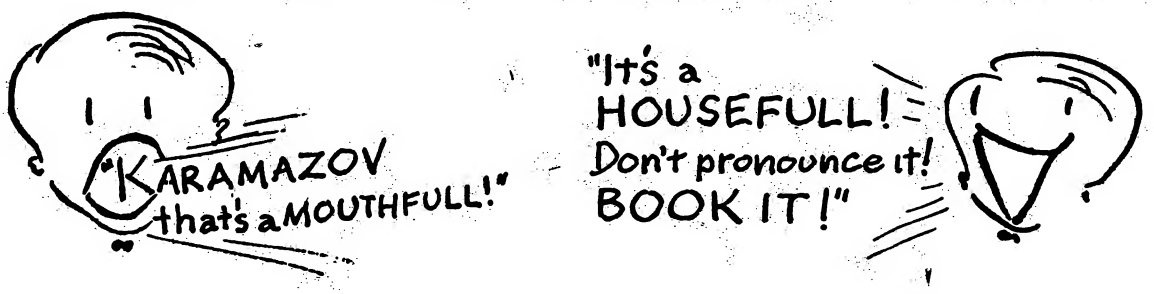
However, there is a hard core of theatremen who believe that efforts should be made to keep any and all post-1948 feature pictures off television. Their aim is to starve the tv stations as much as possible so that the videoites are forced to come up with their own programming to compete with the theatres. They feel, too, that by allowing DCA or a similar organization to sell pix to tv will leave them open to criticism and will also open the door for some of the hard-pressed majors to release their post-'48ers to tv.

U Resumes With Horror Tandem

Hollywood, April 22.

Universal has advanced the starting date of its resumption of production with the launching late this month of a horror package to be produced by Joseph Gershenson, music department head but previously executive producer of the company.

Initialer will be "Monster of the World," starring Arthur Franz, to be followed by "Step Down to Terror." Previously U prexy Milton R. Rackmil had set July 1 as the date for reactivating production.



"OH! BROTHER!"

(Karamazov, that is)

Phila.—8th week and going strong! Minneapolis—5th week and ditto!
Louisville—3rd week and likewise! 5 big weeks Wash., D. C., Chicago, Los Angeles!
4 big weeks N.Y., St. Louis, Miami, St. Paul, Stamford, Coral Gables, Kansas City.
3 big weeks Dallas, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Tucson, Grand Rapids, Detroit.
26 days San Francisco; 25 days Portland, O.; 24 days Charlotte; 23 days Seattle.

Get the idea? This picture has LEGS! Success of first engagements SNOWBALLS as it rolls along!

HOLD PLENTY OF EXTRA TIME BECAUSE:
2nd weeks are grossing 70% of 1st week's 3rd " " " 75% of 2nd "
4th " " " 82% of 3rd "

AND IMAGINE THIS:

IN SOME SITUATIONS, 2nd WEEK'S BIZ ACTUALLY OUTGROSSES EXCELLENT FIRST WEEK'S! WONDERFUL WORD-OF-MOUTH BECAUSE IT'S TERRIFIC!

MGM BACK ON TOP IN '58!

Press Time Flash! Loew's N.Y. neighborhood biz phenomenal!

M-G-M presents

THE BROTHERS KARAMAZOV

starring YUL BRYNNER

MARIA SCHELL co-starring LEE J. COBB and co-starring RICHARD BASEHART with WILLIAM SHATNER

From the Novel by FYODOR DOSTOYEVSKY

CLAIRE BLOOM ALBERT SALMI

An Avon Production in METROCOLOR

Screen Play and Direction by RICHARD BROOKS

Produced by PANDRO S. BERMAN

An M-G-M Picture

Ivan & Sam Make With 'Culture'

Continued from page 1

Moscow Circus, which now starbills Popov, and much else. The Americans are making weight on a modest Congressional subsidy, but will have an array of in-and-out attractions, per "Carousel," Benny Goodman, Sarah Vaughan, Harry Belafonte, Philadelphia Orchestra, Juilliard Chamber group, Isaac Stern, Jose Iturbi, et al. All of downtown Brussels will be "booked solid" through the summer.

If the 60c admission to grounds (30 Belgian francs) is too high for the locals, as some think, the 200,000 turnout this past weekend belied any b.o. resistance although it is generally admitted there are too many fancy tariffs for the average European's pocketbook, including the Belgians who are on a hard economy. Nonetheless the first-guess 50,000,000 attendance has been scaled down to a more realistic 35,000,000 expectancy.

The battle of the pavilions may eclipse the come-on in the Pare des Amusements and, in turn, both may find that the Belgiques Joyeux (Folklore sector) will prove the most popular mass entertainment draw because the 80 regional pubs, bars, taverns, eateries and snack bars—accent on 10c beer and vin du pays—will attract the popular pocketbook potential.

'Poor' America

B.o.-wise the Belgian government put up $500,000,000 of the reported billion-dollar overhead. The Russians matched that with a budget 10% thereof whereas the U.S. budget is the relatively small $13,445,000, of which the Edward D. Stone-designed American Pavilion represents a $5,000,000 construction item.

As in the show biz idiom that the traffic to and overflow from a hit must redound to other shows, the congestion of the traffic in the direction of the U.S. and USSR (spelled URSS here) pavilions is a boon to its nearby displays, restaurants, pavilions, and the like.

The fun fare ingredients which are lacking, with an eye to what a Billy Rose's Aquacade or the General Motors' Futurama meant at the N.Y. World's Fair, or what Sally Rand's Nude Ranch meant to the b.o. of the San Francisco Fair, are many. The 1958 Expo may emerge getting its top word-of-mouth attractions from the class eatery atop the Atomium ($20 a head average, with wine); the Sabena heliport rides to view the panorama; a ride to the Atomium tower, a la the Empire State Bldg., or it may be something offbeat like Walt Disney's Circarama in the American pavilion; or the fashion models in ditto; or the models of Sputnik I and II, in the Russian pavilion; or it may be the come-on of a cavier sandwich and a shot of genuine Russian vodka for 35c which is rumored but unverified.

The manner in which the lines are drawn may be gathered from the somewhat too exclusively American throngs at the U. S. Pavilion whereas the Russians attract all nationals, including Americans. Quite obviously the Yank self-consciousness about not speaking other languages figures in this partiality to the homegrounds.

A negative intangible is the factor having to do with the hotel and catering services in Brussels. This is the first world's fair in the fully-aviationed era. Numbers may swamp this ordinarily small capital.

Oh, Mon 'Expo Pied'

Somehow, too, the complaints about "Expo feet" (or "Expo pied," in fractured-French) are heard more, even though the Brussels layout is half of New York's (1939-40) 1,000-acre layout. Is is due of course, to the unfinished roads and the incomplete transportation facilities intra-fairground. (It is for this reason that, unlike the NBC people and the newsmen who came here on a special Sabena press flight, CBS withdrew because Ed Sullivan plans filming it when it is more nearly completed late in May. The French Pavilion and its kindred City of Paris, with an individual building, will not be ready until then).

The Atomium, the $20,000,000 Atomic Age symbol of the Belgian undertaking, will remain as a permanent post-expo landmark as the Crystal Palace in London's Hyde Park (the first World's Fair, circa 1851) and the Eiffel Tower, legacy of the 1889 World's Fair in Paris. (Thus, incidentally, for the first time in decades the Belgian capital will have a distinguishing landmark other than its famed Manikin-Pis).

Showmanship Battle

The showmanship battle, which concerns Howard S. Cullman, w.k. Broadway legit angel, honorary chairman of the Port of New York Authority which he long headed, and the U. S. Commissioner General to the Brussels Exposition, of course has to do with attractions.

It's no secret—and already widely heralded with theatre billing, posters and other "paper" all over Brussels' environs—that the Russians have not only laid it on big with their show biz offerings but have sewed up almost every available downtown theatre, concert hall and auditorium for supplementary shows of the Bolshoi Ballet, David Oistrakh, Moscow Circus (acrobat-clown Popov now gets star billing here with it), the Svetchinikov Chorale, the Ukranian Song & Dance Ensembles, Ensemble of the Soviet Republics, the Moiseyev Dance Ensemble (which was so ecstatically received at New York's Metropolitan Opera House last week). Not to mention such peripheral offerings as the Philharmonic Orchestra of Prague (Karel Anceri conductor), the Mazowsze Ensemble (songs and dances of Poland), and the Orchestra and Choirs of the Philharmonic Society of Warsaw.

Other nationalistic groups include the Philharmonic of Bochum (West Germany), conducted by Franz-Paul Decker; Israel's National Ballet, Inbal; Edouward Van Remoortel conducting the London Symphony; the Royal Ballet of London (Sadler's Wells), the Old Vic Co. of London starring Sir John Gielgud in "Hamlet" and "Henry 8th," the National Orchestra of Madrid and Orpheon Donnostiarra, conducted by Ataulfo Argenta, with Victoria de Los Angeles as soloist; Switzerland's Ensemble Lyrique, Antonio Ballet and National Orchestra of Madrid; Royal Scots Guards; "Etorki," the ballet and choirs of the Basque country (France); Belgium's National Orchestra conducted by Andre Vandernoot; the "Coros y Danza" (songs and dances) of Spain; Wolfgang Sawallisch conducting the Orchestra & Choruses of Aix-la-Chapelle (France); Herbert von Karajan conducting the Philharmonic Orchestra of Berlin; "Changwe Yetu et Watutsis" (songs and dances of the Belgian Congo and Ruanda-Urundi); the National Theatre of Belgium at the Theatre de la Regence; the Festival of Beirut at the Theatre Royal de la Monnaie.

Circarama's Click

The Yanks of course have one thing already running for our side—the Walt Disney-produced Circarama, a 19-minute short under Ford Foundation grant — which may well become the single outstanding hit of the Fair.

"South Pacific" in Todd-AO, under gratis grant from Magna Theatres (George P. Skouras), will also be a revelation and have the same impact as the Cinerama spec which was a one-night glamor stand on the opening day of the Fair, with press and VIPs helicoptered from London and Paris. (The London contingent had to be housed in Paris—the town is jammed already — and planed in to the Sabena heliport on the fairgrounds.) While "Around The World In 80 Days" is being shown here (downtown) it's in the CinemaScope version, so Todd-AO "South Pacific" will be 100% new.

(Browsing into the Russian Pavilion's striking 1,200-capacity theatre, a Franco-Russian radio interviewer agented a lil inside dope with the Russian technician who bragged of their own Todd-AO and CinemaScope. It was evident, from the undraped stage and the three booths on the mezzanine that both processes were there. The USSR sound expert, who was tuning the on-the-main-floor mixing board, was friendly and informative about Russia having its "own" techniques).

Theatres, Cinemas, Etc.

(The Russians, too, seem to have a geographical theatre advantage in that it's accessible off-the-street. This is in contrast with the Tiffany theatre, also over 1,000 seats, in the American pavilion which Jean Dalrymple and Antoine Heller, the Continental coordinator, will operate.)

It is a very attractive playhouse and will command a pop-priced admission of $2 for the BG, Belafonte and kindred concerts and $3 top for "Carousel.")

On the subject of "names," the "South Pacific" management promises Mitzi Gaynor, France Nuyen and possibly also Rossano Brazzi for personals around the time the Rodgers & Hammerstein spec opens May 1-24.

While the Festival Mondial 1958 (World Festival of Performing Arts) schedule, as tentatively aligned, does indicate that the theatres and concert halls of Brussels and environs will be dominated by other nations, there is question whether these concurrently operated shows will have the b.o. impact as what goes on at the fairgrounds proper. So far the Juilliard School Orchestra from N.Y. City, on July 18, is the only Yank entry at the Palais des Beaux-Arts although it is not to minimized that the weight of numbers and attractions of other national origin must have its vox pop propaganda effect.

Also in negotiation are bookings of Berlin's Deutches Theatre, the Dance School of the Bolshoi Theatre, the Zagreb Opera, Bodrasmiane Children's Choir of Bulgaria, the Dresden Philharmonic, Enesco Philharmonic of Bucharest, Moscow Philharmonic, the Girls' Symphony Orchestra of Sofia, Ensemble of Bulgarian Dances, Ensemble of Hungarian Dances.

Belgium's Own Theatre

As host nation, Belgium has a 2,000-seat auditorium, a 500-seat aud and an open-air esplanade in the Belgian section wherein certain cultural events will be housed. This is in addition to the USSR and USA's own theatres, the several pavilion cinemas for their own commercial shoots, and also does not include the Children's Puppet Theatre matinees every Thursday afternoon.

W. C. High Finance

Brussels, April 22.

One of those offbeat conversation pieces that hit the Yank newspaper gals funniest is the Czech pavilion's one-franc-, two-franc, three-franc tickets sold in the powderroom. A Belgian franc is 2c. The client must indicate which ticket for which functional use to the pro in the lavabo (W.C., for water-closet, is the most common word, a holdover from the British influence on the Continent).

You ask why the 3-franc tab? The answer is "that's with a towel."

Briskin Gets Nod

Continued from page 3

lished in Daily VARIETY April 2 that Briskin would take over that spot—a story denied by other publications, denied, in fact, by everyone but Columbia.

Briskin contract is a straight salary deal, with no participation on pix for the executive. Columbia has an option to extend his pact, it's reported.

Briskin, the nominee of Lehman Brothers and Lazard Freres to the board of directors of Loew's Inc., will resign from that post immediately.

Since the death of Harry Cohn, prexy-founder of Columbia, on Feb. 27, the special committee has been seeking a successor to head the Coast operation. Committee which negotiated for Briskin to take over was headed by exec v.p. A. Montague, and others on it included prexy A. Schneider, v.p. Ralph Cohn, Alfred Hart, Donald M. Stralem and Leo Jaffe.

Appointment marks a return to the studio where he first entered the pix biz for Briskin, since he worked with the late Harry and Jack Cohn in the old C.B.C. Film Sales Co. for five years before it became Columbia Pictures in 1924. Briskin's association with Col was interrupted for service as a Lieut. Colonel in the Signal Corps in World War II.

His last association with Col was ended in 1945, when he joined Liberty Films.

Magna International Films Inc. has changed its name to Atlantis Films Inc. Harry Lewis of N.Y. was filing attorney at Albany.

Brando Too Powerful for Own Good?

Minneapolis, April 22.

New York Times film critic Bosley Crothers deplores the fact that some producers still use veteran stars like Gary Cooper and Fred Astaire to play romantic leads opposite young things like Audrey Hepburn, that Joan Crawford and some of the other "oldtimers" don't retire, and that young stars like Marlon Brando have bceome so "powerful" and are able to dictate to producers and directors how their pictures should be made.

Addressing a U. of Minnesota convocation here, Crothers, among other things, also told his audience he has seen prevues of "No Time for Sergeants" and "Gigi" and they're outstanding, that he expects "The Nun's Story" to be an Academy best picture award contender, and he anticipates that "God's Little Acre" and "Auntie Mame" will be notable films.

In his talk entitled "What You Don't Know About the Movies," he said he has no sympathy for exhibitors who have allowed their theatres to become obsolescent and now are facing extinction; and he believes pay television is "remotely in the future," will never take over theatre films, and may never be able to operate successfully.

Crothers feels that some of the young stars have too much power and "go overboard" using it to the detriment of some of the pictures in which they appear. He blamed Marlon Brando as responsible for tailoring "The Young Lions" and "Sayonara" to his own ends and getting them out of focus in certain respects.

He believes that the Kim Novaks and Jayne Mansfields are "passing fancies," but he expressed a high regard for the acting talents of Marilyn Monroe and Brigette Bardot and had kind words for "And God Created Woman" and raves for "The Windjammer." He also called attention to foreign films' growing popularity.

Jet-Propelled Cinerama Preem at Brussels Fair

By HAROLD MYERS

Brussels, April 22.

Just a few hours after the formal inauguration of the Brussels Exposition last Thursday (17) came the launching of Cinerama in the Belgian capital. It was made into a gala event in aid of the Red Cross, and VIP and press contingents were flown from London and Paris to participate.

Cinerama is being shown at the Exhibition in a theatre specially built for the occasion by Robin International. After the gala opening it turned into a seven-a-day operation with five daily showings of a cut version of "This Is Cinerama" (running about 60 minutes a show) and two evening performances of "7 Wonders of the World." There's a flat admission rate of 60 francs ($1.20) for the day screenings and 100 ($2) for the full evening performances.

The theatre, which has a capacity of over 1,170, boasts the biggest screen in Europe. It is over 80 ft. wide and 30 ft. high. It has been built on strictly modernistic and utilitarion lines but makes an excellent showcase for the three-film process.

Just before the intermission was reached on opening night a firework display very nearly drowned the soundtrack. As a result, the interval that followed, which had been announced to run only 15 minutes, was extended to more than an hour and a quarter. Instead of the curtain coming down at 10.30, therefore, the show, which had already started late, ran till midnight. And a consequent supper party in the Atomium Restaurant, originally skedded to end at midnight, went on to 2 a.m.

The VIP contingent flown in from London and Paris included Robert Clark of Hambros Bank, Gerald Beadle, BBC-TV topper, Marcel Boussac, French racehorse owner, Maurice Dollfus ex-prexy of the European Ford Co. and a director of Hispano, and Nicholas Reisinl, a director of Robin International. The London contingent joined up with the Paris party at Orly airport and became the first passengers to fly on the new French jet super airline, the Caravelle, which cruises at around 10 miles a minute at a height of over 30,000 ft. The hop from Paris to Brussels was accomplished in just about half an hour. The Caravelle, which is expected to be in service by next spring, might well revolutionize air travel on medium distance hops.

Although the tight schedule hardly gave the visitors an opportunity of seeing much of the exhibits on show, they were escorted around the Festival grounds in "taxi mobylettes" — power-driven tricycles with seating for two in front, which provided a glimpse of the enormity of the project and the amount of work still to be done before it's in shipshape order.

Andy Siak, formerly with the booking office of Jefferson Amusement in Dallas, has resigned to join the staff of the Empire Picture Co., as a booker.

Universal Looks Likely to Crash Chi Loop Again

Chicago, April 22.

Agreement reached last week with the Oriental Theatre virtually assures Universal of a much-needed Loop showcase for its prime product, teeing off May 16 with "I Married a Woman." Blockbuster priority has for some time shut out main stem exposure for U releases, forcing studio to funnel its backlog (mostly cost-minded) straight to the nabes for day-and-date play.

Accord with the 3,400-seat indie is verbal. Another exhib can still force bidding, though such eventuality is not seen as likely. Moreover, each pic the Oriental accepts will still be subject to final negotiation, indicating the informality of the "deal." Filmery, of course, doesn't look to be suckered by the arrangement. Understandably, for "going along," it figures to be favored on just about all conditions, including rentals.

Features tentative for May 29 and July 3, respectively, are "This Happy Feeling" and "A Time To Love and A Time to Die."

U was repped in the maneuver by branch manager Lou Berman and district topper Manie Gottlieb.

SPAIN SLOWS TITANUS' BIOPIC OF GOYA

Plans to do three weeks of location shooting of "Naked Maja" in Spain have been thwarted, at least temporarily, because Spanish officials object to the treatment of this biopic on Goya. This was disclosed in New York over the past weekend by Goffredo Lombardo, president of Titanus Films, Italian outfit which is presenting the property in association with United Artists and Metro.

Exec, prior to returning to Rome after a visit to the states, said he will continue efforts to obtain approval for the Spain locationing, admitting he's working on a sensitive area because the artist is regarded as a Spanish "hero."

Ex-MPEA Expert In Paris Shorts Prod.

Paris, April 22.

Harold Smith, ex-Motion Picture Export Assn. Continental rep, is back in show biz after a long illness. Smith has joined with J. Paul Boyer to make animated publicity clips for use in theatres here and for video in the U. S. Boyer was previously head of the research labs of Kodak, DeBrie and Technicolor here, but decided to go on his own in the animated field with Smith.

The pair have two shorts in theatrical release. "Insomnies" and "Un Martian A Paris," and are now readying "Uu Bebe Lune Pour Paris."

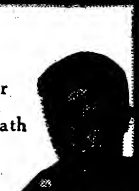
AN ADVENTURE ATTRACTION OF TOP BOXOFFICE STATURE FROM PARAMOUNT!

VISTAVISION

Paramount presents

CORNEL WILDE • JEAN WALLACE

The underwater demolition man . . . death was at his heels!



The best-selling authoress who was afraid of the love she wrote about!

MARACAIBO

ABBE LANE • FRANCOIS LEDERER

MICHAEL LANDON with JOE E. ROSS

Produced and Directed by CORNEL WILDE

Screenplay by TED SHERDEMAN

From the Novel by STIRLING SILLIPHANT

TECHNICOLOR®

The international adventuress who only went where the money was!

Flames and passions flare sky high as a vast upheaval turns Lake Maracaibo into a fiery furnace!

Yank Films In Jap Fire

Continued from page 3

one calendar year in the ten years prior to Dec. 7, 1941, and actually exhibited within six months of the end of the calendar year in which they were brought in.

"The motion picture industry of a country which did not bring motion pictures to Japan prior to Dec. 7, 1941, may bring up to three feature films in any one calendar year. The regulation permitted our member companies to import 270 pictures annually based on the number we imported and released in the year 1936."

The letter continues, "The present system was promulgated by the Japanese Government by Ministry of Finance announcement dated August 14, 1952, the major change from SCAP Regulation 8 was that the Government cut the film imports from all countries to an overall total of 208 in order to restrict them to the number of Japanese films produced in the previous calendar year. Secondly, a formula allocating imports by country and currency area was adopted. This resulted in reducing the allocation to MPEAA from the 272 permitted under the SCAP formula to 122 under the Finance Ministry system, and assigned a separate quota of 30 American film imports to independent importers who, until 1951-52 did not enjoy import privileges.

"In 1954-55, the total American quota was reduced to 122, of which 102 went to MPEAA and 20 for 'independents' which quota has been approximately maintained through 1957-58."

The MPEAA letter here pointed out that the SCAP Regulation was for more favorable than those subsequently established by the Japanese Government.

'Unfair'

Another Imazumi charge was that the American companies are monopolizing the import business here while the Japanese companies are handling less than 20% of that volume and it was "extremely unfair."

MPEAA replied, "Were it not for the highly restrictive regulations existing in Japan and the allocation of an American import quota and Japanese importers, and if Japan were a free market as before the war, practically 100% of American film imports would be handled by MPEAA distributors in Japan as in the case of other major countries in the world such as England, Germany, Australia, Canada, Brazil, etc."

Imazuni asked for a flat exchange of $35,000 per picture with half going to the foreign company and half to the Japanese company.

MPEAA in its letter regarded this as having a "paralizing effect on foreign film importation" and noted that "a fixed flat fee does not exist anywhere in the world."

Maas cited that the MPEAA share of film rentals in Japan in 1957 was 19.14%, a figure it did not regard as "monopolistic." It asked for a more liberal quota system to stimulate competition and noted that the 70% as charged was extremely rare with 45% ranging to an occasional 70% being more the norm. He gave as an example a 40% film where the publicity and advertising expenses are wholly borne by the distributor in Japan, whereas in other countries these charges are partially borne by the distributor, the average net rental becomes about 37%.

Japanese Benefits

In answer to Imazuni's allusion that the U.S. film companies receive favorable tax treatment in Japan, Maas called to attention that during the Occupation the member companies of the MPEAA supplied films to Japan "without receiving a single cent of foreign exchange." He noted that this was a major entertainment contribution during the dark days of reconstruction. He also brought to fore that from profits theatres in Japan realized during that period, the number of houses boomed. He further pointed to direct MPEAA contributions, such as payments of royalty taxes, corporation taxes, enterprise and inhabitants taxes and the yen dispersal in Japan from parent companies' nonresident accounts, the huge loans to the Electric Power Development Corp. from non-resident accounts and the admission taxes brought in by U.S. product.

Maas further cited that MPEAA member companies give employment to over 1,000 Japanese, have constructed modern offices in key cities and spend heavily in newspaper ads, local manufacture of accessories and local film laboratories.

Showing that the U.S. and Japanese industry can live together, the letter showed the healthiness of the Japanese industry by noting that in 1946 there were 67 Japanese features produced, 208 in 1951 and 514 in 1956. Growth of theatres was from 1,505 in 1946 to 3,320 in 1951 and 6,844 in 1956.

The letter concluded that there is "no preferential treatment given to overseas distributors."

The Japanese viewpoint is not strictly one-way however. Last week on a 15-minute radio forum, Daiei topper Masaichi Nagata defended the U.S. industry position by lashing out at the Diet malcontents and saying that it was just plain nonsense to single out certain items of contention instead of considering the entire picture in context. He also reminded that pictures are made for the public and the Japanes public has unmistakably indicated its leaning toward American films.

MPAA Budget

Continued from page 4

veep Griffith Johnson, have been mentioned as possibilities in this connection.

Though the budget cuts, which are to be finalized and presented to the board at another meeting, tie in with general cutbacks, there's an underlying feeling that both MPAA and MPEA have lost a good deal of ground in recent months. It's a gradual process that has its roots in the splintering up of the industry and the rise of the independents.

One simple example would be the negotiation of compensation deals abroad, which used to be comparatively simple when MPEA spoke for most of the major companies. Today, the majors must listen to the indies, and the latter have their own interests and their own ways of doing things. It is becoming increasingly difficult for MPEA to get truly "united" industry action abroad, and foreign governments are of course aware of this.

Meet last week in N.Y. reelected all officers and elected a new board. In the future, there will be a small, flat fee for all persons subscribing to the MPAA's title registration service. In addition, there'll be a charge for every ten titles registered. New scheme goes into effect immediately, but isn't retroactive. Purpose in part is to cut down on the large number of "wild" registrations through which producers seek to protect themselves every which way on their title ideas.

Hidden Darling

Continued from page 3

partment solely concerned with the worldwide 16m operation.

The 16m films are distributed in 192 countries outside the Iron Curtain and it's estimated that they have an audience of 100,000,000 annually. The 10 principal 16m markets are Brazil, Great Britain, Canada, South Africa, France, Australia, Germany, Panama, Italy, Venezuela and Panama. In addition to various hospitals and institutions, the U. S. 16m market consists of the Veterans Administration, the U.S. Defense Perimeter, the tuna fleet, the Defense Dept. and Alaska.

Loew's income from 16m is more than double that of its nearest competitor, Columbia, which does a big job in the distribution of 16m Spanish-language films in Latin America. Universal, 20th-Fox, Warner Bros., Paramount and United Artists (which recently entered the field) are represented in the 16m market to some extent, but hardly approach the activity of Loew's.

W. G. Sandlin gave back lease he held on the Roxy Theatre at Stratford, Tex., and moved to Hale Center, Tex., to operate hardtopper and ozoner. Roxy will again be operated by its owner, F. D. Cummings.

Vancouver Bans Bardot's 'Woman'

Vancouver, April 22.

Brigitte Bardot's "And God Created Woman" was banned by the British Columbia film censor six weeks ago, it's revealed by Nat Levant, topman of Columbia Pictures which distributes the French release here. Censor's nixing has not been appealed, but, "I expect we will bring it back and resubmit it, but that depends on Toronto (head office) and I'm waiting instructions," he said.

R. W. McDonald, censor, explained, "I just see a film and say yes or no. Reasons are given only when they (distribs) go to the appeal board."

Motion picture appeal board chairman, Mrs. Thomas Bingham, was unaware the pic was banned. She said that Warners' "Baby Doll" was board's latest arbitration (cleared in March, with cuts), and she personally thought the WB release "had a very real message, and we gave a great deal of time to the matter of cuts. The picture gives the intelligent listener something to think about and ponder over."

Appeals chairman remarked that Vancouver distributors rarely appeal censor's decisions, and stressed that the board she heads is "the instrument of the picture industry. We're not censors. I sometimes wonder if they (distribs) realize that fully," adding that there is a very good relationship here between McDonald and film exchanges.

Universal's Dave Lipton Sees Pre-Selling 'When' Altered by Conditions

Because of a change in market conditions and the type of pictures finding acceptance with the public, pre-selling of pictures has become more important than ever, according the David Lipton, Universal's pub-ad veepee. The new pictures, the majority of which are in the blockbuster category, must catch on immediately in the firstrun situations in order to recoup the costly investment involved, Lipton stressed. It's conceivable that a film that gets off to a slow start can become a money-maker, the pub-ad chieftain noted, but that maximum returns can only be achieved if the picture "gets going at the very beginning."

Lipton, in N.Y. for homeoffice conferences, declared that pre-selling must begin "much earlier than previously" because the time between the finish and release of a picture is getting shorter. He pointed out that the major companies and the independent producers cannot afford to hold back costly productions for any length of time and that efforts must be made almost immediately to start the process whereby the coin starts rolling in.

Lipton, presenting an optimistic business outlook for the spring and summer months, cited the following reasons for the need for stepped-up, concentrated pre-selling:

(a) Word of mouth is slower catching on.

(b) Personal recommendation is required, so it is essential that people be brought into the theatres at once to see the important, costly pictures.

(c) Advanced prices required for the big pictures must have some merit attached to them.

Lipton's general comments served as a lead-in to Universal's pre-selling plans for its spring and summer releases, all of which, the pub-ad chief stressed, will be backed by aggressive merchandising and exploitation. For example, for "A Time to Live and a Time to Love," U's film version of the Erich Maria Remarque novel, the company launched a campaign almost from the moment it acquired the property. The picture, set for July release, will be backed by a $50,000 tv spot campaign in 42 major markets. In addition, personalities involved in the picture will visit every major market.

Mrs. Geneva Woods serving as manager of the Fine Arts Theatre, Denton, Texas, operated by Trans-Texas Theatres.

Moscow's 'Yankee Traders'

Continued from page 3

was stated unequivocally by Alexander Davydov, head of Sovexport, the Moscow agency which concerns itself with film import and export questions, who spent last week in Manhattan.

"We will deal only on a mutual basis," Davydov stressed. "We definitely connect the question of purchasing films with that of selling our product. It is the same policy we apply to every country with which we deal."

This Russian policy appears to be in sharp contrast with the "impressions" held by American industry executives who've been dealing with the Soviet emissaries under the broad terms of the Soviet-American cultural exchange pact. Only last week, Turner B. Shelton, film chief of the U. S. Information Agency, and the official Government contact on Russo-American film matters, stressed that the agreement didn't provide a quid-pro-quo deal.

Shelton told VARIETY that the Russians would first pick the pictures they wanted — apparently they're interested in between 12 and 15—and that later, and quite independently of this, discussions would take place relating to the possible purchase of Soviet features by the Americans. This was precisely to eliminate the impression that the "exchange" aspects of the cultural pact were being carried over to the film side.

First Hint

First indication that something was wrong came when one of the companies reported that, at the first negotiating session with the Soviets, Davydov and his colleagues made the following points: (1) USSR would be interested in buying several pictures each for a fixed price, but we will not give any guarantees as to distribution. (2) The American partner must buy at least one Soviet import. (3) It would be advisable to discuss "coproduction." Not being authorized to make any such commitments, the American negotiator temporarily broke off the talks to consult with his principals.

Another "official" meeting of the Soviet group with its American vis-a-vis, i.e., Motion Picture Export Assn. prez Eric Johnston, Shelton and some others, was held in Washington Monday (21). The topic of "policy" came up, along with the general review of progress to date. Davydov and his group will leave for Moscow within about a week. They will continue to screen films in Washington during the remainder of the week. To date they haven't closed a deal for a single American picture.

U. S. Not 'Needed'

Davydov made it very plain during the VARIETY interview that Russia did not "need" American films, or for that matter films from any country. The Soviets produce about 100 features a year, he said, in addition to about 47 full-length documentaries, and this was sufficient. This output was enough to satisfy the Soviet theatres, he held.

However, for "cultural" reasons, Russia wants to import films from all over the world. Asked why his group to date had shown interest primarily in "escapist" fare, Davydov said he was simply picking films which he believed the Russian public would enjoy. Though he wouldn't be pinned down on the point, he didn't give the impression of resenting the fact that he wasn't being given access to any pictures showing the U. S. in any light that could even faintly be considered as "critical."

"I am a commercial man, interested only in the commercial aspect," he declared. "My only interest is in selecting the kind of pictures we believe our public would like to see." Did Russians like foreign films? "If they are good, naturally. We are no different from your public," snapped Davydov.

He said Sovexport expected to license American films for a five-year period and that he planned to have prints made in Russia. As for distribution, he said "we are committed to distribute these films widely. There can be no check. As for our films in the United States, I believe the American attitude will be so honest that we can assume our Russian films will get wide distribution also. No control is necessary."

As an afterthought he added as an afterthought he added press in the U.S. "and we get your papers in Moscow and can check whether our pictures are seen or not."

'Editing' No Worry

There no longer appears to be any fear on the American side of the Soviets "editing" Hollywood films to suit them to their propaganda purposes. The USIA's Shelton stressed that, under the basic agreement, both sides must obtain approval of any changes being made in any films sold. Also, added Shelton, "we can check in the major cities, and it's hard to believe that they would make a different version for the cities and for the general run through the country. That runs into money."

Davydov said he had no confirmation of a $106,000 deal made by Sovexport with the Italians for "War and Peace." He said he had left Moscow before the arrangements were finalized. From another source it was learned, however, that in a prior conversation Davydov had indicated that $100,000 was about the right price paid for the picture.

He would not be pinned down as to the precise amount Sovexport intended to spend on American imports; nor would Davydov disclose the percentage of income the Russian film industry derives from exports. He was very clear on that point. "That figure is not something for your paper to print," he said, refusing even to estimate in percentages.

The Russians have been having a busy time of it, both in New York and in Washington, seeing films and negotiating with the companies. It's indicated that their offers to date have been on the low side. As one American exec put it: "It's difficult to tell what is the 'right' price. They're free to play our films in three theatres, or in 28,000. So if we get $500,000 for a film, it's still not really adequate."

Motivations

What motivates the companies, however, and what obviously also motivates the State Department, is the desire to have American films seen by Russian audiences. While the word "propaganda" is ardently disclaimed, the fact remains that most Americans are convinced of the beneficiary results of simply letting Soviet audiences look in on the U. S. way of life and level of living.

Turning this question around, the answer becomes more complex. The Soviet way-of-life obviously is nothing for Americans to particularly admire. On the other hand, none of the some 24 films the Sovexport crew brought along has any kind of Communist propaganda in it. That leaves only "cultural" accomplishments. And of these the Russians are inordinately proud.

"They're not so much worried about making money here," ran one analysis last week. "When they bring over pictures like 'Swan Lake' or an opera, it's primarily to convince Americans that Russia under the Soviets has hit a cultural high that, in their minds, compensates for the American industrial headway. It's a sort of 'recognition' which they crave and which makes up for their considerable inferiority complex vis-a-vis the U. S."

Todd Memorial

Continued from page 1

another were associated with Todd.

Stanza will be seen that Wednesday between 11 p.m. and midnight, hence preempting WABD's regular "Night Beat" interviews with John Wingate.

Among those being approached to appear are George Jessel, Gypsy Rose Lee (who worked for the producer in Broadway's "Star and Garter,") S. J. Perelman, who wrote the screen treatment of "Around the World in 80 Days," Cantinflas, et. al., and a selection of stagehands and other crewmen who worked with him on various projects.

Capper to the special tv show will be the announcement of a "Mike Todd Theatrical Scholarship" for young actors.

Sophia Loren got $225,000 for her work in "Black Orchid."

BIGGEST GUN-HOT ACTION
ROUGHEST Ranger in the West!
SOFTEST Girl in Mex
GEORGE MONTGOMERY
Toughest Gun In Tombstone
co-starring JIM DAVIS • BEVERLY TYLER • GERALD MILTON with DON BEDDOE • SCOTTY MORROW • HARRY LAUTER • CHARLES WAGENHEIM
LANE BRADFORD • RODOLFO HOYOS • Screenplay by ORVILLE H. HAMPTON • Directed by EARL BELLAMY
Produced by ROBERT E. KENT • A Peerless Productions, Inc. Presentation
THRU UA
First Roaring Story of the Arizona Rangers... BOOK IT NOW FOR MAY!

Picture Grosses

'Lions' Roaring at 12G, L'ville; 'Brothers' Mighty 7G, 2d; 'Kwai' $9,000, 4th

Louisville, April 22.

Wicket pace at the downtowners continues firm, new "Young Lions" at Rialto shaping for socko take. "Brothers Karamazov" at the Brown still is great in second round. Spring racing meet at Churchill Downs opens Saturday (26), highlighted by the annual Kentucky Derby one week later (May 3). Drive-ins throughout the area are all open for biz, with segment of family trade naturaly patronizing these outdoor spots.

Estimates for This Week

Brown (Fourth Ave.-U.A.) (1,000; 99-$1.45)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (2d wk). Great $7,000 after last week's $9,000.

Kentucky (Switow) (900; 50-85)—"Cole Younger, Gunfighter" (AA) and "Bowery Boys Up In Smoke" (AA). Modest $4,000. Last week, "Touch of Evil" (U) and "Day of Bad Man" (U), $5,000.

Mary Anderson (People's) (1,000; 85-$1.25)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Oke $5,000 after last week's $7,000.

Rialto (Fourth Ave.) (3,000; 74-99)—"Young Lions" (20th). Looks like leader here this week at sturdy $12,000. Last week, "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk), $11,000.

United Artists (UA) (3,000; 90-$1.45)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (4th wk). Healthy $9,000 after third week's $15,000.

'Kwai' Great $16,000, Omaha; 'Marjorie' 4G

Omaha, April 22.

Only one new entry this week, but that one is "Bridge on River Kwai," a blockbuster at the Orpheum. "Marjorie Morningstar" ramains fine in th third stanza at the Brandeis, but "Brothers Karamazov" is just mild in second at the State. "Young Lions," switched to the Omaha to make room for "Bridge" at the Orpheum, is fair in third session downtown.

Estimates for This Week

Brandeis (RKO) (1,100; 75-90)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk). Still fine at $4,000. Last week, $5,500.

Omaha (Tristates) (2,066; 90-$1.25) — "Young Lions" (20th) (m.o.). Fair $5,000 in third week downtown. Last week, "Bitter Victory" (Col) and "Domino Kid" (Col), $3,500 at 75c-90c scale.

Orpheum (Tristates) (2,980; 90-$1.25)—"Bride on River Kwai" (Col). Smash $16,000 or better. Last week, "Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk), $7,000.

State (Cooper) (850; 90-$1.25)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (2d wk). Only moderate $4,000 after $7,500 bow.

PHILADELPHIA

(Continued from page 8)

(Col) (6th wk). Terrific $21,000. Last week, $30,000.

Stanley (SW) (2,900; 99-$1.80)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk). Good $11,000. Last week, $13,000.

Stanton (SW) (1,483; 99-$1.49)—"Saddle Wind" (M-G) (2d wk). Quiet $6,000. Last week, $6,500.

Studio (Goldberg) (385; 90-$1.89)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (8th wk). Trim $3,700. Last week, $5,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 99-$1.80)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (7th wk). Okay $5,700. Last week, $8,700.

Viking (Sley) (1,000; 99-$1.49)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (4th wk). Neat $9,500. Last week, $11,000.

World (Pathe) (500; 99-$1.89)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (8th wk). Fine $3,400. Last week, $4,000.

KANSAS CITY

(Continued from page 8)

"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (3d wk). Fair $3,500. Last week, $4,500.

Tower, Fairway, Granada, Apollo (Fox Midwest) (2,100; 700; 1,217; 1,050; 75-90) — "Cool and the Crazy" (American Int'l) and "Dragstrip Riot" (Indie). World preem for "Cool," picture is heading for big $20,000, and likely will hold. Last week, Tower, Fairway, "Long Hot Summer" (20th) and "Blood Arrow" (20th) (2d wk), $6,500.

Uptown (Fox Midwest) (2,043; 90-$1.25) — "Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Tapered to $4,500. Last week, both at uptown and Granada, $8,000.

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 8)

Soft $4,800. Last week, "Country Girl" (Par), "Proud and Profane" (Par) (reissues), $2,000.

Chinese (FWC) (1,408; $1.75-$3.50)—"Windjammer" (NT) (2d wk). Pleasant $22,500. Last week, $26,800.

Four Star, Fox Beverly, Loyola, Vogue (UTAC-FWC) (868; 1,170; 1,248; 825; $1.25-$2.40)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Solid $33,000 or near. Last week, $46,100.

Fine Arts (FWC) (631; 90-$1.50) —"Stage Struck" (BV) (2d wk). Dull $1,500. Last week, $3,000.

Orpheum (Metropolitan) (2,213; 90-$1.50)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Cross Up" (UA) (3d wk). Tepid $3,300.

Pantages (RKO) (2,812; $1.25-$2.40)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) (3d wk). NSG $5,600. Last week, $6,500.

Warner Beverly (SW) (1,612; $1.25-$2.40)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (4th wk). Low $6,000. Last week, $6,900.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (2,296; 90-$1.50)—"Paris Holiday" (UA) (4th wk). Slow $3,500. Last week, $3,700.

Downtown Paramount, Wiltern (ABPT-SW) (3,300; 2,344; 90-$1.50) —"Sayonara" (WB) and "Forbidden Desert" (WB) (4th wk). Good $13,100.

Hollywood Paramount (F&M) (1,468; $1.25-$2)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (5th wk). Fair $6,700. Last week, $9,200.

Egyptian (UATC) (1,503; $1.25-$3.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (18th wk). Steady $15,000. Last week, $15,800.

Warner Hollywood (SW-Cinerama) (1,384; $1.20-$2.65)—"Seven Wonders" (Cinerama). Started 46th week Sunday (20) after $13,100 last week.

Carthay (FWC) (1,138; $1.75-$3.50)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (70th wk). Strong $16,200. Last week, $16,100.

Crest, Sunset (Lippert-Cohen) (800; 540; $1.25-$1.50)—"Smiles of a Summer Night" (Rank). Okay $5,600. Last week, "Smallest Show on Earth" (Bev), "W. C. Fields Festival" (Bev) (2d wk), $2,600.

BOSTON

(Continued from page 8)

wk). Hotsy $20,000. Last week, same.

Kenmore (Indie) 700; $1.25-$2) —"Henry V" (Rank) (reissue) (5th wk). Oke $4,000. Last week, $5,000.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 60-$1.10) —"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (3d wk). Big $12,000. Last week, $14,500.

Metropolitan (NET) (4,357; 70-$1.10)—"Paris Holiday" (UA). Opened Monday (21). Last week, taken over by Metropolitan Opera.

Paramount (NET) (1,700; 60-$1.10) — "Macabre" (AA) and "Hell's 5 Hours" (AA). Lofty $15,500. Last week, "Cole Younger" (AA) and "Missouri Traveler" (BV), $10,000.

Saxon (Saxon) (1,100; $1.50-$3.30) —"South Pacific" (20th) (2d wk). Second week was hotsy $26,000. Extra matinees helped. Stays a third.

Trans-Lux (Trans-Lux) (730; 75-$1.25)—"Devil in Flesh" (Indie) and "Naked Night" (Indie). Okay $4,200. Last week, "Miller's Beautiful Wife" (Indie) and "Flesh Is Weak" (Indie), $5,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (2,900; 75-$1.25)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Quiet American" (UA) (4th wk). Neat $9,000. Last week, $11,000.

State (Loew) (3,600; 75-$1.25)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G). Smash $25,000 or over. Last week, "Witness For Prosecution" (UA) (8th wk), $8,000.

SAN FRANCISCO

(Continued from page 9)

and "Bop Girl" (UA.) Good $11,000 or over. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (3d wk), $6,200.

Stagedoor (A-R) (440; $1.25-$1.50)—"Stage Struck" (BV) (2d wk). Poor $2,100. Last week, $2,500.

Presidio (Hardy-Parsons) (774; $1.25-$1.50) — "Spanish Gardner" (Cont) and "Loser Takes All" (Cont) (2d wk). Fair $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Vogue (S.F. Theatres) (364; $1.25) —"Smiles Of Summer Night" (Rank) (2d wk). Sold $4,500. Last week, $5,000.

Coronet (United California) (1,250; $1.50-$3.75) — "Around World In 80 Days" (UA) (69th wk). Okay $10,000. Last week, ditto.

H.O.s Help Det.; 'Andrew' Mild $8,000, 'Marjorie' Sock 20G, 'Lions' 15G

Detroit, April 22.

Plethora of strong holdovers is keeping the downtown deluxers fairly busy this week but at a slightly decreased pace from the last session's terrific dash. Only two newcomers, neither doing much. "Merry Andrew" at the Adams is barely fair while "Cool and Crazy" at the Broadway-Capitol is rated just average.

A great gait is being mainlained by "Marjorie Morningstar" at the Michigan in second session. "South Pacific" at the United Artists, also in second, looms smash. "Long, Hot Summer" continues to sizzle in second time round at the Palms. "Bridge on River Kwai" stays tremendous in sixth session at the Madison. "Young Lions" is still good in third week at the huge Fox.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Fox-Detroit) (5,000; $1.25-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Good $15,000. Last week, $19,000.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,100; $1.25-$1.50)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Great $20,000. Last week, $25,000.

Palms (UD) (2,961; $1.25-$1.50)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) and "Showdown at Boot Hill" (20th) (2d wk). Hot $18,000. Last week, $24,900.

Madison (UD) (1,900; $1.25-$1.75)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Wow $23,000. Last week, $29,000.

United Artists (UA) (1,667; $1.25-$3)—"South Pacific" (20th) (2d wk). Great $22,000. Last week, $20,800.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; 90-$1.25)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G). Fair $7,500. Last week, "Raintree County" (M-G) (8th wk), $7,500.

Music Hall (SW - Cinerama) (1,20-$2.65)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (11th wk). Robust $18,500. Last week, $17,000.

Trans-Lux Krim (Trans-Lux) (1,000; 90-$1.65)—"God Created Woman" (Indie) (14th wk). Fine $6,500. Last week, same.

'Run Deep' Fancy 18G, Buff; 'Pet' Perky 14G

Buffalo, April 22.

Some new, strong product is giving first-run film biz here currently a rosy tone despite milder weather. "Run Silent, Run Deep" shapes socko at the Buffalo while "Teacher's Pet" is rated bright at Paramount. "Young Lions" still is fancy in third frame at the Center.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew) (3,500; 70-$1.25) —"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA). Sock $18,000 or near. Last week, "Paths of Glory" (UA), $12,000.

Center (AB-PT) (3,000; 70-$1.25) —"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Fast $10,00. Last week, $15,000.

Century (UATC) (2,700; 70-$1.50) —"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Tapered to $8,500. Last week, $12,200.

Lafayette (Basil) (3,000; 70-90)—"Song of Bernadette" (20th) (reissue). Modest $7,000 in 9 days. Last week, "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (2d wk), $15,200 in 6 days.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,000; 70-90)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) and "Spanish Affair" (Par). Bright $14,000. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk), $12,400 at $1.25 top.

TORONTO

(Continued from page 9)

"Damn Citizen" (Col). Sad $10,000. Last week, "Underwater Warrior" (M-G) and "Man from God's Country" (AA), $12,000.

Eglinton, Palace, Runnymede (FP) (1,080; 1,485; 1,385; 50-$1)—"Wild Is Wind" (Par). Solid $16,000. Last week, "Teacher's Pet" (Par) (2d wk), $17,500 but latter two houses are not holding up.

Hollywood (FP) (1,080; $1-$1.25) —"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Smash $15,000. Last week, $17,000.

Imperial (FP) (3,344; 75-$1.25)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB). Wham $21,000. Last week, "Peyton Place" (20th) (8th wk), $15,500 for eight days.

Loew's (Loew) (2,098; 75-$1.25)—"Witness for Prosecution" (UA) (2d wk). Hefty $19,000. Last week, $26,000.

Nortown, Towne, Westwood (FP-Taylor) (959; 693; 694; $1)—"Snow White" (B-V) (reissue) (3d wk). Fine $15,000. Last week, $25,000.

Tivoli (FP) (955; $1.75-$2.40)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (36th wk). Steady $6,500. Last week, same.

University (FP) (1,233; $1.50-$2.40)—"Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama) (3d wk). Okay $14,000. Last week, $15,000.

Uptown (Loew) (2,075; 60-$1)—"Paths of Glory" (UA) (2d wk). Fine $8,500. Last week, $11,000.

CHICAGO

(Continued from page 9)

Last week, "White Huntress" (AI) and "Oklahoma Woman" (AI), $5,000.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 90-$1.50) —"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (4th wk). Good $16,000. Last week, $21,000.

Palace (SW - Cinerama) (1,434; $1.25-$3.40) — "Search for Paradise" (Cinerama). Slow $13,000 for seven performances. Last week, "Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (69th wk), $30,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,400; 90-$1.80) —"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Great $25,000. Last week, $38,000.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,400; 90-$1.80) — "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Giant $29,000. Last week, $42,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685; $1.50) —"Nights of Cabiria" (Lopert) (3d wk). Fairish $3,900. Last week, $4,000.

Todd's Cinestage (Todd) (1,036; $1.75-$3.30) — "Around World" (UA) (55th wk). Sturdy $19,000. Last week, $22,500.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 90-$1.50)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (4th wk). Good $13,000. Last week, $17,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,200; 90-$1.50)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (2d wk). Bright $23,000. Last week, $27,000.

World (Teitel) (606; 90)—"Smiles of Summer Night" (Rank) (2d wk). Okay $3,200. Last week, $5,000.

Say Hollywood Crafts Harassed Glenville 'Quickie' Production

Hollywood, April 22.

AFL-CIO prexy George Meany has been asked to investigate a jurisdiction hassle here between IATSE and NABET, involving a quickie theatrical film.

Fracas began over shooting of the four-day Glenville picture, "Sideburns and Sympathy," which didn't sign a pact with either union when it began shooting, but did ink one with NABET late Tuesday night. This brought IA picket lines around Centaur studio, where the film is being shot, as well as a demand from Herbert Aller, business rep of IA cameramen's local 659, to Meany that he investigate.

Aller wired Meany charging NABET with "raiding" tactics, and said "they have pursued scavenger tactics and are exerting efforts to undermine wage scales and conditions that have been established over a period of 25 years." To this Bill Hines, chairman of Association of Film Craftsmen of NABET, replied: "We've been called names before; we're not going to engage in any name-calling. It sounds like cry-baby tactics to me."

Screen Actors Guild, meanwhile, said that producer Kenneth Herts had made a cash settlement with the guild for all "breaches of the contract which existed. The breaches concerned the use of persons who were not eligible to work as actors in the picture." The SAG spokesman continued, "We have not yet signed a contract with Glenville. We are allowing guild members to work, and will watch to see that they are complying with terms of the contract before approving a contract."

Aller also got off a letter to Charles S. Boren, v.p. in charge of industrial relations for AMPP, requesting him to advise AMPP members that they buy pix only after ascertaining pix have been made under conditions which conform to the IA basic agreement.

PAR FUSES PORTLAND SALES WITH SEATTLE

Portland, Ore., April 22.

Paramount will discontinue its billing, collection and other business activity at its Portland, Ore., exchange effective April 18, with this "front room" work to be taken over by the Seattle branch. It's another "streamlining" move of the type that has been growing increasingly prominent in the picture business.

Wayne Thiriot, Par's Portland manager heretofore, will continue to represent the company in the Portland territory but within the aegis of the Seattle office headed by Henry Haustein.

750G Antitrust Suit Charges Monopoly in 16m Pix Distribution

Two corporations and five individuals have illegally monopolized non-theatrical distribution of 16m films produced by several majors since 1951, Post Pictures Corp. charged recently in a $750,000 treble damage antitrust suit brought in N. Y. Federal Court. Named defendants are Films Inc., Encyclopedia Films Inc., Adlai E. Stevenson, Maurice B. Mitchell, Paul G. Hoffman, William Benton and Harry E. Houghton.

Through alledegly conspiring to engage in a monopolistic combination, action contends, defendants excluded Post from obtaining any 16m rights to product turned out by Loew's Inc., Paramount, RKO, Warners, 20th-Fox and Republic. Films, Inc., a New York outfit, distributes both theatrical and educational pix in 16m version. Headquartered in Wilmette, Ill., Encyclopedia releases a variety of educational films.

Cannes, 1958

Continued from page 3

practical difficulties. One is that Cannes, for instance, wouldn't necessarily go by basic values, but might be swayed by the inducements (such as star appearances) offered by individual distributors. Another is that the fest might not pick from the list, but want other films. And if there's anything MPEA wants to avoid it's a repetition of the "Blackboard Jungle" scandal at Venice a couple of years ago.

One of the selection methods considered and nixed, involves the broadening of the selection committee to include "outsiders," such as critics. But this again raises a practical point: An "artistically"-minded group might have chosen "The Goddess" over "Brothers Karamazov." The former is considered a good film, but reflects poorly on Hollywood, being the story of an actress' decline.

In the overall, one of the problems facing MPEA every year in making up its mind about fest entries is the limited availability of the "right" kind of pix. The companies generally prefer to enter films which are about to be released on the Continent so as to take best advantage of the publicity values that accure from the fests.

Suggestion was made, following last year's Cannes festival, to draw for fest entries on pictures nominated for Academy Awards in March. This, however, doesn't necessarily solve the problem of meeting fest requirements which still hinge on the comparative values of "art" vs. "boxoffice." There's been some improvement in that respect in recent years, with European fest juries less intent on awarding the purely artistic productions and ignoring popular values. However, the danger of having a major picture torn to pieces by the assembled fest critics still exists and there is general agreement on the need to adjust to fest mentality.

Leo's New Master

Continued from page 3

Irving Ravetch writing a novel, "Home From the Hill," for conversion to the screen.

Siegel, veteran production executive, was represented in the negotiations by attorneys Seymour Steinberg and Jacob Shearer of the law firm of Tannenbaum, Steinberg & Shearer.

Siegel, once an executive producer at Republic, served as a production executive at Paramount and 20th-Fox in addition to operating as an indie. He brought his indie unit to Metro about two years ago.

With Siegel taking over as production topper, the studio operation will revert to the format under L. B. Mayer, when latter was administrative head of the studio and Irving Thalberg and subsequently Sam Katz and Dore Schary were the production chiefs. Now, Ben Thau will continue as administrative head, with Siegel in charge of production.

MADRID IDEA: MPEA TOO HASTY

Film Biz Sees Britain's 50% Cinema Ducat Tax Cut Better Than Nothing; Industry's New Tax Bill $35,000,000

By HAROLD MYERS

London, April 22.

On the premise that half a loaf is not entirely unpalatable, the British picture industry has accepted the Chancellor's Budget decision with mixed feelings. There's keen disappointment, naturally, at his refusal to implement the request for total abolition of the cinema tax, but there is some gratitude for the fact that he's slashed it by 50%.

In doing so, the annual rate of taxation has been brought down to just below the 1939 level. This year's concession, which will be worth over $39,000,000 in a full year, will leave the industry a tax bill of some $35,000,000. In 1939, calculated on the present rate of exchange, the industry was paying about $45,000,000 a year.

One decisive effect of the tax cut certainly will be to raise the ante so far as payments into the statutory Eady Fund are concerned. The Chancellor, in his House of Commons statement, made it perfectly clear that he had allowed his cabinet colleague, the Board of Trade prexy, adequate room to maneuver on this question. The levy was designed to yield $10,500,000 this year but on present performance the gross is unlikely to exceed $7,000,000. There is now little doubt that when the new tax scales come into effect May 4, they'll be accompanied by an adjustment of the exhibitors' levy contributions to bring the revenue up at least to the original target.

Many producers are confident that the Board of Trade prexy will go even further and will raise the target—either this year or next—to around $11,200,000 a year. The Act, which governs the statutory levy, imposes a $14,000,000 a year ceiling for the Fund, but if it were raised to that level there would be no further room to maneuver.

How It Effects Small Cinemas

The big question mark at this point is the effect the concession will have on the smaller picture theatres whose future has been in jeopardy for some time. The Chancellor, in his statement to the House of Commons, emphasized that he was motivated by a desire to help the small exhib, but theatre men are questioning whether many of the borderline cases will be able to continue in business. Under the new tax scale all admissions up to and including 21c will be duty free. Thereafter, the tax will be calculated at 33⅓% on the amount by which the admission exceeds that figure. The current rate is 50% on admissions over 12c.

Another question to be resolved is whether any of the tax concession will be passed on to the public. The general feeling, widely reported among the national press on the morning after the Budget, was that the theatregoer would not benefit from the tax cut. However, it is known that immediately after the Budget, circuit toppers got together and there was a very firm suggestion that there should be some price reduction.

Undoubtedly the tax relief, coupled with the prospects of an improvement in the statutory levy, will be some encouragement to British producers, although they were mainly confident of total abolition. Even so, with the improved situation, there may well be an early spurt in production. The greenlight is now expected for several projects which have been held back pending the Budget.

Flying Tiger Party

A group of 96 U. S. Variety Club members took off Saturday (19) on a Flying Tigers chartered flight from Philadelphia to attend the Variety International convention in London. The plane was chartered by the Philly tent.

Another chartered flight left Monday (21) from N. Y.'s Idlewild Airport.

Public Pic Taste

Continued from page 1

Summer," which was concocted from a number of William Faulkner stories. His next project is "The Sound and the Fury," another Faulkner book, which he will direct for producer Jerry Wald. Also on Ritt's sked is "Sons and Lovers."

Difficult Task

Taking great literary works and transferring them to the screen, without losing their essence, isn't easy. "Desire Under the Elms" tried to do justice to Eugene O'Neil and "Old Man and the Sea" does the same with Ernest Hemingway. Wald wants to produce James Joyce's "Ulysses," and attempts to capture the mood of Francoise Sagan in "Bonjour Tristesse" and the upcoming "A Certain Smile" are part of the current screen excursions.

Occasionally, and in the case of the "problem" pictures quite often, pressure from groups or individuals tends to distort the original work. Apparently it was due to the insistence of star Marlon Brando that the character of the German in "The Young Lions" was completely distorted from its original in the Irwin Shaw novel. And the Roman Catholic Legion of Decency, sometimes indirectly, has had a good deal to do with distorting original works for the screen. It's doubtful that "Long, Hot Summer" would have dissolved into a soap opera ending had it not been for anticipation of Legion objections. Ritt merely said that "a much longer film would have been needed to resolve the father-son relationship realistically."

Speaking of Hollywood as a whole, Ritt said "it's now back in the hands of the people who make pictures." However, with the trend towards more serious films, he also emphasized the need to "draw the line for pressure groups," which he felt would become more active as the screen tackles more controversial themes.

Today's Approach

Creative talent concerned with film content doesn't pretend that a picture could—or should—be a precise "copy" of the original work, such as the upcoming "Uncle Vanya," which is merely a re-staging of the legiter. Feeling is that pix in the past have tended to drain the meaning out of serious stories, concentrating on the kind of values "everyone" can understand. Today, the tendency is more to seek clearer motivation of characters by retaining the thought-line of the original work, partly in the dialog and partly in the setting of the scenes.

Example cited is "Brothers Karamazov," which retained a degree of the base material. "Peyton Place," on the other hand, simply copied the title of a bestseller and more or less ignored the social implications of the tome (not to speak of its sex content which obviously was too "hot" to handle).

On the play side, "Blue Denim," "Two for the Seesaw" (which is being bought) and Budd Schulberg's upcoming "The Disenchanted" testify to the screen's gradual swing to more mature themes. In part, the willingness to experiment is attributable to the rise of the independents. Yet, when an Elia Kazan makes "A Face in the Crowd," and it flops, the studios' agonized reappraisal of the audience starts all over again.

Blackshere Drive-In at Mannington, W. Va., operated since it was built six years ago by Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Church, sold to two former employes of the Ted Laskey circuit, Joe C. Carunchia and O. S. Carpenter. The Churches continue to run the Mannington hardtop.

RUSH FOR DATES LACKS DECORUM

By HANK WERBA

Madrid, April 15.

Several U. S. film companies and company managers in Spain overstepped bounds of the agreement reached last week between Spanish government film authorities and Motion Picture Export Assn. rep. Frank Gervasi, and a new note of anxiety is again evident along Madrid's Film Row.

Each of the seven U. S. branches here submitted applications last week for two film import licenses. Some of the Yank distribs in submitting titles, apparently overlooked understanding between Spain and MPEA to limit the immediate partial entry of American film product to pictures of quality but not in the blockbuster class.

Paramount, with its application for "War and Peace" and Metro seeking to enter "Brothers Karamazov" were informed in official bureaus that local film distribution conditions did not favor competition at this time from very superior box office product and both companies were asked to submit substitute titles.

Paramount-Metro move was followed several days later by full-page Warner Bros. ads in Barcelona and Madrid announcing the pending release of "Land of Pharoahs" and "Battle Cry." Ads left government officials frowning since none of the import applications had yet been signed. Also blurbs violated film ruling here that admits advertising only after the Spanish censor has given a particular film its initial O.K. Film circles are worried that the U. S. companies are imperilling the present unwritten partial Spain MPEA agreement. The Spanish government, trade sources say, liberally conceded 18 Yank film imports after Gervasi formally notified this country that the MPEA film embargo had been lifted.

Warned on 'Tact'

Before returning to Rome with this unexpected favorable partial agreement and firm prospects for a 1958-59 pact agreement at the end of April, Gervasi notified all U. S. branch toppers to make no public announcements and carefully respect the spirit of the limited entente.

Outcome of individual jockeying and premature release of ads brought Gervasi from his Rome desk for a lay-down-the-law session in Barcelona. Gervasi stressed that MPEA was still on thin ice in Spain and that unless the Yank managers in this country pulled together on strict instructions from New York, all hopes to restore full film relations with Spain would go out the window.

At the moment, trade sources cannot determine when U. S. import application will get Spanish government seals. Local film hierarchy left for Rome today for ten days of negotiations with their Italian counterparts and it is assumed here no action on Yank Pix will now be taken until their return. Unlooked—for delay which observers here attribute to "Golden Era" tactics of U. S. distribs is once again providing a capital occasion for forces hostile to MPEA within the local film industry to counteract the impressive results obtained by MPEA trouble shooter Gervasi earlier this month.

'FIRST MAN INTO SPACE' COMPLETED OVERSEAS

Amalgamated Productions Inc. (Richard Gordon and Charles F. Vetter Jr.) has completed the science-fiction "First Man Into Space." Stars Marshall Thompson and the Italian actress, Marla Landi.

Film was made in Britain. Distribution arrangements with a major distributor are being finalized.

Charles Handel was dropped as a Paramount Lomeoffice pressagent —more economy.

Its Embargo Card Already Played, Yanks Wonder About Spaniards; Will They Favor Own Distribs?

Situation in Spain, now partly resolved via the decision of the American companies to lift their two-year embargo on shipments into that country, is still worrying N. Y. executives. As they see it, the lifting of the embargo has put the Motion Picture Export Assn. into a difficult bargaining position.

Spain has agreed to issue two licenses per company until September, when the new year starts. The deal for that year has yet to be negotiated. In fact, at this writing, not even the 18 permits have been issued.

Now the argument runs like this: The Spaniards know that, only under the most extreme circumstances, will an embargo be reimposed; that means they know that the American major distributors are deprived of their ultimate weapon in case Spain refuses to come across with enough permits to make operations worthwhile. Some in N. Y. say that it's precisely the aim of the Spaniards to force the American companies to turn over their product to local distribs.

One or two of the companies have had such a move in mind for some time and, whatever the shape of the new agreement, they can be expected to pull out.

At the MPEA, while it's acknowledged that the lifting of the embargo imposes certain handicaps, the argument is made that the move helped pave the way for a new deal and that without this concession, nothing could be accomplished in the future.

Berlin Red Rally

Continued from page 2

Today they have on top over there a new 'Hindenburg.'" Zweig praised Robeson as a great human being and called his singing the "heart beat of America." He concluded his speech by calling out: "America's Voice, continue singing!"

Next a telegram sent by Earl Robinson, composer-friend of Robeson, was read to the audience.

Press Un-Invited

Apparently because the sponsoring student group neglected to invite the press, Paul Robeson's U. of Chicago concerts had no coverage in local gazettes. The Negro baritone, in a comeback on the concert circuit, made two weekend appearances in the university's Mandel Hall under the aegis of a campus political unit called Student Representative Party. Both concerts were near sellouts at a $2.50 top for the 1,066-seat audiorium.

Recitals had scant advance publicity, apart from stories in the Maroon, student weekly, though Robeson himself made a splash last Thursday (10) with a Daily News interview under a three-column head.

Seymour Raven, second-string music reviewer for the morning Tribune, said the paper hadn't been invited to cover the concerts. But even if it had, he pointed out, they still might have passed up because of difficulty making the paper's deadline. Mandel Hall is a good 10 miles from Trib Tower. Even for very fine and renowned artists, Raven stressed, "we seldom go out of the Loop."

A university spokesman said that apparently the students had not invited the critics, but noted that because of the tax-exemption angle it was likely the student group wanted to avoid any hint of commercialism.

ABC Nixes For Video

Chicago, April 22.

Scheduled WBKB interview with politically-angled singer Paul Robeson didn't come off.

The ukase came from Sterling (Red) Quinlan, ABC veepee in charge of the local station, but was commanded by the network. Quinlan phoned in the directive from New York during a visit there last week after having approved the Robeson grilling on Norm Ross' "VIP" stanza only a week earlier.

Aware, and in fact fearful, that the cancelling might blow up into an issue of television censorship, WBKB's press department handled the matter quietly, notifying only the program listing clerks at the papers of the deletion and hoping it would blow over unnoticed. But it didn't.

Ross' show is mildly of the Mike Wallace stripe but doesn't normally deal in controversial personages.

Apparently the web feels WBKB would be abetting Robeson's intended comeback try on the concert circuit by giving him exposure on the interview show.

'Peyton' Libel Case June 9

Laconia, N.H., April 22.

A pre-trial hearing was held before Justice Robert Griffith in Belknap County Superior Court here, April 8, on $250,000 libel suits brought by Thomas and Geraldine Makris of this city against the former Grace Metalious, author of the novel, "Peyton Place," on which the motion picture of the same title was based, and her New York publishers.

Trial of the case has been scheduled for the week of June 9.

The Makris couple claim they were portrayed in the book, and, as a result, their character was defamed.

Cheval'r, Jane, Schnoz

Continued from page 1

remains in the spot until May 28, after which the hotel opens its Starlight Roof with Xavier Cugat. Abbe Lane (Mrs. Cugat), current in "Oh Captain," will double at the roof for the second show. An act for the first show hasn't yet been set.

Jane Powell on her first N.Y. cafe date in several years, is a strong draw at this other Hilton hospice. She remains at the Persian Room until May 6 and Celeste Holm comes in the following day. Miss Holm will close the room, although definite date hasn't been set yet.

The St. Regis Maisonette business is somewhat down from last season at this time with Bill Hayes & Florence on tap. Patricia Wilson follows them in May 7. The room closes June 5 and operations move the following day to the roof with Milt Shaw & Ray Bari orchs.

New York Theatre
RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • CI 6-4600
"MARJORIE MORNINGSTAR"
Starring
GENE KELLY • NATALIE WOOD
A Warner Bros. Release • In WarnerColor
and GALA NEW STAGE SPECTACLE

ART MOVIE THEATRE FOR LEASE.
VERY ATTRACTIVE,
500 SEATS
ALL EQUIPMENT
PHOENIX, ARIZONA
Write BOX V-4747-58, VARIETY
154 W. 46th St., New York 36

Govt. Vs. B'casters No. 1 Item On NAB Convention Agenda; Labor, Recession, Automation Get Billing

Growing complexities of the Government's role in television shapes up as the No. 1 item on the agenda for the 36th annual National Assn. of Broadcasters convention next week in Los Angeles. As important secondary topics, both for official discussion and the backroom forums, the matter of labor vs. automation and the recessive business climate will dominate the action.

High interest in federal regulation, stemming from the Barrow Report, the Congressional investigation of the FCC and last week's proposed rulemaking order on the clear channels, will manifest itself in several ways. Even the customarily staid official agenda contains some hints, i.e., highlight of the Wednesday (30) management session will be an NAB public relations presentation by John M. Outler of WSB, Atlanta, head of the committee set up last year to widen NAB's p.r. influence; the Television Code Review Board will screen "Guest in the House," special film designed for distribution to local stations and showing how the industry governs itself in matters of program content. All six members of the FCC will be present—but paying their own way—for the regular FCC panel session and a speech by chairman John C. Doerfer.

But the real key to the presence of Government as the key topic of the convention is the record number of factional meetings scheduled apart from the agenda. List includes the Assn. of Maximum Telecasters on Saturday and Sunday (26-27), Clear Channel Broadcasting Service Sunday, Committee for Competitive Television, also Sunday, Assn. for Professional Broadcasting Education, Daytime Broadcasters Assn., Small Television Markets Committee, etc. Others of a more social nature but at which business will be conducted are the annual BMI lunch, Quality Radio Group, TV Stations Inc., and the two affiliates meetings, ABC-TV's on Friday (25) and Mutual's on Sunday, latter's first under its new management.

Labor Issues

On the labor front, with the IBEW strike of CBS as a key portent, the chief topic will be technological advances and automation. The regular labor session Monday (28) will take as its first topic "Technological Change and Collective Bargaining." On Wednesday, a panel will discuss "What Can Automation Do for My Station?" with one of the panelists being Harold P. See of KRON-TV, San Francisco, who has developed an automated master control setup which is in operation at his outlet in Bakersfield but which he's been

(Continued on page 43)

That Duz It!

Why Johnny can't spell!

More and more ad agency copy writers are fashioning tv commercials which have elementary school teachers up in arms. Spelling tests prove that moppets know their singing commercials but how many spot RINSO without an "e."

Teachers insist that Johnny certainly can read but what Madison Avenue is doing to the kid's spelling shouldn't happen to a subliminal dug.

The baleful influence of such deliberate misspellings on the tv screen as DUZ, WISK, KLEAR, GLO-Coat, MIRRO, Denture-CREME, GRIL-LITE, KURO, TRIX and TRU-LIFT, is felt throughout the average classroom, according to all apple-loving teachers.

FCC Reduced to 'Examiner' Status On Miami Review

Washington, April 22.

Action of the Court of Appeals last week in returning the channel 10 Miami case to the Federal Communications Commission, as requested by the agency in view of Congressional disclosures of alleged "influence" in the decision, raised lots of eyebrows here.

The order issued by the Court was considered unprecedented in its terms. For one thing, the Court retains jurisdiction over the case, directing the Commission to report in six weeks on its progress in complying with the order. The Court also tells the agency how its new hearings should be held, the eligibility of original applicants to come back in, and what the Commission should determine.

It specifically directs the agency to determine whether its grant to National Airlines was void because of former Comm. Richard A. Mack's vote. It further calls on the Commission to determine whether any of the applicants for

(Continued on page 43)

GODFREY WANTS OUT ON 'FORD ROAD SHOW'

Arthur Godfrey is calling it quits on still another of his CBS shows. This time it's "The Ford Road Show," Godfrey's 5:05 to 5:30 p. m. cross-the-boarder on CBS Radio for Ford. Godfrey claims the series takes up more of his time than he originally anticipated, and wants out June 1.

Ford and J. Walter Thompson are currently looking for a replacement, and are concentrating their efforts on the Coast in search of a top name for the segment. Show is part of Ford's big $5,000,000 CBS Radio package, with the slotting designed to catch the auto audience on its way home from work. Ford's committed to the show till next October.

NBC-TV's Retraction Of Elsa Maxwell's Cracks On Winchell's Patriotism

NBC-TV was preparing a retraction yesterday (Tues.) of Elsa Maxwell's remarks about Walter Winchell following the columnist's threat to sue 10 sponsors of the Jack Paar show, on which her comments were aired, for $1,000,000 each on charges of commercial libel.

As of late yesterday, it had not been decided whether the retraction would be aired on last night's program or next Tuesday's (29), nor whether Miss Maxwell herself, Paar or some other party would read the retraction. Miss Maxwell is a Tuesday regular on the show.

NBC decided to air the retraction after Winchell's attorneys furnished a certificate from the N. Y. Board of Elections showing that he had registered and voted in the 1955 and 1956 elections. Miss Maxwell, who's been attacking Winchell constantly on the show, charged he had never voted and called him a "phony American."

It was on this that Winchell had threatened to sue, and had stated that his atorney, Sol A. Rosenblatt, would send letters of intent to sue to the Paar sponsors. However, it's believed Winchell will withdraw the threatened legal action with the airing of the retraction. Rosenblatt's law partner, Julian Rosenthal, said yesterday that in any event there won't be any action in the next few days, and no final decision had been reached. He's understood to have told NBC, however, that the retraction will be satisfactory.

Bob Hope Bares All

Bob Hope really lets his hair down in the current (April 26) Saturday Evening Post (one of the continuing visit-with-the-stars series by Pete Martin), in a frank and "tradey" give-and-take. Hope has a lot to say about show people and show biz.

On the wisdom of Par unloading its pre-'48 backlog: "Paramount picked up $50,000,000 for that bundle of pictures and that 50 million is going to bump Paramount stock upward and this will make the stockholders happy . . . M-G-M and Fox and Columbia have already sold tv hundreds of their pre-'48 pictures. Nobody has ever offered such prices for doing it before. If the studios had got together and agreed not to sell their backlogs of pictures, that would have been different, but when all those financiers with white piping on their vests began to flap handfuls of thousand dollar bills in their faces, at a time when the stockholders were hungry, it was each man for himself."

On agency interference: "We handle our own tv show with no grandstand quarterbacks, but I've heard of shows where the agency crew-cuts declare themselves in. It happened to me a lot in radio, although a representative of an advertising agency dictating policy to a comedian is as silly as a comedian walking into an advertising agency and trying to dictate to them. The truth is we don't understand their business and they don't understand ours."

On Frank Sinatra: "Sometimes an entertainer spreads himself too thin . . . Nobody is good enough to chop himself up into that many pieces. Some of the pieces are going to be a little undone. Frank, who is red hot in pictures and red hot on records, is finding out the hard way that he needs help to be red hot on television, too. He knows this now and has knocked himself out trying to fix it, because, while Frank is impetuous, he's no dummy.

On Jackie Gleason: "I think Jackie got careless. There was too much repetition in his sketches. Jackie's a genius, too, but he got sloppy when it came to getting new ideas . . . For a while he had it all to himself; then a new personality came along named Perry Van Como who appealed to teenagers and adults, too."

On Perry Como: "Perry's been doing Bing for years, and he admits it . . . He's doing Bing so good Bing's trying to do Perry now. He thinks Perry's just great and, of course, Perry is wonderful. His only weakness is he doesn't like to do anything frantic."

On Milton Berle: "Berle fell into the same repetition-pitfall Gleason tumbled into. The competition walked in with Phil Silvers, who had a new show with fresh material and the people started switching their dials and Miltie's ratings skidded. The critics and the columnists said 'Berle's flopping' and it spread over the nation. I've heard of word-of-mouth successes, apparently there's such a thing as word-of-mouth flop, too."

On tv critics: "It's the history of the reviewing business that the boys who rip and tear are the guys who make a name for themselves . . . You can't afford to let those things worry you."

Femme B'casters Set Frisco Meet; Key Figures on Jampacked Agenda

San Francisco, April 22.

"Resources and Resourcefulness" will be the theme of the 1958 convention program of the American Women in Radio and Television at the Fairmont Hotel from April 24-27. Keynote address will be made by Dr. G. Herbert True, Ass't. Prof. of Marketing, U. of Notre Dame, on Friday morning, April 25. Luncheon speaker will be Harold E. Fellows, prexy and chairman of Board of NAB.

Speakers at AWRT opening banquet will be Alice Leopold, director, Women's Bureau, U. S. Dept. of Labor; Marion Annenberg, co-chairman, Industry Information Committee, and Pauline Frederick, NBC News Analyst. Edythe Fern Melrose will preside.

On the April 25 agenda is a session called "Ten Who Are Tops," featuring Agnes Gibbs, WCSH-TV, Portland, Maine; Gertrude Trobe, WBVP, Beaver Falls, Penn.; Babette Doniger, prexy, Editorial Films, N. Y.; Mickey McClung, prexy and general manager, Golden Empire Broadcasting Co., San Francisco; Eleanor Farenholz, Cunningham and Walsh, Chicago; Lea M. Kates, director, Consumer Service, U.S.A. Tea Council; Ann Hagen, Radio-TV officer, U. S. Information Agency; Montez Tjaden, director of promotion and public

(Continued on page 38)

Bodine Newschief at WDAF

Kansas City, April 22.

Walt Bodine, vet Kaycee newsman, stepped up from number two spot at WDAF AM & TV, to replace Randall Jessee as director of news and special events for the one-time Kansas City Star stations.

Ashley-Steiner In Major Expansion; Buys an Agency

Ashley-Steiner, Inc., this week took over the Milton Goldman Agency which had handled actors in legit, tv and films. Milton Goldman, Jay Wolf and Ray Smith, as well as other office personnel, will be absorbed into the Ashley-Steiner operation.

In line with its expansion policy to cover all fields of show biz, Ashley-Steiner recently hired Bill Robinson to handle its Beverly Hills office. Robinson was formerly with the Kurt Frings Agency. Also taken on was Eddie Rosen, former Morris Agency exec, who will work with Goldman in the New York office before shoving off to Beverly Hills.

Sam Kaplan is also a newcomer to the Ashley-Steiner operation having come from the NBC business affairs dept. Like Robinson and Rosen, he will go to the Coast office after a briefing in N. Y.

The Goldman agency brings with it such accounts as Cyril Richard, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Farley Granger, Basil Rathbone, Edward Andrews, Bill Shattner and Anthony Quayle.

Ashley-Steiner office represents a flock of writers, producers, directors and various tv and film packages plus numerous name performers. Goldman Agency additions will give it a more rounded array of attractions.

Beech-Nut Renews Clark

Beech-Nut has renewed the Dick Clark Saturday night half-hour on ABC-TV for another 26 weeks.

Live half-hour stanza costs roughly $15,000 a week to produce.

Y & R to Kaiser: 'Spread It Out'

Young & Rubicam, agency for Kaiser, is reportedly urging its client to "spread its wealth" by dropping half of the highly-successful ABC-TV Sunday 60-minuter, "Maverick," and putting the coin in another of the Warner Bros. hourlong packages next season. Some months ago, another Y&R client, Gulf, was interested in taking over half of "Maverick," but Henry J. Kaiser, topper of Kaiser, nixed the idea.

It's presumed that if Kaiser decides in favor of putting its tv coin into two ABC nights instead of one, Gulf will get the other half of "Maverick." ABC-TV virtually has an exclusive all Warner product.

TA's Martha Scott TV Comedy Series

Talent Associates is prepping a second new live half-hour family comedy series, this one in coproduction with ABC-TV. Series, starring Martha Scott and featuring Kevin Coughlin, Beverly Lunsford and Linda Gamble, is titled "Young Mr. Middleton." Audition is being kinnied today (Wed.) at ABC-TV in N. Y. David Susskind is exec producer, Murray Susskind producer and Paul Stanley director.

TA's other new live half-hour comedy series, "Too Young to Go Steady," being produced with Screen Gems, is still a strong possibility for a summer premiere as the replacements for "December Bride" on CBS-TV for General Foods. Only thing holding up the deal is the insistence by the sponsor that CBS come up with a commitment for a fall time slot for the show if it clicks during the summer. So far, CBS has maintained it's unable to make such a commitment.

The Day B'klyn Went Egghead

By JO RANSON

Tempora a mutantur nos et mutamur in illis (the times are changed, and we are changed with them).

Verily, this was the litany heard in Brooklyn, the most polyglottic of the city's five boroughs, last Sunday (20) as the former fountainhead of baseball was recovering from the Dodger exodus to the Coast.

In the past, spring brought to Brooklyn weekends a sea of portable radio receivers and tv sets tuned to the daffy Dodger doings. Last Sunday, with the official baseball season underway, the town was busy tending its rubber plants and believe it or O'Malley, Brooklynites who once walked with radio portables glued to Dodger games were, on this occasion, wrapped up in the Brooklyn Museum Concert over WNYC or the N. Y. Philharmonic with Bernstein via WCBS.

Furthermore, casual observers saw former tv Dodger rooters entranced with such intellectual fare as "Youth Wants to Know" and Eric Sevareid pontificating on "Defense of America." These were indeed the sounds that rang over Flatbush rooftops and sprang from Williamsburg windows. Few were the radio and tv sets tuned to the Yanks hacking away at the Baltimore Orioles. It was plain as two-cents plain that Brooklyn, once the richest baseball market in the country, was undergoing a revolution and that it was moving from balls and strikes to bull fiddles and social science.

Moreover, there was now a definite air of togetherness in Flatbush with husband and wife, side by side, listening to radios or watching more lofty tv goings-on. 'Twas not thus yesteryear when Dem Bums held sway and men were absorbed in baseball while womenfolk twiddled their potato-stained thumbs or knitted antimacassars.

Near Brooklyn College, the afternoon palaver had switched from Snider to Stendhal and from Furillo to fortissimo. A fresh academic spirit was prevailing and the population was no longer in mourning for the faithless and feckless Dodgers.

A short distance from Ebbets Field, two guys were arguing about last week's championship chess games between Smyslov and Botvinnik in Moscow. "Those Russians are crafty at traps in openplay," one guy muttered. "Too bad we can't get chess matches on television. The only thing you get these days is a lousy Yankee game, and there's no fun watching a cocky winner. This is television?"

As the sun dropped over Brooklyn Bridge, one heard former Dodger fans urging neighbors to catch WNYC's "Masterwork Symphony." Henceforth it appeared the City of Churches, the bedroom of the city, was not to be the butt of vaude jokes and bladder bits for standup comics. Brooklyn was definitely egghead, now that the Bums had vanished.

...AND THEN THERE WERE NONE

Why Was Art Ford Bounced From 65G WNEW Job? Cues Station Revamp

Art Ford got axed last week from a $65,000-a-year deejay slot on WNEW, cueing a major reshuffling of the Gotham indie's radio schedule. Ford's twice-a-day stint on "Make Believe Ballroom" was given to William B. Williams, and Al (Jazzbo) Collins returned from KALL, Salt Lake City, to take over another strip on the station.

A lot of tradesters had the impression that the axing of Ford was at least indirectly due to the ascension of WINS' star in New York. But both Ford's lawyer, Howard Epstein, and a reliable station executive corroborated the fact that the reasons for Ford's departure dated back nine months, some time before WINS took a rating lead.

Ford is now dickering for a jock post at WAAT, the radio outlet in Newark being taken over by National Telefilm Associates shortly, and with WRCA, the NBC key in New York, and according to Epstein, with still a third outlet in the met area.

Complete reshuffle of WNEW programming took place on Monday (21). Ford left a week earlier for the opening of the Brussels' Fair, from which he was slated to broadcast a remote edition of "Ballroom." But the same WNEW executive explained that five weeks before the changes took place the two top execs there, Richard Buckley and John Jaeger, had decided to end Ford's tenure at the station. He said there were at least 10 points about which Ford and the management had disagreed, and, basically, Buckley and Jaeger felt the platter spinner, who was on three-and-a-half hours daily, did "not put in a day's pay for a day's work." He reported that among other things management was dissatisfied with the time when Ford arrived for work.

Epstein, on the other hand, said that Ford and the management dis-

(Continued on page 38)

Tebet's Upped Status

Dave Tebet has been shifted into the post of a general program executive at NBC-TV, in which job he'll be responsible for talent and casting supervision and will also be given special program assignments. Tebet has been manager of special programs for the tv web for the past several months.

Game Show Ardor Cooling? 'Dollar,' 'Wingo' Face Axe

Outlook is bleak for CBS-TV's new brace of quiz-participation shows, "Top Dollar" and "Wingo," with the expectancy that neither will complete its first 13-week cycles. CBS hasn't had any official word from the agencies and clients involved (Brown & Williamson-Ted Bates for "Dollar," Toni-North for "Wingo"), but unofficially the agencies have expressed disappointment with the shows and CBS is preparing possible replacements.

Anticipated short-livedness of the

(Continued on page 44)

KRAFT MAY CAP DRAMA'S DEMISE

By GEORGE ROSEN

Kraft's deal for a half-hour weekly Milton Berle comedy show on NBC-TV next season is "90% in the bag," according to network spokesmen. When and if the deal is finalized, Berle will share the Wednesday night 9 to 10 period with another 30-minute Kraft entry, thus ending the 11-year run of "Kraft Television Theatre."

With likelihood that the brace of CBS-TV Coast-originating dramatic shows, "Climax" and "Studio One," will call it quits at the end of the current season, the demise of "Kraft Television Theatre" would wipe the slate clean insofar as weekly live 60-minute drama showcases are concerned—something television hasn't been without since the inception of the Kraft stanza 11 years ago.

Last week Kraft, via its agency, J. Walter Thompson, turned over production reins on its Wednesday drama series to David Susskind and his Talent Associates in a bid to revitalize the show. The Kraft and JWT factotums liked what they saw on the initial presentation (three short plays by Tennessee Williams), and if the program picks up momentum there is still a slim possibility that Kraft will stay with the show next season. (The Wednesday time period has

(Continued on page 38)

NBC-TV Pretty Well Locked Up On Fall Program Sked: Tuesday, Saturday Key Areas in Overhaul

With some of its key new entries now locked into firm time periods, NBC-TV's fall schedule has all but taken shape. Still not set are some areas where outside packages are concerned, as well as some shows with sponsor commitments but no firm time slots. But overall, schedule is virtually set.

Key areas of change are Tuesday and Saturday. "Cimarron City" and "Bat Masterson," two new westerns, go into the 7:30 to 9 period Tuesday. "City" will star George Montgomery, is being produced by the same Revue Productions team (Allan Miller & Dick Lewis) that does "Wagon Train," and is locked in the 7:30 to 8:30 hour. "Masterson," a Ziv-NBC coproduction (stemming from a merger of what had been separate efforts by NBC and Ziv), is set for 8:30 and is already under option to Young & Rubicam for an undisclosed client.

On Saturdays, "People Are Funny" and Perry Como return, but "Steve Canyon" will probably go in at 9 for Liggett & Myers, followed by "The Man from Tallahassee," the hourlong NBC-Screen Gems coproduction, which is set for 9:30 to 10:30 to compete with "Have Gun, Will Travel" and "Gunsmoke." NBC anticipates the return of a refurbished "Hit Parade" from American Tobacco at 10:30.

Other key areas of new programming are Monday at 7:30, to be occupied by "Dragnet," which switches from Thursday night; Friday at 8:30, to be occupied by "Ruditsky," new Jack Chertok package based on the career of retired New York policeman Barney, Ruditsky; Sunday at 7:30, to be filled with "Northwest Passage" (with RCA already in as alternate sponsor); Thursday at 8:30, with "Brain or Brawn" a probable to replace "Dragnet" for L&M; Wednesday at 9 where Milton Berle and another show will replace "Kraft Theatre"

(Continued on page 34)

P&G Axes 'M'Graw'

Procter & Gamble is axing "The Adventures of McGraw" early in June, after having bankrolled the Frank Lovejoy starrer since the start of last summer. Some of the P&G money involved is already allocated in the form of an alternate-week buy for the fall in NBC's "Restless Gun."

Looks Like WRCA, Tex & Jinx 200G Teamup Is Over

Longtime relationship between NBC and Tex & Jinx McCrary appears to be ending. Their five-year contract with the web's New York flagship stations, WRCA and WRCA-TV, terminates at the end of July, and the web thus far has made no effort to negotiate a new pact.

Tex and Jinx have been getting $200,000 a year from their NBC deal,

(Continued on page 34)

Buick Dickers 8 Bob Hope Specials

Subject to General Motors approval, Bob Hope will star in eight one-hour specials to be sponsored by Buick next fall over NBC-TV. Buick, in addition to picking up the tab on the hour specs, is going to keep half of "Wells Fargo" which it currently co-sponsors with American Tobacco.

Spokesman at McCann-Erickson stated that Buick had taken the option on eight Hope shows and the only thing holding up the deal was General Motors, which, has to approve all of its division tv buys.

Young & Rubicam earlier this year wanted Hope to star in a half-hour weekly comedy series for American Home Products and Borden which currently sponsors "People's Choice." Negotiations for Hope to do the comedy anthology series apparently fell apart last week with McCann-Erickson picking up the ball for Buick.

NIX 'ELLERY QUEEN' AS CBS-TV SERIES

CBS-TV has dropped its plan to air a live hourlong "Ellery Queen" series from New York next season. Web had originally intended to slot the "Queen" series at 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. Wednesdays as the competition to "Wagon Train," but changed its mind, leaving the time open for some other property.

Web hasn't decided yet what it will now pitch for the time, but is considering three or four choices, none of them far enough advanced for a decision yet. As to other hour properties, CBS is still riding with "Rawhide" 7:30 to 8:30 Monday, "Pursuit" 10 to 11 Monday (in the event "Studio One" folds) and Garry Moore 8 to 9 Tuesday.

Olds Likes Patti But for ABC-TV

Oldsmobile, which has been anxious to hold onto the talents of Patti Page even though it is not keen on its present "Big Record" Wednesday at 8:30 slot on CBS-TV, is going to put the singer-femcee in a variety show Tuesdays from 10 to 10:30 on ABC-TV next season.

Exact format of the new PP stanza was not spelled out, but it is understood that the contract with ABC was to be signed yesterday (Tues.). D. P. Brother is the agency for the automotive company.

Incidentally, another General Motors account, Buick, is not renewing Patrice Munsel's half-hour tv package for next season, it's reported.

CBS DICKERS FOR ED WYNN SERIES

CBS-TV is mulling purchase of the new half-hour Ed Wynn telefilm series being produced by Screen Gems. Series, a situation comedy titled "The Ed Wynn Show," depicts Wynn as the grandfather of a large family. Screen Gems has completed a pilot of the show.

Web doesn't know yet just where it will spot the series if it does go through with the deal. Screen Gems has been working on the property since last fall, when it was tentatively titled "My Old Man."

IT'S GETTING CLOSE....

to VARIETY's ad deadline for the NAB Convention Issue April 30. As a midweek publication, VARIETY insures a fresh, hot news issue distributed to convention delegates while they are still in the midst of the Los Angeles business meetings.

Don't wait, act now and take advantage of mid-convention "demand" readership to give your sales message the showcase it deserves.

Space reservations at any office listed below:

VARIETY

NEW YORK 36
154 West 46th St.

HOLLYWOOD 28
6404 Sunset Blvd.

CHICAGO 11
612 No. Michigan Ave.

VARIETY
CONVENTION HEADQUARTERS
ROOM 2235, BILTMORE HOTEL

Banks Getting More Receptive To Financing Telepix Ventures

The money market for vidpix financing has eased up noticeably, compared to a year ago, when the tight money situation prevailed.

The ease-up should engender a number of significant consequences:

1. This upcoming September should see fewer, if any, station financing of syndicated properties. One reason for station financing was the difficulty in getting banks to put up the required dough. There appears to be plenty of greenbacks now from banks for such purposes.

2. There should be an upbeat of competition among banks for the privilege of financing (meaning interest earning loans for the bank). Syndicators, too, may be able to secure more favorable terms from their point of view by shopping around.

3. But banks aren't that free with their money at this stage, if ever they will be, to finance pilots. As one banking exec put it: "That's worse than investing in a Broadway show." That doesn't mean that banks haven't loaned producers or syndicators for pilots. They have, but the collateral received are more realizable assets than the negative rights to the pilot.

Reason for the relaxed money market is due partly to the recession, policies of the Federal Reserve Bank, and other factors. With the recession putting a crimp on requested bank financing of industrial and other business expansion, there's more bank money now available for vidpix.

Banks are in quite heavy on financing of vidpix production. One more recent trend is the growth in the number of off-network properties put into syndication in which bank financing features. In the latter instance, the syndicator buying the off-network show gets the financing.

Most banks traditionally engaged in vidpix financing, welcome the financing of syndicated product, as well as network shows, although the latter type is a much simpler deal.

In syndication, Bankers Trust, like others in the field, ideally will loan up to 80% of the sum of the syndicator's station contracts, but in a competitive banking situation, banks are known to have lent more, up to 100% of the sum of station contracts, with additional collateral put up by the syndicators.

Unlike five or so years ago, today there are very few vidfilm banking customers outside the regular channels, the syndicators and producers who have established themselves over the years. Five or six years ago, it was a comparative field day, with new vidfilmeries rising and folding.

Schubert Series On N.Y.'s Finest

Chalk up another vidfilm scheduled to have N. Y. as the backdrop. But this one, about the N.Y. Police Force, will be filmed in Hollywood at the Goldwyn Studios —or at least the pilot.

Deal was set by Bernard Schubert, Telestar Films topper, with Howard Koch and Audrey Schenck, to produce the skein, based on the exploits of the N. Y. Police Department. Coppers in N. Y. are getting a good ride on tv pilots and otherwise, this season. There's "Decoy," based on the adventures of a N. Y. policewoman; Official Films has a pilot based on the exploits of the N. Y. Detective Bureau. Additionally, CBS Film Sales has a "Firefighter" pilot, based on the activities of the N. Y. Fire Department, and there's Screen Gem's "Naked City."

Donato's Canada Post

Toronto, April 22.

Nat Donato has been appointed director of Canadian sales for Telepix Movies Ltd., according to Joseph B. Dunkelman, president.

Prior to joining the latter, Donato was Canadian sales manager for ABC Film Syndications Inc., New York. He has been in radio and tv for the past 20 years.

'Private Eyeful' Series Stars Maxwell, Randell

Hollywood, April 22.

Marilyn Maxwell and Ron Randell are stars of Desilu's newest vidseries, "Private Eyeful," being produced jointly by Desilu and Edward Buzzell Productions.

Miss Maxwell plays part of a femme private eye in the series. Buzzell is producing and directing the pilot from his own teleplay. Frederick Ford and Jolene Brand have stet roles.

Cal Nat's 3-Mo. Peak on Sales

Sales on three telefilm series were given by California National Productions as the chief reasons why in the first quarter of this year the syndication house capped its previous peak sales record by 11.4%. Series were the new "Union Pacific," the second 39 of "Silent Service" and the reruns of "Medic."

CNP's 1958 first quarter ended at the end of the first week in April, and nearly all of the sales on the three skeins were consummated before then.

"Union Pacific," since it broke on Jan. 1, racked up inkings in 84 markets, all but one of which came before April 5. Railroad show's biggest single regional deal was with Lee Optical for 11 tv markets, mostly through the southwest, and four Rocky Mountain markets for Union Pacific R. R. Consumer Cooperative Assn. took four stations in the farm belt. In all 43 of the 84 "UP" sales were to bankrollers, rest directly to stations.

The second string of "Silent Service" was released roughly a month ago, and since then CNP inked 24 renewals, mostly all, according to the firm, falling in time for first-quarter counting.

"Medic," former network series, began its syndication spree about the time of "UP," and later fell under the aegis of Victory Program Sales, the new Cal Nat library subsid. Show now has 62 markets signed via the syndication route.

200 More Features For Kerman's Governor TV

Arthur Kerman's Governor Television Attractions has added another 200 feature films, 26 of them completely new to the tv distribution route. This concentration of acquisitions in the past few weeks brings Governor's catalog up to 300 flicks or thereabouts.

Eros Films in London supplied the 26 first-runners and various indie producers, big among them being Hal Roach, and producers' rep Del Randel sold Kerman the remaining films, all of which have had some degree of previous tv coverage but not throughout the entire U. S., according to Governor. In some markets, as many as 100 first run flicks are available.

Kerman has already inked deals on the new package with WOR-TV, N. Y., and KNXT, L. A.

ABC Film Latino Payoff

ABC Film Syndication has tallied up the sale of 672 half-hour episodes of Spanish-dubbed properties, Raul C. Conangla, co-ordinator of Latin American sales for the company, who recently returned from a trip through Central and South America, reported.

Series involved in the deals included dubbed versions of "26 Men," "Code 3," "Racket Squad," "Sheena, Queen of the Jungle," "Passport to Danger," and "The Three Musketeers."

Conangla in his trip visited Argentina, Brazil, Columbia, Cuba, El Salvador, Guatemala, Peru and Venezuela. He also appointed new representatives in markets not previously covered by the firm.

'Medal of Honor' Series

Hollywood, April 22.

"Congressional Medal of Honor" vidseries gets away May 5, produced by Med Mandour in association with Lou Sherman. Series of 52 episodes deals with exploits of medal winners.

Winners themselves will be brought to Hollywood, some to portray themselves. Others will be played by actors in individual segments.

Fred Coe's Brace Of Telefilm Series

Hollywood, April 22.

Fred Coe will produce two hour-long telefilm series for CBS.

Producer's first series is called "Front Office," is a dramatic series with a continuing character, who will play part of a top exec in big biz. Pilot is due to roll in May.

Second Coe-produced series is tentatively labeled "Keyhole," and is a murder mystery anthology. In addition to the film series, Coe will produce seven "Playhouse 90's" for CBS next season, and for this stint has acquired as his first property, Ernest Hemingway's "The Undefeated," with A. E. Hotchener adapting.

MIRISCH, EDELMAN, NBC TEAM ON 'STAR'

Hollywood April 22.

The indie motion picture firm, the Mirisch Co., entering the telefilm field, has associated itself with Louis Edelman and NBC in its first venture.

The three-way deal involves two series, one "Five Cornered Star," based on the founding and early days of the U. S. Secret Service. The other project, untitled, is about a railroad detective in the days of the old west. Pilot for the latter was scripted by Leslie Stevens. W. R. Burnett scripted the "Five Cornered Star" pilot.

Walter M. Mirisch, v.p. in charge of production, will produce both series. Edelman, whose tv activities include "Wyatt Earp," "Jim Bowie," "The Danny Thomas Show," will act as exec producer. NBC will finance.

Meadow Ankling CBS For Own Vidpix Series

Hollywood, April 22.

Herb Meadow, under contract to CBS as a producer-writer-creator on a five-year ticket, has exited to produce his own vidfilm series, "Rafferty's Angels."

"Angels," an hour-long series dealing with a unit of the U. S. Cavalry, will be co-produced and co-packaged by Meadow and Frank Cooper Associates. Meadow has his own vidfilm production company, Film City Enterprises, and is planning three other series, but "Angels" may be shot under the aegis of a new company yet to be formed.

Meadow checked out of CBS after finishing the script on a new hour-long oater series, "Bonanza."

France-Video Sets CBS Newsfilm Deal

France-Video, the French tv network, is among the newest subscribers to CBS Newsfilm.

Howard L. Kany, manager of CBS Newsfilm, just returned from Europe, reported that a cooperative arrangement with Independent Television News of Britain makes it possible to supply service of world-wide coverage from London to Europe, North Africa and the Middle East. France-Video will make Newsfilm available to Monaco and Algeria as well as throughout France.

The Saar and Austria are new subscribers, also, following negotations in various western European countries.

Renaldo's Training Pix

Duncan Renaldo, star of Ziv's "Cisco Kid," finds himself not only making commercials for sponsors, but also sales training films.

He's doing both for Nichols Industries, Inc., which make Stallion Brand toy pistols.

Top 20 National Syndicated Shows

(Based on Pulse's Spot Film Report for April)

Compilation of the top 20 syndicated shows in the U.S. is based on 22 basic markets, representing about 16,391,500 tv homes. Pulse, in compiling the list, utilizes a weighted average keyed to the number of sets in each of the 22 markets. The weighted average takes in only the markets in which the program has been telecast. In order to qualify, a property must be telecast in at least six of the 22 markets.

The markets include Atlanta, Baltimore, Birmingham, Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Detroit, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Minneapolis-St. Paul, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, San Francisco-Oakland, Seattle-Tacoma, St. Louis and Washington.

		Distributor	Natl. Wght. Rtg.
1.	Boots and Saddles	NBC	20.8
2.	Highway Patrol	Ziv	20.3
3.	Honeymooners	CBS	19.4
4.	Sea Hunt	Ziv	18.6
5.	Annie Oakley	CBS	17.8
6.	State Trooper	MCA	17.0
7.	Death Valley Days	U.S. Borax	16.6
8.	Mike Hammer	MCA	16.6
9.	Silent Service	NBC	15.8
10.	Sheriff of Cochise	NTA	15.6
11.	Popeye	AAP	15.5
12.	Badge 714	NBC	14.7
13.	Captain David Grief	Guild	14.7
14.	Cisco Kid	Ziv	14.7
15.	Code Three	ABC	14.1
16.	Grand Ole Opry	Flamingo	13.9
17.	Whirlybirds	CBS	13.8
18.	Stories of the Century	Guild	13.3
19.	Dr. Christian	Ziv	12.7
20.	Sky King	Nabisco	12.7

Anti-Nazi Pix on TV Invite New Cries of 'Outrage' in Vancouver

Vancouver, April 22.

The sizeable German population of this city cries outrage again over local showing of tv films not flattering to Nazi ideologies, and this time the sponsors and immigration office are backing the German embassy plea not to air sensitive flickers.

CBUT-TV, coast's CBC outlet, is recipient of the squawks this time, but it was KVOS-TV, Bellingham, Wash. station which offended Germany colony last Feb., a spat which simmered down after station/embassy talks. CBUT-TV has received other protests in the past, and early this month had pencilled out the 20th release, "Purple Heart," as a potential offender of area's numerous Japanese. Late night on Wednesday last (16), station aired Columbia's "Commandos Strike At Dawn," part of a Screen Gems package, which slopped fat into the race-biased telefilm smoulder and severly embarrased at least one advertiser.

At present stage, it's a fraught affair full of name-calling by German populace, some 65,000 to CBUT's spot-availability buying ABC-TV & Appliances, whose president, Colin Ryan, told VARIETY, "For two days after, feeling ran high I can tell you. And this is the second time around the hoop for us." Topper means as-

(Continued on page 44)

'International Police' Series on Warwick Sked

London, April 22.

Warwick Television Productions, a subsidiary of the film producing outfit controlled by Irving Allen and Albert R. (Cubby) Broccoli, is embarking on a vidpic series based on material collected from the files of Interpol. The skein, which will be made in two parts, will be entitled "Interpol" and "International Police," both of which titles are slated to be the exclusive property of Warwick Television.

Negotiations are now in hand for a team of directors to work on the series and six scripts have already been completed, some by Stanley Mann and others by Edward Strachan. Production is due to start within the next two months.

Lupino & Duff's New Telefilmery

Hollyyood, April 22.

Ida Lupino and Howard Duff, who now co-helm Bridget Productions in affiliation with Don Sharpe, are setting up a new telefilmery and already have packaged four vidfilm series for near-future production.

Duff will topbill "The Green Peacock," suspense-action series being scripted by William Spier, and Miss Lupino is pencilled in to star in an untitled anthology package. Other two, still to be definitely formatted, include a situation comedy western series and a comedy drama, "The Fleep." Latter will be partially animated.

Schulke's Par Post

Hollywood, April 22.

Jim Schulke, vp-general manager of Paramount Sunset Corp., has been appointed vp in charge of Paramount Television Productions Inc. (KTLA). He will also retain former duties.

New appointment is part of Paramount's broad expansion program in tv field. George G. Gallantz also has been set as assistant treasurer and a director of KTLA.

Film Censors For British Com'l TV

London, April 22.

Public opinion, strongly backed up by the press, has resulted in commercial tv programmers forming a body of censors to scan filmed programs during top viewing times. All films are to be examined whether from America or any other source. Programs will only be permitted for screening if they have been awarded a tv censorship certificate.

In the past, matters of good taste and suitability have been left to the programmers' discretion, but because each company operates as an individual unit, difficulty has been encountered in maintaining a standard level. Under the new setup anything likely to be objectionable will be cut.

PACKAGE FEATURES TO THEME

MCA's Asking Prices for Par Pix

MCA is demanding nearly $27,000,000 from CBS-TV in negotiations to sell its 700-pic Paramount backlog to the web for its seven o&o markets. However, CBS figures the MCA demands are way out of line, and the negotiations at present are stalemated.

Network paid something like $12,000,000 for rights in its seven o&o markets for the Metro backlog. That deal was in several respects similar to the one proposed by MCA. For example, Metro library consisted of slightly over 700 films, with M-G holding back some for theatrical rerelease or remake purposes. Similar situation obtains with MCA-Paramount, total of 700 having been cleared. Metro license was for seven years; MCA is talking a five or six-year deal. Stations would pay American Federation of Musicians royalties and print costs.

But CBS doesn't see enough difference (if any) between the Metro and Par library to justify paying more than twice for the latter than the former, even if the Par library is the last of the major backlogs to become available. Hence, situation is at a standoff. At the same time, MCA feels it should get half its purchase price of $50,000,000 back from a major o&o deal which covers nearly half of the country's sets.

City-by city breakdown finds MCA demanding $8,400,000 for New York (WCBS-TV), $7,000,000 for Los Angeles (KNXT), $5,250,000 for Chicago (WBBM-TV), $3,500,000 for Philadelphia (WCAU-TV), $910,000 for St. Louis (KMOX-TV), $910,000 for Milwaukee (WXIX) and $910,000 for Hartford (WHCT).

Syndication in Swan Song At NAB Meet; Won't Deter Hoopla

Film syndicators are putting their best foot forward at the National Assn. of Broadcasters convention in Los Angeles, which opens Sunday (27), despite NAB's "we don't want you" attitude — an attitude which was finalized in disbarment of film syndicators from future conventions.

National Telefilm Associates has planned a good deal of hoopla for the meet and the visit of various telefilm stars. CBS Film Sales also will have stars on hand. Metro TV will be conducting tours of the Metro studios for broadcasters. Other activities are planned by various companies.

Additionally, many of the top brass from each of the syndication companies will be on hand. Milton Gordon, prez of Television Programs of America, and George Shupert, ABC Film Syndication topper, will represent the film companies in the annual film panel discussion.

On the feature front, MCA TV will begin talking turkey to broadcasters on the release of the Paramount library. NTA also is expected to unwrap a new feature package. Execs of RKO Teleradio also will be there with a new group of post-'48's, a package of 18 pix.

Ironically, all this activity will be the swan song for the syndicators. At NAB's Phoenix board of directors meeting, it was voted to prohibit film syndicators and other groups from participating in NAB's annual conventions. That board ruling was put up for a membership endorsement, or rejection, in a referendum, the results of which were announced at the virtual eve of the convention.

Feeling of the NAB board was that extraneous activities stemming from such non-broadcasting groups as filmeries interfered with the

(Continued on page 44)

Storer Stations Buy WB Bundle

Storer Broadcasting made a substantial feature film buy last week by inking in behalf of two of its outlets for the entire Warner Bros. library. WJW-TV, in Cleveland, and WSPD-TV, Toledo, are each getting over 700 features in the deal, meaning that some 200 of the features recently "retired" by distributor Associated Artists Productions were brought off the shelf for Storer.

Previously, WSPD inked with AAP for the "Popeye" cartoons. Distrib also signed with four other tv stations last week for parts of the Warner library: WOOD-TV, Grand Rapids and WDAF-TV, Kansas City, both of which bought the 52 Warners in the "Vanguard" package, and WHDH-TV, Boston, and WBBM-TV, Chicago.

Kieran Pix to WRCA-TV

Twenty-six quarter-hour films from the "Kieran's Kaleidoscope" have been bought for Ray Forrest's "Children's Theatre," WRCA-TV, N. Y.

"Kaleidoscope" films to be programmed on the show cover a variety of subjects including, animal habits, the atom, weather, chemistry and sports.

Metro Readies Short Subjects Bundles for TV

Metro, which has been holding off on its release of short subjects to tv, finally has prepped three packages, consisting of "Our Gang Comedies," the "Crime Does Not Pay" series, and John Nesbitt's "Passing Parade."

They will be offered to stations for the first time at next week's National Assn. of Broadcasters convention.

Metro is biding its time on its cartoons, the "Tom and Jerry's" and others, in the hope of latching on to a network deal.

The "Our Gang Comedy Package" is made up of 52 Hal Roach one-reelers which were produced for Metro from '38 to '44. Interstate Television has been distributing a large block of "Our Gang's," owned by Roach, under the title of "Little Rascals."

The 48 "Crime Does Not Pay" subjects run about 21 minutes, and Metro will market the series under a plan that will permit stations to program them in a half-hour format, by padding each episode with "live" tieups with local law enforcement agencies. The 65 John Nesbitt series have an average running time of 11 minutes each.

Packages will be offered to stations on a multiple run or library basis.

ROD SERLING PILOT TO ROLL IN MAY

Hollywood, April 22.

Pilot of Rod Serling's new hour-long film series for CBS will roll the early part of May, probably at UI, and negotiations are on for Jack Warden to essay the lead in the initialer, "The Time Element."

Bob Parrish, theatrical film director-writer, will make his tv debut directing the segment which will be co-produced by Serling and Charles Russell. Format of the series is scientification and fantasy.

EXTRA MILEAGE ON CINEMATICS

As the feature pool continues to diminish, more and more syndicators, as well as stations throughout the country, are hopping aboard the "thematic" approach to get extra mileage out of cinematics.

There's "Shock!" peddled by Screen Gems; National Telefilm Associates Shirley Temple pix binge; Associated Artists Productions' thematic packaging of its rerun library, and Metro's "Andy Hardy Theatre" for smaller markets.

The method of selling and programming via the "thematic" gambit has won many ardent supporters from stations. In fact, there's an open question in the trade, as to whether the stations or the syndicators initiated the idea.

One station in Miami, Niles Trammell-helmed WCKT, got so hot on the idea that Metro had to call in its lawyers to nix the proposition. WCKT, which has bought Metro pix, wanted to stage a filmed spec unduplicated on tv, utilizing the simple method of cutting different musical numbers from a variety of Metro song and dance pix. It would have been a star-studded affair, with numbers by Judy Garland, Fred Astaire, Mickey Rooney, et al. Metro lawyers quietly and firmly informed the station that any such action by WCKT would be a copyright infringement on each of the pix.

It's okay to take clips out of a pix for trailer purposes, but excising any sizable segment becomes a copyright infringement.

The thematic approach, utilized this past season rather freely by the networks ("Panic," "Suspicion," etc.) got its biggest shot in the arm with Screen Gems monster pix, released under the banner of "Shock!" It had socko results, lending itself readily to promotion and exploitation, as opposed to a group of unrelated pix.

But even prior to the "Shock!" debut, stations buying the libraries, especially the indies, showed a good deal of resourcefulness in programming. They had bought a lot of pix, investing a good deal of dough, and results had to be shown. AAP found stations buying the Warner cinematics putting groups under the banner of the "Errol Flynn Theatre" or the "Bette Davis Theatre," one-a-week affairs that had extra pull because of the packaging.

Metro in selling off to the smaller markets has come out with three packages, 26 Academy Award pix; 26 action-adventure, and 15 "Andy Hardy" theatre. KTTV, Los Angeles, one of the film station sparkplugs in the nation, soon after it bought the Metro library, began an "Academy Award Theatre," as well as one

(Continued on page 44)

QUINTET OF 'TARGET' SPONSORS IN CLEVE.

Cleveland, April 22.

First there was sole sponsorship. Then alternate. And now quintuplet.

Spartan Grocers, Cleveland wholesale grocery suppliers, and four supermarket chains in the area have joined hands for the sponsorship of Ziv's "Target" series on WJW-TV, in this city. This marks the first tv use for each company and their first cooperative advertising venture. Other members of the quintet are Square Deal, Payfair, Savmor of Cleveland, and Food Fair, Lorain.

Additionally, Adolph Menjou, host and occasional star in the series, will make a serious of personal appearance here.

More TV Film News Page 42

Syndicators Got That Network Gleam As Stations Cool Heels On New Half-Hr. Vidfilm Shows

The Untruth Will Out

Los Angeles, April 22.

Mickey Rooney is defendant in suit filed in Superior Court by Brent Hart of Fort Lauderdale, Florida, demanding return of $20,000 invested in telepix series, "Dateline Tokyo," produced by Rooney.

Hart claimed that series was represented to him as based upon actual secret files of Tokyo police, whereas material later was found by him to be fictional. Deal, according to suit, called for Hart to receive 25% of profits, of which there were none.

Can a Feature Be Used as Pilot? RKO Dubious

RKO Teleradio, which has been experimenting with a number of ways to reduce the risk of pilot making, still hasn't come up with the definitive answer, if there is one.

RKO's latest venture was to produce a feature, "Heidi," with an eye to using it as a pilot for a telefilm series. The feature, produced in Germany by Bill Cruikshank, former prez of Four-Star Films, was filmed in three parts, each of which could be an episode in a series. However, the results do not show off the potentialities of the series as well as a 30-minute episode would have, if made strictly for tv, according to an RKO exec. Not that it hasn't been met with some very favorable reception at ad agencies, where it has been screened.

But as the RKO exec explained it, the footage is better geared for a feature production, being more slowly paced than its tv counterpart. Even if not sold to tv RKO feels that it will be off the hook on the production. It cost about $160,000 and it soon will be released theatrically in the overseas market. If not sold to tv—an eventuality which will be answered by the end of the current selling season—there's also the theatrical market in the U. S.

RKO Teleradio also attempted

(Continued on page 44)

AAP NOW SPRINGS IT'S 'JUPITER' GROUP

Having released the 52 Warner features in the "Vanguard" package a few months ago, Associated Artists Productions is now ready with the second 52, classed under the title of the "Jupiter" group. The tv distributor initially removed all 700 odd Warner flicks from the tv market, after a couple of years of selling, and broke them down into 52-pic packages to be released periodically. Two hundred of the over 700 were permanently removed by the company.

"Casablanca," "Key Largo," "Angels With Dirty Faces," "G-Men" and "Captain Blood" are in the new "Jupiter" bundle. Meantime, AAP made five new tv sales of the "Vanguard" group—to KNAC-TV, Ft. Smith, Ark.; WSB-TV, Atlanta; KGBT, Harlingen, Tex.; WWTV, Cadillac, Mich., and WBOC-TV, Salisbury, Md.

Femme Robin Hood TV'er

Hollywood, April 22.

Guy Madison-Helen Ainsworth indie, Romson Productions, will move into telepix production with series, "Mark of the Eagle," revolving around a femme Robin Hood.

The continuing advance in the national buying season for telefilm properties has had its effect on syndication, resulting in a consequent delay of fresh properties being put into syndication for fall release.

Right now there are only a few fresh first-run properties being offered for syndication. The holdoff is partially attributed to the expected late buying season for the networks. Many syndicators are showing station buyers properties, but only to whet their appetites, explaining that the properties will be available in the fall if a national sale is not consummated. Some station buyers are doing a burn about being put in the role of a poor relation, but sardonically they say many of the properties they're interested in won't get a network berth and they'll be around for market-to-market selling—and for some hard bargaining.

Currently, these are the properties being offered for first-run syndication: "Target," Ziv; "Tugboat Annie," and "It Happened in Spain," Television Programs of America; "George Jessel's Show Business"; National Telefilm Associates; "Union Pacific," California National Productions, and a few others.

For fall, TPA is inking deals on "N. Y. Confidential," and Ziv is showing "Dial 999" around, while Screen Gems and other syndicators are prepping additional properties. But in previous years, when the shakedown on the national level was earlier in the spring, as to which shows would win network berths, there was more noise in the current period on what properties will be forthcoming for syndication airing in the spring.

One seeming effect of the late selling approach in syndication is the growing number of off-network properties being introed in the spring.

Here are some of the latest off-network entries: "Navy Log," "Mr. Adams and Eve," "You Are There" and "The Eve Arden Show"; CBS Film Sales; "Jeff's Collie," (Lassie), TPA; "Robin Hood," Official Films; "Jim Bowie," ABC Film

(Continued on page 38)

NTA's Courtship With Publishers

In an offbeat but highly effective promotion, National Telefilm Associates has set up a hospitality suite and screening room at the current American Newspaper Publishers Assn. convention at the Waldorf-Astoria, N. Y. NTA is holding daily screenings of its new "Man Without a Gun" vidpix series, which depicts the adventures of a frontier newspaper editor.

Campaign is directed at the country's top publishers, who are attending the conclave, and whose newspapers can naturally lend heavy promotional support to the series. NTA kicked off the campaign last month with a piece in Editor & Publisher, then followed this up with printed invitations and tickets to the screenings to some 1,500 publishers throughout the country.

Apart from the film itself, NTA is having its top brass in attendance at the Waldorf, with the delegation headed by Spyros P. Skouras, 20th-Fox prexy who's also a director of the NTA Film Network, on which "Man" will be aired. In light of the fact that the NTA Network operation usually takes some explaining in individual markets, the screenings will enable NTA execs to tell their stories direct to the publishers, besides getting some support for the show itself.

TV's 'Hidden Persuader,' SP, All But Buried As Selling Medium —On Other Ad Agency Fronts

By JACK BERNSTEIN

Subliminal perception, television's own hidden persuader, which at the tailend of '57 and the beginning of '58 was getting about as much attention as Casey Stengel's Yankees in the stretch drive, has all but been buried as a selling medium on tv.

The grave was dug approximately two months ago when NBC, CBS and ABC proclaimed they would not allow either national or local sponsors to air any hidden messages. At this point any sponsor or agency who was even toying with the idea of conning the public via subliminal perception, tossed in the towel.

While the networks dug the grave, the Television Code Review Board of the National Assn. of Broadcasters all but lowered the body when at the beginning of this month they went on record proposing an amendment to the code which would ban SP. The amendment, which would nix the use of subliminal perception or any attempt to use a similar technique by way of "transmitted messages below the normal threshold," will come up for a vote before the NAB tv board at its Los Angeles conclave.

While the television field has declared itself on the matter of subliminal perception, two other mediums have not. Theatres, which are having a recession of their own, and radio, which has made a comeback in the last year without the Administration's help, are still toying with the idea, which for these mediums is still in the experimental stage.

There is a difference of opinion as to whether the hidden sell can make the customers make a beeline to the popcorn stand and coke machine in the local theatres and if so most exhibitors would appear to be all for any method that would increase the take.

What is most surprising is radio's claim of a sound which registers in the subconscious. Two stations at the tail end of '57 stated they had successfully developed a means of reaching the audiences' conscious. WCCO-Minneapolis-St. Paul and KLTI, Longview, Texas, tried the approach of slipping brief announcements over music or into continuity pauses, reportedly hitting the listener at the lowest level of response, with the stations claiming that the message is received a few seconds later.

Agency Brushoff

Most Madison Ave. ad agencies claim not to have even experimented with subliminal perception. The only agency that went on record as stating it was interested in the hidden sell was Guild, Bascom & Bonfigli, which claims the "phantom appeal to the consumer's subconscious can be heard on current radio and television commercials for Nucoa Margarine.

Creator of the technique at G, B&B is Glen Hurlburt, musical director of the agency. Hurlburt points out the proponents of subliminal projection hold that it is possible to reach the subconscious of an audience by means of a number of techniques. "They assume that any impression which is not consciously grasped can be said to be registering as a 'subliminal' or below threshold approach."

In the current Nucoa commercials Hurlburt claims the conscious ears hear in them an unusual treatment of the principle of product identification while the hidden persuader is revealed in a contrapuntal fashion. "That is to say the conscious ear is engrossed with the obvious, while the subconscious is aware of the secondary musical line."

There is a great deal of doubt about the use of a hidden sound in radio however, and be it radio or tv, the phantom use of advertising is about to come under trade regulations and what two months ago was the talk of the advertising world is in itself about to become subliminal.

Mogul Speaks Up

Emil Mogul, prexy of the agency of the same name, which bills in the neighborhood of $10,000,000, says that medium-sized agencies can and have competed with the agency giants and in most instances fared as well if not better. Mogul takes a dim view of those who feel that to compete with J. Walter Thompson and McCann-Erickson and other giants of the ad world, you have to be a large-sized agency.

As defender of the medium-sized shops, Mogul says, "There isn't anything different or any extra services being offered at the bigger agencies that small shops aren't doing. We offer the same services and we have the personal advantage of not having to go through the chains of command at either the clients end or here at our agency. We have made almost on-the-spot decisions with our clients for tv spots and shows.

"The caliber of men in the small and medium-sized agencies is just as good if not better than ad giants and, when you have a limited number of men in a department, you try to select the best."

Mogul goes on to say the medium-sized agencies continually outdo the larger shops in creativity, with offbeat campaigns based on humor, inmagination, and simply good copy.

"We have as good if not better marketing facilities as the larger agencies and we spend months on a campaign to see how we're going to market our client's products to his best advantage.

"What applies to the Mogul Agency applies to other medium-sized shops. They offer the same services as the largest agencies and fare just as well in buying network tv shows, in media buying and strategy as well as in copy."

SHORTS: The Madison Ave. rumor mill is at it again, word being that McCann-Erickson and Coca-Cola will part ways. Bill Robinson, prexy of the soft drink firm stated, "We have never discussed the possibility of switching from McCann-Erickson to Leo Burnett and we have not any inclination to switch agencies." The rumor that Coke will drop McCann has popped up periodically since the first of the year.

Donahue & Coe has formed a new corporate and international division in "marking further diversification in the agency's services." The new division will be under the direction of veepee Stuart Cowan in New York and, in Chicago under the direction of v. p. Arthur Decker. The agency currently bills $30,000,000, about 12% of which is in industrial billing.

Atherton & Currier has published an analysis of the basis of "high television costs and how this advantage can be overcome for both large and small budget advertiser."

Charles E. Courtney, prexy of the agency of the same name in Mobile, which bills in the neighborhood of $250,000, said that one of the problems small, local agencies find themselves doing is adding local color to national ads to give it the personal touch.

Nick Keesely, Lennen & Newell's veep in charge of radio-tv, last Thursday, (16) coproduced with Lou Walters a revue, Around World" for National Assn. of Tobacco Distributors.

SWITCHES: Gilbert Lea, former ad manager of McCall's will join Ogilvy, Benson & Mather on May 1 as veepee and assistant to the president.

Lee Currlin, assistant media director, has been upped to associate media director on the Procter & Gamble account at Benton & Bowles.

William E. Dempster, formerly associated with Roy S. Durstine, named to the executive staff of Calkins & Holden.

William J. Peterson, head of Cunningham & Walsh's Hollywood office, has earned veepee stripes.

Vincent Tutching, v. p. of McCann-Erickson (International), elected president of the International Ad Assn.

David Echols, formerly exec veepee of Grant, named as new on-the-air editor of tv show, "Ad World."

LOST & FOUND: Foote, Cone & Belding has been named to handle the $500,000 advertising account of Air-Wick line of deodorizers. The award was made by Lever Bros. Norman, Craig & Kummel formerly serviced the account but was removed because it handles Colgate products which are competitive with Lever.

Emil Mogul has landed the ad account of the Regal Shoe Co., a division of Brown Shoe Co. Billings last year were estimated at $200,000 but plans call for the doubling of the ad budget.

H. W. Kastor & Sons has been appointed agency for the Berry Refining Co.

O. S. Tyson picked to handle billings of Union Carbide Chemicals Co. fluoro-carbons.

Chi Agencies

By LES BROWN

Chicago, April 22.

Ivan Hill, exec veepee of Cunningham & Walsh Chi office, and Charlie Lubin, prez of Sarah Lee Kitchens, are off to the Brussels Fair in hopes of finding a blue-ribbon chef for exploitation purposes here.

John H. McComb upped to vice-prez and production director of Erwin Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan.

H. W. Kastor agency plucked Berry Hy-Test 303 fuel oil for Berry Refining Co.

BBD&O named T. Neal Wilder to group head for Schenley Industries and Frederick J. Edwards to account exec of Du Pont plastics.

William J. Narup got veep stripes at Marvin E. Trench Advertising.

Harry Burrell of McCann-Erickson here elected prexy of Advertising Agency Production Men's Club.

American Assn. of Advertising Agencies named James G. Cominos chairman of the board of governors for the central region. Cominos is a director and veep of Needham, Louis & Brorby. New vice chairman is Larry Wherry of Wherry, Baker & Tilden and new secretary-treasurer Alexander H. Gunn of J. Walter Thompson.

Keyes, Madden & Jones snared the Congoleum-Naird Inc. business that for the past three years had been Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample's.

George F. Stanton, former v.p. of Bali Products Co., joined Leo Burnett agency as media group supervisor.

William S. Wheeler back at Campbell-Mithun as account exec for the American Dairy account.

London Agencies

By BARRY BARNETT

London, April 22.

Douglas M. Saunders, chairman of the J. Walter Thompson Agency, has been reelected prez of the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. This will be his second year in office.

More than 100 regular 30-second tv spots on TWW, the indie tv outfit serving South Wales and the West, are part of a high pressure campaign for a new enamel and undercoat paint named Azeotropic. The campaign is being handled by Glovers Advertising Ltd. and, from the end of August when they go on the air Southern Television will be included in the campaign schedules.

Arthur Cardin, one of the first research executives at Television Audience Measurements and a key figure in setting up that organization, has joined the Foote, Cone and Belding agency as a marketing executive.

B'CAST PIONEERS AWARD FOR PALEY

William S. Paley, chairman of the board of CBS, will get the Broadcast Pioneers' gold pin special award at its annual shindig at the Statler-Hilton Hotel in L. A. Tuesday, April 29.

Awards for distinguished achievement in various fields of broadcasting also will be made to Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Rosel H. Hyde, FCC; Earle C. Anthony, West Coast broadcaster, and Dr. W. R. G. Baker, prexy of the Electronics Industry Assn. and retired veepee of General Electric Co.

In addition, the Pioneers Awards Committee will present its annual posthumous Hall of Fame Award to John U. Reber, who was veepee of the J. Walter Thompson Co. pioneer in the network variety show formula for radio and tv.

Cecil B. De Mille, as previously announced, will receive a special citation for his contribution to the fifth estate.

TV-Radio Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY .

Jack Paar vacations in Nassau for the month of May, with Jonathan Winters spelling him for two weeks and Johnny Carson taking over the other fortnight . . . Prof. Charles A. Bucher of the Dept. of Physical Education at New York U. will be consultant on program material for Wilton Productions' upcoming "Free for All" tv all-male brawn show . . . Stan Freeman, already doing a morning strip on WCBS, also takes over the Saturday 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. block at the station . . . Phil Reisman Jr. set to adapt "The Outcasts of Poker Flat" for "Kraft Theatre," via the Frank Cooper office . . . Galen Drake and his CBS cast to Watertown, N.Y., next week for two days of personal appearances as guests of WWNY . . . Bob McFadden did voice-overs on six Oakite tv spots . . . CBS Radio sales v.p. John Karol and sales development exec Lou Riggio back from the tobacco business convention at Miami Beach. Same web's ad-promotion veep, Lou Hausman, received a silver cocktail shaker from the Brand Names Foundation this week for his contribution to the organization as treasurer over the past five years . . . Eugene O'Dougherty to the WRCA traffic dept. . . . Jane Warren, the registered nurse featured on WRCA-TV's "Hi. Mom" strip, doing personal appearances at Macy's this week . . . Three correspondents have been assigned to give regular Mutual coverage of the International World Fair at Brussels, Eddy Gilmore of AP, William Sunderland, UP, and Edmund Stevens, headquarted in Moscow. MBS newsman Les Higbie will travel with vice-president Richard Nixon on his South American goodwill travel mission . . . Indie WPIX copped the local "Emmy" for the time it's devoting to edueational tv, programmed by the Metropolitan Educational Television Assn. (META) . . . Walter Kiernan and Bob Considine will headline the spring dinner of the Society of Silurians at the Manhattan Hotel on Monday, May 5. Barry Faris is chairman of dinner committee.

William Holden, Brian Donlevy and Marie McDonald front "Boomer Jones," half-hour radio drama, which was directed by Mel Ferrer for the International Assn. of Machinists' 70th anniversary celebration, and will be heard Sunday, May 4 on ABC . . . Video-motion picture scribe Budd Arthur married to Joan Pugsley on Thursday (17) . . . WBAI--FM airing exclusive coverage of International Home Show (from the Coliseum) this week . . . Ruth Hunter, original Ellie May of "Tobacco Road," and spouse, Philip Hunter, who once teamed on "Uncle Don," are now heard every Saturday afternoon via WHLI (Hempstead) with a show called "Let's Go."

Michael Sklar, producer of "Conquest," to Europe for a seven-nation looksee at possible filming sites for upcoming segments . . . Ray Bolger set for a "Big Record" stint next Wednesday (30), followed by Bob Hope on May 7 . . . John Forsythe in from the Coast Sunday (27) for "Bachelor Father" promotion . . . CBS maestro Alfredo Antonini set for guest conducting stint with the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. Symphony in Toronto in May . . . Dick Pack, Westinghouse Broadcasting programming v.p., named chairman of the summer workshop in radio-tv at New York U. . . . Ed Lethen, CBS-TV director of sales development, spoke before the Nashville Advertising Club last Thursday (17) . . . Jessica Tandy inked for an "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" stint, with filming starting next week.

IN HOLLYWOOD . .

Sydney Yallen quit as KFWB director of operations to team up with Ted Bentley as executive veepee of the firm handling trade shows, expos and serving as radio-tv consultants . . . NBC tied up "People Are Funny" for three more years and the personal services of John Guedel, producer, and Art Linkletter, emcee. Latter took off for Brussels as a rep of the State Department. His camera will be busy, too . . . KFI, L.A. affiliate of NBC, celebrated 36 years on the air last week with a two-hour program covering the music of that span . . . Dorothy Stillman was moved up as continuity acceptance editor for ABC-TV's western division . . . Gene Raymond set his hand to direction of "Matinee Theatre" after being starred in a half dozen plays on the NBC-TV daylight color strip . . . Charles Correll's nine-year-old son, took his first fling at acting on the Bob Cummings show . . . Bill Thomas, film producer, is getting back into the tv commercial field with "Doc" Merman and Bill Goodwin. Back in 1942 he filmed a jingly commercial that was shown on the Don Lee station, then experimental . . . TV brass Tom McDermott, Benton & Bowles; Rod Erickson, Young & Rubicam, and Ed Ebel General Foods, in town, to inspect the new crop of shows . . . Brian Keith will produce a teleseries in Hawaii if the island industries will stand the tab . . . "Queen For a Day" starts its 13th year on the webs April 29. Raymond R. Morgan, who owns the show, once said, "it was the toughest sale I ever had to make."

IN CHICAGO . . .

Growing wave of new "livies" on local tv has WBKB unveiling a new cross-the-board audience participationer with Capt. Stubby and the Buccaneers; WGN-TV readying a post midnight strip with Trib columnist Herb Lyon and Wally Phillips and Bob Bell; and WNBQ prepping a new format, possibly with Barbara Becker and Mike Douglas, to replace the Howard Miller show after May 16 . . . WTAQ (La Grange) deejay Phil Lind collected 3,000,000 pennies in a cancer drive . . . Sun-Times tv critic Paul Molloy off on another jaunt to the Coast . . . Broadcast Advertising Club has ARB director James W. Seiler tapped as guest speaker tomorrow (Thurs.) on subject of Arbitron . . . Harry Ward, continuity head of WNBQ-WMAQ, pressed into interview service last week for a tape with Lotte Lehmann . . . Susie Heinkel, WBBM-TV kidstar, added to regular panel of "In the Bag." Big name guests will henceforth be contestents on the show . . . "Ding Dong School's" Dr. Frances Horwich penning a series on children for the Tribune . . . WAIT deejay Stan Dale to address Music Operators of America conclave in May on the subject of Top 40 programming.

IN LONDON . .

Breakfast-time tv was tried out on the commercial web last week via Associated-Rediffusion, which networked the opening ceremony of the Brussels Universal Exhibition. The show ran from 8:30 a.m. to 11:15. It's expected that viewing figures will be closely watched by the indie outfits who have long been eyeing the possibilities of early morning transmissions . . . Liberace headlined the bill of Associated Television's "Sunday Night at the London Palladium" (20) . . . Scripters Frank Muir and Denis Norden, along with tv personality Josephine Douglas, will shortly be joining the panel of BBC-TV's long-running quiz "What's My Line?" They'll be temporarily replacing David Nixon, Barbara Kelly and Eamonn Andrews. Andrews is quiz master and will be replaced by Gilbert Harding from the panel . . . ATV will shortly begin a new quiz show designed to tax the knowledge of complete families. The show is titled "Keep It in the Family."

IN SAN FRANCISCO . . .

KPIX all shook up, with deejay Ted Randal (Rogers) taking over as bossman for a new, daily, 90-minute teenage show, starting April 28. Saturday show will run two hours and move into Del Courtney's "Showcase" slot, with latter either becoming a feature film "host" or depart-

(Continued on page 40)

IT DOESN'T HAVE TO BE A HIT

TV Skyrocketing Overseas

Washington, April 22.

Television is booming overseas at a rate fast exceeding all estimates, according to latest figures published by U.S. Information Agency. Dark cloud in the bright sky of this fast expanding world-wide tv industry is expanded use of medium for Communist propaganda.

Biggest spurt to date, according to the government agency, was addition of 21,000,000 tv receivers in use for first quarter of year in countries outside of Canada, U.S., and territories. Of these, 1,500,000 receivers were put in use in free world, and 600,000 were added in Iron Curtain countries. Japan, which boasts the world's largest motion picture production, became the fourth country, outside this hemisphere, to cross the 1,000,000 mark in tv sets.

In same three-month period, 57 new tv stations went on air overseas, 11 of which were in Commie countries. The Soviet alone added nine new stations.

Concerning stepped up use of tv for Red propaganda, USIA states that "new potentials for penetrating across free world boundaries may be developing opposite northern Iran." Conversion of East German tv to western standards means that Commie telecasts can be viewed by an estimated 200,000 set owners in W. Germany sans any mechanical adjustment.

Information Agency also reports wide exchange and sale of tv films by Commie countries with those in free world, as well as amongst themselves. Russia, report states, claims to have agreements for exchange of radio and tv material with 30 foreign countries.

Supplementing U.S. commercial output, USIA is now regularly supplying tv stations in 34 countries with program material, including documentaries, special filmed news events, and tv featurettes.

TOP 10 OR FLOP 10 'SELLS' THE THING

New values are creeping into television. A Top 10 rating isn't necessarily the be all and end all. A major hit on the Nielsen and Trendex charts can add up to a big fat nothing for the sponsor and, conversely, a tv personality who isn't exactly setting the video world on fire can be precisely what the sponsor doctor ordered in terms of product identification and racking up enviable sales records.

Over the past couple of weeks some client-agency negotiations aimed at resolving '58-'59 program schedules have brought to light two distinct illustrations of the new you-don't-have-to-have-a-hit-to-be-a-success era in network television. Take, for example, the case of Warner-Lambert, which is walking away from NBC-TV's highly successful and Top 10 Monday night "Restless Gun" entry. It's one of the more enviable program additions to the present season's sked insofar as Trendex-Nielsen payoffs and share-of-audience are concerned. But Warner-Lambert had been trying desperately to unload half of the show. It's been pitched up to all the agencies with no takers, with result that the sponsor is dumping the show. (Procter & Gamble has subsequently bought half the show but too late to save the Warner-Lambert billings.) Despite its lofty rating status, there's no product identification. On the sales charts it's been doing nothing for W-L.

On the other hand there's the case of Eddie Fisher, whose alternating Tuesday night hour showcase with George Gobel hardly merits a success tag either in the rating sweepstakes or as a major qualitative entry. Yet as far as Liggett & Myers is concerned "Eddie's our boy" and he's been renewed for next season. He's selling cigarets, regardless of what Nielsen or Trendex say. L & M cites the personality factor, the over-and-above-the-program values that a Fisher lends to the sales boys.

These are by no means isolated instances. The implicit salesmanship in an Ed Sullivan, regardless of program content, or a Dinah Shore in moving those Chevrolets have long been recognized. It doesn't necessarily mean you gotta go "live" to be a success (although sponsors are recognizing the increased values of the live commercial for increased impact). It has more to do with hitching your product to a personality and if possible getting exclusive identification, rather than playing around with a vague format.

Local Rank-&-File May Quit IBEW as Climax to CBS Strike Settlement; Bitter Over Terms

CBS Bonus to Staffers

The 280-odd CBS executives who kept the network on the air during the IBEW strike last week received bonus checks of $200 for their services. Actually, the bonus amounted to more, since each employee received a flat $200 after deductions for withholding taxes. Cost to the web was about $240 each.

Checks came in special delivery letters with personal thank-you notes from CBS prexy Dr. Frank Stanton. Most of the letters were formal in nature, but in the case of personnel known personally to Stanton, they were on a first-name basis including Stanton's own signature.

Local 1212 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers is headed toward a rank-and-file blowoff as a result of the IBEW strike settlement with CBS last week. Though no dissident organization has yet been formed, some rank-and-filers are already discussing the possibility of ankling the union and joining either IATSE or NABET, the rival technicians unions.

If such a movement gained strength and a switch did take place, its consequences could be far-reaching. In the end, it might put IBEW out of the broadcasting business altogether, since the 800 CBS employees constitute the bulk of Local 1212 membership and Local 1212 itself represents the pivotal local in IBEW's broadcast jurisdiction.

Grievances of the Local 1212 members, a majority of whom voted against the strike settlement (it was the votes of the out-of-town locals which swung the settlement) are directed against the International and basically are these:

1. Negotiations toward a settlement were taken over by the International, and the local's reps were shut out of the dickerings.

2. Members didn't know what they were voting on in the referendum which settled the strike. All the knowledge of the settlement they had were the wage details listed in the telegram from the federal mediator, but were not informed (and still don't know) the details of the settlement on videotape, for example.

3. Some members feel the final CBS offer and the one accepted was not even as favorable as the original. Thinking is that the final offer which has the same initial salary increase as the pre-strike

(Continued on page 34)

CBS to Meany: 'Come In'

Now that CBS technicians have put away their picket signs, it is safe for George Meany, prexy of the AFL-CIO, to speak over CBS Radio.

Labor's chieftain will sound off on the workingman's point of view on foreign affairs in an exclusive over CBS Radio today (23) when he speaks at a luncheon of the Commonwealth Club in Frisco. Program will be broadcast at 10:05 p.m.

Settling of CBS Strike to Hasten NBC, ABC Pacts

A contract closing by ABC and NBC with National Assn. of Broadcast Employees & Technicians is expected to happen without any further serious obstacles. Weighing heavily in favor of a new agreement, according to union executives, is the fact that late last week CBS finalized a pact with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

A meeting is slated for 10 a.m. today (Wed.) between NABET and the two networks, but it shapes up as strictly a formality. ABC and NBC will hear the reasons why the union's 2,200 member rank-and-file marginally rejected previous company offers for a new contract. NABET recently finished polling the national membership about why the offers were unacceptable.

As certain spokesmen have pointed out for both sides, the reasons for rejection won't count as importantly as the actual contract received by IBEW from CBS. The three networks and the two unions tend to reach similar accords on wages and working conditions even though the pacts are negotiated separately.

Officially, according to NABET, NBC and ABC have given no indication that they will begin new negotiations, but the union didn't think it likely that ABC and NBC would repeat CBS' action of 17 days ago (just prior to IBEW's 12-day strike) and say that the last offer, which included a $185 weekly top minimum wage, was the "final offer."

CBS-TV Affils Come to the Aid Of Their Network in Barrow Blast

Washington, April 22.

Affiliates of the CBS tv network last week made a strong appeal to the Federal Communications Commission to reject the Barrow Report proposal to eliminate option time. In the interest of effective networking operations and consequent benefit to the public, they urged that the practice be preserved.

As Chairman of a Special Affiliates Committee, John S. Hayes, prexy of the Washington (D. C.) Post Broadcast Division, told the Commission that if option time were dropped enough affiliates in top markets could reject enough different programs to start an "erosion" process which would "raise havoc" with the network schedule.

Testifying for CBS affiliates on other aspects of the Barrow report were F. Van Konynenburg of WCCO-TV in Minneapolis; F. E. Busby of WTVY in Dothan, Ala.; H. Moody McElveen Jr., of WNOK-TV in Columbia, S. C., and Murray Carpenter of W-TWO in Bangor, Me.

While the loss of one program segment might not kill CBS, Hayes declared, the same problem would arise every time an existing program terminated. "Where would it all end?" he asked. "The three networks and almost all of the tv broadcasters believe the entire future of networking would be gravely threatened. We do not

(Continued on page 36)

Felix Jackson Exits 'Cimarron City'

Hollywood, April 22.

Felix Jackson has been removed as producer of "Cimarron City" series at Revue, after helming the first two episodes of series which will be on NBC-TV next season.

Dick Lewis is producer on the hour-long oater until a replacement is selected.

R.A. Moore: Option Time & Must-Buy Must Be Abolished

Washington, April 22.

Option time and must-buy are illegal and "cannot be rendered lawful by any contentions of business convenience or necessity," Richard A. Moore, president of KTTV in Los Angeles, told the Federal Communications Commission today (Tues.) at hearings on the Barrow Report.

But aside from legal questions, Moore testified, the practices should be abolished in the public interest, as recommended in the Report.

First major witness to back Barrow proposals, Moore sailed into network arguments that option time is required to assure advertisers sufficient circulation for programs. The economic argument, he contended, is "irrelevant" un-

(Continued on page 36)

Klug's WBC FM Nod

Pittsburgh, April 22.

Charles Klug, veteran KDKA musician and producer, has been named FM program coordinator for Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. He'll do the FM planning for four stations, KDKA here, WBZ in Bostond, KYW in Cleveland and KEX in Portland.

Klug will make his headquarters in Pittsburgh.

Emerson Foote Back to McC-E

McCann-Erickson, which for the past few months has been pulling off surprise after surprise in account changes switched over to the field of personnel and caught the ad industry flatfooted by announcing that Emerson Foote, who resigned from McCann-Erickson in February last year, was returning to the agency.

Foote, who was executive vice president at the agency at the time of his retirement, will rejoin McCann-Erickson as a director, senior vice president and member of the operations committee, effective May 1. Since his resignation from McCann-Erickson, Foote, after a brief vacation, part of which was forced by his termination agreement with McCann-Erickson, has been serving as chairman at Geyer Advertising.

Foote stated, "My decision to re-

(Continued on page 43)

The Long Hot Summer on TV

It's going to be a quiz-happy summer on NBC-TV, with no less than five new audience-participation or quiz entries slated to bow during the dog-days, in addition to those already on the network. As the web's tentative summer lineup looks now, the entire replacement pattern will consist of filmed repeats, some shows continuing live, the five new quizzers and one new western and one new mystery.

The mystery, as previously reported, fills in for the George Gobel-Eddie Fisher Tuesday night hour as a live-from-New York color hour under MCA production auspices and tentatively titled "The Investigator." The western, not 100% sure yet, is slated to replace Tennessee Ernie Ford on Thursdays. It's a Revue Productions package in which Ford himself owns an interest and bears the working title of "Jodie."

But apart from these, it's a plethora of new quizzers. Mondays at 7:30, replacing "Price Is Right," which switches to Thursdays at 10 for the summer, will be "The Big Game," a Coast originating audience-participationer which a couple of months ago had been the runnerup contender to replace Arlene Francis in the daytime. Tuesdays at 7:30, replacing "Treasure Hunt," will be Joe Cates' "Haggis Baggis" package.

On Thursday at 7:30, vice "Tic Tac Dough," will be "Pick a Winner," a Gotham-based Wyn Elliott package. "Brain or Brawn," the French import just purchased by L&M Filters, may go in for a summer stint replacing "Dragnet" Thursday nights, latter moving to another time. Also on Thursdays, "Dough Re Mi" may be converted into a nighttimer to replace the Jane Wyman show. On Fridays, web is planning a quizzer at 7:30 to replace "Truth or Consequences," but hasn't selected one yet.

Some key areas not decided are replacements for Perry Como (decision on that will come out of GAC-TV, which packages the Como hour), and the Polly-Bergen-Club Oasis segment following Como, for which the "Dragnet" reruns are a possibility.

P&G's Skip-Week On 'Restless Gun'

After months of going begging, NBC-TV this week sold off the alternate-week of "The Restless Gun" but not before Warner-Lambert had already notified the web it will pull out next season because of NBC's inability till now to sell off the skip-week.

New sponsor is Procter & Gamble, which will probably start its skip-week sponsorship in August. Warner-Lambert is due to expire the following month, but NBC may let it go before the termination date, at the time P&G moves in. Warner-Lambert has had the show all of this season, starting on an alternate-week basis, then picking up every-week, but waiting for NBC to bring in relief as an alternate. NBC never did find an alternate, and Warner last week filed its cancellation notice.

Couple of days later, but too late for Warner's satisfaction, NBC inked P&G, out of the Leo Burnett agency, for the fall. Ironic part of the entire situation is that "Restless Gun" has been a top 10 entry on all the rating lists for most of the season (see separate story).

VARIETY-ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

VARIETY's weekly chart, based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau's latest reports on feature films and their competition covers 120 cities. Each week, the 10 top-rated features in a particular city will be rotated.

Factors which would assist distributors, agencies, stations and advertisers in determining the effectiveness of a feature show in a specific market have been included in this VARIETY chart. Listed below is such pertinent information regarding features as their stars, release year, original production company and the present distributor included wherever possible along with the title. Attention should be paid to such factors as the time and day, the high and low ratings for the measured feature period and share of audience, since these factors reflect the effectiveness of the feature and audience composition, i.e., a late show at 11:15 p.m. would hardly have any children viewers, but its share of audience may reflect dominance in that time period. In the cities where stations sell their feature programming on a multi stripped basis utilizing the same theatrical throughout the week a total rating for the total number of showings for the week is given, the total rating not taking into account the duplicated homes factor. Barring unscheduled switches in titles the listed features for the particularly rated theatrical filmed show are as accurate as could be ascertained from a multiplicity of station and other data.

MINNEAPOLIS

TOP 10 TITLES AND OTHER DATA	TIME SLOT	ARB RATING	HIGH	LOW	SHARE OF AUDIENCE	MARCH, 1958 TOP COMPETING SHOWS		ARB RATING
1. HIGH NOON— Gary Cooper, Grace Kelly; United Artists; 1952; NTA	Your 9 O'Clock Movie Sun. Mar. 2 9:00-10:30 p.m. KMGM	28.1	29.5	25.6	44.6	$64,000 Challenge	WCCO	18.2
						Loretta Young Presents	KSTP	21.1
						What's My Line	WCCO	23.2
						Today's Headlines	KSTP	19.6
2. MY DARLING CLEMENTINE— Victor Mature, Henry Fonda, Linda Darnell; 20th-Fox; 1946; NTA	Command Performance Sun. Mar. 2 2:00-3:45 p.m. WCCO	14.7	15.6	13.6	51.8	Wide Wide World	KSTP	11.2
						Sunday Playhouse	KMGM	6.8
3. RACHEL AND THE STRANGER— Loretta Young, William Holden, Robert Mitchum; RKO; 1948; C&C	Your 9 O'Clock Movie Mon. Mar. 3 9:00-10:30 p.m. KMGM	12.7	13.6	11.6	21.9	Suspicion	KSTP	19.0
						Studio One	WCCO	13.4
						Today's Headlines	KSTP	31.1
						Weather; Sports	KSTP	21.3
4. KING KONG— Bruce Cabot, Robert Armstrong, Fay Wray; RKO; 1933; C&C	Your 9 O'Clock Movie Wed. Mar. 5 9:00-10:30 p.m. KMGM	12.6	13.4	11.1	23.0	Circle Theatre	WCCO	15.9
						This Is Your Life	KSTP	23.6
						Today's Headlines	KSTP	27.6
						Weather; Sports	KSTP	18.5
5. ROARING TWENTIES— Humphrey Bogart, James Cagney, Priscilla Lane; Warners; 1939; AAP	Your 9 O'Clock Movie Fri. Mar. 7 9:00-10:30 p.m. KMGM	12.1	14.2	10.8	21.4	Lineup	WCCO	22.3
						Person to Person	WCCO	32.1
						Cavalcade of Sports	KSTP	15.9
						Today's Headlines	KSTP	22.4
						Weather; Sports	KSTP	16.2
6. THE WOLFMAN— Claude Rains, Ralph Bellamy; Universal; 1941; Screen Gems	Shock Theatre Sat. Mar. 1 10:30-12:00 a.m. WTCN	10.9	11.6	9.4	61.9	Sheriff of Cochise	KSTP	11.4
						All Star Bowling	WCCO	8.5
7. MR. BLANDINGS BUILDS HIS DREAM HOUSE— Cary Grant, Myrna Loy; RKO; 1948; C&C	Your 9 O'Clock Movie Tues. Mar. 4 9:00-10:30 p.m. KMGM	10.6	11.1	10.2	18.6	$64,000 Question	WCCO	26.6
						The Californians	KSTP	19.2
						State Trooper	KSTP	23.2
						Today's Headlines	KSTP	30.4
						Weather; Sports	KSTP	19.9
8. PURPLE HEART— Dana Andrews, Farley Granger, Richard Conte; 20th Fox; 1944; NTA	Your 9 O'Clock Movie Thurs. Mar. 6 9:00-10:30 p.m. KMGM	9.0	9.9	8.8	15.9	Playhouse 90	WCCO	29.4
						Harbor Command	KSTP	14.5
						Today's Headlines	KSTP	29.3
						Weather; Sports	KSTP	17.0
9. HONEYMOON— Shirley Temple, Guy Madison; RKO; 1947; C&C	Hollywood Matinee Sun. Mar. 2 4:00-5:30 p.m. KMGM	8.9	9.9	8.5	26.3	The Honeymooners	WCCO	11.4
						Tales of the Texas Rangers	WTCN	10.8
						See It Now	WCCO	7.8
10. CEILING ZERO— James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, June Travis; Warners; 1935; AAP	Your 9 O'Clock Movie Sat. Mar. 1 9:00-10:30 p.m. KMGM	7.7	9.7	5.4	11.9	Gunsmoke	WCCO	42.0
						Death Valley Days	WCCO	23.0
						Today's Headlines	KSTP	26.4
						News—Dave Moore	WCCO	18.5
						Your Hit Parade	KSTP	15.9

KNOXVILLE

1. DARK COMMAND— John Wayne, Claire Trevor; Republic; 1940; Hollywood-TV	Early Show Fri. Mar. 14 5:00-6:00 p.m. WBIR	20.8	21.7	19.0	55.2	Comedy Time	WATE	15.9
						Capt. David Grief	WATE	10.4
						Cisco Kid	WATE	20.0
2. TULSA— Susan Hayward, Robert Preston; Eagle Lion; 1949; Screen Gems	Early Show Thurs. Mar. 13 5:00-6:00 p.m. WBIR	18.9	19.7	17.3	49.1	Comedy Time	WATE	18.6
						Kingdom of the Sea	WATE	11.2
						Lone Ranger	WATE	28.1
3. GUNG HO— Randolph Scott, Noah Beery Jr.; Universal; 1943; Screen Gems	Big Show Sun. Mar. 9 1:30-3:00 p.m. WBIR	17.6	19.0	16.3	34.1	Championship Bowling, News	WATE	16.5
						Gene Autry Feature	WATE	14.3
4. FLYING TIGERS— John Wayne, Annabella; Republic; 1942; Hollywood-TV	Early Show Mon. Mar. 10 5:00-6:00 p.m. WBIR	16.9	17.6	16.3	44.3	Comedy Time	WATE	17.1
						Waterfront	WATE	15.6
						Superman	WATE	26.4
5. DEAD RECKONING— Humphrey Bogart; Lizabeth Scott; Columbia; 1947; Screen Gems	Early Show Wed. Mar. 12 5:00-6:00 p.m. WBIR	16.3	17.3	15.3	49.4	Comedy Time	WATE	14.9
						Flatt & Scruggs	WATE	8.2
						Woody Woodpecker	WATE	22.4
6. YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU— James Stewart, Jean Arthur; Columbia; 1938; Screen Gems	Late Show Sat. Mar. 8 10:30-12:30 a.m. WBIR	15.8	20.9	9.2	60.1	Your Hit Parade	WATE	19.0
						News; Academy Theatre	WATE	7.5
7. GALLANT LEGION— Bill Elliott, Joseph Schildkraut; Republic; 1948; Hollywood-TV	Top Gun Sat. Mar. 8 5:00-6:30 p.m. WBIR	15.4	16.3	14.2	47.2	Movie Matinee; News	WATE	12.2
						Wrestling	WATE	18.8
8. HER HUSBAND'S AFFAIRS— Franchot Tone, Lucille Ball; Columbia; 1947; Screen Gems	Early Show Tues. Mar. 11 5:00-6:00 p.m. WBIR	13.8	14.2	13.6	43.0	Comedy Time	WATE	17.4
						Ramar of the Jungle	WATE	12.2
						Mickey Mouse Club	WTVK	5.5
9. DOLL FACE— Vivian Blaine, Perry Como, Donald O'Keefe; 20th-Fox; 1945; NTA	Movie Matinee Sat. Mar. 8 4:00-5:30 p.m. WATE	12.4	12.9	11.5	57.3	Dance Party	WBIR	8.8
						Top Gun	WBIR	14.2
10. SUDDEN FEAR— Joan Crawford, Jack Palance; RKO; 1952; Flamingo-TV	Late Show Fri. Mar. 14 11:00-1:00 a.m. WBIR	11.9	15.9	6.1	65.1	Your Esso Reporter	WATE	11.5
						Jack Paar Show	WATE	5.6

Tele Follow-Up Comment

Ceiling Unlimited

Life in outer space was depicted with complete absorbtion in "Ceiling Unlimited" as a special edition of "The Twentieth Century" series over CBS-TV (20). The full-hour production both live and on film from N. Y., a spellbinder in any language, presented the knowledgeable views of such satellite and space-travel experts as Dr. Wernher von Braun, chief scientist at Army's Redstone Arsenal and designer of the Redstone and Jupiter ballistic missiles; Major Gen. John B. Medaris, head of the Redstone Arsenal and top man of the entire Army Ballistic Missile program; Dr. James A. Van Allen, head of the Physics Dept., State U., Iowa and member of the U. S. International Geophysical Year satellite committee; James R. Dempsey, manager of Convair-Astronautics, San Diego, and director of the "Atlas" intercontinental ballistic program; Krafft A. Ehricke, rocket expert and designer of the "Atlas" ICBM, and Capt. Ivan C. Kinchelee Jr., holder of altitude record for ascent in the X-2 rocket plane to over 126,000 feet.

These were the soaring individuals interviewed by CBS reporter Walter Cronkite, a clear-thinking, clear-speaking, camera-wise personality. One gathered from Cronkite's interviews with the experts that man was making considerable progress in conquering space but that he wouldn't land on the moon for at least seven or eight years, or possibly a little longer. One of the numerous highspots of the program was the first showing in this country of a portion of a Russian-made film called "Blazing a Trail to the Stars," a highly imaginative, and apparently carefully documented picture of how the Soviets expect to construct their space stations in outer space and reach the moon. It would be vastly interesting and decidedly worthwhile if American exhibitors were to latch on to the complete version of the Russian-made film and display it hereabouts. A distressing item on the program was Dempsey's statement that official Washington does not inform our civilian technicians at work on space problems what is happening in Soviet space circles.

Highly significant too was the point made that a trip to the moon should be a joint endeavor of Russia and the U. S. Perhaps in this manner could the two great powers solve one of mankind's most awesome scientific undertakings.

Leslie Midgley, with wisdom and showmanship, produced this CBS News Unit job. John Sharnik rates a big hand for the scripting, as does Vern Diamond for direction. These men put "Ceiling Unlimited" into excellent orbit. Rans.

Jerry Lewis Show

Jerry Lewis was sincere, restrained and funny in his outing over NBC-TV last Tuesday (15). The sincerity came at the windup with a moving plea for muscular dystrophy while the restraint and comedics pervaded throughout to make it all a happy hour.

It was all Lewis and he worked hard at making it all come across with proper values. In the musical department he got an assist from Helen Traubel, with whom he dueted on "You're Just In Love" and "You Gotta Have Heart" for lotsa fun. And when La Traubel gives out with the guffaw, it's difficult not to get with her. She also was effective in a solo spot on "Autumn Leaves."

The show was loaded with Lewises midway in the hour when Jerry's dad, Danny Lewis, and son, Gary Lewis, got together on a workover of "Rock-a-bye My Baby." And even the youngest Lewis' demonstration of rock 'n' roll for the oldsters had a nice spirit.

In the straight comedy department, Lewis had some fun with "The Bridge On The River Kwai," via his Japanese impresh, with Perry Como via a takeoff on crooner's "We Get Letters" segment, record miming, Ed Murrow, orch conducting, piano playing, etc.

It was a busy evening for him but it was rewarding. Gros.

Face the Nation

Television's penchant for making headline news was underscored again Sunday (20) when "Face the Nation" over CBS-TV carried an interview with David Ben-Gurion, Israel's sturdy old prime minister. It was an eye-opener as much as a news-producing show, for Ben-Gurion was quite frank on a number of points. Unfortunately, the film's recorded sound left much to wish for and the Israeli's remarks were frequently hard to understand.

Many of the questions on the show were of the type that could be expected. And then there were some that revolved around some touchy points, such as Ben-Gurion's definition of what is a Zionist. He didn't hedge on that one, stating very plainly that a Zionist was only a person who desired to come to Israel. Had there been more time, the program might have delved into the question of dual-loyalty, which has been bothering some Jews outside Israel. However, it was only briefly touched upon.

Stuart Novins was the moderator on the Ted Ayers-produced show. Newsmen asking questions included Winston Burdett, CBS' Rome man, and Seth King, Israel correspondent for the N. Y. Times. Both fired some pertinent queries at the Prime Minister, and they elicited some provocative answers. For instance, said Ben-Gurion, he's perfectly willing to accept an arms-inspection program, provided there's complete disarmament on both sides. He disclosed that he was about to send a letter bearing on the disarmament question to another head-of-state.

Interview veered in many directions, all more or less tied in with the future of Israel, now marking its 10th anni. Asked whether peace was any nearer, Ben-Gurion simply replied: "Mathematically, yes." At the same time, he cited Israel's need to take precautions against its hostile neighbors. Over and over again, Ben-Gurion's theme was: When the Arabs sit down with us to discuss peace, then we're willing to discuss anything else.

Poor sound on the Ben-Gurion dialog was probably due to bad microphone placement since Burdett and King came through fine. Lensing concentrated—properly—on the prime minister's impressive face, framed two shocks of white hair. Show had an aura of spontaniety and came across as part of history in the making. Hift.

Comment

It's tough to make an explosive subject like the "Free World vs. Russia" into a dull show, but the NBC-TV's "Comment" stanza last Sunday (20) succeeded. Program, one of two filmed in Europe, presented a discussion of Russian problem by Edward Crankshaw, of the London Observer; Stephen Potter, author and originator of "gamesmanship"; Irving R. Levine, NBC's Moscow correspondent; and Joseph C. Harsch, NBC's senior European correspondent.

The show's format was deadly. Each of the four participants first delivered a five-minute lecture with the camera lens fixed in disturbing closeups on the speaker's face. During the last 10 minutes, the four experts were brought together for a more informal discussion under Harsch's direction. Harsch, unfortunately, was too obsessed with the dilemma of dealing with the "palpable evil" of Russia to permit any serious probing of the practical political problems.

Levine offered some pointed, on-the-spot observations of Russian progress since Stalin's death and voiced the belief, seconded by Crankshaw, that Russian communism will continue to survive as a world power and that America must learn how to deal with that fact. Potter, not specifically a Russian expert, discussed Russian-American diplomacy in his own special jargon of trojan horsemanship, one-upmanship, lifemanship, deathmanship, brinkmanship, etc. This sort of thing becomes monotonous very quickly.

Herm.

Shirley Temple's Storybook

A mishmash, part fairy tale, part burlesque, punctuated by songs and dances, was served up by "Shirley Temple's Storybook" Friday (18) night by NBC-TV, at 7:30 p.m.

The sequel to "Aladdin's Lamp," titled "Tales of the Land of Green Ginger," preemed by Noel Langley, had a number of imaginative concepts, but more than that was needed to put the one-hour film across. What was sorely lacking was a dominant approach which possibly could thread the various facets together—a touch, perhaps of fairy tale magic.

The plot concerned the adventures of Aladdin's son to find his true love. That beaten up old lamp was utilized for a number of rubs. There was the genii, the son of the genii, a magic carpet which the viewer saw take off, and other abacadbra hoopla.

Songs by Mack David and Jerry

(Continued on page 44)

THE LONG TIME BETWEEN
With Julie Harris, narrator; others
Writer: Edward Gilmore
Producer: Marilyn Kaemmerle
Director: Frank Pacelli
30 Mins., Sat. (19), 1 p.m.
NBC-TV, from New York

How cancer affects a patient, his family, his doctor and his friends was dramatically told in a half-hour semi-documentary Saturday (19) via NBC-TV. Presented by the net in cooperation with the American Cancer Society, "The Long Time Between" was intended to focus public attention on a disease which ranks as one of today's top killers.

At the same time this live production also aimed at removing some common misconceptions and fears about cancer. In those respects the program may or may not have succeeded. For while there was an abundance of facts about cancer served up in the half-hour, nevertheless they were somewhat clouded by a script that tended to become too theatrical.

Here we had an actual case history reenacted by a onetime patient and her friends and relatives. "How does it begin? What is it like for the family . . . ?" In this instance the recovered patient was Barbara Z. Weise, a Chicago resident who was diagnosed and successfully operated upon some 12 years ago. Her experiences at that time and since then were recounted by herself and her real life associates with exception of narrator Julie Harris and three AFTRA members.

While Miss Harris' narration could not have been more sincere, occasionally some over-dramatic phrases in Edward Gilmore's script along with her emotional reading threw too much emphasis on cancer's frightening aspects. Tending to heighten the effect, especially during such passages as "Why did it have to happen to me?" were monotonous closeups of the narrator. A choral background also was distracting at times.

Very touching was the finale when Mrs. Weise came on screen with her two adopted children. Hers was an operation which meant that she would be childless. But, waving toward her boy and girl, she said quietly, "when God takes something away He replaces it." Value of checkups and research was stressed by Miss Harris who urged viewers to "remember Barbara's story because cancer can be cured." Gilb.

'Emmy' Stubs Her Toe; Telecast Bogged Down By Too Many Awards

Annual Emmy Awards telecast last Tuesday (15) should have driven home the fact to the Academy's toppers that there are just too many awards. Quibbling over an awards slate in private is one thing, but when a plethora of prizes tends to damage the industry's annual publicly televised showcase, that's another. If for no other reason, the showmanship on which the Academy members pride themselves should make a trimming a must for next year.

Set in marked contrast to the plodding procession of presenters, nominations and winners were some of the show's bright spots, namely, the best comedians in the business at the top of their standup form, with Milton Berle leading the pack in a solid 10-minute quipalog that just couldn't be topped. But Berle, who said he'd been given eight or nine minutes, put the pressure on the rest of the gang, with the result that those who followed had to cut whatever routines they had planned short, a "cavalcade" of television through the years was cut after the first year ('48) and it was a rush job the rest of the way through.

All because there are just too many awards, apart from the obvious silliness of some of the categories (like the one which Dinah Shore took, covering musical, variety, audience participation and quiz shows). If logic doesn't pervade in the future, showmanship ought to, and the Academy toppers must realize that putting the industry's best foot forward means making more use of the starpacked potential of an Awards telecast instead of turning it into a series of Teleprompter readings.

This apart, and forgetting for the moment a horrendous four-way-split-screen musical number and a squeaky Teleprompter that must have driven the Hollywood "presenters" nuts, it was a night for the comedians. Berle, in a trady mood, gave rise to the "where have been keeping him all these years" wonderment with gag after gag like his topper, "in the

(Continued on page 44)

THE RED MILL
(Du Pont Show of the Month)
With Donald O'Connor, Shirley Jones, Harpo Marx, Evelyn Rudie, Elaine Stritch, Edward Andrews, Mike Nichols, Elaine May; Don Walker, conductor; Eugene Loring, choreography
Executive Producer: Richard Lewine
Producer: Fred Coe
Director: Delbert Mann
Adaptation: Robert Alan Aurthur
90 Mins., Sat. (19), 7:30 p.m.
DU PONT
CBS-TV, from Hollywood (tape)
(BBD&O)

Robert Alan Aurthur's adaptation of "The Red Mill" will probably find a place in contemporary video history as the first major production done almost entirely on videotape and as Fred Coe's first effort for CBS-TV after all those years of identification with NBC. But there its claim to fame will end.

Decision by Coe and Aurthur to "jazz it up" with a modern touch (the Brussels Fair yet) gave the production a split personality which it couldn't overcome. It combined the worst of two worlds. Briefly, Donald O'Connor was cast as the lackey to two Hollywood stars whose car breaks down in the Dutch village. There O'Connor falls in love with the local miss (Shirley Jones) who runs the hotel, and after a struggle of some 75 minutes, finally declares his independence. In the side situations, the stars gain some measure of self-reliance, the mayor marries the innkeeper's sister, and the Red Mill, which had stopped turning until "true love" comes to the village, started going again. And everybody was off to Brussels.

All of which is something like casting the Prince Charming in "Cinderella" as "Pal Joey." The gears don't mesh, for one thing. For another, to bring in a basically unsympathetic group of characters into a serene and gentle setting and make it all come out honey-like in the end seems like a waste of effort and premise. For a third, the sorry situation of O'Connor got just plain dull after awhile, and even the sometimes inventive choreography of Eugene Loring and O'Connor's dancing couldn't cover up the barren stretches.

O'Connor did as well as he could by his improbable role, and his singing and dancing were topflight. Miss Jones was sweetness and light, which was about all the effort her role called for, and her singing was up to its customary excellent standard. Mike (Nichols) & Elaine (May), the bright new comic team, contributed a honey of a caricature of a pair of Hollywood stars, but like all caricature when overdone, it got wearing through a 90-minute stretch. Elaine Stritch and Edward Andrews probably came off best of the entire cast as the sister and the mayor—certainly Miss Stritch showed the rest how to put some life into a song. Harpo Marx and Evelyn Rudie were the narrators, an unnatural pair if there ever was one, but sufficient unto the purpose.

It, as aforenoted, there were longish and dull stretches, blame it more on the book than on director Delbert Mann. Latter managed to get some excellent camerawork out of CBS' emergency crews (web's regular technicians still hadn't come back to work). Show was about 90% videotape, and most viewers didn't know it wasn't live, so excellent was the tape quality. Chan.

SPORTS UNLIMITED
With Jack Drees, guests
Producer: Jack Drees-Jack Goggin
Director: Dale Juhlin
Writer: Frank Korch
30 Mins., Sat., 9:30 p.m.
SQUIRT BOTTLING CO.
WGN-TV, Chicago
(Fletcher D. Richards)

Even forgiving the in-depth pretentions, Jack Drees' new Saturday nighter rates minor league as a combination interview session and recap of the week's events. His script is literate and colorful but is read from sheets on the desk, so there's no feeling of spontaneous man-to-manness about the commentary. And the wisdom of conducting two interviews at once is dubious, since it's a neat enough trick to do well one subject at a time.

Debuter (19) had him popping unpointed questions back and forth between Chicago Cubs manager Bob Scheffing and figure skater Hayes Allen Jenkins, who had nothing in common. This made for a diffuse, confusing and unenlightening double chinfest.

Drees is certainly no "Mike Wallace of the Sports World," not on the opening show anyway, and the pressagentry that touted him such did the vet sportscaster no service. It's no substitute for "depth" to state a frank and/or shocking opinion on tv. Not only has that been

(Continued on page 44)

KRAFT TELEVISION THEATRE
(Three By Tennessee)
With Ben Gazzara, Lee Grant, Thomas Chalmers, Gene Saks, Zina Bethune, Martin Huston
Executive Producer: David Susskind
Producer: Robert Herridge
Director: Sidney Lumet
Writer: Tennessee Williams
60 Mins., Wed., 9 p.m.
KRAFT
NBC-TV, from New York (color)
(J. Walter Thompson)

"Kraft Theatre," having incepted the hour live drama pattern for television nearly 11 years ago only to see it fall into a state of disrepute and neglect in the past couple of seasons, is making a valiant attempt to revitalize the form and lift it out of its senile status.

J. Walter Thompson agency, which heretofore nelmed the long-running Wednesday night NBC-TV showcase, has turned production reins over to David Susskind and his Talent Associates. As the initial offering last week Susskind resuscitated three 1938-vintaged one-act plays by Tennessee Williams, with a couple of tv pros, Sidney Lumet and Robert Herridge, slotted in as director and producer, respectively. But it was hardly worth all the effort.

The three plays, in the order presented, were "Mooney's Kid Don't Cry," with Ben Gazzara and Lee Grant; "The Last of My Solid Gold Watches" with Thomas Chalmers and Gene Saks, and "This Property is Condemned," featuring Zina Bethune and Martin Huston. Unfortunately, all come under the heading of "embryonic Williams," all flagrantly stamped as the thinking and the philosophy of the '30s, embodying all the dross, all the mediocrity and all the ugliness of the depression era—a trio of sordid chants without hope.

"Mooney's Kid" is a pitiful cry by an inarticulate, immature male animal with a hobby horse used as an obvious but trite symbol. Whatever merit it possessed was the opportunity it afforded Gazzara and Miss Grant to sink their teeth into a bit of melodramatic hijinks, both vastly superior to their material.

"Solid Gold Watches" (no stranger to tv, having been done on "ANTA Playhouse" back in '47) might have been labelled, with due apologies to Arthur Miller, "Death Of A Southern Salesman" with Chalmers engaging in a virtual monolog on his waning world. Now, as in '47, it's hardly a dramatic event; just talk that elicits no sympathy.

"This Property Is Condemned" was notable primarily for Miss Bethune's performance, with the controlled hysteria of a strange old child portrayed without bathos. Whatever historic value it has stems from the fact that the girl is a seedling of what later grew into the Blanche DuBois of "Streetcar Named Desire," even as the Gazzara vignette in "Mooney's Baby" preordained the evolvement of Stanley Kowalski.

Unfortunately, this "Three By Tennessee" only served to reaccent that one does not only have to write for tv, as a medium unto itself, but for the day and the age. Even current Williams hasn't achieved the rank of the classic to be revived, certainly not the pieces upon which he cut his eye teeth.

Susskind, Herridge and Lumet have the capacity to vitalize a play when they put it on tv. It moves, involves the viewer and sparks. They know their craft; their ideas, methods and modes are fresh and new. From this standpoint there's no denying the plus virtues of the Kraft change. But sad little wisps of hopelessness are not adequate backbone for a play, even three little one-acters by an embryonic talent. Rose.

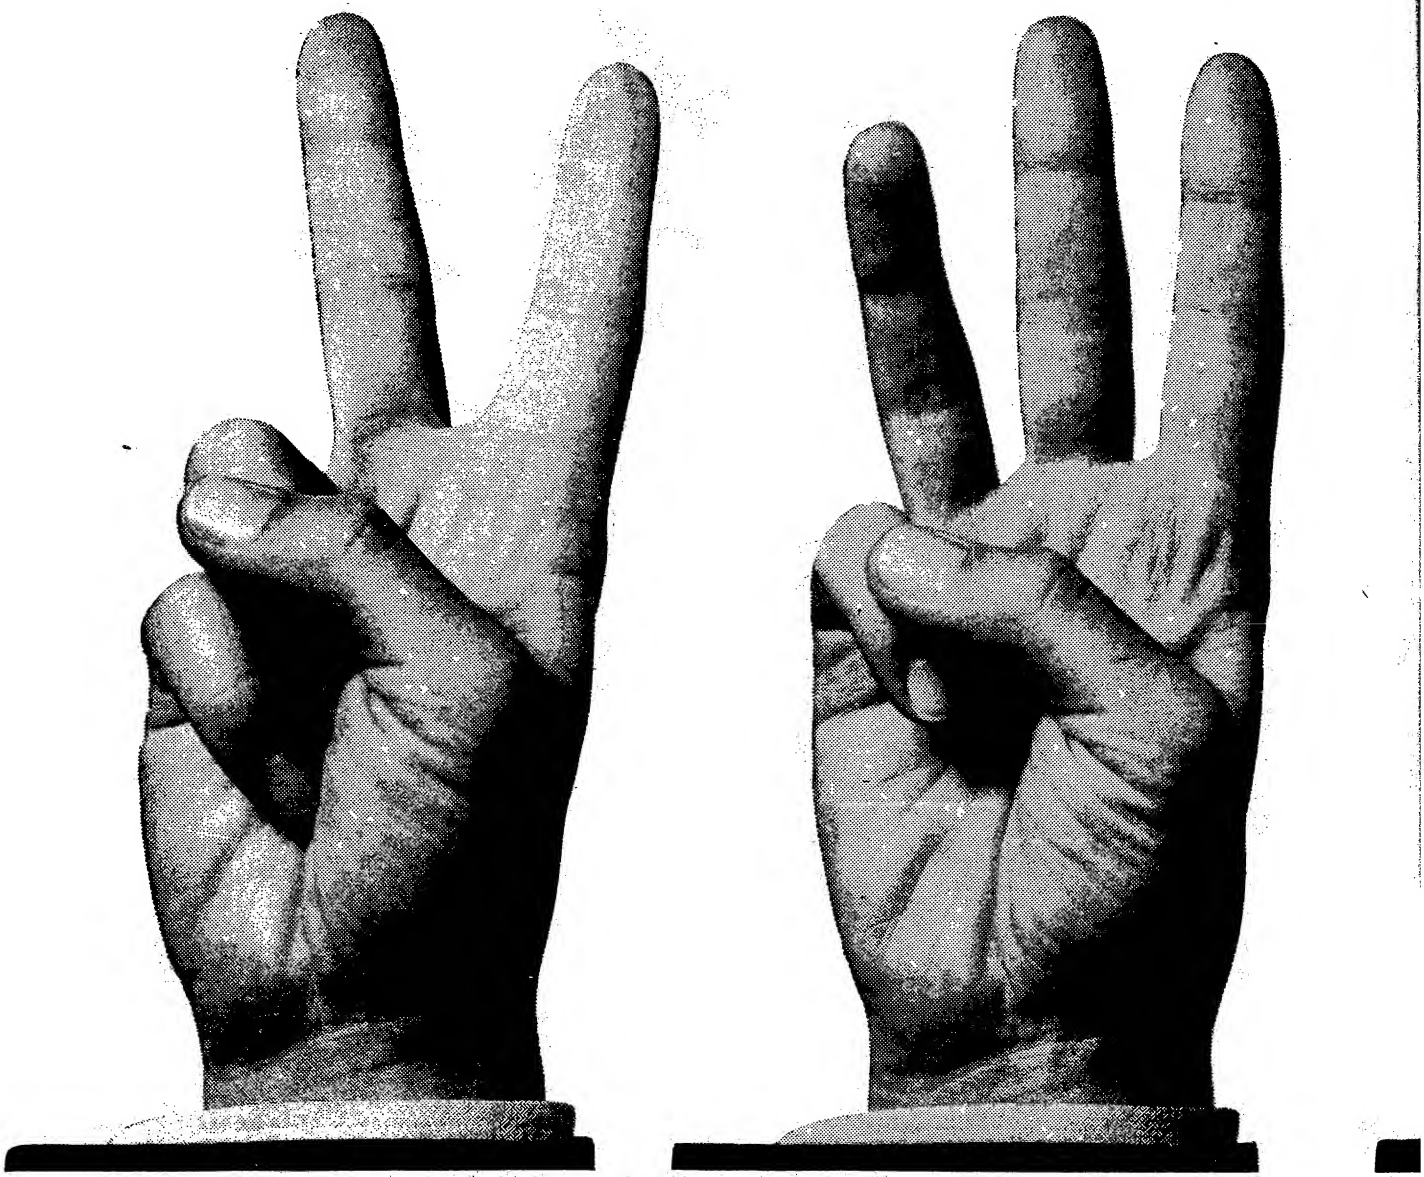
'Vera's' Not Very Vivid

London, April 22.

The BBC publicly showed off its new taped television apparatus, popularly known as "Vera" (Vision Electronic Recording Apparatus) during normal transmission time last week. But the demonstration was somewhat of a disappointment when the pictures played back proved to be little better than normal telerecordings.

Richard Dimbleby, in the weekly news feature program, "Panorama," conducted the experiment by having the first few minutes of the program recorded by the new system. When the tape was played back, the picture proved to be fuzzy and slightly distorted. However, the advantage of "Vera's" speed in reproduction is obvious. Later the same evening a similar demonstration was staged during the newscast, with the same result.

"Vera" is similar to a normal tape recorder but, through a new process, retains not only the sound but the picture.



NETWORK TV ADVERTISERS... LET US PROVE THAT

Spot TV can double... even quintuple your

Special Nielsen analyses just completed for NBC Spot Sales show that when Network TV advertisers add low-cost Spot TV to their network television programs, they can quickly reach twice, three times, four times, or even five times the number of different homes they now reach in key markets.

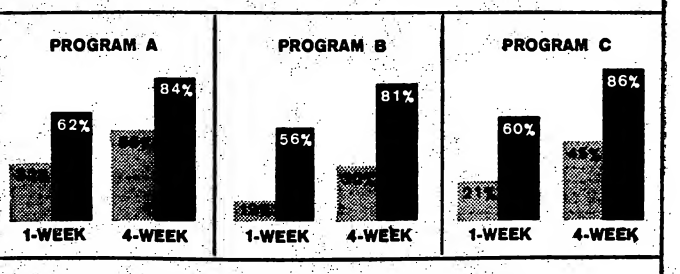
Spot TV can do a job like that for you, too! Let NBC Spot Sales—at no cost to you—order a Nielsen analysis to prove it. For this study, simply choose the Spot TV schedule best suited to your selling needs. You'll receive the results showing unduplicated-audience totals for your network program alone and unduplicated-audience totals for your network program plus your spot schedule.

triple...quadruple or key market audiences

Note: A phone call to NBC Spot Sales starts immediate action on a special Nielsen analysis for you. At present, these studies can be made for the New York, Chicago and Los Angeles markets. No cost for the study . . . no obligation to buy the Spot schedule.

NBC SPOT SALES

HERE'S HOW THE SIZE OF UNDUPLICATED NEW YORK AUDIENCES* MULTIPLIES WHEN YOU ADD WRCA-TV'S POPULAR LOW COST 14/50 SPOT TV PLAN TO SOME PRIME NIGHTTIME NETWORK PROGRAMS:



Cumulative audience delivered by network program
Cumulative audience delivered by network + 14/50 Spot TV Plan
*Percent of total television homes. Source: NSI, New York, December 1957

VARIETY-TELEPULSE CITY-BY-CITY PROGRAM CHART. VARIETY's weekly chart is based on the 22 major markets regularly reported by Telepulse each month, in addition to 133 other Telepulse tabulated U.S. markets, covered over the course of a year. Cities will be rotated weekly. The VARIETY chart is a compilation of data on syndicated films, as well as network and live programs, in each market. Under the top 10 multi-weekly heading, the (†) stands for local programming and the () for network shows.*

WASHINGTON

Station: WMAL, WRC, WTOP, WTTG. TV Homes: 512,500. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	Perry Como (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	WRC	37.8
2.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WTOP	36.2
3.	Tales of Wells Fargo (Mon. 8:30-9)	WRC	29.5
4.	Bob Hope (Sun. 9:00-10:00)	WRC	29.4
5.	Wyatt Earp (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WMAL	28.9
6.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WTOP	28.5
7.	Restless Gun (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	WRC	28.4
8.	Loretta Young (Sun. 10:00-10:30)	WRC	27.9
9.	Alfred Hitchcock (Sun. 9:30-10:00)	WTOP	27.2
9.	Groucho Marx (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	WRC	27.2
9.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	WTOP	27.2

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	†11 P. M. Report (M-F 11:00-11:15)	WTOP	18.4
2.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6:00)	WMAL	16.3
3.	*Queen for a Day (M-F 4:00-4:45)	WRC	15.2
4.	*Capt. Kangaroo (M-F 8-8:45 a.m.)	WTOP	14.7
5.	†Late Show (M-F 11:15-Signoff)	WTOP	13.7
6.	†News (M-F 11:00-11:15)	WRC	13.5
7.	†Milt Grant (M-F 5:00-6:15)	WTTG	13.4
8.	*Modern Romances (M-F 4:45-5:00)	WRC	12.7
8.	†Popeye (M-F 6:30-7:00)	WTTG	12.7
9.	†Ranger Hal (M-F 8:45-10:00 a.m.)	WTOP	12.4

TOP TWENTY SYNDICATED SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRIB.	AV. RTG.	AV. SH.
1.	Gray Ghost (Sat. 10:30)	WTOP	CBS	22.0	36
2.	Highway Patrol (Sat. 7:00)	WTOP	Ziv	21.7	44
3.	Mike Hammer (Tues. 10:30)	WRC	MCA	21.5	37
4.	Sheriff of Cochise (Thurs. 7:00)	WRC	NTA	18.9	36
5.	Honeymooners (Tues. 7:00)	WRC	CBS	17.9	35
6.	Silent Service (Tues. 10:30)	WTOP	NBC	17.5	30
7.	Whirlybirds (Fri. 9:30)	WTTG	CBS	16.9	24
8.	Twenty Six Men (Sun. 6:30)	WMAL	ABC	15.9	34
9.	Last of the Mohicans (Wed. 7:00)	WRC	TPA	15.5	32
10.	Errol Flynn (Wed. 10:30)	WTTG	Official	15.2	29
11.	Capt. David Grief (Mon. 7:00)	WRC	Guild	14.7	33
12.	Annie Oakley (Fri. 7:00)	WTOP	CBS	14.5	29
12.	Badge 714 (Fri. 7:30)	WTTG	NBC	14.5	24
12.	Waterfront (Fri. 10:00)	WTTG	MCA	14.5	22
13.	Science Fiction (Sun. 6:00)	WMAL	Ziv	14.2	30
14.	If You Had a Million (Fri. 10:30)	WTTG	MCA	13.9	22
15.	Mr. District Attorney (Tues. 10:00)	WTTG	Ziv	13.5	23
15.	Sea Hunt (Fri. 10:30)	WMAL	Ziv	13.5	21
15.	The Falcon (Wed. 10:00)	WTTG	NBC	13.5	20
16.	Grand Ole Opry (Sat. 8:00)	WTTG	Flamingo	13.4	21

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
Ticket-Hollywood	WTTG	16.5
Grand Ole Opry	WTTG	14.2
Silent Service	WTOP	17.5
White Hunter	WTTG	11.5
7:00 Final	WMAL	11.3
News—John Daly	WMAL	12.0
Mike Hammer	WRC	21.5
Playhouse of Stars	WTOP	21.5
Outlook	WRC	11.2
San Francisco Beat	WTTG	11.5
Circle Theatre	WTOP	17.9
City Assignment	WTTG	11.9
Buckskins Jamb	WTTG	13.2
Leave It to Beaver	WTOP	16.2
Lineup	WTOP	24.2
Meet the Press	WRC	12.2
Person to Person	WTOP	24.9
Californians	WRC	19.9
Person to Person	WTOP	24.9
This Is Your Life	WRC	23.5
Perry Como	WRC	35.0

BALTIMORE

Stations: WBAL, WJZ, WMAR. TV Homes: 419,900. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WMAR	43.8
2.	Sugar Foot (Tues. 7:30-8:30)	WJZ	40.3
3.	Wyatt Earp (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WJZ	39.8
4.	Alfred Hitchcock (Sun. 9:30-10:00)	WMAR	35.3
4.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WMAR	35.3
5.	Broken Arrow (Tues. 9:00-9:30)	WJZ	34.8
5.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	WMAR	34.8
5.	Oh Susanna (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	WMAR	34.8
6.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	WMAR	34.6
7.	Lineup (Fri. 10:00-10:30)	WMAR	33.3

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†Popeye (M-F 4:45-5:00)	WJZ	28.9
2.	†Buddy Deane (M-F 2:30-4:45)	WJZ	26.7
3.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	WJZ	26.1
4.	†Date Line, Misc. (M-F 7:15-7:30)	WJZ	25.8
5.	†Early Show (M-F 6:00-7:15)	WJZ	23.2
6.	†10:30 News, Misc. (M-F 10:30-10:45)	WJZ	22.1
7.	†7:00 Final, Wea. (M-F 7:00-7:15)	WMAR	21.8
8.	*CBS News (M-F 7:15-7:30)	WMAR	21.7
9.	†Amos 'n' Andy (M-F 6:00-6:30)	WMAR	20.7
10.	†Late Show (M-F 10:45-Signoff)	WJZ	19.6

1.	Popeye (M-F 4:45)	WJZ	AAP	28.9	70	Edge of Night	WMAR	6.3
2.	Waterfront (Mon. 6:30)	WMAR	MCA	26.3	52	Early Show	WJZ	18.8
3.	Popeye (Sat., Sun. 5:30)	WJZ	AAP	25.1	56	Legionnaire	WBAL	11.3
						Sabor of London	WBAL	11.3
4.	Man Behind the Badge (Fri. 6:30)	WMAR	MCA	24.0	44	Early Show	WJZ	18.8
5.	Brave Eagle (Sat. 6:30)	WMAR	CBS	23.3	52	Early Show	WJZ	13.5
6.	Honeymooners (Sun. 10:00)	WJZ	CBS	22.3	32	$64,000 Challenge	WMAR	24.3
7.	Amos 'n' Andy (M-F 6:00)	WMAR	CBS	20.7	44	Early Show	WJZ	22.4
8.	Highway Patrol (Sat. 7:00)	WMAR	Ziv	20.5	40	Early Show	WJZ	18.3
9.	I Search for Adventure (Sun. 7:00)	WMAR	Bagnall	20.3	34	Early Show	WJZ	26.3
10.	City Detective (Wed. 6:30)	WMAR	MCA	19.5	37	Early Show	WJZ	24.3
11.	Casey Jones (Mon. 7:30)	WJZ	Screen Gems	19.3	32	Robin Hood	WMAR	28.8
12.	Studio 57 (Wed. 10:00)	WJZ	MCA	18.3	32	This Is Your Life	WBAL	21.3
13.	If You Had a Million (Tues. 6:30)	WMAR	MCA	17.3	37	Early Show	WJZ	25.3
14.	Public Defender (Thurs. 6:30)	WMAR	Interstate	17.3	32	Early Show	WJZ	28.5
15.	Gray Ghost (Thurs. 10:00)	WJZ	CBS	17.0	24	Playhouse 90	WMAR	34.8
16.	Sea Hunt (Wed. 10:30)	WBAL	Ziv	16.3	33	10:30 News	WJZ	17.5
						Late Show	WJZ	18.0
17.	Soldiers of Fortune (Sat. 4:30)	WBAL	MCA	16.3	36	All Star Golf	WJZ	23.0
18.	Sky King (Sat. 11:30 a.m.)	WMAR	Nabisco	14.8	39	Action Triple Feature	WJZ	14.0
19.	Sheriff of Cochise (Sat. 10:30)	WBAL	NTA	14.0	22	First Run Theatre	WMAR	27.3
20.	Mama (Sat. 8:30)	WJZ	CBS	13.3	20	Perry Como	WBAL	30.8

CINCINNATI

Stations: WCPO, WKRC, WLW-T. TV Homes: 309,800. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WKRC	38.2
2.	Wyatt Earp (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WCPO	36.9
3.	Sugar Foot (Tues. 7:30-8:30)	WCPO	35.7
4.	Loretta Young (Sun. 10:00-10:30)	WLW-T	35.5
4.	Perry Como (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	WLW-T	35.5
5.	Bob Hope (Sun. 9:00-10:00)	WLW-T	32.9
5.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	WKRC	32.9
5.	Restless Gun (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	WLW-T	32.9
5.	Zorro (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	WCPO	32.9
6.	Maverick (Sun. 7:30-8:30)	WCPO	32.6

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†50-50 Club (M-F 12:00-1:30)	WLW-T	21.9
2.	†News—Grant, Wea. (M-F 11-11:15)	WLW-T	20.5
3.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	WCPO	19.7
4.	†News, Wea. (M-F 11:00-11:15)	WKRC	17.2
5.	†Al Lewis Show (M-F 9:10 a.m.)	WCPO	14.3
5.	*Tic Tac Dough (M-F 1:30-2:00)	WLW-T	14.3
6.	†Our Gang Comedy (M-F 4:00-5:00)	WCPO	13.3
7.	†Al Wanda Lewis (M-F 11-12 noon)	WCPO	12.5
7.	*NBC News (M-F 6:45-7:00)	WLW-T	12.5
7.	†Sohio Rptr., Wea. (M-F 6:30-6:45)	WLW-T	12.5

1.	Highway Patrol (Sat. 10:30)	WKRC	Ziv	27.9	51	Your Hit Parade	WLW-T	18.5
2.	Dr. Christian (Mon. 7:00)	WKRC	Ziv	26.5	51	Mama	WLW-T	15.2
3.	Kingdom of the Sea (Wed. 7:00)	WLW-T	Guild	24.9	50	Pantomime-Parade	WCPO	13.2
4.	Sheriff of Cochise (Thurs. 7:00)	WKRC	NTA	22.9	42	26 Men	WLW-T	20.2
5.	Annie Oakley (Fri. 6:00)	WCPO	CBS	20.5	53	Gold Cup Mat	WLW-T	10.9
5.	Harbor Command (Sun. 10:30)	WLW-T	Ziv	20.5	39	What's My Line	WKRC	24.9
5.	State Trooper (Wed 9:00)	WKRC	MCA	20.5	30	Ozzie and Harriet	WCPO	28.9
6.	Twenty Six Men (Thurs. 7:00)	WLW-T	ABC	20.2	37	Sheriff of Cochise	WKRC	22.9
7.	Last of the Mohicans (Wed. 10:00)	WCPO	TPA	19.2	31	This Is Your Life	WLW-T	25.2
8.	Death Valley Days (Fri. 7:00)	WKRC	U.S. Borax	18.9	40	Outdoor Guide	WLW-T	15.5
8.	Studio 57 (Wed. 10:30)	WLW-T	MCA	18.9	35	Circle Theatre	WKRC	19.9
9.	Code Three (Tues. 10:30)	WKRC	ABC	17.9	36	Playhouse 30	WLW-T	18.9
9.	Silent Service (Fri. 7:30)	WKRC	NBC	17.9	30	Rin Tin Tin	WCPO	24.9
10.	Cisco Kid (Sun. 6:00)	WCPO	Ziv	17.2	38	Gold Cup Mat	WLW-T	22.0
11.	Donovan, West. Marshal (Tues. 6:30)	WKRC	NBC	16.9	41	Pantomime-Parade	WCPO	12.5
12.	Sky King (Thurs. 6:00)	WCPO	Nabisco	16.5	49	Ladies-Theatre	WKRC	8.9
12.	Star and the Story (Thurs. 10:00)	WCPO	Official	16.5	27	Playhouse 90	WKRC	29.5
13.	Men of Annapolis (Sun. 6:30)	WCPO	Ziv	16.2	35	Gold Cup Mat	WLW-T	21.5
14.	Legionnaire (Wed. 6:00)	WCPO	TPA	15.9	47	Gold Cup Mat	WLW-T	10.9
14.	O. Henry Playhouse (Wed. 10:30)	WCPO	Gross-Krasne	15.9	29	Circle Theatre	WKRC	19.9

MILWAUKEE

Stations: WISN, WITI, WTMJ, WXIX. TV Homes: 287,000. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Perry Como (Sat. 7:00-8:00)	WTMJ	36.6
2.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	WXIX	32.9
3.	Bob Cummings (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WTMJ	30.5
3.	Loretta Young (Sun. 9:00-9:30)	WTMJ	30.5
3.	Wells Fargo (Mon. 7:30-8:00)	WTMJ	30.5
4.	Bob Hope (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WTMJ	30.4
5.	Shirley Temple (Wed. 6:30-7:30)	WTMJ	29.7
6.	Restless Gun (Mon. 7:00-7:30)	WTMJ	29.5
7.	Californians (Tues. 9:00-9:30)	WTMJ	29.2
8.	Lawrence Welk (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	WISN	28.5
8.	Wyatt Earp (Fri. 7:30-8:00)	WISN	28.5

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	WISN	19.4
2.	†Gretchen Colnik (T, Th. 4:00-4:15)	WISN	17.5
3.	*NBC News (M-F 6:15-6:30)	WTMJ	15.6
4.	†News, Wea. (M-F 6:00-6:15)	WTMJ	15.2
5.	*Price Is Right (M-F 10:10:30 a.m.)	WTMJ	14.2
6.	†News (M-F 10:00-10:15)	WTMJ	14.0
7.	†News, Wea.-Sprts. (M-F 10:10:15)	WXIX	13.9
8.	†Uncle Hugo (M-F 4:00-5:00)	WISN	13.3
9.	*Queen for a Day (M-F 3:00-3:45)	WTMJ	13.0
10.	†Late Show (M-F 11:15-Signoff)	WXIX	12.1
10.	*Modern Romances (M-F 3:45-4:00)	WTMJ	12.1

1.	Whirlybirds (Sun. 9:30)	WTMJ	CBS	26.5	42	What's My Line	WXIX	26.9
2.	State Trooper (Tues. 9:30)	WTMJ	MCA	21.5	37	Waterfront	WXIX	20.2
3.	Boots and Saddles (Thurs. 8:00)	WTMJ	NBC	20.5	31	Climax	WXIX	20.9
4.	Annie Oakley (Sun. 6:00)	WTMJ	CBS	20.2	42	Lassie	WXIX	20.5
4.	Waterfront (Tues. 9:30)	WXIX	MCA	20.2	35	State Trooper	WXIX	21.5
5.	Doug. Fairbanks (Wed. 9:30)	WTMJ	ABC	19.9	34	Circle Theatre	WXIX	20.2
6.	Capt. David Grief (Fri. 7:30)	WTMJ	Guild	19.5	29	Zane Grey	WXIX	22.2
7.	Harbor Command (Thurs. 9:30)	WTMJ	Ziv	18.4	28	Playhouse 90	WXIX	23.5
8.	Dr. Christian (Sun. 10:00)	WTMJ	Ziv	18.2	36	Sun. News Spec.	WXIX	16.7
						Late Show	WXIX	14.3
9.	Frontier Doctor (Sat. 9:30)	WXIX	HTS	16.9	28	Sat. Night Theatre	WXIX	35.2
10.	Silent Service (Fri. 9:30)	WISN	NBC	16.5	28	Person to Person	WXIX	20.5
11.	Last of the Mohicans (Sat. 5:30)	WTMJ	TPA	14.2	33	20th Century	WXIX	11.5
12.	Studio 57 (Thurs. 9:00)	WISN	MCA	12.5	18	Playhouse 90	WXIX	24.9
13.	Three Musketeers (Sat., 5:00)	WITI	ABC	11.9	29	Meet the Press	WTMJ	12.2
14.	Sky King (Sat. 5:30)	WTMJ	Nabisco	11.2	27	Lone Ranger	WISN	11.7
14.	Victory at Sea (Sun. 5:30)	WITI	NBC	11.2	25	Last of the Mohicans	WTMJ	14.2
15.	Highway Patrol (Sun. 10:00)	WISN	Ziv	10.5	21	Dr. Christian	WTMJ	18.2
16.	Sheena, Queen of Jungle (Mon. 6:00)	WITI	ABC	10.2	24	News, Wea.	WTMJ	15.3
						NBC News	WTMJ	16.3
17.	Flash Gordon (Sun. 12:00)	WXIX	Guild	10.0	35	Bowling Champs	WTMJ	15.2
17.	Sea Hunt (Fri. 10:30)	WTMJ	Ziv	10.0	28	Late Show	WXIX	13.5

VARIETY-TELEPULSE CITY-BY-CITY PROGRAM CHART.

VARIETY's weekly chart is based on the 22 major markets regularly reported by Telepulse each month, in addition to 133 other Telepulse tabulated U.S markets, covered over the course of a year. Cities will be rotated weekly. The VARIETY chart is a compilation of data on syndicated films, as well as network and live programs, in each market. Under the top 10 multi-weekly heading, the (†) stands for local programming and the (*) for network shows.

BOSTON

Stations: WBZ, WHDH, WNAC: TV Homes: 873,200. Survey Dates: 4 Weeks Ending March 15.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WNAC	43.2
2.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	WNAC	42.6
3.	Perry Como (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	WBZ	40.2
4.	Climax (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	WNAC	37.9
5.	Groucho Marx (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	WBZ	36.4
6.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WNAC	35.7
7.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	WBZ	35.2
8.	Red Skelton (Tues. (9:30-10:00)	WNAC	33.7
9.	I've Got A Secret (Wed. 9:30-10:00)	WNAC	32.9
9.	Restless Gun (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	WBZ	32.9

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	†News, Wea. (M-F 6:45-7:00)	WBZ	17.5
2.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6:00)	WNAC	16.6
3.	†News, Wea. (M-F 7:00-7:15)	WNAC	16.4
4.	†News, Wea., Misc. (M-F 11:00-11:15)	WNAC	16.1
5.	†Patti Page, Misc. (M,W,F 7:15-7:30)	WNAC	15.9
6.	†Amos 'n' Andy (M-F 5:00-5:30)	WNAC	15.6
7.	†Boston Movie Time (M-F 4:45-6:45)	WBZ	15.3
8.	*Captain Kangaroo (M-F 8-8:45 a.m.)	WNAC	14.5
8.	*Guiding Light (M-F 12:45-1:00)	WNAC	14.5
9.	*Search Tomorrow (M-F 12:30-12:45)	WNAC	14.4

TOP TWENTY SYNDICATED SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRB.	AV. RTG.	AV. SH.
1.	Whirlybirds (Tues. 7:00)	WBZ	CBS	27.4	56
2.	Honeymooners (Sat. 10:30)	WNAC	CBS	25.8	50
3.	Gray Ghost (Wed. 7:00)	WBZ	CBS	24.9	54
4.	Code Three (Tues. 10:30)	WNAC	ABC	24.5	51
5.	Twenty Six Men (Sun. 7:00)	WBZ	ABC	23.9	43
6.	Harbor Command (Sun. 7:00)	WNAC	Ziv	23.5	42
7.	Frontier (Sun. 4:30)	WNAC	NBC	23.0	52
8.	Topper (Fri. 6:30)	WNAC	Tele Star	22.9	54
9.	Sheriff of Cochise (Sun. 6:30)	WNAC	NTA	22.5	44
9.	Silent Service (Fri. 7:00)	WBZ	NBC	22.5	49
10.	Highway Patrol (Sun. 7:00)	WBZ	Ziv	22.2	45
11.	Official Detective (Mon. 7:00)	WBZ	NTA	21.9	50
12.	Last of the Mohicans (Fri. 6:00)	WNAC	TPA	21.2	52
12.	State Trooper (Sun. 10:30)	WNAC	MCA	21.2	39
13.	Decoy (Sun. 10:30)	WNAC	Official	21.0	39
14.	Dr. Hudson's Secret Jour. (Fri. 10:30)	WNAC	MCA	20.5	37
15.	Count of Monte Cristo (Wed. 6:30)	WNAC	TPA	20.3	45
16.	Sky King (Wed. 6:00)	WNAC	Nabisco	20.2	47
17.	Annie Oakley (Thurs. 6:00)	WNAC	CBS	19.5	50
18.	Man Behind the Badge (Thurs. 6:30)	WNAC	MCA	18.9	48

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
News, Wea.	WNAC	13.7
Comedy Theatre	WNAC	13.0
Your Hit Parade	WBZ	17.5
News, Wea.	WNAC	15.7
Patti Page	WNAC	15.3
Studio 57	WBZ	15.0
Harbor Command	WNAC	23.5
26 Men	WBZ	23.9
Omnibus	WBZ	14.5
Boston Movietime	WBZ	16.3
News, Wea.	WBZ	17.3
Movie	WBZ	19.2
News, Wea.	WNAC	18.7
Patti Page	WNAC	17.7
Lassie	WNAC	23.9
News, Wea.	WNAC	16.0
Story, Patti Page	WNAC	14.7
Boston Movietime	WBZ	16.5
Decoy	WBZ	21.0
State Trooper	WNAC	21.2
Boxing	WBZ	21.7
Sports	WBZ	20.3
Boston Movietime	WBZ	18.3
News, Wea.	WBZ	19.3
Boston Movietime	WBZ	18.4
Boston Movietime	WBZ	16.5
Boston Movietime	WBZ	16.0
News, Wea.	WBZ	16.7

SEATTLE

Stations: KING, KIRO, KOMO, KTNT, KTVW. TV Homes: 234,500. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Sugarfoot (Tues. 7:30-8:30)	KING	38.9
2.	Maverick (Sun. 7:30-8:30)	KING	38.1
3.	Wyatt Earp (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	KING	37.3
4.	Ozzie and Harriet (Wed. 9:30-10:00)	KING	31.8
5.	Bob Hope (Sun. 9:00-10:00)	KOMO	30.3
5.	Groucho Marx (Thurs. 8:00-8:30)	KOMO	30.3
6.	Perry Como (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	KOMO	30.0
7.	Colt 45 (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	KING	28.8
8.	Boxing (Wed. 7:00-7:45)	KING	28.7
9.	People Are Funny (Sat. 7:30-8:00)	KOMO	28.5

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†Early Edition (M-F 6:30-7:00)	KING	25.7
2.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	KING	20.5
3.	†World Today (M-F 10:30-10:45)	KING	18.6
4.	*Our Miss Brooks (M-Thurs. 6-6:30)	KOMO	18.5
5.	*American Bandstand (M-F 4-5:00)	KING	16.4
6.	†Stan Boreson (M-F 3:30-4:00)	KING	15.8
7.	†Cartoon Festival (M-F 8-8:30 a.m.)	KING	15.5
8.	*NBC News (M-F 6:45-7:00)	KOMO	15.1
9.	†Shell News (M-F 6:30-6:45)	KOMO	15.0
10.	†Wunda Wunda (M-F 8:30-9:00 a.m.)	KING	14.0

1.	Honeymooners (Sun. 6:30)	KING	CBS	30.8	58	Mama	KTNT	8.3
2.	Sea Hunt (Sun. 7:00)	KING	Ziv	29.8	48	Lassie	KIRO	13.8
3.	Gray Ghost (Sun. 6:00)	KING	CBS	27.3	62	Meet the Press	KOMO	9.3
4.	Sheriff of Cochise (Sat. 7:00)	KING	NTA	27.3	45	Perry Mason	KIRO	17.3
5.	Highway Patrol (Thurs. 7:00)	KOMO	Ziv	27.0	41	Thriftway Crva	KING	21.8
6.	I Search for Adventure (Mon. 7)	KING	Bagnall	26.3	37	26 Men	KOMO	17.8
7.	Last of the Mohicans (Mon. 6:00)	KING	TPA	24.0	45	Our Miss Brooks	KOMO	18.3
8.	Death Valley Days (Thurs. 9:00)	KOMO	U. S. Borax	23.8	33	Pat Boone	KING	25.0
9.	Studio 57 (Fri. 7:00)	KING	MCA	23.3	36	Boxing	KOMO	23.8
10.	Silent Service (Mon. 7:30)	KING	NBC	22.3	32	Price Is Right	KOMO	26.0
11.	Annie Oakley (Thurs. 6:00)	KING	CBS	21.8	44	Our Miss Brooks	KOMO	16.5
12.	Sky King (Thurs. 6:00)	KING	Nabisco	19.3	37	Our Miss Brooks	KOMO	20.3
13.	Kit Carson (Wed. 6:00)	KING	MCA	18.3	37	Our Miss Brooks	KOMO	19.0
14.	Twenty Six Men (Mon. 7:00)	KOMO	ABC	17.8	25	Search for Adventure	KING	26.3
15.	Decoy (Sat. 8:30)	KING	Official	16.3	22	Perry Como	KOMO	29.8
16.	Big Story (Sat. 9:30)	KIRO	Official	15.8	24	Lawrence Welk	KING	29.8
17.	Little Rascals (M-F 3:30)	KING	Interstate	15.8	52	Dotto	KIRO	6.2
18.	Cowboy G Men (Sat. 5:00)	KING	Flamingo	14.3	40	Wild Bill Hickok	KIRO	9.8
19.	Kingdom of the Sea (Tues. 7:00)	KOMO	Guild	14.3	23	Mr. Adams & Eve	KIRO	14.3
20.	Frontier Doctor (Mon. 7:00)	KTNT	HTS	13.3	19	Search for Adventure	KING	26.3

NEW ORLEANS

Stations: WDSU, WJMR, WWL. TV Homes: 213,900. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	WWL	42.2
2.	Shirley Temple (Wed. 6:30-7:30)	WDSU	41.6
3.	Bob Hope (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WDSU	41.0
4.	Perry Como (Sat. 7:00-8:00)	WDSU	40.3
5.	Loretta Young (Sun. 9:00-9:30)	WDSU	37.5
6.	Ernie Ford (Thurs. 8:30-9:00)	WDSU	36.2
6.	Father Knows Best (Wed. 7:30-8:00)	WDSU	36.2
6.	Twenty One (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	WDSU	36.2
7.	Groucho Marx (Thurs. 7:00-7:30)	WDSU	35.9
8.	Thin Man (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	WDSU	35.7

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	*NBC News (M-F 6:15-6:30)	WDSU	32.2
2.	†Esso, World-Sports (M-F 6:00-6.15)	WDSU	31.7
3.	†Little Rascals (M-F 5:00-5:45)	WDSU	19.9
4.	†Wea., Esso Rptr. (M-F 5:45-6:00)	WDSU	18.4
5.	†My Little Margie (M-F 4:30-5:00)	WDSU	18.2
6.	*Price Is Right (M-F 10-10:30 a.m.)	WDSU	17.4
7.	*Queen For A Day (M-F 3:00-3:45)	WDSU	16.9
8.	†Esso, Sports & Wea. (M-F 11-11:15)	WDSU	16.1
8.	*Truth or Conse. (M-F 10:30-11 a.m.)	WDSU	16.1
9.	*Matinee Theatre (M-F 2:00-3:00)	WDSU	15.7
9.	*Treasure Hunt (M-F 9:30-10 a.m.)	WDSU	15.7

1.	Death Valley Days (Sat. 10:00)	WDSU	U. S. Borax	29.9	59	African Patrol	WWL	15.7
2.	Honeymooners (Wed. 9:30)	WDSU	CBS	29.5	43	Circle Theatre	WWL	22.9
3.	Sky King (Sat. 11:00 a.m.)	WDSU	Nabisco	28.9	82	Young-Concert	WWL	6.5
4.	Crusader (Tues. 9:30)	WDSU	MCA	27.9	43	Frontier Doctor	WWL	26.7
4.	Highway Patrol (Fri. 10:00)	WDSU	Ziv	27.9	50	Captain David Grief	WWL	20.5
5.	Boots and Saddles (Fri. 7:00)	WWL	NBC	26.9	41	Court of Last Resort	WDSU	30.5
6.	Frontier Doctor (Tues. 9:30)	WWL	HTS	26.7	41	Crusader	WDSU	27.9
7.	State Trooper (Tues. 10:00)	WDSU	MCA	26.2	49	Trackdown	WWL	21.7
8.	Studio 57 (Tues. 10:30)	WDSU	MCA	25.0	57	News	WWL	13.7
						Wea., Sports	WWL	13.0
9.	Charlie Chan (Sat. 9:30)	WWL	TPA	24.9	41	Your Hit Parade	WDSU	29.2
9.	Looney Tunes (Sat. 9:00 a.m.)	WDSU	Guild	24.9	71	Captain Kangaroo	WWL	10.2
10.	26 Men (Fri. 10:30)	WDSU	ABC	24.5	51	News	WWL	17.7
						Wea., Sports	WWL	17.0
10.	Whirlybirds (Mon. 10:00)	WDSU	CBS	24.5	48	Waterfront	WWL	20.2
11.	Men of Annapolis (Thurs. 9:30)	WDSU	Ziv	24.4	39	Playhouse 90	WWL	33.2
12.	Tracer (Sun. 10:00)	WDSU	Minot	23.5	49	Play of the Week	WWL	17.9
13.	Gray Ghost (Thurs. 10:00)	WWL	CBS	23.2	50	Decoy	WDSU	18.7
14.	Annie Oakley (Sat. 5:30)	WDSU	CBS	22.9	49	2 Gun Playhouse	WWL	19.2
15.	Dr. Christian (Wed. 10:00)	WDSU	Ziv	22.5	49	Official Detective	WWL	16.7
16.	Harbor Command (Sun. 6:00)	WDSU	Ziv	21.5	44	Lassie	WWL	23.9
17.	Cisco Kid (Sat. 6:00)	WDSU	Ziv	21.2	44	Sgt. Preston	WWL	21.5

DAYTON

Stations: WHIO, WLW-D. TV Homes: 149,900. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WHIO	51.8
2.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	WHIO	45.3
3.	I've Got A Secret (Wed. 9:30-10)	WHIO	44.8
3.	What's My Line (Sun. 10:30-11)	WHIO	44.8
4.	Climax (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	WHIO	43.5
5.	Lineup (Fri. 10:00-10:30)	WHIO	42.0
6.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sun. 9:30-10)	WHIO	41.8
7.	Playhouse of Stars (Fri. 9:30-10)	WHIO	41.3
8.	Bob Hope (Sun. 9:00-10:00)	WLW-D	41.0
9.	Millionaire (Wed. 9:00-9:30)	WHIO	40.3
9.	Phil Silvers (Fri. 9:00-9:30)	WHIO	40.3

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†Little Rascals (M,T,Th 6:00-6:30)	WHIO	29.1
2.	†Front Page, News (M-F (11-11:15)	WHIO	28.4
3.	†Sohio Rptr, Sports (M-F 6:30-6:45)	WHIO	27.5
4.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6:00)	WLW-D	22.9
5.	*NBC News (M-F 6:45-7:00)	WLW-D	19.6
6.	†50-50 Club (M-F 12:00-1:30)	WLW-D	17.7
7.	†News, Wea., Spts (M-F 6:30-6:45)	WLW-D	17.3
8.	*Art Linkletter (M-F 2:30-3:00)	WHIO	16.5
9.	†Dayton Final (M-F 11:00-11:15)	WLW-D	15.3
9.	†Eve. The., Misc. (M-F 11:15-Signoff)	WHIO	15.3

1.	Dr. Hudson (Fri. 7:00)	WHIO	MCA	33.8	64	Outdoor Guide	WLW-D	19.3
2.	Highway Patrol (Tues. 9:00)	WHIO	Ziv	31.8	50	Adventures of McGraw	WLW-D	31.8
3.	Whirlybirds (Wed. 7:30)	WHIO	CBS	31.3	48	Disneyland	WLW-D	33.3
4.	Badge 714 (Sat. 10:30)	WHIO	NBC	30.8	59	Your Hit Parade	WLW-D	21.8
5.	City Detective (Fri. 10:30)	WHIO	MCA	29.8	59	Boxing	WLW-D	20 8
5.	State Trooper (Tues. 7:00)	WHIO	MCA	29.8	52	Twenty Six Men	WLW-D	27.3
6.	Captain David Grief (Thurs. 7:00)	WLW-D	Guild	29.3	52	Charlie Chan	WHIO	26 8
7.	Little Rascals (M,T,Thurs. 6:00)	WHIO	Interstate	29.1	66	Annie Oakley	WLW-D	21.3
8.	Silent Service (Sat. 7:00)	WHIO	NBC	28.3	57	Midwest Hayride	WLW-D	21.3
9.	Twenty Six Men (Tues. 7:00)	WLW-D	ABC	27.3	48	State Trooper	WHIO	29.8
10.	Charlie Chan (Thurs. 7:00)	WHIO	TPA	26.8	48	Captain David Grief	WLW-D	29.3
11.	Death Valley Days (Mon. 7:00)	WLW-D	U. S. Borax	25.3	52	Gray Ghost	WHIO	23.3
12.	Harbor Command (Tues. 10:30)	WLW-D	Ziv	23.8	45	Thin Man	WHIO	28.8
12.	Sea Hunt (Wed. 10:30)	WLW-D	Ziv	23.8	44	Circle Theatre	WHIO	30 8
13.	Gray Ghost (Mon. 7:00)	WHIO	CBS	23.3	48	Death Valley Days	WLW-D	25.3
14.	Annie Oakley (Tues. 6:00)	WLW-D	CBS	21.3	44	Little Rascals	WHIO	26.8
14.	Stories of the Century (Tues. 7:30)	WHIO	Hollywood	21.3	35	Sugarfoot	WLW-D	39.8
15.	Kingdom of the Sea (Fri. 6:00)	WHIO	Guild	20.3	45	Price Is Right	WLW-D	24.8
15.	Sky King (Wed. 7:00)	WLW-D	Nabisco	20.3	37	Ozzie & Harriet	WHIO	34.3
16.	Championship Bowling (Sun. 2:00)	WHIO	W. Schwimmer	20.0	53	Gold Cup Theatre	WLW-D	17.5

BEST TELEPLAY WRITING, HOUR OR MORE:
Rod Serling for The Comedian
Playhouse 90

BEST DRAMATIC SERIES WITH CONTINUING CHARACTERS:
Gunsmoke

BEST LIVE CAMERA WORK, THE ENTIRE SERIES:
Playhouse 90

BEST CINEMATOGRAPHY FOR TELEVISION:
Harold E. Wellman, Hemo the Magnificent
Bell Telephone Science Series

BEST NEW PROGRAM SERIES OF YEAR:
Seven Lively Arts

FIRST "SPECIAL TRUSTEE" AWARD:
Jack Benny
on The Jack Benny Show

BEST TELEPLAY WRITING, HALF-HOUR OR LESS:
Paul Monash for The Lonely Wizard
Schlitz Playhouse of Stars

BEST COVERAGE OF UNSCHEDULED NEWSWORTHY EVENT: Feb. 3, Rikers Island (N.Y.) plane crash on World News Roundup

BEST DIRECTION, HALF-HOUR OR LESS:
Robert Stevens, The Glass Eye
Alfred Hitchcock Presents

BEST COMEDY SERIES:
The Phil Silvers Show

BEST EDITING OF A FILM FOR TELEVISION:
Mike Pozen for How To Kill a Woman
Gunsmoke

BEST SINGLE PERFORMANCE BY ACTRESS:
Polly Bergen on Helen Morgan Story
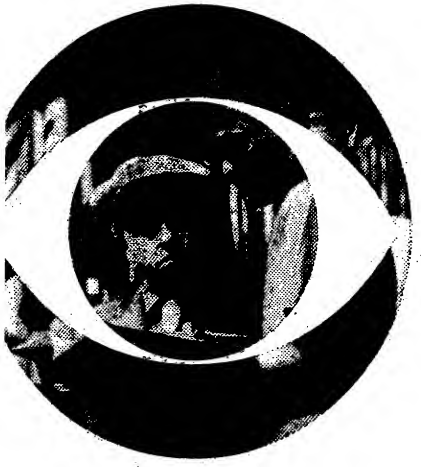
Playhouse 90



BEST SINGLE PROGRAM OF YEAR:
The Comedian
on Playhouse 90

BEST CONTINUING PERFORMANCE, MALE, PERSON WHO PLAYS HIMSELF: Jack Benny on The Jack Benny Show

BEST COMEDY WRITING:
Nat Hiken, Billy Friedberg, Phil Sharp, Terry Ryan, Coleman Jacoby, Arnold Rosen, Sidney Zelinka, A. J. Russell and Tony Webster
The Phil Silvers Show

BEST NEWS COMMENTARY:
Edward R. Murrow
for See It Now

BEST DRAMATIC ANTHOLOGY SERIES:
Playhouse 90

Thanks

—for giving your best!

Last week the talented and creative people who are attracting to television the largest audiences in the history of show business honored the outstanding achievements of a number of their colleagues. That so many were able to do their best work on helps explain why this network was able to win the largest average nighttime audiences in each of the 66 consecutive Nielsen Reports since July 1955.

THE CBS TELEVISION NETWORK

IBEW Post-Strike Strife

Continued from page 25

CBS offer (which was rejected) but calls for a $5 weekly escalator next year, was unfavorable because it's a three-year contract, compared with the original's two-year term. Under a two-year deal, the members feel, the union could have gotten a fat increase and better working conditions in January of 1960, whereas the $5 raise they receive in mid-'59 under the new pact must carry over until January of 1961.

4. Since their return to work, CBS has cracked down with tighter enforcement of working procedures, e.g., technicians must complete their working day with time in the maintenance shop after cleaning up their show, whereas they used to leave after having finished in the studio.

First impact of the rank-an-file bitterness probably won't be felt in any tangible way for a couple of weeks, until the next general membership meeting of the local. At that time, however, it's expected to come out in full force.

In the vote which ended the strike at 12:01 a.m. Saturday (19) morning at CBS, the Gotham local failed to accept the latest offers by a vote of 357 against to 302 for. But Hollywood agreed to the contract 241 members to 42. Also, Chicago voted 83 for and 23 against. Other IBEW locals working at CBS shops are located in St. Louis, Milwaukee, Hartford, Boston and Frisco. The outcome of their voting will be given from Washington, but it's understood they each accepted CBS's offer.

Union got a 6% immediate pay rise and another 3% after 18 months, but Local 1212 was militant about the receipt of certain "job security" advantages, among them the retention of several technicians in the employ of CBS Laboratories in New York and a clarification of mealtime hours, which would have resulted at the network in a lowering of the number of working hours.

As it is, 1212 will lose 37 men, by its own count, on Sept. 1 of this year, when the CBS lab setup moves to Stamford, Conn. Attitude is that even if the 37 men decide to move with the company to Stamford, they will be working not for the original technical union but for a "manufacturing union," which allegedly receives a "lower wage rate" and "poorer working conditions."

Retroactive Pay Hike

In return, however, CBS reportedly promised in contract language to maintain the remaining IBEW strength in New York for at least two years and possibly for three, which is the duration of the new contract. Pact is retroactive on all pay increases (save for the 12-day strike time) to Feb. 1 and will continue until Jan. 31, 1961.

Wages for all IBEW rank-and-filers at CBS, some 1,300 of them, go up 6% under the contract. The great majority of men are classified as technicians and their wages jump immediately from a top minimum of $175 to $185.50 a week. Then, on Aug. 1, 1959, 18 months from the start of the new contract, all technical wages go up another 3%, to a base of $190.

Other pay increases fall into the following categories: Technical directors, who go from the current $197.50 to $209.50 weekly; assistant supervisors from $190 to $201.50, and supervisors from $200 to $212 a week. Each of the three groups go up another $4.50 a week after 18 months. There are 40 to 50 men in these classifications in New York.

"The clause concerning meal periods is still the vague thing its always been," a member of 1212 said the other day. Union wanted a clear-cut hour off for eating, but it stays as it was, it's reported, with "45 minutes the norm and periodically some crew getting shortchanged." Contract calls for an eight-hour day including eating time.

Lew Parker, Betty Kean Forego Summer Dates For Iffy 'Bickersons'

Pittsburgh, April 22.

Possibility of Phil Rapp's new "Bickersons" tv series being sold cost Lew Parker and his wife, Betty Kean, two top al fresco dates this summer here and in St. Louis. Civic Light Opera Association in Pittsburgh and St. Louis Muny wanted both of them to co-star in "On the Town" but Parker and Miss Kean agreed to accept only if they could have a six-week cancellation clause.

Couple wanted protection in case "Bickersons," for which they made a pilot film in Hollywood only a few days ago, made a quick sale, in which case they'd have to be available for filming in a couple of months.

Neither William Wymetal, managing director of the CLOA, nor Harold Kennedy, of the Muny, was willing to go along with that kind of a deal and negotiations with the Parkers were dropped. Wymetal immediately signed Helen Gallagher and Tim Herbert for the parts.

Tex & Jinx

Continued from page 21

which was originally written as a five-year contract overall, with two years firm and yearly options thereafter. Web picked up two options, closing out the five-year term, but would have to write a new pact to continue the relationship.

Thus far it's made no effort to do so. Understood it feels that the $200,000 a year doesn't leave much margin for profit, even when the McCrarys are SRO in their radio and tv stanzas. They are on television in the daytime for an hour a day, cross-the-board, and on radio five nights a week, for two hours a night. Both shows originate from the Waldorf-Astoria.

McCrary, it's reported, has already begun talks with other New York stations about a possible deal.

NBC's Fall Sked

Continued from page 21

for the food company (see separate story); Tuesday at 9, where a quizzer will replace "McGraw."

Still not firmed up is the Eddie Fisher show, which has been renewed by Liggett & Myers but for which time & format haven't been set. If Fisher continues as an alternate-week hour (in preference to a weekly half-hour), he'll alternate either with George Gobel or a new Jimmy Durante show. Monday at 10 is the best guess on this.

Night-By-Night Sked

This is the way the NBC schedule shapes up:

Sunday: "Northwest Passage" at 7:30; Steve Allen at 8; Dinah Shore "Chevy Show" at 9; Loretta Young at 10.

Monday: "Dragnet" at 7:30; "Restless Gun" at 8; "Wells Fargo" at 8:30; "Twenty-One" at 9; "Alcoa-Goodyear Theatre" still a mebbe at 9:30; 10-11 still open.

Tuesday: "Cimarron City" at 7:30; "Bat Masterson" at 8:30; quiz show at 9; "Bob Cummings Show" at 9:30; "The Californians" at 10.

Wednesday: "Wagon Train" at 7:30; "Price Is Right" at 8:30; Milton Berle at 9; new Kraft show at 9:30; "This Is Your Life" at 10.

Thursday: Probably "Tic Tac Dough" at 7:30; 8 o'clock open; probably "Brain or Brawn" at 8:30; probably "People's Choice" at 9; Tennessee Ernie Ford at 9:30; Groucho Marx at 10; 10:30 still open.

Friday: 7:30 still open; probably "Jefferson Drum" at 8; "Ruditsky" at 8:30; "M-Squad" at 9; probably "The Thin Man" at 9:30; Gillette fights at 10.

Saturday: "People Are Funny" at 7:30; Perry Como at 8; "Steve Canyon" at 9; "The Man from Tallahassee" at 9:30 to 10:30; probably "Hit Parade" at 10:30.

Fort Worth—Warren Hull, m.c. of "Strike It Rich" will take over as master of ceremonies for the 17 and a half hour telethon planned for Saturday (26) here on KFJZ-TV. Telethon proceeds will go to Cerebral Palsy.

IBEW Wins Tape Jurisdiction At Gould Indie Shop

Although IATSE is expected to grab jurisdiction over videotape production in most independent commercial and program production companies, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers appears to have beaten it to the punch at the first indie to put tape into use.

That indie is George Gould's Telestudios Inc. in New York, which plans to go into tape production immediately. Telestudios, which currently produces commercials but primarily devotes itself to closed circuit auditions, operates a live camera setup which is manned by Local 1212, IBEW personnel. There's little doubt that the IBEW crews will continue to have jurisdiction over Gould's tape activities.

While this situation will pertain at Telestudios, it's extremely doubtful that it will happen elsewhere, since most indie producers currently use IATSE film crews. IBEW would like to take over jurisdiction of these plants—in fact, one of the key issues in the IBEW strike of CBS was its demand that the web guarantee IBEW jurisdiction over all outside-produced tape programs, a jurisdiction which CBS maintained it had no power to grant. IA has stated it intends to retain jurisdiction wherever it currently has it.

Ironically, it was Telestudios which trained the 280-odd CBS executives who manned the cameras at CBS during the strike. Training took place under IBEW teachers at Telestudios; the union raised no objections at the time because it figured if CBS couldn't hold the training program at Telestudios, it would go elsewhere anyway, and the Telestudio union personnel would lose that much business.

Congratulations

PETER USTINOV

On the Emmy Award for

THE BEST SINGLE PERFORMANCE BY AN ACTOR

ASHLEY-STEINER INC.

NEW YORK - BEVERLY HILLS

My Sincere Thanks To
The Academy
Of Television Arts and Sciences

PETER USTINOV

Best Single Performance—Actor

"The Life of Samuel Johnson"

OMNIBUS

Barrow's 'Never Never Land'

Washington, April 22.

Failure of the Barrow report to go into programming was "a fatal omission" which prevented consideration of the effect of the recommendations upon quality of programs available to the public, Federal Communications Commission was told last week by Jack Harris of KPRC-TV in Houston. Harris testified before the Network Study hearings as chairman of a special committee of NBC affiliates.

Also testifying for the affiliates were Lawrence H. Rogers of WSAZ-TV in Huntington, W. Va.; Harold Essex of WSJS-TV in Winston-Salem, N. C.; William C. Grove of KFBC-TV in Cheyenne, Wyo.; Edward C. Lambert of KOMU-TV in Columbia, Mo.; and Bernard C. Barth of WNDU-TV in South Bend, Ind.

Harris said that if the Network Study Staff had determined that dropping of option time would reduce availability of high quality programs from networks, it would have "thought twice" before making the recommendation. "Then how," he asked "can a speculation be indulged in that the elimination of option time will encourage the development of more syndicated programs without knowing whether there is not already more than enough Class A time available for such programs and insufficient programs of adequate quality for that time?"

For the Barrow Report to make its proposals without knowing what programs might be available to replace affected network shows, said Harris, "appears to us like diving into a swimming pool without knowing how deep it is."

Testifying on the Report generally, Harris urged "special caution" on the part of the Commission in making changes in the tv industry. "Any changes you make," he said, "will be largely in the dark as far as programming is concerned."

He also urged the agency to carefully scrutinize the "theories" on which the Report based many of its proposals. "This care," he said, "should be exercised not so much because the theories are bad as because merely to state them is not to solve the Commission's regulatory problems."

Harris testified that many of the recommendations, including option time, which are made to increase competition "would instead have anti-competitive effects." He contended that certain of the multiple ownership proposals designed to diversify station ownership "would so restrict entry to tv ownership as to decrease diversification." He further declared that proposals to give sponsors discretion to place programs on other stations when the affiliate has not cleared would "seriously reduce licensee freedom to exercise responsibility."

Addressing himself to option time, Harris took issue with the Report's expectation that its abolition would increase opportunities for syndicated program producers to compete with networks.

"It is the experience of the NBC affiliates," he said, "that there is ample time available, including Class A time, for syndicated programs of a quality equivalent to that of network programs carried in that time.

"The trouble is that there is a shortage of such programs now, and the elimination of option time would not increase the number of high quality programs but rather would merely tend to create a vacuum into which lower quality syndicated programming would fall.

"The Staff seeks a never-never land in which non-network program suppliers would mysteriously blossom because abolition of option time would give them new opportunities but, the networks, whose programs had been displaced to provide these opportunities, would not suffer. We feel that no such fine balance is either possible or necessary, and the many advantages redounding to the public from the present high quality and considerable quantity of network programs should not be jeopardized in this vain pursuit."

Dean Martin Unhappy With Present Pattern

Hollywood, April 22.

Dean Martin, who starred in two hour-long specs and four half-hour shows (Club Oasis) on NBC-TV this season, will tell the network he wants a different pattern for next semester, when he begins talks with NBC in a couple of weeks.

Martin disclosed he wants to star in four hour-long specs, but wants no half-hour shows next season, explaining anent the half-hours, "you just get started and it's over." Singer-actor has a five-year ticket with the web.

Dick Moore

Continued from page 25

less the networks are to be treated as common carriers and is "unsupportable" even if it were "relevant."

Option time, Moore asserted, is not necessary to support commitments for high quality programs. The Academy Award to "The Bridge on the River Kwai," Columbia's fourth winner since block booking was ruled unlawful in 1948, he said, is a case in point. Yet, he recalled, Columbia argued in the Paramount case that it needed block booking "to have some assurance of a market in order to hazard its capital in producing many pictures at a substantial cost."

Moore contended that tv "will reach its ultimate promise only when program clearance is based on merit. A program which does not deserve clearance on the merits should not be assured of clearance in advance. A good program can win clearance on the merits without needing advance assurances. Without option time networks can and will seek to develop high quality programs."

This is "conclusively" demonstrated, he said, by the networks themselves. Two important CBS programs, "Studio One" and "Playhouse 90," he noted, were planned, sold and cleared without options. And each of these shows, he declared, has probably involved as great or greater risks than any contemporary network program at any hour.

As to the "erosion" argument, Moore testified that this is contrary to the experience of the industry and to the American competitive system. Pointing to CBS testimony that stations would replace network programs in order to obtain higher returns from other shows, Moore contended that this amounts to CBS wanting "a shield" against program competition.

"The desire of the businessman for just such a shield," he said, "is what the antitrust laws are all about. The right of the American people to the best program service that a fully competitive tv system can develop is what the Communications Act is all about."

But even if the "erosion" argument could be accepted in principle, he asserted, it is "utterly insupportable" in fact. Every single CBS program now carried during Class A time and outside of option time, he said, has a successful clearance record.

Turning to must-buy, Moore testified that not only is it illegal but it is not necessary to the network and "its prohibition will stimulate competition and improve the opportunity for all elements of the industry and all American advertisers to the inevitable benefit of the public.

Barrow

Continued from page 25

see how the networks could survive without option time.

"Nationwide tv networks exist because no advertiser, no advertising agency, no spot representative, no one except the networks, can arrange effectively for the daily transmission of a comprehensive pattern of programs to a large number of stations throughout the U. S. We do not see how the advertiser can be persuaded to make the tremendous commitments necessary to finance network programming, especially the very high cost of nighttime programming, unless, through the option time provision, the networks are able to give them reasonable assurance that programs of good quality will be cleared in virtually all of the key tv markets. Without option time the strong network schedule would fall apart, the A. T. & T. interconnection facilities would go to other users and network operations, as we know them, would grind to a halt."

While conceding that "concrete proof" is impossible in dealing with "something that does not exist," Hayes emphasized that the opinions of the affiliates, a cross section of which he spoke for, have value since they "have lived and breathed this business and stand to loss the most if networking is weakened and made ineffective."

A United Stand

"Who in the industry disagrees with our opinion?" he asked. "Perhaps there may be a handful of unaffiliated stations which believe they might benefit financially from the elimination or modification of option time but the list of appearances in this proceeding shows that only one of these stations (KTTV, Los Angeles) is sufficiently interested to appear here. There may be some spot representatives who have watched their revenues skyrocket from the sale of adjacencies to popular network programs, but who are apparently willing to kill the goose that lays their golden egg because of a mistaken notion of what constitutes their own private interest. Certainly they do not speak for the stations whose agents they are."

The question, he said, is ultimately one of judgment. "There is a great deal at stake here—the future of the tv broadcasting industry." The collective judgment of tv affiliates who deal with the tv public from day to day and who believe option time essential to "quality television," he urged, should be regarded seriously.

Hayes said that broadcasters are becoming increasingly concerned and "bewildered" by attacks on tv broadcasting. Contentions that the networks are "overbearing" in relationships with affiliates are not true. The affiliates, he said, regard their relationships with networks as "a working partnership."

Congratulations

ROD SERLING

—Emmy Award Winner for the THIRD SUCCESSIVE YEAR:

"THE COMEDIAN" Playhouse 90
—Best Teleplay--one hour or more.
—Best Single program of the year.

ASHLEY-STEINER INC.
NEW YORK - BEVERLY HILLS

ASHLEY-STEINER INC.

welcomes with great pride into its organization

THE MILTON GOLDMAN AGENCY

its staff and its many distinguished clients in the Theatre, TV and Motion Pictures.

NEW YORK
579 Fifth Avenue

BEVERLY HILLS
449 South Beverly Drive

. . . And Then There Were None

Continued from page 21

already been renewed for a full year.)

But the Kraft people, from all accounts, were even more pleased with the manner in which Berle "stole the show" on the Emmy Awards telecast last week. As an "audition" for his potential sponsor, Berle practically wrapped it up, but Kraft and JWT want to "wait and see" what kind of legerdemain Susskind can inject into the drama showcase over the next couple of weeks before definitely committing itself.

Decision on both the Chrysler-sponsored "Climax" and the Westinghouse-sponsored "Studio One" is expected any day now, with all signs pointing to the dropping of both. Since its shift to the Coast, "Studio One" has been a major disappointment and CBS, anticipating the client axe and shift into other programming areas (in fact the network would welcome such a step) is already prepping a couple of alternative programs for the Monday night 10 to 11 slot.

Fadeout of "Kraft Theatre," "Climax" and "Studio One" (NBC-TV's cross-the-board "Matinee" dramatics is also getting bumped) would leave CBS flaunting the live drama banner with the hour and a half "Playhouse 90" and the alternating Wednesday night "U. S. Steel Hour" and "Armstrong Circle Theatre," but no single weekly sponsor would be left to call an hour of drama his own.

At a time when network tv is going "game happy," the decline and fall of the live drama showcase is one of the more significant and deplorable casualties within the medium. It would seem to reflect an indifference toward one of the more potent and creative aspects of television and an acceptance of the easy way out. (Which in turn accounts for the fact that the majority of the writers, directors and producers worth their salt have deserted tv for the more culturally-rewarding legit-pix pastures.)

While the drama demise takes precedence over all other activity in prepping for the '58-'59 season, several other "trends" appear to be shaping up, on the basis of current client-agency-network negotiations. For example:

1) As was anticipated, no sponsor is interested in committing himself beyond a firm 13-week or at the most 26-week deal. The day of the full year or even 39-week firm contract is over, regardless of whether it's a film or a live entry. Few if any are the sponsors who will risk any program extension into 1959 since they're all up a tree as to what the economy will invite beyond December.

2) Anticipated pacting of Berle by Kraft is seen as inviting a "return of the comics" into the tv arena. Along with Berle, Jackie Gleason is eyeing the '58-'59 video horizons and even if his projected series of six full hour musicals fails to materialize, he has no intention of making himself scarce. Red Buttons, his status considerably upgraded by virtue of his recent Oscar award, plans to "pick his spots" in circuiting the spectrum at proper intervals. Fact that the comics, notably Berle, Phil Silvers and Danny Thomas, ran off with last week's Emmy show honors, is indicative of a let's-yock-it-up-again temper on the part of the American tv audience.

3) Return of the automotive companies to tv in full force next season is regarded as virtually assured. Ford last week firmed up its plans, including a buy of 26 hours of "Wagon Train" at a cost of $4,000,000, plus a renewal of Tennessee Ernie Ford for next season (at an additional $2,500,000).

It's axiomatic in tv that "as Ford goes, so goes Detroit."

Houston—Frank Stewart, a veteran of more than 25 years on the Texas radio scene, has joined the staff of KTRH here as assistant station manager.

Pharma-Craft's 400G For Paar Show, 'Today'

Chicago, April 22.

NBC-TV picked up over $400,000 from Pharma-Craft's buy of nearly 60 participations for Fresh deodorant divided between "Jack Paar Show" and "Today."

Latter gets 12 of the blurbs and the Paar show the rest in a scattered schedule between now and Oct. 1.

Femme B'casters

Continued from page 20

relations, KWTV, Oklahoma City; Louise Morris, sales manager, WGBA, Columbus, Georgia, and Evelyn Vanderploeg, director, time buying, Arthur Meyerhoff, Chicago. Edythe Meserand, past prexy of AWRT, will moderate this general session.

Five simultaneous sessions will be conducted on April 26. "Resourcefulness in Radio Broadcasting" will be discussed by Helen Hall, NBC Monitor's roving reporter; Marjorie Riordan, speech coach; Psyche Pate, owner-operator, KPRS, Kansas City; Henry Untermeyer, gen. mgr., KCBS, San Francisco.

"Showmanship in Telecasting" will be examined by Ruth Geri Hagy, ABC-TV, Washington; Lee Hogan Cass, fashion director, Bullock's, Los Angeles; Robert Adams, ABC-TV, Hollywood; Norman Hagen, coordinator of information, U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington; Mercedes Bates, advertising food consultant, Hollywood.

"Showmanship in Salesmanship" will be discussed by Edith Ford, account executive, WLW, Atlanta; Charles J. Helfrich, media director, Donahue & Coe, Los Angeles; Saidie Adwon, account executive, KTUL-TV, Tulsa; Mrs. A. Scott Bullitt, prexy, KING, Seattle.

"Resourcefulness in Promotion Stations and Programs" will be tackled by Helen Murray Hall, Western Manager, Advertising and Promotion, NBC, Los Angeles; Florence Lowe, Washington correspondent, VARIETY; Dan Jenkins, West Coast editor, TV Guide; Charles Russell, director, Radio-TV, BBD&O, San Francisco.

Robert J. Burton, veepee of BMI will speak at a general session as will Donald McGannon, prexy of Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. A meeting on "Showmanship in Interviewing" will bring together Wanda Ramey, CBS, San Francisco; Alice Friberg, WCYB-TV, Bristol, Va.; Elbert Walker, director, "Queen for a Day," NBC, Hollywood; Grant Holcomb, news reporter, KNXT-CBS, Hollywood.

The topic "Resourcefulness in Promoting Products and Services" will be examined by Marjorie Dean, General Foods, White Plains, N. Y.; Rubye Graham, Communications Counselers, N. Y.; Ruth M. Glass, National Livestock and Meat Board, Chicago; Dene Ratermann, National 4-H Club, Chicago; Norma Young, KHJ, Hollywood; Margaret McDonald, WBAP-TV, Fort Worth and Dean Dickens, WAGA-TV Atlanta.

"New Resources for Educational Radio and TV" will be discussed by Gladys M. Lathan, Sacramento Unified School Dist., Sacramento; Stanley Donner, director of radio-tv, Stanford U., Palo Alto; David Parker, educational director, KPIX, San Francisco, and Lillian Allen, educational director, McClatchy Broadcasting Co., Sacramento.

Art Ford

Continued from page 21

agreed on the record content of "Ballroom." The lawyer said the performer wanted to program his own music but the station disallowed it, and that Ford sought to incorporate some rock 'n' roll and "other music with a beat."

Ford, who came to the station 15 years ago and has spent approximately the past 15 months as maestro on "Ballroom," had left for Brussels without knowledge that he was going to get bounced. Station said it feared that the Brussels' remotes would suffer if he went there knowing he was through.

Ford was accompanied by program manager Hal Moore on the junket. Though the final decision to fire Ford and revamp the lineup was made without Moore's knowledge, management said that Moore will remain the station's "No. 3 man."

Collins, who was with WNEW until he switched to WRCA, left the NBC flag last Sept. 15 to become a jock for KALL, in Salt Lake. He returned to WNEW as the voice for the 10 to midnight cross-the-board slot held through Friday (18) by Williams.

Another new man was signed to WNEW disk jockey ranks by Buckley and Jaeger, Dick Partridge who spun platters for the two execs at their privately-owned radio station, WHIM, in Providence. Partridge got the 4 to 6 p.m. strip.

Ford's contract, the station said, still had another four years to run at the $65,000 "take away" figure, which constituted a combination of salary and average commercial fees. The WNEW spokesman said that only the station had the right to abrogate the Ford pact.

A year ago, Jerry Marshall, who held down the "Ballroom" slot prior to Ford, parted ways with WNEW. But the hassle that time was whether Marshall, who purportedly made some $85,000 yearly, should continue handling all commercials live, thereby earning greater fees. Station won its point and "Ballroom" began taking "canned" spots. Marshall shifted to WMGM, N. Y.

Ford's WABD Status

Status of Art Ford's "Greenwich Village Party" on WABD is up in the air. WABD, New York tv station, is owned by the same group, DuMont Broadcasting, which also owns WNEW, the radio station from which Ford was fired.

Ford is returning from Brussels for Friday's (25) half-hour telecast on WABD, but he does not have a written contract with DuMont and his tv show is presently unsponsored. WABD likes the quality of the show, but Ford's position there has been colored by two things; the possibility of signing with either WNTA or WRCA, competitive radio outlets which have tv sisters; the obviously strained relationships with topbrass at DuMont because of the radio rift.

ABC-TV Springs A New Rate Card

Following shortly after the NBC-TV release of its new discount plan, ABC-TV has published its rate card No. 8, which has just become effective. Web is continuing to offer what it claims is the "largest maximum discount of the three networks," 32½%.

Moreover, the new ABC-TV cost chart accelerates discounts on each time period bought on a firm and non-cancellable 52-week (every week) basis. This discount goes from the past 5% to 7%, and continues the 5% discount on each time period inked on a firm alternate week basis over a full year.

Other big factors on rate card No. 8 are: founding of rates for one-minute participations at 22% of the 60-minute Class A time rate, and a 16½% discount in Class C and D time (four commercials per half-hour and 15% of the 60-minute rate in Class C and D time (six blurbs per half-hour).

New card is holding to past policy by requiring a continuation of $66,000 as the "minimum cleared gross" for Class A time buys rather than a establishing "must buy" lineup.

Network Gleam

Continued from page 23

Syndication; "Medic" "It's a Great Life," CNP; "O.S.S.," Flamingo Films.

Additionally, there has been "77th Bengal Lancers," Screen Gems; "Assignment Foreign Legion," CBS Film Sales; "Man Against Crime," (redubbed "Follow That Man"); another 39 episodes of "If You Had a Million," MCA TV.

Incidentally, CBS Film Sales is introing a new series of educational films produced by Mitchell Hamilburg, titled "Vignettes."

Mgt. William Morris Agency

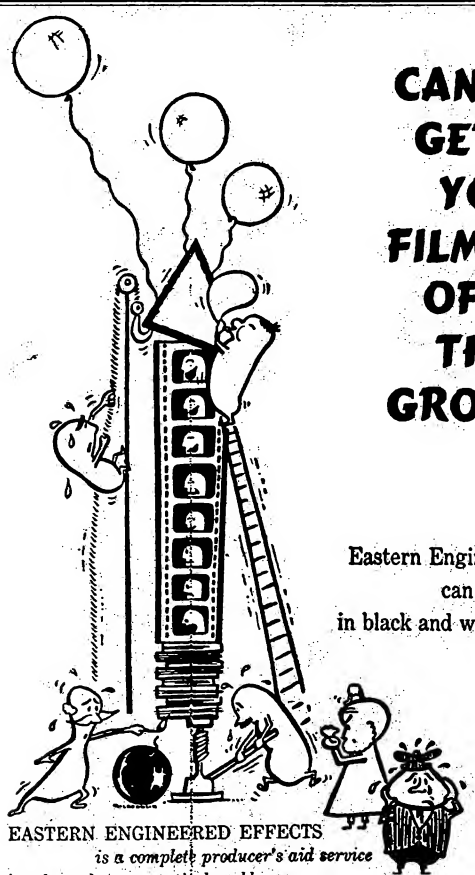
LARGE FUNNY BRAIN FOR RENT
[Body, slightly used, goes with it.] [Fingers and typewriter attached.]
If your "comedy skits" are slippin'
And your Trendex rate is showin'
Try "Mate," the new comedy tailor,
Where all the stars are goin'.
Les Mate 1759 N. Orchid
Hollywood 28, Calif. HO. 4-4191

EVERY DAY ON EVERY CHANNEL TV
BROOKS COSTUMES
3 West 46th St., N.Y.C. • Tel. PL. 7-5000

WHATEVER THE SHOW HE'S THE GREATEST!
DOUG. ANDERSON
Currently: 'The Magic Clown'
For BONOMO TURKISH TAFFY on
Channel 5, New York
Sundays at 10:00 A. M.
Phone . . . Pioneer 7-5761

HAVE SCRIPTS, WILL DEAL!
TV QUIZ FORMAT: original, gag, simple, low-cost production.
SCREENPLAY: theatrical, detailed scenes; Civil War action theme.
TV CMLS: submit script for lowcost "southern", rate estimate.
THOROUGHBRED PRODUCTIONS
718 S. 42nd St., Louisville, Ky.

No Mishmash, No Moonlight and Roses, No Politics . . .
JUST HONEST PUBLICITY AND EXPLOITATION OR NO FEE
RAY GILES, Publicity
Write Box V.V. 1650 VARIETY,
154 W. 46th St., New York 36, N.Y.



CAN'T GET YOUR FILM OFF THE GROUND?

Eastern Engineered Effects can do the job for you in black and white or color.

EASTERN ENGINEERED EFFECTS is a complete producer's aid service designed to solve your optical problems with highest quality and speed.

ART TO FILM . . . finest and fastest

Maurice, Sam, Mat Levy
Eastern Effects, Inc. CI 5-5280
333 WEST 52ND STREET, NEW YORK 19, N. Y.

Congratulations, Dinah

To you and to Bob

And the entire Chevy Show staff

TONY CHARMOLI
HARRY ZIMMERMAN

BOB WELLS
JOHN BRADFORD
ARNOLD PEYSER
RAY BRENNER

TICKER FREEMAN
JOE HAMILTON
EARL BROWN

HAL KEMP
GEORGE SCHLATTER
GEORGE HABIB
JULIO DI BENEDETTO

FRANK SWIG
BOB CARLTON
ANNETTE GAGNON

CLAIR McCOY
JOHN CASAGRANDE
RAOUL MURPHY
COLLINS JOHNSON

Henry

HENRY JAFFE

Best Continuing Performance in a Series

Best Musical Variety Series

Best Direction—One Hour

1957

ACADEMY OF TELEVISION ARTS AND SCIENCES

From the Production Centres

Continued from page 24

ing the Westinghouse station altogether. Sandy Spillman leaves KPIX's "Money Tree" but the show continues, with a new emcee yet to be selected. It was right down to the wire between Randal and Bobby Beers for the teenage show job, with both the KOBY deejays wanting it. Randal will leave KOBY . . . Jim Randolph exiting KSAY, thus making it a clean sweep of the 10,000-watter's original jocks—Willie Bryant, Ray Bruce and now Randolph . . . Gene Condon station manager at San Mateo's KVSM, newly attuned to pops . . . Richard Burns, ex-KPIX national sales service co-ordinator, named an account exec.

IN BOSTON

WHDH-TV initialing series of half-hour jazz shows on "Dateline Boston" to start May 5 with John McLellan, WHDH "Top Shelf" jazz platter show host, emceeing and local plus w. k. jazz artists to be used . . . WBZ running anni party at Jug End Barn in Berkshires Friday (25) week-end with nationally known recording artists joining the station's disk jocks, among them Ethel Smith and Eileen Rodgers, and delegations from press and adpubs invited . . . WNAC-TV's Louise Morgan flies to Ft. Lauderdale to officiate at the Mrs. America Pageant . . . Frank Luther, WNAC-TV pub. affairs dir., special emcee of Patriot's Day ceremonies on green at Lexington kicking off "Yankee Homecoming," tourist attracter designed to bring more than 2,000,000 additional lookers into N. E. this summer . . . Harold C. Case, prexy B. U., addressed Broadcasting Execs Club of N. E. at University Club . . . Gerry Kearney, WMUR-TV, Manchester, N. H., had third nat. prize winner of Bold Journey teacher awards program on his show for interview during Manchester visit . . . Jerry Williams' WMEX show nabbing hefty fan mail with its billing "Comment and Controversy" attracting big flow of phone calls and caller's voices going out over air in 10:51-1 p.m. stint.

IN DETROIT

Don DeGroot, assistant general manager of WWJ, is chairman of the newly-organized Michigan Chapter of Broadcast Pioneers whose 40 members are veterans of at least 20 years in the broadcasting business. Other officers are Les Biederman, prexy of Midwestern Broadcasting Co. (Paul Bunyon Network), senior vice chairman; Milton Greenebaum, Saginaw, first vice chairman; Carl Lee, veepee and general manager, Fetzer Broadcasting Co., second vice chairman; Harry Travis, veepee of Gerity Broadcasting Co. third vice chairman; Willard Schroeder, veepee and general manager, WOOD-AM & TV, fourth vice chairman, and William S. Siebert, WJR secretary-treasurer, was named secretary-treasurer of the new chapter . . . WWJ-TV will present Thursday (25) a special film report "The Lonely Ones," giving viewers a view into the Pontiac State Hospital for mental patients . . . "Ladies Day," popular WJBK-TV feature, will introduce a new daily contest "Pick a Purse" in which the home viewer can win cash prizes merely by getting a phone call and repeating an answer given to a question during the program.

IN PHILADELPHIA

Ernie Shier, amusement editor and tv columnist of the Philadelphia Daily News, ankles sheet to take over as film critic for the Evening Bulletin . . . Eddie Newman, at one time carrying the heaviest local radio schedule, now broadcasting an all-night radio session on WILM, Wilmington, Del. . . . WFIL-TV's Bill Badger left for three-week stay in Europe and the Brussels Fair. Bill Webber and Phil Sheridan will take over his "Triangle Theatre" and "Movietime U.S.A." chores . . . Norman Brooks handling pre-game "Baseball Pressbox" weekends, before Phillies' telecasts on WRCV-TV . . . WIP kicking off baseball season with new quiz show, "Get a Hit." Dan Curtis will host . . . WRCV-TV hypoing newscaster Vince Leonard's debut with heavy schedule of ads, luncheons and personal appearances . . . Ted Mack's "Original Amateur Hour" to conduct auditions on three consecutive Wednesdays, beginning April 30, at the John Bartram Hotel.

IN WASHINGTON

Edwin Roberts, ex Newark, N.J. ad agency rep, is new advertising director of WTOP . . . Kal, Ehrlich & Merrick, town's oldest ad agency, and major time buyers in local market, moving into enlarged new h.q. . . . John Panagos, v.p. of United Broadcasting Co., is sole nominee for vice president of local Ad Club . . . William H. Johnson, formerly of Associated Aerial Survey Co., is new sales service supervisor at WTTG . . . Another new staffer at WTTG (Channel 5) is director Robert O'Connor . . . Steve Allison, WWDC's nighttime personality, has debutted a new baseball tv quiz show, "Bat a Thousand," at WTTG . . . Danny Scholl, featured singer on Jack Paar Show, here past week to highlight "Bal de Paris."

IN MINNEAPOLIS

Financed by a Ford Foundation $65,000 grant, a 13-part program series on the Antarctic is being produced by Twin Cities' educational station KTCA-TV. It'll include 13,000 feet of on-the-spot film and 2,000 feet of Navy film, the latter showing the setting up of U. S. IGY bases in the area . . . Jim Borman, WCCO Radio news department head, appointed local civil defense public affairs director. His assistants will be KSTP news director William McGivern and his own news editor Charles Sarjent.

Radio Review

WHO KILLED MICHAEL FARMER?
With Edward R. Murrow, narrator; psychiatrists, social workers, educators, parents and teenage gangsters
Producer-writer: Jay L. McMullen
Associate producer: Arthur Rabin
60 Mins., Mon. (21), 8:00 p.m.
CBS-Radio, New York (taped)

This was a far from shrinking account of one of the most pressing problems confronting the American citizen. What is causing juvenile crime and why are our youngsters growing up with crime and violent passion in their souls? Taking the recent beating to death of 15-year-old Michael Farmer of Washington Heights, N. Y., by juvenile gangsters as a case in point, Unit One of the Public Affairs Dept. of CBS Radio, under Irving Gitlin's direction, did an astonishing microscopic study of what motivates such teenage behaviour.

Using the actual voices of the boys and adults involved in the Highbridge Park killing of the polio-crippled Farmer boy, "Who Killed Michael Farmer" on CBS Radio (21) minced no words in putting a good deal of the blame on the public itself.

This was one of the few times in recent radio history that broadcasters had turned in such a compelling, unvarnished case history of the story behind juvenile gang encounters and certainly far more terrifying in its impact than any crime story in fiction. Jay McMullen, the producer-writer and Arthur Rabin, associate-producer, of "Who Killed Michael Farmer?" not only reached out to capture the thoughts of the tragic participants in this tension-ridden drama but also sought the opinions of psychiatrists, judicial officers and school officials.

There were challenging remarks by such experts as Marion Cohen, head of the treatment service of Youth House; Dr. Marjorie Rittwagen, Children's Court staff psychiatrist; Deputy Police Commissioner Walter Arm; Clarence Leeds, chief probation officer of the Children's Court; John Warren Hill, chief justice of the Children's Court; Joseph Linda, in charge of youth parole workers; Murray Sachs, court liaison officer of the Board of Education; Criminologist Lewis Yablonsky of Columbia U.; Lloyd Johnson, a youth parole officer; Ralph Whelan, executive director of the City Youth Board, and Charles Klein, the worthy private citizen who set out to work with the young gangsters in an effort to rehabilitate them. One of Klein's observations should have struck listeners with the force of a baseball bat: "People would much rather worry about their own problems than take part in community activities."

But the tragedy in Highbridge Park was not at an end, as one could see. The stabbing and beating to death of young Michael would not end juvenile crime on the upper West Side, nor would it end in other parts of the country. At the conclusion of the hour-long tormenting study of the Farmer case, narrator Edward R. Murrow asked why these conditions continue to exist. What was accomplished by the verdict in the longest murder trial in New York City's turbulent history? The convicted ones were sentenced to institutions unable to rehabilitate them and from which they would return shortly to continue in the same savage manner. "The experts may list all sorts of causes," Murrow said. "But they agree on one answer to why these conditions continue to exist: We permit them to."

Perhaps this documentary would have been somewhat more fulfilling and considerably more valuable to the listener if it had told him how to alleviate the grim situation. Nonetheless, "Who Killed Michael Farmer?" proved a superb piece of radio journalism.

Rans.

Inside Stuff—Radio-TV

Television Bureau of Advertising board of directors, on the way out to the NAB conclave in L.A., stop over tomorrow (Thurs.) In Lubbock, Tex., for a one-day board powwow.

Conclave is in the home town of W. D. (Dub) Rogers, former TvB board chairman. Others at the board meeting will be: L. H. (Bud) Rogers, WSAZ-TV, Huntington, W. Va.; Campbell Arnoux, WTAR-TV, Norfolk; John P. Blair, Blair-TV; Otto Brandt, of KING-TV, Seattle, Wash.; Roger Clipp, TvB secretary of WFIL-TV, Philly; Gordon Gray, WOR-TV, N.Y.; Alexander W. Dannenbaum, sales veep at Westinghouse; Payson Hall, Meredith Publisher's broadcast chief; Craig Lawrence, CBS-TV; Glenn Marshall Jr., WMBR-TV, Jacksonville; Thomas McFadden, NBC-TV; Rogert Tincher, WHTN-TV, Huntington; Joseph Weed, Weed Television.

Nielsen Coverage Service No. 3, national survey on video network and station county-by-county coverage areas, is due to hit subscribers by late summer, research company said this week. Field work is currently being completed.

Final returns of somewhere over 150,000 "ballots" are being processed, and some weeks before the final report appears, Nielsen expects to give a county-by-county set ownership count. Last NCS, No. 2, appeared in the spring of 1956.

Addresses by John C. Doerfer, FCC chairman, and Harold E. Fellows, NAB prexy, next week before the annual NAB conclave in Los Angeles will be carried to the public at large over ABC Radio. Doerfer's talk, one of the principal speeches at the convention, will be aired live Tuesday (29) at 2:30 p.m. Fellows' will be taped the following afternoon for replay at 9:30 p.m.

The running feud between Steve Allen and tv columnist Jack O'Brian (N.Y. Journal-American and Hearst-syndicated) is still running, and in the same place. Allen, who last month launched a bitter attack at O'Brian in the Village Voice, a Greenwich Village weekly, penned a second attack on O'Brian in last week's edition of the Voice.

New attack on O'Brian was in the form of a rebuttal to a piece defending O'Brian in an earlier issue by freelance writer and critic Nat Hentoff.

The right radio spot can be a blessing in disguise for literary researchers. Leo Stein, editor of the ILGWU newspaper Justice, found that out in an appearance on WRCA, N.Y., recently. Appearing on the "Tex & Jinx" show for a discussion of the recent New York loft fire, he mentioned the Triangle fire in New York, which took 160 lives some 40 years ago. He also mentioned that he's doing a book on that fire, but the project has bogged down because he's succeeded in tracking down only a few survivors, despite other radio-tv appearances. Within a half-hour, 18 survivors had called in, and Stein figured he'd saved himself four to six months of detective work.

Station lineup for the late-night NBC-TV Jack Paar show continues to grow, with an increasing number of CBS and ABC affiliates carrying the stanza. Current overall total now stands at 114 stations, with nine non-affiliates, six of whom are CBS outlets and three of whom are ABC primaries.

CBS outlets carrying or signed to carry the show are WPRO-TV, Providence; WRVA-TV, Richmond; KRNT, Des Moines; KFMB-TV, San Diego; WWL-TV, New Orleans and WHIO-TV, Dayton (WHIO is the latest to sign for the show and will start carrying it early in May.) ABC outlets are WHDH-TV, Boston; WCPO-TV, Cincinnati; and WEWS, Cleveland.

Radio-TV Can't Depend On But Single Research Source, Sez Dr. Roslow

Syracuse, April 22.

Attributing a newspaper-magazine decline to "blind reliance" on circulation counts and a "similar reliance on one method of measurement," researcher Dr. Sidney Roslow told graduate students at Syracuse U. that radio and television might also suffer a like decline if the industry ever becomes dependent on a single research source. The president of Pulse Inc. said there is a definite need for more than one measurement "because no absolutely perfect system of measurement exists—or will ever be developed."

Roslow's audience was from the U.'s Radio & Television Center, where he was guest professor on tv last week. "The broadcasting industry uses its research to do more than just count heads. Where the Audit Bureau of Advertising provides a physical count—the number of papers sold—the broadcaster," he explained, "gets more than just numbers out of research.

"The researcher is radio and television gauges, as well as counts, the audience. We provide data on social, educational, financial, age and sex of the listener and viewer, and we also provide information of the effectiveness of programs and time segments and commercial."

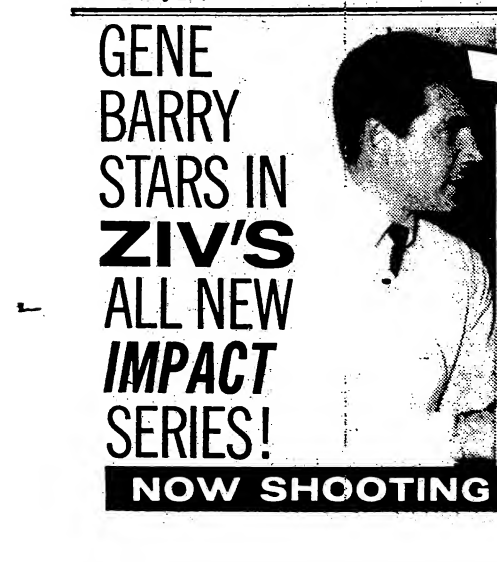
Schenectady—"Teen Age Barn," oldest continuously sponsored program on WRGB-TV, celebrated its 10th anni Friday (18).

Casals Festival For NBC or CBS-TV, Mebbe

San Juan, April 22.

Opener in Casals Festival long-hair series was kinescoped by WIPR-TV for possible Stateside programming. Concert will be considered by both CBS and NBC according to local spokesmen.

Entire concert series will be broadcast on government's WIPR-Radio, but tonight's (Tues.) opener was also on WIPR-TV.



NOW SHOOTING AT ZIV STUDIO!

DAVID MERRICK

Congratulates

PETER USTINOV

Author, Star of the Broadway Comedy Smash

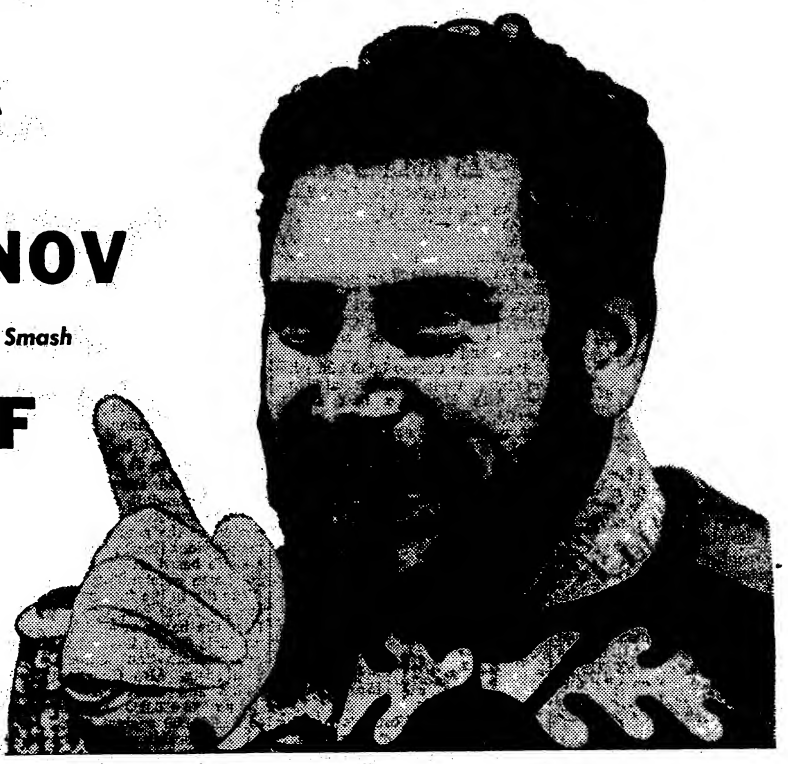
ROMANOFF

and

JULIET

for winning the

EMMY



as the BEST ACTOR in a SINGLE PERFORMANCE

"LIFE OF SAMUEL JOHNSON"

OMNIBUS NBC-TV

Lee SOLTERS, James O'ROURKE and Harvey SABINSON

Congratulate

PETER USTINOV

author-star of

"ROMANOFF and JULIET"

for winning the EMMY as the best actor in a single performance

("LIFE OF SAMUEL JOHNSON" on OMNIBUS—NBC-TV)

Britain's ITP Mulls, a Broader Stake in U.S. Vidpix Ventures

Incorporated Television Programs, Ltd., the commercial UK telecasters in London at weekends and in Birmingham weekdays, which has had made numerous co-production deals with American telefilm companies, has an important policy-making decision upcoming next month in London.

Mulled will be alternative proposals (1) to continue the co-production arrangements with a multiplicy U. S. telefilm companies; (2) to set up an ITP subsid in the U. S. for distribution of ITP productions in the U. S.; (3) to buy into an existing U. S. telefilm distribution firm.

Michael Nidorf, exec v.p. of ITP, Inc., the American representative of ITP, Ltd., of England, is due to go to London for the important confabs.

It's reported that ITP made overtures to buy a major share of Official Films, but the overture was turned down by Official Films board of directors.

ITP recently concluded a deal with National Telefilm Associates on co-financing of "William Tell." It has made numerous similar deals with Official Films, the latest being "Invisible Man," in which ITP is partnered on the pilot. Others with Official have included "Robin Hood," "Sword of Freedom," "Buccaneers," and "Sir Lancelot," all out of Hanna Weinstein's Sapphire production outfit.

ITP also has made numerous deals with Television Program of America, the roster including "Count of Monte Cristo," "Charlie Chan," and "Last of the Mohicans."

The British outfit is in need of telefilm programming, and with the outlook dim for any lifting of the quota on strictly American made telefilms, it wants to expand its production activities. With the American market so important for any such expansion venture, a decision must be made as to direction, as indicated by the previously listed alternatives.

ALL PHILLY 'SHOCKED' AS 'ROLAND' EXITS

Philadelphia, April 22.

John Zacherle, the "Roland" of WCAU-TV's "Shock Theatre," has ankled station. Viewers are already squawking. "Cool ghoul" host of the Fri., Sat., late night horror pix. Zacherle had kited the series' ratings, with special appeal for teenager and collegiate viewers. He was in demand for fraternity parties and dances.

Under the Cameo label and with no station tie-in he recorded "Dinner with Drac," a best seller, locally.

A replacement came on cold past weekend (18) with a ditty declaring "There once was a ghoul named Roland, who thought he had things well in hand." "Shock" stanza now has a 'hostess," a femme with similar gory tastes, purporting to be Roland's formerly caged up frau, "My dear."

ABC 'Galaxy 20' Into 40 Markets

ABC Film Syndication's "Galaxy 20" package is now in over 40 markets with 15 new sales recorded.

New deals include: WBBM-TV, Chicago; WWJ-TV, Detroit; WKRC-TV, Cincinnati; WBNS-TV, Columbus; WBEN-TV, Buffalo; WISH-TV, Indianapolis; KHQ-TV, Spokane; WDSU-TV, New Orleans; WREC-TV, Memphis; WBTV, Charlotte; KGNC-TV, Amarillo and WDEF-TV, Chattanooga.

Helping sales is the recent Oscar awarded to Alec Guinness for his "Bridge on the River Kwai." "Lavender Hill Mob" and "The Promoter," both Guinness starrers, are in the off-network package.

RCA Buys 'N'west Passage'

Half-hour version of "Northwest Passage" is now definite for NBC-TV on Sunday nights next fall. RCA has bought in for alternate-week sponsorship on the show, which will be aired in color, at 7:30 to 8.

RCA deal and the decision to slot the show at 7:30 means that the network will forego the original one-hour concept of the series in favor of the half-hour. Metro-TV will produce the show. Web is airing "No Warning," the "Panic" reruns, through summer.

NTA Net Income In 6-Month Dip

National Telefilm Associates net income for six months ended Jan. 31, '58, dipped to $422,006 after taxes, equal to 41 cents a share on the 1,020,350 shares of common stock outstanding on that date.

This compared with $508,631 reported in the six-month period of the previous fiscal year, or 50 cents a share based on an equal number of shares outstanding.

The dip in the first half of NTA's current fiscal year was said to reflect the heavy acquisition of new products during the past two years, and amortization deductions for film costs. Also film distribution rights and print costs increased nearly $3,000,000 and amounted to $4,646,000 against $1,725,000 in the comparable period of the previous year.

However, total contracts written for the six month period ended Jan. 31, '58, totaled $8,528,651, an increase of 18% for the corresponding '57 period. Film rentals for the six-month period totaled $7,962,992, compared with $4,511,670 in the same period a year ago. Income before amortization and Federal income taxes more than doubled, totaling $5,588,639 for the six months ended Jan. 31, '58, againts $2,711,438 in the corresponding period of the previous year.

Syndication Followup

Boots and Saddles

California National Productions' syndication entry "Boots and Saddles," now in the midst of second year production, appears to have undergone some improvements in the scripting department.

While the series isn't the freshest thing in the world, dealing with the adventures and exploits of the Indian-fighting Fifth Cavalry, it has solid ingredients of good production and direction. The outing "Court Martial," seen on WRCA-TV Thursday night at 7 p.m., also carried surprises. It was exceptionally good.

While it was light on action-adventure, all the proceedings confined to a room, a craftsmanlike script by Sydney Morse proved interesting. The story concerned the defense of a patrol leader (Gardner McKay), accused in a court martial by his superior (John Hoyt) of cowardice and insubordination. Jack Pikard, one of the running characters, was the hero as the defense counsel. His antagonist was Barry Atwater.

All lent their talents to build an interesting situation, with the guts of the problem posed in an out of court dialog between the two counsels, one maintaining that the Army system must be upheld despite possible injustice to the accused, while the other contended that the system is no good if it must punish the innocent. The problem had a contemporary ring and it helped carry the episode.

Horo.

Target

After being off "Target" the first couple of weeks its been on, the Ziv series of the same name came through with an exciting, actionful episode, "Turn Of the Tide." Director Otto Lang's excellent work on characterizations and his fine pacing keep it moving all the time.

It all takes place aboard a freighter bound for the U.S., with a cop (Kent Taylor) bringing back a fugitive racketeer (John Beradino). A stowaway is found aboard, it develops he's also a fugitive—but from the Commies, he being a nuclear physicist who wants to help the U.S. Taylor foils a plan of escape by the hood, but a second attempt as they reach the U.S. is successful, the big-shot kayoing the prof and then posing as him to leave the ship at night. But it develops that the ship's radio operator, a Commie, has tipped his pals about the prof and the Russkies are waiting and knock off the hood. Naturally, they get theirs as Taylor guns 'em.

There are fine portrayals by Taylor, Beradino and John Wengraf, the latter the scientist. Morris Ankrum and Gene Roth provide good support. Teleplay by Jack Harvey and Peter Packer, from a Packer original, has plenty of meat for the half-hour course. Daku.

Vidpix Chatter

Sterling Television has inked fresh deals on "Abbott & Costello," "Bowling Stars" and "Bowling Time." Inking for "Abbott & Costello" were WAGA, Atlanta, Ga.; WBPZ, Lock Haven, Pa., and CKLW, Detroit, Mich. Lining up for "Bowling Stars" were WOOD, Grand Rapids, Mich.; WTVH, Peoria, Ill.; KOTA, Rapid City, S. D.; and KDUB, Lubbock, Tex. . . . Sheila Morrell, formerly of RKO Radio Pictures, has joined National Telefilm Associates.

Pete Roebeck, RKO Teleradio exec, on the Coast, slated to return next month . . . Bernard Schubert, Telestar Films topper, in Hollywood . . . Babette J. Doniger, prez of Editorial Films, leaves for a sales trip to Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles . . . John Porterfield, lately of ABC-TV, joins Gross-Krasne's Gotham office in sales.

Cleveland — WERE, for the eighth consecutive year, will broadcast the entire Cleveland Indians schedule for Central National Bank, Carling Brewing Corp. and Standard Oil. Jimmy Dudley and Bob Neal again doing play-by-play and Tom Manning handling the pregame Baselines stanza.

Congratulations

to

THE PHIL SILVERS SHOW

in winning the

Academy of TV Arts and Sciences Award

for "THE BEST COMEDY SERIES" and to our client

Director—

AARON RUBEN

FCA

FRANK COOPER ASSOCIATES

NEW YORK HOLLYWOOD

FCA

NBC Spot Sales' Free Research To Prove Its Point

NBC Spot Sales is making an unusual offer to get network television advertisers to supplement their sponsorship with spot schedules. It's offering to foot the bill on Nielsen research which it insists will demonstrate to the advertiser how adding a spot schedule to his network program will multiply the number of homes he reaches in key markets.

Under the offer, the network sponsor submits an approximate spot schedule to NBC Spot Sales. Latter turns the information over to Nielsen, which on the basis of its already-collected city-by-city rating information, figures out the television homes reached by the additional spot schedule. NBC Spot Sales pays Nielsen, with the advertiser still under no obligation. NBC has restricted the offer to analysis in any of three cities, New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Offer came about through a Nielsen study conducted for NBC Spot Sales in New York, in which six prime time evening shows on all three webs with a rating ranging from low to high were selected and analyzed. To each of these, Nielsen added a schedule of 14 20-second announcements spread through daytime, weekends and late evening, all on WRCA-TV. Ratings for spots were added to those for the network shows, and one family comedy sponsor who ordinarily reached 12.4% of the N.Y. audience in a week jumped to a 56% reach, five times that of the network show alone and twice as much as the unduplicated four-week cumulative rating of the network show. That was the extreme case, but on the average, the average of the six shows combined with the spot schedule would have reached 60.2% in a single week, more than the average four-week unduplicated cumulative of 46.9%.

Emerson Foote

Continued from page 25

turn to McCann-Erickson is related not to my association with Geyer but my own background in advertising. I have concluded after deep reflection that my greatest personal usefulness is to a business with widespread operations such as those represented at McCann-Erickson." Those close to Foote felt that Geyer Advertising didn't offer enough of a workout for Foote and he realized he had made a mistake in leaving McCann-Erickson. When Marion Harper Jr. McCann prexy offered Foote the chance to "return home" he was delighted.

Harper said, "I am very happy to welcome Emerson back to McCann-Erickson. As previously, he will be concerned with creative advertising and marketing." Harper went on to say that Foote was a colleague with exceptional human and professional gifts and was highly regarded by both the personnel and clients at McCann-Erickson.

Insiders at McCann-Erickson state that Foote left originally because he was unhappy with the administrative detail he was involved with. With Mr. Harper stating that Foote will be concerned with creative advertising and marketing, the feeling is that both the strong willed Harper and Foote will be placated.

Foote was formerly associated with McCann from 1951 to until he left in 1957. Prior to his association at McCann-Erickson he was connected with Lord & Taylor where he was an executive veepee and a founder of Foote, Cone & Belding. He resigned from the latter agency in 1950.

Miami Review

Continued from page 20

the channel should be disqualified for "misconduct." Finally, it directs that the Dept. of Justice be called to sit in on the hearings.

Court order pointed to a key decision which requires that applicants before goveernment agencies appear with "clean hands."

With the restrictions imposed on handling of the case, the Court's order places the Commission in an unusual situation. When the time comes, agency will have to go back to the Court with its finding on the misconduct issue. Depending on the finding, the Court will have to decide whether the grant should be set aside. Then the question will arise as to what further proceedings, if any, should be held.

Under the circumstances, it's pointed out the case is still before the Court and the FCC is, in a sense, in the position of an examiner.

It's also considered significant that the Court order draws the Justice Department into the proceedings, although it is already looking into other aspects of the case.

NAB Convention

Continued from page 26

unable to install in 'Frisco because of union opposition.

Television-film industry will again be widely represented, and has been allocated the Monday morning space on the calendar for the now-annual panel sessions on syndicated and feature film. Telefilm boys will also hold an annual reception that night. As per usual, some of the companies will "break" with new product at the convention—MCA is expected to unveil its sales plan and start taking orders for the Paramount library, CBS-TV Film Sales will unveil four new packages, three of them newly-acquired reruns-off-network, "Mr. Adams & Eve," "You Are There" and "The Eve Arden Show." Vidpixers again will constitute the razzle-dazzle element of the convention, with a greater number of stars on hand because of the Coast locale.

Other sessions will include the annual FM meeting, the annual Code Review report, panel session on station use of color, several radio sessions and speeches by convention keynoter Frank Stanton, FCC chairman John C. Doerfer, McCann-Erickson prez Marion Harper Jr.

'Keep TV in N.Y.' Academy Bid Brews Tiff With Coast Chapter

New York chapter of the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, at an open membership meeting Monday (21) unanimously passed a controversial motion. They moved to organize a committee "for the expansion and improvement of television in New York" and they accepted help that may be forthcoming from organizations "whose interests parallel those of the New York chapter."

The "keep tv in N.Y." motion is almost certain to alienate members of the Coast chapter of ATAS. Previous measures by ATAS members were curtailed through fear of alienating the Coast, which has been getting more and more of video's production largesse.

Film Producers Assn. of N.Y. was represented at the Academy annual open meeting. Yesterday (Tues.) the film group met with Mayor Robert F. Wagner to present demands, which according to a description given Monday, were going to be small. Wallace Ross of FPA said his group was going to ask "alleviation of the sales tax" and "less graft" from police during location shooting and from city inspectors concerning in-studio operations. Ross told ATAS members "will join with you . . . to help promote New York."

From the floor, Irwin Feldman, counsel for the scenic designers and other New York craft unions, began the potshots. The annual meeting of the Gotham chapter has become the traditional soundboarding for dissenters, and Feldman drew a round of applause for his comments directed at city officials. He said it was "legitimate political action to persuade candidates for office to do at least as much for the (television) industry as they were willing to do for professional baseball." He was referring to Mayor Wagner's last-ditch effort to keep the Dodgers in New York. And he added that hotel owners were able to get the tax-free Coliseum to draw convention goers by means of massing an impressive propaganda instrument pointing out that the Gotham potential from conventions constituted a "$1,000,000,000 business."

Feldman suggested that industry fact-finders substantiate the amount of business brought to New York by video, for the purposes of swaying city officials. There is no such figure available anywhere at present, according to the Academy.

Other ATAS members cautioned that the networks might not do anything about building a tv centre in N.Y. even if they received help from the city.

Producer David Susskind deplored working through the Academy to keep tv in New York, since, he said, "within the framework of the national Academy we cannot accomplish what we seek. Better than 50% of our membership belongs to the enemy. I think also there is very little hope to get the networks to accept the free land, if it were free, and then millions to build there."

"Only effective thing we can really do . . . is try to conceive new television shows, clearly superior to the junk being done in California, that have to be bought. Tape will do more to bring back live television than anything else—and live tv means New York," Susskind said. "The Academy cannot become an effective pressure group because a pressure group demands cohesion and we don't have that."

Lichtenstein to NTA

Irv Lichtenstein, whose last berth was with American Broadcasting Network, has signed on with National Telefilm Associates as exploitation director of the distribbery's owned & operated radio and tv stations.

Lichtenstein was promotion-exploitation director for ABN, having come to New York relatively few months ago from WWDC, Washington.

Congratulations

to

THE PHIL SILVERS SHOW

in winning the

Academy of TV Arts and Sciences Award

for "THE BEST COMEDY WRITING" and to our clients

Writers—

BILLY FRIEDBERG

ARNOLD ROSEN and COLEMAN JACOBY

SID ZELINKA and ANDY RUSSELL

PHIL SHARP TONY WEBSTER

FCA

FRANK COOPER ASSOCIATES

NEW YORK HOLLYWOOD

FCA

Anti-Nazi Pix Gripes

Continued from page 22

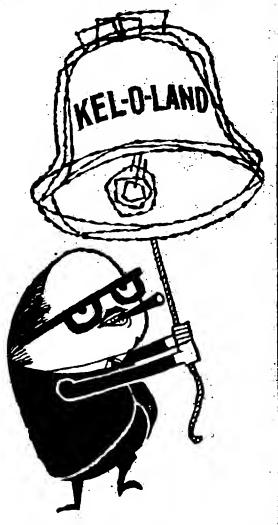
sociation with the KVOS-TV vs. embassy hassle, in February. "We have one store right in the center of them (German folk) where there's an eight blocks by four blocks concentration. We even have some German salesmen, who are unhappy about it. We have requested (to CBUT-TV) that this type of picture, hitting one group of people, should have our spots taken off for the occasion." Ryan said that he did not believe the press, meaning tv this case, should be restricted, but with regard to offending telepix, "If it were to continue, it's a very bad thing."

Dr. Liebrecht, German consul, said he met with video outlet's heads, "who seemed very concerned," and had appealed to Dr. W. G. Black, immigration citizenship liaison officer to aid his plea to drop objectionable pix from tv rosters. "Dr. Black is very unappy about the whole thing," he said.

Immigration officer told VARIETY, "Bellingham (KVOS-TV) showed four of these in one week, recently, which was a bit thick. I know it is all negative, destructive and harmful, instead of stressing constructive integration of ethnic groups. Of course, I realize the importance of civil liberties, especially with reference to the press—but I don't believe these are a license to foolishness.

"It seems to me that the trouble is fuzzy thinking by fuzzy film producers who fail to differentiate between good programs and propaganda," he continued, "and one should remember that most of our German citizens here were mostly children when Hitler was in power, and many of them suffered under the Nazis. I know many people who are bitterly anti-Nazi who are still shamed by (showing of) such films on television." Official stressed that "the major ethnic elements are working in very well here. They obey our laws, and are in all ways good people. Most of them are naturalized and are now Canadians."

While at this stage, CBUT-TV brass had no comment on consul's protests, Marce Munro, head of station's commercial dept., was fretting about German attacks on ABC-TV and was anxious to clarify advertiser's position in conflict, said film was "merely used as a vehicle for spot and flash availability," that store had no control over what film was aired or knowledge of program content.



That Floyd's a helluva bellringer too! His good times campaign has caught on like wildfire. Viewers are flooding Joe's KEL-O-LAND switchboards and mailrooms with "business is good" reports; and each item is beamed back to the KELO group's four-state audience.* The Bellringer campaign confirms two statistical facts—today's most lucrative market is KEL-O-LAND; and KELO-TV with its booster stations gets you there fast!

* a million plus people in South Dakota, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska.

CBS • ABC • NBC

KEL-O-LAND

KELO TV SIOUX FALLS 11

KDLO TV ABERDEEN HURON WATERTOWN 3

General Offices: Sioux Falls, S. D.
JOE FLOYD, President
Evans Nord, Gen. Mgr.
Larry Bentson, V.P.
REPRESENTED by H-R
In Minneapolis: Bulmer & Johnson, Inc.

'Theme' Packages

Continued from page 23

with Wallace Beery on top of the marquee.

NTA wrapped up a neat Christmas package on its film network with the four Shirley Temple specials, which garnered good sponsorship support.

As the pix pool grows smaller (Paramount's pre-'48 is the last library to be put on the video block), there's expected to be an upsurge in "thematic" packaging and telecasting, a la AAP's Gold Mine Library, reruns which AAP has broken down into packages of horror, comedy, dramatic anthology and westerns.

Feature as Pilot

Continued from page 23

to sell a number of properties via presentations, but found that other than engendering interest on the ad agency level, it could not cop a deal without a pilot. It will come in with a pilot on "El Coyote" next month for national sale.

As far as again attempting to use a feature film as a pilot for a projected telefilm series, RKO will reexamine that avenue more carefully before embarking on another "Heidi" venture. It's hard to come by the twin of having a tip top feature and telefilm show at the same time.

Emmy Awards

Continued from page 27

immortal words of William S. Paley, president (sic) of CBS, 'Get out of the way, Hubbell, you're blocking my camera shot'."

Silvers, too, got in his licks, as when eight of his writers trouped up for the best comedy writing award and he wailed, "But I'm a great ad libber," and reached over to one of the eight winners and with a handshake said, "I don't think I've ever had the pleasure." Earlier, referring to the shift of the New York origination from the 7th Regt. Armory to the NBC studios, Silvers pointed to the glamourous origination from the Coconut Grove on the Coast, then said, "And here we are in the NBC stock room."

Danny Thomas, who shared the emceeing chores with Silvers, had less luck. He managed to get off a story or two at the beginning of the evening, but thereafter wore a harried look because all he could do was to get the presenters and awards on and off as quickly as possible. Another reason for limiting those awards.

Evening had a couple of sour notes too. Couple of the comics made reference to Berle's running over, and they made it plain they weren't happy about the fact, something they should have kept to themselves and made a family, instead of a public, affair. Hardly received with enthusiasm, either, was CBS director of news John Day's comment when accepting the news commentary award for Ed Murrow to the effect that the Academy ought to create a new award for any news commentator "other than Ed Murrow."

Technically, the show was better than its predecessors, except for its four-way split screen number, the Teleprompter and the failure of the announcers to identify those accepting awards in lieu of the actual winner (or as in the case of a program award, name of the producer). Cameras caught the winners quickly, followed them smoothly up to the rostrum. Switches from coast to coast were clean and on cue. Producer William Kayden and his directors, Craig Allen and William Bennington, can take bows on that score. Commercials, for P&G's Lilt and Pontiac, were done via film but with live introes by Laraine Day (for Lilt) and Jayne Meadows for Pontiac. Copy was somewhat incoherent and didn't help the prestige of the occasion any.

Chan.

Tele Reviews

Continued from page 27

done before, it often betrays the not-so-profound. It's quite possible, for whatever the distinction is worth, that Drees was the first to dub the defunct St. Louis Browns unequivocally "the worst team in the history of the major leagues." Previous holders of that opinion, it's recalled, protected themselves with some qualifying adverb like "possibly" or "perhaps." It's this kind of forthright phrase presumably that separates the Drees commentary from the ordinary run.

Les.

Game Shows

Continued from page 21

programs—both have their fourth outings this week—may well mean a major shift of sponsor interest away from the game shows for next fall. Both entries were eyed in the trade as possible bellwethers, since "Dollar" involved a home giveaway while "Wingo" had as its potential top a prize of $250,000.

Idea of big money and the home-prize feature had intrigued the interest of sponsors, the latter in particular because of the spectacular daytime successes of "Price Is Right" and "Dotto," which employ the home device. (Success story on "Price" at night has also been eyed enviably by the trade.) But with neither "Wingo" nor "Dollar" taking off as had been hoped, and with the failure of the home-prize device on "$64,000 Question" to generate much audience enthusiasm, the ardor of Madison Ave. toward the game shows may be beginning to cool.

Syndication—NAB

Continued from page 23

efficient conduct of NAB annual conventions. The board wanted associate members, such as syndicators, to conduct their biz at regional meets rather than the big annual event. The Phoenix ruling pertains to the 1959 annual meet, and perhaps thereafter.

Film syndicators are expected to meet next week in Los Angeles and map future plans re NAB. Most syndicators resent the ruling, but feel that if they are not wanted, the only thing to do is to pull out. Leslie Harris, CBS Film Sales topper, questions the wisdom of the ruling, pointing out the important role film plays in today's station operations.

WSYR-TV PICKS UP CANCER OPERATION

Syracuse, April 22.

WSYR-TV scored a first in its market by moving its cameras in the operating room of Syracuse General Hospital on Sunday (13) to air an actual cancer operation. Special event was a 60-minute program in cooperation with local medical society and traced the medical treatment of a cancer patient from her initial visit to medico through the operation. Six of the top medicos in Syracuse faced the camera to do a running explanation of every phase of the program.

Kay Russell, hostess of WSYR-TV's "Ladies Day" show moderated the program and E. R. 'Curly' Vadeboncoeur, station prexy, who is also State president of the American Cancer Society, wrapped it up with a brief talk on what the home audience could do in the fight against cancer.

TV Followup Comment

Continued from page 27

Livingstone were uneven, "You're A Hero" and "We're on Our Way" far out ahead of the other mediocre entries. Kuldip Singh did okay as Aladdin's son, but there was a disturbing quality when he sang, the dubbed in singing voice seeming to have a different quality than Singh's.

Sue England was pretty as Silverbud, the heroine. Jack Albertson and Joey Faye as the comic princes appeared straight out of burlesque, mouthing such lines as "A Horse, A Horse. My Carpet for A Horse," or "Do You Happen to know a used camel dealer?" Lines similar to these flavored the entire proceedings.

Sets by Sidney Clifford also were incongruous, being something between reality and abstractions. Direction by Robert B. Sinclair failed to retain a dominant flavor. Production was by Henry Jaffe Enterprises in association with Screen Gems, under the aegis of producer Alvin Cooperman. Others in the cast included Charles Halton, Billy Curtis, Angelo Rossitto, Eugene Jackson III, and Roy Jenson.

Shirley Temple was fetching as the hostess.

Horo.

Person-To-Person

Edward R. Murrow apparently hit some difficulties Friday (18) when the Maurice Chevalier interview fell out at the last minute, and a quick substitution of Russell Wright was made. Wright, the industrial designer, who occupied the last half of the show was handicapped, by some technical difficulties, particularly in the lighting department, put generally provided a satisfactory interview. He seemed anxious to show everything that he did, took a deep pride in his work, and seemed like a pleasant personality. However, it does seem strange that Wright and a small daughter should rattle around in a big town house in New York. Whatever happened to Mrs. Wright seemed like a legitimate query in this show.

The joint interview of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne W. Parrish was a dismal display amid posh surrounding. Parrish is the president and publisher of American Aviation Publications while Mrs. Parrish is known professionally as Frances Knight, director of the State Department's Passport Office. It's seems fair to query Miss Knight on her stance on travel to some of the forbidden sections of the world. Does she regard the ban on a newspaperman's travel to Red China as an abridgement of freedom of the press, or is the right to travel one of the freedoms guaranteed along with the other freedoms? Her boss, John Foster Dulles, has his views, but she as an individual must also have some thoughts on the subject. As a newspaperman who has probed in the dark spots for truth, Murrow seemingly has an obligation to seek out the truth from persons in power. As for Parrish, he makes a hobby of collecting airports. He's gotta stop at every airfield serviced by chartered airliners.

Murrow's interview in Miss Knight's case particularly, seemed designed at concealment rather than any degree of edification. This session seemed particularly lacklustre.

Jose.

High Adventure

As this Delco-Remy sponsored series reached its sixth episode Saturday (19) on CBS-TV, it became clearer than ever that the travelogs suffer from too much Lowell Thomas. But even traveller Thomas' windy fatuousness could not ruin the wonder of the photography as "High Adventure" rumbled (by elephant) across Bengalese plains and jungles.

Thomas changes cameramen for each episode, as a rule, and the star of this one was an Indian lenser, M. Ram. His pictures of an elephant hunt, of natives in fascinating closeup and of the final, exhausting and vivid chase of a man-eating tiger were great—and if the viewers were able to see the original color prints, stanza would have been just that much better.

Trouble, as usual, was that the host-narrator oversimplified his spiel. He has a penchant this time for inane rhetorical questions, and, in doing his own writing, he failed to get the most in meaning and clarity out of the fine photographic arrangements he got from Ram and director Willard Van Dyke.

That tiger hunt, of which much more could be said, couldn't miss. The natural sequence of events were of themselves nerve-tingling, and the sharp closeups of the predatory animal gave a sense of danger.

Art.

Peter De Rose

The week of April 23-30th has been designated as "Peter De Rose Memorial Week," commemorating the 5th anniversary of the death of the composer of "Deep Purple," "Wagon Wheels" and many other popular hits. In addition to his brilliant career as a composer and radio pioneer, he will always be remembered as a beloved figure in his own time.

TV BRAIN
(Producer)
FOR SALE
Presently employed seeking bigger challenge. Have 8 yrs. know how. New York. BOX V-84-49, Variety 154 W. 46th St. New York 36

THEY LOVE ME IN HOUSTON

16.0
KPRC-TV, ARB
Sun., March 9
10:15 P. M.
MGM-TV

Contact: RICHARD A. HARPER, General Sales Mgr.
MGM-TV, a service of Loew's Incorporated
1540 Broadway, New York 36, N. Y. • JUdson 2-2000

BMI PATS ITSELF ON THE BUCK

Marek Tells Dallas Dealers Disk Biz Will Expand Despite Economy's Lag

Dallas, April 22.

RCA Victor veepee and general manager George R. Marek, at a meeting here of the Dallas Retail Record Dealers Assn., one of the pioneer trade organizations of its type in the country, told the dealers: "You cannot wish the price-cutter out of business. You must meet him exactly the way Neiman-Marcus meets a bargain basement outfit—by service

"The record business is turning into a mass business. Don't be afraid of it. You cannot resist records going into non-record outlets. This is a good thing for you because it starts the music habit."

Before the 70-odd dealers and district executives, Marek traced the growth of the disk business from its lowest ebb in 1949 with a gross of a few million to its approximately $400,000,000 annual take. Labels alone have increased from 65 in 1945 to some 3,100 at last count. Together with packaged goods and audio components, Marek estimated it a $1,000,000,000-a-year business.

Marek envisioned continued expansion of the business, even though some segments of the economy are sagging. Music has "become an integral part of life . . . a fundamental commodity . . . food for the soul . . ."

Stereo disks, other technical improvements, new and better reproducing equipment and the trend to living at home were factors cited by Marek for the envisioned boom in music."

Marek recalled that years ago there was only one kind of record —"a 10-inch disk and it didn't matter very much how you sold it." Now it has gotten somewhat complicated, Marek conceded, with popular albums, classical albums with various categories of these and a multitude of single disk records.

The executive predicted monaural tape was definitely on its way out. He would not hazard what proportion of the business dollar in the industry would go to stereo disks or tapes.

'KWAI' DISK'S 400,000 MARCH IN GERMANY

Berlin, April 15.

According to the German Philips headquarters (Hamburg), more than 400,000 copies of Mitch Miller's "March From the River Kwai" have already been sold in this country. This is a nearly sensational record when it's considered that this disk was released (together with the German preem of Columbia's "Bridge On River Kwai") only five weeks ago.

The domestic demand for this recording is such that Philips had to ask foreign factories to join in the pressing efforts. "Kwai" stands a good chance to become this country's biggest seller of the year. It may also replace the popular German "Sportpalast Waltz." Latter, also a whistled melody, is locally a favorite item for sports events—during intermissions, for example.

Local 47 Asks Petrillo To Resume Studio Talks

Hollywood, April 22.

With the musicians' strike against the major studios going into the 10th week, Local 47 prexy Eliot Daniel has wired Federation prexy James C. Petrillo to come here and personally try to resume negotiations for settlement.

Hardie Ratcliffe, prexy of the International Federation of Musicians, has advised the AFM that the scoring of all American pix in Vienna has been stopped. Ratcliffe said that the only reason Alfred Hitchcock's Paramount film, "Vertigo" was tuned in that city was because the musicians at that time had not been advised of the boycott of run-away pix, and that in the future Vienna musicians will join the boycott.

New SPA Tag: Amer. Guild Of Authors & Composers

The council of the Songwriters Protective Assn. has moved to change the name of the organization to American Guild of Authors & Composers. New name, it's felt, would better describe SPA's membership which includes, besides songwriters, lyricists and composers in all fields of music. The proposal for a name switch has been submitted to SPA's membership in a referendum.

Another proposal involves the creation of honorary members of the organization's council for members who have served SPA over a long period but are currently unable to participate actively in the committee's work.

Election of seven members of the 21-man SPA council for a three-year period is now being held.

Dick Clark Gets Into Rock 'n' Roll Concert Business

Dick Clark will be the next disk jockey to take the rock 'n' roll concert package route. Deejay Alan Freed is currently on a six week r'n'r swing around the country.

The Clark package is being organized by Milt Shaw, prexy of the Shaw Agency, for a kickoff May 30 at either New York's Madison Square Garden or Brooklyn's Ebbets Field. The Shaw office currently is lining up acts for the unit which will be tagged "Dick Clark's Caravan."

Clark will not change his Philadelphia tv schedule to make appearances with the "Caravan," but will emcee all those dates which he can make by commuting or quick plane hops. Phil Landwehr is acting as talent co-ordinator for Clark in New York and will work with the Shaw office in preparing the package. Agency's pact with Clark calls for a minimum of eight weeks. Shaw figures that the asking price for the package will be between $10,000 and $12,000 a night.

RANK RECORDS TO BOW IN BRIT. IN 3 MONTHS

London, April 22.

The Rank Organization will have its own record label on the market in around three months. This follows the formation of a new company, Rank Records Ltd., recently set up to put the wheels in motion for the venture, which has been under consideration for some time.

J. D. Ralph, a key man in the new setup, said that a "secret" scheme to combat distribution difficulties (which have been encountered by other companies during the formation stages of new labels) has been discussed and will be put into operation shortly. Details, however, are being kept under wraps.

He said that at the moment several small Yank labels were being paged to supply material for Rank pressings but these, too, were not yet off the secret list. At a later stage the new company might set up its own pressing plant but at the moment would use established facilities. Distribution will certainly include Rank theatres and dance halls, and it is planned to open a number of stores through which they could retail the platters.

WITNESSES FIRE -AWAY AT ASCAP

By FLORENCE LOWE

Washington, April 22.

It was BMI's turn at bat last week at the hearings on the Smathers' Bill to bar broadcasters from owning an interest in the performing rights organization. For three days of smooth, carefully prepared presentation, BMI witnesses told a Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee it should pigeonhole the bill ASCAP is pushing strongly. BMI made these points and charges:

1. ASCAP has been a closed corporation, generally barring composers and publishers of country and gospel music, whereas BMI welcomes all.

2. BMI, by its open door policy, has brought about a striking change in the music business. It has brought hundreds of new names and faces into a business which was dominated by a small handful previously.

3. The real reason for the Smathers Bill is an effort by ASCAP to regain the position of "monopoly" it previously held in the performing rights field.

4. Broadcast stations and networks do not unfairly favor BMI music as charged by ASCAP. On the contrary, the broadcasters play much more ASCAP than BMI music, and the stations which play the most BMI music are the small indies which own no BMI stock.

5. Country music is not "trash" as charged previously by an ASCAP witness, but is truly a native music which the public in many areas of the nation prefers over the

(Continued on page 52)

Miller Revamps Col's A&R Staff

Mitch Miller, Columbia Records' director of pop artists & repertoire, has realigned his pop department, upping Al Ham and Irving Townsend and shifting Stan Kavan's duties.

Ham has been set as director of pop singles a&r, assisting Miller in all activities. Tony Piano will assist Ham in the single records production. Townsend, who's been in the pop album department for the past several years, has been named exec producer of the pop album division reporting to Miller. Assisting Townsend will be Calvin Lampley, Robert Prince and Ernest Altschuler.

Kavan has been transferred to the pop department from Col's sales division to take over the newly created post of project director. He'll be responsible for artist liaison, coordination of a&r products and services, and motion picture soundtrack negotiations.

Still reporting directly to Miller are Percy Faith and Frank DeVol, east and west coast musical directors, respectively, and Don Law, director of country and western a&r.

See Upcoming SPA-Pubbery Talks Heavy on Fireworks; Cleffers Mum

Contract negotiations between the Songwriters Protective Assn. and the music publishers, which are due to start within the next few months, are not expected to run smoothly. The current 10-year pact, which originally expired at the end of 1956, has been extended to the end of this year.

A couple of major companies have indicated that they probably will not sign a new pact with SPA. One spokesman stated that the bulk of the hit songs today are not being written by SPA members in any case. If it's necessary to deal with an SPA writer, the publisher stated that the SPA pact, or a close variation of it, could be used for that purpose. The specific SPA form, however, cannot be used since it's believed that the Copyright Act protects it.

SPA execs, on the other hand, wonder what all the yelling is about so early in the game. To date the songwriters have not given the slightest hint about what they will ask for. An idea of what the SPA wants will be disclosed when preliminary meetings start with the Music Publishers Protective Assn. some time next month. SPA also has asked non-MPPA publishers to set up negotiating committees. Talks will be held in New York and Hollywood.

Since its formation in the early 1930s, SPA has won decisive gains for the songwriters with regard to control of the copyright. In addition to setting up a 50% split on mechanical coin with the publishers and minimum sheet music royalties, the SPA basic pact automatically provides for the return of the copyright to the writer after the first term of 28 years.

The publishers are wondering whether SPA is aiming to extend the gains made by the writers. One direction still open is the matter of performance rights on tunes sold to films. Since ASCAP no longer licenses tunes for films, SPA general counsel John Schulman has proposed the formation of a new agency, in which the writers and publishers would share 50%, for clearing both the performance and synchronization rights on pic tunes.

MGM Boosting Prices On Longhairs, LP's, Pops

MGM Records is the latest diskery to follow the price hike trend. Label is boosting the price on its longhair album line to $4.98 from $3.98 and the price of its pop singles to 98c from the previous 89c. Singles from MGM's new subsid label, Cub Records, will also be priced at 98c. The hike goes into effect May 1.

Label is holding the $3.98 price on its pop album line and the $4.98 price on its soundtrack sets and original cast albums.

ASCAP Reelects Cunningham; See Push for a G.M.

Paul Cunningham, prexy of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers, was reelected to serve a third term of one year by the board last week. Under ASCAP's bylaws, the maximum term for the president is three consecutive years.

Issue of a successor for Cunningham is expected to arise early next year along with the proposal to hire a general manager for the Society. Advocates of a g.m. point out that an administrator to handle the day-to-day operation of the Society would permit the election of a top name songwriter as prexy. Currently, the prexy post involves much administration work, and writers such as Oscar Hammerstein 2d who has been frequently mentioned for the prexy spot, have refused to accept the nomination.

Along with Cunningham's reelection, the board named Deems Taylor as secretary. Taylor, who replaced John Tasker Howard, is a former ASCAP prexy and is among the potential candidates for that spot next year. Other officers of the Society are Louis Bernstein and Otto Harbach, vice-presidents; Frank H. Conner, treasurer; George W. Meyer, assistant secretary, and Jack Bregman, assistant treasurer.

TENN.'S OWEN BRADLEY HEADS C&W AT DECCA

Owen Bradley, veteran Decca recording artist, has been named head of the diskery's country & western artists & repertoire operation, working under a&r v.p. Milt Gabler. Bradley steps into the vacancy created by the moveover of Paul Cohen to Coral as that label's a&r chief.

In taking his new Decca post, Bradley resigned as musical director of WSM in Nashville with which he has been since 1940. He'll continue to headquarter in Nashville.

CONKLING ADDS EXECS TO WB DISKERY STAFF

Hollywood, April 22.

James B. Conkling, prexy of Warners new recording company, has named Lowell Frank to the post of director of recording, and Irving Iserson, operations manager for the label, quartering in N. Y. Latter was formerly treasurer and general manager of Angel Records.

Frank, at one time with Columbia Records, joins WB diskery next month, and will be responsible for building up a recording engineering staff. Last week company's initial pactee Connie Stevens cut four sides of a projected album under supervision of Lou Busch.

Capitol Jettisons 78's For Release in Britain

London, April 15.

As of last week Capitol ceased pressing 78 rpm disks for British release, except for artists of the calibre of Sinatra. The 45 rpm disks will be the new standard size and will sell at the same price as current 78's.

It's figured that Capitol's decision will be followed by other companies.

Hansen to Coral A&R

Paul Cohen, new artists& repertoire chief at Coral Records, has added Jack Hansen to the a&r staff. Dick Jacobs continues as Coral's musical director.

Hansen, an arranger-conductor, has been associated with the Jan Savitt and Fred Waring orchs.

Music Biz—Then (1939) And Now

Washington, April 22.

The dramatic growth of the music biz since 1939, when Broadcast Music Inc. was organized, was stressed in the Smathers Bill testimony of BMI board chairman Sidney M. Kaye last week. He cited the following statistics:

(1) In 1939, broadcasters paid ASCAP approximately $5,000,000 a year. Today, they pay ASCAP over $20,000,000. In addition, broadcasters pay BMI an additional $9,000,000 for performance rights.

(2) In 1939, there were about 1,100 writers and 137 publishers sharing the performance revenue. Today, over 6,000 writers and 3,500 publishers get part of the melon.

(3) In 1939, most writers getting performance rights were located either in New York or Hollywood. Today, they are in every state of the union.

(4) In 1939, publishers were located in only nine states. Today, there are firms in 46 states.

(5) In 1939, there were 24 established disk firms, in three states, doing a business of approximately $25,000,000 a year. Today, there are hundreds of labels in 46 states, doing a business of $400,000,000 a year.

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By MIKE GROSS

Jimmie Rodgers (Roulette). "SECRETLY" (Planitary*) is another winner for the young crooner who this time toys with a lilting melody in top vocal styling. "MAKE ME A MIRACLE" (Planetary*) has an attractive folk beat that can do well in spinning circles.

The Four Preps (Capitol). "STOP, BABY" (Bourne*) looks to follow up their "26 Miles" click. It's got a stylized beat and a vocal pattern that can't miss. "BIG MAN" (Beechwood†) is average material that's helped by a good vocal attack.

Art Mooney Orch (MGM). "SOMETHING'S ALWAYS HAPPENING ALONG THE RIVER" (Stratford*) can make the march happen again as a pop winner the way Art Mooney's orch and chorus take it for a breezy ride. Tune's out of the legit production, "Say Darling." "LOUELLA" (Diana*) gets by in an oldfashioned orch and chorus blending.

Jo Stafford (Columbia). "I MAY NEVER PASS THIS WAY AGAIN" (Oval*) is a stickout ballad that Jo Stafford makes completely appealing and gives it a clicko potential. "IT WON'T BE EASY" (Shapiro-Bernstein*) is another pleasing ballad with a standout Stafford delineation.

The Betty Smith Group (London). "HAND JIVE" (Zodiac†) works a new teenage fad into a swinging affair that the kids are sure to dig. "BEWITCHED" (Chappel*) is the Rodgers & Hart oldie with a rocking touch that does it no good.

The Chordettes (Cadence). "ZORRO" (Walt Disney†) is a folk-styled theme out of the Walt Disney studios that the gals handle with zip and zest and could attract the young 'uns the way "Davy Crockett" did a few years back even though it lacks latter's catchy beat. "LOVE IS A TWO WAY STREET" (Sheldon†) is a neatly fashioned lilter that the Chordettes build into a highly listenable slice.

Gogi Grant (RCA Victor). "MY SECRET PRAYER" (Alamo*) has a good chance to crack the rock 'n' roll block. It has a fine ballad feel and Gogi Grant belts it with meaning. "HOW DO WE KNOW WE'RE IN LOVE" (Grammore*) is a tasty ballad with an effective rendition but it still remains a tough push.

Frank Verna with The Playboys (United Artists). "SUGAR LUMP" (Maggie†) has a sweet and happy flavor that will win it strong spinning action. "GOLLY GOSH OH GEE" (Hennessy†) moves at lively gait right from the start and the juke crowd will pay attention.

Moe Koffman Quartet (Jubilee). "KOKO-MAMEY" (Bennell†) should keep the jukes jumping because of its hot beat. "LITTLE PIXIE" (Seeley†) is an impish sort of instrumental with a briskness that attracts jock and juke spins.

Royal Teens (ABC-Paramount). "BIG NAME BUTTON" (Budd-Label*) pins its hopes on a current teenage fad with the proper beat for today's market. "SHAM ROCK" (Admiration†) rocks in a reasonably noisy manner.

Marty Wilson & The Strato-Lites (Decca). "HEY! EULA" (Leo Feist*) gets across a swinging feel that will score in the coinboxes. It's out of 20th's "LONG HOT SUMMER." "PO-GO" (Lark*) pushes a frantic beat to the limit.

The Four Voices (Columbia). "EV'RY HOUR, EV'RY DAY" (Kahl†) will atract those who like their pops to make sense in all departments. There's an outside chance that it can attract a following for a breakthrough. "YOU KNOW I DO" (Porgie†) makes the most of a familiar idea by setting in an appealing vocal casing.

Eddy Arnold (RCA Victor). "BEFORE YOU KNOW IT" (Mibern†) is a quiet mixture of country-rock that Eddy Arnold builds with a winning sincerity. "PECK-A-CHEEK" (Leo Talent*) spotlights Arnold in a country beat with some rocking overtones that will win friends in the jock and juke market.

John D. Loudermilk (Columbia). "YEARBOOK" (Bentley†) gets the newcomer from North Carolina off to a fine start with a romantic rockabilly mood that will appeal to the highschool mob. "SUZIE'S HOUSE" (Peer†) widens his range to show that he can handle a swinging rocker along with the best of them.

Gene Vincent (Capitol). "TRUE TO YOU" (Lady Mac*) is true to the rockabilly beat and Gene Vincent works it into a side with a high spinning potential. "BABY BLUE" (Central Songs†) sets Vincent in a blues shouting groove and he does well by it, too.

The Sheppard Sisters (Mercury). "A BOY AND A GIRL" (Fifth Ave†) is fashioned along familiar rock 'n' roll lines but it still has the quality that draws plenty of spins. "EATIN' PIZZA" (Sequence*) is a slow rocker that may fill the teeners' appetites.

Dick Jacobs Orch (Coral). "PIA-KUKU-UNG-KUNG" (Merge†) is turned into an intriguing instrumental by an attractive Dick Jacobs treatment. "WHO'S TO KNOW" (T. J.†) builds along rich instrumental lines for some programming interest.

The Rock-A-Fellas (ABC-Paramount). "DON'T TORMENT ME" (B. J. Devere†) features the vocal shakes of Dallas Houston and he swings it into a side that could take off. "RED LIPS" (Milford*) could swing easily into the spinning columns because of the way Houston and the boys build it up.

Morty Craft Orch (MGM). "LONG LEGGED GIRLS OF LABRADOR" (Planetary*) has a happy quality in melodic and lyric departments and is likely to pick up some nice spinning action. "IT'S MELODY TIME" (Fifth Ave.†) is an adequate instrumental slicing.

Sil Austin (Mercury). "HEY! EULA" (Leo Feist*) gives Sil Austin a chance to take the beat out of 20th's "Long Hot Summer" and work it into a good spinning bet. "RAINSTORM" (Norboy†) pours through the grooves with a tempo that's built for the swinging terp crowd.

Reed Harper & The Notes (Smart). "SWEETHEART OF THE PROM" (Tee Pee*) works a neat beat and an appealing teen-pegged lyric angle into a likeable side that will win spinning dates. "I MISS YOU SO" (Leeds*) has enough good ballad ingredients to find an audience.

Bonnie Davis (Tune Tone). "TAKE A NUMBER FROM ONE TO TEN" (DeSylva-Brown-Henderson*), an oldie, is dressed up with a modern beat in a bouncing vocal by Bonnie Davis. "IF YOU ONLY KNEW" (Met*), a slow ballad, is also effectively belted.

Bumps Blackwell Orch (Keen). "SUMPIN' JUMPIN'" (Andrea†) is a rhythm instrumental pounded out in appropriate lowdown style by this orch. "MS & DB" (Andrea†) is more of the same.

T-Birds (Andex). "BAG PIPE STROLL" (Andrea†) is another variation on the "stroll" tempo with an offbeat bagpipe sound that could arrest some attention. "FULL HOUSE" (Guild†) is a swinging rhythm tune featuring a frantic tenor sax.

Joe Foley (Falsted). "BABY SITTIN'" (Calibert), a cute rhythm entry, is strongly delivered by Joe Foley, a promising crooner. "YOU KNOW" (Calibert†) is a classy ballad hadled stylishly by Foley.

Ocie Smith (Citation). "FANCY MISS NANCY" (Shapiro-Bernstein*) is a good rhythm tune authetically rocked by Ocie Smith and instrumental combo. "TOOTSIE, STOP" (Luetta†) is strictly in the familiar rocking groove.

* ASCAP, † BMI.

Best Bets

JIMMIE RODGERS ..... SECRETLY
(Roulette) ..... Make Me A Miracle

THE FOUR PREPS ..... STOP, BABY
(Capitol) ..... Big Man

ART MOONEY ORCH ..... SOMETHING'S ALWAYS HAPPENING ALONG THE RIVER
(MGM) ..... Louella

JO STAFFORD ..... I MAY NEVER PASS THIS WAY AGAIN
(Columbia) ..... It Won't Be Easy

THE BETTY SMITH GROUP ..... HAND JIVE
(London) ..... Bewitched

LAWRENCE WELK

Presents LARRY DEAN Singing "Pony Tail." B/W "All the Time" (Brunswick No. 55056).

Goody's Album Bestsellers

(Compiled by Sam Goody's, leading New York disk retailer whose global mail order operation reflects not only the national market, but internationally).

	Artist	Title	Label
1.	Original Cast	The Music Man	Capitol
2.	Original Cast	West Side Story	Columbia
3.	Original Cast	My Fair Lady	Columbia
4	Sound Track	Around World 80 Days	Decca
5.	Mantovani	Concert Encores	London
6.	Meredith Willson	The Music Man	Capitol
7.	Eydie Gorme	Vamps The Roaring 20's	ABC Paramount
8.	Lester Lanin	At the Tiffany Ball	Epic
9.	Johnny Mathis	Goodnight Dear Lord	Columbia
10.	Ella Fitzgerald	Sings Rodgers & Hart	Verve
11.	Frank Sinatra	Come Fly With Me	Capitol
12.	Original Cast	Oh Captain!	Columbia
13.	Sound Track	South Pacific	RCA Victor
14.	The Weavers	At Carnegie Hall	Vanguard
15.	Ella Fitzgerald	Sings Duke Ellington	Verve
16.	Harry Belafonte	Calypso	RCA Victor
17.	Edmundo Ros	Rhythms of the South	London
18.	Sonny Terry & Pete Seeger	Pete & Sonny	Folkways
19.	Pete Seeger	Favorite Ballads	Folkways
20.	Mantovani	Film Encores	London

Album Reviews

Frank Sinatra: "This Is Sinatra Vol. 2" (Capitol). One of the most consistent album sellers today, Frank Sinatra will continue the hot sales pace with this latest volume of songs. Repertoire is culled from some of his more recent pop single clicks like "Hey, Jealous Lover" and standards like "I Believe," but it's the Sinatra styling that stands out as before. Nelson Riddle is again solid with the orch backing.

"Marjorie Morningstar" (RCA Victor). There always seems to be a market for soundtrack sets, so RCA Victor's packaging of WB's "Marjorie Morningstar" ought to do okay on the retail level. Max Steiner's score has a lot of variety running from mood pieces to such lively items as "Fiesta," "Rock Carioca" and "Bullfight." And there's also Gene Kelly singing "A Very Precious Love," by Sammy Fain and Paul Francis Webster, as an added fillip. Ray Heindorf conducts the score with a sure touch.

The Art Van Damme Quintet: "They're Playing Our Song" (Columbia). The Art Van Damme sound gets an excellent showcasing in this two-pocket LP of fave melodies. The boys take off on more than 40 solid pieces and give it a lilt that's easy to take for background music or attentive terping. In all it's a slick 50-year roundup of some of Tin Pan Alley's best.

"Take Five" (Offbeat). This is an original cast recording of Julius Monk's long-running saloon revue at New York's Downstairs Room. Cast includes Ronny Graham, Jean Arnold, Ceil Cabot, Ellen Hanley and Gerry Matthews with Stan Keen and Gordon Connell at the pianos. Abbott Lutz recorded the package at the room and has picked up all the fun inherent there. The package slows up during the ballad items but picks up lotsa speed in the special material numbers and a couple of the short parodies and sketches which come over remarkably well in the groove. It's cabaret stuff that will have to get by without the benefit of air-play because of censor problems, but it's by no means distasteful.

Dody Goodman: "Dody Goodman Sings?" (Coral). There's more truth than wit to the question mark in the title of this package. Miss Goodman's styling is a little harsh and not too easy to take and the material is out of the precious store of intimate nitery repertoire. There are some who get kicks from such as "Tranquilizers," "Tired Blood" and "I'd Rather Cha-Cha Than Eat," but it will be a limited crowd at best.

Frankie Vaughan: "Man Alive!" (Epic). One of Great Britain's hottest crooners, Frankie Vaughan makes a neat album bow for the Epic people here. He's got a legitimate crooning style that will appeal to the younger set as well as the oldsters, and he belts with lyrical values that makes everything worthwhile. "Chattanooga Choo Choo," "Hit The Road To Dreamland," "East of the Sun" and even "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen" are fine examples of what the boy can do. He's assisted by Wally Stott's orch.

Ella Fitzgerald-Gordon Jenkins: "Invite You To Listen and Relax" (Decca). Now working for Norman Granz's Verve label, Ella Fitzgerald made a number of pleasing sides during her stay at the Decca factory. In this package of earlier slicings, she's teamed with Gordon Jenkins on some mellow and romantic material. "Happy Talk," "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out My Hair," "I Hadn't Anyone Till You" and "I Wished On The Moon" help make the package a delightful entry.

Mantovani Orch: "Gems Forever" (London). Mantovani already has racked up eight LP's that have passed the 250,000 sales mark (a gold LP by current disk industry standards) and "Gems Forever" is sure to join that golden gang. The lush Mantovani mood hits an enchanting stride with a flock of class items out of ASCAP's top drawer.

Betty Johnson: (Atlantic). Betty Johnson is a warm and winning thrush and her first Atlantic LP gives her plenty of opportunity to show just that. There's a charm and easy in her vocal approach that wraps up a folk tune or a ballad standard with sure strokes. "Grandfather's Clock," "Little White Lies," "I Gave My Love a Cherry" and her "I Dreamed" pop click when she was working for Bally Records show how easily she can skip from one mood to another.

Vic Dickenson Showcase (Vanguard). This is an appealing jazz album spotlighting Vic Dickenson's supple trombone with a group of topflight jazzmen including Edmond Hall on clarinet, Ruby Braff on trumpet, Steve Jordan on guitar, Walter Page on bass, Sir Charles Thompson on piano and Les Erskine on drums. Five standards are given long workovers in a traditional swing groove, although there are occasional modern touches by some of the sidemen. "Keeping out of Mischief Now," "Jeepers Creepers" and "Russian Lullaby" are standouts.

Gros.

VARIETY 10 Best Sellers on Coin Machines

1.	WHOLE WORLD IN HIS HANDS (4)	Laurie London ..... Capitol
2.	WHO'S SORRY NOW (5)	Connie Francis ..... MGM
3.	TEQUILA (7)	Champs ..... Challenge
4.	LOLLIPOP (5)	Chordettes ..... Cadence
5.	TWILIGHT TIME (2)	Platters ..... Capitol
6.	OH LONESOME ME (2)	Don Gibson ..... Victor
7.	WITCH DOCTOR (1)	David Seville ..... Liberty
8.	LAZY MARY (1)	Lou Monte ..... Victor
9.	RETURN TO ME (1)	Dean Martin ..... Capitol
10.	ARE YOU SINCERE (8)	Andy Williams ..... Cadence

Second Group

	BILLY	Kathy Linden ..... Felsted
	BOOK OF LOVE	Monotones ..... Argo
	CHANSON D'AMOUR	Art & Dotty Todd ..... Era Fontane Sisters ..... Dot
	BELIEVE WHAT YOU SAY	Rickey Nelson ..... Imperial
	IT'S TOO SOON TO KNOW	Pat Boone ..... Dot
	26 MILES	Four Preps ..... Capitol
	KEWPIE DOLL	Perry Como ..... Victor
	ALL IN HAVE TO DO IS DREAM	Everly Bros. ..... Cadence
	CATCH A FALLING STAR	Perry Como ..... Victor
	WONDERFUL TIME UP THERE	Pat Boone ..... Dot

[Figures in parentheses indicate number of weeks song has been in the Top 10]

APRIL IN ALMOLOYA

(Pac. Pal., Cal.)

By VERNON DUKE

Living in Pacific Palisades, Calif., as I do, and liking it (our house is four solid blocks from the slide area), I cannot be accused of "going Hollywood," which is a good 12 miles away. However, music business is in Hollywood, and my local friends are somewhat leery of the fact that I earn my living by writing music for Broadway.

"Why dontcha meet the demands of the home industry?" friends often inquire with some heat.

"Frankly, the industry has not been all that demanding of late; I'm not sure my merchandise is suitable," I usually reply with becoming modesty. "Would you mind telling me just what these demands are?"

No one believes my ignorance and neither do I, but the interlocutor never fails to elucidate. "OK, I'll give it to ya straight, dad. Wanna get records? Switch to rock 'n' roll. Wanna work in pitchas? Write theme songs, or, I should-off-sed, title songs. That's the new rage; catch?" I caught, but on minute examination of these fashionable phenomena, I found the new rage hopelessly old hat.

Rock 'n' roll is, as any listener over 15 knows, puerile harmonically, maddeningly monotonous rhythmically, its lyrics idiotic or meaningless, or both; at its best a feeble imitation of the shuffle rhythm used by aging tap dancers at the old Palace.

As to theme (beg pardon, title) songs, I thought they went out with "Woman Disputed, I Love You"—and that was many, many years ago. Apparently they are back with a vengeance, so much so, that no film producer, however highbrow or art-conscious, would start work without hiring one of the two or three teams, who have monopolized the idiom and won Oscars with laudable regularity by so doing to create a commercially potent "leitmotif" proudly bearing the film's title, whenever possible. One of the few exceptions was Metro's "Brother Karamazov," which monicker must have been a real stumbling block; not even the crafty creators of "Woman Disputed, I Love You" would have settled for "Brothers Karamazov, Be Mine Tonight," even though one of Dostoievsky's characters is something of a nymphomaniac.

A 'Caviar' Composer

Tossing aside these unworthy speculations I decided to practice humility and try my hand at the two reigning and lucrative fads. Being known in the trade as a "caviar" composer, my first move was to inject a little elegance into the rock 'n' roll idiom. Thus I offered "Rock-and-Rolls-Royce" and "Roll-and-Rachmaninoff"; these two essays utterly failed to impress the publishers and the A&R men—in despair I even tried the A&P man, Huntington Hartford. He couldn't be reached.

I then turned to theme, or title songs, but found that I was way late in every instance; no sooner would I compose a passionate paen bearing the announced film's title, I'd be told by my agent that Jimmy or one of the two Sammies got there first. Now, I put my foot down and wouldn't change my name to Vernie, but I wasn't licked, not by a long shot.

To the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel I hastened, there to purchase a fresh copy of the New York Times. Feverishly I scanned the theatre page, then plunged into a series of earthshaking ballads, either bearing the title of a hit show as yet unfilmed, or embellishing it with solid promotion values. I couldn't very well attend to "Time Remembered," since I already wrote that, but here, Mr. Producer, is a partial list:

1) "Blue Denim, Why Are You Blue?"
2) "Look Back in Anger, Look Forward in Joy."
3) "Look Homeward, Angel, to Baby and Me."
4) "Mike Romanoff and Juliet."
5) "Sunrise at Campobello for a Gal and a Fello."
6) "Love Is a Lark in the Dark (At the Stop of the Stairs."

I know that "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" is already in production, yet I toyed with that one too just in case. Memo to Dick Brooks: all I did was inject a four-letter adjective, and do you know what emerged? "Cool Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," which is merely sensational.

Any demands, industry?

MGM TO REPACKAGE ITS GOLDEN PLATTERS

A "Golden Circle Series" of pop singles is being prepped by MGM Records. Label will couple disks that have passed or neared the 1,000,000 sales mark.

There will be 25 disks in the promotion cut by such artists as Joni James, Billy Eckstine, Art Mooney, Hank Williams, Art Lund, Blue Barron, Dick Hyman, David Rose, George Shearing, Lennie Hatton and Ziggy Elman. The disks will come with gold labels and the diskery will push the platters via streamers, browser boxes and other display material.

AFN-Berlin Plotting Yank Jabberjockeying

Berlin, April 15.

The U. S. Armed Forces Network here is working up a new idea involving American disk jockeys. Projected show would have the top U. S. deejays tape intros to the most popular platter in their respective cities. The music will be dubbed in here.

Mark White, AFN exec, is working on the show.

'Fair Lady' Score Nixed In N. Z. Till Show Bows

Auckland, N.Z., April 15.

The owner of the music of "My Fair Lady" in New Zealand, Chappell Ltd, has issued a warning that it must not be played in this country. For more than a year music from "My Fair Lady" has been played by Auckland musicians. It is thought that the edict from Chappell arises from the incident in Australia recently, when touring pianist Liberace was warned that he must delete the Lerner & Loewe numbers from his programme.

The ban covers the playing of the Rex Harrison-Julie Andrews LP in public. This disk, not on sale in shops, here, is in great demand and most travellers to the U.S. and other dollar countries return with at least one copy. The LP, which fetches as much as $13, will not be released until the show begins its Australasian tour come 18 months from now.

JUSTICE DEPT. ENDS VISE ON WURLITZER

Washington, April 22.

Entry of a consent judgment terminating antitrust proceedings against the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., jukebox makers, was announced last week by the Justice Dept. Decree bans practices restricting sale or distribution of coin operated phonographs.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Victor R. Hansen said the action should free sales and distribution of the machines from trade restraints. Judgments were previously entered, he pointed out, with J. P. Seeburg Corp. and AMI Inc.

Pro Cleffers Don't Dig the Beat, No Money in R&R Anyway: Coslow

Although some Tin Pan Alley writers have been trying to come up with rock 'n' roll hits, many veteran cleffers adamantly refuse to touch that idiom. In the first place, pro writers find it virtually impossible to get the primitive feel of rock 'n' roll numbers and, in the second place, there's hardly any money in it for the cleffer.

Vet ASCAPer Sam Coslow elaborates on the economic mirage involved in writing rock 'n' roll material. He points out that the entire content of LP disks are made up of the so-called "good songs" while about one-fourth of the pop songs are of the same category. Since the LP market is now about 60% of the total, more than two-thirds of the consumer dollar on disks is still going for the good song, Coslow estimates.

As far as sheet music is concerned, the Coslow argument against writing rock 'n' roll songs picks up some weighty figures. He points out that the average r'n'r hit varies in sheet sales from 3,000 to around 40,000 copies. The market for "good songs" is substantially higher. Tunes like "Fascination," "Tammy," "April Love," "All The Way" and "Around the World" have topped the 500,000 marker, while a hit like "On The Street Where You Live" is nearing 1,000,000 copies.

On the duration of the sales period, Coslow points out that a good song can stay on the bestseller lists for over five months, but a rock 'n' roll hit is lucky to stay up for 10 weeks. Coslow adds to this fact that the good songs become standards and are played for years to come while r&r numbers are not likely to be heard again after their initial flurry.

Coslow asks: "Why are the disk jockeys and the artists & repertoire men so completely blind to the real solid money portion of our business?" He wonders whether it's because kids under 14 bombard stations with letters requesting their fave tunes while adults are too busy for such activity. Coslow states that the current accent on the juve songs "makes as much sense as if Macy's devoted a full-page ad to candy bars and lollipops and ignored all the merchandise their adult customers were buying, or if General Foods suddenly decided to spend their entire $50,000,000 ad budget on popsicles."

20TH-FOX DISK DEBUT WITH PAIR OF MASTERS

One of the recently launched motion picture company subsids, 20th-Century Fox Records, starts rolling this week with two releases of purchased masters. They are the Royal Jacks' slicing of "The Big Ring" and "I'm In Love Again" and Eddie Moore's "Phone Chick" and "Peppermint Kisses and Baby Blue Eyes."

According to the 20th disk brass, prexy Henry Onorati and veepee Lou Del Guercio, the company is blueprinting a release schedule of two singles a week. Diskery also is continuing to work on pactings for its own roster buildup as well scouting for master material. An album program also is being developed.

Diskery already has formed a distribution network of 30 indies to handle the line around the country.

E. B. Marks Picks Up 'Hansel & Gretel' Score

E. B. Marks has picked up the score for "Hansel & Gretal," which will be telecast by NBC next Sunday (27). Score was written by Alec Wilder (music) and William Engvick (lyrics).

The cast in the spec is headed by Red Buttons, Barbara Cook, Rise Stevens, Rudy Vallee, Paula Lawrence and Stubby Kaye. MGM Records is issuing the original cast album.

L. A. Court to Hear Case Of 6 Dissident AFMers Suspended by Local 47

Hollywood, April 22.

Superior Judge Bayard Rhone has issued a temporary restraining order to prevent Local 47, AFM, from interfering with any employment of six suspended members. The judge set a hearing on a preliminary injunction for April 25. In an injunction suit filed in Superior Court the suspended members claim that they had been elected to the board of directors for the Musicians Club, a corporation which owns and runs the building, but that before they officially took office, the Local 47 board of directors suspended them. Additionally, they claim, that latter instructed other members not to work with the six suspended musicians or also face suspension. The suit also contends that the six tooters involved weren't given an opportunity for a hearing.

Injunction handed down also restrains Local 47 from threatening other members with suspension from the local. It also decrees that the six tooters cannot be expelled from the union pending the outcome of the court hearing April 25.

Six suspended musicians were charged by Local 47 board of directors with being connected with Cecil F. Read's newly formed Musicians Guild of America, an organization which has been termed "dual unionism" by the AFM. The six musicians involved in the suit are Sinclair Lott, Vincent De Rosa, Virgil Evans, Warren Barker, Marshall Cram and Lloyd Ulyate.

They are represented by Harry Swerdlow, associated with Attorney Harold Fendler.

VARIETY Scoreboard OF TOP TALENT AND TUNES

Compiled from Statistical Reports of Distribution Encompassing the Three Major Outlets

Coin Machines Retail Disks Retail Sheet Music

as Published in the Current Issue

NOTE: The current comparative sales strength of the Artists and Tunes listed hereunder is arrived at under a statistical system comprising each of the three major sales outlets enumerated above. These findings are correlated with data from wider sources, which are exclusive with VARIETY. The positions resulting from these findings denote the OVERALL IMPACT developed from the ratio of points scored, two ways in the case of talent (coin machines, retail disks) and three ways in the case of tunes (coin machines, retail disks and retail sheet music).

TALENT

POSITIONS This Week	POSITIONS Last Week	ARTIST AND LABEL	TUNE
1	3	PLATTERS (Mercury)	Twilight Time†
2	7	DAVID SEVILLE (Liberty)	Witch Doctor*
3	1	LAURIE LONDON (Capitol)	Whole World In His Hands*
4	3	CHAMPS (Challenge)	Tequila†
5		EVERLY BROS. (Cadence)	All I Have To Do Is Dream†
6	4	CHORDETTES (Cadence)	Lollipop†
7	6	CONNIE FRANCIS (MGM)	Who's Sorry Now*
8		DEAN MARTIN (Capitol)	Return To Me*
9	10	PERRY COMO (Victor)	Catch A Falling Star* / Kewpie Doll*
10	9	MONOTONES (Argo)	Book of Love†

TUNES

POSITIONS This Week	POSITIONS Last Week	TUNE	PUBLISHER
1	1	*WHOLE WORLD IN HIS HANDS	Chappell
2	6	†TWILIGHT TIME	Porgie
3	2	†TEQUILA	Jat
4	10	*WITCH DOCTOR	Monarch
5	5	*WHO'S SORRY NOW	Mills
6	3	†LOLLIPOP	Marks
7	4	*CATCH A FALLING STAR	Marvin
8		†ALL I HAVE TO DO IS DREAM	Acuff-Rose
9		*RETURN TO ME	Southern
10	8	†SUGARTIME	Nor-Va-Jak

(*ASCAP †BMI F-Films)

On The Upbeat

New York

Robbins Music Corp., Big Three affiliate in London, copped the Ivor Novello Award for its contribution to British pop music in 1957 with one song "I'll Find You," theme for the film "Sea Wife" . . . Burl Ives' new Decca LP is a roundup of 12 classic vaude songs under the heading of "Old Time Varieties" . . . Sol Yaged's Metropole jazz group played Sunday (20) concert at Murphy's in Brooklyn . . . Gene Warner, Chart Music prexy, on Coast contacting deejays and distributors . . . Judy Scott, Decca thrush, into Blinstrub's, Boston, for one week stand May 5 . . . Four Voices set for a two-week stand at Gayhaven, Detroit, May 12.

Enoch Light, Grand Awards exec, winding up his European tour with a week in Paris and Italy . . . Erroll Garner concertizes at Kleinhans Hall, Buffalo, April 26 . . . Marvin Kolsky, recently out of the U.S. Army, joins Patricia-Kahl Music as contactman . . . George Simon has been set as associated producer-writer for the Timex All-Star Jazz Show to be telecast April 30 via CBS-TV . . . Michel Legrand due in New York from Paris early May.

Miles Davis Sextet and the Jimmy Giuffre Trio open at the Cafe Bohemia Friday (25) . . . Frankie Vaughan is due in from England for another shot on CBS-TV's "The Big Record" May 7 . . . Sammy Kaye guests on Joe Franklin's "Memory Lane" (ABC-TV) today (Wed.) . . . Deejay Ramon Bruce (WLIB) signed to the Shaw Agency . . . David Rose has written the theme song for CBS-Radio's "Masland Radio Color Roundup" to be aired May 4. Tune is called "I See A Rainbow."

London

Threatened bus strike at midnight May 5 means that Harold Fielding's Jazz at the Philharmonic shows at Hammersmith May 7 will be switched to Newcastle. Two extra London shows at Kilburn State will be held May 18 . . . Victor Silvester's band celebrates its 21st year of airing April 26 . . . Cyril Stapleton's outfit will open the newly equipped BBC-TV studios in Birmingham April 25.

Cleffer Paddy Roberts has been elected chairman of the Songwriters' Guild of Great Britain. He replaces Eric Maschwitz who has been appointed head of light entertainment for BBC-TV . . . Bandleader Eric Winstone appointed music director of Southern Television, the new indie tv outlet skedded to go into operation at the close of August . . . Songster Rikki Henderson has joined the Denny Boyce orch . . . Johnny Dankworth opens his own London jazz club next Sunday (27).

Hollywood

Jimmie Rodgers makes his pic bow in Joe Pasternak's "Snob Hill" which rolls in June for Metro . . . Barry Freeman has exited Coral Records as a promotion man to take similar post with United Artists Records, quartering on Coast . . . Edwin Morris Music is publishing "Kids Say the Darndest Things," novelty tune penned for Art Linkletter's "House Party" by Martin Wark and Hal Fimberg . . . Liberty Records is prepping a big ad campaign for Julie London's disking of "Saddle the Wind," title tune of the Metro pic in which she costars.

Ziva Rodann, recently signed by Norman Granz to wax for the Verve label, will cut an lp comprised of American standards in Hebrew upon her return to Israel this year.

Chicago

Franz Jackson Original Jazz All-Stars on an indefinite Monday-Tuesday stand at the Preview in Chi's Loop . . . Ella Fitzgerald set for three weeks at Mr. Kelly's starting July 21 . . . Hal Otis Trio, current at the Belden-Stratford's Tree room, renewed for 26 weeks . . . George Shearing five, Dakota Staton and Joe Saye Trio due at the Blue Note April 23, with Gene Krupa replacing May 21 . . . Russ Carlyle orch has pacted with Fraternity Records on a longterm deal. First two sides, due out May 19.

Charlotte Politte Trio set for a month at the White House, Minneapolis, May 5 . . . Shuffle Inn, Madison, Wis., has the Danny Ferguson band, with Gene Krupa due May 1 for four days . . . Jack Teagarden is at Ft. Wayne's Berghof Gardens through April 26. . . . Herbie Fields and his new fivesome open May 9 at the Cairo Lounge in Chi . . . Milwaukee's Brass Rail, area's flagship jazz nitery, has Gene Krupa current, with Teddy Wilson going in April 28. Marian McPartland Trio takes over May 19 for a week, and the Salt City Five opens a stand June 30.

San Francisco

"Dixieland Jamboree and Evolution of Jazz" set for May 4 at Civic Auditorium U. of San Francisco says "entire proceeds from benefit concert to go to USF Scholarship Fund," excluding, of course, pay for Earl (Fatha) Hines, Wally Rose, Burt Bales, Ronny Draper, Muggsy Spanier, Ralph Sutton, Joe Sullivan and $1,000 for Four Freshmen . . . Kid Ory band took over from Turk Murphy at Easy Street last week—Murphy heading east to play series of parties in Carolinas, then has one-month stands in Carson City and Las Vegas before opening his New York Easy Street . . . Merrill Hoover, pianist with Virgil Gonsalves Sextet, left group to become Anita O'Day's accompanist . . . Ernestine Anderson at Jack's Tavern . . . Buddy De Franco opened at the Blackhawk . . . Harry (Woo-woo) Stevens into Sacramento's El Mirador . . . Genie Stone returned to Charlie's Penthouse . . . Lee Sharpton at Burp Hollow.

Connelly's U.S.-to-Eng.

British publisher Reg Connelly flies back to England Friday (25) after a U.S. visit of several weeks.

The Campbell-Connelly exec was here for his annual music deal talks with N.Y. publishers.

LESTER LANIN
MOST POPULAR COLLEGE BAND IN THE COUNTRY

Advance sales orders TERRIFIC for new Lester Lanin EPIC LP ALBUM IN 3474 "LESTER LANIN GOES TO COLLEGE."

April 19—Just concluded—Fabulous ball at Davidson College, North Carolina.

Sherman's Epic March For Mineo's 'Crazy' Disk

Joe Sherman, pop artists & repertoire chief at Epic Records, is hitting the Philly, Chicago and Boston deejay-distributor route this week to plug Sal Mineo's newie, "A Couple of Crazy Kids."

Sherman is due on the Coast May 5 for recording sessions with the Four Coins.

Inside Stuff—Music

Vaughn Monroe is looking for as many tooters as he can get from his old band to make an album of old standards to be titled "There I'm Singing and Swinging Again." "We're checking through about 500 songs now for the good old numbers," he said. "We'll play them with a beat. From that beat the kids are following, it seems they're wanting to dance again."

Monroe says the disk business today belongs "to young, untried singers. It's like 'Cinderella' or 'Alice in Wonderland.' Here we have singers who train for years to find out what it's all about and then some kids come along and hit the top on one record. Each generation must have its own sound. We had the big band with the wonderful brass sections. Kids today have the beat in rock and roll which seems to be dominating now. But Pat Boone and others who got their start in that music have eased away from it. Perhaps we're reaching the top of a cycle and are returning to standards."

A bill which would make "The Star Spangled Banner" more singable is due to be introduced shortly in the House of Representatives under bipartisan auspices. Bill would, in effect, adopt the changes made in the National Anthem by bandleader Paul Taubman who lowered around 13 notes in the song. There are a couple of other proposals before Congress concerning the song. One would lower the entire anthem to a different key and the other would take the capital P out of the word "Power" in the third verse.

Columbia Records has leased the American Legion Post Hall on Highland Ave., adjoining the Hollywood Bowl on the Coast for a period of five years. Building was taken over by diskery following tests which showed that its acoustical qualities are comparable to most concert halls and equal to recording studios. Dimitri Tiomkin's original score for the Leland Hayward production, "Old Man and the Sea," for Warners, will be waxed there for later release as an LP album. Tiomkin will conduct.

The backer lineup for the Broadway tuner, "Oh Captain," includes several music bizites. Thrush Patti Page and her manager Jack Rael are splitting $6,000; publisher Jack Bregman (Bregman, Vocco & Conn) is in for $1,500, as is Norman Foley, professional manager of the Big Three's Leo Feist Music. On the disk end, Decca's artists & repertoire staffer Marvin Holtzman is in for $750 while Decca's musical director, Jack Pleis, invested $1,500. Former Decca a&r man Hal Webman (now with Larry Spier) is in for $750.

The first work of electronic music—music emanating from oscilla-

(Continued on page 49)

RETAIL DISK BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail disk best sellers based on reports obtained from leading stores in 22 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(R. H. Macy Co.)	Long Island—(Arcade Assoc.)	Boston—(Mosher Music)	Albany—(Van Curler Music Co.)	Washington—(Super Music)	Philadelphia—(John Wanamaker)	Pittsburgh—(Stedeford's)	Miami—(Spec's Record Shop)	Memphis—(Trent-Wood)	Louisville—(Variety Record)	Dallas—(Titche-Goettinger)	San Antonio—(San Antonio Music)	Chicago—(Hudson-Ross Music)	Detroit—(Grinnell Bros.)	Indianapolis—(Ayres)	Minneapolis—(Don Leary Music)	Cleveland—(Customs Distrib Co.)	Kansas City—(Jenkins Music Co.)	San Francisco—(Columbia Music)	Hollywood—(Wallich's Music City)	Denver—(Denver Dry Goods Co.)	Seattle—(S. Clay Music Co.)	TOTAL POINTS
1	4	DAVID SEVILLE (Liberty) Witch Doctor	4	2	7	1	1	6	4	1	3	..	1	4	3	1	3	10	3	2	8	1	..	1	154
2	3	PLATTERS (Mercury) Twilight Time	8	1	1	5	9	8	1	3	1	..	2	2	1	4	9	2	2	..	2	2	..	5	141
3	1	LAURIE LONDON (Capitol) Whole World In His Hands	1	..	..	6	..	4	2	6	..	2	10	6	2	..	1	..	4	9	3	5	..	9	95
4	..	EVERLY BROS. (Cadence) All I Have to Do Is Dream	..	..	3	..	2	..	5	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	1	6	7	4	..	2	77
5	2	CHAMPS (Challenge) Tequila	3	6	..	..	3	7	..	..	10	1	..	9	10	..	8	..	5	..	1	10	1	..	69
6	9	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Wear My Ring Around Neck	..	7	10	7	7	..	..	5	6	..	4	8	..	..	5	7	..	..	..	6	..	4	56
7	10	DEAN MARTIN (Capitol) Return To Me	..	..	5	3	..	..	3	..	..	3	5	..	8	9	..	..	9	3	9	..	..	..	53
8	16	HUEY SMITH (Ace) Don't You Just Know It	6	9	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	5	5	..	..	..	..	1	4	9	..	..	51
9	8	MONOTONES (Argo) Book of Love	5	3	9	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	4	..	..	..	10	..	..	3	..	..	42
10	5	CHORDETTES (Cadence) Lollipop	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	8	4	..	..	..	2	7	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	31
11	15	ART & DOTTY TODD (Era) Chanson D'Amour	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	6	..	..	8	..	..	..	7	..	..	29
12	13	KATHY LINDEN (Felsted) Billy	10	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	5	..	4	..	..	..	..	5	..	28
13	6	PAT BOONE (Dot) Wonderful Time Up There	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	6	3	..	7	..	..	4	..	27
14A	12	CONNIE FRANCIS (MGM) Who's Sorry Now	..	..	..	..	10	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	10	..	..	10	..	..	7	..	21
14B	11	RICKY NELSON (Imperial) Believe What You Say	2	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	21
16	..	PERRY COMO (Victor) Kew Pie Doll	..	..	..	4	..	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	20
17	17	McGUIRE SISTERS (Coral) Sugartime	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	19
18	14	PERRY COMO (Victor) Catch A Falling Star	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	18
19	25	LOU MONTE (Victor) Lazy Mary	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	17
20	22	RICKY NELSON (Imperial) My Buckets Got A Hole In It	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	6	16
21A	..	CHUCK BERRY (Chess) Sweet Little 16	7	..	..	..	4	10	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	13
21B	23	ED TOWNSEND (Capitol) For Your Love	..	5	..	8	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	13
23	18	DON GIBSON (Victor) Oh Lonsesome Me	..	..	6	..	..	..	9	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	12
24	..	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) All The Time	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	11
25	21	MITCH MILLER (Columbia) March From River Kwai	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	10

Inside Stuff—Music

Continued from page 48

tors and resonators and not from stringed or wind instruments—made in Israel was performed in Jerusalem at a concert sponsored by the Kol Israel State Broadcasting Service. The composition, authored by composer Josef Tal and realized electronically by engineers Avner Levy and Abraham Gat, "depicts" the story of the Exodus from Egypt and is designed to serve as accompaniment to a choreographic creation. The composer was present to explain his work musically and technically. Tal had worked on electronic development on a Unesco scholarship last fall and is invited to take part in an M.I.T. symposium this summer, when he will tour the U.S.

The disk industry's stereo stampede has sparked the formation of a new record club devoted to the binauraul product. New club, formed by the Stereophonic Music Society, is ready with 33 disks from the libraries of ABC-Paramount, Audio Fidelity, Counterpoint, Hallmark and Urania. Club is offering new subscribers a stereo cartridge (priced at $22.50) cuffo. Initial club purchase requirements are three disks and a yearly membership fee of $9. Disk club prexy is Benvenuto Von Halle.

Teresa Brewer has been named "American of the Year" by U. of Detroit students. She will receive the award May 3 at the annual Spring Carnival Parade. Miss Brewer was cited for "bringing wholesome entertainment to the American people." Similar awards from the Jesuit-operated university have gone in past year's to Arthur Godfrey, Danny Thomas, Ed Sullivan and Danny Kaye.

Asked for an opinion on Liberace, Canadian pianist Glenn Gould replied to the Ottowa Citizen's Bob Blackburn, "I thought he was dead." Gould was in Ottawa for a SRO concert at Capitol Theatre.

"There's been too much said about me being eccentric," Gould said, "but I don't really mind because it helps the record sales enormously . . . I shouldn't say it because it's bad for business, but I'm a record man. I'd rather listen to records than go out to a concert. I'm not impressed with hi-fi. I listen to re-pressings of recordings of the '30s with as much enjoyment as the newest ones. When they play back my recordings for me at the studio they cut out some of the fi."

Jimmy Van Heusen and Sammy Cahn have been set to write the title tune to the upcoming Ingrid Bergman-Cary Grant starrer, "Indiscreet." Tune will be published by E. H. Morris. Cleffers copped the Academy Award this year for "All The Way." "Indiscreet," which was filmed in England, will be released in the U.S. by Warner Bros.

French Disk Bestsellers

Paris, April 22.

Le Gondolier (Barclay) . . . . . Dalida
Col. Bogey March (Philips) . . . . . Miller
Only You (Barclay) . . . . . Cordy
Julie La Rousse (Pathe) . . . . . Platters
Marjolaine (Philips) . . . . . Lafforgue
Buenas Noches (Polydor) . . . . . Lemarque
Histoire D'Amour (Voix De Son Maitre) . . . . . Candido
Marches De Provence (VDSM) . . . . . Lasso
Zon, Zon, Zon (Vogue) . . . . . Becaud
La Ville (VDSM) . . . . . Renard

DAVE BRUBECK SELLS U.S. JAZZ IN NEW DELHI

New Delhi, India, April 15.

The Dave Brubeck quartet scored a hit for American jazz in an outdoor performance at the Delhi University campus before a top audience of about 4,000 young and old jazz fans. Brought to the campus by ANTA and U. S. Department of State under the exchange of persons program, Brubeck attracted a lot of attention in the local press and with the musicians in the capital city.

The performance on the Delhi University campus was well received and comes at a time when protests are becoming louder that All-India Radio should abandon its policy of emphasizing classical Indian music in favor of Western tunes.

Cleffers Square Off With Juke Ops Over Bill to Amend Copyright Act

Washington, April 22.

The battle between the songwriters and publishers, on one hand, and the jukebox industry, on the other, over licensing of music for coin machines will open tomorrow (Wed.) in Senate committee hearings on the O'Mahoney bill. Introduced by Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Patents, Trademarks & Copyrights, the bill would remove the coin machine's present licensing exemption in the Copyright Act.

Scheduled to testify for the bill are songwriters Jimmy McHugh, Richard Adler, Carolyn Leigh, Dr. Douglas Morroe, Johnny Marks and Otto Harbach. Publishers for the bill will be represented by Mrs. Bonnie Bourne. Also due to testify is Mrs. Helen S. Abert, daughter of the late John Philip Sousa. For the juke ops, reps of the Music Operators of America will be on hand to oppose the bill.

The songwriters contend that the Copyright Act's exemption of the jukeboxes, dating back to 1909, is not only unfair to them, but it discriminates against every other commercial user of music who has to pay licensing fees. It's pointed out that while coin machines may have been a novelty operation 50 years ago, today's it's big business with the juke ops grossing millions annually by use of music for which they pay nothing. The juke ops contend, on other hand, that they support the music biz amply by buying the records used in the machines and they are prime channels of song exploitation.

Numerous music and women's clubs are also supporting the bill along with such music biz organizations as the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers and Broadcast Music Inc. Both ASCAP and BMI, as licensing organizations, would be direct beneficiaries of the O'Mahoney bill.

Only 30 Years Ago

Attorney Bruce J. Gould writes VARIETY:

"While reading your article reporting the current upsurge of deejay record hops at 50c-a-head, the in-part dissenting opinion of Judge Rugus Foster in Irving Berlin Inc. versus Daigle, Fifth Circuit (1929), 31 Fed. 2d 832, supplied the pleasure of contrast. Dealing with the question of the measure of damages for copyright infringement by public performance of mechanical reproductions he wrote:

'It is hardly possible for a copyright proprietor to suffer actual damages by the public performance of his composition by mechanical means as clearly it taxes credulity to say any one would pay to attend such a performance.'

"So the world turns!"

Coral Ups Kaye, Others

Howard Kaye, formerly eastern divisional manager for Coral Records, has been upped to assistant sales chief under Norm Weinstroer. At the same time, Ed Walker has been named assistant midwest division manager under Al Oldrich while Ralph Cox goes into Walker's former spot as Chicago branch manager.

RETAIL ALBUM BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail album best sellers based on reports from leading stores and showing comparative ratings for this week and last.

National Rating This Last wk.	wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(R. H. Macy Co.)	Boston—(Mosher Music Co.)	Albany—(Ten Eyck Record Shop)	Washington—(Disc Shop)	Philadelphia—(Midtown Records)	Pittsburgh—(National Record)	Chicago—(Lyon-Healy)	Miami—(Spec's Record Shop)	Dallas—(Titche-Goettinger)	San Antonio—(San Antonio Music)	Louisville—(Shackleton Piano)	Atlanta—(Rich's Dept. Store)	Memphis—(Trent Wood Records)	Indianapolis—(Ayres)	Minneapolis—(Dayton's Dept. Str.)	Cleveland—(Highbee's)	Kansas City—(Katz Drug Co.)	Portland—(Madrona Record Shop)	San Francisco—(Sherman Clay Co.)	Denver—(Denver Dry Goods)	Hollywood—(Wallich's Music City)	Seattle—(Frederick & Nelson)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	MUSIC MAN (Capitol) Original Cast (WAO 990)	1	3	1	1	2	3	3	4	3	3	5	..	..	1	1	1	1	2	2	1	4	4	174
2	2	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) Come Fly With Me (W 920)	2	2	3	2	10	..	..	1	2	..	7	..	1	5	9	..	3	1	..	2	8	2	116
3	3	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) Warm (CL 1078)	6	4	..	8	..	6	6	5	4	8	1	4	8	6	..	..	..	8	..	3	7	..	82
4	4	SOUTH PACIFIC (Victor) Soundtrack (LOC 1032)	..	10	..	4	..	..	1	7	1	2	..	8	..	..	..	4	5	..	9	7	6	..	68
5	7	MY FAIR LADY (Columbia) Original Cast (CL 5090)	5	6	2	..	3	..	5	..	..	7	4	9	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	63
6	6	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Till (KL 1081)	10	..	..	..	..	4	7	8	..	1	..	5	..	..	..	5	6	..	..	5	..	1	59
7	5	AROUND THE WORLD (Decca) Sountrack (DL 9046)	4	..	..	10	..	..	..	9	..	4	2	6	..	10	..	..	2	9	..	..	..	6	48
8	11	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) Johnny's Greatest Hits (CL 1133)	..	..	..	..	..	2	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	7	3	..	..	1	..	44
9	8	SOUTH PACIFIC (Columbia) Original Cast (B 2579-80)	8	1	10	..	1	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	41
10	9	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) Goodnight Dear Lord (CL 1119)	9	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	1	..	..	..	26
11	18	OKLAHOMA (Capitol) Soundtrack (SAO 595)	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	7	..	8	9	..	..	..	..	5	25
12	..	JONAH JONES (Capitol) Swinging on Broadway (T 963)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	2	..	24
13A	10	CARMEN CAVALLARO (Decca) Remembers Duchin (DL 8661)	..	9	..	..	..	10	..	9	..	6	3	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	23
13B	20	PAL JOEY (Capitol) Soundtrack (W 912)	..	..	5	..	..	..	6	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	10	..	..	6	..	10	23
13C	21	WAYNE KING (Decca) Dream Time (DL 8663)	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	6	..	7	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	23
16A	17	BILLY VAUGHN (Dot) Sail Along (DLP 3100)	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	5	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	21
16B	16	PAT BOONE (Dot) Pat's Great Hits (DLP 3071)	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	21
18	22	KING & I (Capitol) Soundtrack (W 740)	..	5	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	20
19A	..	DAKOTA STATON (Capitol) Late Late Show (T 876)	7	7	..	3	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	18
19B	19	PERCY FAITH (Columbia) Viva (CL 1075)	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	3	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	18
19C	12	MANTOVANI (London) Film Encores (LL 1700)	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	18
22	14	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Fabulous Fifties (KXL 5000)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	17
23A	..	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Golden Records (LPM 1707)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	4	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	16
23B	23	BRIDGE ON RIVER KWAI (Col.) Soundtrack (CL 1100)	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	16
25	..	FOUR ACES (Decca) Hits from Hollywood (DL 8693)	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	14

Granz Jazzing Up Europe; BG, Ella, Peterson Circuit

Norman Granz launched the first of his three springtime European tours in Brussels April 11 with "An Evening With Ella Fitzgerald and the Oscar Peterson Trio." Upcoming are "Jazz At The Philharmonic," which will tour England for the first time, plus the Continent, and a trek by the Benny Goodman band.

Granz has arranged for Miss Fitzgerald and Peterson to join instrumentalists Stan Getz, Dizzy Gillespie, Roy Eldridge, Coleman Hawkins and Sonny Stitt in Paris on April 30 when they will all begin to travel under the "JATP" banner. Following French and British dates, the instrumentalists will then tour the Continent without Miss Fitzgerald and Peterson. They will be augmented by Lou Levy, Gus Johnson and Max Bennett.

Goodman's tour opens in Stockholm May 5. It will be the first time the BG outfit has played Europe since 1950. On May 25, independent of the Granz sponsorship, the band will play a week at the Brussels Fair under sponsorship of the Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. The band will feature vocalists Jimmy Rushing and Ethel Ennis.

The "JATP" unit opens in Brussels May 19.

Gomperts of Holland's Basart Due May in U.S.

Hans Gomperts, prexy of Les Editions Internationales Basart, Holland's top publishing firm, is due in the U. S. during May on a business trip.

Gompert's firm is Dutch rep for a number of U. S. publishers, including Music Publishers Holding Corp., Leeds, Bourne, E. B. Marks, the Aberbach group, and Howie Richmond's companies. It also has a disk division which distributes several indie U. S. labels.

Top Record Talent and Tunes

VARIETY DISK JOCKEY POLL

This compilation is designed to indicate those records rising in popularity as well as those on top. Ratings are computed on the basis of ten points for a No. 1 mention, nine for a No. 2, and so on down to one point. Wherever possible, only records with two or more mentions are listed, even though their total points are less in some cases than those which receive only one mention. Cities and jockeys will vary from week to week to present a comprehensive picture of all sectors of the country regionally.

*ASCAP †BMI

Pos. this wk.	Pos. last wk.	No. weeks in log	Artist	Label	Song	EAST: Jack Lacy—WINS—New York	Harry Luke—WNAB—Bridgeport	Milton Q. Ford—WOL—Washington	Howie Leonard—WLOB—Portland, Me.	Joe Smith—WMEX—Boston	Charlie Mitsakos—WLLH—Lowell	George Fennell—WHIL—Medford	Leo LaBrache—WMRC—Milford	Ronn Allard—WFEA—Manchester	Frank Ward—WWOL—Buffalo	Earle Pudney—WGY—Schenectady	Lou Barile—WIBX—Utica	Henry DaBecco—KQV—Pittsburgh	SOUTH: Jim Carley—WPIN—St. Petersburg	Paul Drew—WGST—Atlanta	Burl Q. Womack—WSAV—Savannah	Dick Pike—WNOP—Newport	John Ademy—WBIG—Greensboro	John Wrisley—WIS—Columbia	Frank Bell—WOAI—San Antonio	Ray Schreiner—WRNL—Richmond	Bob Turley—WKAZ—Charleston, W. Va.	MIDWEST: Mal Bellairs—WBBM—Chicago	Buck Leigh—WTRC—Elkhart	Dick Moore—KFBI—Wichita	Gene Clifford—WBCK—Battle Creek	Chuck Norman—KSTL—St. Louis	Will Lenay—WSAI—Cincinnati	Tom Edwards—WERE—Cleveland	Bill Mertz—WVKO—Columbus	Robb Thomas—WEMP—Milwaukee	FAR WEST: Bob Furry—KTAR—Phoenix	Jack Shefrin—KMAP—Bakersfield	Bill Ballance—KFWB—Hollywood	Clyde Cadwell—KPOP—Los Angeles	Jim Ameche—KPAL—Palm Springs	Bill Adams—KSLR—Oceanside	Cameron "Bud" Lee—KTLN—Denver	Jim Blaine—KLAS—Las Vegas	Ray Brlem—KING—Seattle	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	7	Laurie London	Capitol	*Wh'le W'rld in His H'nds	3	4						1	5	1		2	2		2	6		2	2		3	1	4	1	1	1	10	3	7	1		9	4	2	2	2		3	2	1	232
2	2	3	Platters	Mercury	†Twilight Time	*1	1	*5	3	6	1			1	2			1		9		2				5		2		7	1	1	2	4		10		10	4					2	162
3	11	2	David Seville	Liberty	*Witch Doctor	2	6		1			6		2	3		5			1		9						3			2						1					10		3	110
4	5	6	Four Lads	Columbia	*There's Only One of You			6		2	4	4				4	4		2			7	6			8		8	10				10	9		1	5			1	6		6	8		109
5A	6	2	Art & Dotty Todd	Era	*Chanson D'Amour	8	3		2	5		7			9		3						9	3								9	5	3	2			5		8			9	6	91
5B	3	9	Champs	Challenge	†Tequila		10	1					2					6					3				3			5		2				1		3			1	5	6	5	91
7	7	7	Chordettes	Cadence	†Lollipop										10					6	1						4			9	2		5				2	2	7			6	7	1		81
8	8	11	Andy Williams	Cadence	†Are You Sincere											5			4		3		1	4		2			3	10			9		6	6				8		3		79
9	9	4	Dean Martin	Capitol	*Return to Me					7				4	4		1	3	5											5		3	2					6	3					78
10	4	9	Connie Francis	MGM	*Who's Sorry Now													4						7			8			6	4		4			4	7	9			3	8	4	7	68
11	14	15	Perry Como	Victor	*Catch a Falling Star			2					5						3		2		10					1			9					3	9				9				57
12	19	3	Monotones	Argo	†Book of Love		9							6	6			5									10		5								5			8	10		2			40
13		1	Perry Como	Victor	*Kewpie Doll						6	1				3	7									10							10		5										39
14	24	2	Ed Townsend	Capitol	†For Your Love	9	2		4		5						6															4												36
15	43	2	Elvis Presley	Victor	†Wear My Ring	4														3		6		9						3	9											9		34
16	17	10	Chuck Berry	Chess	†Sweet Little 16																	4					9		2								8			7		5		31
17		1	Everly Bros.	Cadence	†All I H've to Do Is Dr'm	5	7		8	9							10			4																								30
18	10	11	Pat Boone	Dot	*It's Too Soon to Know			10					3										5		1																10				26
19A	15	5	Kathy Linden	Felsted	*Billy				9			10											1		4											10						7			25
19B	21	7	Ames Bros.	Victor	*A Very Precious Love			8											1	7			3																					25
19C		1	Paul Anka	ABC-Par	†Let Bells Keep Ringing				5	3				3																	8													25
22	25	2	Sinatra-Smith	Capitol	*How Ya' Fixed for Love						8	2	10			7			9																	6									24
23		1	Nat King Cole	Capitol	†Looking Back						2					2								6																					23
24	32	2	Joe Dodo	Victor	†Groovy				6	1																															4			22
25A	23	8	Don Gibson	Victor	†Oh Lonesome Me										7		9			10						7			8		4													21
25B	13	4	Huey Smith	Ace	†Don't You Just Know It		8			8				9													2		7															21
25C		1	Fontane Sisters	Dot	*Chanson D'Amour											1										5					6														21
28		1	Johnny Mathis	Columbia	*Teacher, Teacher					4						9																									1			19
29	12	8	Pat Boone	Dot	†W'derful Time Up There													5														6										5	10			18
30A	22	6	Lou Monte	Victor	*Lazy Mary			7			5			5																														16
30B	35	3	Ricky Nelson	Imperial	*My Bucket's Got a Hole								7																4		6														16
30C		11	Betty Johnson	Atlantic	†Little Blue Man																																								16
33A	18	14	Four Preps	Capitol	†26 Miles																8					1				4											2			15
33B		1	Kenny Rogers	Carlton	†Crazy Feeling	6																		1																					15
35A		18	Billy Vaughn	Dot	*Sail Along Silvery Moon			4													4																								14
35B		1	Tony Bennett	Columbia	*Beat of My Heart																																				7	1			14
37A		1	Patti Page	Mercury	*An'th'r Time, An'th'r Pl.			9					6			6																												12
37B		1	Jonah Jones	Capitol	*Baubles, Bangles, Beads																							2							8										12
39A	16	7	Vic Damone	Columbia	*Gigi											10						5	8																		10				11
39B	42	6	Eddie Platt	ABC-Par	†Tequila																								6		5													11
39C		15	Frank Sinatra	Capitol	*Witchcraft													8										3																	11
42A		1	Bill Haley	Decca	*Skinny Minnie				10	10				8						8									9																10
42B		1	5 Stars	Dot	†Pickin' on Wr'ng Chick'n																											7		5										10
42C		3	Billy Vaughn	Dot	*Tumbling Tumbleweed																																				3	9			10
45		1	Ricky Nelson	Imperial	†Believe What You Say																	8		7																			9			9

(Copyright Variety, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

"SAY, DARLING"...

Broadway's newest musical hit is a Sound Sensation on RCA VICTOR

Here's the Original Cast Recording, in New Orthophonic sound, exclusive on RCA VICTOR. And it's backed by: • Advertising in national magazines, like THE NEW YORKER, HIGH FIDELITY, HI FI MUSIC AT HOME, ESQUIRE, HOLIDAY, TIME, and PLAYBILL! • Ads in leading newspapers throughout the country! • Radio and TV spots to sell your customers on top-rated shows! • Complete disc jockey coverage! • Colorful new point-of-sale display piece! • Ad mats in three sizes, ready to run.

Get set for a rush of customers. Everybody's going to want "Say, Darling"! P. S. Get behind these great new pop singles of the top tunes from "Say, Darling":

TONY MARTIN sings SAY, DARLING c/w TRY TO LOVE ME JUST AS I AM 47/20-7210

DINAH SHORE sings IT'S THE SECOND TIME YOU MEET THAT MATTERS 47/20-7211

Call your RCA Victor Records distributor today, and..."SAY, DARLING"!

RCA VICTOR

Indict Horn On Payola Tax Rap

Philadelphia, April 22.

Bob Horn, former local deejay, was indicted by the Federal Grand jury (17) for evading income taxes to the tune of $9,436 for 1953-55. This was the sum due on allegedly undeclared "payola," while host of WFIL-TV's "Bandstand." U. S. Attorney Harold K. Wood stated that at least a half a dozen record distributors had told the jury of making payments for plugs.

The attorney said that in the three-year period Horn reported an income of $57,386.45 and paid $14,192.68 in taxes. According to Wood he should have paid $23,629.40 on his actual income of $80,238.45.

Bail was fixed at $500 and a bench warrant issued for Horn's arrest. The deejay now lives in Houston, Tex.

RETAIL SHEET BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail sheet music best sellers based on reports obtained from leading stores in 13 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

* ASCAP † BMI

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Title and Publisher	New York—(MDS)	Boston—(Mosher Music)	Philadelphia—(Charles DuMont)	San Antonio—(San Antonio Mus.)	Chicago—(Lyon-Healy Music Co.)	Detroit—(Grinnell Bros.)	Cleveland—(Grossman Music)	Minneapolis—(Schmitt Music Co.)	Indianapolis—(Pearson's)	Kansas City—(Jenkins Music Co.)	Los Angeles—(Preeman)	San Francisco—(Pac. Coast Music)	Seattle—(Capitol Music Co.)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	*Catch a Falling Star (Marvin)	..	1	1	1	2	5	1	8	1	1	3	7	9	.. 82
2	4	*World in Hands (Chappell)	1	3	2	..	1	5	1	..	8	4	2	..	.. 2	81
3	3	†Tequila (Jat)	..	..	4	..	2	2	2	..	4	7	4	2	.. ..	61
4	6	*Who's Sorry Now (Mills)	6	..	7	10	..	6	6	6	3	..	10	1	1	54
5	2	†Sugartime (Nor-Va-Jak)	3	..	..	..	10	3	7	8	2	..	1	7	6	52
6A	5	*76 Trombones (Frank)	..	5	6	9	9	..	..	5	9	..	..	5	3	41
6B	7	†Lollipop (Marks)	10	7	..	..	3	4	3	4	..	8	8	..	..	41
8	9	*Silvery Moon (Joy)	8	..	..	6	8	10	10	..	5	2	..	3	..	36
9	12	*All the Way (Maraville)	..	..	..	1	4	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	25
10	8	†Are You Sincere (Cedarwood)	..	..	..	..	..	8	4	..	7	..	9	4	..	23
11A	11	†Wonderful Time (Fowler)	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	7	6	1	..	10	10	22
11B	13	*Arriverdeci Roma (Connelly)	..	2	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	22
13	..	†Twilight Time (Porgie)	2	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	7	19
14	..	*Chanson (Meadowlark)	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	8	18
15		*Precious Love (Witmark)	..	4	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	13

BMI Vs. Smathers Bill

Continued from page 45

more sophisticated product of Tin Pan Alley.

6. It often takes composers and publishers years to get enough points to receive proper payments from ASCAP, whereas BMI rewards new composers promptly. What's more, the ASCAP point system is weighted against country music.

7. A lot of the so-called "pressure" alleged against BMI is merely the use of more aggressive business methods to push its own songs; and there is nothing to prevent ASCAP or ASCAP firms from using the same legitimate business methods.

8. The Smathers Bill would discriminate against the simple, free enterprise business rights of broadcasters to engage in operation of music stores, recording companies, or even the right to tape a show for delayed rebroadcasting, so BMI claimed.

9. Artists testified that, contrary to ASCAP claims, they were not pressured to sing BMI songs when they would rather offer ASCAP tunes.

Following the windup, ASCAP officials sought three days for rebuttal, it has been learned. Earlier the Senate committee had announced each side would be allowed but a single day to rebut.

There was no gainsaying the polish of the BMI performance. It was designed as a counter-balance against the ASCAP testimony —lawyer against lawyer, publishers against publishers, composers against composers, singers against singers. Since some ASCAP witnesses had been introduced by their Senators, several of the BMI witnesses also were introduced by their Senators.

The counter-punching covered virtually every point made by ASCAP witnesses a few weeks ago. In general, the BMI witnesses were used to beef up and provide corroborative detail for the points laid down by the kickoff witness—Sidney M. Kaye, chief organizer, counsel and board chairman of BMI.

There was only one real variation from the pattern. The BMI presentation was also very heavy with broadcasters and spokesmen for state associations of broadcasters. The spokesmen were carefully selected, mostly operators of small radio stations, to avoid any charge they were representing powerful web influences.

Among the testimony highlights:

Composer-entertainer Jimmy Davis, former governor of Louisiana: "I, like many other writers, whose music was being constantly performed throughout the United States, found that the welcome mat at the ASCAP door had a way of disappearing for writers engaged in the country & western, folk music and gospel music fields.

"My efforts to gain ASCAP membership extended over a long period. I made personal visits to ASCAP in my efforts to secure remuneration for the performance of my music. I never succeeded in collecting a single penny for the performance of my music, even though it was being extensively played all over the country. ASCAP was interested in a limited group of writers and a limited kind of music.

"Even if a writer of country & western or gospel music succeeded in achieving ASCAP membership, he usually found himself in the 'non-participating' group, which meant that this music became part of the ASCAP repertoire and he was given the privilege of contributing to ASCAP without any corresponding privilege of collecting performance royalties."

Kayes' 'Healthy Changes'

Sammy Kaye, orchestra leader and composer: "What the proponents of this bill are overlooking is that the music business has undergone very fundamental changes in the last 15 years. By and large, these changes have been extremely healthy ones.

"In the 1930s, there were comparatively few successful composers. There were also comparatively few successful publishers whose names ever showed up on the hit lists. In the early 1940s, there were, as a practical matter, only three record companies in the United States—Victor, Columbia and Decca.

"Today there are literally hundreds of recording companies and an examination of the bestselling records during any week of the past several years will indicate very clearly that there is more effective competition in the recording business today than there has ever been before. Today there are more writers and far more publishing companies in successful operation than there ever were before.

"All of this is good for the music business. Certainly this is good for all people interested in music and in the public interest."

Jane Pickens, singer: "I find without any foundation whatever the contention that music is being selected for recording or performance because it is licensed either by ASCAP or BMI. I also find inaccurate the contention that BMI is responsible for all 'bad' music and that ASCAP, either in the days before BMI or now, has in its repertoire nothing but fine music."

Grover C. Cobb, president of the Kansas Assn. of Radio Broadcasters: "The sole purpose of this bill, in my opinion, is to kill BMI —to rid ASCAP of competition. Millions of Americans have heard music which, without BMI, would have gone unheard."

Pee Wee King, composer and performer of country music: "The real advantage that BMI has brought to this field is its 'open door' policy and its willingness to pay for local station performances as well as network performances."

Diskery Pactings

Connie Stevens WB's 1st

Hollywood, April 22.

Warners Bros. Records, headed by prexy James Conkling has signed singer-actress Connie Stevens as label's initial pactee. Miss Stevens recently co-starred with Jerry Lewis in the York production, "Rock-a-Bye-Baby," for Paramount. Simultaneously, Conkling hired Joel Friedman for post of merchandise director.

Epic Records has added Pat Harrington and Joe Glover to its roster. Harrington sang the "I Like Ike" tune in Irving Berlin's "Call Me Madam." Glover is an arranger-conductor.

Shoshana Damari, Israeli singer, has joined the indie Seeco label. Her first album will be called "Haifa In Hi Fi."

Sue Evans, singer-harpist, has been tapped by Dot Records. Her first release, set for early May, will be an album titled "Sweet Sue Evans, Bob Thiele, Dot's v.p.-a&r chief, will also cut Miss Evans for the pop singles field. For the past three years Miss Evans has been playing hotel rooms and niteries around the country.

Bow Records, a subsidiary of the indie Arrow line, has added Buzz Clifford, The Encore, Rabbit & Geno and Ginny Angel to its roster.

Carlton Records has added thrush Lynn Evans to its roster.

Added to the Planet X label last week was songstress Ann Weldon.

Harry Tobias to Europe

Harry Tobias, of the cleffing Tobias clan and writer of the current hit, "Sail Along Silvery Moon," sailed last weekend on his first trip to the Continent.

He plans to plug his song catalog in music biz centers in England, France, Italy and the Netherlands.

Brit. Goes Stereo In June Kickoff

London, April 22.

Stereophonic disks will be put on sale here starting June 7 by The Pye disk company.

Pye execs here indicated that the platters would cost somewhere in the region of 25% more than normal LPs and the obstacle of expensive play back equipment had been overcome by Pye, which has manufactured several different types of equipment, the cheapest of which will retail at $56.

First release will be on LP by the Halle Orchestra, conducted by Sir John Barbirolli, followed by Larry Adler and Marion Ryan disks.

The HIT OF THE WEEK

MORTY CRAFT

His Orc. and Chorus

LONG LEGGED LADIES OF LABRADOR

K 12648

M-G-M Records

To The Top Again . . .

•WHO'S SORRY NOW
CONNIE FRANCIS on M-G-M

•I'M GETTIN' SENTIMENTAL OVER YOU
NELSON RIDDLE on Capitol

•BILLY
KATHY LINDEN on Felsted

•ONE MORNING IN MAY
JOSE MELIS on Seeco

MILLS MUSIC, Inc.

FOR MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAMMING:

MY MOTHER'S EYES

LEO FEIST INC.

BERJ VAUGHN

QUARTETTE

Featuring DUCKY CHARLES

After concluding 17 weeks, consecutively at SAHARA STEAK HOUSE, Miami

Currently VOYAGER HOTEL, Miami Beach

15th week and continuing indef.

ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION

JOE GLASER, Pres.

745 Fifth Ave.	203 N. Wabash Ave	407 Lincoln Rd.	8619 Sunset Blvd.
New York 22, N.Y.	Chicago, Ill.	Miami Beach, Fla.	H'wood 46, Calif.
Phone: PLaza 9-4600	Phone: CEntral 6-9451	Phone: JEfferson 8-0383	Phone: OLympia 2-9940

From The PARAMOUNT PICTURE of the same name

ANOTHER TIME ANOTHER PLACE

Recorded by

PATTI PAGE
Mercury

PAT O'DAY
Victor

VERA LYNN
London

DON CHERRY
Columbia

MARY KAYE
TRIO, Decca

Famous Music Corporation

2 NEW R 'n' Rs
By PAT BALLARD

STOP, BABY

FOUR PREPS
CAPITOL

TRUE TO YOU

GENE VINCENT
CAPITOL

BOURNE, INC.

"A VERY PRECIOUS LOVE"

from the Warner Bros. Production
"MARJORIE MORNINGSTAR"

THE AMES BROS.	RCA Victor
DORIS DAY	Columbia
THE JOHNSTON BROS.	London
BONNIE GUITAR	Dot
SLIM WHITMAN	Imperial
JACK JONES	Capitol
DICK HAYMES	Hallmark
SOUND TRACK ALBUM	RCA Victor

M. WITMARK & SONS

LATEST RELEASE

EYDIE GORME
SINGS
YOU NEED HANDS
#9925

DISKERS GOTTA HAVE AN ACT

Vaude Showing New Signs of Life Via Theatre Projects in Chicago, Denver

Chicago, April 22.

Two-a-day vaude here still looms a possibility before summer but auspiced now by a different set of promoters. Original scheme bruited by Mt. Royal Productions now has definitely cancelled until fall. The ball, however, has been picked up by suburban deejay Phil Lind and a Chi haberdasher named Mickey Goldstein, who plot a late May opening at the Erlanger legit house. Pair has picked up the option on the theatre which Mt. Royal relinquished.

New sponsors are said to be dickering Red Buttons, seen as a hot act in the wake of his Oscar garland for "Sayonara."

Promoters Frank De Francis, Mark Green and Paul Adonis, partnered in Mt. Royal, gave up on a May 9 unveiling for lack of a headliner, and were to leave this week for Las Vegas and the Coast to angle for same and scout supporting talent. De Francis said their project is still definite, with a September preem likely, though plans could go agley if the Lind-Goldstein vaudery raises the curtain first. Latter wants to run all summer, which, it it materializes would almost certainly take the edge off to Mt. Royal's production.

New sponsors haven't reached the ticket-scaling stage yet, though tariff tops will hinge on star salaries.

Lind is one of the singing Lind Brothers, whilom nitery trio. His current affiliation is with station WTAQ, La Grange.

4-a-Day In Denver

Denver, April 22.

Starting May 1 Denver will again have vaudeville.

The newly formed A & A Corp., formed by C. U. Yaeger, president also of Atlas and Atoz Theatres, with more than a dozen theatres in the state, will start a vaude policy at the newly-acquired Victory, with Chuck Gregory, formerly a producer for the Minsky circuit, producing. Frank Jenkins, a longtime vaude theatre manager, lately in publicity work for distributors, will manage. The policy will include one first-run film each week. Art Reynolds and his orchestra will be in the pit.

The show will be built with a line. Prices will range from 90c to $2.

The house has about 1,400 seats. Four shows a day will be the policy. Formerly known as the Empress, owned by the late F. G. Bonfils, publisher of the Denver Post, the house was long one of the two vaude houses here until the 1929 depression, when it closed for a few years, to open as a film house The opening vaude bill in 1919 featured Evelyn Nesbit-Thaw and her young son, Russell, in a lecture on the perils of the primrose path. On the same program was Miss Nesbit's own film, "Her Mistake."

The house presently is being face-lifted to the tune of $15,000.

BIZ DIP COULD MEAN PROSPERITY FOR ACTS

Necessity for some hard selling during this recession period, may spark in increase in talent use in certain situations. For example, in order to attract trade to the shopping centre in Stratford, Conn., merchants in that area will book acts over the weekend periods and even longer.

The Stratford Town Fair has set two high acts for four days starting May 29. Stan Bonds and the Three Condors have been inked to inaugurate the policy by Leon Newman Agency which will do the buying.

Agencies also look forward to increased use of the supermarket shows, which for the last two seasons, has provided a healthy outlet for several name troupes. Merchant organizations as well as trade groups are getting mailings from several offices outlining how acts

Bennett, Rowan & Martin To Reopen Chez May 16

Chicago, April 22.

Chez Paree, dark since March 17, relights May 16 with Tony Bennett and Rowan & Martin. Nitery had hoped to reopen Friday (25), but frantic efforts to land a headliner thought to be strong enough to lure, despite recession, fizzled.

Co-owner Dave Halper, who books for the club, returned last week from the Coast after failing to sign an act to precede the Bennett layout.

Icers as Exports; Russian 'Capades,' Belgian 'Holiday'

Ice shows have suddenly assumed a cultural value and will serve in the U. S. displays abroad. "Ice Capades" has already been okayed for a tour of Russia in one series of exchanges.

In another move, "Holiday on Ice" has been booked as an offgrounds attraction of the Brussels World's Fair during July. Negotiations were completed last week for the Morris Chalfen show to hit Europe. Likelihood is that "Holiday" will tour the Continent following its stand at the fair.

"Holiday" was found too large for the facilities of the U. S. Auditorium Theatre at the fair. Frappe frolic will instead be shown at the Palais des Sports, in midtown Brussels, to compete with off-the-grounds shows of other nations.

For this appearance, a 20-ton ice-making compresser, 17 tons of galvanized piping and seven boxcars of costumes and props will be taken to the Belgian capital. An additional headliner is still to be signed. It's likely that either Sonja Henie, Dick Button, Carol Heiss or David Jenkins will top. A special opening will be held July 4 with the diplomatic corps of every nation represented at the fair to be invited. A previous edition of "Holiday" was shown at the U. S. exhibit of the Indonesian Fair in 1955.

"Ice Capades" was reportedly touted by Sol Hurok to the State Dept. Members of the staff of the Russian Embassy thus scouted the show during its recent Chicago run, and last week the okay came through. It's likely that Hurok will again get whatever production "Ice Capades" is being exchanged for. Impresario already has the Moiseyev Ballet, which had one of the more brilliant openings last week in New York. There's the possibility that "Ice Capades" will be the exchange troupe for the Bolshoi Ballet, already scheduled for a tour.

The U. S. is apparently finding exchange groups difficult to come by. There had been, for instance, a discussion on taking a rodeo over. However, transportation of animals would run around $250,000, by ship, and afterward would come the necessity of land transport which might be even higher.

Specialty attractions peculiar to the U. S. are being sought, and most ideas presented are being carefully weighed.

Sign Eugene Loring As 'Capades' Choreographer

Eugene Loring has been signed to do the choreography for the new edition of "Ice Capades" which will open in September. He succeeds Ron Fletcher, now doing an act with Jane Kean.

Loring has been a dancer with the Ballet Theatre and has choreographed several Metro filmusicals.

'ONE HIT DOESN'T MAKE CAFE STAR'

Talent agencies are actively discouraging too rapid rises for budding record singers. The offices are telling the chirpers and their personal managers to take it easy on the price increases—"One record doesn't make a star." It would be better to work at a reasonable salary for most of the year, develop enough savvy to work the spots and prepare for the period when record hits just do not come.

They point out that the agency rolls are loaded with singers who have had one or two record hits, got themselves up to an extremely high salary and found themselves with no place to work when their disk sales slowed down.

The agencies in recent months have taken a firmer hold on salaries. They have told acts outright that takes can be trebled after one or two hits, but it would further their career if they would consent to a moderate rise, bring some business into a cafe and go back at a reasonable increase at a later date. In this way, they would create goodwill and gain necessary experience to build them up to the stature of a good performer. Ultimately they'll not need to rely on shellac as a basis of their value.

The agencies point out anew that the old proving grounds are gone. A performer can be sprung to attention by way of disks. The fact that a record can become a hit in-

(Continued on page 54)

Disk Name Shows Slip at Pitt B.O.

Pittsburgh, April 22.

Law of diminishing returns apparently has started to set in on the big record name shows around here. Flock of them in last couple of months seems to have dulled the edge. In two performances at 4,000-seat Mosque last week, package headed by Clyde McPhatter, LaVern Baker, Paul Anka and George Hamilton IV drew less than house and a half and a gross of around $15,000. Not bad, of course, but 'way below expectations and off from the toppers in this field.

Couple of nights before, Jay Michael, deejay at WCAE, collected a number of disk personalities for his semi-annual bash at Mosque and in two shows grabbed only $7,000.

New Nixon Nitery, Pitt, In Sheriff's Sale to Pay Off Welter of Debts

Pittsburgh, April 22.

Recent reprieve of New Nixon nitery from its financial woes was shortlived and room was padlocked last week because of mounting money troubles, just 15 months after doors were first opened. A few weeks ago, owners announced fresh cash and a reorganization but something went wrong in the meantime and the status quo remained.

Following a sheriff's sale, the $300,000 operation was closed down in accordance with a writ of ejection filed by the William Penn Parking Garage, owner of the site, for non-payment of April rent amounting to $2,050. Also pending is an eviction notice against Cecilia Hanlon, one of the New Nixon owners, who has been maintaining living quarters in an apartment on the property in violation of the lease.

Meanwhile, the City of Pittsburgh filed suit in Common Pleas court for three months of unpaid amusement taxes, amounting to $3,275 and other claims pending include a $8,400 lien filed by Federal Government for back Social Security withholding payments.

Principal stockholders of New

(Continued on page 54)

RC Music Hall's Axe of Glee Club Tipoff to 'New Look in Presentation'

The Radio City Music Hall, N. Y., is seeking a new look in its shows. The Hall has given its Glee Club a four-week notice to take effect at the end of the engagement of "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) which opens at the Hall tomorrow (Thurs.). The Rockefeller landmark is currently negotiating with the Tuskegee (Ala.) Institute Choir, the famed Negro group which periodically tours the concert circuits.

The American Guild of Variety Artists has been meeting with Radio City officials in an effort to stave off the loss of employment for the 25 singers. There have been a couple of confabs, but nothing is expected to materialize in this direction.

Russell V. Downing, managing director, says that the Hall is attempting to keep abreast of the times and inject new things in its presentations. He recalled that the Corps de Ballet was hypoed recently with some male dancers. From time to time, femmes have been added to the Glee Club. However, no other major change is being projected at this time, according to Downing.

Holdup in the completion of the Tuskegee negotiations is the length of the "Morningstar" show. The Tuskegee graduation exercises are slated for late May, and should the new show go beyond that date, it's possible that the Tuskegee Choir will go in for the next show. Other singing groups are also being studied for presentation at Radio City Music Hall.

It's recalled that around 1943, the Glee Club was also temporarily disbanded so that the Cossacks of the Don could come in for an extended engagement that lasted through several shows. The draft, at that time, was making it difficult to continually train new singers to work in the permanent Glee Club.

With disbanding of the Glee Club, it's likely that the Hall will up the use of soloists for use in production work. Frequently, the Glee Club singers assumed the solo chores.

Currently being negotiated by AGVA with Music Hall execs is the question of accrued vacation pay. Vacations normally start around June 1 for a three-month period and the current contract is due to end around May 29 for Glee Club members. Why the accrued vacation clause wasn't inserted in the AGVA contract with the Hall isn't known. Vacation schedule calls for a maximum of two weeks per year. One week goes to choristers who have worked a full year, and two weeks to those with a two-year employment log.

One mystery to Glee Club members is the union's failure to renew a clause in the MH contract which stipulates that the theatre, once dismissing an entire group, couldn't replace it with a similar group for a sixmonth period. Should the Hall decide to re-form the group, then the old members would be given preference.

London's Stork Room Gets After-Hours Rap

London, April 22.

London's Stork Room, one of the West End's favorite late night hangouts for show biz folks, is in trouble, accused of selling liquor after legal hours. Following a raid by the cops, William Ofner, licensee, and Joseph Cariello, headwaiter, were hauled up at Bow Street police court but denied supplying drinks after 2 a.m.

The prosecution alleged that the management appeared to separate the patrons like sheep and goats, so that the favored ones could get alcohol after 2:30 a.m. and up to 4 a.m. The hearing, which was attended in court by comedian Al Burnett, who holds 1998 shares in the Stork Room and acts as emcee and gladhander, was adjourned till June 25.

Horses Run Off, So Hot Springs Takes a Bath

By JOHN QUINN

Hot Springs, Ark., April 22.

This mineral water hot spa in the central Arkansas Ouachita Mountains has cooled off considerably as a recreational and gambling spot—a second Las Vegas—now that the racing season has come and gone (as of March 29).

Quietude is nearer the word for it now, although some semblance still remains of the once bustling season. Two clubs continue to offer floorshows, and a number offer combos and dancing, and the tables still operate. But the standing in line to grab the dominoes, or just with the 21-man, is gone.

Local observers expect the situation is likely to remain thus because of the political overtones. As little as two years ago gambling was out, but now it is back on a "tolerated" basis. How long it will be before it is out again is a guess, and hence club owners are constrained to limit investments.

Mineral water baths continue unabated as the attraction here, with the ponies gone. Which makes the bright spots a secondary issue, an accessory only. On that basis the live talent operations are bound to be limited, or spotty, and so goes the general entertainment picture.

From a half dozen spots with floorshows, the situation now sums as the Tower and the Pines, both offering live shows with no cover and no minimum, and the Southern Club with an accomplished trio and one or two other spots with music units.

What remains for the tourist is the excellent water and a generous array of scenery. It's likely to remain that way generally, as long as the political situation prevails, the club owners agree.

D. C.'s Shoreham Gets In on Motel Moola

Washington, April 22.

Washington's burgeoning tourist trade, which has spawned a number of in-town motels, is luring owners of the Shoreham Hotel into the "motor hotel" business.

Owners of Shoreham, capital's resort-type hostelry several miles from midtown, are moving ahead with longtime plans to build a $500,000 deluxe motel directly behind the main structure, where an old stable now stands. No timetable has been set for new project, but application has been filed with District and plans are being blueprinted.

Shoreham is one of few hotels here with live entertainment pol-

GILDED CAGE, NEW HUB SPOT, BOWING APRIL 28

Boston, April 22.

The Gilded Cage, Louis Cohen's new offering for the Hub cafe trade, opens Monday (28) with Gay Nineties fanfare, 10 acts, and corn beef and cabbage as the piece de resistance. Cohen, who also operates the Jewel Room, intimer in Hotel Bostonian, built the new club from scratch at an outlay of $65,000.

The boite is a 160-seater, with two "royal boxes" for celebs, plush carpeting, murals and chandeliers in the early 1900's motif. Acts already inked are chirps Margie Anderson, Betty Rhoades, Anne Casey, Vivian Emerson; Therault, banjoist; Tom Patricola Jr., terper. An emcee and four more acts are being negotiated for. Ex middleweight champ Johnny Wilson will serve as maitre.

B'way Bonifaces Do Hatfield-Coy Act In Competition for Names, Places

The major bonifaces in New York are no longer the close-knit and friendly group they used to be. The friendship between them, if it ever existed, is now a thin veil of cordiality, and within the past few weeks all groups seem to be on the edge of open warfare.

Keen competition on Broadway plus the fact that there has been no love lost between a pair of former partners, has heightened the feeling of hostility on the Stem.

The most open feud is between Lou Walters and E. M. Loew, who used to be partnered in the operation of the Latin Quarter. Walters is now working on the opening of the Cafe de Paree in competition with his former partner. The Latin Quarter has refurbished its stage, opening last night (Tues.) with a setup that probably seeks to dim the lustre of the Walters operation. Both are seeking names. Walters had sought to get Betty Grable for his opening next month, but Eddie Risman, LQ manager got her for the Latin Quarter in the fall. With similar kinds of shows, there will be a terrific battle for the tourist dollar between the both of them. Walters' spot originally set to open May 6 will now preem May 23.

Another cause of dissension is the battle between both for the cooperation of Jack Silverman, operator of the Old Romanian, also on Broadway, and situated in the same building that will house the Cafe de Paree. Walters would like to be friendly with Silverman on more than purely neighborly grounds. If Walters could get Silverman to share the same kitchen, he could save about $70,000 in construction costs.

On the other hand, Silverman has been courted by Loew. There had been some talk that Silverman would go to court in order to ascertain his rights under the lease he signed with the landlord. Lease has a clause which stipulates that he couldn't enlarge the dance space in order to protect the Arcadia ballroom, which then occupied the upper floor, now leased to Walters for a nitery. Silverman contends that such a stipulation automatically implies that the Arcadia couldn't be turned into a cafe. Protection clause, in his opinion, had to have a degree of mutuality. The Walters faction has accused the Loew group of steaming up Silverman on that issue.

Jules Podell, of the Copacabana, is in another part of town. He's competing with all three for the buying of names, and considers himself seeking similar type trade despite the respectable distance from them.

Time was when the operators of the major clubs used to go to each others' openings. With the exception of the recent Billy Vine Memorial dinner, there hasn't been a boniface in a strange bailiwick of late.

Bullfighting Goes North-of-the-Border As Can. Town's Tourist Peg

Toronto, April 22.

With Elizabeth Balboa billed as the "only Canadian bullfighter in the world," the first bullfight ever to be staged in Canada is scheduled by the Chamber of Commerce of Lindsay, near here, as a tourist attraction for Aug. 2-4 inclusive. Okayed by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the bouts will be bloodless, this reputedly making the tussles more dangerous. Six bulls, as well as picadors, matadors and banderillos, will be imported from Mexico. (Lindsay is the home-town of Leslie Frost, Conservative premier of Ontario.)

According to Chamber of Commerce officials and the SPCA, no bulls will be killed but there will be all the pageantry that goes with a bullfight, with each bout running 15-20 mins. and protection of horsemen if the fighter faces goring. One of the stipulations is that the railing around the Lindsay fair grounds be such as to allow the bull-fighters to skip across the barriers should the fight become too dangerous.

LaRosa Show in Portland 35% Off Last Year's Pace

Portland, Ore., April 22.

The Julius LaRosa Show wound up a 10-day stint at the 1958 Home Show Sunday (20) to a gate of 54,500 customers. This is a 35% decrease from last year when Guy Mitchell was the star.

The 90c admish was good for all the exhibits and the 5,000-seater stageshow presented twice nightly with extra matinees on weekends (11-20).

CNE Okays Kaye; 100G-Plus Deal

Toronto, April 22.

Board of directors of the Canadian National Exhibition approved the contract whereby Danny Kaye will headline the 24,000-seater grandstand show for night performances, Aug. 20 to Sept. 6.

While Jack Arthur, producer, refused to talk, it's believed deal will give Kaye $100,000 plus 50% of all receipts over $472,000. On similar contract, Bob Hope broke the CNE grandstand record, established by Ed Sullivan, racking a $479,000 gross last season. Hope took some $104,000 as his share for the fortnight.

HARD-TICKET VAUDE GETS B'WAY BRUSHOFF

Hard ticket vaude has had tough sledding this season on Broadway. The three to attempt the run this year had short-lived careers. Joyce Grenfell will close Saturday (26), one week earlier than originally anticipated. Show played the Lyceum Theatre. Mort Sahl's "The Next President" closed Saturday (19) after 10 days.

Previous eight-show weekly vaudeer, "International Soiree" starring Patachou, also had a brief-lived run.

Vaude, Cafe Dates

New York

Kathy Linden and Lorrie London have signed with the William Morris Agency . . . Charlie Applewhite into the Casino Royal, Washington, April 27. . . Peg Leg Bates inked for Radio City Music Hall, starting May 22 . . . Four Lads opening at the Holiday House, Pittsburgh, May 19 . . . Rowan & Martin go to the Mapes, Reno, May 19 . . . Tina Robins pacted for the Chase Hotel, St. Louis, June 19 . . . Jane Dulo and Felicia Sanders joined the show at the Bon Soir, last night (Tues.) . . . Jackie Kannon inked for the Town & Country, Brooklyn, May 9 on the Tony Martin bill . . . Judy Scott goes into the Adolphus Hotel, Dallas, starting June 19 . . . Arlene Francis hostessing the Lively Arts luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria tomorrow (Thurs.) for the benefit of the United Cerebral Palsy Fund . . . Lynn Kerval preemed Monday (21) at the Cafe Grinzing.

Mata & Hari booked for the Caribe Hilton, San Juan, May 31 . . . Jose Greco going into the Palmer House, Chicago, Sept. 23. . . . Short Twins started at the Lotus Club, Birmingham, Monday (21) . . . Herb Shriner slated to do a fashion show at the Shamrock Hilton Hotel, Dallas, April 26, under auspices of Sakowaltz, a department store, for the benefit of the Eyes of Texas Inc., Sight Foundation building fund . . . Barney Ross and Michael Sean O'Shea holding an after-dinner party for artist Chester Congolani at the Little Studio tonight (Wed.).

Hollywood

Harry Reichman back at his maitre d' post at the Crescendo following six weeks of recupping from major surgery . . . The Hi-Lo's have pushed back their two-month European trek until September because of forthcoming commitments during May-July . . . Comics Marty Allen and Mitch DeWood open a five week stand with Nat Cole at the Cocoanut Grove tomorrow (Thurs.) . . . Count Basie's orch opens at the Crescendo June 20.

Paris' Fraday Huddling In Vegas on Lido Show, An Intact Airlift Job

Rene Fraday, co-producer with Pierre Louis-Guerin of the Lido, Paris, flew in for a quickie huddle with the Desert Inn syndicate which is taking over operation of the long-dark Stardust, ill-fated Las Vegas hotel. Its 1,500 rooms makes it the largest in Nevada.

Le Lido de Paris will be the tag of the nitery, a replica of the famed Champs-Elysees cabaret-theatre and, because of its more modern trappings, also a combination of what the old Bal Tabarin had to offer. Unlike the Bal's lone elevator stage, the Stardust has six such stages in its 700-capacity room.

Show, which debuts for a six-month run July 2, is being flown intact over the polar route from Paris on June 20 and include 28 Bluebell Girls, French panto comic Campo, German juggler Eric Brenn, French Olympic ice-skating champion Jacqueline Du-Bief, with other talents to be set. It's coming to the U. S. as a traveling attraction.

As with the Lido shows, Guerin and Fraday produce them, staged by Donn Arden. The show is rehearsed entirely in Paris—the American male chorus is flown over and also rehearsed abroad—along with the French-made costumes and general production. Only the heavy sets are being built in Hollywood.

Fla. Books Soph for '59

Apparently, it's never too early to start booking for the Florida winter season. The first definite date to be inked for the heart of the season was made last week with Sophie Tucker tapped to play the Latin Quarter, Miami Beach, next January or February.

Early booking indicates that the talent batle, particularly between the Latin Quarter and the Casino de Paree, will be particularly bitter.

Diskers Gotta Have an Act

Continued from page 53

dicates they have something for audiences. They need live appearances to bring out that facet, and the more they work, the better their chances are.

For this reason, agencies are querying personal managers on the degree of control they exercise over their charges, and what the managers' views are on salary. Should the managers give the wrong answers, they're likely to find it difficult to get the agency representation they desire.

Some personal managers are also hep to the new salary pattern for diskers. In one instance, the handlers of Jimmie Rodgers have virtually withdrawn him from personal appearances, despite the fact that he's come up with four big-sellers on the Roulette label. He's being coached on the mores of cafe and tv work, given choreography, and schooled in an act that may provide the necessary grooming.

In another instance, a girl singer is being sold at virtually any price in order to give her enough work to overcome certain deficiencies in in-person work.

The date-diggers also point out that the time for an act to start building is before or immediately after the first hit disk. While they engender a certain demand on the part of operators, they scarcely drum up enough interest by the customers to warrant big salaries. The cafe public has too frequently been burned by diskers who cannot perform satisfactorily. If the record name is big enough, the cafes get a lot of youngsters with hardly the means to cover the minimum charge. For example, there's hardly a room in New York that will buy a name solely on the basis of his or her wax performances, although it was the custom a few years ago to do so in some instances.

MacRae's Similar View

Hollywood, April 22.

Singer - actor Gordon MacRae doesn't think agents booking teenage singing stars into niteries are making the right move. His thinking stems from the fact that the nitery biz is bad right now—and the kids who buy records can't afford, or aren't old enough, to frequent the clubs.

MacRae feels that most talent that hits the top via one hit record, especially in the rock 'n' roll field, is not seasoned enough to headline a club as so many of them are doing today.

"I can't understand why the club owners don't realize that the reason their business is bad is that they book the wrong type of act. What patron is satisfied with a singer sans an act? The day of freak bookings is over.

Champ Butler Bankrupt

Hollywood, April 22.

Champ Clark Butler, who rose from an auto park attendant at the Mocambo nitery to a singer, filed bankruptcy proceedings yesterday (Mon.).

He listed liabilities at $18,343, with no assets.

New Nixon

Continued from page 53

Nixon were Mrs. Hanlon, Harold Gray and James Martier. William Penn firm is now negotiating with several parties interested in obtaining a new lease and reopening the Nixon. One is James Fallon, of Fallon Enterprises, who in the sheriff's auction purchased the chairs and tables at a high bid of $500. That was all that was sold.

General opinion locally is that nitery will shortly get going again under new management, with possibly some of the present ownership in on the deal. Feeling is that if New Nixon can hang on for couple of years, it'll be a gold mine when big Civic Auditorium, which will be located only a block or so away, is completed.

BOSTON SMASH HIT
THE GLAMOROUS NEW HOTEL
AVERY
Show folks are raving about the all new Hotel Avery. All new, large, beautifully furnished deluxe rooms with private bath and television. Many Air Conditioned.
AVERY & WASHINGTON STS.

BILLY GLASON'S FUN-MASTER
PROFESSIONAL COMEDY MATERIAL for all Theatricals
"We Service the Stars"
Big Temporary Special on All
35 Gag Files for $15, Plus $1.00 Postage
Foreign: $1.50 ea., 35 for $40
3 Parody Books, Per Bk. . . . $10
4 Blackout Books, Per Bk. . . . $25
Minstrel Budget $25
How to Master the Ceremonies . . . . . $3 per Copy
No C.O.D's "Always Open"
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., N.Y.C., 19 Circle 7-1138
(WE TEACH EMCEEING and COMEDY)
(Let a Real Professional Train You)

"THE COMEDIAN"
The Only Real Monthly PROFESSIONAL GAG SERVICE
THE LATEST — THE GREATEST — THE MOST-UP-TO-DATEST
Now in its 92nd issue, containing stories, one-liners, poems-ties, song titles, hecklers, audience stuff, monologs, parodies, double gags, bits, ideas, intros, impressions and impersonations, political, interruptions. Thoughts of the Day, Humorous Views of the News, etc. $24 yearly. 3 Yrs. $60—Single Issues $3
Foreign: $35 Yr.—3 Yrs. $90
Single Issues $4—No C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54 St., New York 19

THE WINDSORS
Currently
SAHARA HOTEL
Las Vegas
Milton Deutsch Agency Inc.

CAB CALLOWAY
Featured in
PARAMOUNT'S
"ST. LOUIS BLUES"
Mgt. BILL MITTLER, 1619 Broadway, New York

BOX OFFICE DYNAMITE ! !
JOAN BRANDON
WORLD'S GREATEST HYPNOTIST

"This fair is recognized as the most outstanding County Fair in Texas . . . we feel the success enjoyed this year reflects the popularity and genuine appreciation of your show. People here are still amazed at the masterful demonstrations of mass hypnosis."
G. Raymond Kelly, Chairman, Feature Attractions Committee
JUST COMPLETED HOME AND SPORTS SHOWS, Lincoln, Neb and Youngstown, Ohio
Currently Touring Florida and Texas Home and Sport Shows
Mgt.: J. BRANDON, 450 W. 24th St., New York

The DEEP RIVER BOYS
Starring HARRY DOUGLASS
9th International Tour
Currently STAGE DOOR, Toronto
Cross Canada Hit Parade CBC-TV

Direction: WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY
Pers. Mgr.: ED KIRKEBY

"DAZZLING!"

"HIT!"

"SPECTACULAR!"

"DELIGHTFUL!"

"STATUESQUE!"

"GREAT!"

"PERSONALITY!"

"FABULOUS!"

DON HEARN
Washington Daily News
". . . Capricious good humor. Draped in lush luxury, a dazzling*, statuesque* and cushiony blonde who just could stand in the spotlight and not utter a sound—she's that fabulous*."

ALAN FRAZER
Boston-American
"Sprightly material . . . A big hit* . . . As great* to hear and so wonderful to see . . . delightful*."

EARL WILSON
New York Post
"Miss Cheesecake gives up TV for Grand supper clubs and night club circuit."

THE GAZETTE
Montreal, Canada
"T.V.'s Geene Courtney, Spectacular* Blonde sings of love and things in a light hearted manner."

FRANK FARRELL
N. Y. World Telegram
"Material tailored for Cotillion and Persian Room."

VARIETY
"Great material . . . easy-going personality* . . . a feast for the eyes."

CASINO ROYAL
Washington, D. C.

Miss Geene Courtney
William Morris Agency
New York, N. Y.

Dear Miss Courtney:

No one on our stage has ever looked lovelier than you and your performance stamps you as a real talent. We want you back real soon. If your itinerary permits, please try to save a week for us soon.

With best wishes,

Lee Zeiger

LEE ZEIGER
Casino Royal, Wash. D.C.

May 12th (2 weeks)
LE CABARET, Toronto

May 26th (2 weeks)
ALAMO ROOM, Detroit

GEENE COURTNEY

Special material, EDWARD C. REDDING Gowns: KATHRYN KUHN

Public Relations, LARY GORE ASSOC. Direction: WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

VARIETY BILLS

WEEK OF APRIL 23

Numerals in connection with bills below indicate opening day of show.

NEW YORK CITY

Music Hall 24
Corps de Ballet
Great Barton
Malini
Lucile Cummings
Rockettes
Glee Club

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE
Tivoli 28
Shirley Bassey
Vic Hyde
Lili Berde
Clifford Guest
Curbas (4)
George Holmes
Neal & Newton
Eleanor Gunter
Joe Martin
3 Winds
Jimmy Jeff
David Sterle
Irene Bevans
Rae Morgan
Reg Priestman
Norman Thorpe
SYDNEY
Tivoli 28
Larry Griswold
Johnny Lockwood
Eagle & Man
A Robins
Hayes & Faye
Anny Berryer
Medlock & Marlowe
Winnetou & Squaw
B & D Stuchbery
Jimmy Parkinson
Edit Juhasz
Frank Ward

BRITAIN

ASTON
Hippodrome 21
Blondie Haigh
Gabrielle
Billy Roche
Sadie Corrie
Wendy, Mandy & Sandy
BIRMINGHAM
Hippodrome 21
Michael Holliday
Hal Monty
De Vere Co.
Peter Crawford 3
El Granadas
Bernie & Barbara
Jolly Jesters
Finsbury Park
Empire 21
Charlie Gracie
Candy Sis
Margo Henderson
O'Neill & Blaig
Benson Dulay
Tassi
Kid & I
GLASGOW
Empire 21
Hilltoppers
Gold & Cordell
Authors & Swinson
Alan Clive
Margerite & Charles
Teio Baranton
J & J Dawson
Ray Alan LEEDS
Empire 21
Ruby Murray
Lundon & Pam
Tommy Lockey
Etv Van Veen Duo
Jimmy Gay
Jones Boys
Skylons
Audrey Jeans
LIVERPOOL
Empire 21
Olsen & Johnson
Marty May
June Johnson
Fraser Hayes 4
Ossie Noble
Konyots
LONDON
Metropolitan 21
King Bros.
Don Fox
Joyce Shock
Bruce Forsyth
Francois
Zandra
3 Majestas
Skating Merenos
Tommy Locky
Palladium 21
Jerry Lewis
Kaye Sis
Roger Price
Marino Marini & Co
R & J Jover
Skating Vandos
Geo. Carden's Co.
NORTHAMPTON
New 21
Terry Cantor
Red Preston
Toiya Kee
Julie
Colleen Laine
Beverley Lambert
Kenny Cantor
Barry Young
Dale Warren
Specialities
NOTTINGHAM
Empire 21
Dickie Valentine
N & N Grant
Joan Rhodes
Ken Roberts
Smoothey & Layton
Hill & Billie
Illona Sis
SHEFFIELD
Empire 21
Edmund Hockridge
Fuller & Janette
Yana
Gordon & Colville
Walthon & Dorraine
Norman Vaughan
Rhoda Dixon
SOUTHAMPTON
Grand 21
S & M Harrison
Tanjee & Paul
Roy Rivers
Jpmpin' Jax
Jack Stainer
Pat Pedrick
Susan Cole
Anne Roberts
SUNDERLAND
Empire 21
Denny Willis
Margery Manners
Carl Ames
Sonny Jenks
George Rex
Travalls
Lizette & Renay
Johnny Mack

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

Blue Angel
George Lafaye
Anita Ellis
Dorothy Loudon
Bart Howard
Jimmie Lyon Trio
Bon Soir
Felicia Sanders
Larry Storch
Jane Dulo
Three Flames
Jimmie Daniels
Casanova
Donna Dunn
Margrit & Adrienne
Chateau Madrid
Mario Escudero
Elsa Maryel
Raul & Eva Reyes
Candi Cortez
Ralph Font Ore
Panchito Ore
Copacabana
Jimmi Durante
Sonny King
Jack Roth
Cathy Carr
Ted Morrell
Mimi
D & G Prior
Michael Durso Ore
Frank Marti Ore
Downstairs Room
Julius Monk
Ronny Graham
Ceil Cabot
Ellen Hanley
Jean Arnold
Gerry Matthews
Stan Keen
El Chico
Marisa Terol
Lucerite Tena
Carlos & Myrna
Mellitas Del Campo
No. 1 Fifth Ave.
Phyllis Diller
Bob Downey
Dean Sheldon
Harold Ponville
Joan Bishop
Hotel Pierre
Stanley Melba Ore
Joe Ricardel Ore
Betty Benee
Hotel Plaza
Jane Powell
Ted Straeter Ore
Mark Monte Orc
Hotel Roosevelt
Sammy Kaye Ore
Hotel Statler
Xavier Cugat Ore
Hotel Taft
Vincent Lopez Ore
Hotel St. Regis
Bill Hayes
Florence Henderson
Milt Shaw Ore
Ray Bari Ore
Latin Quarter
Sallie Blair
Bernard Bros.
Bob De Voye 3
Francis Brun
Quett Clayeo
Jo Lombardi Orc
B Harlowe Orc
Le Cupidon
Monique V. Vooren
Ish Lindsay Ore
Old Romanian
Harvey Stone
June Perry
Bob Brooks
Mac Pollack Ore
McKenna Line
Town & Country
Sophie Tucker
Billy Fields
Buster Burnell
Dancers
Ned Harvey Ore
Sicari Ore
Viennese Lantern
Kitzi Kracos
Ann Tori
Ernest Schoen Ore
Paul Mann
Village Barn
Tony Lavelli
Pete Pedersen
Marshalls
Larry McMahon
Piute Pete
Bobby Meyers Orc
Village Vanguard
Kingston Trio
Ben Webster
Waldorf-Astoria
Maurice Chevalier
Emil Coleman Orc
Bela Babai Ore

CHICAGO

Black Orchid
Johnny Mathis
Gary Morton
Joe Parnello (3)
Blue Angel
"Tropical Holiday"
Carmen Amano
Pedro Roman
Glamazons
Lord Christo
Blue Note
Geo. Shearing (5))
Dakota Staton
Joe Save Trio
Cloister Inn
Eddie Higgins Trio
Beverly Kelly
Ramsey Lewis Trio
Drake Hotel
Connie Moore
Jimmy Blade Ore
Gate of Horn
P Amaya & C. Torres
Will Holt
London House
Barbara Carroll 3
Mister Kelly's
Martha Davis & Spouse
Marty Rubinstein 3
Marx & Frigo
Palmer House
Varel & Bailly
Les Chanteurs de Paris (7)
Mata & Hari
Tippy & Cobina
Martha Schlamme
Ben Arden Ore

LOS ANGELES

Avante Garde
Ruth Olay
Don Adams
Eddie Cano Trio
Ben Blue's
Ben Blue
Kay Cee Jones
Barbara Heller
Sammy Wolf
Joan Kayne
Dick Barrie
Ivan Lane Ore
Coconut Grove
Nat "King" Cole
Allen & DeWood
Russ Morgan Ore
Crescendo
Paul Gilbert
Jeri Southern
Renet Touzet Band
881 Club
Johnny Walsh
Interlude
Cal Tjader Quintet
Largo
Mickey Rooney
Joey Forman
Larry Potter's
Supper Club
Phyllis Inez
Sandy Sims
Mocambo
Roberta Sherwood
Frankie Sands Trio
Paul Hebert Orc
Moulin Rouge
De Castro Sisters
Donn Arden Revue
Dick Stabile Orc
Slate Bros.
Sir Richard Drake
Allen Roberts
Tommy Gumina
Statler Hotel
Lucille Norman
Lucille & Eddie
Roberts
Ed. Bergman Orc
The Seville
Sandra Barton
Sonja
Rickey Vallo
Al Escobar Orc
Ye Little Club
Fran Jeffries

HAVANA

Capri
Luisa Chorens
Somavilla Ore
Calvet Ore
Hilton
Xiomara Alveres
Nacional
Betty Reilly
Parisien Dncrs
Dancing Waters
W. Reyes Ore
Riviera
Iglesias Ballet
Aida Ramirez
Maria Tabrigas
Antonio Espanol
Pepe Segundo
Feltx Ultrera
Rivera Ore
Sans Souci
Tony Foster
Gloria & Rolando
Victor Alvarez
Miriam Barreras
Elena Burice
Raquel Mata
Kary Russi
La Serie Ore
Ortega Orc
Tropicana
Erlinda Cortes
Alberto Rochi
Blanca Varela
Gladys & Freddy
Riveros
Guaracheros
Monica Castel
Tropicana Ballet
S Suarez Orq
4 Romeu Orq

LAS VEGAS

Desert Inn
Gordon MacRae
Sheila Stevens
Kay Ballard
Van Alexander
Donn Arden Dncrs
Carlton Hayes Ore
Dunes
Frankie Laine
Jack E. Leonard
The Belmonts
Dunes Dancers
Cee Davidson Orc.
El Cortez
Dubonnet Trio
Dick Saunders
Marcie Miller
Deedy & Bill
El Rancho Vegas
Joe E. Lewis
Rita Moreno
Barry Ashton Dncrs
Dick Rice Orch
Flamingo
Tony Martin
Alan Drake
Don Kirk
Flamingoettes
Jack Cathcart Ore
Dick Contino
Fremont Hotel
Jodimars
Make Believes
Magnetics
Shirl & Earl Mortensen
Golden Nugget
Harry Ranch
Jig Adams
Charlie Boyer
L & F Maynard
Riviera
Sam Levenson
Patti Moore
Ben Lessy
Dorothy Dorben
Dancers
Novelites
Ray Sinatra Orc
Sahara
Martha Raye
4 Step Bros.
Sons of Morocco
Saharem Dncrs
Mary Kaye Trio
Louis Basil Orc
Beachcombers
Sands
Frank Sinatra
Bennett & Patters'n
Copa Girls
Antonio Morelli Or.
San Souci
"Midnight in Paris"
Bobby Morris
Pat Moreno
Ray Parsons
Sherry Malone
Cindy & Alberto
Jeanne Masson
Mlle. Zabuda
Bobby Blue Ore
Showboat
Hank Penny
Shirley Scott
Garr Nelson
Showboat Girls
Vic Artese Ore
Silver Slipper
Hank Henry
Annie Maloney
Peggy Dieterick
Kim Athas
Jimmy Cavanaugh
Sparky Kaye
Mac Dennison
Geo. Redman Ore
Thunderbird
Frank Gusto
Joe Fornaro
Tropicana
Ernie Kovacs
Edith Adams
Elaine Dunn
Dante D'Paulo
George Chakiris
Lizanne Truex
Jack Ackerman
Nat Brandywynne

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

Americana
Lonnie Sattin
Norman & Dean
Jackie Heller
Lee Martin Ore
Maya Ore
Balmoral
Charlie Farrell
Irving Fields 3
Billy Mitchell
Mickey Gentile
Jose Curbelo Ore
Carillon
Denise Darcel
Sammy Shore
Dunhills
Dick Sterling
Jacques Donnet Ore
Deauville
Smart Affairs
Larry Steele
Rose Hardaway
Sir Lionel Beckels
Wanderers (4))
Leonard Bros.
Flash Gordan
Lon Fontaine
Beige Beauts
Walter Nye Ore
Eden Roc
Patachou
Sonny Howard
Elissa Jayne
Jonah Jones
Rascha Rodell
Mal Malkin Ore.
El Patio
Wingy Manone 4
Rudy Ferguson 3
Bobby Sherwood
Empress
Barry Sisters
Larry Best
Fontainebleau
Don Cornell
Kaye Ballard
George Tapps Co.
Murray Schlamm
Sacasas Orc
Pupi Campo Ore
Lucerne
Havana Mardi Gras
Diosa Costello
Milos Velarde
Don Casino
Tonia Flores
Tony & Brancella
Juan Romero
David Tyler Ore
Luis Varona Orc
Murray Franklin's
Murray Franklin
Dick Havilland
George Kirby
Dolores Leigh
Phyllis Arnold
Snuffy Miller
Eddie Bernard
Nautilus
Mac Pepper
Carlos & Yvonne
Syd Stanley Ore
Sans Souci
Mickey Katz
Freddy Calo Ore
Paul Seers
Voyager
Damita Jo
Berl Vaughn 4
Roy Branker

SAN FRANCISCO

440 Club
4 Sharps
Lenny Bruce
Gloria Padilla
Backstage
Joanne Beretta
Bernard Brace
Blackhawk
Buddy De Franco
Vido Musso
Easy Street
Kid Ory Orc
Crest Lounge
Pete Daily Orc
Fack's 11
Frances Faye
Fairmont Hotel
Mills Bros.
E. Heckscher Orc
Gay 90's
Bee, Ray & Ray K. Goman
Joe Healy Dncrs 6
Wally Rose Orc
Hangover
Earl Fatha Hines Orc
Muggsy Spanier
Joe Sullivan
Hungry I
Ada Moore
Marsh Bros.
Gateway Singers
Jazz Showcase
Paul Bley 4

(Continued on page 63)

New Acts

JACK DE LEON
Comedy
25 mins.
Americana, Miami Beach

This blonde, personable comedian has the potentials for better things in all mediums once he gets his stuff edited to a more concise, brisker pattern—a matter of time, for currently he works with plenty know-how in dispatching his batch of offbeat, original comedic concepts.

This is DeLeon's second shot in a class room along the hotel circuit (he played last winter at tailend of the ill-fated Leonidoff revue at the Deauville). Impact here is solid, with the laughs coming steadily, once he gets rid of some mild opening biz and embarks on the meat: a canny series of impreshes and odd characters that hit big.

The guy sings okay, can hoof and takes even the worn premise of Army life to twist it into a fresh bit pegged to breakins of the "River Kwai" theme. It's a howl-raising event illustrative of his original approach to material. Delivery-wise, he works in smooth, easy manner, with authority, to command attention from walkon. With proper pruning and tighter pacing, he'll be ready for the better spots and video guesters.

Lary.

FOUR PREPS
Songs-Comedy
25 Mins.
Ankara, Pittsburgh

The Four Preps, who came out of nowhere with their Capitol waxing of "26 Miles," can play any place, any time. Young boys—probably not much more than 80 years among the four of them—are fresh, funny and loaded with talent. The harmony itself is mighty ear-easy and that alone could put them in clover but Preps have been smart enough to put together a turn that doesn't depend strictly on the pipes.

Much of their appeal, of course, is in their youth, which they kid about in kind of running gag without overdoing it. And every one of them is a definite personality, backed by a solid sense of humor. Very little straight singing, except in "26 Miles" and one of two others, with most everything pointed to a light flavor. A particularly good piece of special material, in which they wish, with a wink, that the big name male quartets would get lost in the draft, gives them a chance to take off such foursomes as the Lads, the Aces and the Crew Cuts, and the lampoons are droll and devasting.

The bit has a genuine sparkle, but then so does practically everything they do. Cohen.

SAM WHITE
Songs
10 Mins.
Cave, Vancouver

Protege of Jimmy Wakely and a veteran orch leader in the country style, Sam White makes his debut as a solo act at this bistro, and to great effect. He's a sonorous basso with a flavor that he supports with some expert stuff on guitar. His prior forte was as bass player, but for the past seven weeks has guested on Wakely's CBS airings from Hollywood.

In build, singer is hefty, but packs no spare blubber, and he's neat of appearance with warmth of manner, projecting well. He can ring the changes from solemn balladeering to vigorous rhythm 'n' blues, that's a versatility few basement voices possess, and is an articulate emcee.

Probably the edge he'll win with is those timbred pipes. A little wavery on the high tones yet, which could be due to the standup shakes. Certainly can hold the elbow-benders for the duration of his stint, and should be good second billing for anybody's rostrum. Toms.

GIGI MENDEY
Dance
16 Mins.
Gatineau, Ottawa

Gigi Mendey has standout stacking and plenty ability in terp, both amply displayed in femme's costuming (minimum) and routining. Biggest is her Caribbean session, done to drumbeats only. Gatineau Club uses her twice in each show, gal able to fill the room's big floor and collect solid customer attention.

Miss Mendey is not a billtopper but would be strong on any nitery or television bill. Gorm.

House Reviews

Apollo, N. Y.

Louis Jordan & Tympany Five, Dottie Smith, Norma Miller Dancers (9), Zeniths (4), Ruth McFadden, Apus Brooks & George Wilshire; "Golden Hawk" (Col).

Harlem's high spot has a fresh and bouncing array of talent this time and it's bound to pay off around the clock. Headlining the week's engagement is Louis Jordan and his group of five musicians including the attractive Dottie Smith, who warbles all types of melodies with considerable distinction.

Jordan and his vocal-instrumental specialties are indeed standouts. What the Jordan combo does with such tunes as "Let the Good Times Roll," "Don't Burn the Candle at Both Ends," "Early in the Morning," "I Wish I Could Make Some Money" and "A Man Ain't A Man Until A Woman Calls His Name" is the justifiable talk of Harlem. Jordan plays the sax and rolls his lyrics with skill and deftness. Miss Smith is particularly effective in such numbers as "Since I Fell For You" and "Route 66." She's a tall looker in a striking red-black gown and when she's not singing she's banging a beautiful bongo drum.

Also clicking heavily with patrons is Norma Miller's Dancers, nine fresh, eager-eyed troupers in attractive costumes whose dancing routines are worthy of encores. The "Keeper of the Flames" bit with the nude male dancer is sheer artistry and deserving of the hand it gets.

The Zeniths, mixed quartet, are pleasant in their delivery of such songs as "You Took Advantage of Me," "I See Your Face Before Me," "Two To Tango" (the girls are clicks in this one) and "I've Got A Gal." Zeniths are also attractively costumed.

Ruth McFadden scores with various melodies but her standout is "Paper Moon." She does two other titles, "After My Laughter" and "Beginning to See the Light," but it's "Paper Moon" that starts the audience to mitting.

Reuben Phillips leads the orchestra on stage but when the curtain comes down, it's Louis Jordan that folks remember with affection. Rans.

Metropole, Glasgow

Glasgow, April 15.

Colin Hicks & Cabin Boys (4), Pete Martin, Wilton Family (4), John & Betty Royle, Tommy Loman, Larry Davis, St. Dennis Sisters, Moxon Ladies (6), J. P. Masterton Orch.

Here's a bonanza for the teenagers with current addiction to gyrating rock 'n' roll types. Calin Hicks, kid brother of Tommy Steele, is a jumpin' jack-in-box who puts all he's got (and lotsa more if he could!) into a modern rhythm act. He's backed by his Cabin Boys (piano, bass, guitar, drums), with whom he finally indulges in an uninhibited jam session to frenzy of many young outfronters. He's rarely static for a moment, tosses his blond tousled looks in style reminiscent of brother Tommy, and is mainly indistinct in vocalizing, apart from "Long Tall Sally" and the quieter "La-Dee-Dah."

The Cabin Boys back up in modern style, and also put in a power of work. Hicks garbs himself brightly in red shirt and jeans, and gabs between tunes in his own breathless and uneducated cockney. He puts life if not art into his presentation.

John & Betty Royle, handsomely-costumed songsters, are best in support bill with Scot melodies and other ballads, and merit attention for tv. The Wilton Family (mother, two sons, daughter-in-law) have oldtime family appeal in music and comedy. Pete Martin proves he has strong singing voice as well as funflair. Larry Davis belts out modern numbers, Terry Redmond attends to xylophone ivories, and the St. Dennis Sisters are routine blonde duo. Moxon Girls supply the line. Gord.

Odeon, Leicester Sq.

London, April 15.

Sarah Vaughan, Ted Heath Orch (16).

The unusual procedure was adopted of yanking a film, "Bonjour Tristesse," from the Odeon, Leicester Square, for two nights to accommodate the sepia songstress, Sarah Vaughan. The result was a smash success, with four full houses and audiences that wildly applauded this graceful chirper. Accompanied by Ronnell Bright and backed impeccably by Ted Heath's slick orchestra, Miss Vaughan held the stage for the second half of the concert and gave with 15 ditties before the audience was satisfied. At show caught Saturday night (12) the audience was shouting request items at the singer and one Yank voice summed up the whole situation when he piped up: "Aw, just sing, baby."

Miss Vaughan has a wide and fluid range and her only fault is a tendency to bring in a gag wobble at some stage in all her numbers. Some of them, notably "Body and Soul" and "Last Laugh," might have benefited from a straighter arrangement. Highlights of her stint are "Passing Stranger," "Tenderly," "Cherokee Sweetheart," "Pennies from Heaven" and "I'll Never Smile Again." "Over the Rainbow," usually associated with Judy Garland, is given a fresh sound by Miss Vaughan, cheeky rather than plaintive. Apart from her singing, the nightingale impresses with her informal and friendly patter and her London engagements augur well for the 26 other appearances lined up for her in a two-week tour of the sticks.

First half of the London concerts was taken up by Ted Heath's orch and he provided 55 minutes of polished entertainment. With no strings in his outfit, however, his program veers towards the monotonous after some 30 minutes. Outstanding among his offerings are "Sophisticated Lady," "Jumpin' with Symphony Sid," "Summertime" and "The Ringside Suite." Heath has a bunch of talented soloists in his band and he gives them all the utmost opportunity to show off their virtuosity. Rich.

L'Olympia, Paris

Paris, April 15.

(FOLLOWUP)

It is rare for VARIETY to do a followup on a house show, but Edith Piaf is no ordinary headliner. Pencilled in for six weeks, she was extended to nine after SRO figures, and gets three more weeks with an all new show around her except for a holdover of her new protege, singer Felix Marten.

Miss Piaf showed no fatigue or voice falloff in spite of a recent bout with the flu and her gruelling 10-shows-per-week sked. She poured heart and intensity into her songs, and the aud came right back with mighty mitts and happy stamping when she was literally covered with flowers after her vibrant 50 minutes.

Marten, who seemed to reflect Miss Piaf's teaching and faith in him the last round, has slipped back into his too breezy, smart-alecky tempo with resulting loss in audience empathy. His stint seemed too long.

Surrounding show is fair but spotty. Kims (3) rate better than opener status as they do sock acrobatics laced with comic asides of brilliance and dexterity. Nordics (3) do a classical acro-balancing bit somewhat too measured and slow for house needs. Speeding up the proceedings would help this otherwise fine sight act.

Jeanne Yane is a phlegmatic type whose patter on church activities and officials, backed by a small organ, looms him as a coming new comedian. He is never blasphemous, but has true wit and observation which should make him a comic topper here soon.

Jacques Provins & Michel Mery are too arch and coy in their mannered takeoffs on song personalities. Lacking shafts of insight and real satire, this is precious and lags on house boards. It is more acceptable on video or in boites.

Los Brailleiros (8) are a Caricoa singing-instrumental group on a world tour under governmental aegis. However, their racy rhythms are more for dancehalls than for house needs. Lacking enough sight values, this is only an okay filler.

Brigitte Auber is a pert stage and screen actress who made a dent at a recent charity gala with a trapeze number. She repeats it here. Though still obviously going by rote, she takes chances and would obviously emerge a top trapeze performer in time. As is, it is a neat gimmick entry, and her shapely looks also help. Mosk.

Copacabana, N. Y.

Jimmy Durante, with Eddie Jackson, Sonny King, Jack Roth, Jules Buffano, Borden Twins, Sally Davis; Cathy Carr, Mike Sally Davis; Cathy Carr, Danii & Genii Prior, Mimi, Ted Morell, Mike Durso & Frank Marti Orchs, Doug Coudy Line; $5.50 minimum.

Jimmy Durante is more than an act. He's an event, a tradition and a legend, and also an entertainer. He's a combination that packs the Copacabana annually and strews his travels around the country with a trail of packed rooms.

The Schnoz's return to the Jules Podell hospice merely confirmed a long-held view that Durante's show biz niche is secure. He has achieved the status of a classic. Duranae needs no major changes nor much more equipment than his beak, breakaway piano, several folios of sheet music and a few trusted henchmen. At his opening, the Copa looked like the longrunning convention of the Durante fan club will have a successful romp in New York.

Durante mauled the language through the fields of some of his best-loved bits. He did "Inka Dinka Doo," and other well-known arias including "A Real Pianner Player" as well as other works that have that clear Durante imprint. With him is the strutting Eddie Jackson who comes in to lift the level of the show to even a greater height, and then there's Sonny King, a comparative newcomer to the troupe, but who has absorbed the modus operandi and the feeling of this band of harlequins. King, a talented tenor, blends in excellently with the Durante and Jackson in the roughhouse and in furthering the general mood of the comedy. For added strength, there's Jack Roth at the drums and Jules Buffano at the piano.

Durante sometimes goes a long way to further a gag. The Borden Twins, a couple of girls of considerable heft, chime in with some surprisingly lithe dancing, and Sally Davis, who is even of more gargantuan proportions does an additional terp bit to help the act off to a rousing response.

Opening the show is Cathy Carr, a likeable blonde singer, who has come equipped with a well-written and nicely executed act. Originally a disk click via of a Fraternity side of "Ivory Tower," she has since earned her a permanent spot in class cafes with a workable turn that has visual as well as vocal interest. Miss Carr brings on some of her staples, "Shimmy Like Sister Kate" as well as "Hello Young Lovers" and other evergreens that help her over in this room.

Per usual Mike Durso backstops with his accustomed competence, and the Frank Marti bands dishes up the Latin relief. The Doug Coudy trained line, works a little more than usual, aiding Durante in a couple of spots. They're decorative in any event. The Durso, Mel Mitchell and Marvin Kahn music and lyrics also aid the cause of the Podell hospice. Production singing has Ted Morell and the monomonickered Mimi, latter with a fetching Teutonic accent, romping through the numbers. The specialty dance work is by Danii & Genii Prior. Jose.

Sands, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 15.

Frank Sinatra, Bennett & Patterson, Texas Copa Girls (11), Antonio Morelli Orch (24); produced by Jack Entratter, $3 minimum.

Frank Sinatra returns to the Copa Room, in the hotel where he is one of the landlords, and again charges the air with his own brand of electricity. He seems more relaxed this time, which enhances the magnetism that sets him apart. Sinatra pleased first-nighters with his choice of attire: black suit, black shirt, pink tie and handkerchief, topped off by a green tyrolean velour hat with gold cord trimming. And because the king can do no wrong, even a bum note once in a while will add instead of subtract from Sinatra's legendary status.

Antonio Morelli's 24-piece orch (10 strings) with Bill Miller at the 88 guides the star with finesse in such numbers as "Come Fly With Me," "A Foggy Day," "I've Got You Under My Skin," "Road To Mandalay," "Spring Is Here," "Where Or When," "Violets For Your Furs," "Moonlight In Vermont," "How're You Fixed For Love?" "All the Way," "Witchcraft," "Lady Is A Tramp," and a gambling parody which gets hefty yocks. Showman Sinatra here puts on one of his best shows for showman Jack Entratter.

Comedy team of Ben Bennett & Dick Patterson make their Strip debut in this one, and come up with some stuff that is both funny and refreshing. The dialog is good, and an assortment of props make it a first-rate sight act. Especially big laughs go to their bowoff skit, which concerns a comedian and his new partner—a robot man spouting original gimmicks and gadgets. Duke.

Statler-Hilton, Dallas

Dallas, April 18.

Senor Wences, Garwood Van Orch (11); $2-$2.50 cover.

In his first showing here Senor Wences opens with a juggling bit with top hat and gloves; goes into the w.k. hand bit, lipsticked thumb and forefinger, abetted by the staring eyes, for a funny sesh with Johnny. He keeps the ventro bit going while smoking and drinking; also has Johnny drag on the fag. The bit brings hefty mitting.

Ventro then utilizes the gruesome "face in the box" to good effect, while stage strolling and chatting with the awesome face with the same reply from the box, "S'all right!" Wences then spins a silver plate on a long rod for severa minutes, always conversing with Johnny (in a hat) and the "face in the box." He abruptly quit 25 minutes, justifiably, due to constant heckling from a ringsider who didn't, amazingly, get tossed by the management.

Garwood Van orch provides easy backing and fills the floor for the terp turns. Act winds April 30; Corinne Calvet is due May 1-14. Bark.

Statler Hotel, L. A.

Los Angeles, April 19.

Nelson Eddy, Gale Sherwood; Eddie Bergman orch (11). Cover, $2-$2.50.

Nelson Eddy keeps his turn on a light beat and some corn poppin' for his return engagement at the Terrace Room with Gale Sherwood. He shrewdly has dispensed with anything not down pop alley, and with Miss Sherwood for glamour lure—as well as on her own for one number besides dueting—show affords a pleasant 40 mnutes for drop-inners and the regular convention crowd.

Singer takes cognizance of his film past via kidding himself and presentation of some of his past hits, such as "Rose Marie," and songs he wanted to do in the flickers—"but couldn't"—such as "Desert Song" and "One Alone." "Short'nin Bread" is a crowd-pleaser, as is impersonations of other singers doing take-offs of Eddy warbling "Mandalay." A "Merry Widow" gag act draws a big hand.

Miss Sherwood, who changes from formal to eye-filling Oriental attire, lends flashy distaff interest as well as displaying a nice set of pipes. She duets with Eddy several times, including "Out of the Night," then singles with "Till There Was You."

Eddie Bergman—who opens proceedings by fiddling "Fascination"—and his orch furnish slick backstopping as well as melodies for terp-inclined among cash customers. Show is set for three weeks, winding May 7. Whit.

Carillon, Miami B'ch

Miami Beach, April 19.

Denise Darcel, Dunhills (3), Sammy Shore, Dick Sterling, Jacques Donnet Orch; $3.50-$4 minimum.

Denise Darcel hasn't been seen in this area in several years. She's still the well endowed French bundle of femme froth, making up for vocal lack with a breezy, determined approach to the tablers that winds her with their attention and cheery approval. Accent is not only in the gab but on the males at ringside, with song-routines getting them involved. Offs to okay returns.

The Dunhills are the big item on the bill. Seen at Latin Quarter with Milton Berle, they were part of a revue; on their own they provide more of the ace taps that make them a top act of their genre; add more solo challenge seshes; interweave some comedy carryings-on for break in pace and finale with their south African "miner" in-boots folk dance that is a different concept and a sock winder.

Sammy Shore is a young comic who's been playing the smaller hotels along the local circuit. He's got plenty of possibilities, once he gets himself some stronger forepart routines. As is, he tries for the new in his stuff, commendable in itself and well received, and winds with a lot of laugh response, plus high mitting for a trumpet blown finish a la Armstrong and march through aud to rouse up the payoff. Dick Sterling emcees in smooth, amiable fashion, with Jacques Donnet and his crew apt on the showbackings. Lary.

Tropicana, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 15.

Ernie Kovacs, Edie Adams, Elaine Dunn, Dante D'Paulo, Lizanne Truex, George Chakiris, Jack Ackerman, Don Williams Singers (6), Nat Brandwynne Orch (17); produced by Monte Proser; directed by Earl Barton; music by Gordon Jenkins; sets by Glen Holse; $3 minimum ($5 Fri. & Sat.).

Ernie Kovacs and Edie Adams have stepped in as headliners, replacing Jayne Mansfield and Mickey Hargitay in Monte Proser's "Tropicana Holiday." It's an interesting transition, since Miss Adams follows through for the most part in the role of flashy film star "Trixie Devoon" as created by Miss Mansfield, while Kovacs, no Hargitay he, takes over Jack Ackerman's bartender part and does the show's narration, while short and lanky Ackerman does the Hargitay bits to hilarious effect.

Kovacs rewrote the script to fit the talents of Miss Adams and himself, coming up with some original material that is very funny in the Kovacs offbeat brand of comedy. Miss Adams' version of Trixie is satire at its best, and is especially appreciated by those who saw Miss Mansfield's Trixie—because, via a devastating Mansfield impresh, she kids the way the role was done by her predecessor.

Bartender Kovacs has provided himself with some yock-provoking props, including a grapefruit which sexily talks to him, all of which adds up to a distinctive type of zaniness. New is a skit with Kovacs as a film producer, Ackerman as his yes-man, and Miss Adams as a waitress trying to crash Hollywood. Most of the dialog is funny even to those not in the trade, and it gives Miss Adams a chance to do her accurate takeoffs on Marilyn Monroe and other femme celebs. Duke.

Adolphus Hotel, Dallas

Dallas, April 11.

Dornan Bros. (2), Joe Reichman Orch (7); $1.50-$2 cover.

This offbeat comedy team hasn't been seen here for seven years. This time around, at another hospice, the team scores, but for the first half of the show one wonders—why a team?. Charlie Dornan opens solo and carries on with nifty one-liners and ad libs sufficient to make it a one-man act. At opening (10), noting the sparse attendance, he tossed some beauties: "After the show please leave, there are 120 people outside waiting to get in." And: "Why don't we all sit at one table and split the check?"

Brother Leo comes on for vocal duets and the act weakens. Picks up again with audience participation stint, when—with five male ringsiders seated onstage—Dornans do a panto sesh that clicks, and it adds to a neat 40-minute show.

Joe Reichman orch provides ample show support and pulls leather pushers at terp time.

Comedian Danny Costello and Jean Shannon & Brooks Bros. open April 24 for 10 days. Bark.

Desert Spa, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 22.

Patrice Wymore, Pedro deCordoba, Bobby Sargent, Amazing Dr. Giovanni, Buster Hallett Orch (13), SPAettes (14); Staged and directed by Jon Gregory and Dean Elliott; choreography, Cary Leverett; costumes, Mitch Leisen, produced by Walter Stutz; $3 minimum.

Patrice Wymore is the star of the preem show at Vegas' newest nitery, and she comes up with a sock chirp and terp act that should keep her gainfully employed on the bistro circuit. Symptoms of first-night jitters were absent, and Miss Wymore, who is handsome in face and figure, performed with apparent ease. Credit for the creativeness and imagination which saturates the act should go to Jon Gregory and Dean Elliott, who staged and directed. Miss Wymore's songs include "Something's Gotta Give," "Out of This World," "Let There Be Love" and "My Secret Love," latter done with a music box held in her hands.

Star is fortunate in having Pedro deCordoba as a teammate in the turn, and he all but cops the show with his excellent dancing in Jose Greco idiom. Together they do some highly effective singing and terping aided by dramatic lighting. Their number in which he's a maharajah and she a sexily-clad slave girl is a standout.

Bobby Sargent, long absent from the Strip, provides the comedy portion of the package to a solid click. His storytelling is fast and funny, and his impreshes are better—and more laughable—than most.

Dr. Giovanni, a fave in Vegas with his unique pickpocket artistry, scores with his audience-participation stunts. Clever production numbers featuring the SPAettes (14) are backed with skill by the Buster Hallett orch (13). The Walter Stutz production is skedded for four frames. Duke.

Gatineau, Ottawa

April 19.

Suzanne Lake, Phil Terry, Gigi Mendeys, Buster Munroe Orch (8); $1 admission.

Billed for her stint in "King & I," Suzanne Lake naturally does "King & I" tunes in top form. Femme's piping is in stage musical style and she has selected tunes to suit, collecting nice mitting throughout. Miss Lake is a petit, ebon-tressed looker with an Oriental aura whose neat nitery stanza would be stronger on a stage.

Phil Terry, who also emcees, has smart comedy material and handles it effectively. While some of the act is familiar, Terry uses some new ideas and routines including standout terp inserts that indicate ballet training and strengthen the session considerably.

Gigi Mendeys (New Acts) is on twice with solo terps, a smooth tap bit and an Afro-Cuban stint, both in brief costumes. Buster Munroe's house band showbacks and plays for dancing. Gorm.

Mr. Kelly's, Chi

Chicago, April 11.

Anita O'Day, Shelley Berman, Marty Rubinstein Trio; $2.50 beverage minimum.

Current Kelly's bill is a one-two punch that figures to belt hefty biz. Jazz thrush Anita O'Day, who's had her travails, has never been better visually or vocally. Her locks now are honey blonde and long, a coiff that's very becoming. As for the idiom, few have her sureness and sensitivity, her delicacy of phrasing.

Show caught was a hectic turn, though, since it was Shelley Berman's opener, whereas Miss O'Day had been in for several days. Result was that she played to a restive audience, accenting the condition was soft projection through the first few numbers. Possibly competition from the tablers was what chased her from the stage after just six tunes. At any rate, ineffectual for the sotto voce delivery were a leadoff "All At Once" and "Song is You." Singer finally overcame outfront commotion with a misty "Berkeley Square," one of her late Verve platters, and followed to sock effect with a humorously stylized "Sweet Georgia Brown" that triggered the best mitting. Marty Rubinstein Trio gave sharp backstopping.

Berman, a local fave (Chi's his professional cradle), shows the benefits of increased poise and sharper timing since his stand here last August. He's an angry monologist, venting bile at a foibled society and especially the telephone, exposing that frustrating medium in equally hilarious back-to-back vignets. Sketches set up the house for a yock-filled discourse on embarrassing moments, and all of his stuff is supported by a wonderfully expressive puss. Pit.

Chase Club, St. Louis

St. Louis, April 18.

Kirby Stone Quartet, The Maxwells, Paul Neighbors Orch (11); $1.50-$2 cover.

Eydie Gorme, the scheduled attraction, couldn't make it because of illness in New York, but the Chase got lucky with a last-minute booking of the Kirby Stone Quartet, one of the most engaging groups on the circuit. They arrived by plane from New York only 20 minutes before show time but they wowed all hands with a rousing session of songs and comedy.

Larry Foster's singing and talking impressions of Clark Gable, Jimmy Stewart, Boris Karloff and a flock of others, topped off by a right-on-the-button carbon of Al Jolson, stand out. Miss Gorme has many fans here, but there were no complaints anywhere by the time the Stone Quartet rang down the curtain.

The two Maxwells, who do incredible acro stunts in slow motion, get an enthusiastic reception all around. Their closer, in which one balances himself atop a bunch of baskets perched on the other, then topples off, is strictly for gasps.

Paul Neighbors, longtime favorite in this bailiwick, wins with reliable tempos for dancing and listening. If Miss Gorme rallies in time, she'll come in the latter part of this week and stay till May 1, with Tony Bennett and Tina & Coca due in May 2 for two weeks. Bob.

Cave, Vancouver

Vancouver, April 15.

Jimmy Wakely with Sam White and Three Rays; The Balladines (2), Fraser McPherson Orch (6), Ken Cooper; $1.50-$2 cover.

Jimmy Wakely, in for two weeks after six-year hiatus, offers 40 minutes of bunkhouse balladeering with some pace-changers that click with the somewhat spare turnout this first frame. His company comprising basso-guitarist Sam White and hillbilly Three Rays proves potent in the support dept.

Wakely's no great shakes as emcee, but his amiable aspect, easy manner in the Autry tradish, plus apparent perennial youth, net him approval from walk-on; and the rest is clamor for particular faves from his pix and disks. He fills requests by excerpts of his own all-time hit parade, with dates and relevant data, spieled with quiet winning humor, and to sock applause. But it's really Sam White, protege, who gets the kliegs this trip (see New Acts), with Wakely pecking some hip guitar for backstop.

The Rays are a fetching trio in white spangled cowgirl getup and mauve kerchiefs. They serve some fair to potent country, bounce and torcher cleffings, with the heavier plaudits reserved, at show caught, for upbeat stuff. Two of the threesome are sisters of Mary Ford, and show need for grace and style in gestures and grouping; they project nervously, but when chording behind Wakley and White, emerge excellently.

Balladines are a boy and girl ballet and mime act from Berlin with stateside nitery successes behind them. Act is lavishly costumed (25 changes) and accomplished at all manner of dansapation, displaying brilliance at the Marcel Marceau manner of illusionating. Bert Balladine, a handsome lad with a pleasing way, handles the spieling in English that's halting but boffo. Partner Carol, a looker, cops howls for a most elegant mock strip, and is all-round topflight. High spot of stint is a circus strongman and highwire impresh that reaps sock reaction. Here's a duo to wow the regulars in anybody's room. Toms.

Eddy's, K. C.

Kansas City, April 18.

Sportsmen (4), Tony DiPardo Orch (8); $1, $1.50 cover.

Foursome, which warbles on the Jack Benny show has the tv season wrapped with the next three shows already filmed, and so is out doing some clubs and one-nighters to refresh on the live audience feel. This is their first stand out of Hollywood in some time, and the first in this room in several years. Their established blend of song and comedy is well projected and highly appreciated over a 45-minute show.

Group opens on a couple of standards and follows with a novel version of "Flight of the Bumble Bee" with tenor Bob Garson whistling. In a barbershop medley they warble a flock of oldies, then switch to one of their major productions, "No, No, Roulette," singing a Las Vegas story with a background voice chiming in from a tape. Quin.

Sahara, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 22.

Martha Raye, Four Step Bros., Sons of Morocco (8), Saharem Dancers (11), Louis Basil Orch (11); $3 minimum.

Martha Raye churns up the atmosphere with typical rowdiness in her latest invasion of the Congo Room. Her not-for-kiddies turn is a combination of brashness, bawdiness, and beauty in which the star never has trouble holding her audience with belting and occasional cooing. Impressive entrance is made from simulated United Airliner in imaginative production number concocted by Sonia Shaw and Bill Hitchcock, and songs include "I've Got My Love To Keep Me Warm," "The Feet's Too Big," "Black Magic," "Mr. Paganini," "My Funny Valentine," and "Taking A Chance On Love." Ray Barr at the 88 smoothly guides the Louis Basil orch (11).

The Four Step Bros. combine their tap artistry with some okay visual and verbal comedy ("The recession must be here—even folks who don't intend to pay ain't buying!") that keeps the act rapidly paced.

The Sons of Morocco (8) are curtain-raisers with a fast and furous tumbling act punctuated with precision pyramiding. Stan Irwin package is skedded for three frames. Duke.

Shows Abroad

The Brass Butterfly

London, April 18.

Merlith Productions (in association with E. P. Clift & Jack Minster) presentation of three-act comedy by William Golding; stager and star, Alastair Sim; decor, Edward Seago. At Strand Theatre, London, April 17, '58; $2.50 top.

Mamillius ..... Jeremy Spenser
Captain ..... Jack Hedley
Postumus ..... George Selway
Emperor ..... Alastair Sim
Phanocles ..... George Cole
Euphrosyne ..... Eileen Moore
Sergeant ..... Geoffrey Matthews
Attendants, slaves, etc ..... Stella Brett, Gillian Muir, Pauline Sutton, Ronald Scott-Dodd, Michael Cartred, Maitland Moss

"The Brass Butterfly," a first play by schoolmaster-novelist William Golding, is a tepid and somewhat obscure little joke. It does not promise a healthy run in London and doesn't impress as a Broadway prospect. The outstanding element of the show is Edward Seago's stylish decor, although the cast does valiantly with dialog and situations that reveal the playwright's inexperience.

The comedy concerns an old Roman Emperor who doubts the value of a Greek inventor's ideas for such novelties as a printing press, a steamship, a flying bomb and a pressure cooker. This revue sketch idea is tricked out by a good deal of pseudo-religious and philosophical dialog which gets nowhere rather slowly.

Nevertheless, the unctuous and smooth humor of Alastair Sim gets plenty of play as the Emperor, and the lugubrious George Cole is a useful foil as the inventor. There is a neat study of a romantically inclined young man by Jerome Spenser, who has bridged the gap between being a boy star and an adult, and Eileen Moore as the inventor's religious sister makes the most of a minor opportunity.

Sim has also staged the piece, although he must be on stage as an actor much of the time.

Rich.

Kennen Sie Die Milchstrasse?

(Do You Know the Milky Way?)

Berlin, March 24.

Komoedie (Berlin) production of two-act comedy by Karl Wittlinger, staged by the author, assisted by Juergen Pangritz; settings, H. U. Thormann. Stars Wolfgang Neuss, Wolfgang Mueller. At Komoedie am Kurfuerstendamm, Berlin, March 6, '58; $3 top.

Doctor ..... Wolfgang Heuss
Patient ..... Wolfgang Mueller

This unorthodox and puzzling play resembling a cabaret sketch is apparently due for boxoffice success, but chiefly because of the performances and personal draw of the two Wolfgangs, Neuss and Mueller, who are established personalities in legit, pictures and tv.

Karl Wittlinger's play originally had a cast of 25, the principal character being a patient in a psychiatric home. It's been drastically revised, however, so the key figure now combines the outstanding qualities of all the patients. The somewhat cryptic story involves a returned war veteran who had been reported killed in action and has such difficulty finding acceptance that he finally takes a job delivering milk in a sanitarium.

It is written and played as comedy, a laugh-getting device having the actors address the audience as fellow-inmates, nurses, doctors, etc. Another novelty is that Neuss and Mueller function as stagehands while the curtain is up. The theme of the show appears to be that in today's civilization it's hard to distinguish between the rational and the insane.

Hans.

A Resounding Tinkle

The Hole

London, April 5.

English Stage Co. presentation of two one-act plays by N. F. Simpson. Features Nigel Davenport, Wendy Craig, Sheila Ballantine, Toke Townley. Staged by William Gaskill; decor, Tazeena Firth and Stanley Rixon. At Royal Court Theatre, London, April 4, '58; $2.15 top.

A RESOURCEFUL TINKLE

Bro. Paradock ..... Nigel Davenport
Middie Paradock ..... Wendy Craig
Uncle Ted ..... Sheila Ballantine

THE HOLE

Visionary ..... Toke Townley
Endo ..... Robert Stephens
Soma ..... Nigel Davenport
Cerebro ..... Philip Locke
Mrs. Neso ..... Sheila Ballantine
Mrs. Ecto ..... Avril Elgar

With this double bill, the English Stage Co. is celebrating its second anniversary at the Royal Court Theatre, and in that comparatively short span has presented some notable works. Among them are three plays by John Osborne, Arthur Miller's "The Crucible," and "Requiem for a Nun" and "Lysistrata."

The emphasis has been on the offbeat, with commercial prospects a secondary consideration. It looks as if they've over-reached, however, with these one-acters, which seem likely to appeal only to the most chi-chi audiences.

The author of these two playlets, N. F. Simpson, is a schoolmaster, and "The Resounding Tinkle," which collared third prize in the London Observer play competition, was presented for a Sunday night performance (without decor) at the Royal Court. Both shows are meaningless to the man in the street.

Any attempt to describe the plot of either would only emphasize the author's disregard of reality. "Resounding Tinkle," for example, is a one hour harangue between a husband and wife about their pet elephant in the back garden. The Uncle Ted listed in the credits turns out to be a rather shapely female in an unshapely sack dress. On her first entrance, one of the other characters comments casually, "Oh, Uncle Ted, you've changed your sex." From that point, the dialog proceeds surrealistically.

"The Hole" is even more obscure and just as ridiculous. As the curtain rises, the Visionary is in residence around a hole in the road, forming "the nucleus of a queue." As time goes by, he's joined by other characters who look down the hole and purport to see something of interest.

The staging and performance are apparently based on the assumption that the scripts make sense.

Myro.

The Dock Brief

What Shall We Tell Caroline?

London, April 10.

Michael Codron & David Hall presentation of two one-act plays by John Mortimer. Features Maurice Denham, Michael Hordern, Brenda Bruce, Marianne Benet. Staged by Stuart Burge; decor, Disley Jones. At Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, London, April 9, '58; $1.75 top.

THE DOCK BRIEF

Fowle ..... Maurice Denham
Morgenhall ..... Michael Hordern

WHAT SHALL WE TELL CAROLINE?

Lily Loudon ..... Brenda Bruce
Arthur Loudon ..... Maurice Denham
Tony Peters ..... Michael Hordern
Caroline ..... Marianne Benet

Doublebills are frequently a hazardous enterprize in the London theatre, but John Mortimer seems to have pulled it off with his one-act plays. Here is a new writer to be watched. He has wit, perception and a flair for characterization. And this is a show worth transfer for a regular West End run.

"The Dock Brief," originally written for radio, was awarded an Italia prize last year and was subsequently adapted for tv. In its stage form it is a minor gem and, such is the author's vivid dialog, the two characters (both superbly played) hold audience attention.

Maurice Denham plays an unsuccessful criminal and Michael Hordern an unsuccessful barrister. The action takes place in a prison cell in which the former is awaiting trial for murdering his wife because she laughed too much.

The second playlet, "What Shall We Tell Caroline?" represents a complete switch in style and is surely indicative of the author's versatility. It is an unusual study of parental relationship, with a teenage daughter who refuses to speak, and an outsider whose presence has kept the marriage alive. A mixture of human comedy and pathos, it is notable for its penetrating observation and, as in its companion-piece, for outstanding portrayals.

Denham, as a blustering headmaster, and Hordern, his assistant rejoicing in a reputation as a rake in his youth, respond handsomely to the author's change of mood.

Brenda Bruce as the wife, bitterly resenting the way her good nature has been imposed upon, and Marianne Benet as their silent daughter, complete an expert cast.

Myro.

Off-B'way Review

Ardele

Joe O'Brien & Rhett Cone revival of three-act comedy by Jean Anouilh, adapted by Lucienne Hill. Staged by O'Brien; setting, Herbert Senn & Helen Pond; costumes, Arthur Doucette. At Cricket Theatre, N.Y., April 8, '58; $3.80 top ($5 opening).

Cast: William Le Massena, Ani Post, Flora Elkins, Michael Troy, Gertrude Corey, David Hooks, Joel Thomas, D. J. Sullivan, Deirdre Lenihan, Maggie Owens.

Since his sardonic comedy, "Cry of the Peacock," folded ingloriously after two performances on Broadway in April 1950, French playwright Jean Anouilh's reputation has increased mightily through more acceptable efforts. At off-Broadway's Cricket Theatre, Joe O'Brien and Rhett Cone have now gambled on a revival of "Peacock" in a new translation by Lucienne Hill, who also adapted Anouilh's successful "The Waltz of the Toreadors." In its reincarnation, "Peacock" has become "Ardele."

The virtues in this new version of the life and loves of General St. Pe (also the leading character of "Toreadors") rests chiefly with Anouilh's by now well-established piquancy. In familiar French farce fashion, everybody is in love with the wrong person, and all hands manage to maintain a debonair sophistication about it all to overlay their serious doubts. In "Ardele," however, Anouilh and his characters get pretty chatty about their problems at the expense of the play, so that long before all has been said, it seems that a little less needs saying.

There is also a maladroit device that repeatedly gets in the way. Offstage characters who are important, yet never appear, require most careful writing and direction, yet neither Anouilh nor producer-director O'Brien have succeeded with the problem of the hunchback sister Ardele being holed up in her room for the duration of the play and talked to (without audible reply) through the door.

It so happens that the unfortunate sister and her furtive lover are important to what Anouilh wishes to say in "Ardele," so the failure to solve the staging problem is particularly damaging.

As the lustful, swashbuckling, ma'd-tickling General, William Le Massena successfully bounces or minces about in direct relation to the demands of his naggingly ill wife. David Hooks as his titled brother-in-law and Joel Thomas as the lover of the countess have the play's richest scenes, each mockingly playing the wrong part in relation to the woman they have in common. It is the wryest jest of Anouilh's typical gallic twist of the moralities.

As his own director, O'Brien has tried to be his own best friend as co-producer, but it is a tricky play and some of his efforts are thwarted. The company is not always at the brightly sophisticated level necessary, although behind a reticent approach Flora Elkins gives pleasant intimations of talent as the General's daughter-in-law.

Without doubt, the production's finest achievement is the handsome setting of a French country home done with purposeful detail by Herbert Senn and Helen Pond.

Geor.

Joseph Harris, general manager for "Li'l Abner" and "Two for the Seesaw," rescued his three young children when his home at New City, N. Y., was seriously damaged last week by fire of undisclosed origin. The family took temporary refuge at the nearby home of Burgess Meredith and is staying with another neighbor stage carpenter Peter Feller, until the house is repaired.

So They Say

"Acting on tv is a bloody proposition. You are tyranized by machinery. It's exhausting. But it's a kind of challenge. You sweat like crazy over a show and if it comes out all right you can stand back and say, 'Well, I did it.'

"That's live tv. Filmed tv is so easy they shouldn't pay you for it."—Thelma Ritter, star of the Broadway musical, "New Girl in Town," in Americada, new monthly publication of the American Academy of Dramatic Art.

"Inspiration may strike some people like a bolt from the blue, but not Hammerstein. He goes after it consciously, digging for it. he says, the way a miner digs for a vein of ore. And his experience is that it's more likely to recur than to occur; its source nearly always lies in an experience tucked away in a mental filing cabinet everybody carries around with him."—Mercury Robbins, in an article about lyricist-composer Oscar Hammerstein 2d, in Today's Living magazine.

"When I write a song I always think of how it would sound with Como singing it. I always compose with a beat."—Jule Styne, composer-producer of "Say, Darling," as quoted by Don Ross in the N.Y. Herald Tribune.

Legit Earnings and Payoffs

Current financial status of New York and touring productions, including closed operations on which previously-unreported payments have been made. Investment figures include overcall, if any. Under Shows in the Black, the Net Profit figure is based on the latest auditor's statement, and covers income from all sources, including film sale, if any, foreign rights, etc. In the third column of figures, under Distributed Profit, the amount in boldface type is the total payoff, of which the backers receive 50%, unless otherwise indicated. If the show has not actually repaid the entire investment, the amount of capital returned is printed in lightface type, preceded by (R). Under Shows Still in the Red, the Balance to Be Recouped refers to the amount necessary to earn back the investment, based on the latest auditor's statement.

SHOWS IN THE BLACK

Show Title	Investment	Net Profit	Distributed Profit
Auntie Mame (N. Y. Co.)	$179,307	$375,697	*$326,100
Bells Are Ringing	360,000	291,337	220,000
Damn Yankees	250,000	881,000	$875,000
Dark Top Stairs	100,000	‡160,000	†32,000
Diary Anne Frank	75,000	269,483	241,320
Entertainer	60,000	3,124	(R) 60,000
L'il Abner	300,000	‡800,000	‡700,000
Long Day's Journey	80,000	139,059	103,000
Look Back in Anger	40,000	35,807	16,000
Look Homeward, Angel	125,000	42,783	12,500
Most Happy Fella	375,000	238,301	203,040
My Fair Lady (2 Cos.)	300,000	‡2,100,000	††1,950,000
New Girl in Town	300,000	134,000	90,000
No Time Sergeants (2 Cos.)	100,000	1,466,041	1,131,930
Romanoff & Juliet	80,000	4,869	(R) 64,000
Wide Side Story	300,000	80,000	(R) 300,000

SHOWS STILL IN THE RED

Show Title	Investment	Balance to Be Recouped	Repaid to Backers
Auntie Mame (2d Co.)	$130,000	$42,917	(R) $45,000
Blue Denim	80,000	‡60,000	Nothing
Happiest Millionaire	99,000	10,119	(R) 63,000
Jamaica	300,000	94,663	(R) 180,000
Music Man	300,000	62,088	(R) 198,000
Oh Captain	300,000	‡275,000	Nothing
Rope Dancers	70,000	‡45,000	(R) 10,500
Sunrise at Campobello	110,000	89,012	(R) 20,000
Time Remembered	125,000	‡100,000	Nothing
Two for the Seesaw	80,000	12,479	(R) 40,000
Who Was That Lady	137,500	174,049	Nothing

CLOSED SHOWS

Show Title	Investment	Recent Payment	Profit Distributed
Hole in the Head	$85,000	$77,000	$22,000

* Backers receive 34.471% of the profits.
† Backers receive 40% of the profits.
‡ Figure is estimated.

American Opera Cycle

(N.Y. City Center)

Regina

A special spring grouping of American opera could scarcely omit Marc Blitzstein, who has long labored in these vineyards. Hence the revival at the City Center of his operatic adaptation of Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes." Actually, it was a sixth performance of the work at the house.

As staged by Herman Shumlin, with an important scenic assist from Howard Bay, and conducted by the debuting Samuel Krachmalnick, "Regina" is a vigorous singing drama, accent on drama. The premiere was one more successful evening in the present experiment field-marshalled by Julius Rudel.

By now it is evident that an almost confusingly large number of debuts is taking place. There were five this time, the conductor, as mentioned, plus Carol Brice, Andrew Frierson, Helen Strine and George Irving. Of these Miss Brice, as the family servant, nearly stops the action in the second act after it seems that hers is to be only a talking role. She sings her aria with near-exquisite warmth of voice and delivery.

Blitzstein's libretto cleaves close to the Hellman script and is unusually laden with spoken dialog. As directed and performed, the illusion is strong and the power of the original study of a nasty family of born predators emerges sharply. Indeed, it may be the finest compliment of all to say that the audience frequently forgets its an opera, so engulfing is the sheer story unfoldment.

In the title role Brenda Lewis is not only a singer of resource but an actress of conviction and acid bite. She is prima donna in the best sense of the term and this appearance should re-direct attention to an authoritative talent and a stunning figure.

Miss Strine also impresses as her daughter, while the pathetic Birdie of Elizabeth Carron is progressively full in realization, actress-wise, and climaxes with a superb rendition of an aria which avoids selfpity and achieves heartbreak. For this job of superb stagewomanship she gets prolonged recognition.

The male roles serve plot rather than personal pyrotechnics, so there are no ovations for them, but it is only justice to commend their high competence. George Irving (Ben), Emile Renan (Oscar) and Loren Driscoll (Leo) are well-cast as the bone-pickers. The City's standby, Joshua Hecht, lives and dies an entirely believable disenchanted invalid, foreseeably the certain victim of Regina's savage selfishness.

The choreography of Robert Joffrey with Shumlin's over-all stagecraft and the highly effective scenic onvestiture all fuse with the Blitzstein score to grip and hold.

Land.

Old Maid and Thief and The Medium

Menotti's credentials are obvious, but the Menotti evening was closest to lacklustre of the spring opera cycle, partly because both works are so familiar and have been better performed. Also it was the Sunday evening of 1958's first thoroughly balmy weekend and attendance was off. Actually this was a 19th performance at the Center for "Old Maid" and a ninth performance of "Medium."

Broadly slapstick, with maid and mistress lusting for the hobo, the first piece is notable for its light music and buffoonery and one George M. Cohan style throwaway. "Hark! What is that noise?" "It is just a break in the arrangement." Ruth Kobart, Jacquelynne Moody, Beverly Bower and John Reardon are an effective cast.

"The Medium" needs more rehearsing than it probably had on this occasion. Claramae Turner has a fine, throaty voice and a menacing manner as Mme. Flora, but somehow the remembered impact of the work is not quite managed. Joan Carroll is a strong value as Monica.

Land.

Tarver Heads Ft. Wayne

Ft. Wayne, April 22.

John Ben Tarver of New York has been named production director of the Festival Music Theatre, Fort Wayne, which will present its ninth consecutive series of musical comedies this summer at the Outdoor Theatre in Franke Park.

Tarver is currently an instructor in dramatics at New York University.

London 'Lady' Already Fabulous

Has $400,000 Pre-Opening Sale—$3.50 Top Is New High—Production's Cost Will Reach $225,000

By HAROLD MYERS

London, April. 22.

Even a week ahead of its Drury Lane opening April 30, "My Fair Lady" has established a number of new records. It will be the most expensive show ever staged in the West End, costing approximately $225,000 to produce, or around double the usual figure for bringing a musical into town.

It will have a $3.50 top, highest of any production in the West End, although low in comparison with normal Broadway prices, which are now usually $8.05 for musicals.

The advance enthusiasm for the production has also stimulated interest in the record album, which will not be issued by Philips until the show is launched. The advance pressing for the LP, at 100,000, also sets a new high.

When the curtain rises, advance ticket sales will be in the region of $400,000 and by far the greater proportion will have been sold by the libraries (ticket brokers). Keith Prowse and Co., the biggest ticket agency in the country, which opened an advance booking office six months ago, has alone sold around $150,000 and the money is still coming in by every mail. Direct sales at the theatre are reported to be around the $50,000 to $60,000 mark.

On its new price scale, and allowing for the fact that admission duties on the live theatre were abolished a year ago, the Drury Lane can now gross just under $45,000 weekly on a capacity of 2,200 seats, compared with $69,000 weekly take at the 1,600-seat Hel-

(Continued on page 61)

Abraham-Olver Contest Sparks ATPAM Election; Boyar Vs. Lipsky as V.P.

An active campaign is underway in the election of president and vice president of the Assn. of Theatrical Press Agents & Managers. Those are the only positions for which rival candidates were nominated last week at a union membership meeting. The election will be held June 9.

Incumbent Saul Abraham is being opposed for re-election as president by Hal Olver, the incumbent business agent. Running for vice president, for which incumbent William Fields is not seeking re-election, are Ben Boyar and Dave Lipsky. The veepee conflict is unusual in that the post has traditionally been held by a press-agent. Lipsky is a p.a., but Boyar, a former president of the union, is a manager.

The unopposed candidates are Joe Moss, who's being supported by Olver as his successor as business agent, and Milton Weintraub, longtime secretary-treasurer. Fred de Bondy, running for re-election as sergeant-at-arms, is also unopposed.

Those nominated for the board of governors include managers Harold Golberg, Thomas Kilpatrick, George Zorn and Ben Rosenberg; N. Y. pressagents Francis Robinson and Dick Weaver; advance agents Joseph Heidt and Fred Schrader, and from the Yiddish group, Joseph Burstin and William Mercur.

OLD VIC'S EX-STAGER TEACHES CONS ACTING

Vancouver, April 22.

Antony Holland, former director of the Old Vic, Bristol, has joined the staff at the new Haney Correctional Institute, a male prison. He is teaching dramatics and production as part of a rehabilitation program, according to Jenifer Williams, CBC producer here, who is the prison theatre's adviser on lighting.

"They're producing violent types of plays, such as Galsworthy's 'Justice' and even safecracking stuff," she said, "and Holland finds it very good for their morale."

The prison, which opened last summer, will introduce local actresses into productions as next development of the theatre, Miss Williams said.

Name Kellin, Dillworth Nominating Alternates

Two alternates have been seated on the Actors Equity nominating committee. Mike Kellin has replaced Frederic Tozere as a membership rep, while Gordon Dillworth has replaced Lucia Victor as a council rep.

The committee, which met last week, meets again tomorrow (Thurs.) and daily thereafter. Their selection of candidates for the "regular" ticket has to be in 33 days before the annual election June 6, which, incidentally, will be held in the Hotel Edison, N.Y., instead of the Hotel Astor as in the past.

Pic Coin Pulls 'Head' From Hole

Income from the sale of the film rights to "Hole in the Head" has more than made up for the deficit incurred by the Producers Theatre presentation on its 20-week Broadway run. Besides getting back their $85,000 investment, the backers of the Arnold Schulman comedy have thus far earned a 13% profit.

The Paul Douglas-starrer, which folded last July, had unrecouped costs of $49,400 on its New York run. That included the loss on operation, plus other expenses in connection with the closing. The production's share of the film revenue, however, came to $72,000. That amount represents 40% of $200,000, less 10% agents' commission. It's understood, the film sale also involves a profit-sharing deal.

The picture rights were purchased by Sincap Productions, in which Frank Sinatra and Frank Capra are involved. With the film income, the net profit on the venture totals $22,584 thus far. Of that amount, $22,000 has been distributed.

NATHAN WILLS AWARD FOR LEGIT CRITICISM

George Jean Nathan, who died recently, willed the net income from one-half of his estate be set aside for an annual legit criticism award. The late drama reviewer bequeathed the income from the balance of his estate to his widow, actress Julie Haydon.

The contents of the will were divulged April 11 when it was filed for probate in Surrogate's Court, N. Y. The award, which is to be known as the George Jean Nathan Drama Criticism Award, is to be given to an American for "the best piece of drama criticism during the year, whether in an article, an essay, or treatise or book."

The winner of the award is to be selected by a majority vote of the heads of the English Departments of Cornell, Princeton and Yale. Nathan also directed payment up to $8,000 for the "publication and advertising of a definite selection edition of my works" by Alfred A. Knopf, who published his books.

Nathan's estate, officially listed as "more than $20,000," is unofficially reported to be in excess of $500,000.

Aherne Will Leave 'Lady'; Michael Evans Succeeds

Chicago, April 22.

Brian Aherne, who recently extended his contract for a three-month period as costar of the road company of "My Fair Lady," will leave the cast permanently June 28. His replacement will be his standby, Michael Evans, who subbed for him during his two-week vacation last month.

"Lady" is currently in its 24th week at the Shubert Theatre here.

Jed Horner and Robert Soule have been set as director and designer, respectively, for the Playhouse in the Park, Philadelphia.

Wanamaker, Wiman Get Liverpool Theatre Club

Liverpool, Eng., April 15.

Sam Wanamaker and Anna Deere Wiman have signed a pact to take over the lease of the New Shakespeare Theatre here for 35 years. Membership in this theatre club is now 20,462. Of these, 11,822 are members of the theatre's film society, claimed to be the largest membership in the country.

Since it re-opened last Oct. 31, the theatre has played to an average of 80% capacity.

$75-$50 Per Day Equity Minimum For Industrials

Record minimum salaries for members of Actors Equity have been set in a new contract covering their employment in the industrial show field. The new pact, which went into effect last Thursday (17), was negotiated between Equity and the industrial show producers for a three-year period.

The wages for performers cover three separate categories, with boosts made in each division. Those employed for less than seven days get $75 for the first day and $50 daily thereafter. The previous scale was a straight $50 daily. Those employed for seven days get $238 as compared to $225 previously, while the weekly minimum for those employed for a fortnight or longer is $185, a hike of $10 over the old scale.

The minimum weekly salary for stage managers jumps from $250 to $265, and if employment is 14 days or more with a cast of less than 13 including the stage manager, the stage managers' salary is $212, a boost of $12. Dancers functioning as captains get an extra $25 weekly. There had been no provision for any additional payment under the old contract.

A cost-of-living increase, to be exercised at Equity's option, based on a percentage rise in the COL index from March 15, 1958 to March 15, 1960, is also incorporated in the new pact. Each increase will be effective April 17 of the respective year. In any show with a cast of more than five (including the stage manager), the assistant stage manager receives an additional minimum payment of $25 weekly if required to act. There was no additional salary requirement in the prior pact.

Changes in rehearsal time and rest periods have also been made, while hospitalization benefits and transportation coverage are new additions to the contract. The prior pact also permitted films and recordings to be made for the purpose of keeping a record of the performance. Now only recordings are permitted without additional compensation.

Milton R. Weir, attorney for the League of N.Y. Theatres, represented the industrial show producers in the negotiations, while Equity's executive secretary, Angus Duncan, chaired the union's committee. William Gibberson is head of Equity's industrial shows department.

New Management Takes Barn at Matunuck, R. I.

The Theatre-by-the-Sea, Matunuck, R. I., will be under new management this summer. Donald Wolin and Harold L. Schiff, who ran the spot for the last three years, withdrew to concentrate on other activities. James Thornton Hall, their general manager for the last three years, has taken over the operation in partnership with Joseph Wishy.

The new management has signed a six-year lease with the estate of Alice Jaynes Tyler, owner of the property. Wishy, incidentally, is on the staff of the N.Y. City Center and last year was general manager of the Cincinnati Summer Playhouse. A June 30 opening is planned, with Dody Goodman in "Dulcy."

New York play agent Harold Freedman sailed yesterday (Tues.) for England to see the new Terence Rattigan play, Variation on a Theme." He'll be gone about three weeks.

B'way 'Mame' Has Grossed $3,130,100, Netted Only $375,697; Roz Got 400G

On total gross receipts of approximately $3,130,100 for its first 68 weeks at the Broadhurst Theatre, N.Y., through March 29, the original production of "Auntie Mame" earned $375,697.36 net profit. That includes not only operating profit from the Broadway production but also $57,005.07 in the form of royalties from the touring production, plus $124,740 revenue from the sale of the film rights to Warner Bros., $2,000 in souvenir program royalties and $207 from stock performances in Honolulu.

That leaves $191,745.29 profit from the Broadway operation. On that basis, the average weekly profit on the New York operation has been only $2,819 on an average gross of $45,600.

According to the most recent auditor's statement, covering the period ended March 29, the Robert Fryer & Lawrence Carr production had distributed $326,100.32 profit, of which $112,410.04 went to the backers representing a profit of 62.7% on their $179,307 investment. Under the unusual sharing arrangement, the backers receive only 34.471% of the profits, whereas the usual split between management and investors is 50-50.

"Mame" is an unusually heavy show to operate, requiring a large cast and an elaborate physical set-up with numerous scene changes, many props and, as a consequence, a sizable stage crew. That was reflected in the budget for the week ended March 29, for example, when the cast payroll was $9,667.78, the stage crew got $1,800 and other items included company and general manager, $450; pressagent, $250; stage managers, $976; wardrobe attendants and dressers, $771.15, and musicians, $219.38. The author and director royalties total slightly over 13%. The Theatre gets a straight 30%, higher than usual for a heavy-grossing straight play.

There have been various other expense items listed in the account's statements from time to time, however, that have caused unfavorable comment among the show's backers. For example, the cost of arranging for Greer Garson to succeed Rosalind Russell as star

(Continued on page 61)

Plan New Musical Tent For Suburban Toronto

Toronto, April 22.

New theatre-in-the-round, seating 2,000, is promised the Toronto area this summer, with opening skedded for June 23. Tagged Music Fair Ltd., the new arena-tent will be located at Dixie Plaza as part of a shopping centre on the Queen Elizabeth Highway, 10 miles from Toronto's city limits and 25 miles from Hamilton, Ont. Six musicals will be staged, each running a fortnight, with New York leads.

Producer is Lewis T. Fisher, who will also be president of Music Fair Ltd. In addition to his Melody Fair activities at Tonawanda, N. Y. The vice-president of the Canadian company is Bert H. Wilkes.

Other Buffalo men comprising the board of directors of Music Fair Ltd. are Kenneth Gill, Max Clarkson, Frank Abbate and Horace Gioia. Capitalization is $200,000 for the near-Toronto venture, with close cooperation with the Melody Fair tent-show near Buffalo.

History Dramas Spread All Over

Outdoor production of historic dramas is mushrooming. Several new projects are in the works, with the eight on tap last year expected to resume this summer. It's pretty much a southern phenomenon so far.

The planned ventures include two scripts by Paul Green and another by Kermit Hunter. The two playwrights are making a career out of writing for the al fresco market, each being represented by four of the eight productions offered last year.

Of the two entries on Green's sked, one deals with Gen. Robert E. Lee during the Civil War and the other with the life of songwriter Stephen Foster. The Civil War vehicle is contemplated for presentation by the Tidewater Historic Assn. at Norfolk, Va., this summer.

The Foster biography is targeted for 1959 production in an amphitheatre to be built in Bardstown, Ky. The Stephen Foster Drama Assn. has been formed to produce the epic and is seeking the support of the Kentucky Legislature.

Another entry scheduled for 1959 is a Pittsburgh (Pa.) centennial celebration drama to be written by Hunter. There's also a possibility that an amphitheatre planned for Mississippi Southern College in Hattiesburg may materialize this season or next. If so, the initial bill will be "Red Eagle," by Col. Eugene A. Wink, historian and authority on Mississippi Indians.

The eight shows of last year are figured to have pulled a record attendance of over 500,000. The entries included Green's "Lost Colony," Manteo, N. C.; Green's "Common Glory" and "The Founders," Williamsburg, Va.; Hunter's "Unto These Hills," Cherokee, N. C., and Hunter's "Horn in the West," Boone, N. C.

Also, Green's "Wilderness Road," Berea, Ky.; Hunter's "Chucky Jack," Gatlinburg, Tenn., and Hunter's "Thy Kingdom Come," Salem, Va.

Meadville (Pa.) Troupe Plans Split-Week Sked

Pittsburgh, April 22.

Penn Players of Meadville, an established strawhat group in western Pennsylvania, will split their summer season this year between a resort hotel and a college campus. They'll present their shows Mondays, Tuesday and Wednesdays on the boat deck of the Oakland Beach Hotel at Conneaut Lake and the last three nights of the week at the playhouse on the Allegheny College campus in Meadville.

Previously, the Penn Players have been berthed permanently at the college, usually for an eight-week season. Conneaut Lake is one of the district's outstanding resorts.

Pitt Will Vary Sked With Ballet and Variety Bills; Back to 8-Show Season

Pittsburgh, April 22.

Civic Light Opera Assn. will vary its schedule this summer at the Pitt Stadium to present Jeanmaire and Roland Petit in "Les Ballets de Paris" the week of June 23 and a variety show headed by Gordon MacRae, Roger Williams and the Goofers as the closer starting Aug. 4.

CLOA, which presented only six shows last year, is back to eight, opening June 16 with "Porgy and Bess," starring Camilla Williams. Remainder of repertory includes "Wonderful Town," with Nancy Walker; "Happy Hunting," with Penny Singleton and Robert Wright; Dorothy Collins in "Oklahoma"; Dolores Gray in "Can-Can" and "On the Town," with Helen Gallagher, Harold Lang and Tim Herbert.

Staff remains the same with exception of Edmund Balin, who replaces Edward Noll as choreographer. William Wymetal is back as managing director, Robert H. Gordon is returning as stage director, with Furth Ullman doing sets and lights; Karl Kritz, musical director; Marcel Frank, choral and associate musical director; Helen Michel, costumer supervisor; Tom Bate, production stage manager, and Lorella Val-Mery publicity.

PRESIDENT SIGNS BILL FOR TAX-FREE SHOWS

Washington, April 22.

Musical and dramatic presentations by non-profit civic or community organizations are exempt from Federal taxes under a new measure signed by President Dwight D. Eisenhower last week.

The bill was introduced by Rep. Frank M. Karstein (D-Mo.), was amended by Sen. Jacob Javits (R-N. Y.).

B'way Battered, But Hits Hold Up; 'Jamaica' 49G, 'Story' 47½G, 'Li'l' 42G, 'Entertainer' $33,000, 'Denim' $15,700

The seasonal decline appears to have started on Broadway. Business, which was generally bullish the previous frame, dived last week for a number of shows. The b.o. slide is expected to continue through the spring and summer cueing an eventual bowout of most of the middle-bracket grossers.

There were 24 Main Stem productions, of which seven were sellouts. Those included "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," "Look Homeward, Angel," "Music Man," "My Fair Lady," "Say, Darling, "Sunrise at Campobello" and "Two for the Seesaw."

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% City tax, but grosses are net i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Auntie Mame, Broadhurst (C) (71st wk; 557 p) ($6.90; 1,214; $46,500) (Greer Garson). Previous week, $46,200; last week, over $43,100. Miss Garson's contract expires May 31, but the management is selling tickets for the month of June on the premise that the star will continue with the comedy that long. The production is then scheduled to be shipped to the Coast for an Aug. 4 opening in San Diego, with Eve Arden in the title role.

Bells Are Ringing, Shubert (MC) (73d wk; 580 p) ($8.05; 1,453; $58,101) (Judy Holliday). Previous week, $58,800; last week, over $54,800. Performances will be suspended July 21-Aug. 9.

Blue Denim, Playhouse (D) (8th wk; 60 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 996; $31,500). Previous week, $18,900; last week, nearly $15,700.

Dark at the Top of the Stairs, Music Box (D) (20th wk; 156 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 1,010; $33,000). Previous week, $33,400, with parties; last week, almost $33,000, with parties.

Entertainer, Royale (CD) (10th wk; 73 p) ($7.50; 1,050; $43,500) (Laurence Olivier). Previous week, $13,600 for three performances; last week, nearly $33,000 on twofers. Closes May 10.

Fair Game, Longacre (C) (24th wk; 193 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 1,101; $32,000) (Sam Levene). Previous week, $16,000; last week, around $15,300.

Jamaica, Imperial (MC) (25th wk; 196 p) ($8.35; 1,427; $63,000) (Lena Horne, Ricardo Montalban). Previous week, $52,500; last week, nearly $49,000. Performances will be suspended June 30-Aug. 9.

Li'l Abner, St. James (MC) (75th wk; 596 p) ($8.05; 1,614; $58,100). Previous week, $42,300; last week, over $42,000 on twofers.

Look Back in Anger, Golden (D) (29th wk; 231 p) ($5.75; 800; $25,152). Previous week, $16,200; last week, almost $14,400.

Look Homeward, Angel, Barrymore (D) (21st wk; 164 p) ($6.90; 1,076; $40,716) (Anthony Perkins). Previous week, $41,200; last week, same.

Music Man, Majestic (MC) (18th wk; 140 p) ($8.05; 1,626; $68,658). (Robert Preston). Previous week, $69,400; last week, over $69,100.

My Fair Lady, Hellinger (MC) (110th wk; 875 p) ($8.05; 1,551; $68,210). Steady at $69,200. Show is selling 20 balcony seats at each performance to students at 70 cents a ticket.

New Girl in Town, 46th St. (MD) (49th wk; 391 p) ($8.06-$9.20; 1,297; $59,085) (Thelma Ritter). Previous week, $35,200 on twofers; last week, almost $36,700 on twofers.

Oh Captain, Alvin (MC) (11th wk; 87 p) ($8.35-$9.20; 1,331; $60,000). Previous week, $58,700, with parties; last week, over $57,200, with parties.

Romanoff and Juliet, Plymouth (C) (28th wk; 220 p) ($5.75-$6.25; 1,062; $36,625) (Peter Ustinov). Previous week, $29,000; last week, over $22,200.

Rope Dancers, Miller's (D) (22d wk; 173 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 994; $27,850) (Siobhan McKenna, Art Carney). Previous week, $14,000 on twofers; last week, over $12,300 on twofers. Closes May 3.

Say, Darling, ANTA (MC) (3d wk; 20 p) ($7.50; 1,185; $50,460) (David Wayne, Vivian Blaine). Previous week, $49,500, with parties; last week, over $49,000, with parties.

Sunrise at Campobello, Cort (D) (12th wk; 92 p) ($6.90; 1,155; $36,000) (Ralph Bellamy). Previous week, $36,600; last week, almost $36,200.

Time Remembered, Morosco (C) (23d wk; 183 p) ($9.60; 946; $43,000) (Helen Hayes, Richard Burton). Previous week, $35,000; last week, nearly $35,100. Closes June 28.

Two for the Seesaw, Booth (CD) (14th wk; 108 p) ($6.90; 780; $31,700) (Henry Fonda). Previous week, $32,100; last week, almost $31,800. Fonda exits his starring role June 28, with Dana Andrews coming in as his successor June 30.

West Side Story, Winter Garden (MD) (30th wk; 236 p) $8.05; 1,404; $63,203). Previous week, $51,600; last week, over $47,500.

Who Was That Lady I Saw You With? (Beck (C) (7th wk; 56 p) ($6.90; 1,280; $47,000) (Peter Lind Hayes, Mary Healy). Previous week, $42,200; last week, same.

Closed Last Week

Back to Methuselah, Ambassador (C) (4th wk; 29 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 1,155; $36,200) (Tyrone Power). Previous week, $17,000; last week, over $17,600. Closed last Saturday (19).

Love Me Little, Hayes (C) (1st wk; 8 p) ($6.90; 1,039; $30,000) (Donald Cook, Joan Bennett). Almost $8,000 for first eight performances. Closed last Saturday (19) at an approximate loss of its entire $120,000 (including 20% overcall) capitalization.

Stratford Festival Co., Phoenix (C) (5th wk; 40 p) ($4.60; 1,150; $29,382). Previous week, $6,000 for eight performances of "Jug;" last week, around $7,200 for eight performances of "Two Gentlemen of Verona." Ended run last Sunday (20).

Still the Champ

Stratford, Conn., April 22.

Charles Bowden and Richard Barr, producers of the two touring companies of "Auntie Mame," were engaging in the customary managerial practice of eavesdropping on audience conversations during the intermission last Saturday night (19) at break-in performance of the Sylvia Sidney troupe at the Shakespeare Festival Theatre, Stratford, Conn.

"It's a very funny play," heard one gray-haired matron say, "but isn't it a little dirty for a theatre named for Shakespeare?"

"Oh goodness," replied her femme companion, "if you think this is dirty, wait until you hear Shakespeare."

Off-Broadway Shows

Ardele, Cricket (4-8-58).

Blood Wedding, Actors Playhouse (3-31-58).

Boy Friend, Downtown (1-25-58); moves next Tuesday (29) to the Cherry Lane Theatre.

Brothers Karamazov, Gate (12-6-57); closes next Sunday (27).

Children of Darkness, Circle in the Square (2-28-58).

Clerambard, Rooftop (11-7-57); closes next Saturday (26).

Crucible, Martinique (3-11-58).

Dark of the Moon, Carnegie Playhouse (2-26-58).

Enchanted, Renata (4-22-58).

Endgame, Cherry Lane (1-28-58); closes next Sunday (27).

Garden District, York (1-7-58).

Threepenny Opera, de Lys (9-25-55).

CLOSED LAST WEEK

Asmodee, Theatre 74 (3-25-58).

Fools Are Passing Through, Jan Hus (4-2-58).

Touring Shows

(April 21-May 4)

Auntie Mame (2d Co.)—Victory, Dayton (21-26); Pabst, M'wkee (28-3).

Auntie Mame (3d Co.)—Proctor's, Schenectady (21-22); Loew's State, Syracuse (23); Stanley, Utica (24); Veterans Mem. Aud., Providence (25-26); Masonic, Scranton (28); Community, Hershey (29-3).

Cat on a Hot Tin Roof—Liberty Hall, El Paso (22-23); Civic Aud., Albuquerque (24); Sports Palace, Tucson (25); H. S. Aud., Phoenix (26); Civic Aud., San Bernardino (28); Aud., Long Beach (29); Russ Aud., San Diego (30-1); Granada, Santa Barbara (2); Roosevelt H.S., Fresno (3).

Damn Yankees—Municipal Aud., Shreveport (21-22); Music Hall, Houston (23-26); Municipal Theatre, Tulsa (28-29); Aud., Denver (1-3).

Diary of Anne Frank—Wilbur, Boston 21-3).

Firstborn (tryout)—Colonial, Boston (21-26, moves to N.Y.).

Happiest Millionaire—Civic, New Orleans (21-26); State Fair Aud., Dallas (28-29); Music Hall, Houston (1-3).

Jane Eyre (tryout)—Shubert, Wash. (21-26, moves to N.Y.).

Long Day's Journey Into Night—Geary, S.F. (21-3).

Marcel Marceau—Shubert, Det. (21-26); Hanna, Cleve (27-3).

Most Happy Fella—Curran, S.F. (21-3).

My Fair Lady—Shubert, Chi (21-3).

No Time for Sergeants (N.Y. Co.)—Moore, Seattle (21-26); International Cinema, Vancouver, B.C. (28-29); Stampede Corral, Calgary, Alberta (3).

No Time for Sergeants (Nat'l Co.)—National, Wash. (21-3).

Tunnel of Love (Coast Co.)—Hartford, L.A. (21-3).

Visit (tryout)—Shubert, New Haven (21-26, moves to N.Y.).

Visit to a Small Planet—Harris, Chi (21-26); Shubert, Cincy (28-3).

British Shows

(Figures denote opening dates)

LONDON

Any Other Biz, Westminster (4-10-58).
At Drop of Hat, Fortune (1-24-57).
Bells Ringing, Coliseum (11-14-57).
Brass Butterfly, Strand (4-17-58).
Breath of Spring, Cambridge (3-26-58).
Boy Friend, Wyndham's (12-1-53).
Bride & Bachelor, Duchess (12-19-56).
Cat on Hot Tin Roof, Comedy (1-30-58).
Dear Delinquent, Aldwych (6-5-57).
Dinner With Family, New (12-10-57).
Flowering Cherry, Haymarket (11-21-57).
Free As Air, Savoy (6-6-57).
Grab Me a Gondola, Lyric (12-26-56).
Iceman Cometh, Wint. Gard. (3-29-58).
Kidders, St. Martin's (3-18-58).
Lysistrata, York's (2-18-58).
Mousetrap, Ambassadors (11-25-52).
New Crazy Gang, Vic. Pal. (12-18-56).
Not in the Book, Criterion (4-2-58).
Plaisirs De Paris, Wales (4-20-57).
Potting Shed, Globe (2-5-58).
Rape of Bell, Picadilly (12-12-57).
Repertory, Old Vic (9-18-57).
Roar Like a Dove, Phoenix (9-25-57).
Salad Days, Vaudeville (8-5-54).
Share My Lettuce, Garrick (9-25-57).
Simple Spyman, Whitehall (3-19-58).
Touch of Sun, Princes (1-31-58).
Tunnel of Love, Majesty's (12-3-57).
Where's Charley, Palace (2-20-58).
*Transferred.

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Expresso Bongo, Saville (4-23-58).
Duel of Angels, Apollo (4-24-58).
My Fair Lady, Drury Lane (4-30-58).

CLOSED LAST WEEK

Bath, Apollo (3-20-58).

SCHEDULED N. Y. OPENINGS

BROADWAY

(Theatres Set)

Firstborn, Coronet (4-29-58).
Jane Eyre, Belasco (5-1-58).
Visit, Lunt-Fontanne (5-5-58).

OFF-BROADWAY

One-Act Musicals, Sullivan St. (4-23-58).
Nouveau Monde, Phoenix (4-29-58).
Bonds Interest, Sheridan Sq. (5-7-58).
Playboy West'n World, Tara (5-8-58).
Sign of Winter, Theatre 74 (5-8-58).
Shaw Series, Downtown (5-12-58).
Jungle, Theatre Marquee (5-13-58).
Sat. Night Kid, Provincetown (5-13-58).
Comic Strip, Berbizon Plaza (5-14-58).
Ulysses, Rooftop (5-27-58).

Road Steady; 'Eyre' Sad $4,000, Wash.; Lunts 38½G, Cornell $26,200, Hub; 'Lady' 68½G, Chi; 'Mame' $45,270, Ind.

Business on the road held generally about even last week, although several shows registered sharp rises or drops from the previous week. There were 16 shows on tour, an increase of one.

Of the three tryouts, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne did hefty business for their first full week in Boston in "The Visit," while Katharine Cornell and Anthony Quayle drew generally favorable reviews and did passable business in "Firstborn" in the same town, and Eric Portman had it tough in Washington with the re-tryout of "Jane Eyre."

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification indicates Tryout. Also, prices on touring shows includes 10% Federal tax and local tax, if any; but as an Broadway, grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

BOSTON

Diary of Anne Frank, Wilbur (D) (2d wk) ($4.95; 1,241; $32,699). Nearly $23,000 on Guild-ATS subscription. Previous week, $22,900, same theatre.

Firstborn, Colonial (D-T) (1st wk) ($5.50-$4.95; 1,500; $39,950) (Katharine Cornell). Drew three raves (Adams, Globe; Doyle, American; Maloney, Traveler), one affirmative (Hughes, Herald) and one so-so (Norton, Record). Grossed almost $26,200 on Guild ATS subscription. Previous week, $24,300, at Royal Alexandria, Toronto.

Visit, Shubert (D-T) (2d wk) ($5.50-$4.95; 1,717; $52,000) (Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne). Nearly $38,500. Previous week, $29,200 in first six performances, same theatre.

WASHINGTON

Jane Eyre, Shubert (D-T) (1st wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,529; $23,500). Opened Wednesday (16) to poor notices. Under $4,000 for first five performances.

No Time for Sergeants (2d Co.), National (4th wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,667; $39,500). Nearly $24,800. Previous week, $31,900, same theatre.

CHICAGO

My Fair Lady (2d Co.), Shubert (MC) ($7; 2,100; $72,979) (Brian Aherne). Under $68,500. Previous week, $71,300, same theatre.

Visit to a Small Planet, Harris (C) (3d wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,096; $39,000) (Cyril Ritchard). Nearly $19,800 on Guild-ATS subscription. Previous week, $19,300, on subscription, same theatre.

INDIANAPOLIS

Auntie Mame (2d Co.), Murat (C) (single wk) ($6.05-$5.50; 2,000; $55,200) (Constance Bennett). New house record for straight plays, $45,270, but not absolute capacity, as some seats were not on sale because of limited sight lines. Previous week, $43,400, at Shubert, Cincinnati.

SAN FRANCISCO

Long Day's Journey Into Night, Geary (D) (2d wk) ($4.95-$4,40; 1,550; $42,000) (Fay Bainter). Almost $22,000 on Guild-ATS subscription. Previous week, $18,000 in seven performances, on subscription, same theatre.

KANSAS CITY

Most Happy Fella, Victoria (MD) (5 perfs.) ($5.04-$3.93; 1,900; $45,000). Nearly $20,000 for the five-performance stand Monday-Thursday (14-17). Previous week, $32,000 at American, St. Louis.

LOS ANGELES

Tunnel of Love, Hartford (C) (2d wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,024; $29,600). Nearly $19,100 on Guild-ATS subscription. Previous week, $19,800, at same theatre.

TORONTO

Marcel Marceau, Royal Alexandra (Panto.) (single week) ($4.50; 1,525; $34,000). Over $13,800. Previous week, $13,800, at Her Majesty's, Montreal.

SPLIT-WEEKS

Cat on a Hot Tin Roof (D) (Victor Jory). Totaled nearly $23,300 in six performances, as follows: single, Monday (14), Aud., Beaumont, Tex., $3,200; single, Tuesday (15), Aud., Houston, $3,000; single, Wednesday (16), Aud., San Antonio, $4,600; three, Thursday-Sunday (17-20), State Fair Music Hall, Dallas, $12,500. Previous week, $17,000 in six-performance split.

Damn Yankees (MC). Totaled over $33,300 in seven performances, as follows: three, Monday-Wednesday (14-16), Robinson Mem. Aud., Little Rock, and four, Thursday-Saturday (17-19), Munic. Aud., Shreveport. Previous week, $34,900, Munic. Aud., New Orleans.

Happiest Millionaire (C) (Walter Pidgeon). Totaled nearly $13,600 in eight performances, as follows: three, Monday-Tuesday (14-15), WRVA Theatre, Richmond, $5,200; single, Wednesday (16), Owens Aud., Charlotte, $3,200; four, Thursday-Saturday (17-19), Temple, Birmingham, $5,100. Previous week, $14,000, at Forrest, Philadelphia.

No Time for Sergeants (N.Y. Co.) (C). Totaled almost $27,100 in five performances, as follows: two, Tuesday-Wednesday (15-16), Public Aud., Portland, $15,900; single, Thursday (17), Temple, Tacoma, $2,800; single, Friday (18), Capitol, Yakima, $3,200; two, Saturday (19), Coliseum, Spokane, $5,200. Previous week, $30,800 in seven-performance split.

Barn-Touring 'Sergeants' $17,700, Paper Mill, N. J.

Robert Weiner's strawhat-touring production of "No Time for Sergeants" held to virtual capacity again last week at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Milburn, N. J. The gross for the stanza, the second of a six-week stand, was $17,700.

The initial week's take at the 900-seater was $17,500.

Anthony Quayle, director and costar with Katharine Cornell in the incoming Broadway production, "The Firstborn," has taken a house in Sneeden's Landing, N.Y., and is bringing his wife and children from England.

SIGHT and SOUND
Sell Yourself with Your Own Film
Call BR 9-5816

REHEARSAL SPACE available
New Amsterdam Roof
214 West 42nd Street
- REGULAR STAGE
- DRESSING ROOMS
- BY DAY, WEEK OR MONTH

Call Wisconsin 7-0870, Ext. 33

WANTED
INVESTOR-ORGANIZER for a
SUMMER STOCK THEATER

We own, free and clear, a wonderful location in Shirley, Long Island's fastest growing community, with a year-round population of 75,000 and a summer potential of over 100,000 within a 15-mile radius.

This superb location fronts on 230-foot-wide WILLIAM FLOYD PARKWAY-the only approach to the new SHIRLEY-TO-FIRE-ISLAND BRIDGE-which (when opened this summer) will provide direct access from LONG ISLAND to the ATLANTIC OCEAN and a beautiful 1½-mile-long, County-Built Park. Plans call for bathing and recreation facilities for upwards of 25,000 people.

During the summer months, thousands of families will be looking for "something to do" after they leave the beach. Evening entertainment of some sort will be A NECESSITY.

We presently own a HOWARD JOHNSON'S restaurant and a 600-CAR DRIVE-IN theater, and we anticipate construction of a 50-UNIT, first-class MOTEL on a site directly adjoining the summer theater location.

We would prefer a "NAME" professional as owner and/or operator of the theater, and if necessary, we will assist in financing its construction. A minimum of 500 seats is required. Approximate cost of land and construction, $100,000.

This is an excellent opportunity, for an individual or group to invest in the future of LONG ISLAND'S most exciting area. Inquiries should be directed to:

WALTER T. SHIRLEY, JR.
500 5th Avenue, N. Y. 36, N. Y.
Phone BR-9-4700

PRODUCER
LEGITIMATE OUTDOOR PRODUCTIONS or SUMMER STOCK, etc. OUTSTANDING BRONX LOCATION. 20,000 sq. ft. ADJACENT AMUSEMENT AREA. PARKING, OTHER FACILITIES. Excellent Opportunity. Easy Terms, Immediate Occupancy. BOX V 419-58, Variety, 154 W. 46th St. New York 36.

JAMES STARBUCK
Currently represented on Broadway in directing and creating musical numbers for "OH CAPTAIN"
NOW in Rehearsal
GRAND BALLET
MARQUIS DE CUEVAS
For A European Tour
Management
TELEVISION ARTISTS CORP.
527 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY
Jack Bertell John Greenhut

Inside Stuff—Legit

Anent the recent mentions in VARIETY of two-character and one-character plays, Louis Cline, manager of the Colonial Theatre, Boston, recalls that Maurice Schwartz, the Yiddish stage star, appeared on Broadway in a one-role drama, "Conscience," from the Portuguese of Pedro Bloch, translated into English by Claude Vincent, adapted by A. M. Klein. Schwartz staged the show, which was presented by the Shuberts, in partnership with Joseph Kipness and Jack Small. It opened May 15, 1952, at the Booth Theatre, N.Y., and played four performances.

Fines of $80 each and two-month suspensions were meted out last week by Actors Equity to seven members who had been brought up on charges of violating union regulations in connection with their employment in the off-Broadway production of "An Enemy of the People." The suspension will be lifted upon the payment of an additional $80.

Legit Bits

Maynard Morris, of the Music Corp. of America legit department, will visit Greece and return to Italy this summer for his annual European vacation trip.

With the continued best-selling success of her book, "Please Don't Eat the Daisies," authoress-playwright Jean Kerr and her husband, playwright-director and N.Y. Herald Tribune drama critic Walter Kerr, have had to get an unlisted telephone number for their home in Larchmont, N.Y.

British actress Rosemary Harris, who'll costar April 26 opposite Maurice Evans in "Dial M for Murder" on the Hallmark tv show, is being sought next for a Canadian tele edition of Christopher Fry's "Phoenix Too Frequent." She'll probably take a vacation from video assignments after that, however.

Does anyone remember Victor Samrock, general manager for the Playwrights Co., when he was an usher at Carnegie Hall, N. Y.? Or Howard Teichmann when he was an assistant stage manager for Orson Welles and John Houseman at the Mercury Theatre?

Mary Chase, author of "Harvey" and "Mrs. McThing," is on a visit from her home in Denver to see the Broadway shows. She's also arranged for publication in fictional form of her play, "Lolita," which is slated for Broadway presentation by the Producers Theatre whenever she thinks it's ready for the stage.

Christopher Fry is writing a new play about King Henry II.

Gregory Morton, who plays the head foreign agent in "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With," takes a leave of absence from the Leland Hayward production April 27-May 12 to appear in the 20th-Fox film, "Rope Law."

Company manager Leonard Field planed Monday night (21) to London to look over the West End shows for a possible import for his Broadway producer debut.

Ellen McRae, femme lead in the Broadway production of "Fair Game," and Paul Roberts, the play's director, are to be married next June.

Virgil Miers, Dallas Times Herald amusements editor, is in New York for two weeks of playgoing, before planing to London to cover the Variety Clubs International convention. Miers and his wife will then vacation via a three-week motor trip to Rome, Paris and Brussels.

Ira Bernstein has joined the legit department of the William Morris Agency.

Former Broadway producer Oscar Serlin sails next Friday (25) for about a month's visit to London and Paris.

Playwright T. S. Eliot arrived from London last Saturday (19) on the S.S. Media.

Robert Anderson, a member of the Playwrights Co., has completed a new play, "Silent Night, Lonely Night," which he's turned over to the producing firm.

John Ford's 17th century play, "'Tis Pity She's a Whore," is planned for off-Broadway production next season by Eugene Van Grona.

Harlowe F. Dean has been appointed assistant to Warren Caro, executive director of the American Theatre Society, Inc. New additions to Caro's staff also include Robert H. Kuhlman and Mrs. Jane R. Marks.

A new, untitled play by N. Richard Nash has been acquired for Broadway production next season by David Susskind and Roger L. Stevens, with Robert Lewis slated to direct.

William Landis and Del Tenney will produce a series of Bernard Shaw plays at the Donwtown Theatre, N. Y., beginning May 12 with "The Philanderer."

Arthur Rubin has withdrawn as assistant stage manager of "Music Man" to join "Most Happy Fella" on the road in the role Giuseppe, which he originated on Broadway.

The Actors Equity council recently rejected a recommendation from the membership that the union urge the State Dept. to okay a passport for Paul Robeson.

A Broadway production of Luigi Pirandello's "Rules of the Game" is planned for next season by Franchot Tone and David Ross, with the former doubling as star and the latter doubling as director.

Collete's "The Other One," based on her short novel, "La Seconde," is planned for Broadway production next season by Leonard Sillman and James Gardner. Also on Sillman's sked for the upcoming semester is "New Faces of '59," which he contemplates presenting in association with Frank Productions (Frank Loesser).

"The Happy Journey," a musical adaptation of Stella Benson's novel, "The Far-Away Bride," is planned for Broadway production next season by Alexander H. Cohen, with Alfred Drake as star. The book and lyrics will be supplied by Edward Eager, while George Antheil has been approached to provide the music.

Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse will collaborate on the dramatization of Howard Nemerov's novel, "The Homecoming Game," which Emmett Rogers plans producing on Broadway next season. Elihu Winer was originally slated to handle the adaptation.

"Three Against Time" is the new title for Pearl Buck's play, formerly called "The White Bird." A Broadway production is planned for next October by Ted Danielewski and Bilee Baum, who's the wife of Harry Steinberg, a treasurer at the Imperial Theatre, N. Y. Danielewski will also double as director.

B'way 'Mame'

Continued from page 59

last January ran to $17,867.05, including a $450 fee for a hair stylist, and a $1,500 fee plus $1,082.09 travel expense for the designer of new gowns. Miss Garson gets a straight 10%-of-the-gross salary.

Legal fees for the show have totaled $12,693.69 thus far, and the charges for Christmas "expense" and parties for the cast have totaled $2,844.64. The practice of charging the cost of parties against the production is fairly common among Broadway managements, and usually causes grumbling among the backers, who have to foot part of the bill. As one angel expressed it last week, "I was one of the hosts of the 'Mame' parties, but I wasn't even invited to attend."

When Miss Russell vacationed last summer, requiring the show to take a layoff, her transportation to and from the Coast was paid by the production, at a cost of $1,054.-81. In addition, the show also paid the rent, amounting to $750, on her New York hotel suite for the period. When she left the cast last Jan. 18 to play the same part in the screen version, the actress is figured to have been paid a total of approximately $400,000.

As an investor, with a $37,500 stake in the production (she thereby shared the $683.15 expense of her own "farewell" party), Miss Russell gets 10% of the profits. As star, she also received 10% of the gross until the producion cost was recouped and 12½% thereafter, plus 13.43% as long as she remained in the cast. In addition, Miss Russell was paid an extra $2,500 per week for an additional three weeks with the show.

Morton DaCosta, who staged the show, got 2% of the gross until the production cost was earned back and 3% thereafter, plus 5% of the profits. Producers Fryer and Carr originally got 47.099% of the net, but since Miss Russell has left the cast the addition of her share has boosted their slice to 60.529%.

Show Out of Town

Jane Eyre

Washington, April 16.

Courtney Burr (in association with Sterling Productions) presentation of three-act drama by Huntington Hartford, adapted from the novel by Charlotte Bronte. Stars Eric Portman, Blanche Yurka, Jan Brooks. Directed by Demetrios Vilan; settings, Ben Edwards; costumes, Motley; music arrangements, Lehman Engel. At Shubert Theatre, Washington, April 16, '58; $4.95 top.

Servant	Carol Haball
Mrs. Fairfax	Blanche Yurka
Adele Varens	Susan Towers
Jane Eyre	Jan Brooks
Grace Poole	Adelaide Klein
Edward Rochester	Eric Portman
Richard Mason	Frank Silvera
Gregory	Francis Compton
Lady Ingram	Norah Howard
Her Daughter	Jola Lynn
Her Son	Adrian Foley
Rev. Wood	Douglas Wood
Col. Dent	George Spelvin
Miss Wood	Ann Stanwell
Mr. Green	Richard Nicholls
Briggs	John Malcolm
Bertha Mason	Jane White
Guests	Tom McDermott, Nick Richards, Dorothy Scott

Huntington Hartford, the A. & P. stores heir, art patron and Hollywood theatre owner, is making his debut as a playwright with this adaptation of Charlotte Bronte's mid-19th century romance. After a dire initial tryout tour, during which film actor Errol Flynn withdrew as star, the drama has been revised and recast, and is again getting a pre-Broadway shakedown tour.

Whatever it may have been in its previous state, "Jane Eyre" now stacks up as a dubious commodity for mid-20th century audiences and, of course, for the Broadway trade. It's a sadly dated yarn, with a sort of quaintness and a handsome physical production as the principal assets. Courtney Burr is the producer, with adaptor Hartford as the sole backer, reportedly for about $300,000 thus far.

It seems doubtful if much can be done to vitalize "Jane Eyre." It just has little application to today's world. There are a few nice moments, notably Jane's return to the burned mansion to find her suitor, the imperious Rochester, blind and unaware of her presence. The staging of the fire itself is also effective, and there is an appealing quality to a scene in which elaborately garbed weekend guests are ceremoniously welcomed at Thornfield Hall.

But integral elements of the story are downright unbelievable, an example being that an intelligent young governess could live in the house for six months without being aware that a violently mad woman is hidden away in one of the wings. Nor does it ring true that Rochester would attempt to wed the heroine while already married to the insane woman.

British actor Eric Portman, who has succeeded Flynn and the latter's successor, John Emery, in the starring role of Rochester, is competent and seemingly sincere, as are Blanche Yurka as the imposing Mrs. Fairfax and Jan Brooks, making her legit debut the title part. But the show tends to be an anachronism. Levy.

London 'Lady'

Continued from page 59

linger Theatre, N. Y., at an $8.05 top.

On the other hand, the Drury Lane presentation, virtually a replica of the New York original, will have cost just over half of the Broadway production — $225,000 against $401,000.

Although advance bookings go into 1960, there are still plenty of seats to be bought from June and July onwards. These are mainly in the cheaper locations, but the ticket brokers are anxious to publicize this fact so as to discourage a blackmarket in seats, such as is usual in New York. Speculators have been busy for some time and the classified ad columns of many of the dailies are regularly carrying offers of "Fair Lady" seats at inflated prices.

The four principals who originally appeared in the New York presentation will repeat their roles at Drury Lane. In addition to Rex Harrison as Prof. Higgins, Julie Andrews as Eliza Doolittle, Stanley Holloway as Mr. Doolittle and Robert Coote as Col. Pickering, the London cast includes Zena Dare as Mrs. Higgins, Betty Wolfe as Mrs. Pearce, Margaret Halstan as the Queen of Transylvania, Peter Gilmore as Freddie Eynsford-Hill and Linda Grey as Mrs. Eynsford-Hill.

The principal technical credits will also be the same as those of the Broadway show, with Moss Hart directing, Oliver Smith the scenic designer and Cecil Beaton doing the costumes.

Literati

Recession Cost: 50% of Profits

The recession will effect a 50% dip in the 1958 profits of the Curtis Publishing Co., president Robert A. MacNeal told stockholders at their annual meeting.

First quarter earnings "may be below $250,000," compared with $1,390,000 for the same period last year. He estimated earnings for the current year would be $3,000,000, down from $6,239,000 in 1957.

This would equal the 35-cent-a-share annual dividend on common payable May 1. Earnings in 1957 amounted to $1.29 a common share.

The Curtis exec sees the slump hitting bottom in the second quarter of 1958 and "recovery well under way by the fourth quarter.

N. Y. Times' 1st Profit Report

N. Y. Times, for first time in its history, issued an annual report making its financial statements public at meeting of stockholders yesterday (22). Arthur Hays Sulzberger, chairman of the board and publisher, reported net profit after taxes of $3,010,067 for year ended 1957. Of this sum $1,462,814 came from newspaper operations and $1,547,253 from daily's investment in Spruce Falls Power & Paper Co. Ltd.

Gross operating revenue from ads and circulation totalled $86,-844,399, an increase of $965,086 over preceding year, but net profit after taxes was $624,245 below previous year. This was N. Y. Times' 60th consecutive year with a net profit.

The Times' circulation established new high records in 1957 and upward trend has continued in 1958. Circulation gains were made despite raise in newstand prices beyond the 100-mile radius from N. Y.

Sulzberger also reported progress on construction of its new home on the west side of West End Ave., from 62d St. to 66th St. Initial building should be completed in 1959. It will serve as subsidiary printing and distributing plant.

Rev. Boyd's Book Plugs

Rev. Malcolm (Mal) Boyd, former TV-radio partner of Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers, and now an Episcopal priest, returned from New York to his parish St. George's, Indianapolis, yesterday (Tues.) following a series of radio and teevee interviews to plug his new book, "Christ and Celebrity Gods: The Church and Mass Culture" (Seabury Press). He was interviewed on the John Wingate show Monday (21) and also by Mike Wallace for his N. Y. Post column.

Father Boyd's book devotes a major section to a discussion of Cecil B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments" and also such films as "Baby Doll," "Tea and Sympathy," "The Great Man" and "Lust for Life." There's also a section devoted to Broadway.

Nat'l Headliners' Awards

National Headliners Club's 1958 Award winners were presented with silver medallions at a formal luncheon in Atlantic City April 12, as part of the 24th annual Headliners Frolic.

The Headliners club was founded by the Press Club of Atlantic City to honor journalists, broadcasters and photographers. Winners annually are selected by a panel of seven judges of national stature from some 1,000 entries in newspaper, television, radio and magazine fields.

The club this year selected the Federal government for an award for "the excellent job the Defense Dept., did in providing films on its missile projects. For a first time the club presented an award to a non-commercial radio station, Boston University's WBUR, which outranked a field of commercial entries to win the medallion awarded for public service. Its entry was a school-created series promoting highway safety entitled "Impact" and carried by more than 30 New England stations.

The public service award for newspapers went to the Philadelphia Inquirer for its series, "Today's World—Page Three."

Another Boston station, WBZ-TV, won the public series service award for a television station for its housing documentary, "City in A Shadow." The other awards:

Outstanding foreign news coverage story: Robert Hewett, Minneapolis Star-Tribune.

Outstanding domestic news story coverage: Donald Gonzales, United Press, Washington.

General excellence in feature writing: Dorothy R. Evers, Spokesman-Review, Spokane, Wash.

Consistently outstanding editorial cartoons: Burris Jenkins Jr., N.Y. Journal-American.

Consistently outstanding theatre and tv column writing—Kenneth J. Barnard, Narragansett Times, Kingston, R.I.

Consistently outstanding special feature column—Bill Bien, Fort Lauderdale (Fla.) News.

Award for newspapers with a circulation under 25,000 went to the Southern Illinoisan, Carbondale, Ill., for its story on the Illinois tornado.

For newspapers in the 25,000 to 50,000 circulation class the award went to the staff of the Jackson (Mich.) Citizen Patriot for its feature, "Christman Day Page One."

Consistently outstanding sports writing and columnist: Harry Grayson, NEA, Cleveland.

Best news feature picture stressing human interest: Bill Beall Washington Daily News.

Best spot news picture: Pat Candido, N.Y. Daily News.

Best sports picture: Arthur Rickerby, UP Newspictures, N.Y. City

Best news series in a magazine: Life, for its six-part series, "Crime in the U.S."

Consistently outstanding radio network news reporting: Station KLIF, Dallas.

Outstanding network coverage of a news event: cameraman Maurice Levy, NBC, Dallas.

Consistently outstanding television coverage of local news events: WTVT, Tampa, Fla.

Outstanding TV coverage of a local news event: KTVT, Salt Lake City.

Profiles Chautauqua

"Culture Under Canvas" by Harry P. Harrison, told to Karl Detzer (Hastings House; $6.50), is the story of tent Chautauqua, entertainment medium that flourished from T. R. to F. D. R., and was called by the first Roosevelt "the most American thing in America."

Keith Vawter, Iowa showman, united the respectability of Lyceum programs (which had existed since before the Civil War), with the glitter of typical stage entertainment, put his attractions in tents, and called the operation "Chautauqua," after a permanent cultural establishment at Lake Chautauqua, N. Y.

Canvas auditoriums played one-week stands each summer in small towns on circuits that stretched from Coast to Coast. Headliners were varied: William Jennings Bryan, the singing White Hussars, Judge Ben Lindsey, "The Mikado" (complete), magic acts, girl whistlers, mentalists, Bob LaFollette, Alice Neilsen, Edgar Bergen (with the original Charlie McCarthy), bell-ringers, yodelers, ladies' harp ensembles, Opie Read, Ben Greet, Mme. Schumann-Heink — these were a few of the Chautauqua "regulars" for many years.

Harrison was one of the first "platform superintendents" in 1903, and remained with Chautauqua until its demise. Detzer is a reporter-editor with memories of Chautauqua from his Michigan boyhood. Book is breezy, informative, nicely illustrated, and gives an excellent picture of a fabulous era of show biz. Rodo.

CHATTER

Gordon Irving, longtime show scribe of the Glasgow Daily Record, morning tabloid, and also VARIETY correspondent for 10 years, has quit his post as stage gossip writer and film critic of the daily, and will join Roy Thomson's TV Guide as feature staffer at Glasgow, covering the tv scene in Scotland.

Charles F. Young, sports editor of Gannett's Albany Knickerbocker News, reported donations of $22,-238 to the Albany Sports Infantile Paralysis Fund during 1958.

York, Pa. Gazette & Daily became the first tabloid to win the Ayer Cup for excellence in typography, makeup and printing. The sheet placed first in the 28th annual N. W. Ayer & Son newspaper contest.

Glenn Gilbert has resigned from three posts with Montreal Star subsids: editorial director of Weekend Magazine, v-p of North American Newspaper Alliance and president of Canada Wide Feature Service. He's going into "new activities in the field of syndication."

Don't miss April issue of FILM CULTURE magazine, devoted to the last years of ERICH VON STROHEIM
Send $1.00 to: FILM CULTURE, GPO, Box 1499, New York 1, N. Y.

Broadway

Time Inc. pouring for American Newspaper Publishers Assn. at the Waldorf-Astoria today (Wed.).

Moiseyev Dance Co. of Moscow is being housed at Claridge Hotel in Times Square.

Jeanne L. Meyer, long with CBS radio and latterly in medical public relations, departs next week for six months in Mexico.

Creole Petroleum Co.'s foundation put up $18,000 and W. R. Grace another $5,000 to help defray costs of N. Y. Philharmonic tour of Latin Republics.

Philip Miles, pub-ad veepee of Restaurant Associates Forum, Hawaiian Room, etc., off to Brussels World Fair and European gourmet trail.

Rosabelle Laemmle and Stanley Bergerman hosting a cocktail-ery-buffet next Monday (28) in honor of Carl Laemmle Jr.'s 50th birthday at the Beverly Hills Club.

Irving Margolin, v.p. and treasurer of Cinerama Productions Corp., resting comfortably at Mary Immaculate Hospital in Jamaica, L.I. after an emergency appendectomy.

Gladys Lloyd Robinson is having a one "man" show of her recent paintings at the Hammer Galleries April 29-May 10. She'll show 29 canvases of Marrakesh, Montego Bar, Hong Kong and Mexico.

Howard E. Potter, tour treasurer for 40 years for such yesteryear concert divas as Nellie Melba and Mary Garden, marks his 81st birthday Monday (28). He and Mrs. Potter will also observe their golden wedding anniversary on June 24.

Pittsburgh

By Hal V. Cohen

Mitzi Gaynor, France Nuyen and Margaret O'Brien on hand for "South Pacific" tee-off at Nixon.

Catholic Theatre Guild has picked "The Front Page" for its May production.

Lester Evans, of dancing Evans Family, and Virginia Wagner announced their engagement.

Lily Jay Silver's first novel, "Shadow In Sun," has had some movie nibbles. She's SW zone manager, M. A. Silver's wife.

Byron Janis comes home next week to piano solo with Pittsburgh Symphony at four city-sponsored concerts in Mosque.

Mrs. Eleanor Tetley to New York to see her son, Glen Tetley, who's with Martha Graham dance company.

Helene Burleigh, sister of community theatre director Fred Burleigh, drove in from Boston for "Tongue In Cheek" preem.

Tim Kirby first act to launch new dancing entertainment policy at Penn-Sheraton's Continental Room.

Major Shorts, of Somethin' Smith & Redheads who make their home here now, expect the stork late next month.

Sam Hood, reporter on Press and amateur jazzophile, gave jazz piano concert of his own arrangements at Press Club.

Jenny Lou Law, who had to quit Julius Monk's "Take Five" revue in N.Y. because of surgery, stepped out for first time at Playhouse revue opening.

Zurich

By George Mezoefi
(32 Florastrasse; 34-70-32)

Leonard Pennario hit several Swiss cities on European tour.

Art Buchwald invited by American Women's Club here for a lecture May 8.

June Christy skedded for Swiss appearance with husband Bob Cooper's combo.

Two U.S. pianists, June Kovach and Marjorie Mitchell, gave recitals at Tonhalle.

Italian tenor Gianni Poggi inked for his initial Swiss concert at Tonhalle, April 27.

Komoedie Basle set for first Swiss production of Tennessee Williams' "Orpheus Descending."

Paris musical "Irma la Douce" set for Schausmielhaus with Colette Renard and original cast.

"Ten Commandments" (Par) racking up smash grosses at Urban Zurich, Bubenberg Berne, and ABC Geneva. It's already out front among this season's U.S. top grossers.

Frankfurt

By Hazel Guild
(24 Rheinstrasse; 776751)

United Artists Richard Widmark in Germany to film "Time Limit" for release.

German director Alfred Weidenmann formed his own production firm, called Neptune Films.

Production started on Divina color film "Heimatlos" (Homeless), starring Marianne Hold and Rudolf Lenz. Gloria will release pic here.

Erika Mann, daughter of Thomas Mann, has written an autobiography and registered the title—"Der Letzte Mann" 'The Last of the Manns for film rights.

Russian film "Don Quixote," directed by Grigori Kosinzew and made in Leningrad by Lenfilms in 1957, has opened in West Germany to outstanding reviews.

Anita von Karajan, wife of the well-known conductor, has been signed by Anatole Litvak as representative for his film "The Journey," starring Yul Brynner and now filming in Austria.

The first German-Hungarian coproduction will be made in Budapest between Walter Koppel's Real Films and government-controlled Hungarian film Hunnia company. Film will concern life of Franz Liszt.

Las Vegas

By Forrest Duke
(DUdley 2-6100)

Louis Prima & Keely Smith have a May date at Brussels World's Fair.

Ed Ames of the Brothers underwent surgery on infected hand, but didn't miss a single Sahara performance.

Eddie (Mr. Domingo) Gomez, who sings with his Latin combo in El Rancho lounge, married Raven Facaros.

Barry Ashton, who choreographs and appears in El Rancho production numbers, will stage Eartha Kitt's act when she returns in Sept.

Frank Sinatra told Silver Slipper's Hank Henry he wants him to be in his new Brigitte Bardot picscheduled for Jan. start in France.

On Jack Eigen's deejay show from Tropicana lounge, Jack Lemmon blasted newspapers for playing up the Lana Turner love letters.

Jack E. Leonard, at a Prima-Smith session, was fascinated by Louis' New Orleans accent, asked Sinatra, "Doesn't this guy ever sing any NORTHERN songs?"

Australia

By Eric Gorrick

20th-Fox reissuing "Song of Bernadette."

Emlyn Williams here for a series of Dickens recitals under D. D. O'Connor banner.

Cherry Blossom revue winding up good run at Empire, Sydney, for Harry Wren.

Queensland exhibs say they will continue their battle for right to reject British pix.

Overplay of poor commercials is boresome to tv viewer paying $11 license fee to government.

Bullen Bros. circus doing ok in Sydney after New Zealand run. It's only two-ring circus Down Under.

Robert Graham, Paramount chief here, biz-visiting New Zealand. Says "10 C's" will run more than a year here.

Distributors deny there will be any get-together to operate a solo clearing house for pix as an operational cutdown.

Tokyo

By Dave Jampel
Press Club—27-0161

French violist Brigette de Baufond debuted with concert on JOAK-TV.

Carol Heiss, Tim Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Ludington opened figure skating exhibition tour.

Cinerama's "Search For Paradise" to open between June 1-15 after May 31 closing of "Seven Wonders" at the Imperial.

Chief Disney engineer Jack Cutting here to supervise dubbing of "Cinderella" and other Disney product.

Fiscal 1958 (beginning April 1) film importation policy delayed further and decision is hoped for at month's end.

U.S. Army site at Palace Heights, adjacent to Imperial Palace, due to be returned to Japanese Government and slated to become location of planned National Theater.

London Sunday Times film critic Derek Prouse huddling with film bigwigs re opening of 780-seater for Japanese films on Piccadilly Circus in September.

The 50-member Moscow National Bolshoi Circus will have a two-month Tokyo run starting in mid-June on invitation from Yomiuri Newspapers and the Art Friends Assoc.

Actress Yoshiko (Shirley) Yamaguchi left for retirement and Raugoon. She will marry an official of the Japanese Embassy. She recently completed her farewell film for Toho.

London

(COVent Garden 0135-6-7)

Julie Wilson at the Colony.

Ella Fitzgerald due here for tv and concert dates.

Dorothy Maguire in from Hollywood.

L. Wolfe Gilbert to Paris after a week's stay in London.

David Whitfield hospitalized for a tonsilectomy.

Peter Chong here from Hollywood to join cast of "The Inn Of The Sixth Happiness."

Mitzi Gaynor and Rossano Brazzi attended Dominion opening of "South Pacific".

Maggie Fitzgibbon making her cabaret debut as a solo at Society restaurant.

Dick Shawn, who just finished a Palladium fortnight, doing cabaret spot at Pepsi-Cola night for Variety.

Kirk Douglas' "The Vikings" will have a swank preem on July 8 with Prince Philip attending.

Bill Anderson, v.p. in charge of Disney's Hollywood studios, guest of honor at a Savoy press reception.

Singer Julie Martin back from six weeks' vaude tour of South Africa.

Macdonald Carey stopped over in London en route to Madrid for "John Paul Jones."

Lew and Leslie Grade tossed a cocktailery for Sarah Vaughan, who is on a concert tour here.

Howard Keel here to co-star with Anne Heywood in Sydney Box's production of "Floods Of Fear" for Rank release.

John Bentley back from Kenya, where he spent more than a year starring in Gross-Krasne's "African Patrol" series.

Hardy Kruger back in London for his second British film role. He plays a German undergraduate at Cambridge.

National Film Theatre running special season of British comedies of the years between 1930 and 1940. Season opened with "Sunshine Susie."

Cecil Parker to co-star with John Mills in Maxwell Setton's production of "Monty's Double," which will be released through AB-Pathe.

Gene Evans in from Hollywood to make his British film debut in "The Giant Behemoth," produced by Edward Lloyd for Eros release.

Comedian Ronald Shiner off to Estoril for a vacation.

Chicago

Sherman Hotel bandleader Frank York started his own diskery, Dash Records.

Conrad Hilton Hotel resumes ice shows in Boulevard Room after a month's hiatus.

Jimmy Ames topping new revue at Mangam's Chateau, with oldtime vaude star Gus Van held over.

Ronald Reagan due in May 1 to speak to the Bond Club of Chi on "The Business Side Of Show Business."

Paul Whiteman batoning an all-Gershwin concert at Orchestra Hall with soloists Len Dresslar and Marilyn Taylor and pianist Jorge Bolet.

"Biggest Show Of Stars for '58," rock 'n' roll package with Sam Cooke, Paul Anka, the Everly Bros and 14 other acts, doing two shows at Opera House May 3.

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz
(28 Rue Huchette; Odeon 49-44)

"River Kwai" (Col) cleaning up in second runs in nabe spots.

Edith Piaf's stint at Olympia Music Hall was upped from six to 12 weeks and winds April 29, breaking house record.

More than 150,000 disks of "Colonel Bogey March" from "River Kwai" (Col) have already been sold since film opened.

Gaby Bruyere, French actress-singer, nominated model Parisienne for '58 and will be official French hostess at Brussels.

In for firstrun reissues are two Jean Gabin starrers, "Pepe Le Moko" and "La Grande Illusion." A reissue of "The Invisible Man" (U) at two arties doing neat biz.

Jean Albert, singer who quit Les Compagnons de La Chanson last season, will do his first solo stint here next month at new nitery, the Mocombo.

Michael Stack will stage William Inge's "Picnic" for a limited English run at Theatre Des Champs Elysees in June utilizing Yank Army personnel.

Turgeniev's novelette "First Love" to be made here in October with Raoul Levy producing and Claude Autant-Lara directing. Audrey Hepburn being paged for the lead. Italian director, Gianni Franciloni, also announced a version with Eleonora Rossi-Drago, and there was talk of Hecht-Hill-Lancaster also doing it in Hollywood.

Comedie-Francaise has authorized filming of its repertoire to LPC-Filmsonor. Now in a 15 day production sked is Moliere's "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" directed by C-F member Jean Meyer with the regular C-F cast. In C'Scope and color, these productions are aimed at school showings and video, but may get regular theatre dates as well.

Berlin

By Hans Hoehn
(76 02 64)

Rudolf Nelson, local cabaret pioneer, celebrating his 80th birthday.

Jazz trombonist Albert Mangelsdorff will represent Germany at forthcoming Newport Jazz Festival.

Italian actor Folco Lulli to Berlin to take over a leading role in CCC's "Polikuschka."

Sidney Bechet with Reweliotty Band (Paris) and drummer Kansas Fields gave a concert at Sportpalast.

Dusco Gojkowic, Yugoslavian trumpeter, has been chosen to rep his country at Newport. Gojkowic currently is with Germany's Kurt Edelhagen orch.

Before Robert Aldrich's "The Phoenix" goes into final stage, pic's two male stars, Jeff Chandler and Jack Palance (accompanied by wife Virginia Baker plus children) planed to Switzerland for a few days vacationing.

This year's Berlin Film Festival (June 27-July 8) will be opened at new Congress Hall. Traditional Festival ball will be held at the Palais am Funkturm July 5, while distribution of Federal Film Awards will take place June 29.

Pix currently playing local G.I. circuit (five houses) include "Baby Face Nelson" (UA), "Gun Battle At Monterey" (AA), "Witness For Prosecution" (UA), "Enemy From Space" (UA), "Buster Keaton Story" (Par), "Wild Is The Wind" (Par), and "Rainmaker" (Par).

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan

Paddy Chayefsky due in to plug his new pic, "The Goddess."

Conductor-organist Nadia Boulanger, to give a lecture-recital at Ethical Society Auditorium.

Hildegarde appeared in kick-off meeting for Catholic Charities Drive in Convention Hall.

Nancy Cushman, here in "Happiest Millionaire," honored at a tea in Charlotte Cushman Club. Spot was named for her ancestor.

Int'l Variety Club

Continued from page 2

Duke of Edinburgh will present the Humanitarian Award. At this function, too, proceeds of the Convention will be distributed among various children's charities. Altogether, about $56,000 is to be given out, half of which came from registration fees paid by delegates and the remainder from advertising in the convention brochure.

Wives of Delegates Feted

In addition to the main business and social calendar, the Convention Committee has organized a full program for the visiting ladies, including a tour to Windsor Castle and a fashion show at the Savoy. There'll also be a party for orphaned children at the Guildhall on the opening day of the convention which is being covered by tv.

The U. S. delegations have come in from Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Detroit Cleveland, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Washington, D. C., Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Des Moines, Omaha, Dallas, Baltimore, Memphis, Atlanta, Oklahoma, Boston, Charlotte, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Miami, New York, Las Vegas Jacksonville, New Orleans and Seattle. Additionally, there are visiting contingents from Toronto, Mexico City and Dublin.

More than 300 members of the London Tent will also be participating and every event has proved a sellout.

The convention, which has been in the planning stage for substantially more than year, was organized by a panel of committees, with James Carreras, Nat Cohen, J. D. Goodlatte and C. J. Latta (all past Chief Barkers acting as convention chairmen). Additionally, Goodlatte and M. J. Frankovich (last year's Chief Barker) head the executive committee.

Among the 18 international officers attending the convention are Nathan D. Golden (Washington, D. C.), Jack Beresin (Philadelphia), John H. Harris (Pittsburgh), George C. Hoover (South Miami), John H. Rowley (Dallas) and Marc J. Wolf (Indianapolis).

Hollywood

Ann Todd in from London.

William Frawley nursing broken arm.

Lew Arnold resigned as KTLA g.m.

Alexander Mackendrick arrived from London.

Howard Strickling hospitalized for head cuts in auto accident.

Pat Owens granted divorce from writer-producer Sy Bartlett.

Herman D. Hover divorced by Yvonne Hover.

Les Tremayne to Mexico City on archaeological trek.

Billy Eckstine sued for divorce by spouse of two months.

Cathy Lewis won her freedom from actor-producer Elliott Lewis.

Marie MacDonald handed final decree from shoeman Harry Karl.

Louis G. Cowan and W. Spencer Harrison elected directors of Pacific Ocean Park.

Walter Strenge elected prexy of American Society of Cinematographers.

Ken Carter swings to Cheary-Strauss-Irwin flackery as pub relations veepee.

Beulah Frankel will rep Society of Motion Picture Art Directors at Brussels World's Fair and Ireland's An Tostal film festival.

Mervin Houser swings from DOS to Samuel Goldwyn to be pub co-director with William Hebert on "Porgy & Bess."

Piper Laurie, Johnny Grant and Hedda Hopper copped USO awards for "outstanding contribution."

Nanette Fabray in Cedars following auto accident.

Chief Barker O. N. (Bill) Srere heads 20-member contingent of L. A. Variety Club Tent 25 now in London to attend International convention.

Rome

By Robert F. Hawkins
(Foreign Press Club; tel. 65 906)

Miiko Taka vacationing in Rome following world-wide junket on behalf of "Sayonara."

Dean Jagger arrives soon to start work on "Nun's Story," both here and on subsequent Belgian locations of Warner pic. He plays Audrey Hepburn's father.

Anna Magnani may shoot an Italo pic, "Solitude," for producer Franco Cancellieri before returning to coast for her Hal Wall's stint. Francesco Maselli would direct.

Jules Dassin to Athens for quick visit. His "La Loi" rolls May 5 on locations in Rhodes, Agrigento, and Northern Italy. Actors signed so far are Yves Montand, Pierre Brasseur, and Melina Mercouri.

Charlton Heston arrived to prep his "Ben Hur" role. Mario Soldati inked as directorial assistant to William Wyler on Metro project, same job he had on "War And Peace" under King Vidor.

Gilbert Becaud here for dubbing stint at Fono Roma studios on his latest pic, "Le Pays d'ou je Viens," which RKO releases here. Singer insisted on doing translation himself on his personally penned tunes.

Amilcar Tirado, Puerto Rican pic director, here to perfect his technique while watching Fred Zinnemann direct "Nun's Story" at Cinecitta. Tirado's past pix have won awards at various European Festivals.

Minneapolis

By Les Rees (2123 Fremont Ave. So.
FR. 7-2609)

Edyth Bush Little Theatre presenting "Jerry Kissed Me."

St. Paul Civic Opera readying "Finian's Rainbow."

Minneapolis Symphony ended Friday night concert season.

Cecil Golly's orchestra moving from Hotel St. Paul to Coleman's.

Skating star Dorothy Lewis started divorce proceedings.

Starlight club again holding over comedian Nate Wexler.

Female impersonators Arthur Blake and Lee Leonard continuing at Gay 90s.

U. of Minnesota's Young People's Theatre offering "Paul Bunyan's Lumberjack," locally authored.

Annual Met. Opera engagement, May 16-18, scaled at $8 top, compared to previous $7.50.

"The Big Beat" with 17 acts and four bands, including Jerry Lee Lewis, Buddy Holly, the Crickets and Alan Freed, set for Minneapolis Auditorium at $3.75 top.

Joyce A. Swan, Minneapolis Star & Tribune executive v. pres. and local Chamber of Commerce head, joined forces with Bennie Berger to induce RKO Theatres to make the Orpheum avilable for legit touring attractions next season now that Lyceum, home of such shows, is being converted into evangelistic tabernacle.

OBITUARIES

ESTELLE TAYLOR

Estelle Taylor, 58, silent picture star, died of cancer April 15 in Hollywood. One of the most beautiful and glamorous actresses of the non-talking era, she had been retired in recent years, devoting all her attention to the protection of animals and was prexy of Pet Owners Protective League, which she founded.

Launching her professional career in a small part in a Broadway musical, "Come On, Charlie," Miss Taylor entered films in the early '20s as a double for Dorothy Dalton. She then struck out on her own, and rose to stardom in such films as "While New York Sleeps," "Don Juan," "A Fool There Was," "Mary, Queen of Scots" and in Cecil B. DeMille's original "10 Commandments."

Following advent of talking pictures, actress for 10 years was active in vaude and the saloon circuit as a singer. Returning to the screen in early '40s, she appeared in a few films but soon retired. She was married to Jack Dempsey, then heavyweight champ, and later producer Paul Small, both marriages ending in divorce.

Surviving are her mother and sister, Helen Taylor, tv makeup artist.

JAMES E. WARD

James Edward Ward, 74, playwright-producer for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., died April 12 in Toronto. He had been struck by a truck. Canon Ward was an Oxford graduated rancher in the Canadian West and a padre in World War I in which he was wounded and invalided to England. A radio pioneer, he was director of radio for the Anglican Church in Canada and chairman of the National Advisory Council of the CBC until 1952.

Throughout his career, he became increasingly known for his religious plays and musical settings; was also editor of the long-time, weekly CBC program, "The Way of the Spirit." Canon Ward's dramas for the CBC earned top awards in the U. S., with the CBC recently paying him tribute for his pioneering in radio and continuance for 30 years, this including a CBC invitation to produce his six "best" plays for Sunday presentation again on their trans-Canada network.

Survived by sister.

FRANK MANDEL

Frank Mandel, 74, writer and producer of numerous Broadway legit productions, died April 20 in Hollywood.

He wrote the books for such musicomedy hits of the 1920s as "The New Moon," "The Desert Song" and "No, No, Nanette." Among the composers with whom he collaborated were Sigmund Romberg and Victor Herbert.

He was best known as half of the producing team of Laurence Schwab and Mandel. Their first show was "Sweet Little Devil." It was followed by "The Firebrand," "Captain Jinks" and "Queen High." He also collaborated with David Belasco on "Bosom Friends." He retired in 1942 after producing "Vickie." He also was a producer at Warner Brothers in 1937-38.

His wife survives.

ROGER IMHOF

Roger Imhof, vet vaude and screen actor, died at his Hollywood home April 15 on his 83d birthday. Starting his career as a youngster, he toured the country with the old Empire and Columbia circuits, becoming known as an Irish comic. Later, partnered with his wife, Marcelle Coreene, he played both Keith and Orpheum time, appearing in such acts as "Surgeon Louder" and "The Pest House" for more than 20 years.

Signed by William Fox in 1933, Imhof went to Hollywood and appeared in the majority of Will Rogers pictures. Among his other films were "Drums Along the Mohawk," "The Barker," "San Francisco" and "Three Godfathers."

For 60 years he had been compiling a show biz encyclopaedia, to which many authors had free access.

His wife survives.

ALBERT AKST

Albert Akst, 56, film editor and former musician, died April 19 in Hollywood. He was with Metro from 1935 until his retirement because of illness two years ago. He played the saxophone for the Meyer Davis orchestra in 1928-29, then worked as a musician in vaudeville until he entered films in 1930 as a cutter.

After four years with Universal, he joined Metro as a short subjects cutter, progressing to be one of the top editors on the lot. His credits include "Somebody Up There Likes Me," "Brigadoon," "Trial" and "Bandwagon."

His wife, Ruth, sister of producer Arthur Freed; a brother, Harry Akst, veteran composer-arranger, and his daughter survive.

FRANK X. GALVIN

Frank X. Galvin, 64, singer, bandleader and lyricist, died April 14 in Oakland, Cal. A native of San Francisco, he came up through vaudeville and with his band played long stands at the Castro, Royal and Irving Theatres, Frisco, and the old State, Oakland, in the 1920s.

From 1929 until the mid-'30s Galvin had a Frisco radio show. He wrote the lyrics for "I Don't Know Why," "All the Time," "Lovebeam" and "My Lost Pearl," among others. For the last two decades he operated a coin shop in Oakland.

A sister survives.

MARGARET BURKE-SHERIDAN

Margaret Burke-Sheridan, 69, Irish opera singer, died April 16 in Dublin. She made her debut in "La Boheme" in Rome back in 1919. In the same year, she made her first appearances at two other major opera houses, the San Carlo in Naples and Covent Garden in London. She sang "Madame Butterfly" at the latter.

She also appeared at La Scala in Milan and with the Chicago Opera Company. In recent years she was a coach on the staff of the Metropolitan Opera.

ALICE E. FIELD

Mrs. Alice Evans Field, 71, formerly associated with the Motion Picture Assn. of America for 21 years, died in Hollywood April 17. During her years with the MPAA, much of it before her retirement in 1949 under the Will Hays administration, she acted as liaison exec between film industry and national and state organizations. Mrs. Field also authored a book, "Hollywood U.S.A.—From Script to Screen."

Her husband and a son survive.

WERNER V. D. SCHULENBURG

Werner von der Schulenburg, 76, author of 18 German stage plays, died April 4 in Neggio, Italy, after a long illness. Born in Holstein, Germany, he was an officer in the German army, later studied law and philosophy, and turned to writing.

He wrote novels, historical books, and dramas, his most popular play being the comedy, "Schwarzbrot und Kipfel" (Black Bread and Rolls).

THOMAS T. CHAPEAU

Thomas Theodore (Ted) Chapeau, 46 veteran radio-tv personality, died recently of acute leukemia in Jacksonville, Fla. At the time of his death he was on the staff of station WZOK, Jacksonville. He went to that city 24 years ago from his native town of Savannah, Ga., where he started his radio career in 1929 with station WTOC.

Surviving are his wife, son, daughter, mother, sister and a brother.

TOM BLOOMER

Tom Bloomer, president of the Bloomer Amusement Co. of Belleville, Ill., and a member of the executive committee of the Theatre Owners of America, died of a heart attack April 20 in Belleville. He was a past president and board chairman of the Missouri-Illinois Theatres Assn.

His wife survives.

J. T. HUGHES

J. T. Hughes, 56, president and general manager of station KSNY in Snyder, Tex., died April 12 in that city following a heart attack. Prior to joining the radio outlet, he was in the theatre business throughout Texas for 32 years.

Surviving are his wife, daughter and grandson, Gilbert, commercial manager of KSNY.

C. S. MAURICE

C. S. Maurice, 71, oldtime magician and card manipulator known as the Great Maurice, died April 17 in Hollywood.

Born in Algeria, the son of Rabbi Joseph Cohn, he performed throughout Europe and for Allied troops during World War I before coming to the U.S.

VINCENT DE ARRILLAGA

Vincent de Arrillaga, 78, California organist and music teacher, died April 11 in San Francisco. A native San Franciscan, he founded a music school and directed it in Frisco for 36 years. For more than a quarter of a century he was a leading Northern California church and theatre organist.

Wife and two sisters survive.

KEN GRAHAM

Ken Graham, 33, of the comedy team of Collins & Graham, was killed April 14 in an auto crash in Miami Beach. He was driving home following an engagement. Team originally started as instrumentalists, but later switched into straight comedy. They were formerly known as the Knick Knacks.

Survived by his wife.

FRANK MAHUSKY

Frank Mahusky, 77, former vaudeville performer, died April 14 in Sunnyside, Queens. He was a member of a trapeze act called the "Flying Russells." He later appeared with his wife Beatrice in a similar act called "Russell & Beatrice."

Wife, son and two sisters survive.

RUSS HUGHES

Russ Hughes, 47, television writer, died of a heart attack April 15 while watching tv in his Hollywood home. He started his career 20 years ago in radio, and lately had been scripting shows for "Climax", "Playhouse 90" and oaters.

His wife survives.

GEORGE RUBIN

George Rubin, 48, musician and ASCAP member, was killed April 14 in an auto accident near Barstow, Cal.

Surviving are two sisters, Dora Rubina, Hollywood, and Fruma Berger, actress with Yiddish Theatre in N.Y.

Leon J. Livingston, 58, husband of dress designer Mollie Parnis whose creations have been popular with stage and screen stars, died of an apparent heart attack April 15 in his New York office. He was president of Parnis-Livingston Inc., a top dress manufacturing house.

Mrs. Dorothy Cameron Murphy, 55, one of the dancing Cameron Sisters of the 1920s, died April 15 in New York. Her sister Mrs. Madeline Cameron Gaxton, wife of actor William Gaxton, two other sisters and three brothers survive.

Edward Plumb, 50, Walt Disney studio music arranger since 1946, died April 19 in Hollywood. He worked on most of the Disney features, starting with "Fantasia." His wife, three daughters and a brother survive.

Waldemar Liachowsky, 83, piano accompanist for numerous violinists, including Mischa Elman, Jascha Heifetz and Fritz Kreisler, died April 13 in New York. Two sons, three sisters and a brother survive.

Billy Joe Elledge, 20, manager of the Interstate circuit's Queen Theatre, Abilene, Tex., was killed April 7 in an auto accident near Albany, Tex. His parents, two brothers and a sister survive.

Michael Block, near 70, brother-in-law of Gene Krupa and for the past two years working on the drummer's managerial staff, died April 16 at Krupa's Yonkers, N.Y., home.

Charles E. Trezona, 53, a partner in the Trezona-Schiller business management agency, died April 21 in Santa Monica. Wife and nephew survive.

Clayton Frederick Hawkins, 40, commercial manager at CKNW, New Westminster, B.C., died after a brief illness April 17 in Vancouver. Wife, son and parents survive.

Alexander W. Greiner, 70, concert artist manager of Steinway & Sons, piano manufacturers in N.Y., died April 20 in N.Y. His wife and sister survive.

Richard Tucker, 60, theatrical photographer, died April 14 in Venice, Italy. Wife and actress daughter, Judy Tucker, survive.

Eugene F. Westfall, 52, Warner Bros. sound recorder for 30 years, died of heart attack April 10 in Hollywood.

Mary Maguire, 86, former owner of three West Philly nabes, died April 14 in Philadelphia. Her brother survives.

Mother of Tecla Marsico Marzullo, of WWSW staff in Pittsburgh, died there April 6.

Father of Paramount studio process head Farciot Edouart died March 31 in Hollywood.

Sophie Wills, 69, pianist, died March 10 in New York. Her husband and two brothers survive.

MARRIAGES

Margaret Whiting to John Richard Moore, Hollywood, April 13. Bride's a singer; he's exec veepee of Panavision Inc.

Roberta Roy to John Simpson, Toronto, April 14. Bride is daughter of Harry Roy, British bandleader, and Princess Pearl of Sarawak.

Lee Ann Meriwether to Frank Aletter, San Francisco, April 20. She was Miss America of 1955; he's an actor.

Irene Ryan to Charles Olsen, New York, April 14. Bride is an actress, professionally known as Irene Riordan; he's a producer-director.

Virginia Deverich to Henry Howard, April 19, in Beverly Hills. Groom is director of music operations for CBS-TV.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Alvan Berman, daughter, April 16, Beverly, Mass. Mother is daughter of Leonard Traube, VARIETY staffer; father, known as Chick Berman, is assistant pro at the Blue Hill Country Club, Canton, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sanders, daughter, Winston-Salem, April 10. Father is disk jockey on WTOB in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Mauro, daughter, Pittsburgh, April 15. Father's bass player with Al Marsico orch; mother is Nancy Fingal, tv singer with Slim Bryant Wildcats.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vernon, son, London, April 11. Father is an actor; mother (Benedicta Leigh) is an actress.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Hoffnung, daughter, London, April 12. Father is a tuba player and cartoonist.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Purcell, son, South Bend, Ind., April 15. Father is account exec at WNDU-TV there.

Mr. and Mrs. Hank Miller, son, Los Angeles, April 11. Father is with ABC-TV.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Forbes, daughter, Santa Monica, Cal., April 17. Mother is actress Jeanne Moody; father an actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Upton, daughter, Detroit, April 15. Father is Midwest Cinerama Division manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Noonan, daughter, Burbank, Cal., April 17. Father is an actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Parker, daughter, Los Angeles, April 17. Father is a writer for Art Linkletter's "House Party."

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Turet, daughter, New York, April 18. Mother is secretary to Saint Subber, producer of "Dark at the Top of the Stairs"; father is [illegible] agent, currently with vaudeville show in [illegible]

In Memoriam

JOE LAURIE, JR.

(April 29, 1954)

Ed Rigg — Bill Buckley
Henry Holt & Co.

In Loving Memory of Our Dear Departed One

BELLE BAKER

(April 28th 1957)

Murray, Rose, Edna,
Anna and Harry

In Loving Memory of

BELLE BAKER

My Friend and Pal . . .
I miss you.

Jennie

IN LOVING MEMORY
OF
PETER DE ROSE
March 10, 1896 — April 23, 1953
ROBBINS — FEIST — MILLER

In Memory of My Friend
JOE LAURIE, JR.
Jerry Lieberman

In Loving Memory
BELLE BAKER
Herbert

Variet[illegible]

Continued f[illegible]

Purple Onion
Lil Greenwood
Lou Gottlieb
Tin Angel
Marty Marsalla Orc

Toni D[illegible]
Joy Healy Dncrs
Alex Duchin Orc

SAN JUAN

Intercontinental
Betty Reilly
Bruni Roque
Joaquin Banegas
Bobby Hicks Orc
Lito Pena Orc
Club Caribe
Pepe Lara
Olga Guillot
Pino Baratti
Los Riviera
Miguelito Miranda Orc.

Escambron
M. A. Ortiz
Cleytons
Voodoo Orc
Cotillion Room
Tobaco Muniz
Flamboyan Club
Pepe Miller
Kiko Mendive
Zafra Garcia
Anne Carol
Cesar Conception Orc

Joe Blanco Orc

Joe Vallejo Orc

These record stars.....

PAT BOONE

GALE STORM

BILLY VAUGHN

THE FONTANE SISTERS

TAB HUNTER

MARGARET WHITING

THE HILLTOPPERS

JIM LOWE

JACK HALLORAN

MARLENE DIETRICH

PAUL HORN

THE MILLS BROTHERS

CAROL JARVIS

TOMMY JACKSON

SHIRLEY JONES

THE BROTHERS CANDOLI

JOHNNY MADDOX

HAL MARCH

RUSTY BRYANT

JIMMY NEWMAN

KEN NORDINE

BILL PAGE

EDDIE PEABODY

BEASLEY SMITH

ELMER BERNSTEIN

NICK TODD

HELEN TRAUBEL

BILL FRAWLEY

BONNIE GUITAR

MAC WISEMAN

....follow the Dot line

FILMS | VIDEO | TV FILMS | RADIO | MUSIC | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 35¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $15. Single copies, 35 cents.
Entered as second-class matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.
COPYRIGHT, 1958, BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
VOL. 210 No. 9 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30, 1958 96 PAGES

VIDEO'S 'POTOMAC POISONING'

Seek Angels in Detroit

Detroit, April 29.

Broadway is coming to Detroit for financial backing. Local auto industry tycoons and business moguls are the target of a backers' audition scheduled to be held here Thursday night (1) by New York producer-director Shepard Traube.

The property being auditioned by Traube is John S. Rodell's "Crazy Old Owl," which he plans presenting on Broadway next season. Sidney Blackmer and Stuart Erwin, who've been set to costar in the production, will participate in the reading for prospective investors. It'll be held in the home of columnist-radio broadcaster Shirley Eder.

The proposed Broadway production is capitalized at $90,000, with provision for a 20% overcall. It's figured the play will be able to break even at $15,000 gross and earn an operating profit of $9,000 on a $30,000 gross. A pre-Broadway tryout tour is scheduled to begin next September in Columbus, O.

NAB's 'Don't Want You Next Year' Hints Film Syndicators' Own Assn.

Los Angeles, April 29.

Top telefilm syndicators, up in arms over the NAB ruling shutting them out of next year's convention, will hold an emergency meeting tomorrow (Wed.) to chart their next step. Out of the meeting could come a decision to form a tv film association, to set up their own convention next year or simply to defer action until a later meeting in New York.

Revolt of the syndicators hasn't reached any definite form as yet, though individually the vidpix boys are boiling over being shut out. Wednesday meeting was called by Television Programs of America exec. v.p. Mickey Sillerman, who said that no specifics had been considered but that some meeting of the minds is necessary.

TPA's bossman, Milton Gordon, had planned publicly to blast the NAB decision during his speech at the tv film clinic, but limited his remarks to an observation that it's about time the stations stopped treating the syndicators like "second-class citizens."

Though no committees have been formalized to take up the matter of the NAB expulsion, the syndicators have worked together in the past, at one time toward forming a vidpix association, which never came off, and again as a group in preparing an exhibit for the FCC's Network Study Group. Syndicators also operate as a unit in financing and running the annual tv film reception at the NAB each year.

Any Roof Will Do

Brussels, April 29.

To create something like 40,000 rooms to accommodate tourists for the World's Fair, Brussels converted all sorts of maisons. Among them were the hospices where heretofore if you stayed over an hour the joke ran, among the Beligians, you were charged an extra day.

New found respectability of some of these establishments is an inside laugh for the wise natives.

Berlin Studio In $75,000 Cable Bid On Satpost Novel

Hollywood, April 29.

Hollywood producers, who have heretofore had a clear field in bidding on literary properties, now are faced with a new competitor. Achilles Industrie, indie film combine of Berlin, has cabled an offer of $75,000 for film rights to "The Chains of Fear," N. Narakov novel to be published by Henry Regnery Co., and serialized in eight parts by Satevepost, beginning May 22.

Offer was received by Christopher Bird here, who translated tome from the original Russian. Narakov is a Russian writer who lived in Germany. Yarn, a romantic suspense novel, doesn't begin studio rounds until sometime this week.

Authors had hoped to delay any bidding until after Satevepost printing to run up price on basis of eight weeks of heavy penetration in a national mag, but their European rep beat them to punch by offering novel on basis of galley proofs.

MODERN ART MUSEUM FOR COLUMBUS CIRCLE

A&P heir and showman Huntington Hartford plans a Gallery of Modern Art on the old Hearst Columbus Circle triangle now occupied by radio station WINS.

Edward D. Chase who designed the U. S. Pavilion at the Brussels Fair will be the architect of the new venture, while south of the Lincoln Square redevelopment as an art, educational and cultural centre it will be separate and apart from that project.

SOLONS TROUBLE AIR CONCLAVE

By GEORGE ROSEN

Los Angeles, April 29.

The nation's broadcasters, one eye on declining billings and the other on their Government inquisitioners, are assembled here this week to reexamine their status in society and as a force in the U.S. economic scheme of things generally.

Outwardly there's the customary peace - on - earth - goodwill - toward-men convention facade with all the attendant hoopla and desperate fun of previous years. But there's no mistaking that this 38th annual meet of the National Assn. of Broadcasters is a "convention of troubled souls."

In a year when the broadcasting industry (and its watchdog, the Federal Communications Commission) is being subjected to unprecedented pressures and scrutiny, the NAB even now may be a year too late in its reappraisal and timetable to shed itself of the fun boys, the shill artists and the carnival-bedecked come-on guys. The NAB board of directors' decision to restrict future conventions to membership registrants operating on a policy level and to the guy with a dedicated gleam in his eye, thus tossing all extraneous folderol out of the window, is generally being greeted with hosannahs.

True, there's plenty of opposition from syndicators and allied vidfilm entrepeneurs, along with transcription companies, station reps and other peripheral participants who henceforth will be barred from future attendance. The NAB, for one, feels it would be serving the tv film boys' interests in better style by permitting them to put up their shingle at all the regional meetings. The vidfilm fraternity says it won't be the same—that to throw out the present con-

(Continued on page 26)

Dub Imports For Video Selloff

Increase in the number of foreign films that are being dubbed into English for wider release in the States has raised the imports' residual value from television.

A number of dubbed features, including some which haven't clicked at the theatrical b.o., are being offered to the stations for current and future release. Long list, including "Frisky," "Wages of Fear," "Woman of Rome," "Gold of Naples," etc., has been made available by Distributors Corp. of America. Trans-Lux Distributing is offering the dubbed "La Strada."

Television, of course, represents an important extension of the market which, at the theatrical level,

(Continued on page 94)

Speakeasy-Type Whiskey Dispensing Oddity of Brussels as Expo Town

By ABEL GREEN

Brussels, April 29.

As the 1958 Brussels Exposition settles down into a cultural and ideological battle for the world's good opinion it looks likely also to settle down into a gastronomic tussle. Next to the French postcard idiom, the most popular indoor sport for Europeans is eating. And both sides of the Iron Curtain have whipped up some pretty fancy groceries. In fact, if anything, the edge is to the Ivan League. The Hungarian, Czech and Russian pavilions are no slouches with the feedbag department.

This is regarded in downtown Brussels as still another blight on the boxoffice of the eateries and niteries although the Carlton Restaurant management, with foresight, insured itself by enfranchising the Atomium's fancy calorie dispensory, the Canterbury Restaurant has the Argentine Pavilion and the Hotel Metropole has the concession at the Belgian pavilion.

More surprising is the lack of enterprise in the nite life. Any event which can generate a possible 35,000,000 tourist traffic within six months, and pull 200,000-capacity weekends, invariably sees the nite life entrepreneurs very savvy and quick-on-the-couvert. They have been notably lacking in enterprise here.

Le Boeuf-sur-le-Toit (Cow-on-the-Roof) seems to rely on its rep as the "plus ancienne" nitery, but 20 years of operation is no guarantee of quality. The Moulin Rouge has a better show, and in between is the Eve de Paris, affiliated with the rue Pigalle (Paris) nitery of the same name.

Also unrealistic are the local liquor laws which encourage speakeasy-style bars and B-girls, and makes a farce of law by serving scotch masquered as half-bottles of champagne. The idea of going

(Continued on page 92)

Erotica Esoterica

Articles editor Ralph Ginsburg of Esquire Mag has a new Helmsman Press book due in July, "An Unhurried View of Erotica." It will give the facts on this kind of literature, revealing that the collection in the Vatican Library is world's largest, following by J. P. Morgan Library and British Museum.

A last writing of George Jean Nathan serves as preface, and Theodore Reik, the psychologist, has done the intro.

Exhib-Distrib Feud Tops Video As Film Heavy

Television has ceased to be the villain of the picture trade's economic problems, in the opinion of a Wall Street investment advisory outfit.

More of a threat than tv is the "chronic battle" that goes on between producers and exhibitors, states Bernhard's. Blame is put on independent exhibitors who won't diversify, and in "an attempt to preserve their own unsure status are hamstringing the natural development of the motion picture industry."

Stalk Brigitte Bardot For Broadway Stage

Brigitte Bardot will make her bow on the Broadway boards if Jule Styne can swing the deal. The producer-composer heads for Europe tomorrow (Thurs.) where he plans to huddle with the French screen actress on the prospects of appearing in "Claudine," a story by Colette, next season. Styne is not certain yet whether the adaptation will be a drama or a tuner.

Also on Styne's overseas agenda are huddles with English producers on a West End production of "Say, Darling," currently running on Broadway. Styne expects to be back at his New York base June 13.

RCA Brass to Brussels

Frank M. Folsom, John L. Burns and Charles Odorizzi are among the top RCA brass slated to visit the Brussels Fair early in June to o.o. the RCA-NBC television, diskery setup and other operations.

They will also visit the company's European outlets and probably have a seminar in the Belgian capital on general conditions, business outlooks, etc.

MARY MARTIN HITS CONCERT PLATFORM

Mary Martin will play the concert circuit next season. She's booked for a 16-week tour of 50 U.S. cities in a presentation to be called "Music with Mary Martin." Appearing with her in the offering will be guitarist Luiz Bonfa, a dancer, and a 20-piece orchestra, with John Lesko as conductor.

An unusual aspect of the tour, which is being booked by Columbia Artists Management, will be the inclusion of matinees especially planned for children. The presentation is scheduled to get underway Sept. 29 and continue for eight weeks. It'll then lay off and resume Jan. 5 for another eight weeks.

The tour will be under the personal direction of Andre Mertens and Humphrey Doulens of CAM.

'How Cheap Will You Work?' Prime Question for U.S. Acts in Europe

There's lotsa work in Europe for an act if you answer correctly the agent's perennial query, "How cheap will you work," according to Ving Merlin, who returned recently from a lengthy tour of the Continent.

Merlin said that after an act works the first-line spots, he then has to go to the smaller cities where there are no gigantic enterprises that can pay top coin. At that point you must get down to bedrock salaries. The agents there seem to bargain for the operator rather than the act, and it's up to the act to do his own negotiating. In nearly all situations, the act is hired on a per-diem basis. Therefore, if a precenter wants to hire you he may go a little higher. In Italy, for example, an agent may offer 1,250 lire per day more than his first figure. "It sounds big, but you look it up in the exchange book and find it's just about $2 per day more." There are problems about getting money out of many countries, and there are tax problems in some instances.

Bells Are Clanging

New kind of theatrical feud has developed in Manhattan: between telephone answering services catering to actors and other talent. Seems that a new service, West 42d Street Exchange, offers flat rate of $2.25 a month and that this is so cheap competitor services are up in arms.

"Threats" have been made.

Disneyland Circarama Is Wow as Transplanted To Brussels' Big Expo

Brussels, April 29.

Picture business steps out front with a wow import of the Circarama show from Disneyland, California amusement park. It's been adapted for the international outing here replete with the 11 projectors that literally encircle the audience with photographic action.

It's legit. theatre-in-the-round in reverse, for the spectator in the middle of the theatre and the full-scale 360-degree angle of perspective requires that he follow the screen action completely around the circle.

The Disney short unfolds in three languages every half hour, running 19 minutes. There are no seats in the small theatre adjacent to the playhouse, both outside and in back of the U. S. Pavilion. The auditors stand in the centre and thus have the sense of completest audience-participation to the degree that one rollercoaster number had to be excised because of the equilibrium impact. The viewers would lean back so far, because of the overly realistic effect, as to fall on their backs. Almost the same thing happens in one scene as the auto-bus climbs a steep grade and then descends on the other side.

It's a tiptop 16-millimetre unit built by William C. (Bill) Ralke, whose audio-visual equipment house, Ralke Co. Inc., Los Angeles, did the job. He is here for the opening as is his technical staff and supervisor, Ralph F. Adams, who assembled this unit at Disneyland in Andheim. An upstairs, back-of-the-cameras audition, indicated an ingenious coupling of the 11 cameras.

Hollywood Bowl Assn. Presents Moiseyev Co. Away From Amphitheatre

Hollywood, April 29.

Hollywood Bowl Assn. will present the Moiseyev Dance Co. of Moscow at the Shrine here for seven performances starting May 24. This is first time Bowl management has expanded as impresario outside its own outdoor amphitheatre.

Also on agenda is the possibility of sponsorship here for Old Voc Old Vic repertory troupe from London. Latter toured eastern U. S. last year under Sol Hurok. He also engineered the Moiseyev tour.

Gentlemanly (It Hurts) Masquers Hail Dinah

Hollywood, April 29.

Masquers went outside male sex for an honor guest—namely Dinah Shore. Keynote was sounded by Pat O'Brien, the toastmaster, when he not only refrained from any "edgy" stories but unloosed some large words uncommon to the old pros that make up the Masquer membership. Said George Burns "I'm stymied in front of a mixed audience so my speech will be clean but dull."

There were enough public and show biz figures on the dais to fill out nearly three hours of showering encomiums on the lady from Tennessee. Alan Jones left his bride's side long enough to sing the anthem and "Luck Be a Lady Tonight" to get the testimonial going.

When the guest speakers didn't storm up enough laughs to suit O'Brien, he fell to telling stories, which consumed a good part of the running time. His biggest yak came from a wire, faked or otherwise, from Milton Berle with the offer, "if you need me I can do nine and a half minutes." Tributes for the most part were sincerely sentimental. Said Ethel Merman, who flew in from Denver (her husband, Bob Six, owns the Continental Airlines), "she's the nicest, kindest, most considerate performer I ever worked with. Long may the queen of television reign."

Red Kids Go For Elvis Despite Marx & Mozart

Frankfurt, April 29.

Elvis Presley fans in East Berlin, undaunted by the Communist efforts to blot out American pop music and contemporary American singers, nearly managed to break up an anti-jazz meet in East Berlin last week, according to reports just received here.

A Communist meet was held in East Berlin especially to discuss methods of restraining the invasion of American jazz in the Russian-controlled territory, and rioting teenagers screaming "We Like Elvis" just about broke up the meeting. Only with the aid of the police was the conference resumed.

Incident reportedly occurred at the Commie meeting held in an East Berlin factory. In carrying the story, a major East Berlin newspaper, the National, headlined the story "Mozart defeats Presley."

Frenzied Finances And City Center Scenery, It's Wondrous-Nomikos

By ROBERT J. LANDRY

During the current, special, spring cycle of "American" (or approximately) operas, the New York City Center stage has been crowded with the gear, props, platforms, staircases and hanging pieces of 10 works. Never to be confused with the Metropolitan Opera House, which also suffers from a shallow stage and no storage space but which can afford to cart scenery back and forth from warehouses, the problem at the Center is to make-do without mazuma.

Confronted this April by a series of scenic designers demanding lines which were in use, props which would cost money, fixed position lights which they wanted moved and other requests for small miracles, stage manager Hans Sondheimer was heard to mutter some comments on the whole tribe.

"And do you include me?" asked Andreas Nomikos, the set designer from Athens, Greece.

Sondheimer's reply was indistinct. It follows that Nomikos is having an education in designing for a facilities-famished but highly ambitious company in "rich" New York which inevitably reminds him of staging plays in Athens during the German occupation when, with canvas absolutely unavailable, his scenery was literally painted on paper. Nomikos, already wise to conditions here, adds knowingly, "But of course there was no New York Fire Department."

Typical of the practical problems, the scenery for "The Good Soldier Schweik" was trucked into the Center Monday morning for a Wednesday night world premiere performance. A cast of 37, some 19 stagehands, 16 musicians and all of the various technical specialists working under Julius Rudel and Carmen Capalbo then had to solve an infinity of problems involving some 19 scene changes in an untried opera written to the tempo of musical stage blackouts.

For one scene eight blankets were needed. There were no blankets in the prop room and it was absolutely out of the question to appeal to the Humanities Division of the Ford Foundation.

The most precious thing backstage at the Center is a set of lines which won't foul with the next set of lines. "Don't ask me how some of the problems were solved." Nomikos smiles wistfully, as if to imply heavenly intercession.

For all his nearly two dozen sets for "Schweik" Nomikos had about $7,000 total budget, and that stolen and begrudged. The Center survives by the good hearts of hard-boiled unions and the prayers of the staff. You fall on your face from exhaustion setting up such an opera under such conditions, but it's fun and a Broadway production, when one comes along, is sure to be a cinch.

Meanwhile, "Lost in the Stars" which Nomikos also designed, will have a full added week at the Center. Later this spring the young Greek will be lecturing for a time and staging some student productions at the U. of Indiana. It was to teach there that he first came to the States from Athens. He will be in Tel Aviv later in the summer to stage a special musical event to be conducted by Dimitri Mitropoulos.

Dick Condon Turns Novelist

This week a new Appleton book retailing at $4.50 is on the counters and should pique film business because its author is a chief de ballyhoo, longtime in Paris and Madrid for United Artists, and latterly roaming the U.S. for "The Vikings." His book is "The Oldest Confession" and Richard Condon is not the first press agent to reveal, when turning serious, a well-organized prose style.

Outwardly a tale of the faking and stealing of old masters, and pretty exciting as melodrama all the way, the underlying preoccupation is really morality and how the worst of human stubbornesses, greed, spreads disaster all about. The characters are brought to ironically complete punishment. Background is Madrid and a bull fight symbolism is adroitly employed.

Behind the persiflage of the film publicist lurks a brooder on human destiny. After this book, Condon will never be able to deny it. An excellent first novel. Land.

N.Y. City Ballet So-So B.O. in Tokyo

Good Critical Reax, But Blame Modern Repertory, Poor Publicity, High Prices for Disappointing Biz

By DAVE JAMPEL

Tokyo, April 22.

The N. Y. City Ballet wrapped up its 23 Tokyo performances to reactions of critical acclaim and b.o. disappointment. It then moved to Osaka for four performances ending its State Department-ANTA Japan tour.

Response of professionals, devotees and critics was on a high level in both English and vernacular journals, but the Ballet seems to have missed with the general public inasmuch as the average Tokyo attendance was 35,000, with 25,000 for 15 performances at the 2,600-seating Koma Theater and 10,000 for eight performances following at Sankei Hall, a 1,500-seat house. Breakdown percentages reveal 64% as an average house at the Koma Theater and 82.5% at Sankei Hall.

Sadanori Maki, Chief of NHK's Music Department, said that while he is personally appreciative of the artistic values of the N. Y. City Ballet, he believed the program was too modern for average Japanese consumption. He pointed out that in Japan, ballet still must be "Swan Lake" and "Sleeping Beauty" and other standard numbers, while items like "The Cage" and "Western Symphony" of the NYC Ballet repertoire do not register. He thinks that in two or three years the Japanese may be able to digest a modern program.

Because of this, Maki believed that the Bolshoi Ballet, which played here last fall to fuller houses through 17 performances at the same Koma Theater, made a greater impact. He also feels that 23 Tokyo performances was too many, and suggested that 10 or 12 shows would have been more feasible.

In addition, Maki cited that the tickets ($5.55 top) were too steep, especially the lowest-priced ducats ($2.22) which were beyond the reach of the student fans who comprise a large segment of the art followers here. Backing his view, Maki noted that for the spe-

(Continued on page 92)

Directors Talk Strike

Hollywood, April 29.

Screen Directors Guild board contemplates a special membership meeting this week to seek authorization for strike against majors, vidfilmers, following flat turndown by Assn. of Motion Picture Producers and Alliance of Television Film Producers of guild counterproposal for new pact.

Producers' earlier offer of overall 5% wage increase, rejected by Guild, which then came up with what considers rockbottom proposals, then nixed by producers over weekend.

Vancouver Ladies Decide 'Professional' & 'Private' May Be Judged as One

Vancouver, April 29.

Vancouver League of Woman Voters wants certain Hollywood productions barred from theatrical screens in Canada, and has written a letter, published in the local press, to National Film Board here, and to "producers in Hollywood," according to Mrs. G. T. Bray, acting president of VLWV.

Letter names neither films nor thesps, "for obvious reasons. My husband is a lawyer," and attacks "pictures featuring actors and actresses who are publicly proven offenders against the standards of behavior in decent society."

Protest was aimed at NFB, a Canadian government production agency that's unconcerned with commercial aspects of filmtrade, because, "Where else would we send it?" and suggests in effect that notorious actors and actresses be boycotted because, "(it) is a deliberate pandering to an unhealthy form of box-office enticement." Copy would be sent to district's Council of Women, Mrs. Bray said. Although published, letter had not reached NFB at this time.

4/30

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00

Three Years—$39.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.
Syd Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y. JUdson 2-2700
Hollywood 28
6404 Sunset Boulevard, Hollywood 9-1141
Washington 4
1292 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445
Chicago 11
612 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984
London WC2
8 St. Martin's Pl., Trafalgar Sq., COVent Garden 0135

SUBSCRIPTION Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Volume 210 120 Number 9

INDEX

Bills	80	Night Club Reviews	83
Chatter	94	Obituaries	95
Dance Reviews	86	Pictures	3
Film Reviews	6	Radio	24
House Reviews	84	Radio Reviews	58
Inside Music	73	Record Reviews	72
International	8	Frank Scully	93
Legitimate	85	Television	24
Literati	93	Television Reviews	51
Music	71	TV Films	26
New Acts	84	Vaudeville	79

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a year $20 Foreign

HYSTERICS END, STOCKS RISE

'Quit Singing Blues,' ABP Topper Tells London Int'l Variety Confab

London, April 29.

An urgent plea to the motion picture industry to stop singing the blues otherwise "our customers and bankers will believe us" was made by C. J. Latta, managing director of Associated British Picture Corp., when he presided at a luncheon at Elstree Studios to welcome American, Canadian, Irish and British delegates attending the International Variety Clubs Convention.

He also made a direct appeal to American exhibitors to support British pictures and not to sell them short. He cited as examples of successful exports from Britain "The Curse of Frankenstein," which had grossed upwards of $2,500,000 in the U. S., and, more recently, "Bridge on River Kwai" which was "rolling in the millions."

British exhibitors exceeded their 30% quota because they found it profitable to show British product. And if American theatre owners could benefit equally from showing British films it would be a great help to all. British pix were being designed for the world markets and, as an American in London, he was aware that there was an accent problem although after more than 10 years here his ear was now suitably attuned. That was a matter which was receiving urgent attention.

The time had come, Latta continued, when the exhib must be seriously concerned at the position of the producer and they must share their problems. He welcomed the challenge caused by increasing competition and urged producers to exercise more care in choice of subject, in budgetting and in actual production. He was positive that the industry would emerge stronger than ever before, and recalled the concern felt by the disk industry at the berth of radio.

How Easy-Going Can They Get?

Columbia is moving into release shortly with a major production but without the complete lineup on who's playing what role. Film, "This Angry Age," was produced by Dino De Laurentiis, who made avai able only a synopsis sheet (which is not fully consistent with the actual story on screen) that identifies only key players, such as Silvano Mangano, Anthony Perkins.. Richard Conte and Jo Van Fleet.

Numerous papers around the country, including VARIETY, list the full roster of players and character part of pictures when reviewing them. This means that all supporting performers at least get one mention. Not so with "Angry Age."

'Only Blockbusters Get Theatre Bally Attention, In-Betweener's Slapped'

In buying blockbuster pictures exhibitors pay blockbuster rentals and in the effort to make the investment pay off they go all out in promoting the product. But they do little in the way of ballying the in-between pictures.

This is the verdict of Frank Cooper, head of the Frank Cooper talent agency, under whose aegis a theatrical adaptation of the radio-tv program, "The Lineup," has been completed for release by Columbia.

Cooper, discussing production in New York this past week, had another beef to air. He thinks that top stars deserve the big money they're receiving when their names mean something at the boxoffice. But the demands of the top-notch performers have come to influence the second-string personalities. They're now asking for big remunerations despite the fact they

(Continued on page 20)

SHOOTING IN YUGOSLAV

Mounted Soldiery In Paramount's 'The Tempest'

Location shooting of the Dino DeLaurentiis-Paramount production of "The Tempest" began in Belgrade yesterday (Tues.) with the cooperation of Yugoslav officials, according to the Par home-office in New York.

Tito country is making its mounted cavalry available for participation in the adaptation of the two Alexander Pushkin novels concerning the Cossack uprising against 18th Century Russia's Catherine the Great.

Blockbuster Age Economics a Pain During Transition

Film industry's problem of the day is probably best shown in statistics provided by official sources relating to Columbia.

In its past fiscal year this outfit had a quintet of pictures, billed for merchandising purposes as the "Fabulous Five," which accounted for a worldwide distribution gross of $45,000,000. Group comprised "Bridge on the River Kwai," "Pal Joey," "Jeanne Eagles," "3:10 to Yuma" and "Operation Madball."

The total could exceed that $45,000,000 as "Kwai" continues at a galloping boxoffice pace.

For the same period, Col had 41 other features which altogether are figured at the same amount—$45,000,000—in global rentals.

Col already has been forced to skip dividends. Had there not been that "Fabulous Five" on the lineup the corporation's fiscal results obviously could have been painful, indeed. For that matter, if there were no "Kwai" the profits-loss statement obviously would be worsened to frightening extent.

Now back to that problem. It's a matter of how to come up with the blockbusters—just a relatively few of them which would require considerably less overhead—and do away with the bulk production that now demands king-sized selling organizations and accounts for such a disporportionate amount of the gross.

MANUEL BARBACHANO'S 'MEXICO MIO' FOR CIMEX

Manual Barbachano, Mexican producer whose past features include "Torero" and "The Roots," is now readying a feature documentary titled "Mexico Mio" which is to "cover one imaginary day in Mexico from ancient times to the present." Its' to be partly financed by the Mexican government, whose film distribution agency, Cimex, will have Latin American rights, according to Edward Harrison, Barbachanos' New York rep.

Film, as scripted by Cesare Zavattini, has a four-month shooting schedule, with camera work to begin shortly. It concerns the three levels of Mexican life, the Indians, whites and mestizos (Indian and white mixture).

CANTOR AMONG HONORED

Los Angeles, April 29.

Eddie Cantor, Ernest J. Loebbecke and James F. Twohy will be guests of honor at 10th Annual Brotherhood Testimonial Dinner of National Conference of Christians and Jews, to be held May 22 at Beverly Hilton Hotel.

Loebbecke, Protestant, is prexy of Los Angeles Title Insurance & Trust Co., Twohy, Catholic, a West Coast industrialist.

ARE FILMS BEING 'RE-DISCOVERED'?

By GENE ARNEEL

Wall Street is cozying up to the picture business again. Several film issues on the New York Stock exchange are now at new high levels following a protracted period of depressed prices.

In past, instances of big activity in the shares of a corporation reflected anticipated, or actual, deals such as library selloffs to television syndicators which would mean substantial capital gains. It's significant that at this time such transactions are not behind the money market's new interest.

Paramount stock spurted up $2 per share in a single day—last Thursday (24). Par v.p. Paul Raibourn, whose counsel frequently is asked by Wall St. interests on the film trade's ups and downs, stated Par has no particular deals in work of the type that would account for an extra dollar haul. It's strictly the picture business that is now attractive to investors, said Raibourn.

UA's 50% Climb

United Artists' stock on the big board has climbed about 50% in value within the last several months, which is regarded as spectacular. UA board chairman Robert S. Benjamin dittoed Raibourn's statement. There's no special activity at UA, other than the business of pictures (plus new show business diversifications), behind the strong stock showing.

Value Line, prominent stock analysis publication, in its current issue sounds an optimistic note. Summarizing its size-up of the various picture companies, this Arnold Bernhard sheet observes: "A large supply of quality pictures has effected a smart rebound in theatre attendance. With many more promising attractions yet to be released, prospects for the year ahead are favorable... The entertainment stocks represent attractive vehicles for capital growth."

Value Line further notes it's likely there will be more pictures grossing $5,000,000 in domestic rentals in 1958 than in any other year of history.

By the end of last week's trading, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres was at $17.75 per share, as against the year's low of $13.

Despite the corporate transition at Columbia, this issue was traded at $15.12½, up from a low of $12.50.

Loew's at $15.50

Loew's, a particularly active stock (32,500 shares were exchanged last Friday, hit a new high of $15.50.

Paramount hit a new high of $38.37½.

20th-Fox went up to $27, from a low of $21.75, and appears holding close to that high mark.

United Artists, with a gain of another $1 on Friday, reached a new top figure of $22 per share.

Wall Street Journal, which has in past carried numerous articles on the picture business of a downbeat nature, last week come out on the upbeat. Films are improving and exhibitors are reaching out to draw bigger audiences, said the daily.

Stated a financial community broker who's close to the trade: "The picture business seems to be finding itself again."

Overhead Vs. 12 Pix?

With studio overhead one of the key sources of migraine for the Hollywood companies, question arises as to how Warner Bros. intends to maintain a fiscally sound operation while making only 12 to 14 pictures a year.

Answer came from a WB official: "Our marriage to television is a real thing. TV production on the Burbank lot will take up a lot of the slack in spreading around the overhead."

Film Row Will Never Be Same; Trend On to Close Or Merge

FILIPINOS THINK AGAIN

Take Back Claims on U.S. For Retroactive Taxes

Phillippine tax situation, critical for a long while, is being gradually resolved with the tax bureau having taken back its large and retroactive claims against the American companies for re-investigation.

Herbert Erlanger, the Motion Picture Export Assn's tax expert, returned recently from Manila where he negotiated with the government and the tax authorities. Hope now is for an "acceptable settlement." Some of the tax claims date back to 1951.

Freelance Epoch More'n' Economy Hits Film Art

Cutbacks in ad-pub forces and art departments, as witnessed at several companies, this week was attributed more directly to the switch in emphasis to independent production rather than the overall economy of operation.

Some outfits, such as Columbia, in past included ad-pub work as part of the distribution service for indies. Now the idea is to bill each indie producer for the bally service.

In the case of Col, for example, most of the art department's function is being taken over by an outside agency. The latter's bill is to be charged against the indie picture involved.

Thus, the film company no longer is required to maintain a full department, at full pay, which is not always busy. The work will be gotten as needed, through the agency and, as stated, each picture can be charged for the specific amount of work involved.

OATERS TOO CLOSE, METRO ALTERS DATES

Metro's release schedule is expected to be revised so as to eliminate the bunching of westerns. Following the recent release of "Saddle in the Wind," "The Sheepman" is pencilled in for May, with "The Law and Jake Wade" tentatively set for June and "The Badlanders" shortly thereafter.

Sales chief John P. Byrne is currently on the Coast with prexy Joseph R. Vogel and one of the objectives of the pair is to move up other product and delay the issuance of the oaters, both of which are in the editing stage. With the plethora of sagebrush dramas currently on tv, it's felt that it will be unwise to hit the market with so many westerns at one time.

Belgian Reels Drop All Politicos from Coverage

Brussels, April 22.

Latest development in feud between the Belgian film industry and the state is the banning, as a matter of reprisal, of all political figures from newsreels. With nationwide elections in the offing (an added attraction to Brussels Fair), this decision was overwhelmingly adopted by the Assn. of Belgian Cinema Owners.

It is the unexpected answer to an appalling lack of interest shown by politicians in problems vitally affecting well-being of a too-highly taxed industry now threatened by dwindling audiences.

Ban also applies to members of the government. It means they would be deliberately ignored by cameramen in the course of public functions, including the Brussels World Fair.

With most of the U. S. companies surveying the foreign field to see which branches they might close for the sake of economies, several foreign executives feel that there will have to be some sort of overall industry agreement on which territories to pull out of.

Closings in question affect mostly branches in small places, where it obviously is no longer economic to maintain offices.

Trouble is that most companies are reluctant to move on their own if they know that the competition intends to stay open. "It's kind of foolish, but it's a fact that we'd rather stay open and take a loss than leave the field to someone else," said one foreign manager this week. He said the only alternative was a move by several companies to get together and combine operations.

Such a policy is being instituted by Paramount and Metro in Scandinavia, where Par is taking over the M-G product in Denmark and Metro is reciprocating in Norway. 20th-Fox and Metro have similar arrangements in Trinidad and Austria.

The future of the extent of film business distribution organization is coming into clearer focus as more and more exchanges are being earmarked for closing. Warner blueprint of operation envisions a sales department functioning domestically with a greatly reduced number of branch offices,

(Continued on page 18)

20th-Fox Keeping Movietone News

Following a study of the situation, 20th-Fox has decided to continue its Movietone News operation, even though—at the domestic end—the newsreel is a losing proposition.

Likelyhood of the reel switching to CinemaScope, which has been under consideration, is slim. Feeling is that the added costs wouldn't be matched by increased theatre rentals.

Recent meets at 20th took up the situation and the positive decision was made in the light of the fact that the reel, on an international basis, is important and a moneymaker. To continue feeding its foreign issues, Movietone needs the material gathered by its staff in the U. S. Also, 20th values having a going newsreel in the theatres.

To what extent the domestic reel is losing money apparently depends on the bookkeeping. In any case, with all costs written off against the domestic operation, the reel is a loser. It fares better if the international end carries a larger burden.

Paramount's Inventory Down, Cash Position Up; Earnings Equal $2.80

Paramount's operating costs for film distribution and costs of records, music and accessories sold increased to $27,857,138 in 1957 as compared with $21,642,151 in 1956, according to the company's annual report sent to stockholders yesterday (Tues.). However, the company's total income from film rentals, theatre and television receipts, sales of records, music and accessories, and dividends from Canadian and foreign affiliated companies was $111,213,462 in 1957 as compared with $96,579,079 in 1956.

Report, containing an upbeat ap-

(Continued on page 18)

'How Cheap Will You Work?' Prime Question for U.S. Acts in Europe

There's lotsa work in Europe for an act if you answer correctly the agent's perennial query, "How cheap will you work," according to Ving Merlin, who returned recently from a lengthy tour of the Continent.

Merlin said that after an act works the first-line spots, he then has to go to the smaller cities where there are no gigantic enterprises that can pay top coin. At that point you must get down to bedrock salaries. The agents there seem to bargain for the operator rather than the act, and it's up to the act to do his own negotiating. In nearly all situations, the act is hired on a per-diem basis. Therefore, if a precenter wants to hire you he may go a little higher. In Italy, for example, an agent may offer 1,250 lire per day more than his first figure. "It sounds big, but you look it up in the exchange book and find it's just about $2 per day more." There are problems about getting money out of many countries, and there are tax problems in some instances.

Bells Are Clanging

New kind of theatrical feud has developed in Manhattan: between telephone answering services catering to actors and other talent. Seems that a new service, West 42d Street Exchange, offers flat rate of $2.25 a month and that this is so cheap competitor services are up in arms.

"Threats" have been made.

Disneyland Circarama Is Wow as Transplanted To Brussels' Big Expo

Brussels, April 29.

Picture business steps out front with a wow import of the Circarama show from Disneyland, California amusement park. It's been adapted for the International outing here replete with the 11 projectors that literally encircle the audience with photographic action.

It's legit theatre-in-the-round in reverse, for the spectator in the middle of the theatre and the full-scale 360-degree angle of perspective requires that he follow the screen action completely around the circle.

The Disney snort unfolds in three languages every half hour, running 19 minutes. There are no seats in the small theatre adjacent to the playhouse, both outside and in back of the U. S. Pavilion. The auditors stand in the centre and thus have the sense of completest audience-participation to the degree that one rollercoaster number had to be excised because of the equilibrium impact. The viewers would lean back so far, because of the overly realistic effect, as to fall on their backs. Almost the same thing happens in one scene as the auto-bus climbs a steep grade and then descends on the other side.

It's a tiptop 16-millimetre film built by William C. (Bill) Ralke, whose audio-visual equipment house, Ralke Co. Inc., Los Angeles, did the job. He is here for the opening as is his technical staff and supervisor, Ralph F. Adams, who assembled this unit at Disneyland in Andheim. An upstairs, back-of-the-cameras audition, indicated an ingenious coupling of the 11 cameras.

Hollywood Bowl Assn. Presents Moiseyev Co. Away From Amphitheatre

Hollywood, April 29.

Hollywood Bowl Assn. will present the Moiseyev Dance Co. of Moscow at the Shrine here for seven performances starting May 24. This is first time Bowl management has expanded as impresario outside its own outdoor amphitheatre.

Also on agenda is the possibility of sponsorship here for Old Voc Old Vic repertory troupe from London. Latter toured eastern U. S. last year under Sol Hurok. He also engineered the Moiseyev tour.

Gentlemanly (It Hurts) Masquers Hail Dinah

Hollywood, April 29.

Masquers went outside male sex for an honor guest—namely Dinah Shore. Keynote was sounded by Pat O'Brien, the toastmaster, when he not only refrained from any "edgy" stories but unloosed some large words uncommon to the old pros that make up the Masquer membership. Said George Burns "I'm stymied in front of a mixed audience so my speech will be clean but dull."

There were enough public and show biz figures on the dais to fill out nearly three hours of showering encomiums on the lady from Tennessee. Alan Jones left his bride's side long enough to sing the anthem and "Luck Be a Lady Tonight" to get the testimonial going.

When the guest speakers didn't storm up enough laughs to suit O'Brien, he fell to telling stories, which consumed a good part of the running time. His biggest yak came from a wire, faked or otherwise, from Milton Berle with the offer, "if you need me I can do nine and a half minutes." Tributes for the most part were sincerely sentimental. Said Ethel Merman, who flew in from Denver (her husband, Bob Six, owns the Continental Airlines), "she's the nicest, kindest, most considerate performer I ever worked with. Long may the queen of television reign."

4/30

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00

Three Years—$39.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

Red Kids Go For Elvis Despite Marx & Mozart

Frankfurt, April 29.

Elvis Presley fans in East Berlin, undaunted by the Communist efforts to blot out American pop music and contemporary American singers, nearly managed to break up an anti-jazz meet in East Berlin last week, according to reports just received here.

A Communist meet was held in East Berlin especially to discuss methods of restraining the invasion of American jazz in the Russian-controlled territory, and rioting teenagers screaming "We Like Elvis" just about broke up the meeting. Only with the aid of the police was the conference resumed.

Incident reportedly occurred at the Commie meeting held in an East Berlin factory. In carrying the story, a major East Berlin newspaper, the National, headlined the story "Mozart defeats Presley."

Frenzied Finances And City Center Scenery, It's Wondrous-Nomikos

By ROBERT J. LANDRY

During the current, special, spring cycle of "American" (or approximately) operas, the New York City Center stage has been crowded with the gear, props, platforms, staircases and hanging pieces of 10 works. Never to be confused with the Metropolitan Opera House, which also suffers from a shallow stage and no storage space but which can afford to cart scenery back and forth from warehouses, the problem at the Center is to make-do without mazuma.

Confronted this April by a series of scenic designers demanding lines which were in use, props which would cost money, fixed position lights which they wanted moved and other requests for small miracles, stage manager Hans Sondheimer was heard to mutter some comments on the whole tribe.

"And do you include me?" asked Andreas Nomikos, the set designer from Athens, Greece.

Sondheimer's reply was indistinct. It follows that Nomikos is having an education in designing for a facilities-famished but highly ambitious company in "rich" New York which inevitably reminds him of staging plays in Athens during the German occupation when, with canvas absolutely unavailable, his scenery was literally painted on paper. Nomikos, already wise to conditions here, adds knowingly, "But of course there was no New York Fire Department."

Typical of the practical problems, the scenery for "The Good Soldier Schweik" was trucked into the Center Monday morning for a Wednesday night world premiere performance. A cast of 37, some 19 stagehands, 16 musicians and all of the various technical specialists working under Julius Rudel and Carmen Capalbo then had to solve an infinity of problems involving some 19 scene changes in an untried opera written to the tempo of musical stage blackouts.

For one scene eight blankets were needed. There were no blankets in the prop room and it was absolutely out of the question to appeal to the Humanities Division of the Ford Foundation.

The most precious thing backstage at the Center is a set of lines which won't foul with the next set of lines. "Don't ask me how some of the problems were solved." Nomikos smiles wistfully, as if to imply heavenly intercession.

For all his nearly two dozen sets for "Schweik" Nomikos had about $7,000 total budget, and that stolen and begrudged. The Center survives by the good hearts of hard-boiled unions and the prayers of the staff. You fall on your face from exhaustion setting up such an opera under such conditions, but it's fun and a Broadway production, when one comes along, is sure to be a cinch.

Meanwhile, "Lost in the Stars" which Nomikos also designed, will have a full added week at the Center. Later this spring the young Greek will be lecturing for a time and staging some student productions at the U. of Indiana. It was to teach there that he first came to the States from Athens. He will be in Tel Aviv later in the summer to stage a special musical event to be conducted by Dimitri Mitropoulos.

Dick Condon Turns Novelist

This week a new Appleton book retailing at $4.50 is on the counters and should pique film business because its author is a chief de ballyhoo, longtime in Paris and Madrid for United Artists, and latterly roaming the U.S. for "The Vikings." His book is "The Oldest Confession" and Richard Condon is not the first press agent to reveal, when turning serious, a well-organized prose style.

Outwardly a tale of the faking and stealing of old masters, and pretty exciting as melodrama all the way, the underlying preoccupation is really morality and how the worst of human stubbornesses, greed, spreads disaster all about. The characters are brought to ironically complete punishment. Background is Madrid and a bull fight symbolism is adroitly employed.

Behind the persiflage of the film publicist lurks a brooder on human destiny. After this book, Condon will never be able to deny it. An excellent first novel. Land.

N.Y. City Ballet So-So B.O. in Tokyo

Good Critical Reax, But Blame Modern Repertory, Poor Publicity, High Prices for Disappointing Biz

By DAVE JAMPEL

Tokyo, April 22.

The N. Y. City Ballet wrapped up its 23 Tokyo performances to reactions of critical acclaim and b.o. disappointment. It then moved to Osaka for four performances ending its State Department-ANTA Japan tour.

Response of professionals, devotees and critics was on a high level in both English and vernacular journals, but the Ballet seems to have missed with the general public inasmuch as the average Tokyo attendance was 35,000, with 25,000 for 15 performances at the 2,600-seating Koma Theater and 10,000 for eight performances following at Sankei Hall, a 1,500-seat house. Breakdown percentages reveal 64% as an average house at the Koma Theater and 82.5% at Sankei Hall.

Sadanori Maki, Chief of NHK's Music Department, said that while he is personally appreciative of the artistic values of the N. Y. City Ballet, he believed the program was too modern for average Japanese consumption. He pointed out that in Japan, ballet still must be "Swan Lake" and "Sleeping Beauty" and other standard numbers, while items like "The Cage" and "Western Symphony" of the NYC Ballet repertoire do not register. He thinks that in two or three years the Japanese may be able to digest a modern program.

Because of this, Maki believed that the Bolshoi Ballet, which played here last fall to fuller houses through 17 performances at the same Koma Theater, made a greater impact. He also feels that 23 Tokyo performances was too many, and suggested that 10 or 12 shows would have been more feasible.

In addition, Maki cited that the tickets ($5.55 top) were too steep, especially the lowest-priced ducats ($2.22) which were beyond the reach of the student fans who comprise a large segment of the art followers here. Backing his view, Maki noted that for the spe-

(Continued on page 92)

Directors Talk Strike

Hollywood, April 29.

Screen Directors Guild board contemplates a special membership meeting this week to seek authorization for strike against majors, vidfilmers, following flat turndown by Assn. of Motion Picture Producers and Alliance of Television Film Producers of guild counterproposal for new pact.

Producers' earlier offer of overall 5% wage increase, rejected by Guild, which then came up with what considers rockbottom proposals, then nixed by producers over weekend.

Vancouver Ladies Decide 'Professional' & 'Private' May Be Judged as One

Vancouver, April 29.

Vancouver League of Woman Voters wants certain Hollywood productions barred from theatrical screens in Canada, and has written a letter, published in the local press, to National Film Board here, and to "producers in Hollywood," according to Mrs. G. T. Bray, acting president of VLWV.

Letter names neither films nor thesps, "for obvious reasons. My husband is a lawyer," and attacks "pictures featuring actors and actresses who are publicly proven offenders against the standards of behavior in decent society."

Protest was aimed at NFB, a Canadian government production agency that's unconcerned with commercial aspects of filmtrade, because, "Where else would we send it?" and suggests in effect that notorious actors and actresses be boycotted because, "(it) is a deliberate pandering to an unhealthy form of box-office enticement." Copy would be sent to district's Council of Women, Mrs. Bray said. Although published, letter had not reached NFB at this time.

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.
Syd Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y. JUdson 2-2700
Hollywood 28
6404 Sunset Boulevard, HOllywood 9-1141
Washington 4
1292 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445
Chicago 11
612 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984
London WC2
8 St. Martin's Pl., Trafalgar Sq., COVent Garden 0135

SUBSCRIPTION Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Volume 210 120 Number 9

INDEX

Bills	80	Night Club Reviews	83
Chatter	94	Obituaries	95
Dance Reviews	86	Pictures	3
Film Reviews	6	Radio	24
House Reviews	84	Radio Reviews	58
Inside Music	73	Record Reviews	72
International	8	Frank Scully	93
Legitimate	85	Television	24
Literati	93	Television Reviews	51
Music	71	TV Films	26
New Acts	84	Vaudeville	79

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$15 a year, $20 Foreign.

HYSTERICS END, STOCKS RISE

'Quit Singing Blues,' ABP Topper Tells London Int'l Variety Confab

London, April 29.

An urgent plea to the motion picture industry to stop singing the blues otherwise "our customers and bankers will believe us" was made by C. J. Latta, managing director of Associated British Picture Corp., when he presided at a luncheon at Elstree Studios to welcome American, Canadian, Irish and British delegates attending the International Variety Clubs Convention.

He also made a direct appeal to American exhibitors to support British pictures and not to sell them short. He cited as examples of successful exports from Britain "The Curse of Frankenstein," which had grossed upwards of $2,500,000 in the U. S., and, more recently, "Bridge on River Kwai" which was "rolling in the millions."

British exhibitors exceeded their 30% quota because they found it profitable to show British product. And if American theatre owners could benefit equally from showing British films it would be a great help to all. British pix were being designed for the world markets and, as an American in London, he was aware that there was an accent problem although after more than 10 years here his ear was now suitably attuned. That was a matter which was receiving urgent attention.

The time had come, Latta continued, when the exhib must be seriously concerned at the position of the producer and they must share their problems. He welcomed the challenge caused by increasing competition and urged producers to exercise more care in choice of subject, in budgetting and in actual production. He was positive that the industry would emerge stronger than ever before, and recalled the concern felt by the disk industry at the berth of radio.

SHOOTING IN YUGOSLAV

Mounted Soldiery In Paramount's 'The Tempest'

Location shooting of the Dino DeLaurentiis-Paramount production of "The Tempest" began in Belgrade yesterday (Tues.) with the cooperation of Yugoslav officials, according to the Par home-office in New York.

Tito country is making its mounted cavalry available for participation in the adaptation of the two Alexander Pushkin novels concerning the Cossack uprising against 18th Century Russia's Catherine the Great.

Blockbuster Age Economics a Pain During Transition

Film industry's problem of the day is probably best shown in statistics provided by official sources relating to Columbia.

In its past fiscal year this outfit had a quintet of pictures, billed for merchandising purposes as the "Fabulous Five," which accounted for a worldwide distribution loss of $45,000,000. Group comprised "Bridge on the River Kwai," "Pal Joey," "Jeanne Eagles," "3:10 to Yuma" and "Operation Madball."

The total could exceed that $45,000,000 as "Kwai" continues at a galloping boxoffice pace.

For the same period, Col had 41 other features which altogether are figured at the same amount—$45,000,000—in global rentals.

Col already has been forced to skip dividends. Had there not been that "Fabulous Five" on the lineup the corporation's fiscal results obviously could have been painful, indeed. For that matter, if there were no "Kwai" the profits-loss statement obviously would be worsened to frightening extent.

Now back to that problem. It's a matter of how to come up with the blockbusters—just a relatively few of them which would require considerably less overhead—and do away with the bulk production that now demands king-sized selling organizations and accounts for such a disporportionate amount of the gross.

How Easy-Going Can They Get?

Columbia is moving into release shortly with a major production but without the complete lineup on who's playing what role. Film, "This Angry Age," was produced by Dino De Laurentiis, who made available only a synopsis sheet (which is not fully consistent with the actual story on screen) that identifies only key players, such as Silvano Mangano, Anthony Perkins, Richard Conte and Jo Van Fleet.

Numerous papers around the country, including VARIETY, list the full roster of players and character part of pictures when reviewing them. This means that all supporting performers at least get one mention. Not so with "Angry Age."

'Only Blockbusters Get Theatre Bally Attention, In-Betweener's Slapped'

In buying blockbuster pictures exhibitors pay blockbuster rentals and in the effort to make the investment pay off they go all out in promoting the product. But they do little in the way of ballying the in-between pictures.

This is the verdict of Frank Cooper, head of the Frank Cooper talent agency, under whose aegis a theatrical adaptation of the radio-tv program, "The Lineup," has been completed for release by Columbia.

Cooper, discussing production in New York this past week, had another beef to air. He thinks that top stars deserve the big money they're receiving when their names mean something at the boxoffice. But the demands of the top-notch performers have come to influence the second-string personalities. They're now asking for big remunerations despite the fact they

(Continued on page 20)

MANUEL BARBACHANO'S 'MEXICO MIO' FOR CIMEX

Manual Barbachano, Mexican producer whose past features include "Torero" and "The Roots," is now readying a feature documentary titled "Mexico Mio" which is to "cover one imaginary day in Mexico from ancient times to the present." Its' to be partly financed by the Mexican government, whose film distribution agency, Cimex, will have Latin American rights, according to Edward Harrison, Barbachanos' New York rep.

Film, as scripted by Cesare Zavattini, has a four-month shooting schedule, with camera work to begin shortly. It concerns the three levels of Mexican life, the Indians, whites and mestizos (Indian and white mixture).

CANTOR AMONG HONORED

Los Angeles, April 29.

Eddie Cantor, Ernest J. Loebbecke and James F. Twohy will be guests of honor at 10th Annual Brotherhood Testimonial Dinner of National Conference of Christians and Jews, to be held May 22 at Beverly Hilton Hotel.

Loebbecke, Protestant, is prexy of Los Angeles Title Insurance & Trust Co., Twohy, Catholic, a West Coast industrialist.

ARE FILMS BEING 'RE-DISCOVERED'?

By GENE ARNEEL

Wall Street is cozying up to the picture business again. Several film issues on the New York Stock exchange are now at new high levels following a protracted period of depressed prices.

In past, instances of big activity in the shares of a corporation reflected anticipated, or actual, deals such as library selloffs to television syndicators which would mean substantial capital gains. It's significant that at this time such transactions are not behind the money market's new interest.

Paramount stock spurted up $2 per share in a single day—last Thursday (24). Par v.p. Paul Raibourn, whose counsel frequently is asked by Wall St. interests on the film trade's ups and downs, stated Par has no particular deals in work of the type that would account for an extra dollar haul. It's strictly the picture business that is now attractive to investors, said Raibourn.

UA's 50% Climb

United Artists' stock on the big board has climbed about 50% in value within the last several months, which is regarded as spectacular. UA board chairman Robert S. Benjamin dittoed Raibourn's statement. There's no special activity at UA, other than the business of pictures (plus new show business diversifications), behind the strong stock showing.

Value Line, prominent stock analysis publication, in its current issue sounds an optimistic note. Summarizing its size-up of the various picture companies, this Arnold Bernhard sheet observes: "A large supply of quality pictures has effected a smart rebound in theatre attendance. With many more promising attractions yet to be released, prospects for the year ahead are favorable . . . The entertainment stocks represent attractive vehicles for capital growth."

Value Line further notes it's likely there will be more pictures grossing $5,000,000 in domestic rentals in 1958 than in any other year of history.

By the end of last week's trading, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres was at $17.75 per share, as against the year's low of $13.

Despite the corporate transition at Columbia, this issue was traded at $15.12½, up from a low of $12.50.

Loew's at $15.50

Loew's, a particularly active stock (32,500 shares were exchanged last Friday, hit a new high of $15.50.

Paramount hit a new high of $38.37½.

20th-Fox went up to $27, from a low of $21.75, and appears holding close to that high mark.

United Artists, with a gain of another $1 on Friday, reached a new top figure of $22 per share.

Wall Street Journal, which has in past carried numerous articles on the picture business of a downbeat nature, last week come out on the upbeat. Films are improving and exhibitors are reaching out to draw bigger audiences, said the daily.

Stated a financial community broker who's close to the trade: "The picture business seems to be finding itself again."

Overhead Vs. 12 Pix?

With studio overhead one of the key sources of migraine for the Hollywood companies, question arises as to how Warner Bros. intends to maintain a fiscally sound operation while making only 12 to 14 pictures a year.

Answer came from a WB official: "Our marriage to television is a real thing. TV production on the Burbank lot will take up a lot of the slack in spreading around the overhead."

Film Row Will Never Be Same; Trend On to Close Or Merge

FILIPINOS THINK AGAIN

Take Back Claims on U.S. For Retroactive Taxes

Phillippine tax situation, critical for a long while, is being gradually resolved with the tax bureau having taken back its large and retroactive claims against the American companies for re-investigation.

Herbert Erlanger, the Motion Picture Export Assn's tax expert, returned recently from Manila where he negotiated with the government and the tax authorities. Hope now is for an "acceptable settlement." Some of the tax claims date back to 1951.

Freelance Epoch More'n' Economy Hits Film Art

Cutbacks in ad-pub forces and art departments, as witnessed at several companies, this week was attributed more directly to the switch in emphasis to independent production rather than the overall economy of operation.

Some outfits, such as Columbia, in past included ad-pub work as part of the distribution service for indies. Now the idea is to bill each indie producer for the bally service.

In the case of Col, for example, most of the art department's function is being taken over by an outside agency. The latter's bill is to be charged against the indie picture involved.

Thus, the film company no longer is required to maintain a full department, at full pay, which is not always busy. The work will be gotten as needed, through the agency and, as stated, each picture can be charged for the specific amount of work involved.

OATERS TOO CLOSE, METRO ALTERS DATES

Metro's release schedule is expected to be revised so as to eliminate the bunching of westerns. Following the recent release of "Saddle in the Wind," "The Sheepman" is pencilled in for May, with "The Law and Jake Wade" tentatively set for June and "The Badlanders" shortly thereafter.

Sales chief John P. Byrne is currently on the Coast with prexy Joseph R. Vogel and one of the objectives of the pair is to move up other product and delay the issuance of the oaters, both of which are in the editing stage. With the plethora of sagebrush dramas currently on tv, it's felt that it will be unwise to hit the market with so many westerns at one time.

Belgian Reels Drop All Politicos from Coverage

Brussels, April 22.

Latest development in feud between the Belgian film industry and the state is the banning, as a matter of reprisal, of all political figures from newsreels. With nationwide elections in the offing (an added attraction to Brussels Fair), this decision was overwhelmingly adopted by the Assn. of Belgian Cinema Owners.

It is the unexpected answer to an appalling lack of interest shown by politicians in problems vitally affecting well-being of a too-highly taxed industry now threatened by dwindling audiences.

Ban also applies to members of the government. It means they would be deliberately ignored by cameramen in the course of public functions, including the Brussels World Fair.

With most of the U. S. companies surveying the foreign field to see which branches they might close for the sake of economies, several foreign executives feel that there will have to be some sort of over-all industry agreement on which territories to pull out of.

Closings in question affect mostly branches in small places, where it obviously is no longer economic to maintain offices.

Trouble is that most companies are reluctant to move on their own if they know that the competition intends to stay open. "It's kind of foolish, but it's a fact that we'd rather stay open and take a loss than leave the field to someone else," said one foreign manager this week. He said the only alternative was a move by several companies to get together and combine operations.

Such a policy is being instituted by Paramount and Metro in Scandinavia, where Par is taking over the M-G product in Denmark and Metro is reciprocating in Norway. 20th-Fox and Metro have similar arrangements in Trinidad and Austria.

The future of the extent of film business distribution organization is coming into clearer focus as more and more exchanges are being earmarked for closing. Warner blueprint of operation envisions a sales department functioning domestically with a greatly reduced number of branch offices,

(Continued on page 18)

20th-Fox Keeping Movietone News

Following a study of the situation, 20th-Fox has decided to continue its Movietone News operation, even though—at the domestic end—the newsreel is a losing proposition.

Likelyhood of the reel switching to CinemaScope, which has been under consideration, is slim. Feeling is that the added costs wouldn't be matched by increased theatre rentals.

Recent meets at 20th took up the situation and the positive decision was made in the light of the fact that the reel, on an international basis, is important and a money-maker. To continue feeding its foreign issues, Movietone needs the material gathered by its staff in the U. S. Also, 20th values having a going newsreel in the theatres.

To what extent the domestic reel is losing money apparently depends on the bookkeeping. In any case, with all costs written off against the domestic operation, the reel is a loser. It fares better if the international end carries a larger burden.

Paramount's Inventory Down, Cash Position Up; Earnings Equal $2.80

Paramount's operating costs for film distribution and costs of records, music and accessories sold increased to $27,857,138 in 1957 as compared with $21,642,151 in 1956, according to the company's annual report sent to stockholders yesterday (Tues.). However, the company's total income from film rentals, theatre and television receipts, sales of records, music and accessories, and dividends from Canadian and foreign affiliated companies was $111,213,462 in 1957 as compared with $96,579,079 in 1956.

Report, containing an upbeat ap-

(Continued on page 18)

Show Biz Delegates Praise London Variety Tent for Great Convention; 1959 Conclave Set for Las Vegas

By HAROLD MYERS

London, April 29.

"Let's be thankful that next year's International Variety Club Convention is to be held in Las Vegas. In that way we have the chance to match the hospitality and organization provided by the London Tent, although we know we cannot top it." That view, expressed by some of the visitors, seems to be the general opinion of most of the 700 show biz delegates who came in from all parts of the U.S., Canada and Ireland to attend the first-ever convention to be held outside America.

Socially, organizationally and prestigewise, there is substantial agreement that the London convention has been an unqualified triumph. The opening banquet at the Guildhall, attended by the Lord Mayor of London and Earl Mountbatten, and the closing Heart Award Dinner last Friday (25) at the Dorchester at which Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh made the Heart Award, set a new high level in social activity and illustrated the prestige which the Tent has attained in London and which the international organization has created over the years.

Registration fees and brochure advertising netted the government a profit of about $50,000. Proceeds were distributed to deserving charities. Bulk of coin was paid out at the closing Heart Award Dinner and distinguished personalities, among them Lord Atlee and Sir Edward Hulton, were on hand to collect checks on behalf of charities in which they are personally interested.

The high spot of the Heart Award Dinner was the announcement that Lord Nuffield has been chosen to receive the honor. The 80-year-old car magnate in his lifetime has given something like $40,000,000 to charity and the Nuffield Foundation, which bears his name, has a world-wide reputation. His selection was a unanimous choice.

Philly Tent Honored

The final business meet of the convention was a full day Heart Report Session last Thursday (24) when each of the Tents reported on its activities for the past year and indicated its plans for the

(Continued on page 22)

'PORGY' GOES TO TODD-AO

Added $1,500,000 Cost Okay By Sam Goldwyn

Hollywood, April 29.

Samuel Goldwyn's film version of "Porgy and Bess" will now cost $6,500,000 or better, due to his decision to shoot musical in Todd-AO.

Use of Todd-AO will add $1,500,000 to budget. Difference, however, is worth it, according to producer, in what it will bring to the production.

Pic will be fourth in Todd-AO, preceders being "Oklahoma," "Around the World in 80 Days" and "South Pacific."

Big Response On 20th's Option Plan

Under the option plan authorized last year by the 20th-Fox stockholders, options for a total of 170,850 shares of 20th common have been issued to 20th executives, 20th proxy statement reveals. This includes options for 98,750 shares to officers of the corporation, i.e. prexy Spyros P. Skouras for 75,000 to 24¼ uper share and 10,000 to v.p. Joseph H. Moskowitz at 23½ per share.

Under the option plan, six-year restricted stock options could be granted to execs at a price equal to the closing price on the exchange the day the option became effective, plus one dollar. One of the conditions of the plan was that each executive receiving an option would agree to have his compensation reduced by 75c for each share which he could purchase by exercising his option. This cut continues for two years, and in the case of Skouras to Dec. 31, 1960.

Also, each optionee had to purchase five-year 5% subordinated debentures of 20th in an amount equal to $25 for each share of stock optioned to him. The top amount to be purchased was $5,000,000. Annual report this week showed that the management had purchased $4,271,250 in debentures, i.e. $25 the principal amount for each of the 170,850 shares optioned. Total salary reduction was $128,137. The $4,271,250 will be added to the treasury. Up to April 16, 1958, $2,533,270 of the sum had been used to purchase 104,800 shares of 20th common at an average cost of $24.17 per share. Earlier, 25,000 shares had been retired at an average cost of $18.75. Combined the cost of the shares was $3,002,074. 20th plans to purchase additional of its own shares to retire them to treasury.

Annual report showed $64,549,607 in film rentals for the U.S.

(Continued on page 95)

L. A. to N. Y.

Eve Arden
Barney Balaban
James Barton
Jack Benny
Roy Bolger
Bob Chandler
Julius Colby
John Forsythe
Leonard H. Goldenson
Bonita Granville
Abel Green
Frances Stillman Hall
Jose Iturbi
Gene Kelly
Laura LaPlant
Irving Lazar
Leo Lieberman
Alan Livingston
David Marsh
Dick McWhorter
Dina Merrill
Les Paul
Sidney Poitier
Ted Richmond
George Rosen
Syd Silverman
Herman Steinbruck
Jessica Tandy
Clara Ward
Lester Welch
Randy Wood
Dick York

'Lady' Asks 600G's, 10%

Hollywood, April 29.

Asking price for film rights to Norman Krasna's Broadway hit, "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With?" is $600,000 plus 10% of the gross over $3,500,000.

The terms being asked are same as those sought for another Broadway hit, "Two for the Seesaw," for which Seven Arts, the Ray Stark-Eliot Hyman indie, is the principal bidder.

Al Daff on Outlook For Universal

Tokyo, April 29.

Waxing optimism on the last leg of a three-week Orient tour, Alfred E. Daff considered filmdom's plight and remarked, "I don't think the industry will collapse."

Removing his tongue from his cheek, the Universal executive continued, "I think we have a lot of problems to face up to and overcome. I think we'll overcome them and out of it the industry will emerge stronger than ever. And," Daff cited, "that's based on the fact that an outstanding picture today can earn more than it ever could."

Daff predicted that the forthcoming "A Time to Live and A Time to Die," filmization of the Erich Maria Remarque World War II novel, will be Universal's all-time grosser.

Dodging a nod that "A Time" indicated a Universal trend toward "bigger" pictures, Daff offered, "It's only indicative of our making all kinds of all types of pictures. As long as we think they'll be profitable pictures, we'll make 'em," Daff affirmed.

He further uncovered from the "small picture" label that is sometimes associated with Universal by saying "That was fostered by a certain element in the industry to create the impression that Universal is still making cheap pictures as during the war and post-war period. If the theory that U only concentrated on small pictures was accepted," Daff offered, "we might find ourselves kept out of certain exhibition circuits.

Daff denied that his own voice will be less important on production policies now that he will be spending less time on the Coast. "My position is what it always has been," he stated.

"Mr. Rackmil (prexy Milton R.) made our position very clear at the

(Continued on page 20)

CHARLES WINNINGER WINS

Los Angeles, April 29.

Charles Winninger won a stipulated judgment of $6,400 from Fred Gerrier and Martin Nosseck in Superior Court.

Actor claimed he had contracted to appear in a short, "Secret of the White Reindeer," but hadn't been paid.

N. Y. to Europe

Merriel Abbott
Michael Barry
Erik Bruhn
Lucia Chase
Lillia Del Valle
Ethel Ennis
Benny Goodman
Sverre Andrew Gran
Joseph Green
Otis Guernsey
Jimmy Husing
Boris Karloff
Nora Kaye
Sid Kornheiser
John Kriza
Roger Lewis
Goddard Lieberson
Michael Lland
Dudley Manners
Duncan McGregor
Aline McMahon
Gilbert Miller
Jack Mills
Harold Mirisch
Izler Solomon
Trotter Bros.
Gore Vidal
Clinton Wilder
John Williams
Vera Zorina

Europe to N. Y.

Lyn Austin
Rossano Brazzi
Enoch Light
Robert Montgomery
Max E. Youngstein

ALEX GORDON MOVING TOWARD 'A' FEATURES

Hollywood, April 29.

Alex Gordon Productions has been set up by producer to embark upon a program of high-budget films for major release, following sellout of his percentage interests in 12 exploitation pix made for American International.

Initialer on new program will be "The Crime Syndicate," original being scripted by Mildred and Gordon Gordon. Also in works is "Mask of the Red Death," suggested by the Edgar Allan Poe classic. Another trio is "The Mound of Hell," horror yarn; "End of the Trail," a western; and a new version of Robert Louis Stevenson's "The Suicide Club."

Gordon will also set up a separate unit to turn out low-budgeted exploitation yarns. Producer still has three pix to do for AI.

N. Y. to L. A.

Irvin Arthur
Theodore Bikel
Russ Brown
John Cassavetes
Frank Cooper
Irwin Corey
Tom Duggan
Jules Dundes
Ed Hall
Arthur Hull Hayes
John Karol
David A. Lipton
Lois O'Brien
David Rose
Gena Rowlands
Eric Salline
William A. Schudt Jr.
Joe Sherman
Robert Sullivan
Franchot Tone
George Wood
Sidney Zelinka

New York Sound Track

The pariah of the industry several months ago for his downbeat survey of motion picture business, Wall Street Journal reporter Stanley Penn is today's hero. Reason: his page one upbeat story in same paper in which he called attention to the boxoffice increase in the last six weeks and the factors that indicate the upbeat will continue . . . Sam Zimbalist off for Rome to start production on Metro's "Ben Hur." . . . Two of Europe's top stage and film personalities, Lea Padovani and Gino Cervi, signed for the Goffredo Lombardo-Titanus production, "The Naked Maja," which will star Ava Gardner as the Duchess of Alba and Anthony Franciosa as Goya . . . Although the picture is completed, Metro is holding the release of the George Pal puppet picture, "Tom Thumb," until next Christmas so it can latch on to the kiddie trade . . .

Leo Abrams, for 17 years N.Y. area branch manager for National Screen Service, has resigned . . . Prior to joining NSS, he was division mgr. for Universal. He expects to get back into distribution . . . Atlantis Films (formerly Magna International) kicks off its activities in the foreign film field with the Brigitte Bardot entry, "The Girl in the Bikini." It's due for release in May . . . Edward L. Kingsley left last week on the Cristoforo Colombo direct for Cannes and the film fest. While he's off ogling films, his wife, Lee, goes on tour with the N.Y. Philharmonic to Latin America. She on the orch's p.r. staff.

Protest against "callous disregard of decency and the flouting of virtues" by "some persons" in the entertainment world has been registered by the Supreme Board of Directors of the Knights of Columbus . . . The resolution urged those in "control" of the motion picture and television industries to take immediate corrective steps, according to a National Catholic Welfare Conference News Service story,—under New York date line.

Gastronomic "showmanship" is reflected in the SRO biz by two of New York's newest eateries, Trader Vic's in the Savoy-Plaza Hotel (now under Hilton management) and The Forum (of the 12 Caesars). Latter is headed by coffee merchant Phil Wechsler and is in a lusty Caesarian motif, with a menu that reads like a script from some ancient Lucullan papyrus . . . Trader Vic's is in the South Seas idiom, repeating the click at the Beverly Hilton (BevHills), operating under a royalty license fee from the original Trader in San Francisco.

Kurt Neumann signed to direct "Return to King Solomon's Mines," Al Zimbalist's first production for Metro . . . David A. Lipton, Universal pub-ad veep, returned to the Coast after 10 days of homeoffice conferences . . . A. M. Ellis Theatres Co., of Philadelphia, who operate a circuit in the Pennsylvania and Delaware area, have leased on a long-term basis the Kerry Drive-in Theatre in Wilmington. Berk and Krumgold, N.Y. theatre realty specialists, set the deal . . . May 24 set as the deadline for entries in the 1958 Creative Film Award for the best creative experiment in film form. Award is sponsored jointly by the Creative Film Foundation and Cinema 16 . . . Metro reports a $25,000 advance sale for the legit-style presentation of "Gigi" at the Royale Theatre starting May 15.

Bette Davis takes over role of Catherine the Great of Russia in Samuel Bronston's "John Paul Jones" . . . Andrew J. Fenady will write and produce and Irvin Kershner direct "Young Captives" for Paramount, which signed team for package chore.

Frances Farmer returns to screen after 15-year absence in star role of Paramount's "The Party Crashers" . . . Paramount changed title of "Too Young for Love" to "As Young As We Are" . . . Mamie Van Doren heads for Rome in June to star in Italian production. "Sabrina's Lovely," filmed in English . . . Jean Stapleton takes leave of absence from Broadway's "The Bells Are Ringing" to recreate her stage role, Sister, in Warner Bros.' picturization of "Damn Yankees" . . .

Stage-screen veteran Roscoe Karns, who spoke briefly at an Albany Variety Club dinner last week, asserted that there has been a number of technical improvements and changes in acting styles over the last four decades. But most prominent of the fresh techniques, he added, is the "natural" school favored by such stars as James Stewart and Gary Cooper.

Samuel Bronston has found it necessary to import from London the sound recording equipment for his production of "John Paul Jones" which he is filming in Madrid. Spanish films are all filmed silently with dialog dubbed in later, so no set-recording equipment was available in Madrid. John Farrow is directing the film with a cast topped by Robert Stack, Charles Coburn, Erin O'Brien and Macdonald Carey. Filming on the Technirama production got under way at the Estudios CEA, Madrid, on April 15.

Marilyn Monroe returns to screen in Mirisch Co.'s "Some Like It Hot" for UA release . . . Gene Krupa will be technical advisor on his own Columbia Pictures' biopic . . . Richard Brooks, winding his writer-director pact with Metro, negotiating deal with United Artists to do film version of Sinclair Lewis' "Elmer Gantry" . . . Seven Arts Productions registered "Festival" with MPAA Title Registration Bureau, for film background by Brussels Fair.

Otto Preminger bought Pierre Boulle's new "The Ways of Salvation" for $350,000 against a percentage, with $150,000 down in cash. He'll do it for Columbia release. Preminger got the book after Sam Spiegel dropped his option on it. Spiegel also was going to make it for Col . . . The Soviets are due with more films on rocketry and space exploration. Part of their color-science fiction "Journey to the Moon" film's been sold to tv . . . Henderikus Wiers, chief producer for the Deutsche Wochenschau (newsreel), reports his reel is the "official" newsreel in the Norwegian houses. Also said it was "policy" not to use library shots going back into the Hitler period . . . Franchot Tone and actress-wife Dolores Dorn-Heft hoping to enter their "Uncle Vanya" at one of the European film fests . . . Munio Podhorzer of Casino Film Exchange on a ten-day midwest trip.

Ted Richmond and Dick McWhorter to Spain to scout locations for "Solomon and Sheba," upcoming Tyrone Power starrer . . . "Blackburn's Guerrillas" is new handle for Topaz' "Blackburn's Headhunters" . . . Choreographer Bob Fosse will also dance and act in Warner Bros.' "Damn Yankees," Tab Hunter starrer . . . Samuel G. Engel is prepping four films for summer and fall production, repping $11,000,000 production outlay: "The Story of Ruth," "A Machine for Chuparosa," "White Terror of the Atlantic" and "The End of the Santa Fe Trail" . . . Zsa Zsa Gabor's Allied Artists item is finally titled "Queen for Outer Space," a cut from "Queen of the Universe" . . .

Question before the house: Who bought the 52,000 shares of 20th-Fox stock last week, sending up the price of 20th common by several points? Shares were bought at the then prevailing market price (24) and—presumably—were made available by one individual. The buyer was from the Coast. Best guess: It was either Howard Hughes or Darryl F. Zanuck who unloaded . . . When the late B. P. Schulberg took out his by-now-famous ad in the Hollywood trades during the forties, asking for a job in the industry he helped build, he got little response from the film biz, but a lot of mail. Among the letters was one offering him room and board "for life" with a London family.

CANNES CRY: SEND U.S. GALS

Pictures Competing at Cannes

Cannes, April 29.

UNITED STATES

Official: "The Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) directed by Richard Brooks with Yul Brynner, Maria Schell, Claire Bloom, Lee J. Cobb.
Invited: "The Long, Hot Summer" (20th) directed by Martin Rift with Orson Welles, Anthony Franciosa, Joanne Woodward, Paul Newman, Lee Remick.
"Desire Under the Elms" (Par) directed by Delbert Mann with Sophia Loren, Anthony Perkins, Burl Ives.

FRANCE

Official: "Mon Oncle" (Gray) written by, directed by, and starring Jacques Tati.
Invited: "Les Eaux Vives" (Caravelle) (Live Waters) directed by Francois Villiers with Pascal Audret.

ITALY

Official: "L'Huomo Di Paglia" (Lux) (The Man of Straw) directed by Pietro Germi with Germi, Luisa Della Noce.
Invited: "Giovani Mariti" (Cassuto) (Newlyweds) directed by Mauro Bolognini

JAPAN

Official: "Yukiguni" (Toho) (The Snow Country)
directed by Shiro Toyoda with Keiko Kishi, Ryo Ikebe.

NORWAY

Official: "Ni Liv" (Nordsjofilm) (Nine Lives) directed by Arne Skouen with Jack Tjeldstad, Henny Moan.

ARGENTINA

Official: "Rosaura A Las Diez" (Sono) (Rosaura at Ten O'Clock)
directed by Mario Soffici with Juan Verdaguer, Susana Campos.

SPAIN

Official: "La Venganza" (Guion) (The Vengeance) directed by Juan-Antonio Bardem with Raf Vallone, Carmen Sevilla.

GREECE

Official: "Fin De Credit" (Finos) (No More Credit) directed by Michael Cacoyannis with Elite Lambetti.

SWEDEN

Official: "En Djungelsaga (Sandrews) (A Jungle Saga) written and directed by Arne Sucksdorff.
Invited: "Naera Livet" (Nordisk) (Near Life) directed by Ingmer Bergman with Bibi Anderson.

SWITZERLAND

Official: "Visages De Bronze) (Luzuy) (Bronze Faces) directed by Bernard Taisant with Jacques Bondon.

CHILE

Official: "La Caleta Olvidada" (Arauco) (The Forgotten Creek) directed by Bruno Gebel with Juan Solas.

HUNGARY

Official: "Vasvirag" (Hunnia) (Iron Flower) directed by Janos Hersko with Mari Torocsik, Zolton Varkonyi.

POLAND

Official: "Osmy Dzien Tygodnia" (Polski) (The Eighth Day of the Week) directed by Aleksander Ford with Sonia Ziemann Zbigniew Cybulski

RUMANIA

Official: "Ciulinii Baraganului" (Bucaresti) (Fools of Baragan) directed by Louis Daquin with Nuta Chirlea, Ana Vladesco.

RUSSIA

Official: "Letiat Jouravly" (Mosfilm) (When the Storks Pass) directed by Michael Kalatozov with Tatiana Samilova, Alexis Batalov.

GREAT BRITAIN

Official: "Orders to Kill" (Lion) directed by Anthony Asquith with Paul Massie, Irene Worth.

WEST GERMANY

Official: "Das Wirthaus Im Spessart" (GMBH) (The Inn in Spessart) directed by Kurt Hoffmann with Liselotte Pulver and Carlos Thompson.

CZECHOSLAVAKIA

Official: "Zizkovska Romance" (Czech) (A Suburb Romance) directed by Zbnynek Brynych with Jiri Vala, Renata Clarova.
Invited: "Liberte Surveille" (Czech) (Provisional Liberty) directed by Vladimir Voltchek and Henri Aisner with Robert Hossein, Marina Vlady, Rene Lefevre. This is a Czech-French co-production.

INDIA

Official: "Paras Pathar" (L. B. Film) (The Philosopher's Stone) directed by Satyajit Ray.
Invited: "Pardesi" (Stranger) (Naya Sansar)
directed by K. A. Abbas and S. Pronin.
This is an Indian-Russian coproduction.

(Austria's entry "Sissi, Years of Destiny" (Erma) was yanked when it was shown at Brussels this week. It was the third episode in a popular series on Franz Joseph and his wife, the Emporer and Empress of old Austria.

Fest now has 29 countries participating with 26 features and 30 shorts.)

STERN CURB OF TIRED PICTURES

By GENE MOSKOWITZ

Cannes, April 29.

Cannes Film Festival, which will be having its 11th annual waltz around starting this Friday (2) evening (ends May 18) will have fewer films, and, on the advance dope, better ones. That has been a problem of the past about which the festival powers have exercised concern.

Whether Cannes can count on the actual physical presence of the many star names bandied about in advance remains to be seen. Experience teaches skepticism. There is in particular the question-mark on the Americans, most of them nowadays being freelance and time-conscious. The photographers who flock to these events are hot for the sex queens from Hollywood, but few have condescended in recent years.

Cannes festival chief Robert Favre Le Bret has wished especially to prevent smaller nations from palming off native films of less than artistic stature, helping the release, perhaps, but not Cannes.

Le Bret somewhat miffed the Motion Picture Export Assn. when he invited 20th-Fox's "The Long, Hot Summer" over the three other MPEA possibilities of "Desire Under the Elms" (Par), "The Old Man and the Sea" (WB) and "The Goddess" (Col). "Desire" finally got the third nod for the Yanks after "The Brothers Karamazov" (MG) was accepted as the official Yank entry.

20th has long operated lone wolf at festivals and scored again. Yank budget for Festival particular is around $10,000, way below other production countries who dispense costly folders, film books, etc, to cash in on the great press coverage centered here every day for 18 days. Over 600 accredited correspondents are expected this time.

Le Bret has gotten a 27% budget increase for the festival administration but rising hotel costs and salaries (more personnel to smooth out the actual physical running of the fest) have eaten this up. He feels that money is still a Cannes' major problem. Budget this year is $167,500.

The quest for the quality product

(Continued on page 18)

Politically Calm Outlook This Year, But Will Soviets Like 'Karamazov'

Cannes, April 29.

It looks like clear political skies for the upcoming Cannes International Film Festival, which starts to unspool here May 2 and runs through May 18. Rundown of entries indicates that, with the exception of some war films, none bear down on controversial political issues that could set tempers flaring.

Still, diplomatic hides being sensitive and producers touchy, some minor scuffles could still take place. Were it to stretch a point, Russia might conceivably object to the official American entry, Metro's "Brothers Karamazov." And France could take offense over Britain's "Orders to Kill." But it seems unlikely.

One possible source of friction is the Polish entry, "The Eighth Day of the Week," which is technically a coproduction between Poland and West Germany, but was made primarily by the Poles. It has a German star, Sonia Ziemann. Due to the lack of trade accords between West Germany and Poland, the former denies the picture coproduction status. Since the film is entered as a Polish release, however, there should be no trouble on that score.

The Soviet entry, "When the Storks Pass," is a love story sans propaganda, and the other war entries—from Norway and Czechoslovakia—aren't expected to hurt anyone's feelings.

Under the fest rules, the administration has the right to reject entries deemed likely to offend other participating nations or containing propaganda.

BRUSSELS EXPO FILMS

'Old Man and Sea' and 'Goddess' From States

"The Old Man and the Sea," starring Spencer Tracy and release by Warner Bros., and "The Goddess," starring Kim Stanley and released by Columbia, have been accepted as the official U. S. entries at the Brussels film festival.

The Brussels committee has also selected Metro's "Raintree County," starring Elizabeth Taylor and Montgomery Clift, as the third U. S. entry.

The final American selections for the Cannes festival which starts this week are "The Brothers Karamazov," "Desire Under the Elms" and "The Long, Hot Summer."

More Savvy Jury Gratifies Pros At Cannes Fest

Cannes, April 29.

Pointing to the fact that virtually all members of the Cannes film festival jury this year have film backgrounds, observers are hopeful that this may lead to more mature and well-considered prizes. Last year, a lay jury handed out several unpopular prizes and earned itself a good deal of criticism.

Composition of the jury is important, and if the members of the current panel can avoid fest, diplomatic and industry pressures, they may well come up with popular awards.

Jury is international, combining four Frenchmen and seven foreigners. Its composition is a follows:

Marcel Achard, playwright, film

(Continued on page 94)

Danton Walker's Guide Books Inc. has been authorized to conduct a publishing business in New York. Jacob Padawer, was filing attorney at Albany.

Doing the Cannes-Can

Cannes, April 29.

The Cannes Film Fest starts Fri. (2) but already Gilbert De Goldschmidt, a young pic producer, has snared world rights for the Swedish "En Djungelsaga" (A Jungle Saga) made in Agascope and Technicolor in India by Arne Sucksdorff. A lyrical, poetic tale of man and nature, and how a myth grows via one man's fight with a marauding leopard, this also tees off the fest to be followed by a white tie party thrown for visitors by the Festival and City of Cannes . . . Marc Spiegle now Hecht-Hill-Lancaster rep abroad, is reported seeking U.S. rights for "Saga" by De Goldschmidt who says he is holding out until he talks to all the U.S. indie distribs expected at Cannes, such as Jean Goldwurm, Ed Kingsley, Richard Davis, Cy Harvey, Ilya Lopert . . . The growing international aspect of motion pictures is noticeable by the mixed nationality of casts . . . Czech entry "Provisional Liberty" has French thesps Robert Hossein and Marina Vlady . . . the Hispano entry, "The Vengeance," includes Raf Vallone from Italy . . . Poland's "The Eighth Day of the Week," numbers German player Sonia Ziemann . . . the Yank "The Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) has Swiss miss Maria Schell and Anglo lassie Claire Bloom . . . Martine Carol comes in with the French contingent fresh from a pic stint in an Anglo-American pic "The Phoenix" (UA) which she just finished in West Berlin under Robert Aldrich's direction . . . The Rumanian entry "The Fools of Baragan" has a French leftist director Louis Daquin . . . More fest personnel are expected to ease fest workings this year with more efficiency and less ducat trouble . . .

Second Swedish entry "Naera Livet" (Near Life) concerns three pregnant women and their personal dramas of childbirth, while Russia's "When the Storks Pass" is not about maternity but love . . . Motion Picture Export Assn. rep, Fred Gronich, could not find a house near enough to the fest so he will hold court office and living quarters in the Carlton Hotel . . . Official Yank entry "The Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) unspools May 11 at night. The American party will precede it in the afternoon. Only other Yank pic showing set is "Desire Under the Elms" (Par) for Sunday afternoon (4) . . .

Two of Hollywood's three entries at the Cannes film fest star foreign personalities. "Brothers Karamazov" has Maria Schell and "Desire Under the Elms" offers Sophia Loren. Miss Schell, incidentally, is being claimed by four countries. The Swiss say she's Swiss, the Germans say she's made her success in German films, the French point to "Gervaise" and several other French pictures the actress has made, and now the Americans are in the act too.

Brussels Expo Cavalcade of U.S. 'Great' Features

A cavalcade of great American pictures from pioneer Hollywood to date, selected in cooperation with Richard Griffith, curator of the film library of the Museum of Modern Art, starts unspooling at the Brussels Fair June 12 in the U.S. Auditorium-Theatre as follows:

"Life of an American Fireman," directed by Edwin S. Porter, 1902.
"The Coward," directed by Thomas H. Ince, 1915.
"Intolerance," D. W. Griffith, 1916.
"The Mark of Zorro" (Fairbanks Sr.), 1920.
"Greed," Eric Von Stroheim, 1923.
"Sherlock Jr." (Buster Keaton) 1924.
"Hallelujah," King Vidor, 1929.
"Horsefeathers" (Marx Bros.), 1932.
"It Happened One Night," Frank Capra, 1934.
"The Lady Eve," Preston Sturges, 1941.
"Meet Me In St. Louis," Vincente Minnelli, 1944.
"Best Years of Our Lives," Wm. Wyler, 1946.
"My Darling Clementine," John Ford, 1946.
"Treasure of Sierra Madre," John Huston, 1948.
"Louisiana Story," John Flaherty, 1948.
"High Noon," Fred Zinnemann, 1952.

British Columbia Film For Theatrical Release

Vancouver, April 29.

Parry Films' "The Tall Country," a 30-minute British Columbia "travelog" in color, will be released for theatrical showing on May 8, by National Film Board.

Film was bankrolled by British Columbia Centennial committee, and filmed by O. H. Boradaille, local cameraman. Film will be one of the entries in the (Vancouver) film festival.

Russia Floods Vancouver 'Fest'

Vancouver, April 29.

Russia is way ahead and Canada nowhere in the tally of feature film entries to the theatrical aspects of Vancouver's initial international fest, which debuts at the Vogue here, Aug. 4, and though film admissions office was technically closed April 15, tardy submissions are still being accepted "for quite a while" said fest official.

Sole American feature film here is "Miracle in Manhattan," and Canada is depending on documentaries from National Film Board, and others, but no Canadian submissions have yet reached the fest.

(Continued on page 16)

Cannes Taking Note Of Telepix, Too; Meetings Of Federation as Usual

Cannes, April 29.

Contributing to the rising stature of the Cannes film festival, and rounding out the number of activities running parallel with the event this year, will be international meetings and specialized exhibitions.

Outstanding among the latter will be the first television film competition, the winning picture to cop the Eurovision Prize. Screenings will run from May 10 to 14 with 33 films from 10 countries entered. Among the competitors will be the U. S., West Ger-

(Continued on page 16)

Ten North Frederick
(CINEMASCOPE)

John O'Hara's novel. Gary Cooper having a bitter-sweet romance. Mostly well done tale of the disintegration of a gentleman who could protect neither himself nor those he loved.

20th Century-Fox release of a Charles Brackett production. Stars Gary Cooper, Diane Varsi, Suzy Parker. Co-stars Geraldine Fitzgerald, Tom Tully. Features Ray Stricklyn, Philip Ober, John Emery, Stuart Whitman, Linda Watkins, Barbara Nichols. Directed and screenplayed by Philip Dunne after John O'Hara's novel. Camera, Joe MacDonald; music, Leigh Harline, conducted by Lionel Newman; editor, David Bretherton. Previewed in N. Y. Projection Room, April 23, '58. Running time, 102 MINS.

Joe Chapin	Gary Cooper
Ann Chapin	Diane Varsi
Edith Chapin	Geraldine Fitzgerald
Joby Chapin	Ray Stricklyn
Slattery	Tom Tully
Kate Drummond	Suzy Parker
Charley Bongiorno	Stuart Whitman
Lloyd Williams	Philip Ober
Arthur McHenry	Jess Kirkpatrick
Jr. English	Joe McGuinn
Paul Donaldon	John Emery
Peg Slattery	Linda Watkins

Accenting the positive first, "Ten North Frederick" is a fairly interesting study of a man who is the victim of his own virtues. The average filmgoer ought to find this tale-with-a-thesis absorbing diversion. After that it may be stated that because of the psychological intricacies involved the screen telling sacrifices detail and explanation at some loss to audience satisfaction.

The politics section has been so foreshortened and telescoped as to be puzzling. The question of whether the protagonist actually entertains the dream of the presidency or jollies his wife on the point is never clear. And it is crucial to conviction. Joe Chapin (Gary Cooper) is a regional lawyer, rich but not apparently otherwise distinguished. Most of all he is a gentleman and from this fact flows his troubles. The fantastic unreality of a White House ambition goes unexplained save in terms of an aggrandizing wife and leaves the whole beginning of the film oddly conflicted, since the modesty characterization is fighting the vanity of the ambition, which doesn't fit as screenplayed.

Though well acted Tom Tully's party politician is a main contribution to audience wondering about motives which are not stated nor shown if occasionally hinted. Does he personally pocket the $100,000 given him to promote the hero's wish to be, like his grandfather, lieutenant-governor of the state, or does he share the money with his cronies, or divert it to party uses?

Curiosity is aroused but not satisfied on this and other important plot points. Tully seems motivated by a private malice against the "quality" and "family" of the fat cat. He may have a professional's detestation of a well-bred amateur. Only one oblique line of dialog in reference to himself as an Irish politician gives the clue. Hence the audience is not prepared adequately, does not quite get the full implication of the subsequent double-cross.

The vaguest part of the screen version is the home town attitude toward the hero although at his 50th birthday party he is twitted by a philanderer with being a dull and slow fellow. Nonetheless the story gets on and after his series of disillusionments, including his beloved daughter's forced marriage, subsequent miscarriage, annullment and leaving home, the lawyer moves to his bitter-sweet romance in New York with a younger woman. Gradually the central figure becomes more fully dimensioned and the thesis comes across that he has suffered because he cannot take advantage of people but is himself much put upon.

Told in flashback, the story opens at the 1945 funeral of the lawyer and shows the hypocrites gathered afterwards in his home. The greatest hypocrite of all is the widow, played with iceberg selfishness by Geraldine Fitzgerald. It could open a new gamut of formidable screen females for her. At the payoff the G.I. son tells off the company, in his cups, and breaks completely with his mother. Ray Stricklyn makes this boy stand up and out.

The Charles Brackett production obviously serves a variety of purposes. First the John O'Hara book is a pre-sold value by a name author. Then the main character is sympathetic to and tailored for an aging star and a sad September romance is integral to his situation just as his being too considerate makes him send the girl away, though she wishes to stay on any terms. Finally "Ten North Frederick" suitably showcases two 20th CenturyFox actresses being upbuilt, Diane Varsi and Suzy Parker.

Few will be inclined to vote Suzy Parker a great actress, or a prospect to be, but after the wooden maiden display she gave opposite Cary Grant in "Kiss Them for Me" it is possible to report that in her present work is the difference between a breathing human body with eyes that move and a store window mannikin. Knowledgeable coaches have been busy unlearning her everything taught at Harper's Bazaar. She is actually quite likeable here.

Fans will probably be further enthused about Miss Varsi who had her big major credit recently via "Peyton Place." Here she is the daughter of an old nativist snob family who falls in love with an upstart jazz trumpeter, born a Catholic and considered a bum by the cruel men, the gentlemanly father standing by, who break up her marriage and break her heart in the process. Stuart Whitman makes the jazzbo come real in limited footage.

Leigh Harline's score, kept properly neutral by Lionel Newman, fits mood and never intrudes, and the same compliment may be paid Joe MacDonald's camera work. It is hard to visualize just what kind of a town it is that has a house like Ten North Frederick but it is not to be supposed that many will notice that detail of art direction (Lyle R. Wheeler and Addison Hehr) nor wonder where the two career girls living in New York found that sumptuous flat in which they reside.

With the mental reservations on story detailing previously mentioned, "Ten North Frederick" has many points of interest and appeal. It is possibly the best job of acting Gary Cooper has done in a very long time and as an armpiece Miss Parker is far more plausible for him than Audrey Hepburn.

By the time the story is played out the thesis makes sense—Joe Chapin has indeed been hopelessly handicapped in life by being a gentleman. He could never take advantage but others could exploit him. Out of defects, born of his gentleness and basic decency, he comes to disintegration. It is convincing in the end and in Cooper's performance, and it is also sad. This perhaps is proof that Dunne has flown free of the obscurities in the emasculated political segment of the story. Land.

Gang War

Story has interest; production about average; should do nicely in filling out the bill.

Hollywood, April 25.

Twentieth-Fox release of a Regal Films production. Stars Charles Bronson, Kent Taylor, Jennifer Holden, John Doucette; with Gloria Henry, Gloria Grey, Barney Phillips, Ralph Manza, George Eldredge, Billy Snyder, Lyn Guild, Dan Simmons, Jack Reynolds, Jack Littlefield, Larry Gelbmann, Shirle Haven. Ed Wright. Produced by Harold E. Knox. Directed by Gene Fowler Jr. Screenplay by Louis Vittes; from the novel, "The Hoods Take Over," by Ovid Demaris; camera, John M. Nickolaus Jr.; film editor, Frank Baldridge; music, Paul Dunlap. Previewed April 25, '58. Running time, 75 MINS.

Alan Avery	Charles Bronson
Bryce Barker	Kent Taylor
Marie	Jennifer Holden
Maxie Matthews	John Doucette
Edie Avery	Gloria Henry
Marsha Brown	Gloria Grey
Sam Johnson	Barney Phillips
Axe Duncan	Ralph Manza
Sgt. Ernie Tucker	George Eldredge
Mr. Tomkins	Billy Snyder
Joe Reno	Jack Reynolds
Bob Cross	Dan Simmons
Little Abner	Larry Gelbmann
Johnny	Jack Littlefield
Henchman No. 1	Ed Wright
Nicki	Shirle Haven

The stock characters that might take part in a gang war—the "big boss," the dumb dame, the punch-drunk fighter, the "bought" cop, and the gangland attorney—take parts in "Gang War," a Regal production that holds up as a bang-bang opus with more than enough excitement for a second-feature life.

There's another character, too, and though he's been seen before, he still perks up interest. He's a high school mathematics teacher who has the misfortune of being eye witness to a gangland murder. At first, he wants nothing to do with the affair, then is shamed into testifying. In the fracas, he's assaulted, his wife is killed, the "big boss' shrinks, the dumb dame is murdered, the punchdrunk fighter is mauled, the "bought" cop is fired, and the gangland attorney goes straight and is eradicated.

Charles Bronson, in underplaying his role of the teacher, keeps a sympathetic interest centered on himself. As the boss, John Doucette turns in an excellent performance. Kent Taylor, as the attorney, is fine, and Jennifer Holden as the dumb dame is sexy to behold. As the teacher's wife, Gloria Henry does well in a part that is too small to allow much excitement.

Gene Fowler Jr., directed, and his work seems quite capable. The Harold E. Knox production shows infrequent signs of low budget but manages to appear attractive for the most part. Screenwriter Louis Vittes, despite the stereotyped characters, penned the script with a proper tone. Ron.

This Angry Age
(TECHNIRAMA-TECHNICOLOR)

Somewhat blurry story against interesting backgrounds, and photographed with stress on scenic values. Cast names—Silvano Mangano, Anthony Perkins, Richard Conte and Jo Van Fleet—ought to help, but still only a so-so bet.

Columbia release of Dino De Laurentiis production. Stars Silvano Mangano, Anthony Perkins, Richard Conte and Jo Van Fleet; features Nehemiah Persoff, Yvonne Sanson, Chu Shao Chuan, Guido Celano, Alida Valli. Directed by Rene Clement. Screenplay, Irwin Shaw and Clement; from novel, "Sea Wall," by Marguerite Duras; camera (Technicolor) Otello Martelli; music, Nino Rota; songs, "Uh-Huh," by Leroy Kirkland and Billy Dawn, "Ya Ya Ya," by Alvy West, "One Kiss from Heaven" by A. Romeo and Sam Coslow and "Only You" by Ram-Band. Tradeshown in N.Y. April 23 '58. Runing time 111 MINS.

(Following cast list is incomplete, producer Dino De Laurentiis not having made the full roster available, according to Columbia in New York).

Joseph	Anthony Perkins
Suzanne	Silvano Mangano
Michael	Richard Conte
Madame Dufresne	Jo Ann Fleet
Albert Legros	Nehemiah Persoff

Yank and non-Yank interests, mainly Columbia and Italian producer Dino De Laurentiis, have joined in an enterprise obviously packaged with a view to the world market. The product is an adaptation of the Marguerite Duras novel, "The Sea Wall," is set on the coast of French Indo-China, and actually was lensed in Thailand.

It's apparent that De Laurentiis went for a good-sized budget in laying the backgrounds for "This Angry Age," which, incidentally, is a title less apt than Miss Duras' original. Indeed, it's likely to be construed as having kinship with the relatively new literati mood from Britain, whereas the picture is timed at pre-war.

The reviewer (and the viewer) can only guess at what went on in the transposition of the book to the screen but it appears likely that De Laurentiis and Rene Clement, latter having called the directorial shots, placed so much stress on "character development" that the plot was largely overlooked. Film abounds in somber atmosphere and sensual situations but the story at times is out of focus.

It's a yarn about a widow, Jo Van Fleet, who has built up wastelands in the Oriental area to a productive rice field and seeks to protect this from the menacing sea with a dike made of palm logs.

Her aides are her children, daughter Silvano Magnano and son Anthony Perkins. Left uncertain is why Miss Van Fleet and her family are on this unlikely location in the first place and how Perkins, who looks strictly from Midland, U. S. A., and Miss Mangano, obviously of Latino extraction, would be paired as brother and sister.

And the behavior of these two is so suggestive of incestuous desire that "Angry Age" ought to score well in what Sindlinger calls "talk about" but as displayed herein such a situation seems reached out for, and doesn't have a rightful place in the story. A crawl dance they do, for example, has them performing like a couple on romantic hop.

Dramatic pivot is a break in the dam that comes just as Richard Conte enters. He's a government agent out to force Miss Van Fleet, her family and the natives supported by the rice field from the treacherous area, an objective which he abandons upon "discovering" Miss Mangano. A cement dike would solve everything, he decides.

Second romance is introduced as Perkins, running away from his family, encounters Alida Valli in a town film theatre. They hit the bistros along with her male companion, who's constantly on a binge.

Still another aside has Nehemiah Persoff, who while seeking to buy out Miss Van Fleet's property at the behest of his father, makes some clumsy propositions to Miss Mangano, including one request that he might see her taking a shower.

The cast, which also includes Yvonne Sanson, Chu Shao Chuan and Guido Celano, is in good cinematic company with the photographic work (filming is in Technirama and Technicolor), particularly the expert handling of the scenic detail and the exciting flood scene. But the script by Irwin Shaw and Clement seems to have been mismanaged so far as getting story on screen is concerned. Thus, performances can only be rated as fair.

"Angry Age" has its values; clear-cut plot organization might have given it distinction.

Music is good and of the four songs, "One Kiss Away from Heaven," as sung by Perkins, sounds as though having a fair-enough chance on its own. Editing should be sharper, the 111 minutes of footage being excessive. Other technical credits competent. Gene.

The Light In the Forest
(COLOR)

Pre-Revolutionary tale of boy raised by the Indians. Good b.o. prospects for family and general situations.

Buena Vista release of a Walt Disney production. Starring Fess Parker, Wendell Corey, Joanne Dru, James MacArthur; co-starring Jessica Tandy, John McIntire, Joseph Calleia, Rafael Campos, and introducing Carol Lynley. Directed by Herschel Daugherty. Screenplay, Lawrence Edward Watkin; from the novel by Conrad Richter; camera, Ellsworth Fredericks; music, Paul Smith; editor, Stanley Johnson. Previewed in Hollywood, April 25, '58. Running time, 93 MINS.

Del Hardy	Fess Parker
Wilse Owens	Wendell Corey
Milly Elder	Joanne Dru
Johnny Butler	James MacArthur
Myra Butler	Jessica Tandy
John Elder	John McIntire
Cuyloga	Joseph Calleia
Shenandoe Hastings	Carol Lynley
Half Arrow	Rafael Campos
Harry Butler	Frank Ferguson
Wakatoon	Norman Fredric
Kate Owens	Marian Seldes
Col. Henry Bouquet	Stephen Bekassy
George Owens	Sam Buffington

Not for the black leather jacket trade, Walt Disney's "The Light in the Forest" is a good picture for almost anyone else, with the same wholesome adventure qualities that distinguished "Old Yeller." Like most Disney productions, it is pastoral in quality, almost fable-like in its gentle approach to some basically bitter situations, but it is well-paced, has capable acting and a brace of marquee names, plus wide screen and Technicolor.

Lawrence Edward Watkin's screenplay is based on Conrad Richter's novel, set in the pre-Revolutionary days. Apart from its conscious avoidance of violence, it has a salutary lesson in tolerance. The theme is not preached, but its meaning is inescapable, and it gives depth to a story that would otherwise seem too placid.

Disney's production, directed by Herschel Daugherty, is notable on several counts, one being that it is about the Delaware Indians, an Eastern tribe, different from the usual Indians encountered these days. Since they were a more colorful and picturesque tribe than some of the Plains Indians, it makes for good background and plot development.

James MacArthur is the white boy who has been kidnapped by the Delawares and raised as the son of chief Joseph Calleia. As part of a treaty between the Indians and the British Colonial Forces, all such hostages are to be returned, and MacArthur is reluctant and recalcitrant in making the change. He is received with understanding by Fess Parker, as the chief intermediary between Indians and white, but his new life is made harder by Indian-hater Wendell Corey. He runs away and attempts to become again the Indian he always wished to be, but he eventually comes back to live among his own people, having learned there are bad Indians as well as good, and love among the white people as well as hate.

Although Fess Parker, Wendell Corey and Joanne Dru are the leading adult players in "The Light In The Forest," and they occupy a large portion of the footage, the story is essentially one for young people. Parker is capable as the man understanding of both Indian and white life, and Corey is strong as the villain of the piece. Miss Dru is attractive as Parker's romantic opposite. The most attractive portions of the picture, though, are those in which MacArthur makes his difficult way, and particularly in the love scenes between MacArthur and Carol Lynley, a real find. Daugherty's direction is especially perceptive in handling the young lovers, awkward and touching. The supporting cast is strong with Jessica Tandy, John McIntire, Rafael Campos and Calleia. Marian Seldes and Norman Fredric also contribute notable performances.

Ellsworth Frederick's photography captures the feeling of the Arcadian land and its people, meshing the Ohio River locations and the authentic back lot scenes. Carroll Clark's art direction, with set decorations by Emile Kent and Fred McLean, is richly authentic whether in Indian teepee or settler's cabin. Music by Paul Smith, with evocative orchestration by Franklyn Marks, is first-rate as are the songs by Gil George, Lawrence Edward Watkin and Paul Smith. Editing by Stanley Johnson and sound by Robert O. Cook and Dean Thomas, are both excellent.

The Left Handed Gun

Overlong but super-charged study of Billy the Kid with special teenage appeal. Fred Coe's maiden production. Good b.o. prospects.

Hollywood, April 18.

Warner Bros. release of Fred Coe production. Stars Paul Newman; co-stars Lita Milan, John Dehner, Hurd Hatfield; features James Congdon, James Best, Colin Keith-Johnston, John Dierkes, Bob Anderson. Directed by Arthur Penn. Screenplay, Leslie Stevens; based on a teleplay, "The Death of Billy the Kid," by Gore Vidal; camera, J. Peverell Marley; music, Alexander Courage; editor, Folmar Blangsted. Previewed at the studio, March 27, '58. Running time, 105 MINS.

Billy Bonney	Paul Newman
Celsa	Lita Milan
Moultrie	Hurd Hatfield
Charlie Boudre	James Congdon
Tom Folliard	James Best
Turnstall	Colin Keith-Johnston
McSween	John Dierkes
Hill	Bob Anderson
Moon	Wally Brown
Joe Grant	Ainslie Pryor
Saval	Martin Garralaga
Ollinger	Denver Pyle
Bell	Paul Smith
Maxwell	Hestor Paiva
Mrs. Garrett	Jo Summers
Brady	Robert Foulk
Mrs. Hill	Anne Barton

"The Left Handed Gun" is another look at Billy the Kid, probably America's most constantly celebrated juvenile delinquent. In this version from Warners he's Billy, the crazy, mixed-up Kid. It is a motion picture bow for television producer Fred Coe and director Arthur Penn, and their picture is a smart and exciting western paced by Paul Newman's intense portrayal of the Kid. There is plenty of action for western buffs and the added value of a psychological story for general appeal.

Leslie Stevens' screenplay is based on a teleplay by Gore Vidal that was called "The Death of Billy the Kid." The action is concerned with the few events that led up to the slaying of the Brooklyn boy by lawman Pat Garrett. Stevens emphasizes the youthful nature of the desperado by giving him two equally young companions, James Best and James Congdon. The three team after Newman's mentor, cattleman Colin Keith-Johnston, is shot by a crooked officer of the law. Newman is determined to avenge the cattleman's death, and the plot becomes a crazed crusade in which Newman, Best and Congdon are all killed, the death of a badman and the birth of a legend.

Stevens' screenplay makes use of Billy's affinity for Mexican girls for what love interest there is, but not much is needed, just enough to leaven his character. The best parts of the film are the moments of hysterical excitement as the three young desperados rough-house with each other as feckless as any innocent boys and in the next instant turn to deadly killing without flicking a curly eyelash.

Although this is Penn's first picture, he shows himself in command of the medium, using motion picture technique and advantages, such as in a wild house-burning, that are not available elsewhere, to their fullest value.

Newman dominates the picture but there are excellent performances from others, including Lita Milan in a dimly-seen role as his Mexican girl friend, John Dehner as the remorseless Pat Garrett, and Hurd Hatfield, a mysterious commentator on events. James Congdon and James Best stand out as Newman's deadly playmates, and others who etch smaller but important portraits include Keith-Johnston, John Dierkes, Bob Anderson, Wally Brown, Ainslie Pryor and Martin Garralaga.

J. Peverell Marley's photography is top-notch, aided by Folmar Blangsted's editing, in keeping the pace and tempo of the picture swift and varied. Alexander Courage's music is helpful as is the sound by Earl Crain Sr. Powe.

Fort Massacre
(COLOR; C'SCOPE)

Realistic Apache vs. Cavalry scalper. Joel McCrea toplines for good b.o. return.

Hollywood, April 25.

United Artists release of a Walter M. Mirisch production. Stars Joel McCrea; costars Forrest Tucker, Susan Cabot, John Russell, George N. Neise. Directed by Joheph Newman. Screenplay, Martin N. Goldsmith; camera, Carl Guthrie; music, Marlin Skiles; editor, Richard Heermance. Previewed in Hollywood, April 23, '58. Running time, 80 MINS.

Vinson	Joel McCrea
McGurney	Forrest Tucker
Piute Girl	Susan Cabot
Travis	John Russell
Pawnee	Anthony Caruso
Schwabacker	Bob Osterloh
Collins	Denver Pyle
Pendleton	George W. Neise
Moss	Raymond Bannes
Tucker	Guy Prescott
Moving Cloud	Larry Chance
Charlie	Irving Bacon
Adele	Claire Carleton
Piute Man	Francis P. McDonald
Chief	Walter Kray

"Fort Massacre," first production by the Mirisch Co. for United Artists, is an off-beat western that

(Continued on page 94)

WATERLOO: 'TAIN'T 'CENSORSHIP'

Novel's Hero Resembles James Dean?

A provocative and often shocking portrait of an actor of the torn-shirt-leather-jacket school is presented by Walter Ross in "The Immortal." (Simon & Schuster, $3.50). There will undoubtdly be attempts to link Ross' Johnny Preston with the late James Dean since the author's hero, a member of the "shook-up" generation, became more famous after his death than during his short Hollywood career.

Ross' Johnny Preston, about whom there develops cultist adulation after his death, is an unsavory opportunist whose only objective is to advance his career. His climb up the success ladder is revealed posthumously by the people associated with him during his short lifetime. The story opens with an AP dispatch reporting the stealing of Preston's body from an upstate N.Y. cemetery by a group of rioting teenagers. Then follows accounts of Preston's life by a drama teacher, film pressagent, film starlet, Broadway actress, a homosexual agent, a homosexual actor and a film executive.

Although Ross does not clearly depict what make Johnny run, he has nevertheless provided a fascinating insight of the short, hectic life of an actor who has an unusual appeal for the teenagers of the present generation.

The book has already been purchased for a motion picture by Metro and is being converted to the screen by Rod Serling. Ross, a former Warner Bros. publicist, is currently public relations director of BMI. Although this is his first novel, he is well known as a magazine writer of non-fiction articles. Holl.

Senate Committee Asks Easing Of Federal Mortgage Rules for Exhibs

Theatre Owners of America has been notified that the Senate Select Committee on Small Business has requested the Small Business Administration to revise its rules so that drive-in theatres would be eligible for Government loans.

Notification of the action was received by Philip F. Harling, chairman of TOA's committee dealing with SBA matters, from Wiley S. Messick, counsel for the Senate committee. Messick also informed Harling of the start of Senate hearings on a bill which, if approved, would greatly increase the possibilities of theatres to secure long-term mortgage loans.

Recommendation of the Senate committee to the SBA came in response to a Harling letter to the Senate group in March. The TOA official asked that existing SBA loan restrictions be revised so that drive-ins, heretofore excluded, be eligible for loans. At the same time, Harling requested that the SBA loan requirements be eased so that more theatres, both conventional and outdoor, be able to secure Government loans in light of present-day industry conditions and the national recession.

Favorable SBA action on the drive-in request and adoption of the Senate bill would go a long way, Harling indicated to accomplish the specific recommendations made by TOA in its March memorandum to the Washington solons.

The bill in question, introduced by Senator Sparkman, Dem., Ala., would authorize the establishment of national investment companies, including banks and home mortgage companies. These companies, Harling noted, would be in a position to make long-term mortgage loans of the type requested by TOA. Under present regulations, the SBA is restricted to short-term loans. Hearings on the bill opened Monday (21) in Washington.

Quotes White House

Federation of Motion Picture Councils, comprised of about 100 film groups across the country, has adopted a resolution calling up "the women of America" to patronize the "best in family entertainment."

At a meeting in Cleveland, commenting that President Eisenhower has suggested that the public buy the necessities but spend wisely, Federation noted the number of "outstanding" pictures which are on the market currently and urged women to "help their families to get more out of life by going out to a movie."

Sez Abram Myers: Weigh Long Value Of 'Forward Surge'

Although he calls attention to a note of optimism in the film business because of the grosses being racked up by blockbuster pictures in recent weeks, Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States Assn., warns, however, that the industry—depending as it does on the returns from the big, firstrun situations while neglecting the smaller theatres—must take into consideration the longtime value of this "forward surge."

Myers' point is that while grosses may be increasing "the tragic fact seems to be . . . attendance is still falling off, and the larger grosses mainly reflect increased admission prices." Anyone interested in elementary economics, Myers adds, "will recognize that a steady trend towards higher prices and fewer sales must end in disaster."

In a six-page single-space analysis of the state the industry, the Allied official develops the theme that the major distributors are gearing their operation to the cultivation of the big city firstrun situations and are woefully neglecting the smalltown and neighborhood theatres. In order for the industry to survive, Myers stresses that "responsible" production-distribution toppers must immediately modify their sales policies.

According to Myers, operators of smalltown, neighborhood and drive-in theatres have noticed a desire by the public to see the top pictures, but their problem "is to obtain such films while public interest in them is still alive at rentals which will yield a profit." The neglect of the small exhibitor, Myers maintains, reaches "to the heart of the motion picture indus-

(Continued on page 16)

More Film Coin Via Pathe Lab Fund

Hollywood, April 29.

New financing is in store for theatrical and tv film producers, under plans now being worked out by Pathe Laboratories.

Lab, which in past has had a steady revolving fund of around $2,000,000, will up this figure "considerably," according to William C. MacMillen Jr., prexy of Chesapeake Industries, parent company of Pathe. "We will accelerate this program," he reports.

Company will now finance "any kind of a deal that looks good to us," a company spokesman says.

"South Pacific" (20th) will open a long run engagement at the Century, Buffalo, May 21.

BUT MANY HAVE QUICK DOUBTS

Waterloo, Ia., April 29.

In naming a nine-member "Citizens Committee for Reviewing Printed Matter and Entertainment" here, Mayor Ed. Jochumsen said authority came from a 1924 city ordinance prohibiting "indecent behavior" and that probably every town in the state has a similar ordinance that could be revived and put to use. He said, "We want to keep away from the word censorship. This is not a radical group."

On the committee are the managers of two Waterloo theatres, the manager of a wholesale magazine distributing agency, an educator, two churchmen, two attorneys and two other businessmen.

Mayor Jochumsen said the committee will use two standards of what is "obscene" or "licentious." For magazine, comic books, pictures and playing (sic) cards: The absence of a second class mailing permit. For films: The absence of approval by Hollywood's own production code. After the committee's first meeting last week the mayor said, "publicity regarding (the naming of) any material or movies that might be found objectionable would be a poor approach because many people then would want to see the objectionable movie or read the objectionable magazine."

In March a delegation from the Knights of Columbus went to the city council and requested that the committee be set up. It was said that the French import, "And God Created Woman" (which was showing at a local theatre), "was a prime reason why this came to a head."

The Mayor has also said, "We're anxious to keep this from being a Catholic or a ministerial deal . . . it's a city-wide proposition. That's the only way we can make it function." It appears there isn't to be any organized opposition to the committee in Waterloo. However, Ken Prickett, manager of the Waterloo Theatre (who exhibited "And God Created Woman"), said, "I'm certainly concerned at any attempt at censorship—regardless of whether it's films or my way of life, or whatever it is. I think it's un-American." He said theatres are guided by the code of the MPAA and that "And God Created Woman" being a French-made film

(Continued on page 16)

Ballance Exit Cues Switch In 20th Sales Setup; Timing Still Fluid

Loew's Resumes Letouts

Loew's Inc., which has held the line for several months now on personnel layoffs, is apparently wielding the axe again on a level just below the top echelon.

Exiting the company are two veteran executives who had been closely associated with the company's corporate and financial activities—Marvin Atlas, Loew's assistant secretary, and Charles H. Phelan, the assistant treasurer.

It's understood that their duties will be absorbed by William H. Harrison, recently named as comptroller to succeed Jesse T. Mills who is retiring. Both Atlas and Phelan received four months severance pay.

Retirement of Harry Ballance, 20th-Fox's Southern division sales manager, on Sept. 1 will set in motion the long-blueprinted reorganization of 20th's domestic administrative sales setup.

For one thing, it spells the end of divisional supervision, with Glenn Norris, who now bosses several divisions (including Canada), and Martin Moskowitz, in charge of the East, to take on new titles as exec assistants to Alex Harrison, the general sales manager. Exact timing of these changes has not been set.

For another, it's likely to see a reduction in the number of district managers, though there's been no decision to date as to how deep the cut will go here. Original plan, now abandoned, was to eliminate the district heads altogether. Changes on that level are being held in abeyance.

As part of this overall streamlining decided on by Harrison many months ago, more autonomy will go to the field. Also, Harrison plans to strengthen the sales organization via the addition of salesmen, it's understood. 20th has no intention of shutting down any of its branches. It's got plenty of product to keep its distribution channel filled. Furthermore, the company maintains that it's shipping film cheaper than any of its competitors and at virtually half the rate of those who've turned over their shipping to outside agencies.

The whole reorganization plan, foreshadowed in VARIETY several months ago, was to have been aired following the 20th district manager meeting in Gotham last week. However, at the last moment, plans were changed and disclosure of the planned changes was held in abeyance. Realization of the shifts have always been dependent on Bal-

(Continued on page 20)

Byrne: MG Yens Its Old Chummy Role Vs. Exhibs

Hollywood, April 29.

Official confirmation of Metro's new policy to regain its status as the "friendly company" was given here by John P. Byrne, on the Coast for the first time since he assumed the post of sales chief. Byrne declared that Metro is out to woo the exhibitor and is determined to eliminate any sales policy the theatreman may think is unfair.

Byrne added that if a Metro picture does not merit selling at the highest level, it will be sold at the level where it belongs. Here to view upcoming product at the studio and to confer with exhibitors in this area, Byrne stressed that such a policy of cooperation and conciliation with exhibs is based on the belief that it will be mutually profitable and helpful for the company's welfare.

Acknowledging that the company had received numerous complaints in the past for its "rigidity" on percentages asked for certain pix,

(Continued on page 16)

National Boxoffice Survey

Trade Fairly Firm; 'Kwai' Back in First, 'Lions' 2d, 'Pacific' 3d, 'Marjorie,' 'Search' Next

Changeable weather, with a return of colder temperatures plus rain in many sectors, is blamed for some of the sharp dips at the wickets around the country this session. However, some less than sensational films at least partially is the real handicap in many key cties covered by VARIETY.

"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) is back in first place by a narrow margin after dropping to second last stanza. "Young Lions" (20th), champ last week, is a strong second-place winner. "South Pacific," from the same company, is finishing third, which it did a week ago.

"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) is pushing up to fourth position as compared with fifth last round. "Search For Paradise" (Cinerama) is winding in fifth spot. It was ninth last session. "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) is capturing sixth money.

"Teacher's Pet" (Par) is moving up from 11th to seventh place. "Around World in 80 Days" (UA) is copping eighth spot though nearing the end of longruns in numerous keys.

"Paris Holiday" (UA), a newcomer, is winding up ninth. "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) rounds out the Top 10 list.

"Merry Andrew" (M-G), "God Created Woman" (Kings) and "Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) are the runner-up pictures in that order.

"Macabre" (AA), fair in Providence, is rated lusty in Buffalo. "Attila" (Indie), also new, shapes socko in Providence and wow in Boston. "The Wildest" (U) is good in Louisville.

The package of "Girls on Loose" and "Live Fast, Die Young," being released by Universal, shapes swell in Detroit. "The Sheepman" (M-G), another newcomer, looks socko in Chi but fairish in Denver. It's due at N. Y. Capitol soon.

"Peyton Place" (20th) is rated big in Chi. "Desire Under Elms" (Par) looms wham in Chi. "Gervaise" (Cont) looks fine in Denver.

"Touch of Evil" (U) is good in Toronto. "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) still is sturdy in Chi and good in Denver.

"Witness For Prosecution" (UA), still big in two locations in N. Y., looks terrific in Toronto. "Chase Crooked Shadow" (WB), okay in Louisville, is fair in K. C. and mild in Buffalo.

"Female Animal" (U) is rated okay in K. C. "Paths of Glory" (UA) is smooth in Boston.

"St. Louis Blues" (Par), okay in Frisco, shapes fair in N. Y. "Saddle Wind" (M-G), mild in Frisco, looks fair in Minneapolis.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 12-13.)

Fortune Poses UA Team for Profile

United Artists and its whiz-kid operators, particularly board chairman Robert S. Benjamin and president Arthur B. Krim, having already won fame by prospering in a "dubious" enterprise, now has made Fortune. There's reams of Luce talk in the upcoming May issue of the monthly and all of it in tribute to Krim and Benjamin via an accounting of how they took over "a moribund company in a moribund" industry and made it work.

It's a retelling of the Krim-Benjamin-Max Youngstein, etc., success story anent frugality of operation, willingness to take a chance, the allotment of money and autonomy to independent producers and performers, and so on. And how it all paid off.

Krim, Benjamin, et al., broke with tradition and in so doing became the leaders that Hollywood has come to follow. For in times that was in the hole for $1,000,000 that was in th hole for $1,000,000 and converted it into a moneymaker (over $3,000,000 in profit last year), Fortune notes.

Attention given the so-called "Derring-Doers of Hollywood" represents one of the highpoints of consumer publication recognition of the Krim-Benjamin regime. It's to be noted, of course, that Fortune which is widely recognized as a power in the business world, at least in that friendly words in the mag are much sought after, hasn't gone out of its way to be friendly to the picture business in past. Last couple of time Fortune peeked in it saw only the fiscally unwholesome near-death-by-proxy at Loew's.

Saul Bass, industrial artist whose film-campaign credits include "Man with a Golden Arm" and "80 Days," has been signed to design poster and symbol for Frisco Film Festival, opening Oct. 29.

Maas Blasts Anti-U.S. Films Drive As Responsible for Yank Woes in Japan

Tokyo, April 22.

MPEAA veepee in charge of Asia, Australia and New Zealand Irving Maas charged that an organized anti-U. S. film campaign is being waged in Japan. Before leaving for Manila and the 5th Asia Film Festival, Maas considered the opposition that U. S. pictures have found here among Diet members, active competitors and other interests and paraphrased the old saw, "Everybody seems to have two businesses—their own and ours."

Regarding the slowdown on the Finance Ministry officials' issuing of import regulations for the fiscal year which began April 1, Maas told VARIETY: "It is well understood that the delay results from the hue and cry, and I might say even the organized campaign launched against American film importers from political and other sectors. There can be little doubt of the existence of such a campaign. Ample evidence exists in the pages of the vernacular and English-language press over the last three months. We consider it now unfortunate that the government apparently finds it expedient to attach sufficient weight to this to carry matters to the point where uncertainty prevails.

"While we believe that the government again this year will base its eventual decision on the actual cold facts rather than be influenced by the unjustifiable, insupportable and misleading campaign against American films, we feel quite naturally that the present uncertainty is in itself prejudicial to the interests of not only our member companies but to all film importers as well."

He pointed out that even a liberal quota cuts across MPEAA world-wide opposition to film quotas and in a few countries such as Japan where extremely low quotas are imposed, the position of MPEAA vis-a-vis such quotas is accentuated.

Maas explained: "Our primary problem in Japan is an import quota that satisfies neither the trade nor the public demand. Assuming that Japan has justifiable economic reasons for numerical restrictions of film imports, it still remains our view that the present restrictions fail to accomplish this purpose and are not in the best interests of Japan. They have created an insupportable scarcity on the contention that a more liberal quota would create a heavy additional foreign exchange burden.

"It can hardly justify the present policy on these grounds. Since the boxoffice is responsive to quality rather than quantity, a liberalized quota in Japan would not necessarily increase the government's foreign exchange liability, but on the other hand would definitely stimulate competition so that the exhibitor has a wider choice to offer the public."

Weighing the villainous role into which opposition Japanese interests are trying to cast the MPEAA, Maas offered: "It is no new experience for American film distributors to be the target of accusations deprecating the quality of our films and that we are monopolists. Each year since 1953 the MPEAA has indicated its willingness to negotiate for bilateral agreement. The one and only such agreement was negotiated by myself that year and although it was effective for only one year, it was considered a mutually advantageous arrangement and it operated very smoothly. But the Japanese government since then has declined to consider negotiating such arrangements, and the regulations under which we operate are therefore unilaterally imposed."

The fiscal 1958 import quota for Japan was fixed at 185 pictures, of which 101 licenses were allocated to MPEAA member companies. And the keynote of the license definition, according to Maas, is that the licenses are not designated to countries, but to currency areas.

Moss Empires Net 346G

London, April 22.

Moss Empires announce a net profit for the year of $346,000 against $180,000 in the previous year.

But Stoll Theatres Corp. showed a net profit decline from $100,930 to $55,230.

Yank Distribs Slash Dublin Office Staffs

Dublin, April 22.

With the pink-slipping of the almost entire staff of RKO-Radio exchange here, and of 10 on the staff at 20th-Fox, the economy axe is still being wielded around Dublin's film row, Abbey Street. Columbia is expected to let out some of its staff in the immediate future when distribution of 16m prints is switched to one of the 16m libraries operating here.

Paramount made staff cuts some time ago as did Metro. Republic has closed its exchange and distribution is through the local Rank office which will also handle product for RKO-Radio. Exchanges have further problem on hand because staffs have just rejected Labor Court award of $1.50 pay rise and a strike threat is expected to follow.

Mull New Action With BOT to Take Up Lag In Eady Levy Returns

London, April 22.

New overtures to the Board of Trade to take action on the failure of the statutory Eady Levy to reach its target income are to be made by the Federation of British Film Makers "as a matter of urgency."

In a statement last week just before Budget Day, Lord Archibald, chairman of the federation, asserted that whatever may be the decision on entertainments tax, the production side of the industry must still be deeply concerned with the results of the statutory levy. On present figures, it is likely to yield about $7,000,000 for the current year, instead of the $10,500,000 specified in the Act.

Earlier in the month, the British Film Producers Assn. also stated that it was making new representations to the government. The BFPA had raised the matter earlier in the year with the BOT, but had been told then it was too early to make a reliable estimate of the year's income.

With the first financial year of the statutory levy more than half way over and with the worst season ahead, the producers recognize that on the present scale there is no prospect of getting within sight of the target. Production companies, which had allowed for a substantially higher return from the levy fund, are seriously feeling the pinch.

Leo Lax's NTA Deal

Leo Lax, prez of Leo Lax Films, has taken over representation of National Telefilm Associates in Europe, according to NTA prexy Oliver A. Unger.

Three new offices will be established under Lax's supervision in Paris, Rome and Brussels. They'll supply films for European tv, supervise the theatrical release of pictures and be active in NTA's coproduction activities.

King Sees 'Windjammer'

Oslo, April 29.

King Olaf V and the Royal Family turned out to attend European preem of Louis de Rochemont's "Windjammer," held here at the Colosseum Kine.

Gala event, reminiscent of a Hollywood first-night, also was attended by producer and Elmer C. Rhoden, prexy of National Theatres of Los Angeles, whose company developed Cinemiracle, the new widescreen process in which pic was photographed.

JAPAN TOUR BY INDIA MUSIC-DANCE TROUPE

New Delhi, April 22.

Satirist Ravi Shankar, who visited the U. S. last year, is one of an Indian music and dance troupe of 10 scheduled for a month-long tour of Japan this month.

The troupe's Nipponese visit is being made under the cultural agreement inked by India and Japan in October, 1956. Sponsors of the tour are Radio Tokyo and the newspaper Tokyo Shimbun.

Besides Shankar and his accompanists, the company includes two danseuses, Damayanti Joshi (Kathak style) and Kamala Laxman (Bharata Natyam style), with their respective accompanists, and M. Bangaru Iyer, kanjera player.

22 Yank Pix Granted W. German Tax Relief

Berlin, April 22.

A total of 804 pix, including 114 features, 37 full-length documentaries and 653 shorts, were submitted to the West German film classification board (Wiesbaden) last year. Submission of films is voluntary but distribs as well as producers take advantage of this possibility since pix which have obtained the label "valuable" or even "particularly valuable" are granted considerable tax relief in this country.

Of the 114 feature pix submitted to the board last year, 22 were given the "particularly valuable" and 38 the "valuable" classification. Breakdown of these 50 honored pix reveals that 22 were of American origin. Germany came next with 12 films, followed by Italy (10), France (7), the United Kingdom (5) and Austria (2).

Tokyo's Ginza Area Feels Biz Recession

Tokyo, April 22.

The recession has hit the Ginza, Tokyo's downtown shopping and amusement center, and cabaret keepers and merchants have their crying towels out. Some 150 bars and restaurants in the area have folded, some because of the partial pullout of U. S. ground troops which left no raison d'etre for the many bars which lured the GI trade exclusively. But Ginza recession is more national, and gimmicks to recapture the steady flow of patrons are numerous.

Upper bracket night clubs do not seem to be as pinched as those catering to lower-income patrons, the latter claiming to feel a real pinch. Department store managers are singing the same blue tune while restaurant owners point to the decrease in private parked cars along Tokyo's White Way.

Boston's Joe Levine Digs Exploitation Product From Japanese Sources

Boston, April 29.

In the wake of the successful release of the Japanese "Rodan," handled by Distributors Corp. of America, Joe Levine, prez of Embassy Pictures Corp. here, has latched on to another Japanese science-fiction thriller, "The Mysterians." He took an option on the Toho-produced pic and has flown back to Tokyo to clinch the deal.

Levine has his own experience with Japanese exploitation product, having earlier handled "Godzilla." He imported that film from Japan for $100,000 and sold it to tv for $50,000 after the theatrical run.

Levine said he has nabbed the option on "The Mysterians" because of a card trick he had taught Kawakita, head of the Toho. He performed it for Kawakita and some friends at a geisha house and the next morning the Japanese came to his hotel, requesting that he be taught the 16-card trick.

"He performed it perfectly," said Levine. "Then, without a word from me, he gave me the option on the picture with the privilege of taking it to RKO's Thomas F. O'Neill in New York. We never talked money until later, when we decided to buy the film."

Both "Godzilla" and "Rodan" were made by Toho. "The Mysterians" is in CinemaScope and color and was shot before Russia put its first "sputnik" into the sky. But the picture has sputniks in it said Levine.

French, Italian Film Bodies Would Combine in Fight for Common Mart

Paris, April 29.

The French and Italian governmental bodies, CNC and ANICA, feel that the French and Italo film industries have to be practically identical administratively before they can be ready to face West German reps on problems at the coming Common Mart Film conclaves.

Such things as common protective measures, restrictions on importations, levies on import to help finance the home industry and reciprocity demands on foreign marts, have become a part of the French and Italo film schemes. Similar Film Aid systems are also a help. Of course the differing number of film theatres in each country, and production standards, make perfect duplication impossible, but the two groups will try to get as near as possible to such a setup.

The German system still completely eschews government film aid to the industry and practices virtually no restrictions on imports. This is feared by its Common Mart partners (France and Italy) who feel that Germany's self amortization strength may impose its pix principles on the others. It is felt here that if France and Italy tried to use German methods they would not last 60 days.

German industry reps have tried to get some form of government aid, but it has been constantly rejected. Admission taxes would be against monopoly laws and the government spokesman, Felix Von Eckardt, recently declared that no political money would be put into the film industry. The government feels that a complete open market is the healthiest.

Germany, with its many theatres and hefty film patronage can amortize its own films unlike France and Italy. Some German film reps would want quotas slapped on non Common Market film imports, but this is still hanging fire.

Co-Production A Main Factor

With co-production a main factor in the CM, it is unlikely with Germany as long as there is no reciprocal aid. French and Italian producers would stand to lose such pix for they would be pouring Film Aid money into their production while they would not benefit from German aid on the pic. German producers also fear an aid plan for distribs, who put money into films there, could invest in a French film on a small percentage basis and get German rights. This might cause a shift in production away from Germany.

The French are also peeved by the German open door policy to American pix, 220 played last year, while only 30 Gallic pix are allowed in under the French-German agreement. They feel it is against the spirit of the CM. So French film people are all for keeping their needed Film Aid setup and trying to get the Germans to institute one of their own. Coming talks will dwell on these problems.

Honolulu Cinema, Tele Sta. Day-Date Same Pic

Honolulu, April 22.

What happens when a theatre and a tele station in the same town show the same picture on the same night? Nothing conclusive, according to a Royal Theatres' spokesman.

Circuit's Waialae Drive-In played "They Died With Their Boots On" only to realize later that the same feature was being televised at the same time on one of Honolulu's four TV stations. The "free-vee" showing didn't seem to affect attendance at the ozoner to any noticeable extent, spokesman said. It's the first such coincidence to occur here.

See Glimmer of Hope For Arg. Govt. Lifting Cinema Admish Control

Buenos Aires, April 22.

There is now a more favorable attitude here about increasing film admission prices. However, despite persistent reports that State controls will be lifted, things are still only at the hopeful stage. This caused Warners to cancel release of "Prince and Show Girl" at four first-runs this week. Picture had gone great business at Mar del Plata in a new theatre where a higher price was authorized. "War and Peace" (Par) held eight weeks at the Radio City in del Plata at the higher 50c scale, "Giant" ran six weeks and the "Prince" stayed four weeks.

Minister of Industry and Commerce Julio Cueto Rua (once a U. S. economy professor) admits the justice of exhibitors' plea that prices are too low for profit, and drafted a decree lifting ceiling for first-runs. However, this must go through the slow-motion procedure inevitable in "government by revolution-won Democracy," meaning that it must be discussed by the Junta Militar, which sets all the Provisional government's actions, before it can be signed by the president. The Provisional Govt. has only 21 days to run before elected President Arturo Frondizi takes over, so fingers are crossed lest this involve more delays if the new administration goes back on the price increase, deeming film entertainment as essential entertainment for the masses.

Newspapers have been editorializing on the injustice of the cinema price freeze, pointing out that the absence of profit doesn't allow exhibitors to build new theatres, and though attendance has trebled since 1940, seating capacity has dwindled. In 1940 admissions were 21c against today's 15c despite a tenfold increase in the cost of living, whereas the average price for legit is around 63c and sports stadia charge around 55c.

The scale of attendance, admissions and grosses over the years shows that while patronage has nearly trebled since 1943, the grosses have not quite doubled in some 14 years. In 1957, the attendance was 75,075,400 but grosses only amounted to $11,689,830.

This year the capital lost three theatres. Lococo's lease of the Suipacha has lapsed and the theatre is being taken over by legit impresario I. Petrelli. The old Porteno will operate temporarily as a legit house until demolished and the Casino is being remodelled for Cinerama installation. This means 3,070 seats were lost.

The public appears quite ready to accept higher admissions, provided it can see the more important films and is loudly protesting because the price dilemma withholds release in the city of those important features which were pre-released at Mar del Plata's new theatres, where higher admissions were authorized.

The Tax Department this week announced postponement of collection of the $5,000 release tax on British product till today (15) while a "reciprocity" agreement is negotiated with Britain.

Ealing Deal With Metro Coming to End

London, April 22.

Ealing Films' twoyear releasing deal with Metro is due to come to an end soon. Final picture under the contract will be "Nowhere to Go." Although not part of the contract, it is understood Metro will also release "The Scapegoat," new Alec Guinness vehicle which is to be made as a Sir Michael Balcon production. This is due to start rolling in early in summer.

Meantime, Ealing's latest production, "Dunkirk," is on a record-breaking spree on its London and Provincial pre-release engagements. Its third West End week (which incorporated the Easter Holiday period) was substantially higher than its second round.

Morey Marcus In Singapore

Singapore, April 22.

Morey Marcus, v.p. and Far East supervisor for Republic Pictures, is here to huddle with the Shaw Bros. who have the local franchise for Rep product.

Before returning to his Tokyo headquarters, Marcus plans to inspect the Indonesian territory.

"PARAMOUNT HAS RESOLVED TO GO FORWARD WITH A BROAD AND EXPANDED PRODUCTION PROGRAM OF OUTSTANDING ATTRACTIONS"...

—Barney Balaban
March 31, 1958

This great company's vast resources are your guarantee of a product-plenty future . . . in which Paramount is dedicated to supply the theatres of the world with every type of screen entertainment possessing a built-in profit potential . . . with emphasis on top calibre motion pictures. Evidence of this determination is Paramount's '58-'59 program of 25 pictures described here . . . with the highest proportion of boxoffice blockbusters ever offered in one season. Examine the ingredients carefully. Each and every one listed is important to your theatre's future . . . . .

PARAMOUNT CHARTS THE WAY FO

RELEASE STATUS	TITLE	DESCRIPTION	CAST
IN RELEASE	THE SAD SACK	Army comedy based on famous cartoon character. Produced by Hal Wallis. In VistaVision	JERRY LEWIS, David Wayne, Phyllis Kirk, Peter Lorre
IN RELEASE	WILD IS THE WIND	Dramatic romance, filmed in Nevada sheep country. Produced by Hal Wallis. In VistaVision	ANNA MAGNANI, ANTHONY QUINN, ANTHONY FRANCIOSA, Dolores Hart, Joseph Calleia
IN RELEASE	HIGH HELL	Adventure-action story photographed in the Alps.	JOHN DEREK, ELAINE STEWART
JUST RELEASED	DESIRE UNDER THE ELMS	Don Hartman's production of Eugene O'Neill's stage masterpiece. In VistaVison	SOPHIA LOREN, ANTHONY PERKINS, BURL IVES
JUST RELEASED	COUNTRY MUSIC HOLIDAY	Musical beamed to nationwide vogue for Country Music.	More than a dozen famous Country Music stars, plus guest stars ZSA ZSA GABOR
JUST RELEASED	TEACHER'S PET	Forward-look romantic comedy. Produced by Perlberg-Seaton. In VistaVision.	CLARK GABLE, DORIS DAY, Gig Young, Mamie Van Doren
JUST RELEASED	ST. LOUIS BLUES	Life of W. C. Handy, the daddy of "rhythm and blues." In VistaVision	NAT "KING" COLE, EARTHA KITT, PEARL BAILEY, CAB CALLOWAY, ELLA FITZGERALD, MAHALIA JACKSON
MAY	MARACAIBO	Action romance of Venezuela oil country, filmed in Technicolor and VistaVision	CORNEL WILDE, JEAN WALLACE, Abbe Lane, Francis Lederer, Joe E. Ross
JUNE	HOT SPELL	Drama of domestic conflict. Produced by Hal Wallis. In VistaVision	SHIRLEY BOOTH, ANTHONY QUINN, SHIRLEY MacLAINE, EARL HOLLIMAN, Eileen Heckart
JUNE	VERTIGO	Suspense drama, produced by Alfred Hitchcock and filmed in Technicolor and VistaVision	JAMES STEWART, KIM NOVAK, BARBARA BEL GEDDES, Tom Helmore, Henry Jones
JUNE	ANOTHER TIME, ANOTHER PLACE	Love story photographed in England in authentic locations in VistaVision	LANA TURNER, BARRY SULLIVAN, GLYNIS JOHNS and introducing Sean Connery
JUNE	SPACE CHILDREN	Science-fiction film, set in U.S. missile-launching base.	Jackie Coogan as missile scientist supported by cast of outstanding young players.
JUNE	THE COLOSSUS OF NEW YORK	Science-fiction drama with astounding special-effects photography.	John Baragrey, Mala Powers, Otto Kruger, Robert Hutton, Ross Martin, Charlie Herbert

R THE THEATRES OF THE WORLD!

For convenient reference, detach this announcement from book and put it in your buying and booking data

RELEASE STATUS	TITLE	DESCRIPTION	CAST
JULY	KING CREOLE	Musical of New Orleans' night spots. Produced by Hal Wallis.	ELVIS PRESLEY, Dolores Hart, Carolyn Jones, Dean Jagger
JULY	ROCK-A-BYE BABY	Comedy with songs—filmed in Technicolor and VistaVision	JERRY LEWIS, MARILYN MAXWELL, Connie Stevens, Reginald Gardiner, Hans Conreid and Mel star, Baccaloni
COMPLETED	HOUSEBOAT	Romantic comedy, set in Washington, D. C. and filmed in Technicolor and VistaVision	CARY GRANT SOPHIA LOREN, Martha Hyer, Harry Guardino, Eduardo Ciannelli
COMPLETED	THE MATCHMAKER	A comedy about love. Produced by Don Hartman from Thornton Wilder's play. In VistaVision	SHIRLEY BOOTH, ANTHONY PERKINS, SHIRLEY MacLAINE, PAUL FORD
COMPLETED	THE BLACK ORCHID	Lighthearted romantic drama of a widow-and-widower's romance. In VistaVision	SOPHIA LOREN, ANTHONY QUINN
COMPLETED	THE HOT ANGEL	Action melodrama of today's speed-mad generation.	Jackie Laughery, Edward Kemmer, Mason Alan Dinehart
COMPLETED	WHEN HELL BROKE LOOSE	Melodramatic story of American troops in World War II.	Charles Bronson, Richard Jaeckel, Violet Rensing
COMPLETED	AS YOUNG AS WE ARE	Romantic drama of teenagers and their love problems.	Robert Harland, Pippa Scott, Majel Barrett, Beverly Long, Barry Atwater, Linda Watkins
SHOOTING	SHOWDOWN AT GUN HILL	A major western produced by Hal Wallis—in Technicolor and VistaVision	KIRK DOUGLAS, ANTHONY QUINN, EARL HOLLIMAN, Carolyn Jones, Ziva Rodann
SHOOTING	THE TEMPEST	Big-scale historical drama, filmed in Italy and Yugoslavia. Produced by Dino De Laurentiis.	VAN HEFLIN, SILVANA MANGANO, HELMUT DANTINE, VIVECA LINDFORS, OSCAR HOMOLKA, AGNES MOOREHEAD, GEOFFREY HORNE, VITTORIO GASSMAN
EDITING	THE BUCCANEER	Supervised by Cecil B. DeMille. A sea spectacle of the War of 1812. In Technicolor and VistaVision	YUL BRYNNER, CHARLTON HESTON, CHARLES BOYER, CLAIRE BLOOM, INGER STEVENS, E. G. MARSHALL

And All This Profit-Product Is Erected On The Firm Foundation Of

THE BIGGEST GROSSING ATTRACTION OF ALL TIME

CECIL B. DEMILLE'S

PRODUCTION

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

TECHNICOLOR® VISTAVISION®

Cleve. Holds Up Well Despite Few New, Big Films; 'Pet' Sharp $15,000, 'Kwai' Torrid 12G, 'Wonders' Same

Cleveland, April 29.

"Teacher's Pet" shapes as standout newcomer here this stanza, being nice at the State. It was helped by the promoting appearance of W. Ward March, Cleveland Plain Dealer's vet film critic in this newspaper comedy. "Bridge on River Kwai" looms big at the Allen despite being in sixth round.

"Seven Wonders of World" shapes solid in 13th stanza at Palace but "South Pacific" is rated only modest in fourth lap at the Ohio. "Underwater Warrior" looks thin at Stillman. "And God Created Woman" is still doing nicely on second-run.

Estimates for This Week

Allen (S-W) (3,800; 90-$1.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (6th wk). Big $12,000 or over. Last week, $14,000.

Continental (Art Theatre Guild) (850; $1.25)—"Forbidden Desire" (Indie). Weak $2,000. Last week, "Only French Can" (Indie), $1,800.

Embassy (Community) (1,200; 70-90)—"Jumping Jacks" (Par) and "Scared Stiff" (Par) (reissues). So-so $2,800. Last week, "Touch of Evil" (U) and "Fort Bowie" (U) $4,000.

Heights Art (Art Theatre Guild) (925; $1.25)—"All at Sea" (M-G) (2d wk). Okay $2,400after $3,200 last week.

Hippodrome (Telem't) (3,700; $1.25-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk). Good $6,000 in 4 days. Last week, $13,000.

Lower Mall (Community) (500; 70-90) — "God Created Woman" (Kings) (2d run). Passable $2,500. Last week, "Panic in Parlor" (Indie) and "Devil's General" (Indie) (reissues), $1,300.

Ohio (Loew) (1,244; $1.25-$2.50)—"South Pacific" (20th) (4th wk). Modest $10,000. Last week, ditto.

Palace (SW-Cinerama) (1,523; $2.40—"Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (13th wk). Nice $12,000. Last week, $12,500.

State (Loew) (3,500; 90-$1.25)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par). Fine $15,000 or over. Last week, "Lady Takes Flyer" (U), $6,000 in 6 days.

Stillman (Loew) (2,700; 90-$1.25)—"Underwriter Warrior" (M-G). Thin $5,000. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (m.o.), same.

Mpls. Slow; 'Saddle' Slim $4,000, 'Days' Sock 12G 'Lions' Lively 5½G, 4th

Minneapolis, April 29.

With only one "important" newcomer among low total of three fresh entries, two of latter running as duslers, and with some of many holdovers on their last longrun legs, the Loop is undoubtedly less of a magnet than ordinarily for entertainment-seeking crowds. Result is that trend is sub-normal. "Saddle the Wind" is standout fresh entry but it's only fair at the Gopher. Long array of holdovers includes the hard-ticket "Around World in 80 Days" and "Search for Paradise," in their 42d and ninth weeks, respectively; "Bridge on River Kwai" and "The Young Lions" in their seventh and fourth, and "Long Hot Summer" in its second. Last named is socko at Lyric. Much colder weather should help.

Estimates for This Week

Academy (Mann) (947; $1.50-$2.65)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (42d wk). Steps out to make way for "South Pacific" after two more weeks. Still big at $12,000. Last week $8,500.

Century (SW-Cinerama) (1,150; $1.75-$2.65) — "Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (9th wk). Still showing gratifying b.o. strength. Good $13,000. Last week, $14,000.

Gopher (Berger) (1,000; 85-90)—"Saddle Wind" (M-G). Slow $4,000. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (M-G) (4th wk), $3,000.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; 90-$1.25)—"Long Hot Summer" (20th) (2d wk). Maintaining highly profitable pace. Sock $8,000. Holds. Last week $11,000.

Radio City (Par) (4,100; $1.25-$1.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (7th wk). Great $7,000. Last week, $7,000.

RKO Orpheum (RKO) (2,800; 75-90) — "Hired Gun" (M-G) and "Safecracker" (M-G). Another of the infrequent twin bills here because neither picture is too big. Dull $5,000. Last week, "St. Louis Blues" (Par) and "High Hell" (Par), $4,500.

RKO Pan (RKO) (1,800; 75-85)—"Girl Most Likely" (U) and "Flood (Continued on page 20)

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $534,900
(Based on 22 theatres)
Last Year $676,600
(Based on 26 theatres)

'Pacific' Trim 12G, Pitt; 'Pet' Fair 7G

Pittsburgh, April 29.

The longrun pix, "Bridge on River Kwai" at Harris and "Young Lions" at Fulton, have begun to slow down and the new ones aren't coming up to hopes this week. "Lions" still is strong and stays a fifth. "Long, Hot Summer" much better than Stanley has been doing lately, but still a disappointment. "Teacher's Pet" at Warner and "Wild Is Wind" at Penn are very disappointing. "South Pacific" at Nixon still looms trim.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Shea) (1,700; 99-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk). Sliding downward although $7,000 is plenty good for stage of run; holds. Last week, $8,500.

Guild (Green) (500; 99-$1.25)—"Ship Was Loaded" (Arthur). Got surprisingly good notices and may get better than single week originally planned. Fine $2,500 or over. Last week, "Gervaise" (Cont) (3d wk), $1,600.

Harris (Harris) (2,165; 99-$1.50)—"River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Close to $10,000, sturdy. Last week, $11,200.

Nixon (Rubin) (1,500; $1.25-$3)—"South Pacific" (20th) (3d wk). The big noise here is over the weekends, daily takes being only so-so. Trim $12,500. Last week, $14,500.

Penn (UA) (3,300; 85-$1.25)—"Wild Is Wind" (Par). House has been running up against some tough going, with pictures which are drawing fine notices but no biz. This is a case in point. Not more than $6,500 in 8 days. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G), $5,500.

Squirrel Hill (SW) (900; 99-$1.25)—"Bonjour Tristesse" (Col). Better than this sure-seater has been doing in the last month. Approaching $3,000, and stays. Last week, "All at Sea" (M-G) (2d wk), $2,000.

Stanley (SW) (3,800; 99-$1.50)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th). Not up to hopes but $11,500 is lots better than recently here. It stays. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk), $4,000 in 4 days.

Warner (SW) (1,500; 85-$1.25)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par). Plenty of publicity, what with two local crix, Harold V. Cohen of Post-Gazette and Kaspar Monahan of Press appearing in it. Good notices, too, but barely getting by at $7,000. Last week, "Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (4th wk), $6,500.

H.O.s Hobble Wash. But 'Lions' Big 17G, 'Run' 10G

Washington, April 29.

Newer entries continue as the big draws in downtown houses, with "Young Lions" leading the pack at the Palace and "Run Silent, Run Deep" holding strong in second at Keith's. Both are second-weekers. "Bridge on River Kwai" is still sock in seventh week at Trans-Lux. "Cattle Empire" opened fair at Columbia. "Marjorie Morningstar" was okay in short session at Ambassador-Met combo.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador-Metropolitan (SW) (1,490; 1,000; 90-$1.50)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (4th wk). Okay $8,000 in 5 days. Last week, $12,000.

Capitol (Loew) (3,434; 90-$1.25)—"Paris Holiday" (UA) (2d wk-4 days). Fine $8,000. Met Opera playing here other days. Last week, $16,000.

Columbia (Loew) (1,154; 70-90)—"Cattle Empire" (20th). Fair $6,000. Last week, "Knights Round Table" (M-G) and "Ivanhoe" (M-G) (reissues) (2d wk), $6,000.

Keith's (RKO) (1,850; 85-$1.25)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (2d wk). Hefty $10,000 after $16,000 opener. Stays.

Palace (Loew) (2,350; 90-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Big $17,000 after $26,000 first stanza. Holds.

Plaza (T-L) (276; 90-$1.50)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (25th wk). Fast $4,000. Last week, $3,500. Stays on.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (600; $1.25-$2)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (7th wk). Strong $14,000 after $16,000 in sixth. Holding.

Uptown (SW) (1,100; $1.25-$3)—"South Pacific" (20th) (4th wk). Great $12,000. Last week, same.

Warner (SW-Cinerama) (1,300; $1.20-$2.40)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (17th wk). Nice $12,500 after $13,500 last week. Stays on.

'Lions' Wham 18G, Philly; 'Kwai' 16G

Philadelphia, April 29.

Top entries are maintaining recent gaits here, but a rainy Sunday is blamed for depressing biz in current session. "Girl in Black Stockings" is new but dull at Stanton. "Young Lions" is rated wow despite being in fourth stanza at the Fox. "South Pacific" is holding near recent pace in fifth round at the Midtown. "Bridge on River Kwai" is socko in seventh frame at Randolph. "Teacher's Pet" shapes neat in fifth stanza at the Viking.

Estimates for This Week

Arcadia (S&S) (526; 99-$1.80)—"Farewell to Arms" (20th) (9th wk). Okay $5,000. Last week, ditto.

Boyd (SW) (1,430; 75-$1.80)—"Long Hot Summer" (20th) (4th wk). Mild $8,000. Last week, $8,500.

Fox (National) (2,250; 65-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk). Wow $18,000. Last week, $28,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (2,250; 65-$1.25)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) (2d wk). Lean $8,000. Last week, $13,000.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,000; $2-$2.75)—"South Pacific" (20th) (5th (Continued on page 20)

'So. Pacific' Lusty $12,000, Cincy Ace; 'Holiday' 11G, 'Search' Fast 16G, 21st

Cincinnati, April 29.

Cincy first-runs are rejoined this week by the Valley Theatre, Lou Wiethe's suburban swankery, with Todd-AO processed "South Pacific" on hard-ticket policy. It bids to top downtown fresh fare. "Paris Holiday" looms barely okay at the flagship Albee. Another new bill, "Cry Terror," looks mild at the Palace.

"Bridge on River Kwai" and "Young Lions" are firm holdovers, latter being nice in fourth week. "Search for Paradise" remains hefty with lift from visiting baseball fans. Annual free AFL-CIO Union-Industries show, at Music Hall for six days, is increasing downtown traffic and luring outsiders.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; 90-$1.25)—"Paris Holiday" (UA). Oke $11,000 or close. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk), $7,500.

Capitol (SW-Cinerama) (1,376; $1.20-$2.65)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (21st wk). Swell $16,000, matching last week's pickup on bolstering by student groups and baseball fans from out-of-town. Reservation tie-in with Cincy Reds and hotels, initiated last season, is helpful.

Grand (RKO) (1,400; 90-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk). Pleasing $6,000 finale after $7,000 third week.

Guild (Vance) (300; 50-90)—"Beautiful But Dangerous" (20th) (2d wk). Mild $1,100. Same last week.

Keith's (Shor) (1,500; 90-$1.25)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Firm $7,000 after $8,500 fourth frame. Holds a sixth.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; 90-$1.25)—"Cry Terror" (M-G). Mild $7,500. Last week, "St. Louis Blues" (Par), $7,000.

Valley (Wiethe) (1,300; $1.50-$2.50) — "South Pacific" (Indie). Favorable $12,000 preem of Todd-AO processed pic and hard ticket policy. Good reviews and advance publicity. Reservations on 10-week spread. Theatre resumed nabe policy after 35th week of "Around World" (UA) in February.

'Loose'-'Young' Fast $15,000, Det.; 'Pet' Good 15½G 'Summer' Hotsy 14G, 3d

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $2,528,830
(Based on 24 cities and 251 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N. Y.)
Total Gross Same Week
Last Year $2,723,100
(Based on 22 cities and 245 theatres.)

'Run Deep' Mighty 12G Leads St. Loo

St. Louis, April 29.

"Run Silent, Run Deep" at the Orpheum looks like the big one this week, with a wow session in prospect. Holdover champs are "Long, Hot Summer" at Fox, "Marjorie Morningstar" at the St. Louis and "South Pacific" at the Pageant, all in second week. "Bridge on River Kwai" continues sock in seventh week at the Esquire.

Estimates for This Week

Esquire (Shukart-Levin) (1,500; $1.50-$2.50) — "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (8th wk). Big $11,000 for eighth round. In ahead $11,700.

Fox (Arthur) (5,000; 60-75)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) and "Count Five and Die" (20th) (2d wk). Great $12,000. Last week, $16,500.

Loew's (Loew) (3,200; 60-90)—"Cowboy" (Col) and "Escape From San Quentin" (Col). Slow $8,000 or under. Last week, "Paths of Glory" (UA) and "Fort Bowie" (UA), ditto.

Orpheum (Loew) (1,900; 60-90)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA). Wham $12,000 or close. Last week, "Witness for Prosecution" (UA) (8th wk), $6,000.

Pageant (Arthur) (1,000; $1.80-$2.25)—"South Pacific" (20th) (2d wk). Socko $10,000. Last week, sock $10,000.

Richmond (Arthur) (1,000; $1.25)—"Four Bags Full" (T-L). Okay $1,200. Last week, "Wife for a Night" (Indie), $1,800.

St. Louis (Arthur) (3,800; 90-$1.25) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Bright $11,500 or near. Last week, $14,000.

Shady Oak (Arthur) (560; $1.25)—"Paradise Lagoon" (Col) (2d wk). Good $2,000. Last week, $2,500.

'PARIS' TOPS DENVER, BIG 13G; 'PET' GOOD 9G

Denver, April 29.

"Paris Holiday" at Paramount is leading the city this session with a socko total. "South Pacific" shapes big in first stanza at the smaller Tabor, and is strong enough to indicate a longrun. "Teacher's Pet" is rated good at Denham, and will hold. "Gervaise" is fine at Vogue Art, and stays over. "Bridge on River Kwai" still is solid in eight Centre stanza.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (1,400; 70-90)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) 5th wk). Good $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Centre (Fox) (1,247; 90-$1.25)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (8th wk). Fancy $10,000. Last week, $11,500.

Denham (Cockrill) (1,429; 70-90)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par). Good $9,000 or close. Last week, "St. Louis Blues" (Par), $6,000.

Denver (Fox) (2,586; 70-90)—"Summer Love" (U) and "Big Heat" (U). Fair $10,000 or near. Last week, "Lafayette Esquadrille" (WB), $9,000.

Esquire (Fox) (742; 70-90)—"Beautiful But Dangerous" (20th). Poor $1,500. Last week, "Passionate Summer" (Kings), $2,000.

Lake Shore Drive-In (Monarch) (1,000 cars; 75c)—"Monolith Monsters" (U) and "Love Slaves of Amazon" (U). Mild $4,000. Last week, on subsequents.

Monaco Drive-In (Wolfberg) (800 cars; 75c)—"Last Paradise" (UA) and "Man on Prowl" (UA). Poor $3,000. Last week, on subsequents.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,596; 70-90)—"Sheepman" (M-G) and "Handle With Care" (M-G). Fairish $9,500. Last week, "High Cost of Loving" (M-G) and "Cry Terror" (M-G), $6,000.

Paramount (Wolfberg) (2,200; 70-90)—"Paris Holiday" (UA) and "Ride Out for Revenge" (UA). Smooth $13,000. Last week, "Mar- (Continued on page 20)

'Evil' Good $10,000 In Toronto; 'Lions' Boff 15G, 'Witness' 17G, 2d

Toronto, April 29.

Weekend switch to Daylight Saving Time is confusing some film patrons on beginning time of feature pix but not too much, since biz is generally good all along line. Only newcomer of note is "Touch of Evil," this satisfactory. Topper is still "Bridge on River Kwai," now in seventh stanza. Crowding this entry on receipts are "Witness for the Prosecution" now in third frame, and "Marjorie Morningstar" in second. Also bigger than last week's gross is "Cinerama Holiday," in fourth frame; with "The Young Lions" showing no change and "Wild is Wind" big at a three-house FP-Can combo in second stanza.

Estimates for This Week

Carlton (Rank) (2,518; $1.25-$1.75)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (7th wk). Big $18,000. Last week, $22,000.

Downtown, Glendale, State, Scarboro (Taylor) (1,059; 995; 693; 694; 50-75)—"Day of Bad Man" (U) and "Lineup" (Col). So-so $10,000. Last week, "Long Haul" (Col) and "Damn Citizen" (Col), same.

Eglinton, Palace, Runnymede (FP) (1,080; 1,485; 1,385; 50-$1)—"Wild Is Wind" (Par) (2d wk); Holding good at $9,500. Last week, $13,000.

Hollywood (FP) (1,080; $1-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Smash $15,000. Last week, same.

Hyland (Rank) (1,357; $1)—"Naked Truth" (Rank) (5th wk). Neat $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

Imperial (FP) (3,344; 75-$1.25)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Big $18,000. Last week, $21,000.

Loew's (Loew) (2,098; 75-$1.25)—"Witness for Prosecution" (UA) (3d wk). Terrific $17,000. Last week, $18,000.

Tivoli (FP) (955; $1.75-$2.40)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (37th wk). Steady $6,500. Last week, same.

University (FP) (1,233; $1.50-$2.40)—"Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama). Jumped to hep $15,000. Last week, $14,000.

Uptown (Loew) (2,075; 60-$1)—"Touch of Evil" (U). Satisfactory $10,000 or near. Last week, "Paths of Glory" (UA) (2d wk), $7,000 for 5 days.

Detroit, April 29.

Pace has slackened somewhat this week along the main stem, but overall biz still remains solid. Only two newcomers, "Teacher's Pet" shapes good at the Michigan and "Girls on Loose"-"Live Fast, Die Young" package, fast at the Broadway Capitol.

Robust holdovers are "South Pacific" which is strong in third week at the United Artists, "Bridge on River Kwai," terrific in seventh round at the Madison, and "Search for Paradise," heading for a great 12th stanza. "And God Created Woman" is still big in 15th week at Trans-Lux Krim.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Fox-Detroit) (5,000; $1.25-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk). Big $12,000. Last week, $14,700.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,100; 90-$1.25)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) and "Cole Younger, Gunfighter" (AA). Good $15,500. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) $20,000 in third week.

Palms (UD) (2,961; $1.25-$1.50)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) and "Showdown at Boot Hill" (20th) (3d wk). Swell $14,000. Last week, $17,500.

Madison (UD) (1,900; $1.25-$1.75)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (7th wk). Great $18,000. Last week, $23,000.

Broadway-Capitol (UD) (3,500; 90-$1.50)—"Girls on Loose" (U) and "Live Fast, Die Young" (U). Swell $15,000. Last week, "Dragstrip Riot" (Indie) and "Cool and Crazy" (Indie), $12,000.

United Artists (UA) (1,667; $1.25-$3)—"South Pacific" (20th wk) (3d wk). Strong $19,000. Last week, $19,700.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; 90-$1.25)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) and "Red Balloon" (Indie) (2d wk). Slow $6,000. Last week, $7,500.

Music Hall (SW - Cinerama) (1,205; $1.20-$2.65)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (12th wk). Hotsy $17,000. Last week, $17,200.

Trans-Lux Krim (Trans-Lux) (1,000; 90-$1.65)—"God Created Woman" (Indie) (15th wk). Big $7,000. Last week, $6,500.

SOFT SPOTS IN N.Y. MINORITY

School Vacation Tilts Chi; 'Paris' Loud $29,000, 'Sheepman' Torrid 18G, 'Pet' Bangup 21G, 'Lions' Great 24G

Chicago, April 29.

New product should help the wicket pace here, but mostly the spring hiatus for school kids figures to make biz brisk this session. "Paris Holiday" at Oriental shapes lusty $29,000 while "Sheepman," also new, at the United Artists expect a lively $18,000.

"Desire Under the Elms" looks big in second Esquire round. "Teacher's Pet" is nice in third Woods stanza.

"Young Lions" is hotsy in Roosevelt fourth. "Bridge on River Kwai" still is strong at State-Lake in seventh. "Snow White" looks great in Garrick seventh. "Peyton Place" is big in ninth and windup session at the Chicago.

"Search for Paradise" in second round at Palace shapes rosy, as does fifth week of "South Pacific" at McVickers. "Around World" is sock in 56th frame at Todd's Cinestage, with extra shows.

Estimates for This Week

Carnegie (Telem't) (485; $1.25)—"Across Bridge" (Rank). Good $4,500. Last week, "Miss Julie" (Janus) (3d wk), $3,000.

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; 90-$1.80)—"Peyton Place" (20th) (9th-final wk). Big $18,500. Last week, $18,500.

Esquire (H&E Balaban) (1,350; $1.25-$1.50)—"Desire Under Elms" (Par) (2d wk). Sock $10,000. Last week, $14,000.

Garrick (B&K) (850; 90-$1.25)—"Snow White" (BV) (reissue) (7th wk). Giant $16,000. Last week, $9,000.

Loop (Telem't) (606; 90-$1.50)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) (4th wk). Soft $6,500. Last week, $7,800.

McVickers (JL&S) (1,580; $1.25-$3.30)—"South Pacific" (20th) (5th wk). Rosy $27,000. Last week, $26,000.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 90-$1.50)—"Paris Holiday" (UA). Fancy $29,000. Last week, "Long Hot Summer" (20th) (4th wk), $16,000.

Palace (SW-Cinerama) (1,434; $1.25-$3.40)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (2d wk). Bright $28,000. Last week (seven performances), $13,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,400; 90-$1.80)—"Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk). Hotsy $24,000. Last week, $25,000.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,400; 90-$1.80)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (7th wk). Sock $27,000. Last week, $29,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685; $1.50)—"Nights of Cabiria" (Lopert) (4th

(Continued on page 20)

'Wildest' Good $7,000 In L'ville; 'Chase' Okay 4G, 'Lions' 7½G, 'Kwai' 7G

Louisville, April 29.

A couple new entries this week, "The Wildest," good at the Kentucky, and "Chase Crooked Shadow" okay at the Mary Anderson. Holdovers, particularly "Young Lions" at the Rialto, are doing well, but "Brothers Karamazov" at the Brown in third week and "Bridge on River Kwai" in fifth at United Artists are tapering off somewhat. Town is steamed up for opening of Churchill Downs race meet last Saturday (26), and Kentucky Derby, one week later on May 3.

Estimates for This Week

Brown (Fourth Ave.-U.A.) (1,000; 90-$1.45) — "Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (3d wk). Oke $5,500 after second week's $7,000.

Kentucky (Switow) (900; 50-85)—"The Wildest" (U). Broke on slow side, but perked over weekend to indicate good $7,000. Last week, "Cole Younger," (AA) and "Bowery Boys Up In Smoke" (AA), $4,000.

Mary Anderson (People's (1,000; 50-85)—"Chase Crooked Shadow" (WB). Okay $4,000 or over. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk), $5,000.

Rialto (Fourth Ave.) (3,000; 74-99)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Looks okay, $7,500 after last week's $12,000.

United Artists (UA) (3,000; 90-$1.45)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Slowing down to $7,000 after fourth week's healthy $9,000.

'Summer' Okay $7,000 In Port.; 'Pet' Ditto

Portland, Ore., April 29.

Town is loaded with new entries but they are not helping biz too much. Holdovers continue mostly very well. "Morningstar" moves into a third session at the Broadway and is still okay. Fifth round at the Orpheum for "Bridge on River Kwai" is big. "Teacher's Pet" looms oke at Paramount. "Long, Hot Summer" also looks okay at Liberty.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,875; $1-$1.50) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk). Okay $4,500. Last week, $7,100.

Fox (Evergreen) (1,536; $1-$1.50)—"Bonjour Tristesse" (Col) and "Woman of River" (Col). So-so $6,000. Last week, "Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk), $7,800.

Liberty (Hamrick) (1,890; $1-$1.50)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) and "Plunder Road" (20th). Okay $7,000. Last week, "Girls On Loose" (U) and "Live Fast, Die Young" (U) (6 days), $4,100.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,600; $1-$1.50)—"Bridge On River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk). Big $8,000. Last week, $12,000.

Paramount (Port-Par) (3,400; $1-$1.50)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) and "High Hell" (Par). Nice $7,000. Last week, "St. Louis Blues" (Par) and "Alligator Named Daisy" (Rank), $7,100.

'Attila' Wow 36G, Hub; 'Lions' Big 15

Boston, April 29.

Biz is booming this frame with big new product. "Attila" is proving a blockbuster with smash trade at Paramount and Fenway. "Young Lions" is headed for a wow session at the Gary. "Paths of Glory" shapes solid at Orpheum. "Paris Holiday" is fair at the Met. "Bridge On River Kwai" shifted from hard ticket at Gary to grind at Capri, and is good. "South Pacific" is holding nice in third.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,372; 75-$1.25)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (4th wk). Neat $10,000. Last week, $12,000.

Beacon Hill (Sack) (678; 90-$1.50)—"Goddess" (Col) (3d wk). Second week, fine $8,000. Last week, $10,000.

Boston (SW-Cinerama) (1,354; $1.25-$2.65) — "Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (23d wk). Slick $17,000. Last week, $17,500.

Capri (Sack) (990; 50-$1.50) — "Bridge On River Kwai" (Col). Shifted from hard-ticket run at Gary to grind, hotsy $10,000. Last week, "Stage Struck" (BV) and "How To Murder Rich Uncle" (Col), $5,000.

Exeter (Indie) (1,300; 75-$1.25)—"Lucky Jim" (Indie). Third started Sunday (27). Second was oke $4,000.

Fenway (NET) (1,373; 60-$1.10)—"Attila" (Indie) and "Wild Dakotas" (Indie). Wow $11,000, hyoed by big bally. Last week, "Macabre" (AA) and "Hell's 5 Hours" (AA), $8,500.

Gary (Sack) (1,340; 90-$1.75)—"Young Lions" (20th). Wow $15,000. Last week, "Bridge On River Kwai" (Col) (17th wk), $20,000.

Kenmore (Indie) (700; $1.25-$2)—"Bolshoi Ballet" (Rank). Bright $13,500. Last week, "Henry V" (Rank) (reissue) (5th wk), $4,000.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 60-$1.10)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (4th wk-final). Nice $8,000. Last week, $12,000.

Metropolitan (NET) (4,357; 70-$1.10)—"Paris Holiday" (UA) and "Man On Prowl" (UA) (2d wk). Second week began Monday (28). Last week, fair $13,000.

Paramount (NET) (4,357; 60-$1.10)—"Attila" (Indie) and "Wild Dakotas" (Indie). Torrid $25,000 or over for house record backed

(Continued on page 20)

BIZ HOLDS FIRM; 'MARJORIE' 165G

Broadway film biz displayed surprising strength over the past weekend, aided by cooler, rainy weather. The result is a rather favorable session at these first-runs despite a dearth of newcomers. Rain most of Monday (28) was rated a plus factor.

"Marjorie Morningstar" with new stageshow is the new boxoffice champ, with a smash $165,000 in prospect for opening stanza at the Music Hall. "One That Got Away," another new entry on Broadway, hit only mild $10,000 opening round at the Odeon. "Stage Struck" finished its first week at the Normandie with a big $15,000.

"Windjammer" shapes very smooth $64,000 in third frame at the Roxy, to top the second week. "St. Louis Blues" is heading for fair $16,000 or less in third and final session at the State. "Another Time, Another Place" is set to open Friday (2).

"Young Lions" is doing a great $50,000 in current (4th) stanza at the Paramount. "Long, Hot Summer" looks like torrid $17,000 in fourth at the Mayfair and great $11,200 in same week at the Fine Arts. "Run Silent, Run Deep" shapes lively $14,500 in fifth round at the Victoria.

"Witness For Prosecution" is heading for an okay $12,000 in current (12th) session at the Astor. It is heading for a sock $10,500 in the same week at the arty Plaza. Pic winds up at the Astor May 8 but stays on indefinitely at the Plaza. "Teacher's Pet" was a modest $21,000 in sixth week at the Capitol. "Sheepman" replaces May 7.

"Around World in 80 Days" topped the previous session in the 80th week at the Rivoli by landing a great $35,600. "South Pacific" also pushed ahead over the preceding stanza to get a smash $45,200 in fifth week at the Criterion.

"Bridge on River Kwai" also climbed over the previous round to hit a wow $37,000 in 19th session at the Palace. "Search For Paradise" was in a like category, getting a fine $26,200 in 31st week at the Warner. "This Is Cinerama" returns to the house on May 4.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,300; 75-$2)—"Witness For Prosecution" (UA) (12th wk). This session looks like okay $12,000. The 11th week was $14,500. "Paris Holiday" (UA) opens Friday (9).

Baronet (Reade) (430; $1.25-$1.70) — "Uncle Vanya" (Indie). Opened Monday (28). In ahead, "Ladykillers" (Cont) and "To Paris With Love" (Cont) (reissues) (5th wk-10 days), okay $3,500 after $4,100 for fourth regular week.

Capitol (Loew) (4,820; $1-$2.50)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (7th-final wk). The sixth week ended yesterday (Tues.) was fair $21,000 or near. The fifth session was $22,500. "Sheepman-Stranger With Gun" (M-G) opens May 7.

Criterion (Moss) (1,671; $1.80-$3.50)—"South Pacific" (20th) (6th wk). Fifth stanza ended Sunday (27) was smash $45,200. Fourth, $44,000. Stays on indef.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; 90-$1.80)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (4th wk). This round ending tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for great $11,200. Third was $12,000. Holds on.

Guild (Guild) (450; $1-$1.75)—"Marcellinno" (Indie) (reissue) (4th wk). Third round ended last Thursday (24) was big $8,000. Second, $9,500.

Mayfair (Maurer) (1,736; 79-$1.80)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (4th wk). This stanza finishing tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like big $17,000 or near. Third was $19,000. Holds over, again.

Normandie (Trans-Lux) (592; 95-$1.80)—"Stage Struck" (BV) (2d

(Continued on page 20)

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i.e., without usual tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include the U. S. amusement tax.

L.A. Off Sharply, Baseball Blamed; 'Lions' Socko 26G, 'Days' Lofty 16G, 71st; 'Blues' Light 16G Opener

Los Angeles, April 29.

A majority of first-run theatres are taking a sharp dip this frame, one of exceptions being "Young Lions," building to a socko $26,000 in third round in four theatres. The other is the hard-ticket "Around World in 80 Days," which is aiming at a trim $16,000 in 71st stanza at Carthay. With new major league baseball drawing heavily, it's blamed for the slump.

Newcomers show a decided lack of strength. "St. Louis Blues" looms slow $16,000 or less in three houses. "Touch of Evil" looks fairly mild $11,600 in three spots.

"Windjammer" shapes $21,500 in third week at Chinese, which is rated fair. "Seven Wonders of World" landed big $12,900 in 46th week at Warner Hollywood. "Bridge on River Kwai" shapes great $14,300 in 19th week at Egyptian. "Marjorie Morningstar" is pale $6,000 in fifth frame at Warner Bev.

Estimates for This Week

Orpheum, Hollywood, Uptown (Metropolitan-FWC) (2,213; 756; 1,715; 90-$1.50)—"St. Louis Blues" (Par) and "Cole Younger" (AA). Slow $16,000 or near. Last week, Orpheum, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Cross Up" (UA) (3d wk), $3,300. Hollywood with Los Angeles, "Lafayette Escadrille" (WB), "Stakeout on Dope Street" (WB), $8,300. Uptown with New Fox, "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (1st multiple date), "God Is My Partner" (20th), $5,700.

Downtown, Wiltern, Hawaii (SW-G&S) (1,757; 2,344; 1,106; 90-$1.50)—"Touch of Evil" (U) and "Female Animal" (U). Lean $11,600. Last week, Downtown, "Jumping Jacks" (Par) and "Scared Stiff" (Par) (reissues), $4,200. Wiltern, Downtown Paramount, "Sayonara" (WB), "Forbidden Desert" (WB) (4th wk-6 days), $12,900. Hawaii with Hillstreet, "Hong Kong Affair" (AA) and "Man From God's Country" (AA), $5,700.

Los Angeles (FWC) (2,097; 90-$1.50)—"Johnny Gunman" (Indie) and "So Lovely, So Deadly" (Indie). Dreary $2,000.

Downtown Paramount (ABPT) (3,300; $1.25-$2)—"Mail Bag Robbery" (Indie) and stageshow. Dull $6,500.

Pantages (RKO) (2,815; 90-$1.25)—"Les Girls" (M-G) and "Teahouse August Moon" (M-G) (reissues). Poor $2,400. Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G) (3d wk), $5,200.

Hillstreet (RKO) (2,752; 90-$1.50)—"Bend of River" (U) and "Lawless Breed" (U) (reissues). Slim $3,300.

State, Iris, Ritz (UATV-FWC) (2,404; 825; 1,320; 90-$1.50) — "Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) and "High Cost of Loving" (M-G) (2d wk). Thin $10,100. Last week, $14,400.

New Fox (FWC) (765; 90-$1.50)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th) and

(Continued on page 20)

'Summer' Boffo 13G, Indpls; 'Pacific' 14G

Indianapolis, April 29.

Biz is nice to smash at three first-runs here this stanza but slow at two others. "South Pacific" shapes terrific at Lyric to lead town. "Long, Hot Summer" at Keith's is boffo while "Teacher's Pet" at Circle looks nice. "Merry Andrew" failed to get off ground at Loew's.

Estimates for This Week

Circle (Cockrill-Dolle) (2,800; 75-90)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par). Nice $13,000. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk), $7,000.

Indiana (C-D) (3,200; 75-90)—"Motorcycle Gang" (AI) and "Sorority Girl" (AI). Drab $5,000 in 5 days. Last week, "Rodan" (DCA) and "Death in Small Doses" (Indie), $10,000.

Keith's (C-D) (1,200; 90-$1.25)—"Long, Hot Summer" (20th). Smash $13,000. Last week, "Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk), $4,000.

Loew's (Loew) (2,427; 75-90)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) and "Safe Cracker" (M-G). Dull $3,500. Last week, "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (5th wk), $5,500 at $1.25 top.

Lyric (C-D) (850; $1.25-$2.20)—"South Pacific" (20th). Sock $14,000. Last week, "Raintree County" (M-G) (10th wk), $5,000 in 4 days.

'Pacific' Big 10G, Balto; 'Paris' 6G

Baltimore, April 29.

Biz is slow this frame, giving exhibs their lowest take in recent weeks. Warm weekend weather is taking most of blame. New entries include "Marjorie Morningstar," fair at Stanley; "Paris Holiday," oke at the Mayfair; "Cast Dark Shadow," pleasing at Playhouse and "Search for Paradise" which is sluggish on opening round at the Town. "Bridge on River Kwai" is holding nicely in sixth at Hippodrome while "South Pacific" shapes big in fourth at the New.

Estimates for This Week

Century (Fruchtman) (3,100; 50-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Fair $6,000 after $8,500 in second.

Cinema (Schwaber) (460; 50-$1.25)—"Razzia" (Kass) (3d wk). Oke $3,000 after about same in second week.

Film Centre (Rappaport) (890; 50-$1.50) — "Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (3d wk). Nice $6,500 after near $8,500 in second frame.

Five West (Schwaber) (460; 50-$1.25)—"Adam and Eve" (Horne). Lofty $5,000. Last week, "Bride Much Too Beautiful" (Ellis) (4th wk), $2,000.

Hippodrome (Rappaport) (2,300; 50-$1.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (6th week). Good $7,300 after $9,000 in previous week.

Mayfair (Fruchtman) (980; 50-$1.25)—"Paris Holiday" (UA). Okay $6,000. Last week, "Witness For Prosecution" (UA) (8th wk), $4,000.

New (Fruchtman) (1,600; $1.50-$2.50)—"South Pacific" (20th) (4th wk). Big $10,000 after $14,000 in third.

Little (Rappaport) (300; 50-$1.25)—"Bolshoi Ballet" (Rank). Fancy $2,400. Theatre, Baltimore's oldest art center, has been renovated and management has formally announced it is returning to first-run art policy with present show. This brings art houses here up to four.

Playhouse (Schwaber) (460; 50-$1.25) — "Cast Dark Shadow" (DCA). Pleasing $4,000. Last week, "Novel Affair" (Cont), $2,000.

Stanley (Fruchtman) (3,200; 50-$1.25) — "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB). Fair $10,000. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (2d wk), $6,000.

Town (SW-Cinerama) (1,125)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama). Slow $8,000. Last week, "Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama) (3d wk), $7,500.

'Kwai' Smash $25,000 In Prov.; 'Attila' Big 10G, 'Lions' Happy 10½G, 2d

Providence, April 29.

"Bridge on River Kwai" is pacing the city this week with a smash session at State. Strand is big with "Attila" and is matched by Majestic's second of "The Young Lions." RKO Albee is just fair with "Macabre."

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 65-80)—"Macabre" (AA) and "Hell's Five Hours" (AA). Fair $6,000. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk), $5,400.

Elmwood (Snyder) (745; 90-$1.25)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (29th wk). Meek $1,200. Last week, $1,500.

Majestic (SW) (2,200; 65-80)—"Young Lions" (20th) (2d wk). Happy $10,500. First week, $15,000.

State (Loew) (3,200; 90-$1.20 — "Bridge On River Kwai" (Col). Socko $25,000. Last week, "Paths of Glory" (UA) and "Fort Bowie" (UA), $8,000.

Strand (National Realty) (2,200; 65-80)—"Attila" (AI). Big $10,000. Last week, "Cowboy" (Col) and "Going Steady" (Col), $4,000.

'LIONS' SOARS!

Record-setting openings coast-to-coast!
One of the top attractions in industry history!

THE YOUNG LIONS starring MARLON BRANDO · MONTGOMERY CLIFT · DEAN MARTIN also starring HOPE LANGE · BARBARA RUSH · MAY BRITT
Produced by Al Lichtman · Directed by Edward Dmytryk · Screenplay by Edward Anhalt
Based on the novel by Irwin Shaw
CINEMASCOPE

20th has the BIG POWERHOUSE 'PEYTON'!

Still at the peak of its phenomenal staying-power! Call 20th today, set your date now!

Jerry Wald's production of PEYTON PLACE starring LANA TURNER · HOPE LANGE · LEE PHILIPS
LLOYD NOLAN · DIANE VARSI · ARTHUR KENNEDY · RUSS TAMBLYN · TERRY MOORE featuring DAVID NELSON · BARRY COE · BETTY FIELD · MILDRED DUNNOCK · LEON AMES
Directed by Mark Robson · Screenplay by John Michael Hayes
COLOR by DE LUXE CINEMASCOPE

4

'SUMMER' HOT!

Lighting a box-office blaze! Rave reviews everywhere! Off to surefire start! Will run all Summer long!

Jerry Wald's production of William Faulkner's THE LONG, HOT SUMMER
starring PAUL NEWMAN · JOANNE WOODWARD · ANTHONY FRANCIOSA
ORSON WELLES · LEE REMICK ANGELA LANSBURY Directed by Martin Ritt
Screenplay by Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank, Jr.
COLOR by DE LUXE CINEMASCOPE

in the industry today!

ALL HAIL 'FAREWELL'!

Mighty 'Arms' is one of 20th's all-time greats! Now available for the first time to all showmen!

David O. Selznick's production of Ernest Hemingway's A FAREWELL TO ARMS starring ROCK HUDSON · JENNIFER JONES · VITTORIO DE SICA
Directed by Charles Vidor · Screenplay by Ben Hecht
COLOR by DE LUXE CINEMASCOPE

Briton & Yank Ties on Exhib Issues Urged

Establishment of closer cooperation between theatreowners in Great Britain and the United States is being pushed by Theatre Owners of America. Although a liaison already exists between TOA and the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Assn. of Great Britain and Ireland, efforts will be made to explore the possibility of establishing a permanent joint working group of members from TOA and CEA. For the past few years there has been an exchange of representatives to each other's annual meetings, but there has been no permanent liaison.

Herman M. Levy, TOA general counsel, leaves today (Wed.) for London to confer with British theatre leaders and to attend the meeting of CEA's general council on May 14. Levy has a date with Ellis F. Pinkney, CEA general secretary, and other British officials to discuss such topics as the effect of television on British theatres, the product situation, measures taken by British theatre operators to keep films off tv, censorship and the Eady plan.

Levy will explore the "war chest" financed by British exhibition to purchase films which might be sold to television to see if this policy might be adapted in the U. S. At the same time, Levy will give the British theatremen a report on the efforts made by American exhibitors to prevent the introduction of toll-tv. Upon his return to the U. S., Levy will give a full report of his studies to the TOA officers and membership.

CINEMIRACLE SEEKS CHI OPERA HOUSE

With its Cinemiracle process already showcased in Los Angeles and New York, National Theatres yesterday (Tues.) filed a petition with the N. Y. Federal Court to pave way for acquisition of the Chicago Opera House. Cinemiracle pictures would be shown there when the theatre isn't being used for operatic productions.

Takeover of the Opera House must be approved by the court under terms of a Feb. 24, 1956 decree by which NT was authorized to produce, distribute and exhibit films utilizing the Cinemiracle process. Petition asserted that acquisition of the site would not unduly restrain competition in the Chi area. It was also stated that the Government has no objection.

ERIC ROSE TO DETROIT

Eric H. Rose, formerly manager of the Trans-Lux Colony Theatre, last week was named managing director of T-L's Krim in Detroit. He replaces Gwenn Griffiths who's been transferred to the circuit's New York headquarters.

Rose, who was associated with Rank Theatres before coming to the U. S. in 1950, joined T-L four years ago.

Waterloo

Continued from page 7

is not rated by that agency, but that distributors ordinarily can't import foreign movies if Federal government (customs) deems them morally objectionable. He pointed out that his theatre showed "The Ten Commandments" for seven weeks.

Kenneth Everhart, chairman of the Iowa Civil Liberties Union, Des Moines, has said, "We, of course, would be concerned about attempts at censorship of any media or education or entertainment unless it was very carefully supervised or unless there was a real need for it. These things start in a mild way, only directed at one thing, but their history is that they quickly expand to cover other media of entertainment or information."

Hardy Dilemma: The Small Theatre

By HY HOLLINGER

Once again the question of the ability of the smalltown and neighborhood theatre to survive under the current economic conditions of the motion picture industry has come to the forefront. The value of the smaller situations, in light of the changing marketing methods, the type of pictures being released, and television, has been the subject of considerable debate for several years.

In spite of numerous adverse conditions, the majority of the less-than-deluxe houses, have managed to continue although there has been a thinning out of the ranks. Many film company officials have stated privately that the smaller situations are uneconomic to service and the sooner they close the better it will be for the industry as a whole. Realistic observers of industry affairs have noticed a trend in that direction. The closing of exchanges and sales offices in many areas, the dismissal of bookers and salesman and the general reduction in personnel in the field offices are cited as an indication that the major film companies are prepared to write off many of the smaller spots to concentrate their efforts on the big, key city situations. Samuel Goldwyn has long been an advocate of fewer theatres and has been severely condemned by exhibitor groups for his view.

Exhibitor organizations, particularly Allied States Assn., the main spokesman for the grass roots theatreowner, have diligently fought to preserve the tenuous position of the smalltown and subsequent-run situations. That their position is becoming more precarious every day is evident by the analysis issued this week by Allied general counsel Abram F. Myers. (See separate story). Myers contends that the film companies are making a serious error in writing off the nation's smaller theatres by withholding the big pictures from these theatres. He particularly condemns the new marketing methods being employed for the so-called blockbuster pictures and the increase in the number of hardticket films which keep an attraction at a key situation for a long period. He maintains that the normal availabilities are being completely destroyed and, as a consequence, a substantial portion of the nation's population is being deprived the opportunity to see many of the top attractions emanating from Hollywood unless, of course, it they want to travel to the nearest large community.

The current conflict—large versus the small theatre— is an ancient one and resulted in the consent decrees which many industryites now consider harmful to the film business. However, the battle now appears to have reached the life-and-death struggle stage.

With all the major film companies, with the possible exception of 20th-Fox, concentrating on fewer and bigger pictures, mainly geared for long runs in key centers, operators of the smalltown, sub-run and drive-in theatres are wondering how they will be able to obtain product to keep their theatres going. For the small operator, pictures such as "The Ten Commandments," "The Bridge of the River Kwai," "Around the World in 80 Days" and "South Pacific" are just titles of pictures which they feel they can't obtain or show for possibly a year or two after these entries open at a key house. How to keep their houses operating with the shorter flow of general releases is a question they have pondered numerous times without coming up with an answer.

Hard-headed industryites are of the opinion that the smaller theatres must become victims of an inevitable change just as the individual grocer gave way to the super markets. It's pointed out that the film companies cannot continue to operate profitably under the old system of providing a steady stream of product to situations which do not provide the patronage to support the production and distribution costs.

The individual entrepreneurs are putting up a determined fight to continue their sources of income, as evidenced by Allied's efforts, but the general trend of the film business as well as the nation's economy has led many observers to the conclusion that many of the smaller theatres will have to give way, especially since it's estimated that approximately 85% of the current domestic gross comes from 4,000 theatres.

Reade Circuit's 10th Drive-In

With acquisition of two drive-ins from Eastern Outdoor Theatres last week, Walter Reade Theatres now has 10 ozoners and the general view of the circuit is said to be one of expansion in the "fresh air" field. Purchased for a sum in excess of $300,000 were the Shore Drive-In, Farmingdale, N. J., and the Fly-In Drive-In, Belmar, N. J.

Reade interests have already taken over management of the two sites according to Sheldon Smerling, exec-v.p. of Eastern Outdoor. Most of the Reade drive-ins are located in the Jersey shore area, where the chain also owns and operates a large string of conventional theatres.

Teck, Buffalo Long-Runs

Buffalo, April 29.

Shea Teck Theatre will open May 1 with long-run showing of "The Long Hot Summer."

House, relinquished by Cinerama in March, will be devoted to long run film engagements according to Edward F. Meade, City Manager of Shea (Loew's) theatres.

Charles M. McLeary, formerly a member of the staff of Shea's Buffalo, is manager of the Teck.

MG Yens

Continued from page 7

Byrne said: "If there was ever such rigidity, it is now out. If there was ever any lack of receptivity, that also is out. If there ever has been any lack of a sympathetic attitude for exhibitors, we want that changed."

Stressing that this thinking represents the policies laid down by prexy Joseph R. Vogel, Byrne also made clear that while Metro is eager to please exhibitors, it must do so with the interest of the company foremost in mind. "We intend to market our pictures in a way that will be mutually fair to the company and exhibitors," he declared. "Our percentages won't be rigid. We intend to be extremely cooperative with our customers to the extent that we want and will insist on securing a fair share of any picture's potential grossing possibilities, whether it's an exceptionally big production or one not so big."

Cannes Taking

Continued from page 5

many, Japan, Italy, Britain, Switzerland, France, etc.

The International Federation of Motion Picture Producers, Assns. will meet during the Cannes fest to discuss common market questions, film festivals and other international matters.

From May 5 to 10 are skedded the International Days of Animated Films, which will include cartoons, puppet pix and subjects produced via writing directly on film. Section will offer a cross-section of the advances in this field.

The separate screenings of the tv pix are indicative of Cannes' realization that, in this "new" age, tv has a definite place and its creators must be recognized. However, the main function of Cannes still is in the area of buying and selling of theatrical features, and —of equal importance—in the personal contact it allows between filmmakers from all over the world. In this respect, with more countries represented here than at any other fest, Cannes ranks as the top event of the year and its coverage by the assembled journalistic corps is unmatched.

Russia Floods

Continued from page 5

"The principal U. S. contributions are just starting," is latest word.

Among entries, which currently exceed 200 for the five categories, is a Rank children's feature, auspiciously titled "The Kid From Canada," and one in adult class, "Carve Her Name With Pride."

Russia has submitted "a lot of features," headed by "The Sisters." and "The Cranes Are Flying," a children's feature-length "Old Khattavych," plus "The Lights Of Mirny," described as "a long documentary." Pakistan is repped by "Kismet," "Dulla Bhatti," and "Naghma E Dil," in the feature line. Czechoslovakia's top bet feature is "From My Life."

Prelim judging, though panel not yet tabbed, should whittle entries to 85 which is felt to be maximum number to fit the 34 judging sessions slated during the 12-day film cavalcade. Each box-office show will run two hours, and a 40% capacity wicket will cover the nut deployed for celluloid fest, official said.

Earl E. Cowden sold the Sidney, Ia., Theatre to Quentin and Wilma Chapman. Chapman has been projector operator at the house since 1946.

Allied Agenda Sets Old Heavy: Terms

Minneapolis, April 29.

After having "laid off" film companies the past year following a "conservative" group's ascendancy to power, North Central Allied, this territory's Allied States affiliate, is reverting to type and going on the warpath again.

Frank Mantzke, head of a buying-booking-exhibitor - distribution group, who has been named general chairman of the annual convention to be held here May 14, disclosed that "unreasonable 60% and other high percentage terms and unreasonable extended playing time demands, as well as inability to obtain prints for pictures after they're bought, will be among the principal discussion topics.

There's even talk of drafting for the presidency Bennie Berger, who held the post almost continuously since the body's inception, but who stepped aside last year, because of dissatisfaction among some members over his belligerency toward distributors.

Ted Mann, under whose presidency the past 12 months NCA largely has been inactive, refuses to remain at the helm because of insufficient time to devote to it.

It develops that a change of name to Exhibitors Trade Association was in the bylaws' violation and the body still is NCA.

One reason for the NCA reversion to "radicalism" may be because a new even more "conservative" body, the Northwest All-Industry Business Building Association, has been organized through the efforts of circuit owners Eddie Ruben and Harold Field and United Paramount president-general manager Charles Winchell as a permanent body that's expected eventually to affiliate with TOA which never has been represented in this territory.

In its declaration of purpose the Business Building group makes clear it will eschew fighting film companies in the Berger NCA manner. It will hold a convention here in August.

Lamour-Loeb Settlement

Los Angeles, April 29.

Out-of-court settlement has been effected by Dorothy Lamour in breach-of-contract suit brought by her former agent, William Loeb Jr., asking $3,450.

Loeb charged coin was due him on a one-year pact entered into in 1956, which involved 10% of her earnings.

Mastbaum's 4,370 Seats Too Many; House Now Dark

Philadelphia, April 29.

Mastbaum, Philly's largest theatre and flagship of the Stanley Warner chain, has closed "until further notice." With a season of noticeably poor grosses and a three-week Christmas hiatus rumors of shuttering had long been current in the trade, but always denied by officials.

The plush 4,370-seater built by the late Jules Mastbaum, opened Feb. 28, 1929, with Al Jolson in "Sonny Boy." The roccoco structure, ornate with velvet, damask and gold leaf cost $5,000,000.

Mastbaum went dark twice in its early history—a musician's strike in 1931 and during a stretch of poor business the following year. In 1932 the palace was relighted for 10 weeks by S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel who brought in deluxe stage shows with top talent and a line of 32 Roxyettes. The venture was too costly despite large audiences.

The theatre shutdown again for seven years, reopening Sept. 4, 1942. Local SW execs say it will now remain closed "indefinitely." There is talk of its becoming a parking lot.

Abram Myers

Continued from page 7

try's current illness." Myers charges that the inability of the sub-run and smalltown theatres to play and obtain the better pictures "is more and more confining movie attendance to the big city firstruns and is denying motion picture entertainment to a vast segment of out population."

The Allied general counsel reiterates a common recent beef of the small theatremen that there has been a "wanton destruction of established availabilities." He reviews the consent decree rulings, particularly as they affect clearances and runs and calls attention to what he alleges is a complete breakdown of established availabilities.

Myers is careful to point out that Allied is without proof or the means of gathering it that the film companies are deliberately discriminating against the independent in favor of theatres operated by the "divorced" circuits. Only the Dept. of Justice, he notes, can conduct the proper investigation since it has access to all the records and can summon a grand jury for an inquiry. Myers' contention is that the film companies, employing their new marketing methods with the numerous "special handling" pictures, are violating the stipulations of the consent decrees. "It is hard to escape the conclusion that, intentionally or otherwise, the purpose of the decrees are being subverted," he alleges.

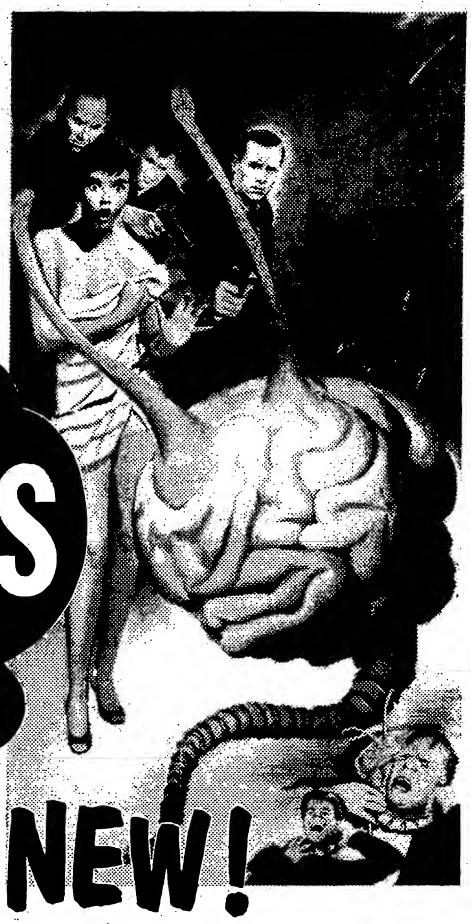
The Allied topper emphasizes that there are millions of people—because of various reasons—who are dependent on the subsequent-run, smalltown and drive-in theatres for current motion picture entertainment, but that because of the film company sales policies they are "denied the privilege of seeing, enjoying and telling their friends and neighbors about the magnificent motion pictures now being turned out by the studios."

Allied, Myers states, is all in favor of the value and contributions of the firstrun houses, but that the organization does not believe that "those theatres alone can supply the total demand for movie entertainment or support the producing and distribution branches of the industry."

The industry, he adds, cannot continue to hike prices in order to make the firstrun engagements pay off. The lost audience, mainly in the smaller situations, must be brought back to the theatres and "the industry must strengthen its foundations if it is to continue to succeed at the top," Myers maintains. This can only be achieved, he concludes, by a "fuller and more rapid circulation of films to and through the theatres of less than deluxe rating."

M-G-M's TWO BIG SHOCKERS

SOLD SINGLY OR AS A PACKAGE



NEW! KARLOFF!

"THE HAUNTED STRANGLER"

The Latest and Most Chilling Thriller From THE KING OF MONSTERS

Was an innocent man hung as the notorious "Haymarket Strangler"? The terrifying transformation of a distinguished novelist into the bestial beauty-killer, Dr. Tenant, is the most shocking thing you've ever witnessed on the screen.

M-G-M presents BORIS KARLOFF in "THE HAUNTED STRANGLER" with Jean Kent Elizabeth Allan • Anthony Dawson • Screenplay by Jan Read and John C. Cooper • Directed by Robert Day • Produced by John Croydon An Amalgamated Production • An M-G-M Release

SEE COMPOSITE PRESS-BOOK! Advertising and accessories to sell double feature or single.

NEW! HORROR!

"FIEND WITHOUT A FACE"

Presented singly or as companion feature to "THE HAUNTED STRANGLER" this NEW adventure into horror is up-to-the-minute in the field of science-fiction-terror! Mad science spawns evil shapes of brain-sucking monsters. Laboratory genius gone wild produces the creature of the future—a Fiend Without A Face!

M-G-M presents "FIEND WITHOUT A FACE" starring Marshall Thompson • Screenplay by Herbert J. Leder • Original Story by Amelia Reynolds Long • Directed by Arthur Crabtree Produced by John Croydon • An Amalgamated Production An M-G-M Release

MGM BACK ON TOP IN '58!

Harriman Sympathetic to Censorship But Vetoes Proposed Wording

Albany, April 29.

The first bills affecting the advertising phase of the motion picture censorship law to be passed by the Legislature in recent years, drew vetoes from Governor Averell Harriman.

He found the objective of the first measure—to prohibit the use, in advertising, of the fact a motion picture film, book, newspaper, magazine, tape recording, etc., had been challenged as to its "decency or morality in any court, by any board of review or by any group or agency"—to be "sound."

However, the Governor asserted, "Its wording will lead to misunderstandings as to its scope of application."

In support of his position, he quoted from a memorandum by the New York State Publishers Assn. that "Although in sympathy with the intent to eliminate capitalizing on a challenge of decency or morality, this legislation goes much further and precludes defending an unwarranted challenge."

The bill, introduced at the request of the Joint Legislative Committee on Offensive and Obscene Material (its field of study includes motion and still pictures, television and radio), sought to block such advertising for the purpose of selling a picture, book, etc., or "to induce patronage for any place of amusement."

It stemmed from the promotion campaigns for "The Garden of Eden" on which the Court of Appeals last June reversed the Regents, in a 4-3 decision, and ordered a license issued and for other once-rejected pictures with a sex emphasis.

Governor Harriman also termed the purpose of the second film-advertising bill unobjectionable, but the language of one section "too vague and indefinite . . . impractical of proper application."

This would have authorized the State Education Department to revoke the license for a film, if a poster, banner or similar advertising matter "distorts or misrepresents the character or content of any motion picture licensed by the department."

"The Attorney General has pointed out that the phrase "distorts or misrepresents the character of content" of a film might be open to constitutional attack upon the argument the language is indefinite, the Governor wrote in his veto.

The Attorney General, he added, cited Burstyn v. Wilson and Gelling v. Texas—both U. S. Supreme Court decisions of 1952 on censorship.

That tribunal applied a crusher to the New York State licensing statute, in the first case—dealing with "The Miracle"—by ruling "sacrilegious" was not a valid ground upon which to deny a license.

Par Inventory

Continued from page 3

praisal of the company's future as well as the film biz as a whole by prexy Barney Balaban, notes that the company has reduced its inventory from $57,111,840 in 1956 to $50,712,877 in 1957. At the same time, the company has increased its cash position from $11,704,988 in 1956 to $16,808,607 in 1957. According to Balaban, these trends—reduction of inventory and increase in cash position—will continue in 1958.

The company's consolidated earnings for 1957 totaled $5,425,000 or $2.80 per share as against $4,283,000 or $2.17 per share in 1956. Net income for 1957 was $4,783,000 or $2.47 per share as compared with the 1956 net income of $8,731,000 or $4.43 per share. However, the 1956 stanza included non-recurring income of approximately $5,000,000 from the sale of shorts to television and from the sale of stock in Famous Players Canadian. Balaban calls attention to the fact that considerable profits will be added to the company's earnings in 1958 from the recent sale of its backlog films to television.

Film Row

Continued from page 3

the ultimate total perhaps not to exceed 15.

The traditional minimum throughout the industry has been 31.

Paramount recently merged its physical distribution in New York with Metro, shuttered in Cleveland, consolidated its Portland, Ore., and Seattle outlets and, said a company rep, "you can expect more to follow."

Columbia closed in Omaha, which area is now absorbed by the Des Moines exchange, and like Par, Portland has been taken over by Seattle.

In a move seen as particularly meaningful, Col has closed its Houston office, which was opened not long ago and proved a successful money-making outpost. Decision was made to blackout Huston, which is now being serviced out of Dallas. Reduced overhead will more than compensate for whatever revenue, if any, is lost by padlocking the Huston branch, it's felt.

It was last year that the Booz, Allen & Hamilton analysis of picture business economics included the finding that the operation of exchanges by all distributors individually meant just so much waste of money and motion. Either taking heed of the BA&H advice, or making its own decisions independently, the industry is now following through in earnest, not simply by farming out backroom (physical handling of prints) work to outside agencies, such as National Film Service and National Screen, but actually closing many of the highly prized (by oldline distribution toppers) exchanges.

Underlying the distribution economies, of cause, is the reduced flow of product. It's figured to be uneconomical to maintain these big setups with anything less than 15-20 films per company.

Pensions in 1959

With total assets of $549,553 currently in a special fund, pension benefits for retired film exchange employees and salesmen will commence in January, 1959. Payments will go to retiring front office and service personnel represented by the film exchange employees of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and to retiring film peddlers represented by the IA's recently-affiliated motion picture salesmen's department. Pension fund was obtained in the latest contracts between the two unions and the film companies.

Sum presently available was obtained by employer contributions of 6c per hour (not exceeding 37½ hours) and from interest on investments. Payments, beginning next January, provide for four different types of pensions.

(1) Norman pension—$36.25 monthly for life. This is for employees who have reached the age of 65 and retire with 25 years of service. Such employees must have worked at least 415 hours in one calendar year since the employer contribution began on Dec. 1, 1956.

(2) Reduced pension—For employees who have reached the age of 65 and retire with 15 or more years of credited service. They, too, must have worked 415 hours in one year since the fund was started. For these employees, the regular $36.25 monthly pension will be reduced by $1.45 per month for each year short of 25 which they have worked.

(3) Early retirement pension—Employees retiring between the ages of 55 and 65 will get the regular or reduced amount they would receive at their age minus one-half of 1% for each month by which they are younger.

(4) Disability pension—Same as an early retirement pension except that retirement age can be reduced as far as 50 years if the applicant can prove permanent and total disability resulting from bodily injury or disease.

Pension benefits are payable for life. If a pensioner dies within 60 months after retirement, remainder of payments for that period go to his survivors.

London's First Peek At Todd-AO Brings Raves For 'S. Pacific' at Preem

London, April 29.

London had its first peek at Todd-AO when "South Pacific" bowed into the Dominion Theatre with a swank preem attended by top brass of politics, the services and show biz. A calypso band played in the flower-decked theatre foyer as the guests arrived. These included starlets, adorned with garlands, big executives such as Oscar Hammerstein 2d, Josh Logan, Mitzi Gaynor and Julie Wilson. Last-named starred in the show when it played the Drury Lane.

Tottenham Court Road where the Dominion is situated became a one-way street for three hours and even the bus stop outside the theatre was moved down the road for the night to accommodate arriving patrons.

Preceded by a calypso band on the stage and a demonstration of Todd-AO, "Pacific" had the audience joining in the familiar numbers and applauding most of Miss Gaynor's solos. The press generally gave the pic the okay sign though The Times found it a long, dull film with director Logan being defeated by the technical phases of the new method.

Harold Conway of the Daily Sketch wrote: "Of all the film's delights — musical and pictorial — Gaynor emerges tops." The Daily Express's Leonard Mosley, on the other hand, fell over backwards to give orchids to France Nuyen. Enthused Mosley: "This is the most exciting face I've ever seen. The scenery in the new wide-screen Todd-AO process is spectacular in almost a cineramic way."

Chris Reynolds of the Daily Mirror wrote: "Believe me, it's hot stuff. To see it is one enchanted evening." The Daily Mail's Marshall Pugh considered: "The only appropriate comment on the process is 'Gee-whiz.' The color varies between the fabulous and the fiendish."

"South Pacific," supported by a Geraldo orchestra with 11 shows a week, is expected to run at least a year here. Several rows of seats have been removed from the back of the stalls to accommodate a new projector, and the entire upper circle has been closed.

MANHATTAN PUFFERS SIGN WITH DISTRIBS

Peace between film praisers represented by the N. Y. Screen Publicists Guild and the film companies is apparently assured for two more years as a result of the conclusion of agreements with Warner Bros., Columbia and Universal late last week.

New two-year contracts, which will be signed shortly, are essentially the same as the deal recently signed with 20th-Fox. The 20th pact, which apparently set the pattern for the industry, strengthened the security provisions of the former contract by providing that the film companies must give the union at least 90 days notice before they consider eliminating or transfering any departments.

Contracts also give a $6 across-the-board wage hike to all pub-ad staffers earning less than the $140 senior minimum. Agreements also provide that the subject of wages for senior publicists can be reopened after a 10-month period.

Only new pacts still to be concluded by the SPG are those with United Artists and Metro. Talks with UA are currently taking place. M-G's present contract does not expire for several months yet.

'Pacific' Big in Detroit

Detroit, April 29.

Total advance sales for the first 21 shows of "South Pacific" (20th) are over five times better than they were for "Around the World in 80 Days" (UA) for the same period, according to manager Dillon Krepps.

He said that 80% of the sales have come from residents of outstate Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. Krepps observed that perhaps those areas have been less hard hit by the recession than the Detroit-area auto plants.

Brands Justice Reasoning 'Unreal'

National Circuit May Help Other Theatres By Producing Films, Not Itself

Theatre Owners of America is "disturbed and disappointed" by the recent decision of the Dept. of Justice which only gave National Theatres a conditional okay to produce and invest in the production of motion pictures. The D. of J. ruled that it would consider a "reasonable experiment" by National in picture-making provided the proposal "envisioned no preemptive rights and gave full account to the exigencies of competitive conditions in the movie industry."

According to Ernest G. Stellings, TOA prexy, the Justice Dept.'s ruling re-established a "positive roadblock" since it says that it's okay for NT to make pictures for other theatres "but you can't show these pictures in your own theatres." By setting up the idea that "you can help the other fellow, but not yourself," Stellings points out that "this obviously removes the principal incentive for the former affiliates to make pictures." The TOA topper charged that the Justice Dept.'s decision is "a most unrealistic one" and that it is based on outmoded precedent and remains oblivious "to current problems and conditions in the industry. . . ."

While the D. of J. may have been motivated by its desire to protect theatreowners, Stellings noted, the ruling actually has the opposite effect since there is not a theatre in the country that does not require more product. "It is a strange type of protection that denies to exhibitors the one means of getting more people into their theatres," the TOA executive declared.

Reviewing the need for more product and pointing out that the formerly affiliated theatres have the necessary experience and financial ability to do so, Stellings maintains that it can only be accomplished if the "divorced" circuits have pre-emptive rights for their own theatres. As a consequence, TOA urged the D. of J. to reevaluate its position in light of conditions in the industry and indicated that TOA stood ready to assist any of the former affiliates which desired to enter production.

Cannes Cry

Continued from page 5

is shown in bids to Czechoslavakia and Sweden for two films each due to their merit. In spite of diplomatic aspects unlikely pix from lesser, or even bigger, countries were firmly vetoed. This means a primed total of 20, eliminating such time drags as double showings. Unspoolings will be at 3 P.M. and 10 P.M., with only one on opening day and one day free.

Brandt, Reade Duck

Though interest in the Cannes film festival is high, with the general expectation that it will serve as a showcase for many artistically and commercially interesting entries, some of the American independents have stopped looking to Cannes as a ready-made market place.

In fact, two important importer - distributor - exhibitors—Harry Brandt and Walter Reade Jr.—are skipping the fest this year. Their reasoning is that it's impossible to make advantageous deals at Cannes, where all the Indies are bunched on the beach and the local producers are playing one against the other.

Quite apart from this, even the indies who make the Cannes trek are in general agreement that the atmosphere of a festival isn't conducive to "realistic" trading. "They either try to pressure you into a deal before the picture is shown, or else they hold you off until after it's been screened and foster the impression that everybody is after it," complained one. "In any case, the prices asked at Cannes are inflated."

According to Brandt, most of the truly commercial entries with real potential in the States don't show up at the festival. He, and several others, hold that the only way to get the product is to make periodic trips to Europe (which most of the indies are doing) and o.o. the available films free from the excited competition of a fest.

Fact is that, at least as far as the French and Italian films are concerned, the indies have a very good notion of not only what's available, but also what's coming up in the Continental studios. They all have their local reps who submit reports, and the bidding often starts before a film has even been completed.

Trouble is that there is virtually no yardstick by which to judge the possible success or failure of an import in the U. S. Pictures that click in a big way in Europe aren't necessarily of appeal in the arties stateside and, conversely, some of the big "hits" here did no outstanding biz on the Continent. Thus the importers must go by little more than their knowledge of the U. S. public and the—not always reliable—success formula developed by other films.

One of the aspects that does draw the indies to Cannes, apart from the many useful contacts and the firsthand viewing of the product (not to speak of the pleasant surroundings), is the fear of missing out on a real blockbuster—or on a sleeper. Many films are screened outside the fest purview by producers eager to take advantage of the assemblage of foreign buyers. Occasionally, deals are made on that "fringe" level.

Among the indies who're at Cannes, where the festival rolls Friday (2) are Edward L. Kingsley, Richard Davis, Jean Goldwurm, Ilya Lopert, Cy Harvey and Joseph Green. Duncan McGregor of the American Pathe Cinema outfit (Paris Theatre, N. Y., World Theatre, Philadelphia) also will be on hand.

Feeling generally is that the American industry this year will come off better at Cannes than in 1957, when virtually no Hollywood stars showed up. This year, with "The Brothers Karamazov" the official U. S. entry and "The Long, Hot Summer" the invited entry (along with "Desire Under the Elms"), the star turnout is bound to be improved, particularly since "Summer" producer Jerry Wald will be on hand and is bringing a number of personalities in his party.

Euphemism, Canadian Style: No B.O. Tax There; It's A Hospital Assistance Levy

Vancouver, April 29.

First Famous Players' western conference in two years, "of partners, associates and managers," is set for June 11-13 at Hotel Vancouver, per Maynard Joiner, circuit's topman here. Conclave follows the FP eastern confab, slated for Toronto, in May; will host president J. J. Fitzgibbons and v.p. R. W. Bolstad, plus about 10 other head office toppers, he said.

Press won't be admitted, in line with longstanding never-tell-nuttin' policy of both major circuits in this region. Joiner won't even say what topics come up for discussion. However, it's expected there'll be preoccupation with Amusement Tax, which circuit is known to consider "unfair and discriminatory," and a "burden," and seeks to eliminate; and Telemeter, that's now definitely slated for installation in Canadian theatres by year's end, according to Famous Players' 1957 annual report.

In looking to delete or have diminished the 10% tax on entertainment in British Columbia, the circuit's brief gets sidetracked on issue of a definition. Provincial revenuers insist there is no amusement tax, thus none to lobby against. Levy of 10% is "just a hospitals aid tax," they demur.

The Muse Goes Arty

Omaha, April 29.

With the conversion of the Town Theatre from burly to straight double-feature policy, Manager Jack Gelfand has decided to switch his Muse Theatre, a nabe house, into an "art" theatre.

Gelfand last week said he'd kick off the new operation Friday (2) with Brigitte Bardot's "And God Created Woman." He'll use J. Arthur Rank British pix as second features, he added.

STAGE STRUCK IS A SMASHING SUCCESS!

AT NEW YORK'S
TRANS-LUX NORMANDIE THEATRE

BIGGEST NON-HOLIDAY OPENING DAY IN A YEAR!!!

THIS AD IS PART OF THE NEW YORK NEWSPAPER AD CAMPAIGN...

THIS IS THE MARKET-PLACE, KID!

THIS IS WHERE YOU PEDDLE IT, YOUR TALENT, YOUR LOOKS, YOUR NICE LEGS!

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR, KID? IT'S ALL YOURS!

HEADING FOR SMASH FIRST WEEK... AND LONG RUN!

HEADING YOUR WAY NOW... BOOK IT FROM BUENA VISTA!

STAGE STRUCK

starring HENRY FONDA • SUSAN STRASBERG

co-starring JOAN GREENWOOD • HERBERT MARSHALL and introducing CHRISTOPHER PLUMMER

TECHNICOLOR® Screen Play by RUTH and AUGUSTUS GOETZ • WILLIAM DOZIER in Charge of Production
Produced by STUART MILLAR • Directed by SIDNEY LUMET • Music by ALEX NORTH An RKO Radio Picture—Distributed by Buena Vista Film Distribution Co., Inc.

Picture Grosses

'Holiday' Fancy $8,000, K.C.; 'Animal' Oke 10G, 'Search' Passable 12G

Kansas City, April 29.

Opening of the new Cinerama, "Search for Paradise," and the new Bob Hope pic, "Paris Holiday," take the spotlight in current session. "Female Animal" at three Fox Midwest houses looms okay. However, "Merry Andrew" at the Midland looks slow. "Young Lions" attaining some name for itself by staying four weeks at the Uptown. "Cool and the Crazy," the Elmer Rhoden Jr., production, did well enough in its preem here to win a holdover at Fox Midwest Apollo.

Estimates for This Week

Glen, Dickinson, Shawnee Drive-In, Leawood Drive-in (Dickinson) (700; 750; 1,100 cars; 900 cars; 75-90)—"Ride Out for Revenge" (UA) and "Steel Bayonet" (UA). Light $4,000. Last week, "Escapade in Japan" (U) and "All Mine To Give" (UA), ran into cool weather to get same.

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; 90-$1.25)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (12th wk). Big $2,000. Last week, $2,200.

Midland (Loew) (3,500; 75-90)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G) and "World Was His Jury" (Col). Slow $5,000. Last week, "Bridge On River Kwai" (Col) (4th wk), $8,000 at $1.25 top.

Missouri (SW-Cinerama) (1,194; $1.25-$2)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama). Launched with pair of benefits, looks for $12,000 in first week, good but not as big as hoped for. Last week, "Seven Wonders of World" (Cinerama) (35th wk), $13,000.

Paramount (UP) (1,900; 75-90)—"Chase a Crooked Shadow" (WB). Fair $5,000. Last week, "St. Louis Blues" (WB), $4,000.

Rockhill (Little Art Theatres) (750; 75-90)—"Mademoiselle Striptease" (DCA). Bardot name good for $1,780. Last week, "Nights of Cabiria" (Lopert), $1,500.

Roxy (Durwood) (879; 90-$1.25)—"Paris Holiday" (Par). Fancy $8,000; holds. Last week, "Teacher's Pet" (Par) (4th wk), $3,000.

Tower, Fairway, Granada (Fox Midwest) (2,100; 700; 1,217; 75-90)—"Female Animal" (U) and "Damn Citizen" (U). Okay $10,000. Last week, "Cool and Crazy" (American Int'l) and "Dragstrip Riot" (Indie), also including Apollo (1,050). Bright $15,000. Pic holding at Apollo only, fair $2,500; may go another there.

Uptown (Fox Midwest) (2,043; 90-$1.25)—"Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk). Oke $4,000. Last week, $6,000.

BOSTON

(Continued from page 13)

up by warm exploitation. Last week, "Macabre" (AA) and "Hell's 5 Hours" (AA), $15,000.

Pilgrim (NET) (1,000; 60-$1.10)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) and "Spanish Affair" (Par). Good $8,000 or near. Last week, "Cowboy" (Col) and "Going Steady" (Col) (2d wk), $4,000.

Saxon (Saxon) (1,100; $1.50-$3.30)—"South Pacific" (20th) (3d wk). Big $20,000. Last week, $22,000.

Trans-Lux (Trans-Lux) (730; 75-$1.25)—"Slave" (Indie) and "First Affair" (Indie). Neat $4,500. Last week, "Devil In Flesh" (Indie) and "Naked Night" (Indie), $4,200.

Orpheum (Loew) (2,900; 75-$1.25)—"Paths of Glory" (UA) and "Invisible Boy" (M-G). Slick $14,000. Last week, "Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) and "Quiet American" (UA) (4th wk), $9,000.

State (Loew) (3,600; 75-$1.25)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (2d wk). Loud $11,000. Last week, $16,000.

DENVER

(Continued from page 12)

jorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk), $10,500.

Tabor (Fox) (930; $1.25-$2.50)—"South Pacific" (20th). Big $10,000. Last week, "Adams and Eve" (Indie) and "Blonde Blackmailer" (Indie) (2d wk), $3,000.

Valley (Drive-In (Wolfberg) (950 cars; 75c)—"Monolith Monsters" (U) and "Love Slaves of Amazon" (U). Slow $2,000. Last week, on subsequents.

Vogue Art (Sher-Shulman) (442; 75-90)—"Gervaise" (Cont). Fine $2,000. Last week, "Forbidden Desires" (Times), $1,200.

West Drive-In (Wolfberg) (750 cars; 75c—"Last Paradise" (UA) and "Man on Prowl" (UA). Poor $2,000. Last week, on subsequents.

BROADWAY

(Continued from page 13)

wk). First week finished yesterday (Tues.) was big $15,000.

Palace (RKO) (1,700; $1-$3)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (20th wk). The 19th session completed yesterday (Tues.) was smash $37,000 for 12 performances. "The 18th week, $36,000 for 12 shows.

Odeon (Rank) (854; 90-$1.80)—"One That Got Away" (Rank) (2d wk). First week ended Monday (28) was mild $10,000. In ahead, "Desire Under Elms" (Par) (6th wk-5 days), $5,500 but a very nice run, not dropping off much until final two weeks.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,665; $1-$2)—"Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk). Current round ending today (Wed.) is heading for great $50,000. Third was $60,000. Stays on, likely until nearly June, according to present plans.

Fifth Ave. Cinema (R&B) (250; $1.80)—"Gervaise" (Cont) (17th wk). The 16th frame completed yesterday (Tues.) was okay $3,200. The 18th week, $3,400.

Paris (Pathe Cinema) (568; 90-$1.80)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (28th wk). The 27th stanza completed Sunday (27) was sockeroo $10,600. The 26th week, $10,500.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (6,200; 90-$2.75)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) with new stageshow. Initial session ending today (Wed.) looks like smash $165,000. Holds, natch! Last week, "Merry Andrew" (M-G) and Easter stageshow (5th wk), $126,300.

Rivoli (UAT) (1,545; $1.25-$3.50)—"Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (81st wk). The 80th stanza finished yesterday (Tues.) was great $35,600 for 11 shows. The 79th week, $35,000 for same number of performances.

Plaza (Lopert) (525; $1.50-$2)—"Witness for Prosecution" (UA) (12th wk). Current session ending tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for socko $10,500. The 11th week, $11,500.

Roxy (Nat'l. Th.) (2,700; $1.75-$3.50)—"Windjammer" (Nat'l) (3d wk). This stanza winding up today (Wed.) looks to hit solid $64,000. Second was $60,000.

State (Loew) (3,450; 50-$1.75)—"St. Louis Blues" (Par) (3d-final wk). This week winding up tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like fair $16,000. Second was $19,000. "Another Time, Another Place" (Par) opens Friday (2).

Sutton (R&B) (561; 95-$1.75)—"Night Ambush" (Rank). First week ending today (Wed.) looks like okay $7,500. In ahead, "Desire Under Elms" (Par) (6th wk), $6,700.

Trans-Lux 52nd St. (T-L) (540; $1-$1.50)—"Rouge et Noir" (DCA) (4th wk). Third session ended Monday (28) was very big $9,500. Second was $11,800.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,060; 50-$2)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (5th wk). Current round ending today (Wed.) looks like lively $14,500. Fourth was $16,500.

Warner (SW-Cinerama) (1,600; $1.80-$3.50)—"Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (32d-final wk). The 31st week finished Saturday (26) was fine $26,200 for 10 performances. The 30th session was $24,000 for same number of shows. "This Is Cinerama" (Cinerama) is due back in this theatre, where it originally played, on May 4.

'ANDREW' HEP $5,000, OMAHA; 'KWAI' 13G, 2D

Omaha, April 29.

Combo of chilly evenings plus first home stand of the local American Assn. baseball Cardinals isn't helping this week's trade. "Merry Andrew," shapes strong, however, at the State, the only impressive new entry downtown. "Bridge on River Kwai" is sturdy in second stanza at the Orpheum, and undoubtedly will go three. "Lafayette Escadrille" is suffering at the Brandeis while "Touch of Evil" isn't showing any strength at the Omaha.

Estimates for This Week

Brandeis (RKO) (1,100; 7-90)—"Lafayette Escadrille" (WB) and "Escape from Red Rock" (20th). Light $3,000. Last week, "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (3d wk), $4000.

Omaha (Tristates) (2,066; 75-90)—"Touch of Evil" (U) and "Female Animal" (U). Pale $3,000. Last week) "Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk), $3,500 on 90-$1.25 scale.

Orpheum (Tristates) (2,980; 90-$1.25)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (2d wk). Pleasing $13,000 or near after $17,500 bow.

State (Cooper) (850; 75-90)—"Merry Andrew" (M-G). Strong $5,000. Last week, "Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (2d wk) $3,500 at $1.25 top.

'Macabre' Rousing 15G, Buff; 'Run Deep' 10G, 2d

Buffalo, April 29.

Biz continues quite steady here this stanza. Best newcomer is "Macabre," lively at the Lafayette. The other new entrant, "Chase Crooked Shadow" paired with "Bitter Victory," looms mild at Paramount. "Young Lions" shapes standout with a big take in nine days of fourth week at the Center. "Run Silent, Run Deep" looks nice in second frame at the Bulffalo.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew) (3,500; 70-$1.25)—"Run Silent, Run Deep" (UA) (2d wk). Nice $10,000. Last week, $17,000.

Center (AB-PT) (3,000; 70-$1.25)—"Dope Street" (WB) and "Violent Road" (WB). Opened Monday (28). Last week, "Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk-9 days), big $11,000 or over.

Century (UATC) (2,700; 70-$1.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (7th wk). Down to $6,500. Last week, good $7,000.

Lafayette (Basil) (3,000; 70-90)—"Macabre" (AA) and "Hell's Five Hours" (AA). Lively $15,000. Last week, "Song Bernadette" (20th) (reissue), $6,000 in 9 days.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,000; 70-90)—"Chase Crooked Shadow" (WB) and "Bitter Victory" (Col). Mild $8,000. Last week, "Teacher's Pet" (Par) and "Spanish Affair" (Par), $13,000.

'10 C's' San Juan Smash

San Juan, Puerto Rico, April 29.

"10 Commandments" was still powerful in its third week here after strongest ($15,800) first week ever in San Juan. Also in third stanza, "Bridge on River Kwai" still was big. "God Created Woman," English print with Spanish titles, shapes smash in opening round.

Estimates for This Week

Metropolitan (Commonwealth) (1,026; $2) "10 Commandments" (Par) (3d wk). Good $7,600, Last week, $9,100.

Lorraine (Commonwealth) (700)—"God Created Woman" (Kings). Last week: "Witness for Prosecution" (UA) $2,850. Smash $5,700.

Music Hall (Commonwealth) (600; $1)—"Esther Costello" (Col). Nice $4,400. Last week, "Legend of Lost" (UA), $3,600.

Paramount (Paramount) (916; $1.50)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (3d wk). Big $4,600. Last week, $8,600.

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 13)

"God Is Partner" (20th) (2d wk). Soft $3,500.

Chinese (FWC) (1,408; $1.75-$3.50) — "Windjammer" (NT) (3d wk). Fair $21,500. Last week, $22,800.

Four Star, Fox Beverly, Loyola, Vogue (UATC-FWC) (868; 1,170; 1,248; 825; $1.25-$2.40) — "Young Lions" (20th) (3d wk). Socko $26,000. Last week, $30,900.

Fine Arts (FWC) (631; 90-$1.50)—"Stage Struck" (BV) (3d wk). Dim $1,500. Last week, $1,600.

Warner Beverly (SW) (1,612; $1.25-$2.40)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (5th wk). Pale $6,000. Last week, $5,600.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (2,296; 90-$1.50)—"Paris Holiday" (UA) (5th wk). Light $4,000. Last week, $3,400.

Hollywood Paramount (F&M) (1,468; $1.25-$2)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (6th wk). Mild $7,500. Last week, $8,200.

Egyptian (UATC) (1,503; $1.25-$2.50) — "Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (19th wk). Great $14,300. Last week, $15,200.

Warner Hollywood (SW) (1,384; $1.20-$2.65) — "Seven Wonders" (Cine). Started 47th week Sunday (27) after big $12,900 last week.

Carthay (FWC) (1,138; $1.75-$3.50) — "Around World in 80 Days" (UA) (71st wk). Trim $16,000. Last week, $15,000.

Crest, Sunset (Lippert-Cohen) (800; 540; $1.25-$1.50)—"Smiles of Summer Night" (Indie) (2d wk). Wobbly $3,600. Last week, $5,600.

CHICAGO

(Continued from page 13)

wk). Good $3,700. Last week, $3,900.

Todd's Cinestage (Todd) (1,036; $1.75-$3.30)—"Around World" (UA) (56th wk). Sock $18,500. Last week, $19,000.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 90-$1.50)—"Sheepman" (M-G). Lusty $18,000. Last week, "Run Silent Run Deep" (UA) (4th wk), $13,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,200; 90-$1.50)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (3d wk). Rosy $21,000. Last week, $23,000.

World (Teitel) (606; 90)—"Smiles of Summer Night" (Rank) (3d wk). Oke $3,000. Last week, $3,200.

'BLUES' OK $10,000, FRISCO; 'KWAI' 15G

San Francisco, April 29.

The local baseball Giants, on a winning streak, and start of Billy Graham religious meetings are being blamed for sagging biz at many spots here currently. "St. Louis Blues" is barely okay at Golden Gate while "Paris Holiday" has dropped down to fair takings in second United Artists week. "Bridge on River Kwai," however, is still big in seventh round at St. Francis. "Saddle Wind," "Young and Wild" and "Stage Struck" all are rated weak.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,859; 90-$1.25)—"St. Louis Blues" (Par) and "Man From God's Country" (AA). Okay $10,000 or close. Last week, "Day of Bad Man" (U) and "Violators" (U), $6,000.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; $1.25-$1.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk). Oke $9,000. Last week, $12,500.

Warfield (Loew) (2,656; 90-$1.25)—"Saddle Wind" (M-G) and "Outlaw's Son" (UA) (2d wk). Mild $6,500. Last week, $12,000.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; 90-$1.25)—"Young and Wild" (Rep) and "Juvenile Jungle" (Rep). Dull $9,000. Last week, "Chase Crooked Shadow" (WB) and "Stakeout Dope St." (WB), $9,000.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; 90-$1.25)—"Bridge On River Kwai" (Col) (7th wk). Big $15,000. Last week, $17,000.

Orpheum (SW-Cinerama) (1,458; $1.75-$2.65)—"Search For Paradise" (Cinerama) (7th wk). Down to $14,500. Last week, $17,500.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,207; 90-$1.25)—"Paris Holiday" (UA) and "Bop Girl" (UA) (2d wk). Fair $8,000 or close. Last week, $11,500.

Stagedoor (A-R) (440; $1.25-$1.50)—"Stage Struck" (BV) (3d wk). Poor $1,700. Last week, $2,100.

Presidio (Hardy-Parsons) (774; $1.25-$1.50) — "Man Escaped" (Cont). Okay $3,500. Last week, "Spanish Gardener" (Cont) and "Loser Takes All" (Cont) (2d wk), $3,000.

Vogue (S.F. Theatres) (364; $1.25)—"Smiles Of Summer Night" (Rank) (3d wk). Okay $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

Coronet (United California) 1,250; $1.50-$3.75)—"Around World In 80 Days" (UA) (70th wk). So-so $9,000. Last week, $10,000.

PHILADELPHIA

(Continued from page 12)

wk). Holding at $14,000. Last week, $15,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (1,250; 65-$1.25)—"Bridge on River Kwai" (Col) (7th wk). Socko $16,000. Last week, $21,000.

Stanley (SW) (2,900; 99-$1.80)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (4th wk). Fair $10,000. Last week, $11,000.

Stanton (SW) (1,483; 99-$1.49)—"Girl In Black Stockings" (UA) and "Hell Bound" (UA). Slim $6,000. Last week, "Saddle Wind" (M-G) (2d wk), $6,000.

Studio (Goldberg) (385; 90-$1.89)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (9th wk). Good $3,000. Last week, $3,700.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 99-$1.80)—"Brothers Karamazov" (M-G) (8th wk). Oke $5,000. Last week, $5,700.

Viking (Siey) (1,000; 99-$1.49)—"Teacher's Pet" (Par) (5th wk). Neat $8,000. Last week, $9,500.

World (Pathe) (500; 99-$1.89)—"God Created Woman" (Kings) (9th wk). Okay $2,800. Last week, $3,400.

MINNEAPOLIS

(Continued from page 12)

Tide" (U). Mild $3,500. Last week, "Paris Holiday" (UA) (2d wk), $4,500. "Girl" split week with "Unholy Wife," (U) and "Violators" (U).

State (Par) (2,300; 90-$1.25)—"Marjorie Morningstar" (WB) (2d wk). Highly regarded picture, but has been a disappointment here. Light $7,000. Last week, $9,000. Stays on.

Suburban World (Mann) (700; 85)—"God Created Woman" (Indie) (2d run) (3d wk). On top of six weeks downtown, this is quite a run for this pic. Nice $2,000. Last week, $2,500.

World (Mann) (400; $1.25-$2.50)—"Young Lions" (20th) (4th wk). Still in money. Tall $5,500. Last week, $5,500. Holds.

Detroiters at London Rally

Detroit, April 29.

Five Variety Club of Detroit members and their wives are in London to attend the annual convention of International Variety Clubs.

They are the Jack Zides, the Edward Rosenbers, the Sol Adlers, the Peter Shifrins and Ben Rosens.

Daff Outlook

Continued from page 4

company's annual meeting. We are taking a breather because we had so many pictures completed—the biggest backlog in the industry. We were in a fortunate position to pause without interrupting our flow of releases."

Of the lopping of employee heads at Universal, Daff commented, "That's an adjustment going on with every company, not particularly with Universal. I think the business demands reappraisal and change of perspective where costs are considered in view of fluctuation of boxoffice grosses."

On production, Daff said, "We got two going next month." Asked if Universal would continue the same annual feature output, he said that was "undecided."

On his Southeast Asian swing, Daff stopped at Singapore, Malaya, Vietnam, Manila, Hong Kong and Japan. Purpose was to appoint Alvin I. Cassel as Far East supervisor—from Japan to Pakistan—and tour part of area with Cassel, Cassel, who joined Universal in 1956 as supervisor for Singapore, Malaya, Indonesia and Thailand, was with Metro for ten years in West Indies, South Africa and Philippines. He succeeds Arthur Doyle who resigned in early March and returned to the States.

Reflecting on his tour, Daff, who was Universal Asian supervisor before the war noted the boom in theatre building, particularly in Singapore, Malaya and Hong Kong. He singled out Asian exhibitors for their continued high standards of showmanship—"as high as anywhere"—and said that it would do for some U. S. exhibitors to come over and take a look at the enterprise and ingenuity of picture exploitation in these parts.

Daff left here for Hollywood.

Ballance Exit

Continued from page 7

lance's retirement, which was definite at one point last year, but was postponed when news of it leaked out.

Ballance, like Herman Wobber, 20th's western division head, who retired last year, will stay with the company in an advisory capacity. He's one of the distribution vets, having started in the field—at Paramount's Los Angeles branch—in early 1918. He joined Fox Film Corp. in 1932, shortly after the late Sidney R. Kent left Par to become 20th prexy. Under Kent, Ballance served as Par general sales manager for five years. When Par acquired the S. A. Lynch Enterprises in the South, Ballance was put in charge. He's been outstanding in his ability to develop sales manpower for 20th.

As an advisor, Ballance will continue to make his headquarters at 20th's Atlanta branch.

Blockbusters

Continued from page 3

have little commercial significance on the marquee.

Film was produced by Jaime Del Valle, who developed the characters for radio and tv as a Cooper client. CBS, which airs the show, is a 20% owner of the theatrical enterprise, and this should cue some of that old-school-try by exhibs on the exploitation front, says Cooper. All of the network's stations are prepared to work hand in hand with theatremen in the tub-thumping department and the exhibs, upon booking the picture, need only to seek out the broadcasters.

Cooper and Del Valle stressed that "Lineup," while taken from the air show, is in every sense theatrical. "No conversion ever went so far," said the producer, who added that depth shots and photographic detail in the picture would be beyond the reach of tv.

Lantz Gives Policies To 63

Hollywood, April 29.

Walter Lantz Productions has voluntarily given cartoon outfit's 63 employees a free health and life insurance plan, effective May 15, with company footing entire bill.

Policy provides a $3,000 life insurance feature with double indemnity clause, and 100% medical and hospital expenses up to $5,000.

HORSE SENSE!

WIN - PLACE - SHOW

According to all the tip sheets*, your best bet, as always, is Trailers. Here's an odds-on favorite with the fans—never out of the money—especially with the Prize Baby in the saddle!

So, play Trailers across the board! It's good sense dollar-wise for the few cents each trailer costs per show.

NATIONAL Screen SERVICE
PRIZE BABY OF THE INDUSTRY

Trailers motivate 42.9 cents out of every dollar in box office admissions:* Sindlinger & Co., in its latest tabulation on trailer impact for a group of national theatre clients.

People everywhere consider trailers the most reliable form of motion picture advertising: Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton in its recent survey for the Motion Picture Association.

Copies of either survey will be forwarded on request.

Leland Dibble Gets in Some Innings Before Judge Departs for Ball Game

By WILLIAM STEIF

San Francisco, April 29.

One of the plaintiffs in an $8-million antitrust suit against major film producer-distributors scored some points as the Embassy Theatre trial meandered along slowly in Federal Judge Edward P. Murphy's court.

The plaintiff was Leland C. Dibble, who is a co-owner with Daniel O. McLean of the 1,400-seat, 51-year-old Embassy in downtown Frisco. Dibble and McLean claim they were unlawfully deprived of first run films from 1938 to 1950, when their suit was filed, and of second-run films from 1938 to 1947.

Dibble spent the week under direct examination of his lawyer, Robert Raven—one of the trial sessions was cut in half because many of the case's principals, including Judge Murphy, wanted to get out to see the Giant-Dodger opener in Frisco.

The substance of Dibble's testimony was that he continually tried to get firstrun for his theatre from the time he took over buying from McLean in mid-1940 until the suit was filed. In fact, at one point the Judge was moved to say:

"If there is one thing that is abundantly clear as of today . . . it is this, that McLean and Dibble were constantly trying to improve their firstrun situation and their availability."

To this Eugene Bennett, lawyer for Paramount, Warner's, Loew's RKO and UA, responded:

"My point is that there is on that a direct conflict."

The Judge then indicated his statement applied to his understanding of the plaintiff's position.

Raven's method of making Dibble's position unmistakable was ponderous but probably inevitable. He introduced a mass of letters and wires dating from the early '40's to 1950 and questioned Dibble on each document. Since Dibble was dealing almost continually with each of the defendants (Universal, Columbia and 20th-Fox, plus National Theatres and Fox West Coast, are the others) the going was mighty slow.

Dibble's Points

Among points Dibble brought out were:

1) When Fox West Coast moved its second-run Frisco from the State to the Alcazar (converted from legit to films in late 1942), with the State becoming first-run moveover, the Embassy was not allowed to bid for second-run—Dibble "thought it was unjust discrimination not to allow us to compete" with a house which had just entered the film field;

2) Dibble stopped buying Columbia in 1944 and didn't resume for five years, because Columbia had "reneged" on promised lower-bracket prices—"I couldn't under any circumstances buy those additional approximately 20 pictures and pay (Columbia) $103 (per film) that we had been paying $20 and $40 for . . . they weren't much in the way of pictures, anyway";

3) Dibble stopped buying Metro product from 1945 to 1947 because "the sliding scale they had set up for the Embassy was very rough." prices in various brackets had been raised 25 to 85 per cent and "it was an utter impossibility of meeting any such price increases";

4) After the 1946 Paramount case decision, Dibble asked branch managers and higher distribution execs, both orally and in writing, for the right to bid on first-run product, but kept getting brushed off — "when the decision came down," he testified, "the picture seemed to be completely changed," but it wasn't;

5) In April, 1947, the Embassy finally got RKO second-run on a 60-day availability—which Dibble protested—and the other majors all fell in line, except Columbia;

6) In July, 1948, Dibble protested to Loew's about paying a 35 per cent minimum and was told that was "national policy" — Dibble claimed this just wasn't so and that the minimum was "an unfair trade practice";

7) As late as April, 1950, Dibble buttonholed Jack Warner at the Frisco Press Club for help in getting first-run and got nowhere.

Some of Dibble's letters to distributors bore the notation that copies had been sent to Morrison, Hofeld, Foerster, Shuman & Clark, the Frisco law firm representing the exhibitor in court. Judge Murphy seized on one of these letters, dated some time in 1945, and asked Dibble about the notation. The exhibitor explained he thought the notation might just "bring a little strength to bear to overcome this impossible situation."

The Judge asked:

"At the time you wrote the letter . . . were you contemplating a lawsuit against any of these defendants?"

"No, your honor," replied Dibble.

"Had you ever discussed the possibility," the Judge pressed, "with Morrison, Hofeld, Foerster, Shuman & Clark or any other firm of attorneys?"

"No sir," answered Dibble.

Dibble testimony about "the time Fox West Coast-Loew's-Warner-Metro pool was broken up" was stricken from the record, at Bennett's motion, and as the week ended the defense lawyers were readying cross-examination for the exhibitor.

Kaye's 'Red Nichols' Biog May Go Via UA, Latter Compensating Paramount

Hollywood, April 29.

Red Nichols biopic, "Five Little Pennies," to star Danny Kaye, will be made by producer-writing team of Mel Shavelson and Jack Rose for United Artists instead of Paramount, if current talks are finalized.

Team originally planned the project for Paramount, but the AFM work stoppage against the major film studios caused a postponement of the film. Now negotiations are on whereby UA would take over the project, that company being willing to pay Par what it has invested in it thus far. At the same time the indie team is seeking an interim settlement with the AFM so that it can proceed with the picture when the UA-Paramount talks are finished.

Shavelson and Rose would like to start shooting the film May 15. This would enable Kaye to finish in time so he could keep his Aug. 20-Sept. 6 date headlining the Canadian National Exposition at Toronto.

Bardot in Puerto Rico

San Juan, April 29.

Because European films usually do poor business here, Harold Winston, headman at Columbia Pictures branch, requested and got an English language print of "And God Created Woman." (Kingsley).

For the local viewers Spanish titles have been dubbed in the English print of this French picture starring Bridgitte Bardot. Winston states b.o. with the Tower of Babel print is excellent.

Marlon Brando's 'Guns Up' For Par Returns Rosenberg To Theatrical Features

Hollywood, April 29.

Pennebaker Inc. exec producers George Glass and Walter Seltzer have signed Frank P. Rosenberg to produce company's first film, "Guns Up," starring Marlon Brando, and to roll the end of June at Paramount. Financing and releasing are both by Par.

Rosenberg thus returns to theatrical films, where for years he was a producer at Warner Bros. The past year he has been in tv film, producing Schlitz Playhouse at Revue. "Guns Up" was acquired by Pennebaker for $150,000, that price tag being for the Charles Neider tome and a screenplay by Sam Peckinpah. Brando may make his directorial debut on the film.

Second Pennebaker film will be "The Raging Man," for United Artists. Company has a treatment by Marian Thompson of the book, "Shake Hands With the Devil," by Rearden Connor. Film, to star James Cagney and Tony Perkins, will roll in Ireland, with Glass and Seltzer as producers.

Pennebaker's acquisition of "Guns Up," means the tentatively titled "Ride, Comanchero" will be pushed back to next spring—in 1959. Incidentally, Pennebaker is dropping that title due to protests from George Stevens, who has film rights to Paul Wellman's novel, "The Comancheros." Company feels it has "arguable" rights but decided not to argue the point.

Dick Walsh Counter-Sued

Los Angeles, April 29.

Thomas C. Haisch, expelled member of IATSE Prop Local 44 whom Richard F. Walsh, IA International prexy, sued for $100,000 in libel action last February, filed a counter-suit over weekend for $100,000 in L. A. Superior Court.

Haisch charged that Walsh and other union members had conspired to expel him from his job. Named also in countersuit were Frank O'Connor, Local 44 prexy; Edwin T. Hill, secretary-treasurer of local, and Bullingham C. Duval, biz rep.

In his complaint, Walsh claimed that Haisch in letters sent out generally had implied that IA topper was a racketeer, and had mishandled union funds. Haisch, in his suit, said that everything he had mentioned in his letter about Walsh was true.

Russian Film Negotiations' Blues

[COMPANIES, JOHNSTON GOT 'EM]

Confusion aplenty reigned this week in the continuing film talks with the Soviets.

Several things were clear, however. The Russians had discussed the sale of certain of their pictures with different companies, each of whom thought they would get them. Neither the industry nor the government liked the openly quid-pro-quo approach taken by the Soviets in their dealings. And several of the companies had no policy at all.

All this was the subject of an extensive powwow Monday (28) when Eric Johnston called a special meeting of the Motion Picture Export Assn. board prior to his returning to Washington for further huddles with the Russians.

Feeling among the companies this week was that, despite the problems that had arisen, there would be a deal. "There has to be one," was one comment. "Our Government wants it, the Soviets also seem committed to it and they can't very well afford to come back empty-handed."

At the Monday meeting in N. Y., very little was accomplished, with the company reps telling Johnston they'd communicate their specific views to him in time for new talks with the Soviets. Turner Shelton, head of the U. S. Information Agency's film division, made it plain that, on the one hand, the government wanted American films in Russia. At the same time, he also stressed the undesirability of any quid-pro-quo arrangement that could be interpreted as an "exchange."

The Russians, in their talks with the individual companies, have insisted on strict "mutuality," i.e. they wouldn't buy any company's films unless that company bought from them. There is interest in a number of the Soviet features which Sovexport boss, Alexander Davydov, brought with him.

At the same time, MPEA is sharply and uncomfortably aware of the fact that anything resembling a quid-pro-quo might be used as a convenient precedent by other countries long eager for some sort of reciprocity.

At the meeting Monday, one of the suggestions was to have negotiations for the sale of the U. S. films handled by MPEA (as apparently was originally intended), with the Soviets selling their pictures individually to each of the companies. However, the MPEA license for Russia has expired and the association now is acting primarily in a liaison capacity.

All deals and arrangements must be approved by an "official" government - industry committee in Washington on which Johnston and Shelton are reps. This group has been trying to find a compromise approach with the Russians on their "mutuality" demands.

Not all of the companies are directly involved. For instance, the Soviets didn't pick any Paramount films. 20th-Fox sent a rep to the MPEA board meet Monday, but he had no definite instructions, 20th prexy Spyros P. Skouras having given none prior to his departure for Europe.

It became clear last week, in the wake of the Soviets' huddles with most of the companies, that the Russians put a different interpretation on the cultural exchange accord between Moscow and the U. S., i.e. the pact under which these negotiations are being carried out. Still, with the pressure of Washington behind it, it's felt that there will be a mutual sale of films between the two countries.

Show Biz Delegates Praise London

Continued from page 4

current one. Pledges received on that day totalled $2,519,000, but many of the delegates suggested that they were making conservative estimates. A jury of tradepapermen, representing the British, American and Canadian press, voted the Philadelphia Tent as the champion Tent for 1957. Philadelphia has set itself a $300,000 target for the current year.

At the session to elect new international officers, a British member was chosen for the first time ever. James Carreras, a former chief barker who held office for two consecutive years, was returned unopposed as property master. George Eby of Pittsburgh was named International Chief Barker in succession to John Rowley and Edward Emmanuel (Philadelphia) stepped up from second to first assistant chief barker. Rotus Harvey, former property master, was named second assistant. The only position to be contested was that of dough guy. Ezra Stern (Los Angeles) was voted in by a narrow margin over Ralph Pires (Philadelphia). On election day, too, it was agreed that the 1960 meet should be held in Toronto, Canada.

Three Events Covered by TV

Three of the social events were covered for commercial tv by Associated-Rediffusion. Originally they had agreed that after paying artists' fees they would donate $1,400 to the Variety Club Heart Fund, but John McMillan, A-R's program controller, said his company has decided to quadruple that amount and handed over a check for $5,600. The artists who appeared, among them Julie Wilson, Channing Pollock and Dick Shawn, all agreed to waive their fees in favor of the Variety Club. In similar vein, Charles Forte, who catered the lunch at Elstree Studios, hosted by Associated British Pictures, asked that the check which would normally have been made out to his company be endorsed in favor of the Variety Club.

In addition to the two very formal events that opened and closed the conclave, there were two social gatherings hosted in turn by Coco-Cola and Pepsi-Cola. Coca Cola tossed a black tie supper party at the Savoy with full dancing facilities. Pepsi-Cola, for its part, took over the Grand Ballroom at Grosvenor House and had 1,100 guests seated in one room. The cabaret at this shindig was covered by A-R and in addition to the talent mentioned above, included Bobby Smart, Sabrina and Dickie Henerson as emcee.

The ladies were taken care of at a trio of daytime functions, starting off with a tour of the countryside and a visit to Windsor Castle, lunch and a fashion show sponsored by Max Factor at the Savoy, and a buffet luncheon at which Mrs. Billy Butlin was hostess.

Canada's Famous Players Pay $1.28

Toronto, April 29.

On decreased attendance and rental revenue, Famous Players (Canadian) has dropped its common share dividend to $1.28 from the previous year's $1.56. This was revealed to shareholders in the 38th annual report covering operations in 1957. The consolidated balance sheet, plus profit and loss statement, was presented by J. J. Fitzgibbons, president and managing director and Reuben Bolstad, comptroller.

Earning operations showed $3,492,583 for 1957 as against $4,042,865 for the previous 12-month period. The net profit for 1957 was $2,220,186, as compared with the 1956 figure of $2,738,455.

Fitzgibbons praised the "record revenues" obtained by FP-Can in the lengthy runs of "10 Commandments" and "Around the World in 80 Days"; plus the leasing of theatres in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver to Cinerama distributors. He said: "The major suppliers of film are meeting television competition on production values, though their new programs include an increased number of specialized attractions requiring changes in operating policies and the installation of special projection and sound equipment to accommodate this new trend."

Pointing out that the number of shareholders of FP-Can, as of February 20, was 8,641, with 8,477 resident in Canada, Fitzgibbons also referred to the "unfair and discriminatory aspects of the Amusement Tax Act as it relates to the motion picture industry." He said: "With the release of old movies to television, the extent of discrimination has become even greater. Your company is continuing to make representations on this tax to the various Provincial and municipal governments concerned. While some progress has been made, we are frankly disappointed by the lack of consideration which most Governments have given the motion picture industry in this matter. Overall, the Amusement Taxes Act takes nearly nine cents out of each dollar of box office revenue. This total burden is indeed a discriminatory one."

Switching to FP-Can television activities, Fitzgibbons said that "your company" has a 50% interest in an English-language station in Quebec City (CKMI) and has made an additional investment of $550,000 there this year; plus added studio space for live programs produced over the French-language station (CFCM-TV) in that city, now in its third year of operation. He also reported that FP-Can has the Canadian rights to the Lawrence television color tube; and the Canadian rights to pay-as-you-see television system as developed by International Telemeter Corp., a subsidiary of Paramount Pictures Corp., of which FP-Can is the Canadian proponent. With the U. S. installation of Telemeter, the Canadian company plans its first venture in pay-television at the same time.

Stipulations are now being filed in the $3,000,000 anti-trust suits filed recently by members of the Serrao family against the major film distributors and Warner Theatres and Stanley Warner Management Corp.

New York Theatre

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • CI 6-4600
"MARJORIE MORNINGSTAR"
Starring
GENE KELLY • NATALIE WOOD
A Warner Bros. Release • In WarnerColor
and GALA NEW STAGE SPECTACLE

Designed by MAURICE BINDER

JOHN Raitt

JOHN Raitt

JOHN Raitt

JOHN Raitt

JOHN Raitt

JOHN Raitt

JOHN Raitt

Agency/SHURR-MELNICK

Personal Management/PIERRE COSSETTE

PAJAMA GAME
WARNER BROS.

ANNIE GET YOUR GUN
NBC

SHOWER OF STARS
CBS

NEXT SUNDAY'S DINAH SHORE SHOW
NBC

MAY 30th
PATRICE MUNSEL SHOW
ABC

JUNE 22nd thru SEPT. 28th
CHEVY SHOW-
SUNDAYS, NBC

PREMIERE
NIGHT CLUB ENGAGEMENT
COCOANUT GROVE
OCTOBER 8th

Doerfer Champions Editorializing On the Air—Don't Wait Until It's 'Safe'

Los Angeles, April 29.

John C. Doerfer, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, who has been put through the Congressional wringer to a succession of page 1 embarrasments in the nation's dailies, spoke up today (Tues.) before the NAB convention in a vigorous defense of editorializing on the air. In fact, he chided the broadcasters for failure to follow up their conquest on the right to editorilaize and warned that "if you wait until 'it is safe' you may be too late."

"Apparently," said Doerfer, "the shock of such an unexpected victory in 1948 has left the broadcasting industry too dazed to properly exploit the breakthrough. "But 10 years is a long time to stand in stunned silence—especially when the press continues to appropriate this field unabated and virtually unchallenged by the only other effective medium of mass communication that exists."

Just as the devoting of a part of the newspaper to editorializing has not affected adversely circulation of advertising revenues, Doerfer saw no reason why a good editorial program should drive away sponsors and audience. "In fact," he added, "new and exciting programming should attract both."

"Perhaps the biggest fear on the part of a broadcaster, contemplating an editorial program," said Doerfer, "is the possibility of reprisals by public officials. But upon examination this should prove groundless. Local authorities have no power over broadcasting. Threatened or attempted recriminations can be no more effective than against the local newspaper publisher."

Colgate's 'Dotto' Day-Nite Ride But On Different Nets

Colgate, currently riding high with its daytime "Dotto" on CBS-TV, is now negotiating for a nighttime version of the quizzer, and from all indications plans to place the show on NBC-TV this summer, riding with it through next season. This type of inter-network split on the same property last happened with another Colgate show, "Strike It Rich," some years ago when it was an NBC daytimer but ran as a nighttime show on CBS-TV.

Deal for nighttime rights isn't wrapped up yet, but Colgate and its multiple agencies are working out the details with the Frank Cooper agency, which owns the show and which produces the daytimer. It's understood Colgate is eyeing the Tuesday at 9 period on NBC-TV, which is being vacated come July by Procter & Gamble and "Meet McGraw." NBC has been planning on a quiz show as the permanent "McGraw" replacement.

"Dotto," with Jack Narz as emcee, replaced "Strike It Rich" for Colgate at the beginning of the year, and within a couple of months spurted to the top ranks of the tv daytimers. Colgate figures that with this kind of audience base, it ought to be able to duplicate the feat at night.

GEN'L MILLS' 'CORNER' CAESAR'S SUMMER SUB

"Baseball Corner" is taking over the Sid Caesar Sunday at 9 spot for the summer, beginning June 1, for General Mills. Produced by Ed Scherick's Sports Programs Inc., the stanza has tentatively been planned as a video tape presentation.

Scherick wants to use tape for the show, which is being built around a panel of baseball personalities, since most of the ballplayers are in the process of travelling Sabbath nights, when the show goes on. Idea is to tape the bull session on the Friday before the telecast. Show might be located in Chicago.

200G Ford Grant To Broadcast Foundation

The Ford Foundation made a grant of $200,000 to the Broadcasting Foundation of America last week to help promote the exchange of radio programs between American outlets and similar groups in Europe and the Far East.

The grant will make it possible for the BFA to set up active quarters in New York for the duplication on tape of programs from overseas and for their distribution in the states. WNYC, the municipal broadcasting voice, and WBAI, FM outlet atop the Hotel Pierre, will broadcast many of the international features in the metropolitan area. More thon 70 other stations in key cities will also carry the programs as a public service.

Robert Redfield, chairman of the board of BFA, made the announcement of the grant. Previous support has come from the Rockefeller Foundation, the Creole Foundation and the Peter J. Schweitzer Foundation.

MBS' Tough Spot On Clearances; Affil Drive Set

Los Angeles, April 29.

Despite an optimistic forecast of black ink for the Mutual network next year by board chairman Armand Hammer, it was evident at the web's affiliate meeting here in conjunction with the NAB convention that the network is beset by more than its share of problems.

Topmost on the list is the station clearance picture, with an increasing number failing to clear for the five-minute hourly newscasts by the web. In light of the fact that contractually, these periods are supposed to be pre-cleared on 460 stations, network indicated it was almost helpless in its plea for clearances.

"Some of you affiliates," station relations director Chuck King said, "either don't understand the contract or are not living up to its obligations." He and others emphasized that lack of clearances on the contractually automatically-cleared period was costing Mutual money in form of rebates to advertisers and hindering its sales efforts.

Mutual revealed another weakness in lack of affiliates in many of the top 100 markets, and announced beginning of a drive this week to enlist new affiliates in key situations. A presentation, shown to the affils, stresses the fact that Mutual requires the least among stations of all four networks, taking up only 11% of the average station schedule.

Biggest problem, though, was revealed to be station apathy to Mu-

(Continued on page 68)

JIMMY DANNY
NELSON AND O'DAY
With FARFEL and FTATATEETA
Currently TV spokesman for the NESTLE CO.
Booking: William Morris Agency.

Recession? Chevy $10-Mil on Dinah

Chevrolet last week renewed its $10,000,000 Dinah Shore "Chevy Show," on NBC-TV for another 52 weeks, and it now looks as if the fears of network execs that the recession in the auto industry would hurt next season's sponsorship pictures have been unfounded. With Chevrolet moving back full-blast (it already has renewed Pat Boone on ABC) and Ford having made major commitments, it's now virtually certain everyone else will be back as big as ever.

Renewal calls for Miss Shore to expand her schedule. She'll do three shows out of every four, as compared to 26 shows this season. Whether she'll continue on into the summer of '59 isn't certain; she's not skedded to appear this summer. Show will again be in color in the Sunday 9 to 10 period, with Henry Jaffe Enterprises continuing as producer.

HAYES, HEALY'S 'NO TIME FOR GODFREY'

Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy have asked to be released from their contract as substitutes for Arthur Godfrey on the CBS "Arthur Godfrey Time" simulcast. They'll do a pinchhitting assignment for Godfrey the week of May 12 and then bow out.

Reason is that they are on the prowl for a daytime CBS-TV assignment. They are also currently heard on CBS Radio in the five-a-week "Peter and Mary Show."

Jackie's 'Skippy' Pilot

Jackie Cooper's "Skippy" tv series will be unveiled in pilot form in New York by May 15. Skein, produced and directed by Cooper under his own banner, was inspired by his click "Skippy" film when he was a kid star.

Cooper is bringing in the series in conjunction with the Nasser Bros. studio on the Coast.

Ampex Scorecard; 31 Stations Come Aboard, First Color Units Sold

Los Angeles, April 29.

Total of 31 stations in the U. S. already have Ampex videotape installations and are using them locally on a daily basis. Moreover, Ampex is now turning out its units at the rate of one a day, and has business to continue at that rate indefinitely.

Ampex officials at the NAB convention here have also sold their first color units, three of them. Ampex color, just on the market as a result of a cross-licensing agreement with RCA, comes in the form of an additional rack on the existing black & white unit or a complementary new machine. CBS-TV purchased two new color units; WGN-TV, Chicago, bought a color rack and becomes the first color-tape equipped indie in the country.

Apart from the station sales, Ampex has a total of 44 in use at the three networks, with CBS having 24, NBC 11 and ABC nine. Ampex has sold six units to the CBC-TV in Canada for use in Calgary, has sold units to England, Japan and Germany. On the nonbroadcasting side, it has three units with commercial producers, Filmways, Telestudios and Elliot, Unger & Elliot, and has also sold units to the Government and one to a racetrack (see separate box).

Though Ampex officials wouldn't estimate their gross on viedotape thus far, sales indicate that it's approaching the $5,000.000 mark. That's based on a production model price of $45,000 each, plus the difference paid on the initial prototype models, which went for $75,000.

Only new additional feature added to machine at the current convention is a splicer, which sells for about $700 and enables stations to splice program segments, commercials, etc. Splicer mounts right on a block designed for that purpose on the original unit.

Stations are already using tape

(Continued on page 66)

Clifton Utley Berthed In Chi for a Motive

Chicabo, April 29.

WNBQ's Clifton Utley, winner of this year's DuPont trophy for radio-tv news commentary, explained to the Chi Council on Foreign Relations last week why a topnotch commentator remains in Chicago instead of going to cities where the tangible rewards are greater.

Apart from a necessity to be near his doctor, Utley says he makes Chicago his base because the need for understanding foreign affairs is greatest in the midwest, which is physically isolated from the shores. A commentator faces a greater challenge in such a climate, Utley believes, and can do his country a greater service in the midwest than anywhere else.

"It amounts to this," he says "In the whole history of this country, foreign affairs have been controlled by public negation rather than affirmation. And of all places negation has come preponderantly from the middle west. This does not give our diplomacy the added deftness that is necessary to cope with the quick changes of Soviet diplomacy, freed, as it is, of almost all necessity to consider its public opinion."

FM's 'Secret Life' Blocks Progress: Frieda Hennock

Los Angeles, April 29.

Lack of available data on FM receiver sales and circulation is doing great damage to the progress of the medium, former FCC Commissioner Frieda Hennock charged at the NAB convention here. Speaking from the floor at a panel meeting on FM yesterday (Mon.), Miss Hennock declared that the lack of data is a weapon in the "covetous eyes of those who would cut the FM band down to nothing."

Miss Hennock's remarks followed a report by Ben Strouse, prez of WWDC-FM in Washington, on a poll of receiver manufacturers, which while citing optimism and expansion on the part of the setmakers, did not reveal specific sales figures. Miss Hennock charged that in her capacity as a Washington attorney, she had been hampered in petitions opposing changes in the FM band by the absence of any specific figures on the number of FM receivers in the country.

"I finally had to admit that I didn't know how many FM receivers there are, and estimated them at between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000," she said. "But we estimated them at 12,000,000 when I was on the FCC. That was in 1948, and this is 1958. How can we get

(Continued on page 66)

Ampex On a Horse

Los Angeles, April 29.

Yonkers Raceway, the trotting track in Westchester County, N. Y., currently undergoing reconstruction, has purchased an Ampex videotape recorder for the purpose of getting instantaneous playback of the full length of a race to determine fouls and other violations.

Track is equipped with vidicon cameras for that purpose, but in the past made kinescopes of the races for study later. Use of the Ampex unit eliminates the delays and costs of film processing. Other than the Government, Yonkers is the first non-broadcasting user of videotape.

'The Spectre of Jukebox TV'

Los Angeles, April 29.

A warning that a "system of jukebox television" may result from imminent decisions on allocations was issued to members of the Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters at its annual meeting here at the NAB convention.

The alert came from Ernest W. Jennes, Washington lawyer and counsel to MST, who said that the future of television will be "put on the line, perhaps by the latter part of this year and certainly in 1959." Jennes said that upcoming decisions on allocations will result in "a great struggle as to whether the system of maximum service television we now have—maximum both in program service and coverage—will be abandoned for a system of jukebox television."

Jennes specifically attacked the ABC proposal for four tv stations in each of the top 200 markets, declaring that this "cannot be accomplished without taking a knife and butchering existing allocations, policies and service areas." He called on the MST membership to devote their resources to fact-gathering projects which would enable the Government to make "reasoned and sensible" solutions.

Lester W. Lindow, exec director of the organization, reviewed the work of MST and warned the membership not to be lulled into a false sense of confidence because of MST's victories so far. He expressed particular concern over efforts to change regulations governing mileage separation between stations on the same frequency.

Members elected three new directors, C. Wrede Petersmeyer, WISH-TV, Indianapolis; Harold Essex, WSJS-TV, Winston-Salem, and Alex Keese, WFAA-TV, Dallas, and elected 16 incumbents to the board. Jack Harris of KPRC-TV, Houston, was reelected president; Charles H. Crutchfield of WBTV, Charlotte, was reelected first v.p.; Don Davis of KMBC-TV, Kansas City, reelected second v.p.; Essex was chosen as the new secretary-treasurer, succeeding Harold Gross of WJIM-TV, Lansing; and Lindow was elected assistant secretary-treasurer in addition to his exec director duties.

NABbing a Plug

Los Angeles, April 29.

Shades of Marconi, a soaper comes to grips with life, and the NAB gets a free plug.

Today's (Tues.) presentation of CBS Radio's weeper, "Right to Happiness," had the femme asking the hero about his proposed meeting with the general manager of a radio station. "Oh, he's at the annual NAB convention in Los Angeles," the hero sighed.

P&G Cancels Out On Phil Silvers; Schick Eyes Him

Procter & Gamble is pulling out of "The Phil Silvers Show" come the fall due to CBS-TV's insistence on a firm 52-week commitment for the show. R. J. Reynolds, Silvers' original sponsor, is staying on with its alternate-week.

Though CBS isn't usually insistent on firm 52-week deals, and in fact negotiates in terms of 13 or 26-week cycles as a matter of course, it took a firm stand on the Silvers show. For one thing, it's committed to the show itself for a firm 52 weeks, and for another, it felt that the Silvers segment is going so strong in its new Friday night slot that P&G wouldn't fight the 52-week commitment very hard.

As it turned out, P&G meant business, and went through with the cancellation. CBS isn't too concerned about the difficulty of finding an alternate for Reynolds, however, with Schick reported to have inked in P&G's place.

NAB ON PROGRAMMING—ZERO

Convention On a Bicycle

Los Angeles, April 29.

Sprawled-out conventions necessitating a two-hotel headquarters (Statler and Biltmore) are nothing new to NAB delegates. But the abundance of "conflicts" in the booking of major shindigs forced an uptown-downtown bicycling routine that was nothing short of dizzying. Practically everybody was on a merry-go-round trying to touch base on the dove-tailed partying-cocktailing-buffeting and dining.

Both NBC and CBS, though they were more or less on the convention's periphery with a catching-up-with-the-affiliates as their primary motive in attendance, nonetheless staged major gatherings that were in direct conflict with two purely-NAB major convention functions.

One was last night's (Mon.) reception and dinner staged for the NBC radio and tv affiliates, with NBC taking over the Ambassador Hotel's Cocoanut Grove for a snazzy evening of festivities. Running concurrent with the NBC function was the annual Broadcast Music Inc. dinner for present and past officers of the NAB and BMI—which traditionaly brings out practically every key broadcaster as an event where "You gotta be seen." And its Beverly Hilton location—the closest thing to a "sleeper jump" from the Ambassador—didn't help matters.

Tomorrow (Wed.) night's CBS "black tie" cocktail-buffet at Romanoff's in honor of prexy Lou Cowan and Coast veepee Bill Dozier is in direct competition with the NAB convention's highlight—the annual banquet, literally miles away at the Biltmore Ballroom.

'I Pledge Allegiance to My FCC' Keys NAB Vote of Confidence As Agency Defies Isolation Booth

Los Angeles, April 29.

Whatever the future program of the FCC, it will not include an isolation booth.

Told, in effect, by the Congressional sleuths (Harris, Moulder, et al.) to hold themselves more aloof and divorce themselves from any personal or social rapport with the broadcasters, the FCC members nonetheless, in a remarkable display of courage, have been making their presence very well known at this year's annual NAB convention.

The broadcasters, in kind, have been responding with a resounding vote of confidence and pledge of allegiance to its FCC. This, perhaps above all else, stands out as the major "event" of the L. A. confab.

For the FCC to have buckled down under the Congressional pressures by isolating themselves from industry people would, in the considered opinion of many, have a negative effect both upon the broadcasting industry and its official Government agency. On the one hand, broadcasters would be restricted to second-hand dealings through FCC staff aides who are neither in a position to speak for the commissioners nor fully grasp their intentions, while the FCC would have less and less first-hand knowledge or understanding of the very problems they are asked to cope with.

From NAB prexy Harold E. Fel-

(Continued on page 68)

Nixon Nods AM

Washington, April 29.

Joining in observance of National Radio Month in May, Vice President Nixon last week praised the medium for earning for itself "a unique and unparalleled niche" among the media.

Videotape Cues Rough Issue On Labor-Mgt. Front

By BOB CHANDLER

Los Angeles, April 29.

Impact of technological improvements in radio and tv broadcasting is becoming an increasing matter of concern on the local level in labor-management bargaining. In the short time that videotape alone has reached the local level, it has become a sore point in union-management negotiations.

Discussion of technological advances in general and videotape in particular highlighted the annual labor clinic at the NAB convention here yesterday (Mon.). Vic Sholis, head of WHAS-TV, Louisville, one of 30-odd stations already utilizing videotape, related his experiences in union negotiations on tape in the month since his unit has been installed.

Negotiations are being held with both AFTRA and IBEW, which currently have jurisdiction at WHAS-TV. AFTRA's current contract with the station does not employ the

(Continued on page 68)

CLEAR CHANNEL ORG'S 'GROUP' PLEA TO FCC

Los Angeles, April 29.

Clear channel broadcasters service membership unanimously voted to file comment as a group before the FCC on proposed rule-making which would break down 12 of the nation's 24 clear channels. Resolution was voted at a meeting here during the NAB convention.

Comment will be filed by CCBS on July 15, opening date set by FCC for filing of arguments on the proposal. Meeting here didn't set specifics on content of the comment, but the key point to be made will be the CCBS request for immediate action to raise authorized power for the clear channel outlets from the present 50 k.w. limit.

'Tombstone' to NBC Mon.-Oater Night

Los Angeles, April 29.

Bristol-Myers is moving its "Tombstone Territory" from ABC-TV to NBC in the fall, and will place it in the Monday at 9 slot, giving NBC a solid 90 minutes of westerns that night. At the same time, ABC-TV has received an order from Campbell for half the new "Donna Reed Show" out of the Screen Gems stable, which will be moved into Wednesday at 8:30 as the "Tombstone" replacement.

Monday slotting of "Tombstone" means that Pharmaceuticals' "Twenty-One" will shift to another slot, Thursdays at 8 as the Groucho Marx replacement. Groucho moves to Thursday at 10. "Tombstone" will follow "Restless Gun" and "Wells Fargo" on Monday nights from 8 to 9:30. There's a similar 90-minute western block slated for Tuesday, with "Cimarron City" set for 7:30 to 8:30 and "Bat Masterson" at 8:30 to 9.

NO. 1 SORE SPOT NOT ON AGENDA

Los Angeles, April 29.

Management and engineering problems are the major agenda items to the exclusion of virtually everything else at this year's NAB meet, a situation applicable to previous years as well. Yet it's the feeling among many delegates to the annual conclave that the parent industry association has muffed a golden opportunity this time out in failing to do something about the No. 1 sore spot in broadcasting—programming.

For years it's been a source of perplexity to many in the radio-tv circles that nowhere in the whole wide industry orbit is there a common meeting place for a wholesale and constructive examination of the state of programming in broadcasting. As the only representative organization for the industry, it's the feeling that the responsibility rests with NAB to devote at least a portion of its annual management meeting to the ever-increasing perplexities of programming, both on a local station level and network programming.

It's the considered opinion of many that this year, above all years, was the appropriate time to tackle the situation head-on by virtue of the fact that programming in general (both local and network) is in a state of dullness and lethargy, with practically everybody groping for some fresh ideas and formats. As one dissenter to the limitations of the present NAB agenda put it: "Broadcasting is only as good as its programming. The only way to perpetuate a free television and defeat the champions of pay-tv is to revitalize our program structures and keep the set owners happy. Mediocrity, no matter how free it is, can only be an open invitation to change—and that change will be fee-tv."

Thus it's considered somewhat ironic that Harold E. Fellows, NAB prexy, proved himself a dedicated and persuasive man during the past year in carrying the torch coast-to-coast for a continuance of the present system of free television, as opposed to the advocates of feevee; yet instead of crystallizing such staunch dedication with a rousing, free-for-all program semester for a healthy, wholesale kickaround of the program problems besetting the industry and inaugurating a constructive plan of action for the future in which stations, networks and agencies could participate, NAB "sat it out" completely for a continuance of the management - engineering status quo.

Coming Soon: A Tornado On the TV Screen: It's Done By 'Collins Radar'

Los Angeles, April 29.

Technical exhibits at the annual NAB conventions are usually cut-and-dried affairs, but Collins Radio, a leading equipment manufacturer, had something of an eye-opener in a complete radar package being offered to telecasters.

Idea is for tv stations to use the radar on the air, on weather shows. One station which has already done so with a Collins unit is WFAA-TV, Dallas, on its Warren Culberson weathercast. Station mounted it on the studio roof and the radar screen in the studio it's prepared area maps, which it lays over the radar screen. Home viewer then sees on the map, by means of the radar echoes and white and dark areas, just where there's cloudiness, rain or turbulence, all of this translated into lay terms by Culberson.

Radar unit also is used by the station to update its U. S. Weather Bureau reports, also to check quick-moving weather phenomena like tornadoes. WFAA-TV unit is the first to be installed by Collins, but it is currently building another at WMT, Cedar Rapids.

'Survival of our Freedom as Trade May Depend on How We Exercise Leadership Thrust on Us': Stanton

Los Angeles, April 29.

The broadcasting industry is no longer merely an extension of other informational media, but "we have had leadership thrust upon us—whatever the risks, whatever the harassments, whatever the discouragements," Frank Stanton, president of CBS, told the NAB convention here today (Tues.).

Stanton, this year's recipient of the NAB Keynote Award, warned the broadcasters that "the survival of our freedom as an industry—as well as that of all of us as a people—may well depend upon how we exercise it."

Stanton refrained from specific condemnation of the Congressional inquisitioners who have been putting the industry through a trying period in which the CBS prexy has been playing one of the major "rebuttal" roles, although at one point he alluded to "irresponsible action in Washington." Instead he focused attention on the responsibilities of the broadcasters in meeting the challenges of "The New Age."

In an age over which hangs the threat of ICBM warfare, "with all the speedy, unpredictable devastation that it implies," Stanton said the broadcasters were in a position to meet this responsibility "if their essential strength and structure are not impaired and if we put our minds to it without qualification."

"Networks and stations must continue to work together," he cautioned. "Only through the networks can events be transmitted simultaneously to the whole nation, and only through individual stations can local aspects of national problems be dealt with fully and effectively."

Stanton's 'Four Fronts'

Stanton said there were four fronts on which the broadcasters could move:

1.) "We must resist with vigor and unity of purpose all short-sighted efforts—however well intended—to weaken the basic structure of broadcasting. Sound practices and economic health are the minimum essentials of getting the job done."

2.) "We must ourselves take a fresh look at the 'public interest, convenience and necessity,' never

(Continued on page 66)

Paley Went Thataway

Los Angeles, April 29.

William S. Paley was among those honored by the Broadcast Pioneers at this year's NAB session, but the CBS board chairman was nowhere in sight. Paley, in fact, went the other way, flying to London, to be precise, for the opening of "My Fair Lady." As 40% owner of the show, having put up the original investment of $360,000 for the Broadway production, Paley had no trouble cuffoing a couple of tickets. ("Lady" premiere tickets were the "hottest" buy in the past 100 years of British theatregoing).

Paley is staying at the Embassy as the guest of his brother-in-law, Ambassador John Hay Whitney.

Fellows Praises FCC for 'Service To Our People'

Los Angeles, April 29.

Harold E. Fellows, president of the National Assn. of Broadcasters, in his annual address to convention delegates took a healthy swipe at the "careless, the thoughtless and the questionable charges of young and eager headline hunters" as he came to the defense of the Federal Communications Commission and its staff for their contribution "to the service of our people in developing America's free broadcasting."

"If what has been established here as a service to our citizens is good enough to have altered in revolutionary fashion the leisure-time living habits of almost every family in the nation, then it must be quite a development," Fellows said. "It could not have happened in the past, nor be happening now, in the absence of honest and intelligent decisions on the part of the Federal body that regulates us."

Fellows alluded to the recommendations of the Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight for a code of ethics governing the conduct of Executive agency administrators and commissioners and relationship between industry and government. "If that relationship must be spelled out in a code of ethics," Fellows said, "either on the part of Government or on the part of

(Continued on page 66)

TELEPROMPTER CAN BE BOUGHT, BUT ISN'T

Los Angeles, April 29.

Teleprompter Corp., which since its start has made its prompting equipment available only on a lease basis, has done a turnabout and is selling the equipment outright for the first time at the NAB convention here. The teleprompter station package employing a single unit is going at $3,700.

Interestingly enough, station reaction has been nearly negative to the outright sale proposition, with prexy Irving Kahn reporting that several stations which had been insisting on the right to buy doing a turnabout and deciding to lease after all. Under the lease setup, Teleprompter provides parts and service on equipment free of charge. New setup doesn't affect Teleprompter's other equipment, notably rear-screen projection, which has always been sold outright.

ABC-TV & Affils 'A Happy Family'

Los Angeles, April 29.

ABC-TV's early start in fall programming and sales paid off at its affiliates meeting here last week prior to the opening of the NAB convention. Meeting was one of the most peaceful ABC-TV sessions in some time, with nary a squawk from the stations.

Only beef, in fact, came from ABC itself, which asked the stations for better cooperation in clearing time for the John Daly newscasts at 10:30 to 10:45 p.m. nightly. Network has met favorable advertiser response to the idea of a late-night strip, but its clearance picture has hurt it in firming up orders. Stations haven't cleared because 10:30 is station option time, but ABC asked for a special effort in the Daly show.

Otherwise, some station execs, who had their doubts about the wisdom of the web in switching Tom Moore from sales topper to head of programming, were won over following Moore's delivery of the fall programming presentation. So mild was the tone of the meeting that ABC's sales of one-minute participations within some programs, customarily a sore point with affiliates, wasn't even brought up.

H'wood More Adaptable on 11th Hour Maneuvers in Telefilm Production

When it comes to staging for telefilm production, quick switches from pre-production plans in scenery and props, Hollywood facilities continue to have it over N. Y. studios, according to Don Weis, freelance telefilm director.

Weis, who has just completed two episodes of "Rendezvous" for CBS-TV, utilizing the Pathe Studios in N. Y., spoke in praise of eastern technical crews, maintaining that a better esprit de corps prevails in the east. But when it comes to unplanned scenery switches, props and other staging facilities, Hollywood studios through the years have built up a backlog unduplicated in N. Y.

On the Coast Weis works in close association with MCA TV's Revue subsid, directing episodes of "Schlitz Playhouse," "General Electric Theatre," and occasional filming of a Jack Benny show.

He feels that as a specialist in telefilms he could not alternate in live tv drama readily since that requires different directorial talents.

Regarding the quality of telefilms, Weis is of the opinion that with present budget limitations of $40,000 to $50,000 for a half-hour network show, it is very difficult to "do a whole lot better" than what is being done now.

Roach Peddling Nine New Pilots

Hal Roach Jr., head of the production firm bearing his name, is in town with nine pilots for Madison Ave. agency and network screenings. The pilots are "Cindy," situation comedy created and produced by Alex Gottlieb; "The Veil," mystery anthology starring Boris Karloff and produced by Jerry Stagg; "The Tall Man," a post-Civil War crime story produced by Joseph Shaftel.

Also "Man of Action, waterfront adventure; "McGarry and Me," comedy adventure toplining the husband-wife team of Virginia Mayo and Michael O'Shea; "Battles of the Century," narrated by columnist Bob Considine, "The Joe DiMaggio Show," based on true sport stories with DiMaggio as host. "Battles of the Century" and "The Joe DiMaggio Show" were pitched for national sale last season, too.

Additionally, Hal Roach has "Landmark," a dramatic anthology produced by Jerry Stagg on the human stories behind historical U. S. landmarks. Latter pilot adopts a

(Continued on page 68)

Vidpix Chatter

James F. Delaney has ankled Ziv to head ABC Film Syndication's recently-created Proven Programs Sales Division which handles rerun properties . . . Five sales execs have joined Television Programs of America: Sherlee Barish, formerly with Official Films; Edward I Adler, from CBS Film Sales; Tom Privette, from Ziv; Edwin D. Staub, formerly with KRLD, Dallas, and Bryan D. (Buck) Stoner, a vet feature film salesman . . . Group of 78 two-reelers starring The Three Stooges has been put into syndication by Screen Gems. "Three Stooges" will be available for fall telecasting . . . Jose Garcia has been appointed sales representative for Television Programs of America in Puerto Rico.

Robert B. Morin has ankled National Telefilm Associates to join Metro TV as a sales exec . . . WOR-TV, N.Y., has slotted "The Space Explorers" in its stripped "Terrytoon Circus" show. "Explorers" is distributed by Sterling Television. Incidentally, WOR-TV initiated a promotional tieup with the schools on the factual cartoon series . . . General Electric has been appointed a distributor of the Piclear film process for tv stations . . . Robert Lang has joined NTA's west coast division as an account exec. He formerly was with BBDO, San Francisco, where he was assistant radio-tv director.

20TH-FOX PRODUCT NO. 1 IN NTA'S 'DREAM'

Top lining National Telefilm Associates new feature package are a group of 20th-Fox pix, including "At War with the Army," Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis; "Heaven Can Wait," Gene Tierney and Don Ameche; and "This Above All," Tyrone Power, Joan Fontaine.

The group, titled "NTA's Dream Package," was prepped for the current Los Angeles convention of the National Assn. of Broadcasters. The exact number to be included in the package still is being worked out. Others in the package include "Calling Northside 777," "Son of Fury," "Call of the Wild," "Frontier Marshall" and "Nightmare Alley."

Network Sponsors Also in Orbit On Film Syndication

National advertisers for a variety of reasons are increasing their buys of syndicated shows.

Ziv, in a special study, found that one out of every five Ziv syndicated sponsors is also sponsoring network tv. CBS Films Sales, while its survey did not have a percentage breakdown, also reported a rise in the number of national advertisers entering the market-to-market field. Other syndicators, to a varying degree, are having a similar experience.

One major reason for the rise was attributed to the growing use of syndicated film as a "trouble shooting" medium for national sponsors. Ziv found more and more network sponsors using syndication to concentrate on specific areas, supplemental to their network coverage. The reason for that may be to counter specific problems in key markets, problems which may vary from that of sales to that of low ratings for the sponsor's network show in particular markets. Another reason for supplemental syndication buys was found to be to test and introduce new merchandise campaigns.

CBS Film Sales noted the fact that Continental Baking Co., with "Howdy Doody" as its network buy, has "Annie Oakley" in 65 markets in syndication. Other national advertisers represented on the CBS Film Sales roster include Ralston-Purina, Nabisco, Sylvania, Welch's Grape Juice, General Electric, Monsanto, Seven-Up, Bristol-Myers, Procter & Gamble and Swift.

Coca-Cola is riding five Ziv shows and others on the Ziv roster include R. J. Reynolds and Best Foods.

Easy Lies the Head That Wears 'Crown'; WCBS-TV Also Buys 'Imperial' Pkge.

Fact that WCBS-TV, the CBS flagship in New Yorrk, is dickering for all of the 700-pic Paramount backlog hasn't stopped it from acquiring other feature film properties. Station this week closed deals for two new packages, part of the Screen Gems "Triple Crown" group and the entire M&A Alexander "Imperial Package."

Station bought 26 films in the "Triple Crown" group, its second selective purchase out of that package. Originally, it had bought 30 others from the pacakage, bringing the total to 56. New group of 26 goes to the station on a six-year, 10-run deal. It includes "It Happened One Night," "All My Sons," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" aind "My Sister Eileen."

M&A Alexander package of 15 pix was acquired on the same 10-run, six-year basis. It includes "Stork Club and several post—'48 films.

L.A. Convention

Continued from page 1

vention "format" and thus ban them is to discredit a major and vital segment of the entire industry.

Thus there's a locking-the-stable-door - after - the - horses - have-fled touch of irony about this year's NAB meet. The fanfare and the fun-loving overtones are still here. But everybody's troubled, all too conscious of pending penalties from the Congressional sleuths and the out-of-pocket losses resulting from a recessive climate.

NAB prexy Harold E. Fellows has of necessity tried to inject a note of realism into the agenda, though remiss in some areas as, for example, in programming, where the need for an industry forum and a common meeting ground is considered to be more urgent than ever (see separate story).

The selection of Frank Stanton, the president of CBS, as this year's "keynoter" was, of course, a natural, for there's no denying Stanton's major contribution in carrying their industry torch for a perpetuation of the status quo in the gangup of the pay-tv forces, the antitrust sleuths and Washington in general.

Promising equal moments of stimulation is tomorrow's (Wed.) panel discussion featuring the members of the FCC, topped by chairman John C. Doerfer. It's been traditional, of course, for the FCC to put in an appearance as active participants at NAB conventions (though this year they're picking up their own tab), but things are different this time around. The strains and the tugging are evident, taking their toll on the very behavior pattern of the commission. If they came back for an endorsement, they have little cause for alarm or regret—for there's a "my FCC right or wrong" tone of confidence permeating the corridors.

The principal "menace" is Congress. And there's not a Congressman in sight. Yet the pall that hangs over the Biltmore Hotel hqs. of the NAB convention can be cut with a knife.

'Russian Revolution' Spurs WPIX Telementary File; Hitler-Braun 2d Project

WPIX, N. Y., as a result of its click with "The Russian Revolution," is embarking on similar filmed projects for its own use, as well as entering the syndication field with its documentary specials.

The indie as its second project will do a documentary on the private life of Hitler, based on personal film taken of Hitler and Eva Braun. The footage, for which WPIX acquired U. S. and Canadian distribution rights, was purchased from AFP Distributors Corp. The film had been distributed theatrically by AFP.

The New York Daily News station is offering "The Private Life of a Dictator," working title of the Hitler-Braun footage, and "The Russian Revolution" as its first two properties in syndication. Like "The Russian Revolution," telecast April 1, the Hitler-Braun footage will be re-edited, scored again, with a new commentary added, to make an hourlong telecast. The "Dictator" will be offered to other stations after its telecast on WPIX, which does not yet have a date.

Station also has acquired distribution rights for the U. S. and Canada of the footage utilized in "The Russian Revolution" from Herman Axelbank, the original distributor. A repeat of the show is planned after school starts in September.

Station topper Fred Thrower is handling all deals with other stations for the two projects at this point.

'Undercurrent' ('Web') Summering for 'Lineup'

Co-sponsors Procter & Gamble and Brown & Williamson will substitute reruns of "The Web" for "Lineup" on CBS-TV this summer. Same films appeared originally as the hot weather sub for "The Loretta Young Show" last summer.

"Web" flicks, produced by Goodson & Todman, will take the Friday slot under the title "Undercurrent," same tag the sponsors use every summer.

New TV Station, Set Mfg. Spark Video in Spain; CBS Skeins Set

An expansion of television in Spain was forecast by Henri Grundman, CBS Film Sales representative in Madrid.

Grundman, in for a homeoffice visit, said there are currently about 14,000 sets in Spain, but a new 100-kilowatt tv station is slated to be put up at the end of this year in Central Spain. The new station will feed programming to other areas via satellites, extending coverage extensively.

Additionally, Phillips Co. and RCA-Marconi are set to launch production of tv sets there, with the goal of bringing down their costs of from $300 to $150. Selling on the installment plan also will be introduced with the new sets, he said.

Grundman, who's in charge of CBS' dubbing operation in Madrid, felt that the threats of Mexico and other Latin-American countries to stop the telecasting of filmed shows dubbed elsewhere, are empty. There will be no dubbing war, he forecast, maintaining that the Mexican film industry has more to lose than the industry in Spain, for more Mexican films are imported in Spain than vice versa.

CBS Film Sales currently has "You Are There," "I Love Lucy" and "San Francisco Beat" on the Madrid tv station, which only is a 10-kilowatter. By next year, with the addition of the new station, the company hopes to add "Champion," "Perry Mason," "Whirleybirds" and "Phil Silvers Show."

Madrid station, under the programming aegis of Jose Mario Colina, runs from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. daily. There is some commercial sponsorship. According to Grundman, station also has an excellent live dramatic showcase, doing plays of Shakespeare and Sartre and dramas based on the works of Tolstoy and others.

Rolfe Guns 'Travel'

Hollywood, April 29.

New producer of "Have Gun, Will Travel," CBS series starring Richard Boone, is Sam Rolfe, who has begun working on next season's telepix. He succeeds Julian Claman, who's been shifted over to produce several of the Westinghouse Summer Studio One dramas.

Rolfe and Herb Meadow created the "Gun" series, and Rolfe became story editor on it, later being upped to associate producer to Claman. Series shoots at California studios.

SG Rep in Japan Nixes 'Fast Buck'; $300-Per Is Min.

Tokyo, April 29.

International Interlingual of Japan Ltd., which recently assumed bulk of Japan selling chores for Screen Gems, formerly concentrated at Columbia Pictures here, stated that it does not intend to follow other hawkers of U. S. tv product in Japan and "grab a fast buck and run."

II topper M. C. Lu said, "So far everybody is just jumping in and trying to dump their product for $150 a showing. The result is that the local people and the government think that any good quality show can be had for $150. Why would they, therefore, want to pay $500? We feel that no show of any quality should be sold here for less than $300. Our policy will be to get what we feel the show is worth. If the stations and Finance Ministry cannot give us enough money, then we'd rather not sell at all. It may take as much as four years, but the time will come when they will need our product."

II now has nine SG shows, including the new "George Sanders Mystery Theatre." Lu indicated that definite interest was shown here in "Damon Runyon Theatre" and "Celebrity Playhouse."

II was established here less than a year ago and is affiliated with company of same name with offices in Motnerey, Calif., and Mexico City. Bulk of company's work is dubbing of business films and tv spots for local consumption.

Japanese firms frequently buy remakes of U. S., German, French and Swiss business films from II. Example of sold film is Bank of America's "Make Mine Money" for which II has foreign rights. II buys idea, then starts remake from scratch, utilizing local artists and own storyboard, cells, photographs, musical composition, soundtrack and release print.

Company claims unique soundtrack method of magnetic coating whereby sound is coated on side of negative, saving cost of extra print.

'Dead Sea Scrolls' Pix With Nod from Israel To Get Preem by KCOP

Hollywood, April 29.

Israeli government has given producer Jack Douglas permission to shoot telepix in Israel relating to the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls, and the Scrolls themselves will be seen for the first time in the vidfilms, now being shot in color.

Films, shot at the actual scene in Israel, were taken by Milt Farney and B. J. Nelson, and will be seen for the first time May 17-18 at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium, with the proceeds to go to interdenominational charities. Later, they will be seen on Douglas' "Seven League Boots" series on KCOP here.

National Council of Jewish Women, the Hadassah and the Israeli Consulate here helped him get the okay of the Israeli Government for the films, Douglas said. Douglas said his lensers will be in Israel four more months shooting additional footage.

MCA Rep Sour On Japanese Market

Tokyo, April 29.

Because of tight market control of tv film imports, MCA Far East veep Irwin Klein will cut short his pitch to Japan stations and leave for the U.S. with a week's stopover in Australia for an o.o.

Recently returned from a three-week hop to Hong Kong, Bangkok and Manila, Klein painted a bleak picture of the Japan market although he moved some product here and has other deals in negotiation.

On Japan, Klein explained that this year's expected tv film import budget of $458,900 (excluding a $100,000 reserve) is actually less advantageous to the foreign distributor than last year's figure of $325,000 because it's on a different basis. Previously, stations were permitted to buy unlimited volume, restricted only to total dollar allocation. This fiscal year (which began April 1), however, Klein said he has found that in Tokyo, for example, each commercial station (JOKR and NTV) is entitled to buy only nine tv film serials for national showings with a ceiling of $300 and $350 per play.

This, he submitted, was much more stringent because while the price per play may be higher, it is still below standard values and the number of films are limited. Therefore, the total income would be less.

As of this date, Klein sealed contracts with NTV (Nippon Television Corp.) for renewal of "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" and for new product. Negotiations are in progress with NHK (Japan Broadcasting Corp.), JOKR (Radio Tokyo) and with several of the new stations expected to open later in the year.

With Klein's departure from Japan, a Japanese national is expected to be appointed to act as a part-time agent for the Music Corp. of America.

Alice Young Edits 'Mason'

Hollywood, April 29.

Alice Young has joined Paisano Productions as story editor of the "Perry Mason" vidseries.

Miss Young, formerly story ed for CBS' "Climax" series, succeeds Gene Wang.

BACKLOGS: VARICOSE VEINS

Telefilms' Triple-Threat Men

The triple-threat man in telefilms—the same actor as star, director and part-owner of a series—is blossoming out.

Ushered in with a blaze of glory (or is it gold?) by the success of Desilu, Four Star Films, and other actor-anchored telefilmeries, the development has been gaining ground steadily to encompass lesser known personalities. The cut-in of actors in the profits of a series, even though relatively small, is one of the reasons for the upped costs.

But more and more actors are climbing on the bandwagon, the feeling being there's annuities in profit-sharing, above and beyond residuals. A collateral development is that more actors find themselves in the role of director, giving such personalities for the first time, a chance to develop new skills. Usually, the star in a series takes up the megging chores for a few episodes.

Ziv has been going in for the dual actor-director role, utilizing Lloyd Bridges for directorial stints on "Sea Hunt," Broderick Crawford for "Highway Patrol" and Barry Sullivan for "Adventures at Scott Island."

MCA-TV's Market-by-Market Pitch On Par. Pix; Sell Boston, Omaha

Los Angeles, April 29.

MCA-TV, offering its $50,000,000 pre-'48 Paramount libraries to stations for the first time at the NAB convention here, is laying heavy stress on the flexible and first-come, first-served features of its sales campaign. That's true especially in the company's flat ban on group sales, with MCA stressing that all negotiations on the backlog will be conducted on an individual market basis and not in any group transactions.

First two sales, for example, were to WBZ-TV in Boston and KETG in Omaha, with the total take on these running to about $3,000,000 for the full 700-pic library. But the WBZ-TV sale was a singleton, even though Westinghouse Broadcasting, the WBZ-TV owners, has four other tv stations which use features and will probably negotiate for them too.

MCA's basic position, particularly as it applies to the stations which are interested in acquiring the films, is that it will take the best deal in each market; fact that it may be negotiating with a multiple owner in a certain market won't prevent it from accepting a deal with another station in that market if the right deal presents itself. MCA states it's negotiating each market on its own, and even in the CBS negotiations, has offered rights to the pictures in only two of the seven markets where the web owns stations.

ATFP Charts Plan Vs. IRB's Tax Rap

Hollywood, April 29.

Strategy for its campaign against the Internal Revenue Bureau's salvage penalty rap against telefilmers was mapped last night (Mon.) at a meeting of the Alliance of Television Film Producers. ATFP met last week also, with its steering committee naming advisory committees for the east and west coasts to help in the drive.

On the west coast committee are Arthur Manella, Leon Kaplan, Don Rosenfeld and Eli Parker; on the eastern group, Bill Dewind and Julius Lefkowitz. Bob Schulman, of the law firm of Wenchel, Schulman and Manning in Washington, has been retained by the Alliance as its tax counsel in Washington.

Ziv's 'Sci Fi' Upbeat

With interest in space, Muttnik and Sputnik high, Ziv is tallying up many station sales on multiple-run deals on "Science Fiction Theatre."

Among stations inking are: WGR-TV, Buffalo; WDSU-TV, New Orleans; WTVJ-TV, Miami; KMGM, Minneapolis; KQTV, Fort Dodge, Ia.; WBRE-TV, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; and WTVN, Columbus.

All told, 57 stations have made deals on the reruns of the skein during the first quarter of this year.

Guild Films' Cole Names Danon, Ahern to Posts

John J. Cole, who has been president of Guild Films for only seven weeks, has not finished making executive changes. Last week he named Dalton Danon manager of the western division, reporting to general sales chief Irving Feld.

Cole has also tapped P. T. Ahern as Feld's assistant sales manager in New York.

Danon has been with Guild since 1955. Ahern, who has actually been with Guild for several weeks although announcements was not made of his appointment until now, was with Imco Container, a Kansas City plastics company.

TV Stations Inc. In $4,000,000 Gait On Vidfilm Buys

TV Stations Inc. (TSI), cooperatively owned station buying organization representing mainly smaller outlets, now is purchasing vidfilms at the rate of over $4,000,000 yearly.

It hit the $4,000,000 mark for the first time during the 1957 calendar year, and the rate of its current buying activities indicates that TSI will pass that gross purchasing figure in '58. TSI, which now has a membership roster of over 90 stations, recently was instrumental in inking a 30-market deal for off-network reruns of "Lassie," retitled "Jeff's Collie," for over $100,000.

Only recently, TSI has broadened its membership base to take in medium markets such as Charleston, W. Va., Santiago, Tampa and Salt Lake City. Outfit, formed in 1955, does not go in for group buying, but feeds information about filmed shows, both telefilms and features, to member stations, evaluates the vidfilms and negotiates for film on an individual station basis.

Herb Jacobs, exec v.p. and general manager, tops the three buyers at TSI, headquartered in N.Y. Dub Rogers, of Lubbock, Tex., is prez and chairman of the board; Joe Floyd, of Sioux Falls, is v.p., while Ed Craney, Butte, Mont., is treasurer. TSI members attending the current NAB convention in Los Angeles were due for a get-together on the Coast.

WB's 'Holliday' Pilot

Hollywood, April 29.

Newest pilot film being prepared at Warner Bros. tv is "Doc Holliday," being produced by Roy Huggins.

Huggins has signed Marlon Hargrove to write the pilot.

'THE HONEYMOON IS OVER': UNGER

By DAVE KAUFMAN

Los Angeles, April 29.

Television's honeymoon with motion picture backlogs is over, video having gone through from 8,000 to 9,000 oldies like "a drunken sailor," National Telefilm Associates prexy Oliver A. Unger told the National Assn. of Broadcasters' yesterday (Mon.). Asserting teevee will never again have such vaulted riches—not even from any post-1948 pix—Unger said any realistic television distributor must look elsewhere if he wants to stay in business, adding that's why NTA is diversifying its activities.

Even as Unger spoke, word circulated around the convention halls that at least one major studio in Hollywood is planning to sell its post-'48's within a few months, without slicing the talent guilds in for any of the tv pie. Plan of the major involved is to quit production altogether, as did Republic on selling its post-'48's.

Unger's words puncturing the multi-million dollar pix-to-tv biz seemed to come as quite a shock to the delegates at the telefilm-feature film session at the Statler Hotel, where he spoke.

Emphasizing Unger's remarks was Lee Ruwitch of WTVJ in Miami, a member of the NAB Telefilm Committee, who reiterated the NTA chief's belief that "the honeymoon is over." Ruwitch said feature films on tv have already lost their initial impact, resulting in viewers returning to the theatrical b.o., where there have been record-breaking grosses the past year.

'Crisis' on Features

"We're at a crossroads, a crisis insofar as feature pictures are concerned," he said. "Some stations have commitments running into millions of dollars they may never recover. Let's face it—how loaded have those ratings weeks been in regard to feature films? A station spends a lot of money on exploitation to build up its ratings. is this a true picture of the popularity of movies on tv? I don't think so. And I know a number of station owners who are skeptical about the value of such loaded ratings. We're going through a transition period; what the answer is I don't know. Programming of pictures has not been done properly or economically. I wonder if we're not approaching the end of the cycle in feature films."

When someone from the floor asked about the possibility that the Theatre Owners of America might round up enough coin to buy up the post-'48's and release them theatrically, Unger replied tersely, "TOA will never do that; these fellows never put their money where their mouth is."

Unger said NTA has anticipated the downbeat in feature films, and that was why it has expanded into broadcasting and other varied enterprises. When asked about the chances of the studio backlogs, which are virtually exhausted, being replaced by films made for television, he took a dim view, remarking: "It's completely impractical to think of feature films comparable to movies will ever be made by Hollywood for free tv. By 1961 there will be no more feature films—post '48 or any vintage, and the industry faces a critical situation. We're on a short bender with these feature films. Tape may make it possible to make feature films for tv."

Raised Eyebrows

Delegates appeared amazed at Unger's candid analysis of the situation, as he commented "within the foreseeable future the point will be reached where only the reruns of these films will be available in quantity, as only a small fraction of films can be expected from the vaults in Hollywood in the years to come."

Unger said there were two obvious reasons for the unhappy situation: the rate of replenishment

(Continued on page 66)

Seminar on the Nile(s)

Chicago, April 29.

Fred Niles Productions is holding a five-day seminar on tv films at its Chi studios next week for the dual purpose of keeping ad agencies apprised of latest trends in film-making and to focus attention on Chicago as a practical film production centre.

Niles points out that blurb production on celluloid has dropped sharply in the first quarter of 1958 because of the recession and because of a trend to move much Chicago-originated film business to the Coast.

Seminar lectures will have to do with the employment of talent creative copywrighting, special purpose films (as for sales meetings), the idea of brand image, and a survey of the film-making processes. The Niles seminar will be open to any member of the advertising industry.

N.Y. Mayor's Aide To Meet With FPA On Vidpix 'Relief'

Stanley H. Lowell, first executive assistant to Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York, will meet next Wednesday (7) afternoon with a committee from the Film Producers Assn. of N. Y. on the alleviation of problems facing Gotham film producers. The mayor named Lowell last week to take over the job from Leo Larkin, assistant corporation counsel, of working with the partisans of New York-based video and film.

Meanwhile, David Pincus, chairman of FPA's civic committee, is meeting with Lowell to prepare an agenda for the Wednesday powwow, which basically, FPA hopes, will result in a relaxation by the city of film taxes and rulings on film.

In an effort to bolster the cause, FPA in the past three weeks has signed 15 associate members from the lab, equipment, recording, studio and special effects fields, including Pathe, Precision and Consolidated Labs and Hi Brown Studios. Two new fullfledged producer members have also signed, bringing the total number of FPA producer members to about 35.

FPA was heartened by Lowell's appointment, both because he's considered very close to Wagner, and has long been interested in the industry's problems. As part of N. Y.'s annual summer festival, the mayor is going to declare a weeklong "salute to the tv film production industry of New York," the first step in assuaging the troubled feelings of local lensers.

"I will do everything in my power to create an atmosphere of enthusiasm for production of all types of television film including educational film, in New York City," the mayor told an FPA committee last week when he named Lowell to coordinate film demands.

'Top Pro Golf's' 21 Mkts.

Chicago, April 29.

Distributor Walt Schwimmer has tapped a total of 21 markets to date for reruns of "All Star Golf," known in syndication as "Top Pro Golf." In addition to 17 domestic stations those ordering the hour-long series are KULA-TV, Honolulu; CBUT-TV, Vancouver; CFPL-TV, London, Ont., and CFRN-TV, Edmonton, Alta.

Second skein on "All Star Golf," meanwhile, is in preparation for its ABC-TV berth next fall.

Syndicated Break-Even $1,725,000; 30% Hike in Cost Since '55: Gordon

Los Angeles, April 29.

Break-even point in firstrun sales for a series of 39 syndicated half-hours has now reached the $1,725,000 mark, Television Programs of America president Milton A. Gordon told a tv-film panel at the National Assn. of Broadcasters convention here yesterday (Mon.). When stations insist on rerun deals, the distributor must gross as high as $2,000,000 before he can begin to earn profits on the series, Gordon added.

Attributing the high cost of syndication distribution to an increase in production costs of 30% over the past three years, Gordon pointed out that prices stations pay for the film have remained constant over that some period, making the syndicator's problems increasingly difficult and risky. Gordon urged station operators to make "long range investments" in helping syndicators build shows of better quality by giving them "a fair price and a reasonable rerun quality."

Breaking down costs, Gordon charted the typical budget of one show in a "medium-priced" series made by TPA recently. Production cost on the budget was $27,625. Added to this were the following costs:

Average cost per picture	$27,625
Cost for 39 pictures	1,077,275
Print cost, 1,000 prints, at $25 each	25,000
Advertising & promotion	50,000
Total negative cost, prints & advertising	$1,152,375
Interest on bank loans, 6% on $1,152,375 for 18 months on declining balance or an average of nine months	51,857
	$1,204,232
Selling cost average 16% of selling price	275,253
Administrative overhead, bookkeeping, shipping, inspecting, etc., 14% of selling price	240,846
Gross necessary to break even (does not include rerun fees)	$1,720,331

Breaking Down the Buck

Breaking it down another way, Gordon indicated that of the first-run tv-film sales dollar, 63c goes toward negative cost, 16c to sales cost, 14c toward administrative overhead, shipping and processing, 4c toward prints and advertising and 3c toward interest.

Relating the matter of costs to quality, he pointed out that syndicated and network programs have the same below-the-line costs, stabilized at "around $18,000 to $20,000 per picture or between $6,000 and $7,000 per shooting day.

(Continued on page 66)

UA's New Batch Of 65 Post-'48s

United Artists is releasing a fresh package of 65 post-'48 pix to tv, the majority of them British imports.

Approximately 27 are American-made, including "Summertime," starring Katharine Hepburn; "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes," "Run for the Sun," "The Ambassador's Daughter," "Kiss Me Deadly," "Kansas City Confidential," "The Naked Street, "Patterns," and "Foreign Intrigue."

British imports include "Hobson's Choice," "The Creeping Unknown" "The Tiger and the Flame," "Star of India" and "Othello." Some of the English product had never before been released theatrically in the U. S., including "Tiger in the Smoke," "Trouble in Store" and "Under the Southern Cross."

Distribution is being handled by the UA video subsid, United Artists TV. This is the fourth group of post-'48s released by UA over a two-year span.

ZIV's NEW, ALL NEW HALF

TARG

WEEK AFTER WEEK . .

MANY MORE STARS...MANY GREAT IMPACT STORIES!

Your viewers will see and thrill to a galaxy of stars hand-picked for their great performances on TARGET!

Howard Duff and Maria Riva star along with names like Cesar Romero, Pat O'Brien, Sidney Blackmer, Bonita Granville, Steve McNally, John Ireland, Lola Albright, David Brian, Gene Barry, and many more.

TARGET brings great stars, great performances, great impact stories week after week after week!

HOWARD DUFF and MARIA RIVA star in "Breaking Point" on TARGET.

-HOUR IMPACT SERIES !

EXPLOSIVE DRAMAS. AIMED AT THE EMOTIONS OF YOUR VIEWERS.

Your host
ADOLPHE MENJOU

ACTION-ADVENTURE

MYSTERY

WESTERN

LAW ENFORCEMENT

TARGET IS ALL IMPACT!

Everything viewers look for in engrossing TV fare!

TARGET HAS THEM ALL!

ALREADY BOUGHT BY:

- OLYMPIA BREWING
- SCHLITZ BREWING
- SOUTH CAROLINA ELECTRIC & GAS
- CAPITAL HOSPITAL SERVICE
- KROGER
- SAVANNAH SUGAR REFINING (Atlanta)
- GLOBE BREWING
- PIGGLY-WIGGLY

and many more

ZIV Television

NOW SHOOTING

STEVE McNALLY STARS!

"5 HOURS TO LIVE" . . . The father of a 10-year old boy holds the stolen $100,000. An international criminal holds the serum that can save the boy's life. Will the exchange be made in time to save the boy's life?

.....SUSPENSE!

CESAR ROMERO STARS!

"THE BANDIT'S CAVE" . . . A ruthless bandit escapes with a fortune! How long can a man of action hide out without losing his reason?

.....WESTERN!

PAT O'BRIEN STARS!

"NO WAY OUT" . . . A nurse is kidnapped to help a wounded outlaw. Can the law close in before the gang decides she has outlived her usefulness?

.....MYSTERY!

DAVID BRIAN STARS!

"TATTOO ARTIST" . . . The police find the body of a dead man—dead but very much "alive" with intriguing clues to his murderer. Can police decipher the clues and come to grips with the killer?

.....LAW ENFORCEMENT!

GENE BARRY STARS!

"POLICE DOCTOR" A wounded gunman, rushed to the hospital, wings a police officer and holds him hostage in an examining room. Can the police doctor overpower the gunman and save the officer?

.....ACTION-ADVENTURE!

AT ZIV STUDIO!

AT THE NAB CONVENTION:
SEE ZIV EXHIBITS FOR
THE HOT HOT, SHOWS OF '58!

Rooms 2338-2339 • Hotel Biltmore, Los Angeles
APRIL 27-MAY 1

TARGET

ZIV'S NEW, ALL NEW IMPACT SERIES!

WEEK AFTER WEEK . . .
MANY GREAT STARS! MANY GREAT IMPACT STORIES!

Your host
ADOLPHE MENJOU

ABC-TV Skeds Welles, Hr. Drama Back-to-Back; Caesar Cancelled

ABC-TV has scheduled the Orson Welles telefilms and a live hourlong dramatic vehicle, done by CBC-TV in Canada, in the 9 to 10:30 p.m. slot on Sundays next fall. Sid Caesar, who now holds down 9 p.m., is definitely not being renewed by sponsor Helena Rubenstein. Decision was reached yesterday (Tues.).

Welles, for whom a pilot is being shot in Italy, has been marked for the 9 p.m. slot, according to the network's present plans. The hour dramatic show, sponsored on CBC-TV this season by General Motors as the "General Motors Theatre," is destined for the 9:30-10:30 spot. This means that a continuation of Mike Wallace's interview session in its current 10 p.m. slot next fall is not part of the web's thinking.

The CBC production appeared on Tuesday nights, and though ABC understands that GM intends pacting the Canadian-produced show again next fall, it is not probable that it will bear the automotive company's banner in the U. S. Instead, ABC is seeking a separate stateside sponsor. Web says it's an easy matter cutting away during GM's Canadian commercials and inserting those of another advertiser.

ABC-TV will pay CBC for the rights. According to ABC, the 60-minute vehicle uses a sizable amount of U. S. writing and acting talent.

B&W Buy; ABC Tues. Sked Set

With a half-sale yesterday (Tues.) of "Naked City," a Screen Gems vidfilm skein, to Brown & Williamson, the ABC-TV Tuesday night lineup for fall is firmed up. New show, based on Mark Hellinger stories about New York, goes in at 9:30.

Package is being produced through SG by Bert Leonard. SG made a double killing on ABC this week. (Reported yesterday also was the sale of half of the Donna Reed telefilms Wednesday at 8:30 to Campbell Soups—see separate story.)

The Tuesday sked will read: "Cheyenne" and "Sugarfoot" rotating at 7:30; "Wyatt Earp," 8:30; "The Rifleman," 9; "Naked City," 9:30; Patti Page at 10. Each of these shows has partial or full sponsor guarantees for fall.

Werris Putting 'Bee' on Ben Blue for $75,000, Up From Original Suits 7½G

Los Angeles, April 29.

Snag Werris, television comedy writer, will amend a $7,500 plagiarism suit against comic Ben Blue previously filed in March, 1957, and now demand $75,000 in a new complaint, Harvey Cooper, attorney for Werris, said the new action follows a decision handed down last week by Beverly Hills Municipal Judge Henry H. Draeger, and is expected to be a test case.

Judge Draeger ruled that Werris was co-owner of a sketch, "The Bee," which Blue first had used on a Milton Berle television show, and awarded Werris $400 plus costs. Writer claimed full ownership of material, which Blue maintained was his own.

Amended suit will be filed on strength that a court has ruled that Werris is a co-owner of material and therefore has a right to participate in profits from use of material, according to Cooper. This suit originally was filed for Blue's use of material on an Ed Sullivan show. In amended form, $75,000 will be demanded to include all other alleged infringements on both tv and nitery appearances.

Houston—Sam H. Bennett, veepee and general manager of KTHT, has announced the appointment of Hal Vester as station manager, assisting in general operations. Grace M. Spanihel remains as assistant manager of overall operations.

Quaker Oats May Shift 'Sgt. Preston' to NBC-TV

Quaker Oats is shopping its "Sergeant Preston of the Yukon" package around the webs, and had already had talks with NBC-TV about moving it there from CBS in the fall. Quaker is by no means decided on a shift, but it's been holding talks with both NBC and Columbia.

Under the proposed NBC deal, it would bring in "Preston" and sponsor it on alternate weeks, buying into some other show on an alternate-week basis. However, Quaker hasn't come to terms with NBC and so is still talking to CBS about renewing the show in its regular Thursday at 7:30 slot, but on an alternate-week only basis.

Looks Like NABET Set to Settle For Same IBEW Terms

As was predicted by many tradesters, the National Assn. of Broadcast Employees & Technicians is on the verge of settling with NBC and ABC for essentially the same contract given by CBS to the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers last week. NBC-ABC union had a vote by rank-and-filers earlier this week, which the union itself felt would mean acceptance, and the final results will probably go to the network today (Wed.).

NABET contract, like IBEW's, will be for three years, retroactive to Feb. 1 of this year. According to the union, it received a 6% pay rise, raising the wages of most of the technicians to within the vicinity of $185 weekly. The rest of the contract, in the main, was accepted as negotiatetd in January in Boston, a NABET official said.

NABET indicated there was one provision in the newest contract offer which did not coincide with IBEW's pact. NABET described an automation provision concerning staffing of transmitter sites. It said the provision excludes firing of technicians working transmitters and replacing them by entirely pushbutton operations. IBEW does not have this clause, it was alleged, but neither union has the guarantee that men will not be laid off in other areas as the result of automation. However, if they are, the webs have to give them from three to six months' notice (this point was not clarified to the press) and at least three months' additional wages.

'Circus Boy,' NBC-TV, 1-M.

Chicago, April 29.

After a season in an evening slot on ABC-TV, "Circus Boy" is switching back to NBC-TV next fall, this time in a Saturday morning berth with Mars Candy Co. continuing to ride alternate weeks. Mars has also purchased alternate weeks on a contiguous show, "Ruff and Ready," the combination 52-week buy worth around $2,000,000 to NBC.

The shows are slated to start early in October.

WMCA's 10% Biz Hike

WMCA Radio chalked up a 10% increase in combined billings for month of April over same period last year.

Station's new biz for April included American Sugar Refining, Anheuser-Busch, Arnold Baking, Atlas Canning, Carona Products, Chase Manhattan Bank, General Motors-Oldsmobile, Good Humor, National Airlines, Sage Labs, Texas Co., TWA and De Winebrenner.

April Trendex Top 10

Latest Trendex figures show NBC-TV topping in average rating during prime hours. NBC's current advantage over CBS is said to represent widest margin it has had in five seasons.

Based on Sunday-Saturday, 7:30-10:30 p.m. figures as seen in the April Trendex average evening rating, NBC now leads CBS by 14% and ABC by 39%.

NBC placed five in the Top 10; CBS, four; ABC, one. A year ago, NBC placed three; CBS, seven.

Top 10 for April were: Gunsmoke, CBS, 34.9; Restless Gun, NBC, 33.4; Perry Como, NBC, 29.8; Bob Hope, NBC, 28.8; Danny Thomas, CBS, 28.0; Price Is Right, NBC, 27.5; Wells Fargo, NBC, 27.4; I've Got A Secret, CBS, 25.8; What's My Line, CBS, 25.3; Wyatt Earp, ABC, 24.8.

NBC-TV on Prowl For 1-Shot Moola

Chicago, April 29.

Apparently finding that smallfry purchases in network tv can add up to real moo, especially in these recessional times, NBC-TV's central division is expanding its participation sales force to reach out into the territory for one-shot money that might otherwise go to magazines.

Network central division sales has salvaged two men from the merchandising department that disbanded April 1 and has assigned them to scour the middle region for one-minute buys and such on its two participationers, "Jack Paar Show" and "Today." This is in addition to the two-man staff working Chicago and towns no farther away than Milwaukee or Peoria. Stewart Carr will probe for prospects in cities west of Chi, like St. Louis, Kansas City and Minneapolis, and Ron Jones the eastern area around Cincinnati.

NBC-TV central division salesmen have been covering the same areas but are going after sponsors in the higher strata, the million dollar spenders. So far, the Chi base is the only one with roving men for the NBC participationers.

U.S. Court of Appeals Upholds Supervision of Three KPIX Engineers

Washington, April 29.

FCC suspension of three Frisco tv engineers' licenses for KPIX strike "sabotage" has been upheld by the U. S. Court of Appeals. Court ruled that the three NABET technicians had violated the Communications Act by putting KPIX transmitter off air for 12 hours at start of strike in December, 1954.

Ruling said the technicians had committed "highly sophisticated sabotage" and that "existence of a labor dispute or even justification for a strike is no license for hooliganism . . . local emergencies, to say nothing of a serious national emergency such as an enemy attack, would make all existing radio-tv stations vital links of communication with the public."

Engineers whose licenses were suspended 90 days were Roald W. Didricksen, Anthony Severdia, then the local's president, and Carlton R. Schwartz. Didrickson and Severdia later went to work for an electronics firm and Schwartz went into the real estate business.

BERLE PUTS NIX ON REGULAR TV SERIES

Milton Berle is passing up a regular tv series in favor of doing occasional guest stints and playing niteries. Berle had been mentioned for a weekly half-hour show under Kraft auspices for 26 weeks next season.

Berle is currently in Hollywood prior to resuming a nitery tour to include the Mapes Hotel, Reno, June 12, followed by El Rancho, Las Vegas, Lake Tahoe and Atlantic City.

TV-Radio Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY

Larry LeSueur elected to the board of governors of the Overseas Press Club, and CBS director of news John Day elected an alternate member of the board. LeSueur delivering the annual address today (Wed.) at the Eli Lilly Co. annual banquet in Indianapolis . . . Jack Douglas, head writer and occasional guest on the Jack Paar show, takes over as emcee next week while Paar vacations . . . Jane Herbert upped to production assistant on "Monitor" . . . James Fagas upped to composer-conductor on "Wide Wide World," succeeding his boss, the late David Broekman . . . Scotty Singer, formerly with MCA and Goodson-Todman, joined Stark-Layton Productions as casting director on "Modern Romances" and "True Story" . . . Manufacturing Chemists Assn. has awarded a citation for the second year running to Don Herbert's "Watch Mr. Wizard" for his contribution toward interesting youth in chemistry and allied sciences . . . George de Witt doubles from "Name That Tune" into the Copacabana, N.Y., starting May 22 . . . Ellen Carr, hostess on "Do You Trust Your Wife," now part owner of the Inner Circle, new eastside supper club . . . Jim Lowe tapped to host CBS Radio's new version of "Upbeat Saturday Night" . . . Yvonne Ferneaux and Angela Thornton, both out of the Gloria Safier office, got major roles in the upcoming tv version of "Wuthering Heights" . . . Roger Englander takes over as director of "The Last Word" next Sunday (4).

Max Buck, director of sales for WRCA and WRCA-TV, speaking at the Toiletry Merchandising Assn. annual convention in Miami this week and Al Perlmutter, special events manager, lecturing on public relations at Columbia U. tomorrow (Thurs.) . . . Charles Scardino, formerly of NBC Spot Sales, joined WRCA-WRCA-TV traffic dept. . . . Jay McMullen, CBS Radio producer, received Edgar Allan Poe Award from Mystery Writers of America, for his chronicling of Galindez-Murphy case . . . Bill Conrad of CBS Radio's "Gunsmoke" in Gotham for public appearances and interviews. First trip east in six years . . . Allan Sloane, scripter of CBS Radio's "Masland Color Radio Roundup," notified that his film script of "The Other City," for American Cancer Society, was chosen one of three medical films to be shown at Brussels World's Fair.

Stone Associates appointed Reggie Schuebel sales rep for "Bingo-At-Home," audience participation program now in 23 markets via live syndication and fully sponsored in five of them . . . Florence Williams pinchhitting for Vivian Smolen of CBS Radio's "Our Gal Sunday" whose father died last week . . . Leora Thatcher into "Our Gal Sunday." . . . Arline Blackburn and Doris Rich into cast of "Helen Trent." . . . Richard D. Heffner, META's director of programs, will be chairman of a mental health conference at the Guidance Center of New Rochelle on Friday (2) . . . Pauline Frederick, NBC News commentator, addressing District of Columbia Congress of PTA in Washington next Wednesday (7) . . . Phil Reisman Jr. is adapting Bret Harte's "Outcasts of Poker Flat" for 11th anni production of "Kraft TV Theatre" on NBC-TV (7). Paul Stanley will direct the 629th presentation of series.

Jay Barney wound up his 106th and final week on CBS Radio's "Helen Trent," his final month on "Brighter Day" and was booked to play a juryman's date at General Sessions Court ending May 2; then starts role on CBS-TV's "Secret Storm" plus "Big Story" and "Decoy" vidpix segments. He's also rehearsing for "Sign of Winter," a play opening at Theatre 74 May 7, and was on a "Faith for Today" tv film chapter yesterday (Tues.).

John Henry Faulk returned to New York radio Monday (28) when the former WCBS'er started a new half-hour cross-the-boarder, "Midnight Rambles" . . . "Night Beat" guests: Ellen McRae of "Fair Game" tonight (Wed.), Ringling Bros. sideshowman Nate Eagle tomorrow. . . . ABC news department copy boy Edward Garzarelli marries Elaine Carlson May 4 . . . James C. Shattuck from CBS to flack offices of Robert R. Mullen & Co. . . . French thesp Nicole Francis being shipped from Paris by Art Ford (he went there after his Brussels Fair coverage for WNEW, his erstwhile employer) to New York in July to appear on his WABD (tv) "Greenwich Village Party."

Jimmy Durante and Arlene Francis will join "The Fitzgeralds at the Astor," WOR Radio, tomorrow (Thurs.) afternoon . . . WPIX will present an hourlong telecast on the problem of teenage gangs, "Life in a Dark Street," Friday (2) at 8 p.m. Program is being produced by Columbia U. Graduate School of Journalism . . . Dave Echols replacing Ward Byron as host of WOR-TV's "Ad World." Byron remains as producer . . . WOR newsman Jerry Conway was on board the Dublin flight with Mayor and Mrs. Robert Wagner which made a forced landing in Newfoundland. He fed the story via beep phone on WOR's all-night "Long John Show" only minutes after the plane had touched down samely . . . Michael Barry, head of drama at the BBC's television service, returned to London last week on the Ile de France.

Neal Simon, one of Sid Caesar's writing stable, is switching to Phil Silvers' CBS-TV show . . . Marian Carr into "City Hospital," CBS Radio, Saturday (3) . . . Chester Gould hired by Y&R to front General Foods' Jello blurbs . . . Hugh Downs doing dry runs of new tv giveaways, "I Know You," being peddled by Paul Kasander (Kasander-Taines Productions) . . . Arthur Settel from KLM Airlines to Metropolitan Educational Television Assn, as p. r. chief . . . Agnes Adamec, secretary to Frank Marx, ABC engineering veepee, succeeds Bill Seaman, program production manager, as prexy of the ABC Mike and Camera Club for the coming season . . . WQXR will air the Boston "Pops" beginning Saturday (3), with Martin Bookspan handling intermission interviews . . . Juan Maldonado beginning a new sports series on WWRL nightly at 7 for New York's Spanish-speaking listeners . . . Jack Kannon into tomorrow's (Thurs.) edition of ABC-TV's "Make Me Laugh." CBS-TV acquired rights from Ernest Hemingway for his novel, "For Whom the Bell Tolls." It will be a two-hour live show at a date to be set, with Fred Coe producing from an adaptation by A. E. Hotchner.

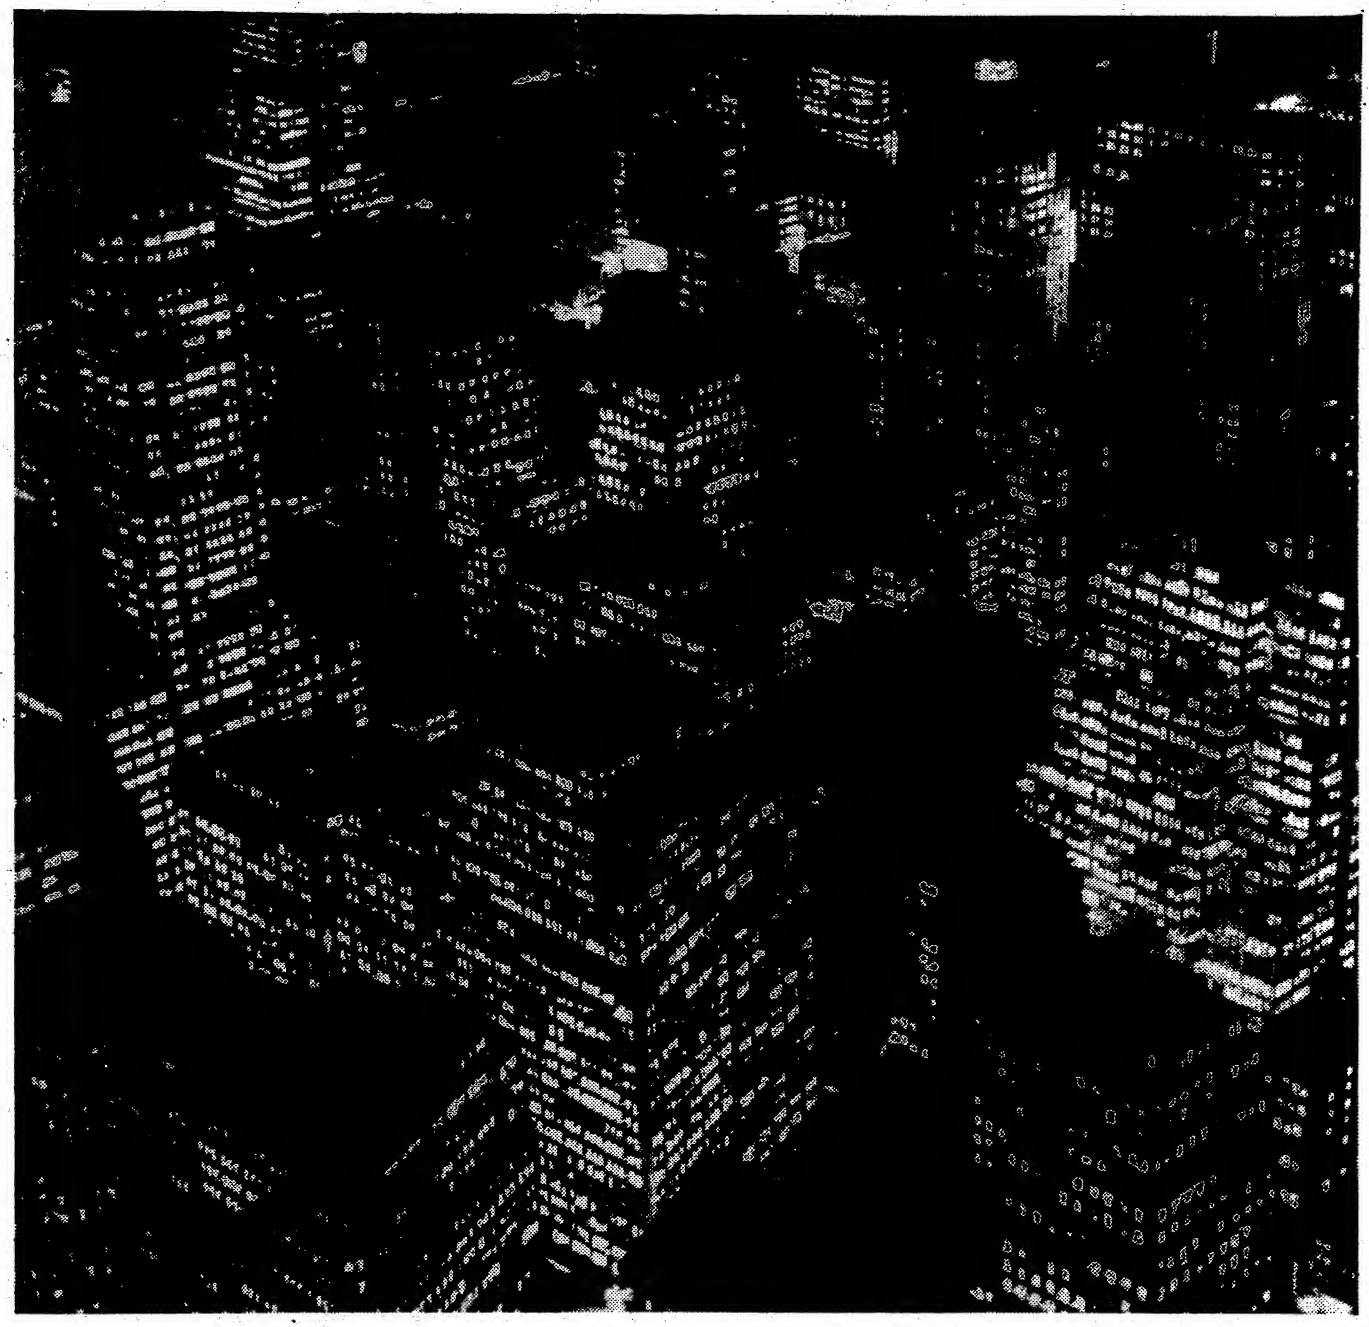
Prudential Insurance renewed sponsorship of CBS-TV "Twentieth Century," Walter Cronkite continues as narrator. Summer replacement, starting Sunday, May 18, will be reruns of the "Air Power" series, also under Prudential tag. Agency is Reach, McClinton & Co. . . .

Charles Handel, former editor of UP Photos and more recently with United Artists and Paramount Pictures, has joined David O. Alber's flackery as account executive . . . Don Morrow to Europe to tape commercials for General Motors . . . Kajar the Magician will make his first appearance on the Jack Paar show May 5 . . . Mel Allen, Jan Murray and Earl Wilson were recipients of special awards from the L. I. League of Fight for Sight at the Waldorf-Astoria Monday (28) . . . Xavier Cugat was the guest chef last night (Tues.) on "Gourmet Club," WPIX . . . Reports on fresh and salt water fishing in local waters are being aired each Friday on WOR's "Radio New York" afternoon show. Fred Dodge, editor of the Fisherman Magazine, presents the weekly reports in a special five-minute taped insert . . . Jackie Robinson was guest of the Metropolitan Educational Television Assn.'s program on WPIX yesterday (Tues.) morning devoted to little league baseball in the city's parks . . .

ABC-TV has optioned a live comedy panel show called "That's a Good One" for next fall and will cut a kinescope by mid-May. Deal with

(Continued on page 62)



THE BIG NIGHT

is coming to TV this fall!

THREE HOURS OF

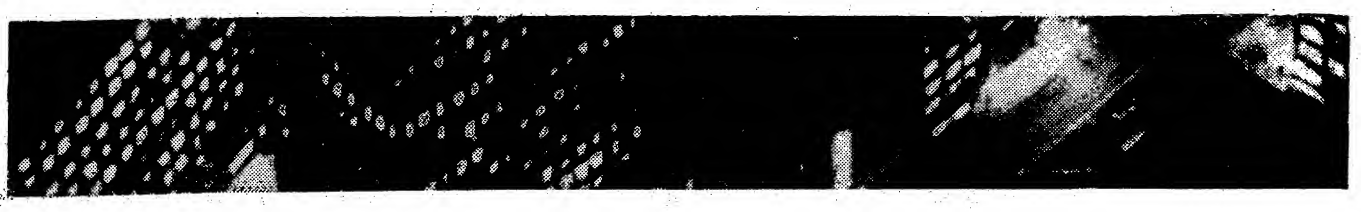
solid and continuous TV entertainment on one night every week . . . starting this fall . . . on America's dynamic new NTA Film Network—that's the Big Night! Advertisers and their agencies should be aware of it.

TOP-FLIGHT ENTERTAINMENT

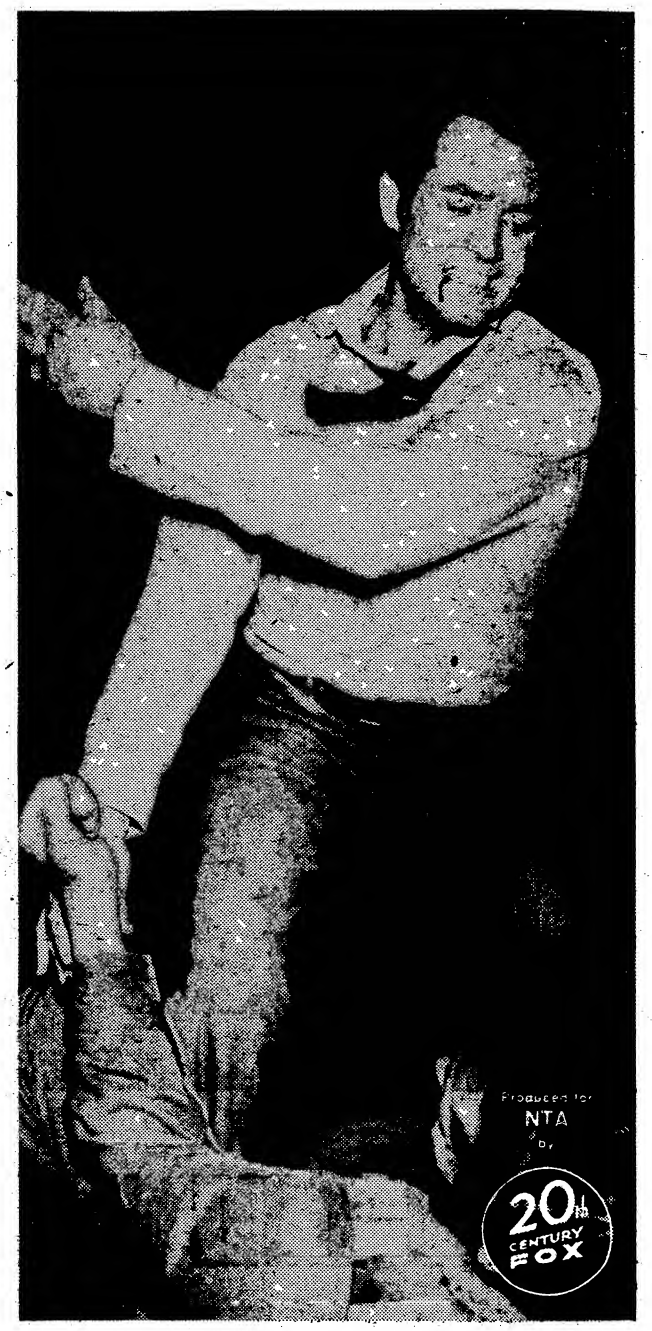
in 39 episodes of each of three great new half-hour series from 20th Century-Fox and Desilu Productions. Plus 39 new 90-minute attractions from 20th Century-Fox. All now ready for screenings.

115 MARKETS

accounting for 96.9% of U.S. TV homes and 96.7% of all U.S. buying power, represent our initial TV station line-up. Of these, 17 markets, reaching 46.8% of all U.S. TV homes, are the BIG NIGHT towers of strength.



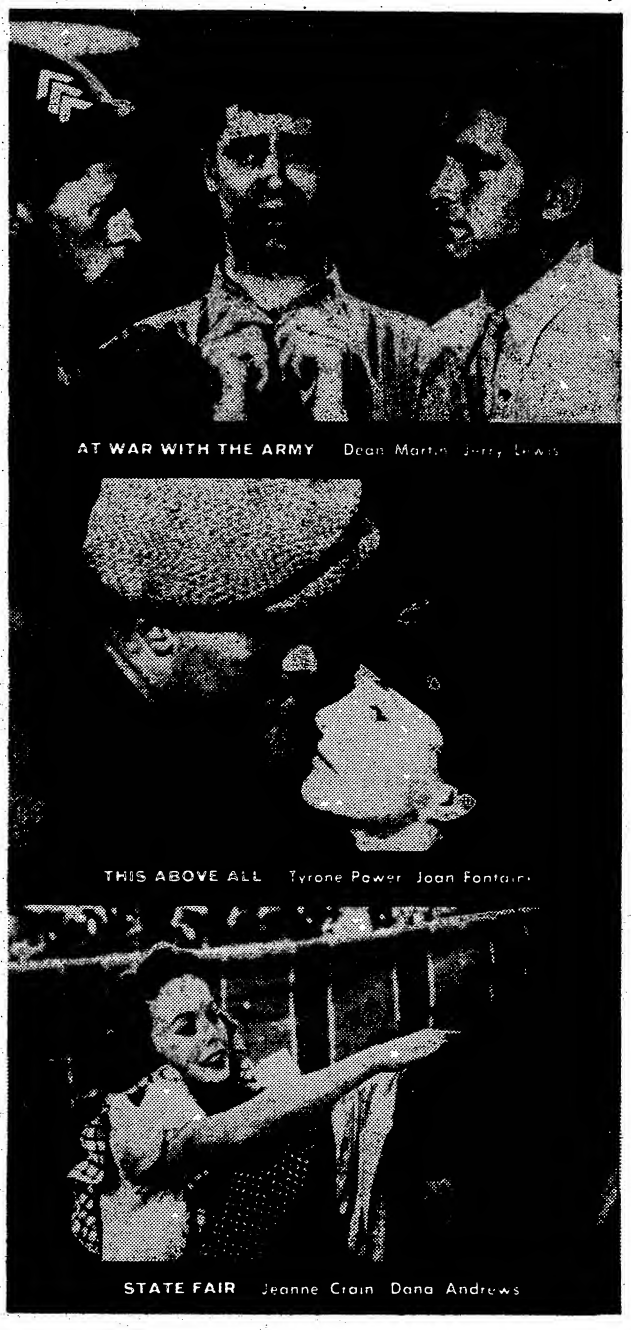
"THIS IS ALICE"
America's newest sweetheart, who will capture the heart of young and older America alike!



"MAN WITHOUT A GUN"
a Western editor fights for freedom of the press, in the great newspaper tradition.

THE BIG NIGHT

"HOW TO MARRY A MILLIONAIRE"
three beauties explore their theory that the way to a man's bank account is through his heart.



"PREMIERE PERFORMANCE"
a new cycle of 39 outstanding 90-minute attractions, of which these are representative.

is coming to TV this fall...

Before you firm your Fall
TV commitments, get the full details
of this important
new concept from...
America's dynamic new
NTA FILM NETWORK
Coliseum Tower, 10 Columbus Circle, New York 19, N. Y. • JUdson 2-7300

FEM FRILLS CUT FRISCO FOG

Ladies Listen to a Man—NAB Prez Fellows on 'Call to Battle' Vs. Probes

San Francisco, April 29.

Warning that broadcasters have "become victims of a head-hunting expedition" by Congress, NAB prexy Harold Fellows urged the distaff side of the industry to concern itself with "greater and broader considerations" of its welfare. Sounding a call to battle against the intensive probing of broadcasting by Congress and the FCC, Fellows urged members of American Women in Radio & Television to focus their attention on overall industry problems, rather than confining themselves to their specialized jobs.

The role of women in radio-tv, Fellows pointed out, has emerged from the narrow confines of the specialized femme show to the entire field of professional broadcasting. Along with this expansion, he told delegates to AWRT's seventh annual confab, comes the responsibility to take a "direct and compelling interest" in the vital problems now pressing the industry.

"Women who were in broadcasting only because they were women, at the onset of this industry," he said, "probably aren't in it any longer . . . Today women are engaged in actual broadcasting, in writing, in selling, in originating program ideas, in handling traffic on broadcasting facilities, in developing advertising copy, and directing the work of others." Relatively few women, he added, had yet broken into the managerial or operational fields of station, agency or network activity. Nevertheless, he charged his listeners with the responsibility of "seeing the total" problem through the eyes of their bosses. Of the 100,000 persons ac-

(Continued on page 60)

Phyllis Knight (WHAS) Wins Top McCall Award For Campaign on Cancer

San Francisco, April 29.

Phyllis Knight, WHAS, Louisville, won the top award in the annual McCall "mike" sweepstakes for her campaign, on and off the air, against cancer. Mrs. Knight topped a list of seven award winners, all of whom formed a vivid reminder that femcasters, on the local and community level, are still a vital part of broadcasting.

Awards, a perennial climax to convention of American Women in Radio & Television, were debutted by the femme magazine in 1951 to highlight role of women in the public service phases of radio-tv. Now in its eighth year, competition attracts hundreds of women broadcasters from all parts of the U.S.

Rozelli Fabiani, WRBL-TV, Columbus, Ga., copped a mike for performing the greatest service to women via her tv series briefing Army wives accompanying their husbands to Germany. In the service for youth classification, Alma John, WWRL, New York, was chosen for giving juves in Harlem a chance to prove their responsibility and leadership. Ella Will McKinney, of the Alabama Educational TV Network, Birmingham, was cited as the executive performing greatest service to you via teleclasses on the primary level.

Two winners in category of community service were Kay West, KEX, Portland, Ore., and Lee Phillip, WBBM-TV, Chicago. Ruth Allen, WGAR, Cleveland, took home a mike as standout broadcaster in field of service to women for her frank discussion of health problems.

Awards were made at a plush banquet by McCall boss Otto Wiese before 350 AWRT members and about 100 agency, sponsor and exhibitor reps.

Judges, in addition to Wiese, were: Lawrence Derthick, U.S. Commissioner of Education; Frederick McCrea, v.p. of McCann-Erickson, San Francisco; Wilda Richardson, Pilot Club International, and Martha Rupprecht, CBS.

THE SUN ALSO SETS ON ZULLI'S 'SEMESTER'

WCBS-TV's "Sunrise Semester," the college course-for-credit done by WCBS-TV, N. Y., at 7 a.m. every morning, will be getting double exposure as of June 2. At that time, WNTA, Newark, will start running kinescopes of Prof. Floyd Zulli Jr.'s literary courses between 6:30 and 7 p.m. nightly. Station has purchased 15 weeks of kinescopes from the CBS key, and is adding a touch of its own by trying to sell the public affairs stanza commercially under the title of "Sunset Semester."

Spokesman for National Telefilm Associates, which assumes ownership of WNTA on May 7, said he believes CBS is re-editing Zulli's series so that there will be room for commercial inserts. Whether it was going to continue for college credit, he did not know.

Femcasters As Missionaries In McGannon Eye

San Francisco, April 29.

The women members of the AWRT should consider themselves missionaries to explain the broadcasting business to such influential critics of radio-tv as the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Daughters of the American Revolution and other big women's groups.

This was one of the points Donald H. McGannon, president of Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., hammered home to the AWRT's annual convention in a speech last Saturday (26).

"It is from these sources . . . that there have emerged many of the indictments against broadcasting," said McGannon, "particularly in the areas of programming for children and public service."

He felt that much of this criticism arose because the women's organizations don't understand that "audiences shift from hour to hour . . . tastes differ . . . we are not serving a single mass audience but a series of audiences." And he felt the AWRT, "qualified by training and background about such matters, can help to explain this situation."

McGannon also stressed that public service, or educational, broadcasting "is an inextricable element of successful broadcasting" because it predisposes consumers to advertised products — in other words, one hand washes the other.

He felt the medium "has outgrown the limited concept of women's participation . . . stereotyped cookery, fashion and homemaking shows," that "our industry must give more cognizance to the contribution that women can make to commercial success.

"You can provide the catalyst in which the chemicals of merchandising for women may evolve into a better return for the advertiser's dollar."

McGannon paid tribute to such women radio pioneers as Helen Sioussat, Doris Corwith and Hazel Markel, discussed WBC's Boston and Baltimore conferences and pointed out that advertising is "most effective" on radio-tv stations which "have earned the respect and confidence" of their communities through topnotch public service programming. In offering what he called a 10-part "catechism for communicators," he urged:

"Infiltrate—get yourself into the the policy councils of broadcasting. But do it because you belong there, not because you are a woman."

350 MEMBERS AT AWRT CONCLAVE

San Francisco, April 29.

An air of confidence, contrasting sharply with last year's downbeat theme, marked seventh annual confab of American Women in Radio & Television. Over 350 members of the national organization, plus at least 100 agency, sponsor and industry reps, held four days of meetings highlighted by speeches, workshops, exhibits, giveaways, and large doses of partying and glamor. The frenetic eager-beaver attitude of past years was gone, and the gals, ranging from station owners to femcasters to sales managers and promotion toppers, dared to relax and eye the future calmly and confidently.

Attendance, though lower than last year's record-breaking 600 in St. Louis, was amazingly large, considering that membership is concentrated in east and midwest. Choice of San Francisco as convention city was hypoed by effort to increase west coast membership, plus growth of Hollywood as tv production centre. Delegates came from as far north as Maine, as far south as Florida and Louisiana, with New York's 25 attendants and Washington's 15 conventioneers standouts.

NBC newscaster, Pauline Frederick, an AWRT member, and multiple prizewinner in radio-tv news field, highlighted opening session by urging diplomats to take a leaf from book of international show biz and to hurdle the iron curtain of "suspicion and fear." She cited all-out reception in Moscow for Texas pianist Van Cliburn, as well as SRO reaction to Moiseyev Ballet in New York as examples of Russian-American rapport across the footlights.

The AWRT industry survey, reported in VARIETY, April 9, cheered the gals as Marion Annenberg, WDSU, New Orleans, who masterminded the study, reported that 63% of the 3,574 indie stations responded.

Keynote speaker, Dr. G. Herbert True, assistant professor of marketing at Notre Dame, assured the gals they were at least 25% more creative than their male counterparts, according to scientific studies. And Harold Fellows, NAB

(Continued on page 58)

Media Showmanship, Public Service Top Topics at AWRT Frisco Meet

San Francisco, April 29.

"The biggest commodity" a media salesman has in dealing with agencies is showmanship, but it's used in "pitifully small amounts with us," said Charles J. Helfrich, Donahue & Coe media director, to a panel of American Women in Radio & Television last weekend.

Helfrich, of Los Angeles, said "Facts and figures are necessary" but suggested showmanlike presentations include:

1) "Have a specific account in mind";
2) "Don't miss your area's colorful features";
3) "Illustrate your statistics";
4) "Be sure your station management will back you up."

Saidie Adwon, account exec of KTUL-TV, Tulsa, told the panel that salesman has to know station and prospects, have "essential quality of enthusiasm" and not be afraid to ask for business when proper atmosphere has been created. Post-sales service is needed, too," she said.

Mrs. Dorothy Bullitt, owner of Pacific Northwest's King Stations, insisted the key to success is "to make the station complete and unified whole, to get the audience to feel it's their station."

As example of public service, she cited her Seattle-Portland televising of the Dave Beck Washington hearings and quipped: "We got a large and attentive audience but not one that a single manufacturer in the Northwest wanted to sponsor. We logged it as public service."

Edith Ford, WLW-A, Atlanta, presided.

In radio panel, Henry Untermeyer, general manager of KCBS, Frisco, suggested women "face the fact" that opportunities are quite limited in radio today, but that as "Top 40" craze dies out chances will develop for women's gab shows.

Psyche Pate, owner of KPRS, Kansas City, stressed the importance of acting responsibly for stations pitched at minorities.

Helen Hall, of NBC's "Monitor," presided.

AWRT Elections

San Francisco, April 29.

Nena Badenoch, radio-tv director, National Society for Crippled Children & Adults, Chicago, was elected new prexy of American Women in Radio-Tv at final session of organization's annual huddle. Mrs. Badenoch, vet AWRT exec and known throughout country for work in producing shows for use on local stations, succeeds Edythe Fern Melrose, WXYZ, Detroit.

Other officers elected for two-year terms follow: Eastern V.P.; Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, Washington News gal and NBC commentator; Central V.P., Dee Sweet, femcaster., WISH, Indianapolis; Western V.P., Josey Barnes, KTVT, Salt Lake City, broadcaster and head of women's activities; Southeast, Margaret McDonald, broadcaster and publicity-promotion executive, Fort Worth; Southern, Louise Morris, sales manager, WGBA, Columbus, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, Martha Rupprecht, CBS, New York.

TV Inching Up On Dept. Store Coin, Panel Tells AWRT

San Francisco, April 29.

TV is starting to grab department store advertising, despite big resistance, a salesmanship panel of American Women in Radio-TV indicated last weekend.

Saidie Adwon, account exec at KTUL-TV, Tulsa, admitted "department stores are a big nut to crack for all of us," but said the city's biggest store now has "a regular tv budget and is getting terrific results with spots . . . the second store has fallen in line."

Miss Adwon added that specialty stores tend to be push-overs be-

(Continued on page 64)

AWRT Convention Chatter

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Star of the seventh annual huddle of femcasters was the convention city, Frisco, itself. Many of the 500 conventioneers had never seen the Golden Gate town, so more time than in past was allocated to sightseeing and socializing.

* * *

Four station owners participated, an indication of growing trend toward distaff side in managerial end of broadcasting. Mrs. Dorothy Bullitt, King Broadcasting Co., whose trio of stations (KING, Seattle; KGW, Portland, Ore.; and KREN, Spokane) have trail-blazed via public service to solid profits, was a speaker. Also on hand were Dolly Banks, owner-manager of WHAT, Philadelphia; Psyche Pate, boss of the burgeoning all-Negro daytimer, KPRS, Kansas City; Jeanne Bacherm owner-operator of KGST, Fresno, Calif., and Marion Lewis, owner of WHYL, Carlisle, Pa., and WINO, Winchester, Va. Martha Rountree, who owns WKTF, Warrenton, Va., along with Ruth Montgomery, INS columnist, was skedded to attend, but held up at 11th hour by station biz.

* * *

And, to accent expansion of femmes in behind - the - scenes phases of radio-tv, following checked into Fairmont Hotel hq.: Marion Annenberg, WDSU, New Orleans, and Montez Tjaden, KWTV, Oklahoma City, both nationally known for flackery as promotion-public relations heads of large stations; Paula Herrera, chief accountant for KPRS, Kansas City; Elaine Phillips, film buyer, WDSU; Dori Corwith, vet boss of NBC Talks; Betty Ross West, public service topper, NBC, Chicago; Jane Barton, radio-tv film director for New York State; Babette Doniger, producer, Editorial Films, N.Y.C.; Edythe Ford, sales director, WLW-A, Atlanta; Martha Rupprecht, CBS film manager.

* * *

As usual, femcasters took a busman's holiday via taping and filming sessions for use on home stations. Most popular "subjects" were novelist Erskine Caldwell, Hearst columnist Abigail Van Buren, actress Rosemary De Camp, "Death Valley Days" producer Dorothy McCann, former FCC Commissioner Frieda Hennock, and U. S. Dept. of Labor exec Alice Leopold.

* * *

Two vet femcasters who have weathered storms of almost three decades of broadcasting changes are now breaking in second generations on their shows. Mercer Livermore, WKKO, Cocoa, Fla., shares her 10-year-old daily airer "Cocoa Chatter," oldest continuous show (10 years) in Florida, in with her 20-year-old married daughter. Station, which is booming along with town, site of Cape Canaveral missile tests, features Mrs. Livermore's on-the-spot re-

(Continued on page 60)

WSTV Takes Initiative To Combat Steubenville Vice, Gambling Scandal

Extent to which television can participate in local civic affairs was demonstrated in the past couple of weeks by WSTV, Steubenville, O., which took the initiative in forwarding a program to end the vice and gambling scandals in that city.

Scandals had involved the police department, the mayor's office and the Safety Service Director, with charges and countercharges flying and most of the town up in arms over the affair. WSTV news director Scott McMurray drew up a program for handling the affair and submitted it to the City Council. The Council voted the proposal into being and gave the station recognition for initiating it.

Proposal calls for a meeting of top civic, religious, political leaders, along with key city officials and representatives of radio, tv and press. Meeting would air all the issues, examine them and formulate corrective measures. The WSTV proposal isn't the first instance of editorial action by the station. WSTV-AM has been airing editorials since 1945, while the tv'er has been doing so ever since it hit the air in 1953. Differences in this case was that the station did not air the proposal, but took it straight to the city council.

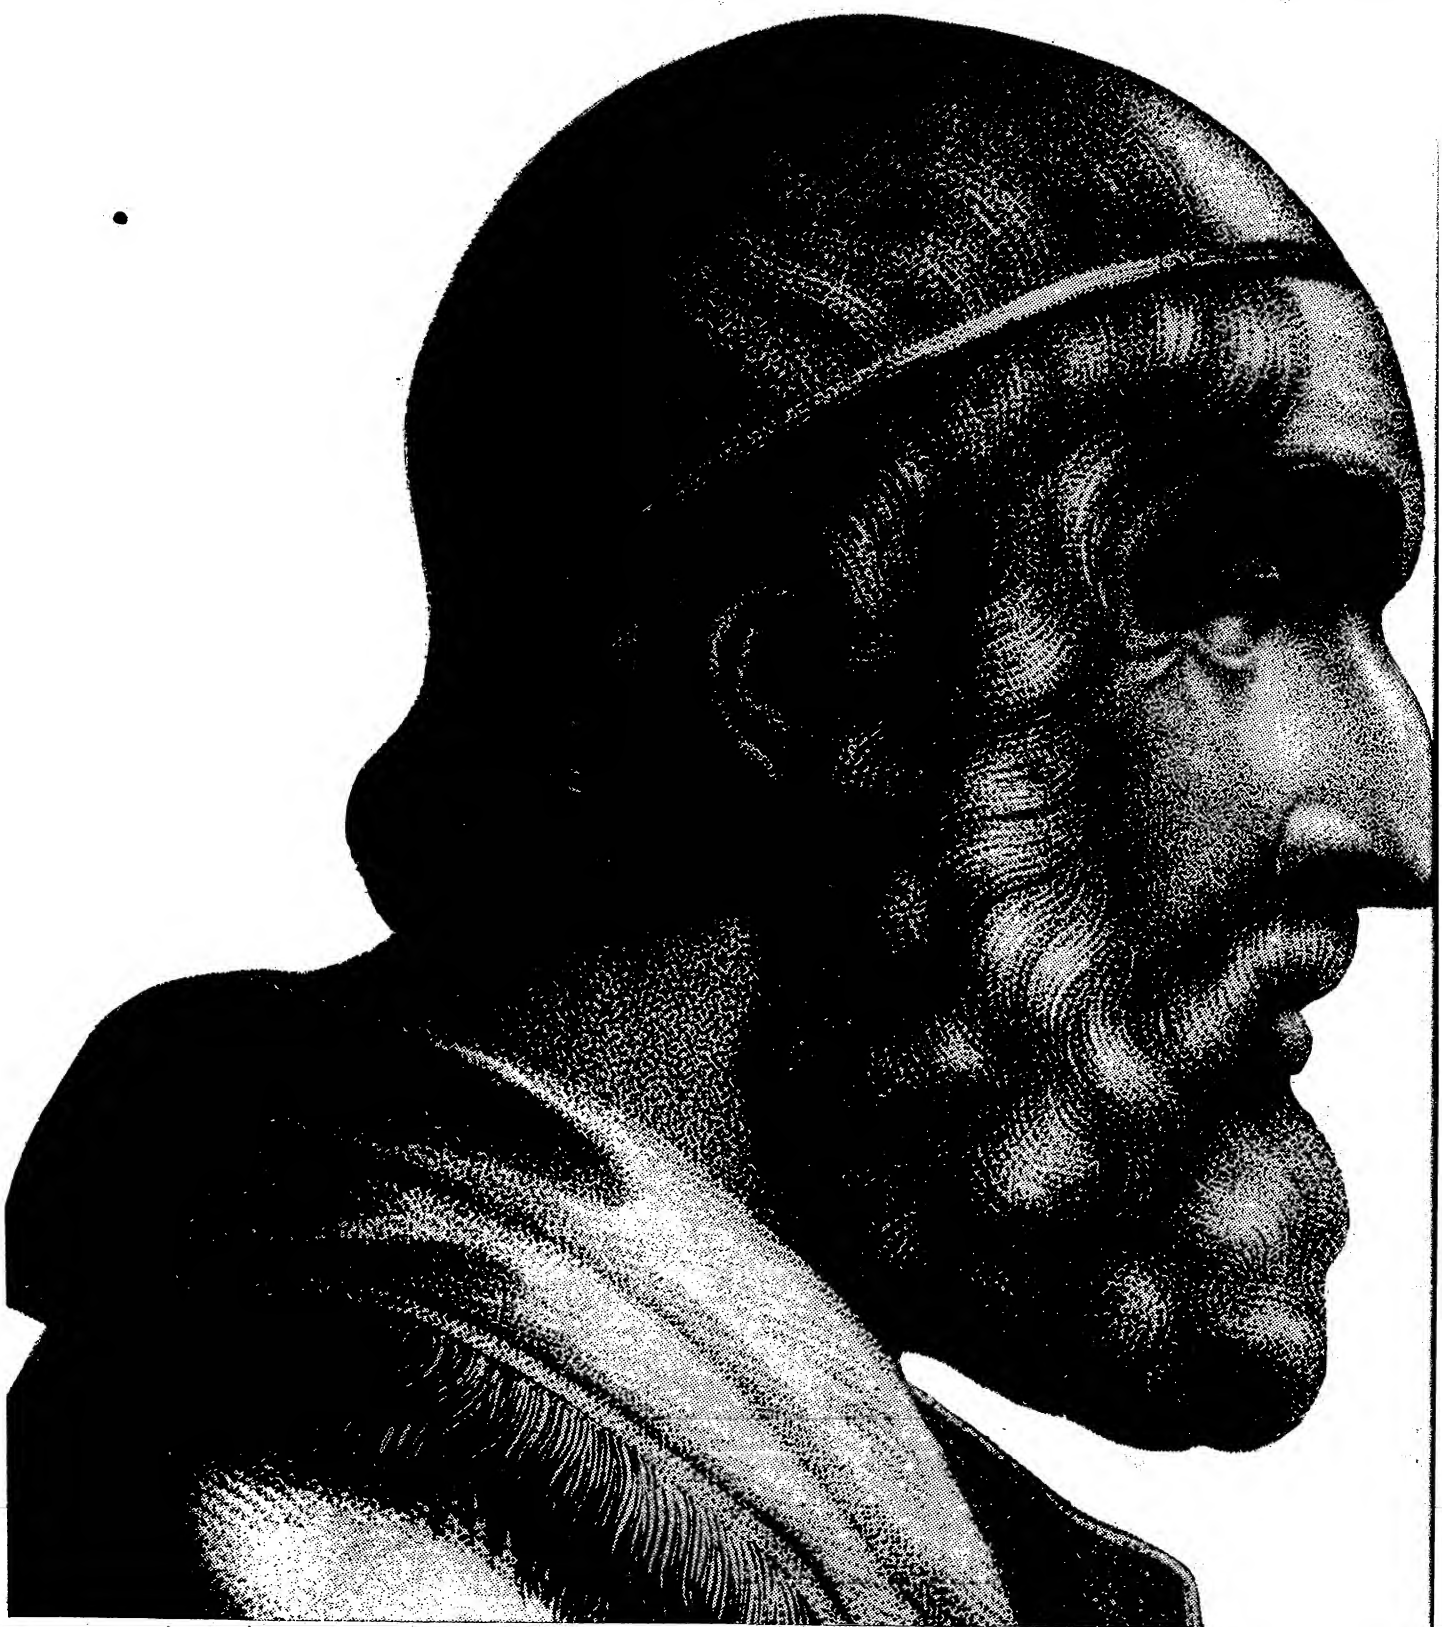
Court's 'Not So' to Adso

Los Angeles, April 29.

Ruling in favor of NBC, was found by Federal Judge Ben Harrison in suit filed by writer Ib Adso, charging plagiarism.

Adso claimed that net had utilized an idea of his on program, "The Price Is Right."

HOMER OUT-HOMERED



In Alaska, in Korea, in Moscow, Bob Hope has pursued his incredible television Odyssey. Not even Homer, who had only words to rely on, could impart to his countrymen the sense of understanding of remote peoples and places that Bob Hope consistently achieves with his NBC Television shows.

The Moscow show mixed oil and water. It evoked unparalleled critical enthusiasm and captured at the same time one of the largest audiences of the year. It would take a mighty fast-draw Western to out-do a combination of Hope and Ukrainian spear dancers.

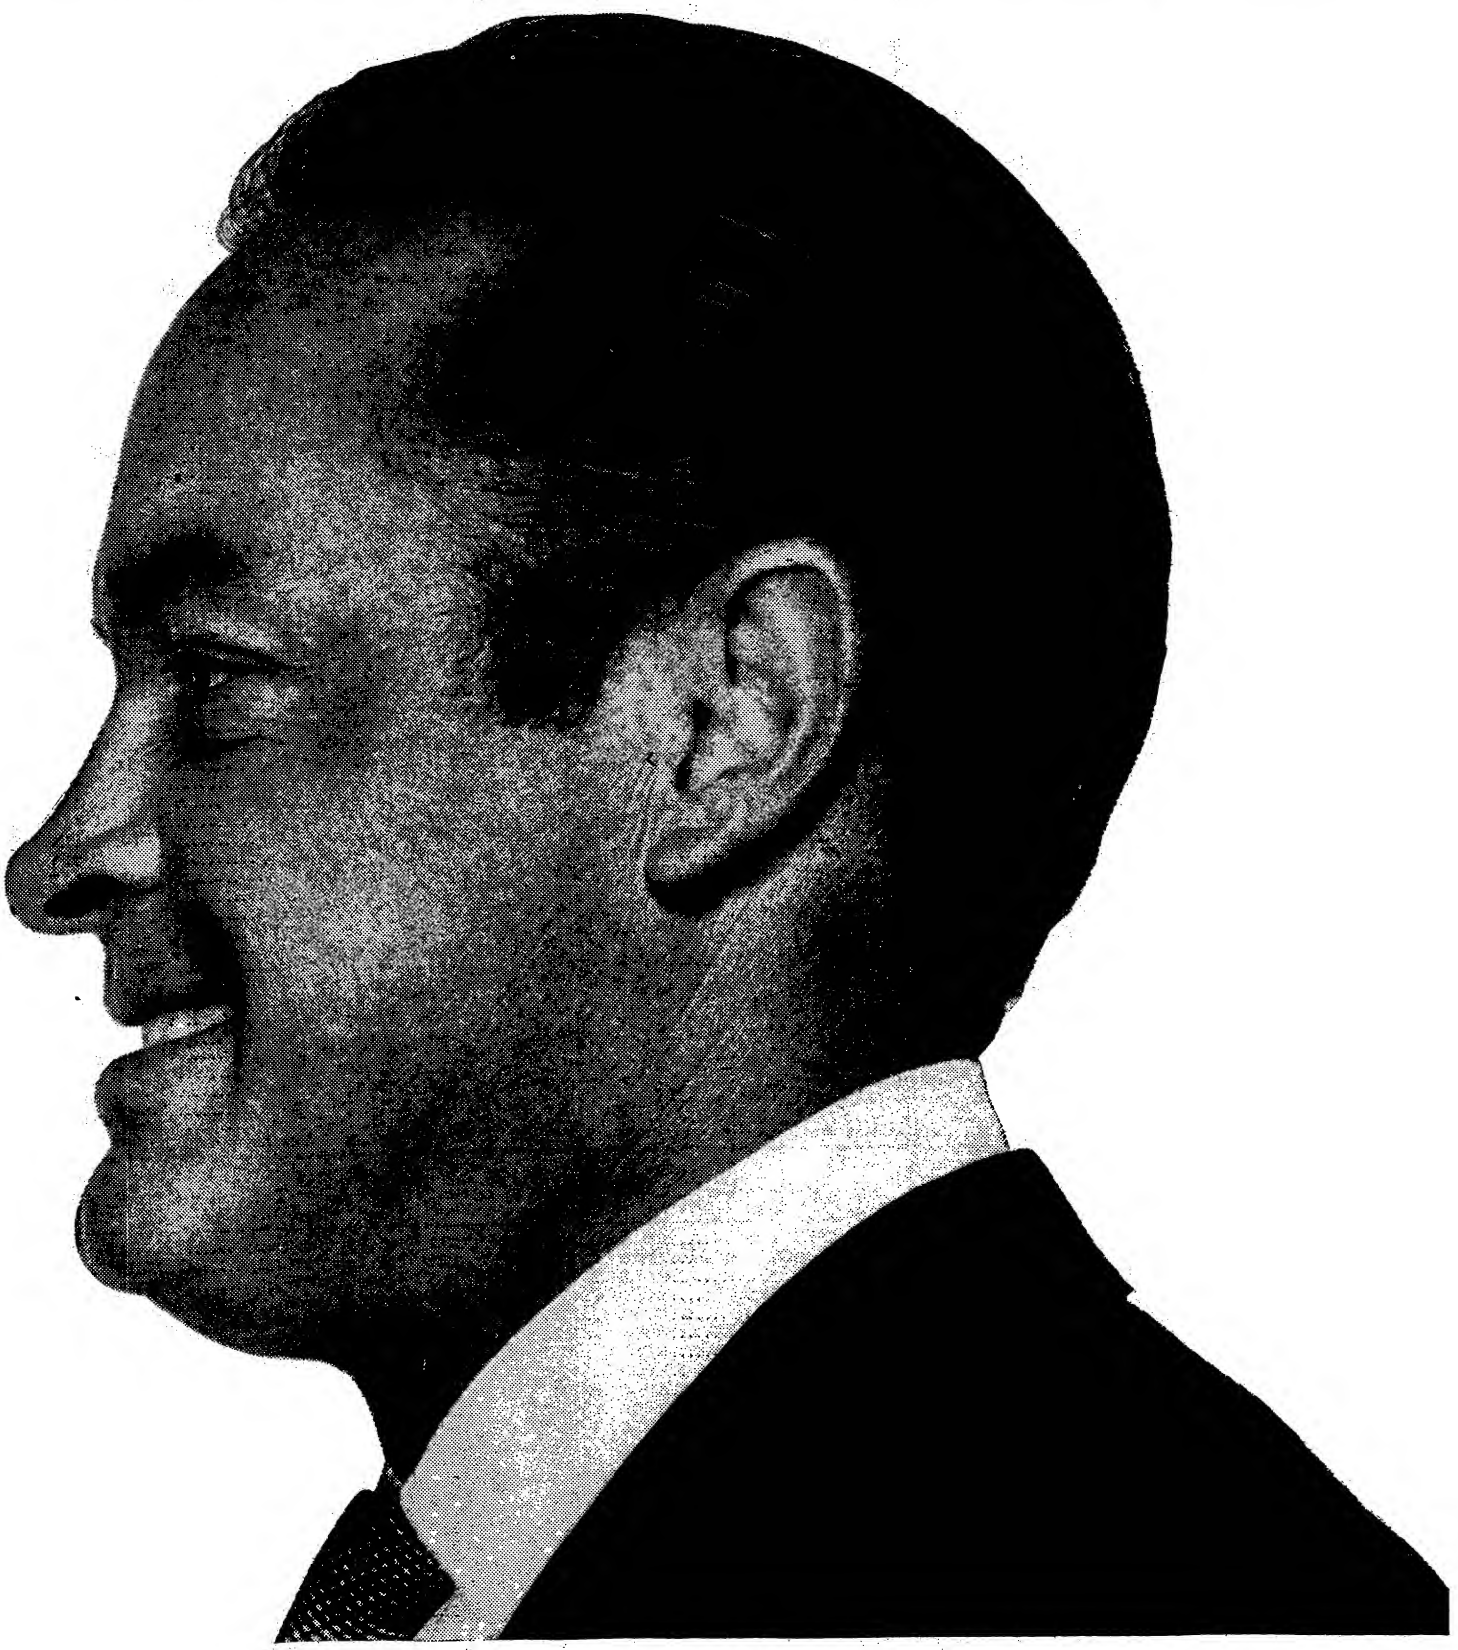
In his 8th year on television, Bob Hope has surged ahead to new peaks of audience popularity—just as NBC Television, in its 10th year, has forged into unquestioned supremacy in program popularity. ARB, Nielsen Multi-Network Area Report and Trendex all agree: In the nighttime hours, where competition is keenest and viewing heaviest, NBC Television is now the Number One Network.

The April Trendex reveals that NBC at night leads the second network by 14%, the third by 39%. In terms of half-hour wins, NBC has 20, the second network 14, the third 8. This report climaxes the greatest one-year audience shift in television's first decade.

Together, "Mr. United States"* and the network most preferred wherever there is full freedom of program choice, are riding the crest of the greatest audience endorsement in their joint histories.

From the 1958 George Foster Peabody Award citation to Bob Hope for his "Outstanding Contribution to International Understanding."*

NBC TELEVISION NETWORK



VARIETY-TELEPULSE CITY-BY-CITY PROGRAM CHART.

VARIETY's weekly chart is based on the 22 major markets regularly reported by Telepulse each month, in addition to 133 other Telepulse tabulated U.S. markets, covered over the course of a year. Cities will be rotated weekly. The VARIETY chart is a compilation of data on syndicated films, as well as network and live programs, in each market. Under the top 10 multi-weekly heading, the (†) stands for local programming and the (*) for network shows.

SAN ANTONIO

Stations: KCOR, KENS, KONO, WOAI. TV Homes: 142,200. Survey Dates: March 10-17, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	KENS	52.2
2.	Tales of Wells Fargo (Mon. 7:30-8)	WOAI	40.2
3.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 8:30-9)	KENS	39.9
4.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	KENS	38.5
5.	Perry Como (Sat. 7:00-8:00)	WOAI	37.7
5.	Restless Gun. (Mon. 7:00-7:30)	WOAI	37.7
6.	Wyatt Earp (Tues. 7:30-8:00)	KONO	37.3
7.	Maverick (Sun. 6:30-7:30)	KONO	36.9
8.	Broken Arrow (Tues. 8:00-8:30)	KONO	35.5
9.	Cheyenne (Tues. 6:30-7:30)	KONO	34.2

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	†12 Star Final (M-F 10:00-10:15)	KONO	26.4
2.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	KONO	21.3
3.	*Amer. Bandstand (M-F 3-3:30, 4-5)	KONO	18.3
4.	†Deadline (M-F 10:00-10:15)	WOAI	16.1
5.	*Do You Trust Wife (M-F 3:30-4)	KONO	15.3
6.	†World at Large (M-F 6:00-6:15)	WOAI	14.8
7.	*NBC News (M-F 6:15-6:30)	WOAI	14.7
8.	*Art Linkletter (M-F 1:30-2:00)	KENS	14.5
9.	†20th Century Theatre, Mis. (M-F 10:15-Signoff)	KONO	14.1
10.	*Big Payoff (M,W-F 2:00-2:30)	KENS	13.6

TOP TWENTY SYNDICATED SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRB.	AV. RTG.	AV. SH.
1.	Death Valley Days (Sat. 9:30)	KENS	U. S. Borax	38.7	57
2.	Sheriff of Cochise (Tues. 9:00)	KONO	NTA	31.9	46
3.	Annie Oakley (Tues. 6:00)	KONO	CBS	28.2	57
4.	State Trooper (Fri. 9:30)	KENS	MCA	26.2	38
5.	City Detective (Tues. 9:30)	KONO	MCA	24.9	39
6.	Gray Ghost (Tues. 8:30)	KONO	CBS	24.5	35
7.	Highway Patrol (Thurs. 7:00)	WOAI	Ziv	23.5	36
8.	Sky King (Wed. 6:00)	KONO	Nabisco	23.2	48
9.	Sea Hunt (Fri. 7:30)	WOAI	Ziv	21.5	31
9.	Sheena, Queen of Jungle (Fri. 6:00)	KONO	ABC	21.5	46
10.	Jungle Jim (Mon. 6:00)	KONO	Screen Gems	20.2	45
10.	Whirlybirds (Sat. 6:00)	WOAI	CBS	20.2	42
11.	Harbor Command (Fri. 9:30)	KONO	Ziv	19.2	28
11.	Medic (Sun. 9:30)	WOAI	CNP	19.2	30
11.	Tracer (Sat. 6:00)	KENS	Minot	19.2	40
12.	The Three Musketeers (Thurs. 6:00)	KONO	ABC	18.7	42
13.	Mr. District Attorney (Tues. 9:30)	KENS	Ziv	18.5	29
14.	Last of the Mohicans (Sun. 6:00)	KONO	TPA	18.2	32
15.	Star Performance (Sun. 9:30)	KONO	Official	17.5	27
16.	Frontier Doctor (Wed. 9:30)	WOAI	HTS	16.5	24
16.	Ramar of Jungle (Sat. 11:30 a.m.)	KONO	TPA	16.5	48

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
Your Hit Parade	WOAI	15.7
$64,000 Question	KENS	18.9
World at Large	WOAI	12.3
NBC News	WOAI	11.3
Harbor Command	KONO	19.2
Mr. District Attorney	KENS	18.5
Red Skelton	KENS	26.2
Zorro	KONO	26.2
World at Large	WOAI	15.0
NBC News	WOAI	15.3
Zane Gray	KENS	22.9
World at Large	WOAI	16.3
NBC News	WOAI	16.7
World at Large	WOAI	14.3
NBC News	WOAI	14.7
Tracers	KENS	19.2
State Trooper	KENS	26.2
What's My Line	KENS	25.2
Whirlybirds	WOAI	20.2
World at Large	WOAI	16.0
NBC News	WOAI	15.3
City Detective	KONO	24.9
Lassie	KENS	19.9
What's My Line	KENS	25.2
U. S. Steel Hour	KENS	25.5
Jimmy Dean	KENS	10.2

RICHMOND

Stations: WRVA, WTVR, WXEX. TV Homes: 93,300. Survey Dates: March 1-8, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Sugar Foot (Tues. 7:30-8:30)	WTVR	36.3
2.	Wyatt Earp (Tues. 8:30-9:00)	WTVR	35.2
3.	Perry Como (Sat. 8:00-9:00)	WXEX	33.8
4.	Tales of Wells Fargo (Mon. 8:30 9)	WXEX	32.2
5.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WRVA	31.5
6.	Maverick (Sun. 7:30-8:30)	WTVR	31.3
7.	Lawrence Welk (Sat. 9:00-10:00)	WTVR	30.9
8.	Restless Gun (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	WXEX	30.5
8.	Tombstone Territory (Wed. 8:30-9)	WTVR	30.5
9.	Real McCoys (Thurs. 8:30-9:00)	WTVR	30.0

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	*Amer. Bandstand (M-F 3-3:30, 4-5)	WTVR	17.8
2.	*News—John Daly (M-F 7:15-7:30)	WTVR	16.5
3.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	WTVR	16.3
4.	*Do You Trust Wife (M-F 3:30-4:00)	WTVR	16.0
5.	†News Report, Wea. (M-F 7:00-7:15)	WTVR	15.9
6.	†Ranchhouse Tales (T-F 6:00-6:30)	WTVR	14.6
7.	*As World Turns (M-F 1:30-2:00)	WRVA	14.2
8.	†Autry-Rogers (M-W, 6:00-7:00)	WRVA	13.6
9.	*My Little Margie (M-F 1:00-1:30)	WRVA	13.3
10.	*Guiding Light (M-F 12:45-1:00)	WRVA	12.9

1.	Whirlybirds (Wed. 7:00)	WXEX	CBS	21.4	40	WTVR News Rpt. Wea. / News—John Daly
2.	Death Valley Days (Mon. 7:00)	WXEX	U. S. Borax	20.5	46	WTVR / WTVR
2.	Sheriff of Cochise (Tues. 7:00)	WXEX	NTA	20.5	39	WTVR News Rpt., Wea. / News—John Daly
3.	Casey Jones (Fri. 6:30)	WRVA	Screen Gems	19.2	50	WTVR / WXEX
3.	Guy Lombardo (Thurs. 7:00)	WXEX	MCA	19.2	44	News, Sports, Wea. / NBC News / WTVR / WTVR
4.	Hopalong Cassidy (Sun. 6:30)	WTVR	NBC	18.7	47	Captain Gallant
5.	Hopalong Cassidy (Sat. 6:00)	WTVR	NBC	17.2	50	Million $ Movie
6.	Judge Roy Bean (Fri. 7:00)	WXEX	Screencraft	16.5	37	WXEX / News Rpt., Wea. / News—John Daly
7.	Men of Annapolis (Mon. 8:00)	WRVA	Ziv	16.3	26	WTVR / WXEX
8.	Gray Ghost (Thurs. 7:30)	WRVA	CBS	16.2	30	Restless Gun / Circus Boy
8.	Sea Hunt (Mon. 7:30)	WTVR	Ziv	16.2	30	WTVR / WXEX
9.	Silent Service (Sat. 10:30)	WRVA	NBC	16.0	33	Price Is Right / Your Hit Parade
10.	All Star Theatre (Sun. 5:30)	WTVR	Screen Gems	15.5	38	WXEX / Saber of London
10.	Susie (Wed. 10:30)	WXEX	TPA	15.5	38	Boxing, Misc.
11.	Martin Kane (Tues. 9:00)	WRVA	Ziv	15.3	24	WTVR / To Tell the Truth
12.	TV Theatre (Tues. 10:30)	WTVR	Ziv	14.5	34	National Wrestling / TV Theatre
13.	O. Henry Playhouse (Tues. 10:30)	WRVA	Gross Krasne	13.9	33	Ranchhouse Tales / Gunsmoke
14.	Autry-Rogers (M-W,F 6:00)	WRVA	MCA	13.6	38	WTVR / WRVA
15.	Victory at Sea (Sun. 10:00)	WXEX	NBC	13.5	22	Public Defender
16.	My Little Margie (M-F 1:00)	WRVA	Official	13.3	63	WXEX

PEORIA

Stations: WEEK, WMBD, WTVH. TV Homes: 77,600. Survey Dates: March 17-24, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Tales of Wells Fargo (Mon. 7:30-8)	WEEK	33.8
2.	Twenty One (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	WEEK	32.3
3.	Maverick (Sun. 6:30-7:30)	WTVH	31.9
4.	Restless Gun (Mon. 7:00-7:30)	WEEK	31.8
5.	Sugar Foot (Tues. 6:30-7:30)	WTVH	31.0
5.	Zorro (Thurs. 6:00-6:30)	WTVH	31.0
6.	I've Got a Secret (Wed. 8:30-9:00)	WMBD	30.8
7.	Top Tunes, New T'l'nt (M. 8:30-9:30)	WTVH	29.4
8.	Colt 45 (Thurs. 9:30-10:00)	WTVH	29.3
8.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	WMBD	29.3
8.	This Is Your Life (Wed. 9:00-9:30)	WEEK	29.3

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†News-Views (M-F 10:00-10:15)	WEEK	28.5
2.	†Wea., Sports (M-F 10:15-10:30)	WEEK	25.2
3.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	WTVH	21.4
4.	*NBC News (M-F 6:15-6:30)	WEEK	20.3
5.	†News, Wea. (M-F 6:00-6:15)	WEEK	19.6
6.	†News, Sports, Wea. (M-F 10-10:15)	WTVH	16.9
7.	†Lamplighter Playhouse (M-F 10:15-Signoff)	WTVH	16.1
8.	†Cartoon Carnival (M-F 5:00-6:00)	WEEK	15.4
9.	†Home Edition, Sports (M-F 6-6:15)	WMBD	13.5
10.	*CBS News (M-F 6:15-6:30)	WMBD	13.4

1.	Highway Patrol (Wed. 9:30)	WEEK	Ziv	29.8	44	Boxing
2.	State Trooper (Tues. 9:30)	WEEK	MCA	27.8	44	Sea Hunt
3.	Silent Service (Tues. 7:30)	WTVH	NBC	25.8	39	Eddie Fisher
4.	Mr. District Attorney (Sat. 7:00)	WEEK	Ziv	22.8	37	Perry Mason
5.	Last of the Mohicans (Sat. 6:00)	WEEK	TPA	22.3	51	Paul Beard Show
5.	Sea Hunt (Tues. 9:30)	WTVH	Ziv	22.3	35	State Trooper
6.	Martin Kane (Sat. 9:30)	WMBD	Ziv	20.8	30	Basketball
7.	Honeymooners (Sun. 8:00)	WMBD	CBS	19.8	28	Dinah Shore
7.	Men of Annapolis (Wed. 8:00)	WTVH	Ziv	19.8	28	Millionaire
7.	Twenty Six Men (Sat. 9:30)	WTVH	ABC	19.8	29	Basketball
8.	Harbor Command (Thurs. 8:00)	WEEK	Ziv	19.3	27	Pat Boone
9.	Sheriff of Cochise (Thurs. 6:00)	WTVH	NTA	17.3	35	News, Wea. / NBC News
10.	Official Detective (Fri. 6:00)	WTVH	NTA	16.3	33	News, Wea. / NBC News
10.	Combat Sgt. (Fri. 6:30)	WEEK	NTA	16.3	30	Leave It to Beaver
11.	Captain David Grief (Fri. 7:30)	WTVH	Guild	15.8	25	Basketball
12.	Code Three (Mon. 6:00)	WTVH	ABC	15.3	30	News, Wea. / NBC News
12.	Mr. District Attorney (Sun. 9:30)	WEEK	Ziv	15.3	24	What's My Line
13.	Annie Oakley (Sun. 5:30)	WTVH	CBS	14.8	28	Shirley Temple
13.	Passport to Danger (Tues. 6:00)	WTVH	ABC	14.8	31	News, Wea. / NBC News
14.	Cases of Eddie Drake (Thurs. 6:30)	WMBD	CBS	14.3	24	Circus Boy

1.	Boxing	WTVH	21.0
2.	Sea Hunt	WTVH	22.3
3.	Eddie Fisher	WEEK	25.3
4.	Perry Mason	WMBD	24.3
5.	Paul Beard Show	WTVH	12.3
5.	State Trooper	WEEK	27.8
6.	Basketball	WEEK	27.8
7.	Dinah Shore	WEEK	27.3
7.	Millionaire	WMBD	26.3
8.	Basketball	WEEK	22.8
8.	Pat Boone	WTVH	28.8
9.	News, Wea. / NBC News	WEEK	19.0 / 20.0
10.	News, Wea. / NBC News	WEEK	18.5 / 19.5
10.	Leave It to Beaver	WMBD	18.8
11.	Basketball	WEEK	29.3
12.	News, Wea. / NBC News	WEEK	21.0 / 21.5
12.	What's My Line	WMBD	26.3
13.	Shirley Temple	WEEK	24.8
13.	News, Wea. / NBC News	WEEK / WEEK	19.5 / 20.0
14.	Circus Boy	WTVH	23.8

TUCSON

Stations: KGUN, KOLD, KVOA. TV Homes: 54,800. Survey Dates: March 10-17, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 8:00-8:30)	KOLD	38.9
2.	Perry Como (Sat. 6:00-7:00)	KVOA	36.8
3.	Maverick (Sun. 8:30-9:30)	KGUN	34.0
4.	Dinah Shore (Sun. 7:00-8:00)	KVOA	33.8
5.	Lineup (Fri. 8:00-8:30)	KOLD	33.2
6.	Perry Mason (Sat. 9:30-10:30)	KOLD	32.0
7.	Ozzie & Harriet (Wed. 9:00-9:30)	KGUN	31.2
8.	Ed Sullivan (Sun. 6:00-7:00)	KOLD	30.2
9.	What's My Line (Sun. 9:30-10:00)	KOLD	29.5
10.	Leave It to Beaver (Sat. 8:30-9:00)	KOLD	29.2

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†Big Movie, Misc. (M-F 9:45-11:00)	KVOA	16.4
2.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	KGUN	15.8
3.	*Art Linkletter (M-Th. 12:30-1:00)	KOLD	15.6
4.	†Wea., Misc. (M-F 10:30-11:00)	KOLD	15.3
5.	†News, Misc. (M-F 9:30-10:00)	KGUN	14.5
6.	*Beat the Clock (M-Th. 12:00-12:30)	KOLD	14.3
7.	*Queen for a Day (M-F 2:00-2:45)	KVOA	14.0
8.	†Headline Tucson (M-F 6:00-6:15)	KOLD	14.1
9.	†Cartoon Corral (M-F 4:30-5:30)	KVOA	12.9
10.	†Edition, Misc. (M,T,Th,F 5:45-6:00)	KVOA	12.5

1.	Highway Patrol (Fri. 8:30)	KOLD	Ziv	33.9	48	Sports Roundup
2.	Sheriff of Cochise (Mon. 9:00)	KOLD	NTA	32.2	48	Love That Jill
3.	Crusader (Mon. 9:30)	KOLD	MCA	28.0	47	Big Movie
4.	Honeymooners (Fri. 9:30)	KOLD	CBS	25.5	43	Big Movie
5.	Badge 714 (Tues. 9:00)	KVOA	NBC	25.2	40	Stories of the Century
6.	State Trooper (Tues. 8:30)	KOLD	MCA	23.9	34	Telephone Time
7.	Twenty Six Men (Thurs. 9:00)	KOLD	ABC	22.2	35	Medic
8.	Inner Sanctum (Wed. 8:30)	KVOA	NBC	21.9	32	U. S. Steel Hr.
9.	Sea Hunt (Tues. 8:30)	KVOA	Ziv	21.5	32	Telephone Time
10.	Medic (Thurs. 9:00)	KVOA	CNP	21.2	33	26 Men
11.	Boot and Saddles (Fri. 7:00)	KOLD	NBC	20.5	34	M Squad
11.	Mickey Rooney (Mon. 6:00)	KVOA	Screencraft	20.5	58	Handling Tucson, Wea. / Wea., Sports
11.	Stories of the Century (Tues. 9:00)	KGUN	Hollywood	20.5	32	Badge 714
12.	Dr. Hudson's Secret Jour. (Sun. 7:30)	KOLD	MCA	19.9	31	Dinah Shore
13.	Annie Oakley (Wed. 9:30)	KOLD	CBS	19.5	35	Big Movie
14.	Harbor Command (Tues. 7:30)	KOLD	Ziv	18.5	28	Wyatt Earp
15.	Silent Service (Fri. 7:00)	KGUN	NBC	18.2	30	M Squad
16.	Official Detective (Tues. 9:00)	KOLD	NTA	17.9	28	Badge 714
17.	Kingdom of the Sea (Thurs. 8:30)	KGUN	Guild	17.5	26	Playhouse 90
17.	Charlie Chan (Sun. 9:30)	KGUN	TPA	17.5	28	What's My Line

1.	Sports Roundup	KVOA 24.2
2.	Love That Jill	KGUN 17.5
3.	Big Movie	KVOA 17.5
4.	Big Movie	KVOA 21.2
5.	Stories of the Century	KGUN 20.5
6.	Telephone Time	KGUN 24.5
7.	Medic	KVOA 21.2
8.	U. S. Steel Hr.	KOLD 23.5
9.	Telephone Time	KGUN 24.5
10.	26 Men	KOLD 22.2
11.	M Squad	KVOA 21.9
11.	Handling Tucson, Wea. / Wea., Sports	KOLD 9.7 / KOLD 9.3
11.	Badge 714	KVOA 25.2
12.	Dinah Shore	KVOA 33.5
13.	Big Movie	KVOA 20.4
14.	Wyatt Earp	KGUN 29.2
15.	M Squad	KVOA 21.9
16.	Badge 714	KVOA 25.2
17.	Playhouse 90	KOLD 26.2
17.	What's My Line	KOLD 29.5

VARIETY-TELEPULSE CITY-BY-CITY PROGRAM CHART.

VARIETY's weekly chart is based on the 22 major markets regularly reported by Telepulse each month, in addition to 133 other Telepulse tabulated U.S. markets, covered over the course of a year. Cities will be rotated weekly. The VARIETY chart is a compilation of data on syndicated films, as well as network and live programs, in each market. Under the top 10 multi-weekly heading, the (†) stands for local programming and the (*) for network shows.

PHOENIX

Stations: KOOL, KPHO, KTVK, KVAR. TV Homes: 131,900. Survey Dates: March 10-17, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 8:00-8:30)	KOOL	35.9
2.	Perry Mason (Sat. 8:30-9:30)	KOOL	34.8
3.	Lawrence Welk (Sat. 7:00-8:00)	KTVK	34.0
4.	Perry Como (Sat. 6:00-7:00)	KVAR	33.0
5.	Maverick (Sun. 8:30-9:30)	KTVK	31.5
6.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	KOOL	31.2
7.	Alfred Hitchcock (Sun. 9:30-10)	KOOL	29.9
8.	Ed Sullivan (Sun. 6:00-7:00)	KOOL	29.5
9.	Boxing (Wed. 8:00-8:45)	KTVK	29.0
10.	Sports Spotlight (Wed. 8:45-9:00)	KTVK	28.3

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	AV. RTG.
1.	†It's Wallace (M-F 4:00-5:30)	KPHO	22.0
2.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	KTVK	17.7
3.	*Art Linkletter (M-F 12:30-1:00)	KOOL	14.9
4.	*Beat the Clock (M-F 12:00-12:30)	KOOL	14.3
5.	†Headlines (M-F 10:00-10:15)	KPHO	14.2
6.	†Final Edition (M-F 10:00-10:15)	KOOL	14.0
6.	*Verdict Is Yours (M-F 10:00-10:45)	KOOL	14.0
7.	†Romper Room (M, W, F 11-12 a.m.)	KVAR	13.1
8.	*As the World Turns (M-F 11:30-12)	KOOL	12.9
9.	*Big Payoff (M-F 1:00-1:30)	KOOL	12.8

TOP TWENTY SYNDICATED SHOWS

RK.	PROGRAM—DAY—TIME	STA.	DISTRIB.	AV. RTG.	AV. SH.
1.	Sheriff of Cochise (Tues. 9:00)	KOOL	NTA	32.5	51
2.	Honeymooners (Wed. 7:30)	KOOL	CBS	23.9	34
3.	State Trooper (Mon. 9:00)	KOOL	MCA	23.5	35
4.	I Search for Adventure (Fri. 7:30)	KOOL	Bagnall	23.2	33
5.	Highway Patrol (Tues. 9:30)	KPHO	Ziv	21.2	35
6.	26 Men (Wed. 6:00)	KTVK	ABC	20.9	38
7.	Dr. Hudson's Secret Journal (Sun. 9)	KVAR	MCA	20.5	29
7.	Studio 57 (Thurs. 9)	KOOL	MCA	20.5	29
8.	Big Story (Fri. 9:30)	KVAR	Official	18.9	27
9.	San Francisco Beat (Tues. 8:30)	KOOL	CBS	18.5	28
10.	Annie Oakley (Sun. 7:30)	KOOL	CBS	18.2	26
11.	Silent Service (Thurs. 10:00)	KVAR	NBC	17.2	34
12.	Death Valley Days (Fri. 9:30)	KPHO	U. S. Borax	16.5	24
13.	Favorite Story (Mon. 10:00)	KVAR	Ziv	16.2	32
13.	Sea Hunt (Thurs. 9:30)	KVAR	Ziv	16.2	25
13.	Susie (Fri. 6:00)	KOOL	TPA	16.2	37
14.	Badge 714 (Wed. 9:30)	KVAR	NBC	15.9	24
14.	Crunch & Des (Thurs. 6:00)	KTVK	NBC	15.9	31
14.	Crusader (Mon. 9:30)	KPHO	MCA	15.9	25
15.	Famous Playhouse (W, Sat. 9:00)	KVAR	MCA	15.6	23

TOP COMPETITION

PROGRAM	STA.	AV. RTG.
West Point	KTVK	13.2
Tombstone Territory	KTVK	23.9
Restless Gun	KVAR	17.2
Thin Man	KVAR	22.9
Name That Tune	KOOL	22.2
Big Record	KOOL	22.5
Maverick	KTVK	30.2
Groucho Marx	KVAR	20.9
Trackdown	KOOL	21.2
Telephone Time	KTVK	21.9
Dinah Shore	KVAR	23.2
⟨ Headlines	KPHO	13.7
⟨ Wea., Performance	KPHO	13.3
Trackdown	KOOL	21.2
⟨ Headlines	KPHO	17.0
⟨ Wea., Movietime	KPHO	16.0
Richard Diamond	KOOL	19.9
Capt. Gallant	KVAR	14.5
I've Got A Secret	KOOL	24.5
Sgt. Preston	KOOL	16.2
Burns & Allen	KOOL	23.9
Perry Mason	KOOL	35.2

SYRACUSE

Stations: WHEN, WSYR. TV Homes: 106,200. Survey Dates: March 10-17, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WHEN	46.8
2.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WHEN	43.8
3.	Oh Susanna (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	WHEN	41.8
4.	Climax (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	WHEN	39.4
5.	George Gobel (Tues. 8:00-9:00)	WSYR	39.3
5.	Restless Gun (Mon. 8:00-8:30)	WSYR	39.3
5.	Trackdown (Fri. 8:00-8:30)	WHEN	39.3
5.	Zane Grey (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	WHEN	39.3
6.	Adv. of McGraw (Tues. 9:00-9:30)	WSYR	38.8
6.	Father Knows Best (Wed. 8:30-9)	WSYR	38.8

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	WSYR	23.8
2.	†News, Wea., Sports (M-F 11-11:15)	WHEN	22.3
3.	†Esso Reporter, Misc. (M-F 6:30-6:45)	WSYR	21.8
4.	†Wld., News, Spts., Wea. (M-F 6:45-7)	WSYR	21.5
5.	*CBS News (M-F 6:45-7:00)	WHEN	17.9
6.	†News, Sprts., Wea. (M-F 6:30-6:45)	WHEN	17.0
7.	†Star Theatre (M-F 11:15-Signoff)	WHEN	15.0
8.	*Guiding Light (M-F 12:45-1:00)	WHEN	13.5
8.	†Hollywood Matinee (M-F 1:00-2:30)	WSYR	13.5
9.	*Search, Tomorrow (M-F 12:30-12:45)	WHEN	13.1

1.	Frontier (Sat. 10:30)	WHEN	NBC	37.3	63	Your Hit Parade	WSYR	21.3
2.	Sheriff of Cochise (Fri. 9:30)	WSYR	NTA	35.3	56	Playhouse of Stars	WHEN	27.8
3.	Harbor Command (Wed. 7:00)	WSYR	Ziv	31.8	61	26 Men	WHEN	20.3
3.	Sea Hunt (Thurs. 7:00)	WHEN	Ziv	31.8	56	Gray Ghost	WSYR	24.3
4.	Casey Jones (Sun. 5:30)	WSYR	Screen Gems	31.0	75	Great Challenge	WHEN	10.5
5.	State Trooper (Sat. 7:00)	WSYR	MCA	30.3	51	Wyatt Earp	WHEN	29.3
6.	Highway Patrol (Wed. 10:30)	WSYR	Ziv	29.8	50	U. S. Steel Hour	WHEN	29.0
7.	Mama (Tues. 7:00)	WHEN	CBS	29.3	51	Broken Arrow	WHEN	27.5
7.	Sky King (Tues. 6:00)	WSYR	Nabisco	29.3	66	⟨ Early Show	WHEN	7.5
						⟨ Prvws-Come	WHEN	7.0
8.	Code Three (Tues. 10:30)	WSYR	ABC	29.0	53	Whirlybirds	WHEN	21.3
9.	Silent Service (Mon. 7:00)	WSYR	NBC	28.3	55	Jim Bowie	WHEN	22.5
10.	O. Henry Playhouse (Fri. 7:00)	WSYR	Gross Krasne	26.3	54	Fun-Time	WHEN	21.6
11.	Gray Ghost (Thurs. 7:00)	WSYR	CBS	24.3	43	Sea Hunt	WHEN	31.8
12.	Whirlybirds (Tues. 10:30)	WHEN	CBS	21.3	41	Code 3	WSYR	29.0
13.	Twenty Six Men (Wed. 7:00)	WHEN	ABC	20.3	38	Harbor Command	WSYR	31.8
14.	Championship Bowling (Sat. 12:30)	WSYR	W. Schwimmer	20.0	52	⟨ Annie Oakley	WHEN	19.8
						⟨ Lone Ranger	WHEN	17.3
15.	Annie Oakley (Sat. 12:30)	WHEN	CBS	19.8	51	Championship Bowling	WSYR	18.8
16.	Hopalong Cassidy (Sat. 12 noon)	WSYR	NBC	16.0	45	Rin Tin Tin	WHEN	19.3
17.	Martin Kane (Fri. 11:00)	WSYR	Ziv	15.0	26	⟨ News, Wea., Sports	WHEN	23.5
						⟨ Star-Time	WHEN	19.5
18.	All Star Theatre (M-F 9 a.m.)	WSYR	Screen Gems	7.7	49	Party Line, Misc.	WHEN	7.9

CHARLESTON, S. C.

Stations: WCSC, WUSN. TV Homes: 46,000. Survey Dates: March 10-17, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

1.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WCSC	46.3
2.	Have Gun Will Travel (Sat. 9:30-10)	WCSC	43.0
3.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	WCSC	41.1
4.	Alfred Hitchcock (Sat. 10:30-11:00)	WCSC	40.8
4.	G. E. Theatre (Sun. 9:00-9:30)	WCSC	40.8
5.	Oh Susanna (Sat. 9:00-9:30)	WCSC	40.3
6.	Ed Sullivan (Sun. 8:00-9:00)	WCSC	39.6
7.	Phil Silvers (Fri. 9:00-9:30)	WCSC	39.5
8.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	WCSC	38.8
9.	Climax (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	WCSC	38.3
9.	I've Got A Secret (Wed. 9:30-10:00)	WCSC	38.3

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	†Popeye (M,T,Th,F 6:00-6:30)	WCSC	28.5
2.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	WCSC	23.8
3.	†Esso Reporter (M-F 6:45-7:00)	WCSC	22.8
4.	†Wea., Sportscope (M-F 6:30-6:45)	WCSC	22.3
5.	†News, Wea. (M-F 11:00-11:15)	WUSN	17.5
6.	*Jack Paar (M-F 11:15-Signoff)	WUSN	17.1
7.	*Price Is Right (M-F 11-11:30 a.m.)	WUSN	13.6
8.	*Art Linkletter (M-F 2:30-3:00)	WCSC	13.5
9.	†News, Wea., Misc. (M-F 6:15-6:30)	WUSN	12.4
10.	*Queen For A Day (M-F 4-4:45)	WUSN	12.3

1.	26 Men (Sun. 9:30)	WCSC	A.C	36.3	53	Dinah Shore	WUSN	32.5
2.	Sheriff of Cochise (Fri. 8:00)	WCSC	NTA	35.8	56	Court of Last Resort	WUSN	27.8
3.	Highway Patrol (Mon. 9:30)	WUSN	Ziv	34.3	54	December Bride	WCSC	29.0
4.	Harbor Command (Tues. 8:30)	WCSC	Ziv	34.0	53	George Gobel	WUSN	29.8
5.	State Trooper (Thurs. 7:30)	WCSC	MCA	30.8	55	Gray Ghost	WUSN	24.8
6.	Mr. District Attorney (Mon. 8:00)	WUSN	Ziv	29.3	45	Burns and Allen	WCSC	35.8
6.	Whirlybirds (Fri. 9:30)	WUSN	CBS	29.3	44	Playhouse of Stars	WCSC	36.8
7.	Popeye (M, T, Th, Fri. 6:00)	WCSC	AAP	28.5	69	RKO Presents	WUSN	12.6
8.	Captain David Grief (Wed. 7:00)	WUSN	Guild	28.3	52	Cisco Kid	WCSC	25.8
9.	Sky King (Wed. 6:00)	WCSC	Nabisco	27.8	69	RKO Presents	WUSN	12.3
10.	Cisco Kid (Wed. 7:00)	WCSC	Ziv	25.8	48	Captain David Grief	WUSN	28.3
10.	Stage 7 (Tues. 9:30)	WCSC	TPA	25.8	41	Bob Cummings	WUSN	36.8
11.	Gray Ghost (Thurs. 7:30)	WUSN	CBS	24.8	45	State Trooper	WCSC	30.8
12.	Man Behind Badge (Thurs. 11:00)	WCSC	MCA	23.8	58	⟨ News, Wea.	WUSN	18.5
						⟨ Jack Paar	WUSN	16.0
13.	Grand Ole Opry (Sat. 7:00)	WUSN	Flamingo	22.0	49	20th Century	WCSC	22.8
14.	Looney Tunes (Fri. 6:30)	WUSN	Guild	21.8	51	⟨ Wea., Sportscope	WCSC	20.5
						⟨ Esso Reporter	WCSC	21.0
14.	White Hunter (Wed. 6:30)	WUSN	Telestar	21.8	49	⟨ Wea., Sportscope	WCSC	22.5
						⟨ Esso Reporter	WCSC	23.0
15.	I Search for Adv. (Thurs. 7:00)	WUSN	Bagnall	19.8	38	Colt 45	WCSC	32.0
16.	Public Defender (Tues. 10:30)	WCSC	Interstate	19.3	47	Country-Jubilee	WUSN	21.5
17.	Federal Men (Fri. 11:00)	WCSC	MCA	18.0	53	⟨ News, Wea.	WUSN	16.5
						⟨ Jack Paar	WUSN	15.5
17.	Mr. & Mrs. North (Sun. 5:30)	WUSN	Schubert	18.0	49	Great Challenge	WCSC	18.8

COLUMBUS, Ga.

Stations: WRBL, WTVM. TV Homes: 45,700. Survey Dates: March 4-11, 22, 1958.

TOP TEN NETWORK SHOWS

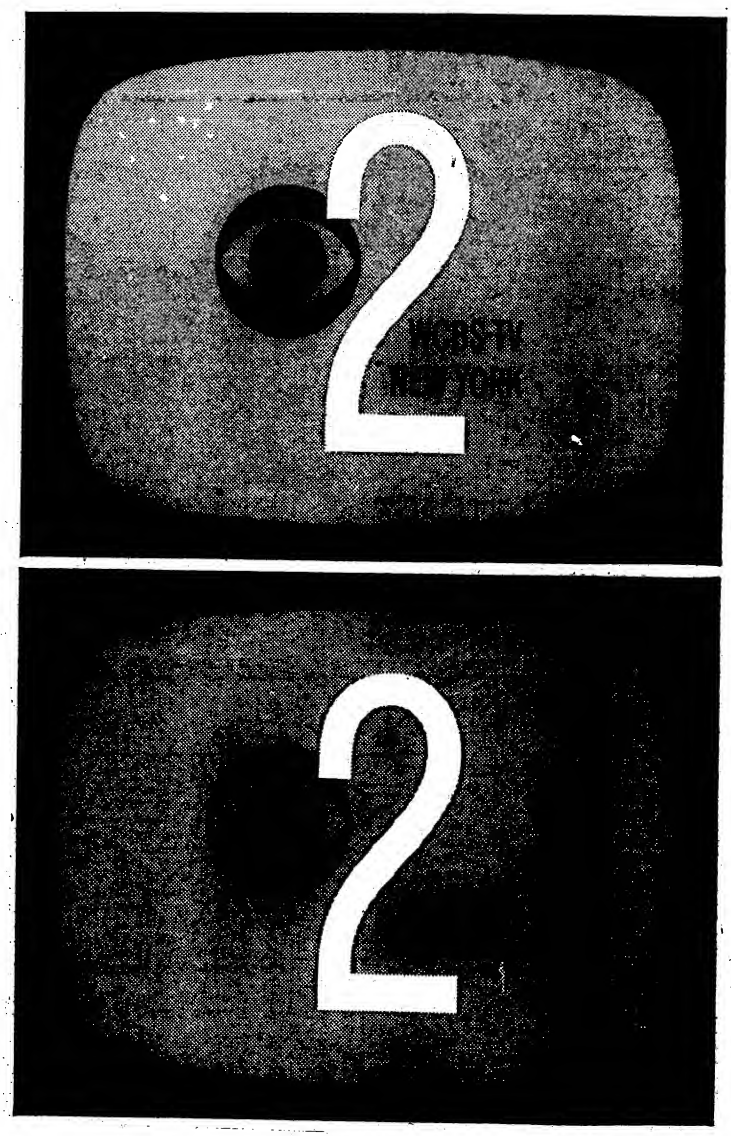
1.	Zane Grey (Fri. 8:30-9:00)	WRBL	49.5
2.	Gunsmoke (Sat. 10:00-10:30)	WRBL	49.3
2.	Rin Tin Tin (Fri. 7:30-8:00)	WRBL	49.3
3.	December Bride (Mon. 9:30-10:00)	WRBL	48.8
3.	Trackdown (Fri. 8:00-8:30)	WRBL	48.8
4.	Danny Thomas (Mon. 9:00-9:30)	WRBL	48.3
5.	Disneyland (Wed. 7:00-8:00)	WRBL	48.0
6.	Broken Arrow (Sat. 9:30-10:00)	WRBL	47.3
7.	Playhouse 90 (Thurs. 9:30-11:00)	WRBL	46.2
8.	Climax (Thurs. 8:30-9:30)	WRBL	45.8

TOP TEN MULTI-WEEKLY SHOWS

1.	*CBS News (M-F 7:15-7:30)	WRBL	37.9
2.	†Evening Edit., Wea., (M-F 7-7:15)	WRBL	37.4
3.	†Saddle Pals (M-F 6:00-6:30)	WRBL	26.2
4.	†News (M-F 11:00-11:15)	WRBL	25.0
5.	†Wea., Misc. (M-F 11:15-11:30)	WRBL	22.0
6.	*Mickey Mouse Club (M-F 5:30-6)	WRBL	19.1
7.	†Nightbeat (M-Th. 11:30-Signoff)	WRBL	18.6
8.	†Western Theatre (M-F 5:30-6:30)	WTVM	16.4
9.	*Edge of Night (M-F 4:30-5:00)	WRBL	15.5
10.	*Guiding Light (M-F 12:45-1:00)	WRBL	15.4

1.	Gray Ghost (Wed. 8:30)	WRBL	CBS	43.3	64	Big Record	WTVM	24.3
2.	State Trooper (Tues. 8:30)	WRBL	MCA	40.0	58	Eddie Fisher	WTVM	29.3
3.	Code Three (Tues. 9:30)	WRBL	ABC	38.0	61	Bob Cummings	WTVM	24.8
4.	Harbor Command (Fri. 9:00)	WTVM	Ziv	34.8	52	Political	WRBL	31.8
5.	Science Fiction Theatre (Sun. 10:30)	WRBL	Ziv	34.3	64	Dr. Hudson	WTVM	19.5
6.	Whirlybirds (Sun. 7:00)	WRBL	CBS	30.3	54	Shirley Temple	WTVM	25.8
7.	O. Henry Playhouse (Tues. 6:30)	WRBL	Gross Krasne	27.8	56	Range Rider	WTVM	21.8
8.	Sky King (Thurs. 6:30)	WRBL	Nabisco	25.0	57	Rhythm Ranchers	WTVM	19.0
9.	Patti Page (Tues. 10:30)	WRBL	Screen Gems	24.8	58	Dr. Christian	WTVM	18.3
10.	Gene Autry (Sat. 7:00)	WTVM	CBS	22.3	38	Telephone Time	WRBL	36.3
10.	Highway Patrol (Thurs. 9:00)	WTVM	Ziv	22.3	33	Climax	WRBL	45.8
10.	San Francisco Beat (Wed. 9:00)	WTVM	CBS	22.3	33	Millionaire	WRBL	44.8
11.	Doug Fairbanks (Sat. 11:30)	WRBL	ABC	22.0	48	Shock	WTVM	24.3
12.	Range Rider (Tues. 6:30)	WTVM	CBS	21.8	44	O. Henry Playhouse	WRBL	27.8
13.	Errol Flynn (Sat. 4:30)	WTVM	Official	21.3	56	All Star Golf	WRBL	17.0
14.	Sheriff of Cochise (Sun. 6:30)	WTVM	NTA	20.3	46	20th Century	WRBL	24.0
15.	Sea Hunt (Tues. 7:30)	WTVM	Ziv	20.0	32	Name That Tune	WRBL	42.8
16.	Dr. Hudson's Secret Jour. (Sun. 10:30)	WTVM	MCA	19.5	36	Science Fiction	WRBL	19.5
17.	Amos 'n' Andy (Mon. 6:30)	WTVM	CBS	19.3	42	Jim Bowie	WRBL	26.3
17.	Brave Eagle (Wed. 6:30)	WTVM	CBS	19.3	44	Pat Boone	WRBL	24.5
17.	Silent Service (Sat. 9:30)	WTVM	NBC	19.3	29	Broken Arrow	WRBL	47.3

We pause for local station identification



In addition to its network awards, the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences gives Emmys for the best programs and performers in two local areas—New York and Los Angeles.

In seven-station New York, five out of the eight awards went to CBS Owned WCBS-TV.

In seven-station Los Angeles, four out of the eight awards went to CBS Owned KNXT.

There is a significance to these NATAS selections which is inescapable, particularly in the fact that eight of the nine awards to WCBS-TV and KNXT were for local live community service programs, such as news, sports and education. (Each station, for example, was awarded the Emmy for the best local news program.)

These Emmys provide further recognition of the key role of each CBS Owned station in the daily life of the community of which it is part and parcel.

CBS Television Stations

CBS Owned WCBS-TV Channel 2, New York; KNXT Channel 2, Los Angeles; WBBM-TV Channel 2, Chicago; KMOX-TV Channel 4, St. Louis; WXIX Channel 19, Milwaukee; WHCT Channel 18, Hartford

VARIETY-ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

VARIETY's weekly chart, based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau's latest reports on feature films and their competition covers 120 cities. Each week, the 10 top-rated features in a particular city will be rotated.

Factors which would assist distributors, agencies, stations and advertisers in determining the effectiveness of a feature show in a specific market have been included in this VARIETY chart. Listed below is such pertinent information regarding features as their stars, release year, original production company and the present distributor included wherever possible along with the title. Attention should be paid to such factors as the time and day, the high and low ratings for the measured feature period and share of audience, since these factors reflect the effectiveness of the feature and audience composition, i.e., a late show at 11:15 p.m. would hardly have any children viewers, but its share of audience may reflect dominance in that time period. In the cities where stations sell their feature programming on a multi-stripped basis utilizing the same theatrical throughout the week a total rating for the total number of showings for the week is given, the total rating not taking into account the duplicated homes factor. Barring unscheduled switches in titles the listed features for the particularly rated theatrical filmed show are as accurate as could be ascertained from a multiplicity of station and other data.

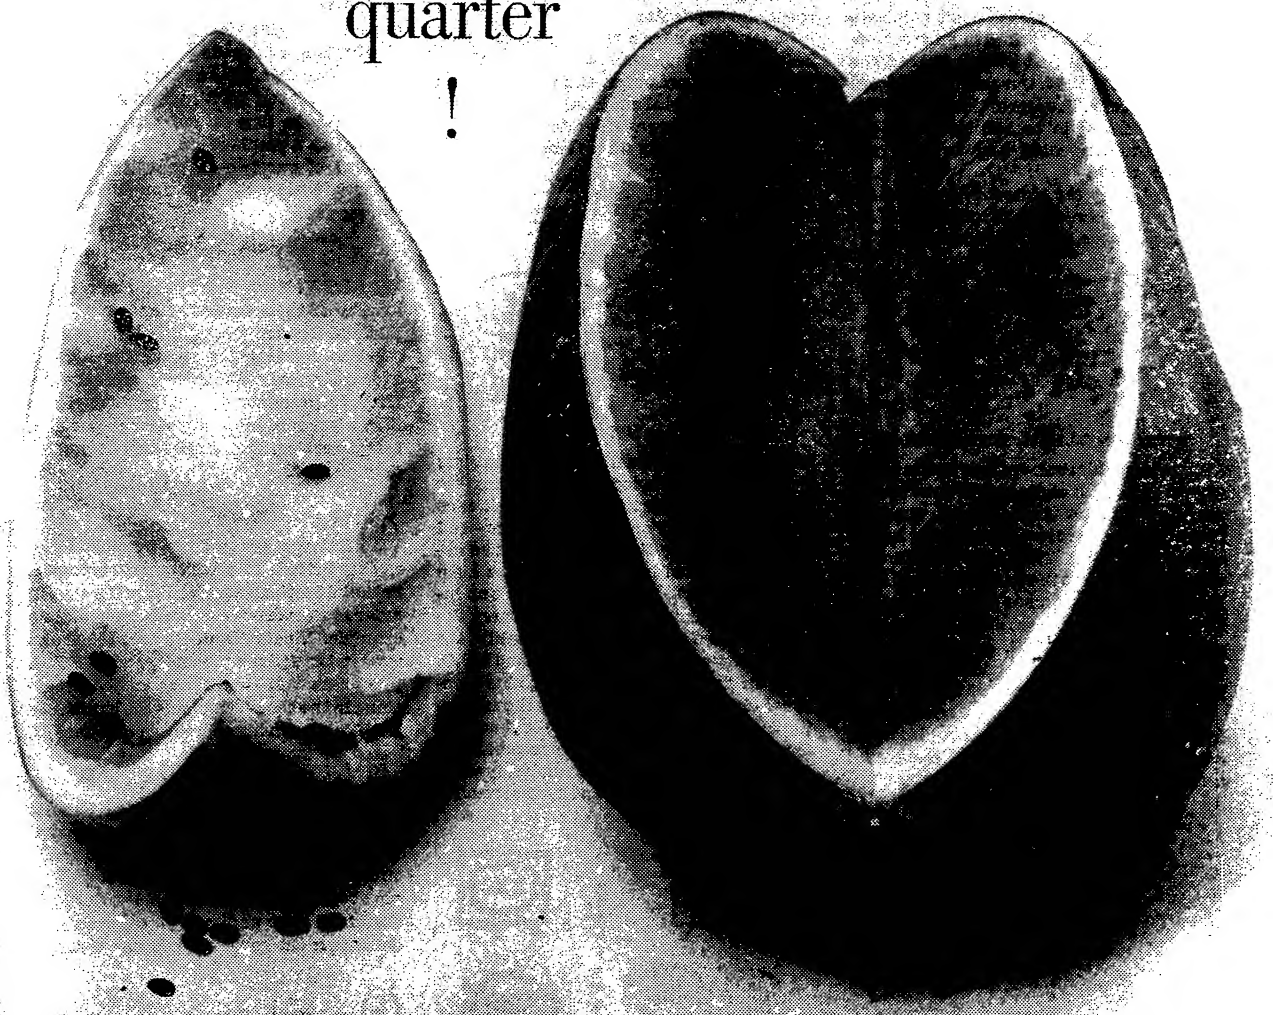
SPRINGFIELD, Mo.

TOP 10 TITLES AND OTHER DATA	TIME SLOT	ARB RATING	HIGH	LOW	SHARE OF AUDIENCE	MARCH, 1958 TOP COMPETING SHOWS		ARB RATING
1. SWAMP WATER— Dana Andrews, Anne Baxter, Walter Brennan; 1941; 20th Century Fox; NTA	Academy Award Theatre Sat. March 8 10:00-11:30 p.m. KTTS	30.1	32.1	27.4	74.8	Lawrence Welk ... KYTV Songs in the Night ... KYTV Saturday Dateline ... KYTV Owl Theatre ... KYTV		15.2 7.4 9.3 7.2
2. NIGHT KEY— Boris Karloff, Alan Baxter; 1937; Columbia; Screen Gems	Movietime Sat. March 8 4:30-5:30 p.m. KTTS	23.3	24.5	21.9	70.6	All Star Golf ... KYTV High Street Baptist Church ... KYTV		9.5 9.9
3. STAGE COACH BUCKAROO— Johnny Mack Brown; 1941; Universal; Flamingo	Western Theatre Sat. March 8 12:00-1:00 p.m. KYTV	19.1	19.4	19.0	82.2	Cross Country ... KTTS News ... KTTS Garden Club ... KTTS		3.0 5.5 5.1
4. NOTORIOUS— Ingrid Bergman, Cary Grant; 1946; RKO; NTA	Feature Picture Sun. March 9 1:15-3:00 p.m. KYTV	18.2	21.1	7.6	60.1	Little Giant Theatre ... KTTS Championship Bowling ... KTTS Mystery Theatre ... KTTS		15.6 13.8 6.8
5. BUFFALO BILL— Joel McCrea, Maureen O'Hara, Linda Darnell; 1944; 20 Century Fox; NTA	Little Giant Theatre Sun. March 9 12:00-1:30 p.m. KTTS	16.2	18.1	14.8	77.9	Eye of Science ... KYTV Rev. Oral Roberts News ... KYTV Jewish Holiday ... KYTV Cartoons; Feature Picture ... KYTV		3.4 4.0 1.7 7.4
6. NOTORIOUS— Ingrid Bergman, Cary Grant; 1946; RKO; NTA	Owl Theatre Sat. March 8 11:15-1:00 a.m. KYTV	9.4	11.4	6.3	57.4	Academy Award Theatre ... KTTS Theatre; News; Weather; Sports ... KTTS		27.4 21.5
7. DRACULA'S DAUGHTER— Otto Kruger, Marguerite Churchill; 1936; Columbia; Screen Gems	Shock Theatre Fri. March 14 11:00-12:15 a.m. KTTS	8.3	9.7	7.6	72.6	Jack Paar Show ... KYTV		5.6
8. MILLIE'S DAUGHTER— Gladys George, Gay Nelson; 1947; Columbia; Screen Gems	Movieland Sun. March 9 11:00-12:00 p.m. KTTS	3.4	4.2	3.0	66.7	Boston Blackie ... KYTV		3.4
9. GO WEST YOUNG LADY— Glenn Ford, Ann Miller; 1941; Columbia; Screen Gems	Little Giant Theatre Thurs. March 13 11:00-12:00 p.m. KTTS	3.3	3.8	3.4	53.2	Jack Paar Show ... KYTV		4.2
10. ELLERY QUEEN PENTHOUSE MYSTERY— Ralph Bellamy; Margaret Lindsay; 1941; Columbia; Screen Gems	Movieland Mon. March 10 11:00-12:00 p.m. KTTS	2.4	2.5	2.1	26.6	Jack Paar Show ... KYTV		6.6

COLUMBIA, S. C.

1. PORTRAIT OF JENNY— Jennifer Jones, Joseph Cotten; 1949; 20th Century Fox; NTA	20th Century Playhouse Sat. March 8 11:30-12:30 a.m. WIS	18.7	20.5	16.3	88.4	Late Show ... WNOK		1.9
2. WESTWARD TRAIL— Eddie Dean; 1948; Eagle Lion; Guild	Top Gun Sun. March 9 3:30-4:30 p.m. WNOK	9.1	9.2	8.8	35.9	Know Your Bible ... WIS Omnibus ... WIS		13.1 17.0
3. MELODY LINGERS ON— George Houston, Josephine Hutchinson; 1935; United Artists; TPA	Movie for a Sunday Afternoon Sun. March 9 2:00-3:30 p.m. WNOK	4.2	5.0	3.3	12.9	Lawrence Welk ... WIS Jane Wyman Presents ... WIS		26.7 27.0
4. SQUARE DANCE KATY— Vera Vague, Phil Brito; 1950; Monogram; Guild	Late Show Fri. March 14 11:15-12:30 a.m. WNOK	2.8	2.9	2.5	35.2	Jack Paar Show ... WIS		6.6
5. SOHO CONSPIRACY— John Wiley; 1950; Guild	Early Show Sat. March 8 5:00-6:30 p.m. WNOK	2.7	5.0	0.8	8.9	Any Questions ... WIS Wagon Train ... WIS		6.1 36.8
6. MELODY LINGERS ON— George Houston, Josephine Hutchinson; 1935; Edward Small; TPA	Late Show Sat. March 8 11:00-12:30 a.m. WNOK	2.0	2.5	1.7	8.2	Weather; News; Sports ... WIS 20th Century Playhouse ... WIS		26.2 19.3
7. SMART POLITICS— Freddy Stewart, June Preisser; 1948; Guild	Late Show Mon. March 10 11:15-12:30 a.m. WNOK	1.9	2.1	1.3	32.6	Jack Paar Show ... WIS		8.6
8. JOE PALOOKA IN THE SQUARED CIRCLE— Joe Kirkwood Jr., James Gleason; 1940; Monogram; Guild	Focus Thurs. March 13 11:15-12:30 a.m. WNOK	1.5	1.7	0.8	27.5	Jack Paar Show ... WIS		5.1
9. UNDER THE RED ROBE— Raymond Massey, Conrad Veidt; 1937; 20th Century Fox; Guild	Theatre 1120 Sun. March 9 11:30-12:45 p.m. WNOK	1.5	1.7	0.8	41.3	I Am the Law ... WIS		8.8
10. JOE PALOOKA IN THE SQUARED CIRCLE— Joe Kirkwood Jr., James Gleason; 1950; Monogram; Guild	Early Show Fri. March 14 5:00-6:30 p.m. WNOK	1.5	1.7	1.3	59.7	Comedy Time ... WIS Cactus Quave ... WIS		24.6 22.4

it's been a great first quarter !



For the full broadcast day, sign-on to sign-off, WRCA-TV's share of audience in the first quarter of 1958 is up 12% over last year.* WRCA-TV's national sales for the first quarter are 17.5% greater than last year's. WRCA-TV's Shari Lewis was presented with two Emmy awards.

We're now enjoying another great quarter. Come on along and sink your teeth into the juiciest market in America with a schedule on the NBC leadership station in New York! WRCA-TV • 4 NEW YORK

Sold by NBC Spot Sales

*ARB Jan., Feb., Mar. 1957 vs 1958

MEMO FROM BRITAIN (2)

Ratings-on-Thames

Ratings - the graphlines of the competitive life - have come to Britain to stay.* Often, in the international trade press, you find listings of the British Top Ten. We've heard that they send the blood rushing to your heads - those incredible, beautiful I.T.V. programme peaks in the sixties and seventies! We confess we almost fell out of our own chairs when EMERGENCY-WARD TEN recently rang up an 87.

A word of advice: please don't palpitate too violently. Compared with your set-up, our ratings might just as well be readings from another planet. Our national pattern is that different. The aim of this brief public service exercise is to tell you how our ratings are harvested and to help you interpret them.

* Can this be the reason why one of our overseas visitors recently described I.T.V. as 'Madison Avenue, but with window boxes'?

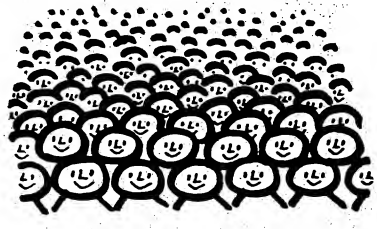
TWO ENGLISH CHANNELS

Always keep this rock-bottom fact in mind: wherever British audiences are measured, we're strictly a two-channel country. British ratings project the viewing habits of the 5,451,000 (6th April, 1958) I.T.V. homes which now exist in the five operating I.T.V. Regions. In these homes viewers have the following alternatives: the I.T.V. programme, or the B.B.C. programme (we warmly welcome the opposition in these Memos), or no programme at all.

It's a two-way fight - pure, simple, exhilarating competition. It should help to explain why our rating figures sometimes seem outlandish from where you sit.



THE WEEKLY HARVEST

British TV is taped by two national rating services. One is Television Audience Measurement Ltd. (hereinafter called TAM). The other is Nielsen.

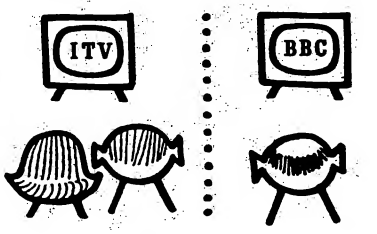
Of the six operating commercial TV companies, A-R, A.T.V., A.B.C., Scotland and Wales are subscribers to the TAM service. Granada and Wales are Nielsen clients.

Both research outfits compete for business in normal fashion, and have additional clients among British agencies, advertisers etc. They both use roughly the same measurement technique - meters installed in home sets. Each has about the same size sample in the five operating I.T.V. Regions. Both TAM and Nielsen have a national total of about 550 metered homes. Their samples are weighted in the usual way to reflect the spectrum of population.

So far there's been very little difference between their published results, except that when Nielsen proclaims the TOP TEN, their figures are for total audience; otherwise all Nielsen figures are average audience. TAM traffics exclusively in average audience measurement.

BIG AND FAST

Overseas visitors usually get two surprises from our rating services. We get them so big and so fast. The British rating week ends every Sunday - it's a 52-week service - and by the following Friday morning the detailed reports of both organisations have been delivered to clients. There isn't an inside coat-pocket extant that can carry the hefty volume that reaches us weekly. We get running graphs of every I.T.V. and B.B.C. show in five minute segments; also sets-tuned-in, share, rating, homes in thousands, the daily weather report, cost per thousand for advertising spots (no sponsorship in Britain) - all this plus frequent analyses of audience composition - and special studies on request.



FIRST TRENDS

We can't get very technical in a brief memo. But we'll try to high-light a few trends reflected in the first two years of British ratings.

(A) First and most gratifying is the dramatic success of I.T.V., from its very start in September 1955. In 1958, the average ITV-BBC split is still overwhelmingly in favour of the commercial channel - two to one.

(B) In Britain, average totals of sets-tuned-in are extraordinarily high, especially in peak viewing hours, when they regularly run between 80% and 90%. This helps to explain the amazing rating peaks attained by top I.T.V. programmes. The high tune-in figures are sometimes explained as a result of our climate, or the novelty of our two-channel competition. Nobody seems to have found the true answer yet.

(C) I.T.V. Regions differ in the relative loyalty of their measured audiences. The Midland Region - which A.T.V. happens to service - consistently shows the highest average weekly audience preference for I.T.V. programmes. Naturally, we attribute it to wiser schedules, punchier promotion, better service. But we are not dogmatic; only pleased.

(D) Ratings prove it is possible for a weekly British TV programme to become a national institution. Val Parnell's SUNDAY NIGHT AT THE LONDON PALLADIUM is the classic example. Ninety-six of its first 100 shows were in the TOP TEN. No matter what B.B.C. pits against it - and they've tried everything in the book - it remains the bulwark of I.T.V.'s staggering supremacy on Sundays.

(E) British audiences pick and choose: there's absolutely no evidence of inertia. The rating-graphs dip and rise, and sometimes cross, when the show is over and the next begins. I.T.V. has been able to build its sustained lofty audience plateaus only by delivering the goods the evening through.

(F) Finally, it cannot be proved that imported film programmes and formats have an overall rating edge over home-made British productions.

Our next MEMO will tackle advertising in British TV — its pattern, impact, and growth. Until then, internationally speaking, this is...

ASSOCIATED TELEVISION LIMITED · TELEVISION HOUSE · KINGSWAY · LONDON · WC2 · ENGLAND

VIDPIX EXPORT ASSN.—WHEN?

Brit. Equity Doesn't Love BBC

London, April 29.

The BBC has been kicked squarely in the pants by television actors and actresses for rudeness in business dealings. They insist that they much prefer to deal with the BBC's courteous commercial tv rivals. The actors' union, Equity, will go out of its way to thank the commercial tv boss, Sir. Robert Fraser, when it meets on April 27.

Says Equity: "He has always tried to give all sides a square deal in business negotiations. It is unfortunate we cannot say the same of relations between our committee and the public corporation. A request to meet BBC to discuss the use of foreign recorded material in its programs was met with rebuff."

Coast-to-Coast Canada TV Network A Reality July 1; Special Hoopla

Ottawa, April 29.

For the first time, Canada will have its own coast-to-coast television network on July 1 when the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. microwave web reaches Vancouver and Victoria in British Columbia. Network will then stretch from Sydney, N. S., to the west coast, leaving Newfoundland the only province not connected directly. Canadian National and Canadian Pacific telegraph companies will build the Newfie link next winter.

CBC will mark the occasion with a special Dominion Day (July 1) show using regional pickups.

July 1 will also inaugurate the web relay centre at Calgary using four tape recorders (video). This relay spot will compensate for time-zone differences by holding shows (other than sports and actualities that demand simultaneous air on all stations) for airing at convenient times.

Television connections with British Columbia have so far been possible only by using U. S. facilities in the west, or by the slow, quality-crippling kinescope system.

Canada, Too, Ired By Rating Shams

Vancouver, April 29.

Canada's radio and tv outlets have got to stop survey-time special hoopla, says a joint statement by Assn. of Canadian Advertisers and Canadian Assn. of Advertising Agencies, with reference to Bureau of Broadcast Measurement's audience report due for release shortly.

Guarded warning implies that BBM rating of offending stations will be discounted by time-buyers when mapping future campaigns, urges broadcasters "to studiously avoid any unusual promotion specifically designed to influence audiences during survey periods."

The ACA/CAAA ultimatum follows some knuckle-rapping of indie broadcasters by CBC solons for noisome modes of audience building such as quiz programs and giveaways. Certain curbs have been applied, including the granting of frequency changes and hiked power only to stations which cut down on gimmicks.

KHONolulu at Auction To Square $113,731 Debt

Honolulu, April 29.

South Pacific Broadcasting Co., operator of indie KHON, has been ordered sold at auction to satisfy a $113,731 debt the company owes its major stockholder, heiress Shirley Louise Mendelson. An upset price of $50,000 was ordered by the court.

Miss Mendelson owns all but 40 of the company's 15,000 shares, having bought KHON at an auction in December, 1956, for $75,000. Suit filed by her attorney says she loaned $113,731 to the company last October and the entire amount is in default.

No date was set for the auction.

Caesar on Brit. TV

London, April 29.

American tv comic Sid Caesar has been inked exclusively by BBC-TV to present his own weekly show during the summer. There will be 13 programs, eight of which will be live and the remaining five recorded.

With Caesar, who's an unknown quantity with British tv audiences, will be Imogene Coca. The first program is scheduled to go out on July 1.

Italo TV in a Hot Battle Over Equal Politico Air Time

Rome, April 29.

A violent battle has broken out here following the decision by Italian Prime Minister Adone Zoli that a proposal for equal air and video time for political campaigns during the upcoming national elections was "unacceptable" to the current majority party, the Christian Democrats.

Petition, asking that all political parties share equal air time on the government-subsidized RAI-TV network during pre-election period, had been submitted by two government officials, LaMalfa and Carandini. Their argument was that RAI-TV, via its governmental links, would tend to present a partial and biased view of the political situation.

In Zoli's reply, he stated that air time would continue to be awarded on a proportional basis,

(Continued on page 64)

Radio Gets Top Billing At Vancouver May Meet Of U. of Brit. Columbia

Vancouver, April 29.

Radio broadcasting is in for an earnest going-over at U. of British Columbia here, May 5-10, by Canada's indie broadcasters and some top American communications academicians. Affair is billed as a "First National Conference," and hosts Paul Lazarsfeld of Columbia U., Leo Bogart of New York's McCann-Erickson agency, Marshal McLuhan of U. of Toronto, and others.

Accent of confab is on radio, with a mere nod to tv under heading of "The Impact of Television," an address by Bogart. Lazarsfeld will discuss research.

Radio seminar is sponsored by the B. C. Assn. of Broadcasters and the University extension dept. BCAB has this year set up a $10,000 annual grant, for five years, to improve west coast broadcasting through executive and personnel training.

Playdown of video matters at this parley, though eight out of 10 homes in greater Vancouver have tv, is due to government's policy that permits no indie tv competition with Canadian Broadcasting Corp. video in major centres.

GREAT NEED VS. GREAT OBSTACLES

By MURRAY HOROWITZ

In an effort to circle the globe with celluloid for tv, U. S. telefilmeries find themselves hampered by the lack of an association, an organization which would speak for all the syndicators.

The American motion picture industry has such an organization, of course, in the form of the Motion Picture Export Assn., topped by Eric Johnston, which handles such problems as currency regulations, quota restrictions, censorships, etc.

There is no counterpart for U. S. telefilm firms, although the latter are taking their cue from the motion picture industry, which draws sizable revenues from the foreign field.

Currently, the foreign market accounts for about 20% of the total syndication gross, forecast to hit over $100,000,000 this year. The $20,000,000 in foreign gross expected for '58 isn't hay. Yet, there's no overall plan or organization to protect it or foster growing revenues from the overseas field.

Foreign toppers, when queried, acknowledge the problem, but see formidable obstacles, such as competition among telefilm firms being too keen for unified cooperation; cost of running such an organization and attracting a man of stature would be too much, etc. In fact, some overtures were made in the past to form a telefilm association for the foreign field, but it died quickly.

Yet most of the same execs. of CBS Film Sales, Screen Gems, Television Programs of America, ABC Film Syndication, et al., find themselves on the short end of the stick because of the lack of an association.

Mex, U. K. Hurdles

F'rinstance, a dubbing war is threatened by Mexican telefilm interests who contend that no Spanish-dubbed skein should be telecast there unless actual dubbing is done in Mexico. Many American telefilm companies do their dubbing in Madrid.

In England, there's constant agitation to further limit the amount of playing time devoted to American telefilms, usually accompanied by charges that all U. S. telefilms are filled with murder and mayhem. There's no industry spokesman to cushion such blows with "prestige" examples of U. S. telefilms, the "You Are There's," "Disneyland's," etc., so that at least the public is offered a fair presentation of the pro and con arguments.

The problems are plenty, but at this stage each company tackles them on an individual basis, with little or no overall approach to the problem.

East European Television Grows

Berlin, April 29.

According to recent statistics, there are now at least 172,700 tv set owners registered in Czecho-Slovakia. That's quite an upbeat if taken into consideration that the year 1954 saw only 3,200 sets there. Statistics say that the last year (1957) alone saw the registration of roughly 100,000 new tv listeners.

Reports from Roumania reveal that there is now also a more active tv entertainment in this country. Currently, TV Bucharest is bringing two-hour programs six times a week. Last year, station had just test telecasts on weekends. As also Bulgaria is now prepping tv, there's only one satellite country left which still doesn't dedicate itself to video: Albania.

BBC-TV Sneaking Back on Ratings Vs. Com'l Web; Nielsen's 'It's False'

London, April 29.

There's a ding-dong battle going on over British tv ratings. It is generally accepted that a recent BBC survey indicating that the state web has won back some of the viewers it had lost to commercial tv is borne out by evidence. On the other hand, the Nielsen Index, whose weekly network ratings consistently give pride of place in the top 10 to commercial programs, suggests that the BBC analysis is misleading and leaves a false impression

The national channel, in a survey on the state of viewing in Britain, reported that audiences had been reverting to its programs steadily for some months. For the last quarter—January to March—audiences were stated to have divided their viewing time in the proportion of BBC 38%, indie tv 62%. In the previous quarter, October to December, the ratio was 36% to 64% and in the quarter before that 28% to 72%.

Although it has been admitted by the indie tv programmers that they no longer have it all their own way in the ratings race, the big BBC switchover is strongly challenged. When the report was released it immediately brought sensational headlines in the national press suggesting that commercial tv was heading for a big fall. The London Daily Herald devoted its front page lead to the story, which was headlined "ITV viewing slumps." Below this was a statement that "BBC's new policy wins."

It is on this score that Nielsen claims that the public has been misinformed. A spokesman explained that when commercial tv was inaugurated some 30 months back, its aim was to provide an alternative program. This was to have taken the form largely of light entertainment but the BBC, too, had cashed in on this field in recent months and a battle of the spectaculars had developed. It was obvious that the public wanted light entertainment and if they were to get it on both channels it would be watched. He added, however, that despite the BBC's new policy, seven-tenths of the viewing time was still spent with commercial tv.

While the state web had 100% of the viewing public within its grasp, the commercial web had only 60%, yet indie tv programs such as the quiz game "Take Your Pick," the comedy series "The Army Game" and the twice-weekly hospital drama "Emergency — Ward 10" regularly notch audiences exceeding 10,000,000.

British Com'l TV's 67%

London, April 29.

Commercial tv once again collared the majority of viewers able to receive both indie and BBC-TV during March. Television Audience Measurement said that 67% of the total time spent viewing in homes with a choice of channels was devoted to watching indie tv.

The London commercial tv outlet reaped 69% of the viewers; the Midlands, 74%; the North, 67%; Scotland, 68%; and South Wales and the West of England, 57%.

Likely RAI-TV Will Grab Off 2d Channel in Italy

Rome, April 29.

The state-subsidized Italian RAI-TV radio-television network may beat various other contenders to the draw in the local race to get a second video channel on its way, if persistent local reports prove founded. The added RAI-TV operation, in addition to the single nation-wide channel now in existence, would be a "limited" one, inasmuch as only the Rome and Milan areas would for the moment be served by the second outlet.

Also, there is a strong possibility that the so-called second channel operation, though technically set up by RAI-TV, would be leased out for operation to a commercial group or groups, some of whom have long clamored for a commercial video outlet.

Traditional RAI-TV secrecy regarding future operations and program plans has resulted in repeated denials of the above plans, but top secret plans are currently said to have been rushed ahead for the doubling of current Italo telecasting facilities in Rome and Milan, via addition of 14 transmitters, to serve the new function. (Though expensive, additional installation work should not prove over-difficult, as even RAI-TV spokesmen have recently admitted that a second channel has "naturally" been considered in the normal course of development, when the current RAI-TV net was erected.)

Current report is the latest of a long series of items about the long-desired second channel in Italy. At least three other groups have planned to start limited telecasting in certain areas in opposition to the RAI-TV setup.

One is the recently-reported "Free TV" (of TVL) which is said to be planning a series of test telecasts from "illegal" mobile units in the Milan area in order to create a court case and thus induce fast

(Continued on page 64)

5 GRANADA TV EXECS SURVEY U.S. NETWORKS

London, April 29.

Five Granada-TV executives left for New York Saturday (26) for a quick survey of United States network operations. They will remain for about a week.

The tour has been arranged through Sol Cornberg, who was responsible for the design of the Granada-TV studios in Manchester. The week's program will include a study of the CBS and NBC operations.

Those making the trip are Simon Kershaw, general manager of Granada's Manchester tv centre; Reg Hammans, chief engineer; Lein Holt, engineer in charge of studios; Jack Martin, production manager; and George Speller, construction manager.

'Brain or Brawn's' Wide Int'l Pickup

Paris, April 29.

Pop Video Show Goes International.

The top pop quiz show on the French nationalized video channel "La Tete Et Les James" (Brains and Brawn) has been picked up for televising by England, West Germany and the U. S. Granada has it for the commercial Angelo setup, NBC for the U.S., and it is set to bow in Germany in May.

Program has an expert answering questions on various subjects agreed on beforehand. If he misses he can be saved by some leading athlete doing a feat in a certain time limit. Too many misses can tire the muscles and lose the contestant's chances. It got top ratings here and then outside interest and takings.

Yank setup is for a 13-entry try. Producer of the show here is Pierre Bellemarre. It has only a $6,000 jackpot but will be upped in other countries.

Paramount Pictures

From mca tv

SUNDAY IN BRITAIN

tea and ABC television are tops!

Know Your Audiences as well as you know your shows. That's ABC's approach to schedule planning. Know that Sunday in Britain is a special day and needs special programming. Sunday's the time for the family get-together, time to welcome friends and neighbours, time for tea and television. ABC's policy: programme for the whole family, screen the big shows the neighbours will stay to see.

ABC's Sunday Format is as basic in Britain as Sunday tea. Highlights: for afternoons, a star studded feature film followed by Family Hour, our presentation of top-flight British and American series with all-family appeal; for evenings, the regular 'top ten' shows — international variety and Armchair Theatre, ABC's big weekly drama production; and, to link the afternoon and evening, 'The Sunday Break', the only TV programme in the world using the techniques of popular entertainment to cover the serious interests of teenagers.

8 out of 10 for ABC. Long-term results show ABC's 'study your audience' policy has captured the lion's share of Sunday's mammoth audience. Right through 1957, eight out of ten two channel sets in use on Sunday evenings chose ABC; and the afternoon share of audience was even higher!

Planned Programming Pays. Sunday's share and rating figures show ABC's careful planning has paid off. Sunday is British TV's big day. ABC will keep it that way.

ABC TELEVISION

BRITAIN'S ABC TELEVISION NETWORK

A MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED BRITISH PICTURE CORPORATION

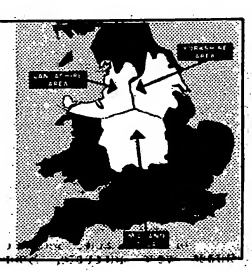
LONDON · MANCHESTER · BIRMINGHAM · LEEDS · Film House, Wardour Street, London W.1, England

THE ABC OF BRITISH TV

ABC TELEVISION is a subsidiary company of the Associated British Picture Corporation who own the vast Elstree Picture Studios, the ABC chain of cinemas, and the world-famous Pathé Newsreel.

ABC, as a programme company appointed by the Independent Television Authority (ITA), is the only company responsible for independent television programmes in 3 transmitter areas — The Midlands, Lancashire and Yorkshire (Lancashire and Yorkshire are commonly grouped together as the North). ABC provides weekend programmes in these areas.

The total population of the ABC Network (Midlands and Northern Areas) is over 20 million. Already, only two years after our first transmitter went on the air, over 10 million—half of this population —are able to receive ABC programmes.



Tele Follow-Up Comment

Wide Wide World

The handout from NBC's television news department had said "Wide Wide World" Sunday (27) was setting out to "look at Hollywood's star system." But how could this be since the "system," within the traditional frame of reference, no longer exists? Also to be told was "a star's story," this being a recounting of Joanne Woodward's rise to top of the field in the recent Oscar sweepstakes—for her multi-faceted performance in "Three Faces of Eve."

Although the program, as written by Lou Salaman and directed by Van Fox, had its entertainment moments there seemed some bewilderment anent which line to follow. The result was a mixed up voyage of stop and go and, upon completion, having gotten no place so far as documentary insight is concerned.

There were oldie film clips, the cement prints at Grauman's, students at a dramatic workshop, the heroic bronzes, sculptures, etc., at New York's Museum of Modern Art (where the motion picture has long since been included as an art form), more clips, the Museum's Richard Griffith picking up the commentary from Dave Garroway, and more focusing on Grauman's—all in this order.

The past was but loosely linked to the present, except that it was established that stars were born yesterday and today. There was a wide gap in between, with nothing on the great transition that saw the big Hollywood studios' stables of stellar performers reduced to virtual nothingness. This could be taken as strictly a trade angle (why should the public give a hoot?) but it remains that a factual accounting had substantial potentialities. To have made the grade with Louis B. Mayer, for example, would have meant the fullest of opportunities, upon proper behavior, whereas now hardly a "star" has a contract to fall back upon unless such individual has an independent company to call his own.

Entertainment was in the backlog excerpts, such as the wonderful revolving door nonsense as depicted in Charlie Chaplin's "The Cure."

Good theatre came, too, in the enlightening and entertaining shots of N.Y.'s Neighborhood Playhouse, where students undertake to catch on to the intricacies of acting, the dance, voice culture and physical culture. More of this would have been welcome; it showed the show business eager-beavers earnestly at work in tracking down that dream of stardom.

And then lots of person-to-person with Miss Woodward and her husband, Paul Newman, at their west coast home, with both appearing not ill at ease. In other words, they came over well.

Such shows as "WWW" often, before airing, sound too downright pretentious, or serious, in the billing. Gene.

U.S. Steel Hour

The French Revolution and its accompanying "reign of terror" has long been a story lode for the dramatist. Tapping the vein again for the umpeenth time was "The Public Prosecutor" which Theodore Apstein wrote for CBS-TV's "U.S. Steel Hour" (23) from a play by Fritz Hochwalder. Latter's work, in turn, was translated by Kitty Black.

Somewhat involved and slow in its introductory scenes, Apstein's teleplay eventually gained tension and suspense. But, unfortunately, these qualities came so close to the end that it's doubtful that many viewers stayed with this Theatre Guild production that long. Suffice to say that the yarn concerned the efforts of a woman, high in the ruling regime, to dispose of a bloodthirsty prosecutor via his own guillotine.

Plotting woman, sinisterly played by Dolores Del Rio in her live tv debut, cleverly led prosecutor Walter Slezak into the trap. This was all quite obvious despite Apstein's efforts to throw suspicion upon John Baragrey, Miss Del Rio's husband, as intended victim of her machinations. Slezak portrayed the role of "Lord High Executioner" a bit too broadly while performances of Baragrey as well as supporting cast members Frank Conroy, Jerome Kilty and Alexander Clark, among others, were merely routine.

While director Robert Stevens tried to get some spark and movement into the proceedings, the creaky piece appeared to be too much of an obstacle. Sets and costumes were adequate. Sponsor's unobtrusive plug centred around the theme of "steel lightens your work—widens your world . . ." Gilb.

Father Knows Best

By sheer coincidence, one of Robert Young's opening lines in the "Father Knows Best" segment Wednesday (23) was a reference to "this award winning family." Of course, the episode was shot long before the Emmy Awards, and Young was referring to fictional medals, but it was nonetheless a reminder of how well the series has done, not only rating-wise but in the Emmy race. "A Medal for Margaret" was an amusing, heartwarming story, and illustrates why this particular series is such a standout.

Writer Roswell Rogers' premise is that the family plans to put their various medals, trophies in a trophy case, when it's suddenly learned Mom hasn't a single medal. They inadvertently make Mom feel so guilty about it she takes fly-casting lessons, planning to enter a tournament, but sprains her arm on the eve of the tourney. There's a hilarious takeoff on "This Is Your Life" in which the family salutes Mom.

There's a captivating, wholesome quality about the proceedings, and Rogers expertly captures the combination of comedy and heart in his teleplay. Director Peter Tewksbury's stint is excellent, as is the overall work of producer Eugene B. Rodney.

As for Emmy winners Young and Jane Wyatt, they're very good and convey depth and understanding in their delineations. Elinor Donahue, Billy Gray and Lauren Chapin, the "family," are highly competent, and Vivi Janiss is good in support. Daku.

Playhouse 90

"Verdict of Three" was the title of the listless melodrama done last Thursday (24) by "Playhouse 90" on CBS-TV. Trite and disjointed, the 90-minute show was close to being a complete waste of the talents of Angela Lansbury, Yvonne de Carlo, Michael Wilding, Cecil Kellaway, Carmen Mathews, Rod Taylor and Gladys Cooper.

Without all of the contrivances of the plot by James P. Cavanagh, "Three" was essentially the story of a woman on trial in England for the murder of her 12-year-old son. Responsibility for her conviction rested with three jurors, Taylor, Misses Mathews and Lansbury, whose own problems prevented them from making an objective decision. Since plot angles were never properly integrated, there were, in effect, four separate stories going at once. Miss Lansbury was a cockney who murdered her aunt for the old gal's money; Miss Mathews a woman who saw her lover murdered by hoodlums and thereafter replaced his lost affection with an adoration of cats, and Taylor was a shuttering mama's boy. Their own stories, were revealed via flashbacks during the trial, and these portions only tended to slow down an already tired and far-fetched plot.

It seemed all the performers were under a great strain—especially Wilding as the defense lawyer and Miss Cooper as a domineering old woman—trying to interpet the script's grubby lines. Veteran actor Kellaway appeared briefly as a doddering family doctor. Art.

George Gobel Show

Fun is fun and that's all George Gobel tried to prove on his Tuesday (22) night exercise. He was well seconded in this department even though the howls didn't roll like thunder and what passed otherwise didn't electrify. For those who can take their comedy in moderation and are not too critical or exacting, it was a pleasant if not over-joyous hour.

Gobel was minus his singing partner, Eddie Fisher, which allowed more time for clowning and a greater exposure of Shirley Harmer, heretofore restricted to one song and little dialog. She not only dresses up the production with a pretty puss but makes her songs come out sweet. Aside from the musical interludes, with Gobel also cutting himself in, it was fun stuff rest of the way.

To help him out with what the writers contrived to shake the laughs loose were Gene Sheldon, pantomimist par excellent, who still gets laughs with a routine that goes back to vaude, and Pat Buttram, quondam cowboy comic and now making his bucolic wit pay

(Continued on page 55)

JEFFERSON DRUM
(The Bounty Man)
With Jeff Richards, Eugene Martin, Robert Stevenson, John Larch, Cyril Delevanti
Producer: Matthew Rapf
Director: Chris Nyby
Writer: E. Jack Neuman
30 Mins.; Fri., 8 p.m.
P. LORILLARD, CHEMSTRAND CORP.
NBC-TV, from N.Y. (film)
(Lennen & Newell; Doyle Dane Bernbach)

Still another western has joined the sagebrush stampede on tv. Only marked difference of this Goodson- Todman entry, produced in conjunction with Screen Gems, is its obvious attempt at having heart.

Portrayed in the opening episode is a youthful, fighting newspaper editor of the old west (Jeff Richards), who has a young son, Eugene Martin. Richards befriends a gunslinger, and as the wrinkles in the plot develop, the gunslinger (John Larch) becomes the hero of the boy. In the climactic few moments, the gunslinger feigns cowardice in order to lose face with the boy.

Nothing was wrong with the "heart" accent, but the plot seemed contrived and unconvincing. Otherwise the episode had all the other elements of routine westerns—the gun duels, the fight in the saloon, etc.

J. Richards registered nicely as the clean-cut editor who's just as quick with the gun as he is with type. Other performances were competent and the production values were good. The skein replaced "Court of Last Resort" on the network. Horo.

WRCA-TV MARBLE CHAMPIONSHIP
With Marty Glickman, emcee
Producer: Roone Arledge
Director: Marshal Stone
30 Mins., Sat.; 1:30 p.m.
Sustaining
WRCA-TV, N. Y.

"Spring is here and that means marbles" was emcee Marty Glickman's apt introduction to the "WRCA-TV Marble Championship," a five-week series which will wind up with selection of a Junior and Senior marble champs in the N. Y. metropolitan area. On the basis of Saturday's (26) half-hour inaugural program, this is one of those classic "public service" undertakings which will bring NBC's Gotham tv flagship lotsa goodwill.

Matches are presented in cooperation with the Boys' Clubs of America which has contestants from 32 of its member clubs enrolled in the preliminary competition. General idea of the playoffs, WRCA-TV states, is "designed with the hope of providing healthy stimulation of the normal competitive spirit of youth and directing it into outlets amenable to adult supervision and encouragement."

The foregoing is a fairly lofty phrase. However, the youngsters who participated on Saturday's kickoff appeared to be a cross-section of the typical American boy who would respond to just such guidance. Conclusion of several games saw a Junior (kids up to nine years) regional champ crowned as well as a Senior champ (up to 12).

Glickman was an adept emcee who set the contestants at ease and consoled losers when the occasion demanded it. His running commentary also was a help when the action darted out of camera range. Incidentally, these matches present an obvious technical problem, for although a camera is focussed directly over the playing area, a fast moving marble is an elusive sphere to keep in view.

Sports personalities referee the matches each week. In the case of the kickoff, football star Kyle Rote kept score. Four weekly winners in both junior and senior categories will compete in the fifth week finals for the "Marble Champion" mantle. Along with the title go a silver trophy and lotsa loot in the nature of portable tv sets, etc. Gilb.

Nat Hiken Auditions 'Paris With Patachou'

Patachou, the French chanteuse who's made guest shots on American tv, may get a show of her own, via CBS-TV and Nat Hiken. Latter is producing a series titled "Paris With Patachou," on which a half-hour audition kinnie was made last Friday (25).

Kinnie featured Georges Lafaye & Co., Marcel Cornelius and Jo Basile and his orch. Kinnie was done before a live audience in N. Y.

More Television Reviews On Page 55

HANSEL & GRETEL
With Red Buttons, Rise Stevens, Barbara Cook, Hans Conried, Rudy Vallee, Paula Laurence, Shai K. Ophir, Sondra Lee, Will B. Able, Diki Lerner, Joe Rocci, Harrison Muller, Jessie Elliot, Mark Allen, Honey MacKenzie, Ronald Weyand, Glenn Osser orch
Producer: David Susskind
Director: Paul Bogart
Writer: Yasha Frank
Musical Numbers: Alec Wilder, William Engvick
60 Mins., Sun., 6:30 p.m.
REXALL
NBC-TV, from New York
(BBDO)

The full-hour rewrite of "Hansel and Gretel" over NBC-TV on Sunday (27) was loaded with a lot of detail and incident. The children's hardy perennial authored by the Grimm Bros. was given a splashy showing that contained a lot of interest, but unfortunately, went a bit overboard in becoming overcute.

It was this attention to detail that perhaps forced a de-emphasis of plot, so that there were several focal points to the show, without a special accent on any particular character. Indeed, it seems that most of the principals had something to contribute. For example, Red Buttons gave the part a manly, if not a boyish, vigor and enthusiasm. Rise Stevens as the mother sang excellently, especially the Humperdinck lullaby from the original opera. Barbara Cook was entirely acceptable, and Hans Conried was excellent as the witch.

However, with this diffusion of interest, it seems that when telling a story especially for kids, there should be some blacks and whites. In Conried's case, he was (that word again) cute. There were times when he seemed so nice that it was a shame to let the forces of good triumph. His children, played by Paula Laurence, Shai K. Ophir, Sondra Lee and Will B. Able, were likable and lively characters, and Diki Lerner as the elf did a fanciful bit of terping. With so many facets to the show, the interest was divided, and seemed to rely on individual performances and gimmicks for its strength. In this respect there were some strong moments. Rudy Vallee seemed lost as the father.

One of the keystones of the show was Stubby Kaye as the Town Crier. He seemed to provide a lot of strength when on screen. He sang and acted excellently.

The musical moments were many and good. The only bit of the original music that remained was the "Lullaby" which Miss Stevens rendered with feeling. Alec Wilder, who contributed the rest of the score, provided some pleasant tunes, and Samuel Leve did the impressive sets. David Susskind's overall production showed taste, and had he viewed more forest than trees, he would have chalked up another winner. Jose.

MIKE WALLACE INTERVIEW
With Rev. Reinhold Niebuhr
Producer: Ted Yates Jr.
Director: Mickey Trenner
30 Mins., Sun., 10 p.m.
ABC-TV, from New York

Back at his old Sunday-at-10 stand on ABC-TV, Mike Wallace's new series is concerned more with culture than controversy. In fact, it shapes as somewhat heady stuff, but for those who can stick it out, it has the potential of developing into an enlightening and rewarding 13-week run.

Peg for the 13-weeker is "Survival and Freedom," in which Wallace and guests plan to cover all facets of society and the sociological, religious and economic problems of the day. The show is presented in tandem with the Fund For the Republic which has shelled out $50,000 to assist the net in carrying the series.

Wallace's first guest was Protestant theologian Reinhold Niebuhr. With Wallace acting as a friendly inquisitor, Niebuhr covered such topics as "separation of church and state," "anti-semitisim," "Catholicism," "atheism" and the "necessity of freedom." Niebuhr is erudite and well-spoken and with Wallace moving out of the way after pitching the question, the Reverend had plenty of room and time to get his thoughts across. However, with inquisitor and guest virtually on the same side, the show had a static and soapbox quality that doesn't sit too well at 10 p.m.

Tapes of the shows will be made available for radio rebroadcast and there's a possibility that the kinescopes will get a showing at the U.S. Pavillon at the Brussels Fair. As a cultural contribution it would be okay. Gros.

DIAL M FOR MURDER
(Hallmark Hall of Fame)
With Maurice Evans, Rosemary Harris, John Williams, Anthony Dawson, William Windom, Mary Alice Wunderle, Felix Deebank, George Turner, Richard Bowler, Graham Jarvis, Bethell Long
Executive Producer: Mildred Freed Alberg
Producer-director: George Schaefer
Writer: Frederick Knott
90 Mins., Fri. (25), 9:30 p.m.
HALLMARK CARDS
NBC-TV, from N.Y. (color)
(FC&B)

As everyone knows by this time, "Dial M For Murder" with Maurice Evans has all the elements of a crackling good mystery play. This is the play that finally came home to roost; it began as a tv production on the BBC channels, made its gliding way to the footlights of both the English and American stages and then Warner Bros. turned it into a money-maker at the cinema palaces. Last Friday (25) NBC-TV gave it a fitting return engagement, so to speak, on the airwaves, whence it had started many semesters ago.

Evans, as a release from his more cerebral forays in the theatrical sphere, must get a real bang playing the English tennis bum and tilting with bobbies and inspectors in "Dial." He bounced through this fetching murder melodrama with all the grace, charm and professional skill of a learned chef preparing say, roast beef with Yorkshire pudding.

The plot, as many who have seen the mystery in various fields of entertainment know well, concerns Tony Wendice, the former tennis player, played by Evans, who marries a rich femme, played by Rosemary Harris, and decides to do away with her in order to get her dough. To help him in this nefarious pursuit he engages Captain Lesgate (Anthony Dawson), an old college chum with a criminal record, to commit the dastardly piece of murder, but unfortunately the scheme doesn't work out because in the attempt to exterminate the rich wife, Lesgate is stabbed to death by the intended victim. Police Inspector Hubbard, portrayed by John Williams, soon has things under control and when the final curtain comes down, one can plainly see that the nets of Wimbledon and playwright Knott's knots have been sufficiently wrapped about the crafty cad of a husband to send him to the gallows.

The Hallmark production was indeed a homogeneous one because a number of performers in the cast had worked together in the original Broadway production, thus making for one of those virtually flawless video voyages. Evans, in this instance, was reunited with Williams as the shrewd police inspector and Dawson, the blacksheep from Cambridge, played the hired assassin with reasonable restraint and resignation.

Both production and direction by George Schaefer was in the proper mood with the doors and garden windows swinging open at the correct time and the suspense sufficiently sustained throughout the villainous goings-on. Miss Harris' scene in the early stages of the play when she stabs the dirty Captain Lesgate, was a good hunk of play acting.

Robert Wightman's sets were appropriate and Noel Taylor, who did the costumes for the Broadway production, also worked on the video version.

All together, this was a tidy, attractive package, as tidy and as fresh as the commercials calling attention to the sponsor's glistening greeting cards, bows and ribbons.

Closing announcement was that Hallmark would return in the fall and one of its major productions would be a repeat engagement of "The Green Pastures." It was a jubilant note to close on. Rans.

BREAKFAST WITH SILKY
With Reggie Cornell, Cawood Ledford, Brownie Leach, Alan Lavin
Director: Bob Pilkington
30 Mins., Thurs. (24); 9:30 a.m.
WHAS-TV, Louisville

WHAS-TV sports department brought a timely half-hour to local viewers last week, when cameras and sound equipment were set up at Churchill Downs to catch the morning workout of Silky Sullivan, standout Derby entry. It gave a grand opportunity to gander the 3-year-old in his early morning prep, Caywood Ledford interviewd Reggie Cornell, Silky's trainer, and several excellent shots of the back stretch, grandstand, and various other portions of the mammoth racing plant were strategically inserted. During the show, film clip of the Santa Anita Derby was shown, giving an exciting view of Silky coming from 10th place, and

(Continued on page 55)

THE SWITCH IS ON!

There's an important new landmark on the historic Washington scene. A modern structure—the first ever designed from the ground up for color television—now houses WRC-TV and provides the most advanced radio facilities for WRC. In its new home WRC-TV is more than ever a showplace of the Capital and Washington's leadership station in programming, in public service and in service to advertisers.

WRC-TV·4

NBC SPOT SALES

WHEREVER THERE'S MUSIC

.....THERE'S BMI

● VISIT BMI HEADQUARTERS
Rooms 2107-2108
Biltmore Hotel
NAB CONVENTION

BROADCAST MUSIC INC. 589 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK 17, N.Y.

Foreign Television Reviews

UNO, DUE, TRE
(One, Two, Three)
With Ugo Tognazzi, Raimondo Vianello, guests
Director: Eros Macchi
90 Mins.; Sun., 9 p.m.
RAI-TV, from Milan

Italian television's weak variety show department has a welcome addition to its weekend fare with the return of this previously popular stanza and its two stars, Ugo Tognazzi and Raimondo Vianello. Its longevity appears assured also by the basic economy and untiring variety of its format.

This has only slightly changed since last year, with two strong name guests replacing a larger number of vaude routines in the previous setup. Basically, show now shapes as a comic romp for the two stars and their planned series of spoofs on other Italian tv shows and personalities. As evidenced in first-off takeoff on a quizzer (and its recent gueststar Van Heflin), on local video serials in the soapy manner, and other risible local foibles, it is also a healthy and much-needed means of letting off steam by allowing RAI-TV to laugh at itself.

Other stints on an okay, if somewhat nervously rendered opening show, were guest spots for organist Juan Torres and a "begoff" sequence with Yank-in-France actor-singer Eddie Constantine, who sold several French and American songs in solid manner.

Show, however, remains keyed to the Tognazzi-Vianello teaming, and the pair, with their oft-corny but always amusing comedies, should soon again become Sunday night video habituals with their already vast Italo public.

Hawk.

THE WORLD AT BAY
With Ludovic Kennedy, host
Director: Quentin Lawrence Writer: Julian Bond
30 Mins., 9 p.m.
Associated-Televislon, from London

The American passion for tranquilizers with which to cope with the stress and strain of modern living was the peg on which writer Julian Bond hung a program which was astonishingly uninformative and completely lacking in the spark of controversy so necessary for this type of tv show. Bond was looking into the question of whether the tranquilizer habit was forming in Britain, how much of a hold it has in U. S. and whether taking such pills is a good or a bad thing.

Ludovic Kennedy acted as interviewer and he discussed the question with psychiatrists and doctors. Kennedy handled the interviews with his customary suave aplomb but did not appear to be unduly excited about the matter, a state of mind which he effectively communicated to viewers. The program opened slowly with sequences that looked as if they had been filmed to plug a headache powder. There was another sequence showing how the tranquilizer habit has obsessed America, and the effectiveness of this was lost because the scene looked more like a revue sketch rather than a serious appraisal of the subject.

The outcome of a singularly dull program was that tranquilizers came out of the whole affair rather badly. They do nothing that a glass of whiskey cannot achieve, said one expert. They are not as good as the old drugs, they have only a temporary effectiveness, it is not possible to go through life without having some anxiety and the only answer is to "know thyself." If this all sounds a shade abstruse the only answer appears to be to take a tranquilizer (or a glass of whiskey) and forget about the entire program. This was extremely easy to do, for rarely has there been so much yak expended on such a frail theme. Quentin Lawrence directed the show with the air of a man whose heart wasn't in it and it can only be hoped that, next time, writer Julian Bond will hit upon a more meaty target. Rich.

ONLY YESTERDAY
With Neville Barker, others
Writer: Elkan Allan
Director: Peter Morley
15 Mins., Fri., 10 p.m.
Associated-Rediffuslon, from London

This new Associated-Rediffusion series pinpointing past events within living memory suffers through lack of time in which to develop fully; nevertheless, good use has been made of the allotted span by compact presentation and production.

Current program spotlighted one of the great disasters of recent time—that of the ill-fated airship R101 which crashed on her maiden voyage at Beauville, France, in 1930. Neville Barker, who introduced the show, struck the right note of drama and was aided by personal interviews with survivors. crash, Barker recalled the Hindenburg disaster, using some moving film with poignant commentaries. The sobbing voice of the American commentator and the dreadful pictures of the shortlived but all consuming fire that followed the crash struck a powerful dramatic note.

"Only Yesterday" looks good for a steady audience and the personal interviews bring situations which are slipping from the memory back into sharp focus. Bary.

BOYD Q.C.
With Michael Denison, June Laverick, Barrie Cookson, Laurie Main, Fred Johnson, Ian Ashley, Russell Waters, Jill Melford, David Garth
Writer: Jack Roffey
Director: Michael Currer-Briggs
Designer: Goerge Haslam
30 Mins.: Wed, 7:30 p.m.
Associated-Rediffusion, from London

This successful series has been revived and on the show caught, the third of the new series, it has clearly settled down for another click spell. The series, which, as its title implies, presents some of the cases of a Queen's Counsel, is a smooth and tautly presented job. Considering that there are only 27 minutes for the plot to be established and the case wound up in court, writer Jack Roffey manages to develop his characters and situations very slickly.

The playlet under notice concerned a girl from the sticks who fell into bad company when she hit the bright lights of London. As a result, she found herself arraigned with her lover on a charge of theft and Boyd defended her with his usual debonair wit and know-how. Michael Denison played Boyd with a most authentic touch, bringing wit and charm to the role. June Laverick was an attractive damsel in distress, and prosecuting counsel David Garth, police inspector Ian Ashley, model Jill Melford and crook Barrie Cookson all offered Denison excellent support. Michael Currer-Briggs's production and George Haslam's decor showed care and good taste.

On this showing "Boyd Q.C." is a very satisfying series. Though the body of each playlet must inevitably be slight, interest is maintained by plausible dialog and believable characters. Rich.

SIX-FIVE SPECIAL
With Max Bygraves, Marlon Ryan, Mike & Bernie Winters, Don Lang & Frantic Five, John Barry Seven, Harry Gold & New Beat Band, Four Buddies; Josephine Douglas, emcee
Writer: Jeremy Lloyd
Producer: Dennis Main Wilson
55 Mins.
BBC-TV, from Glasgow

The BBC's teenage Saturday night show, lively mixture of modern song and music, shot over the England-Scotland border for a session at the local Albert dansery in Glasgow. Technical difficulties appeared to mar the show, such as bad linkups and n.s.g. camera work. Quantity scored over quality, and the onetime BBC-TV top-rating show looks like slipping in appeal, despite recent boost via a feature film of same nature and title.

Rikki Barnes group, a local outfit, teed off with "Long Tall Sally." Harry Gold Band offered its lively new beat, and Marlon Ryan, seen in closeup talkie sessions with Max Bygraves, chirped gaily in tunes like "Oh, Oh, I'm Falling in Love Again."

Comedy slotting was capably handled by Mike and Bernie Winters. Bygraves, British entertainer in the Danny Kaye style, led the assembled jivers and teenagers in happy community singing, and scored with "You've Got to Have Hands" and "Tulips From Amsterdam." Don Lang Five, John Barry Seven and others added to noisy proceedings, with Josephine Douglas a fresh forceful compere, suffering in no way from recent resignations from show of her colleagues Pete Murray and Freddie Mills. Dennis Main Wilson production was lively and fast-paced though patchy, with technical snags the obvious problem in confined space of city dansery. Gord.

2,000 MINUS 60
With John Robinson, June Thorburn, Eric Lander, Charles Lloyd Pack, Campbell Singer, Douglas Blackwell, Murray Hayne, John Downing, Jane Sothern, Barry Steele, Walter Horsbrugh, Jack Stewart
Director: Peter Graham Scott
Writer: James Workman
60 Mins., Fri., 9 p.m.
Associated-Rediffusion from London

This dramatized excursion into the future was set in the last hour of the century and almost all the action took place in an elaborate control room in which duty officers plot the course of rockets and satellites as they traverse the earth. The routine calm was, however, abruptly ended when it was realized that a ballistic missile was heading straight for their own nerve center—and they had under an hour to prevent it devastating the city.

Inherently, this was a plot which should have been crammed with suspense; but this quality was largely absent from the finished production. Put the blame for this on the author, whose dialog was riddled with phoney scientific jargon, which became monotonous by sheer force of repetition. The costumes didn't help much either. They looked more like something worn by Greek soldiers in historical dramas, rather than the styles which may be in vogue at the turn of the century. Myro.

IL MUSICHERE
With Mario Riva, Patrizia della Rovere, Carla Gravina, Gorni Kramer Orchestra, others Director: Antonello Falqui
60 Mins.; Sat., 9:10 p.m.
RAI-TV, from Rome

Show has rapidly become the top Italian television presentation, both in entertainment appeal and audience popularity, replacing all previous favorites. And deservedly so. It's fresh, fast-moving, well prepared, and keyed to an always-popular Italo pastime: the song.

Based on the U.S. "Name That Tune" type of presentation, it has been elaborately and inventively developed by the Garinei-Giovannini writing team, who continue to follow up the show to uphold consistent quality. Contestants race against each other and against the clock in tune-guessing spree, until one remains. He gets a chance at the Treasure Chest by naming a hidden mystery tune. If he wins, he (or she) returns next week. In between stints, name guest stars compete for charity and provide comedy relief.

Run of show has also zoomed a new tv personality to the Italian zenith; Mario Riva, longtime musical star and comedian otherwise partnered with Riccardo Billi. He's by far the best emcee-comedian value in this country, and alone is a strong contribution to show's impact. His current stint should keep him busy for a long time.

Hawk.

SIAMO TUTTI IMPROVVISATORI
(We're All Improvisers)
With Leonardo Cortese, guests
Director: Lino Procacci
60 Mins., Wed., 9 p.m.
RAI-TV, from Rome

This item is claimed one of the few local innovations in the field of video variety shows, in which most Italian-originated shows are borrowed from previously tested foreign formats.

Based on an idea by Anton Giulio Bragaglia, show sets groups of selected contestants (usually three) up against problems involving their field of work, within a short time limit and before a large studio audience. Thus three w.k. painters, for example, may be charged with portraiting a celeb or member of the audience on the spur of the moment; three songwriters, for another, may have to write words to a tune on a theme given them by spectator, and so on. Windup—and bulk of show—is made of a sketch acted by a regular group of thesps signed to show, again improvising on a theme given them at start of show and "written" in intervening half-hour. Names and non-pros are mixed in various departments, which are also changed from week to week, involving to date such disparate functions as dressmakers, dollmakers, guitarists, pianists, pic poster artists, poets, sculptors, etc.

Idea, at least in early stanzas, is better than execution, but show may catch on as it's tightened via experience. Third show was already 100% better than initial one, termed a fiasco locally. Much depends on selection of "contestants." Hawk.

STARR & COMPANY
With Anne Pichon, Jose Read, Michael Murray, Martin Sterndale, Maurice Durant, Arnold Ridley, Philip Ray, William Sherwood, Betty Cooper, Harry Littlewood, Anthony Woodruff, Barrie Steele, Bryan Kendrick
Writer: Bill Naughton
Director: Morris Barry
20 Mins., Mon., 7:30 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

The BBC has come up with its own twice-weekly serial, presumably as an answer to the highly successful "Emergency-Ward 10." "Starr & Company" deals with the trials and tribulations as well as the highspots in the life of a British buoy manufacturing company, and for 20 minutes each Monday and Thursday the somewhat dreary existences of the company execs and the workers are unfolded. Much of the dialog is devoted to technical and uninteresting manufacturing problems and petty staff difficulties.

The current crisis involves Joseph Starr, the company's topper, and his unrestrained and go-ahead son, Robin Starr, who has been pressing unsuccessfully for a conversion from steel to fibre glass in manufacture. Efforts at high drama made for false values and the program lacked warmth or self-identification for the viewers.

Bary.

Foreign TV Followup

Sun. Night at London Palladium

After a fortnight's top-of-the bill stint at the Palladium, Liberace wound his London season with the headline spot on Associated Television's "Sunday Night at the London Palladium" (20). Emcee Tommy Trinder explained that as so many of the pianist's followers had not been able to attend his Palladium vaude season, Liberace would be performing extracts from his act.

Before Liberace made his appearance there were ecstatic yells from the audience and shrieks of approval when he made his entrance. In his wellknown manner Liberace excited his audience with popular piano playing, grins and bouncy enthusiasm. Closeups of the audience showed that whatever he did met with the utmost approval.

The girl who has been dubbed as "one of America's most popular singers in this country," Julie Wilson, currently headlining in West End cabaret, may have had a problem with the theatre audience but not with the home viewers. Most of those who turned up to see the show live at the Palladium were undoubtedly enthusiasts of Liberace's brand of schmaltz and were not typical devotees of Miss Wilson's sophisticated lyrics. As always, she was beautifully gowned and immaculately groomed and once she had won the battle with the live audience there was no holding her back. Her songs, all of which are featured in her cabaret show, were in a more popular category, with "Ca, C'est L'Amour" providing an adequate opener and such numbers as "It's Alright With Me" and "It's Witchcraft" garnering hefty results.

Big hit of the program was supplied by the crazy musicianship of Sid Millward & His Nitwits, who have just returned from a year's residency in Paris. The crazy antics but high standard of musicianship supplied by this comedy orch were great. Regular feature of the program, the "Beat the Clock" spot, gains added importance each week as the jackpot prize steadily mounts. It now stands at $3,080 and will be won by the contestants who can catch three tennis balls in a topless topper worn on the head. This spot was amiably conducted by Trinder. The standard support supplied by the George Carden Dancers and the Cyril Ornadel orch were maintained at a high level.

Bary.

Chelsea at Eight

One of the strongest bills to date in Granada-TV's "Chelsea at Eight" (22) featured topline American pianists Ferrante and Teicher. Among a very varied lineup of international artists the only weak link was a domestic comedy sketch with Mai Zetterling, Dennis Price and Irene Handl.

Ferrante and Teicher demonstrated that the piano is a very versatile instrument in their hands. Opening with a colorful arrangement of "Oye Negra," they went on to demonstrate their prowess in an original piece entitled "African

(Continued on page 64)

Television Followup Comment

Continued from page 51

off on radio for both himself and Wrigley. But it was Sheldon who scattered the biggest fallout of gassers. He did it the easy way by getting his fingers caught in the strings of his banjo and hobbling around short-legged.

From out of the guest corner also came Jackie Cooper and that called for a fast assembly of Gobel's Sheep Dippers, a band grouping with John Scott Trotter at the piano, Gobel on guitar, Sheldon on banjo and guess who on the skins? They beat out a hot dixieland version of "Basin Street" with an assist from a torrid trumpet (Local 47).

Gobel's monolog on long and short people had its moments of mirth but the traffic skit, with all hands deployed to keep the lookers happy, came off limping. Gobel and Jeff Donnell ticketed by Cooper and tried by "Judge" Buttram, with Cooper doubling as Gobel's lawyer, didn't whip up much hilarity. For the final playoff everyone donned raincoats with umbrellas overhead to sing in the rain after a round of seasonal ditties. Jack Donahue's direction - production skittered from one patch to another. Helm.

Shooting for the Moon

"Shooting for the Moon" last week (24) was an hourlong pat on the back for Ghrysler, sponsor of "Climax," for its part in the development of the Jupiter, and in putting a missile into space with a nose cone which returns to earth intact. Authoritative it was; entertaining, no. Actually, the prolonged picture of the researchers at work was quite a bore, and the most dramatic moments were newsreel shots of the missiles soaring into space. It was a deadly missile story.

There was a flimsy excuse of a story attached to the scientific bulk of the hour, that excuse being how the wife of one of the brains was neglected and forlorn while hubby was off and away with his blueprints. After the usual, unsuccessful tests, there was the successful one, with the cone returning to earth, and it closed with a film of President Eisenhower's address to the nation, in which he showed the cone.

None of the characters emerged as anything but a cliche. John Forsythe was the intense, young civilian head of the project; Dick York the intense, young assistant; Alexander Scourby the calm, Teutonic-accented aide whose proudest boast was "when I worked with von Braun"; Bethel Leslie the ever-suffering wife; Robert Armstrong the kindly bulldog type hovering over the eggheads. Neither the acting, nor the direction of Tom Donovan, was very good. The Henry F. Greenberg-Malvin Wald teleplay missed in that it was almost totally concerned with the scientific values rather than human relationships, so that any real drama was impossible. Daku.

TV Reviews

Continued from page 51

winning the race by a good three lengths.

Also interviewed was Brownie Leach, of Churchill Downs public relations, who said Silky Sullivan was the most publicized horse to be entered in the Derby in his memory.

WHAS crew was on hand at the track at 5 a.m., and during the workout porters and track personnel all quit work to witness the nag in his limbering-up effort. WHAS-TV reports this was the first workout station has televised. Ledford, WHAS sportscaster, turned in a hep job of interviewing, and Bob Pilkington deserves a nod for his direction of the outdoor show. Wied.

FACE OF CRIME—20TH CENTURY

MAN IN SPACE—CONQUEST

INTERVIEW WITH TITO

MURROW INTERVIEWS TRUMAN

CHURCHILL, MAN OF THE CENTURY

MARIAN ANDERSON—SEE IT NOW

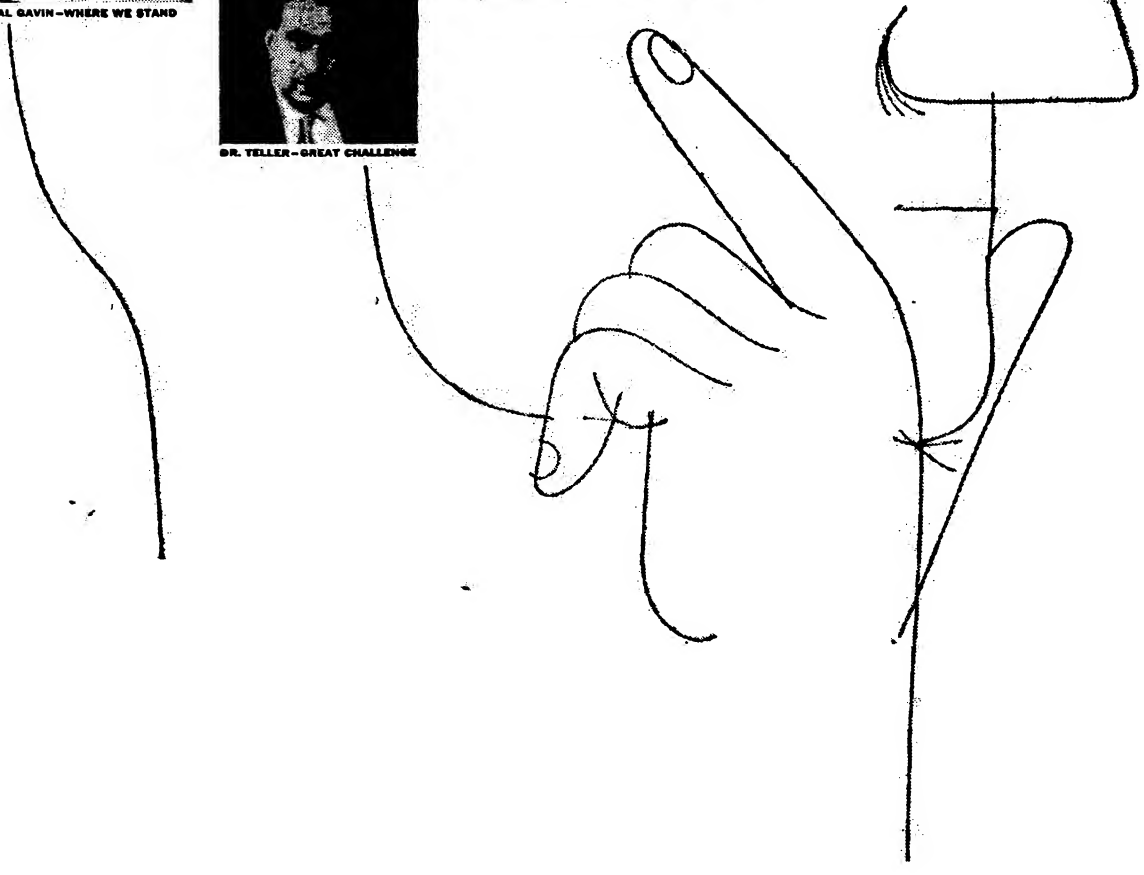
ALGERIA AFLAME

MISSILE DEVELOPMENT

KHRUSHCHEV—FACE THE NATION

GENERAL GAVIN—WHERE WE STAND

DR. TELLER—GREAT CHALLENGE



remember?

IF YOU DON'T remember these television events, the chances are you didn't see them —for the more a picture comes to life, the longer it is likely to be remembered.

If you were among the millions of Americans who tune to a CBS News program each week, you got a different kind of information than you could ever get from a report in cold print.

You gained a sense of reality and immediacy—the feeling of being present at the scene. The inflection of a voice, a facial expression, a gesture, often told you more than a speaker's words.

You gained an additional sense of depth from the wide-ranging explorations of the complex forces that are shaping the world today.

For "going behind current happenings to identify related problems, underlying causes and influential individuals" CBS News won a George Foster Peabody Award for radio and television news, the latest in a list of similar awards honoring the competence of this distinguished news-gathering organization over a period of more than two decades.

This competence has also made the day-to-day reporting of the news on television more meaningful to millions of viewers who have formed the habit of watching DOUGLAS EDWARDS WITH THE NEWS. Broadcast five nights a week, it alone now has a bigger weekly circulation than any newspaper . . . any magazine . . . any radio program . . . or any other news program in television. With more than 38 million viewers, it has become the world's largest single news medium. Like all other news programs on the CBS Television Network it relies for its content and direction on the world-wide resources of CBS News.

Today the number and complexity of events, the speed and frequency of their occurrence, and their impact on the nation's welfare and security make the need for this information-in-depth especially acute. Because it serves this need so effectively, as well as the need to be entertained, television continues to command more attention than any other medium of mass communication in history. And within television the largest audiences—day and night—are available on . . .

THE CBS TELEVISION NETWORK ◉

Fem Frills Cut Frisco Fog

Continued from page 37

prexy, tossed at them a challenge to stand up and be counted as important members of an important industry, and to share responsibility in current problems pressing radio-tv.

Exhibits ranging from recruiting demonstrations of the three branches of the Armed Services, through tips on homemaking ideas for programming, to tempting displays of products marked the revenue-producing exhibit hall, with its 25 booths. And, to prove that advertisers are still aware of the power of the woman behind the mike or before the camera, several hundred prizes, ranging from suits, hats, dresses, to jewelry portable typewriters, hi-fi sets and tv receivers, were given away to holders of lucky numbers. In addition, several dozen "hospitality suites" offered refreshments, relaxation and fellowship on a continuous basis.

Burton's Blast

American femcasters have an obligation to themselves, their industry and their community to carry story of radio as "greatest field for true creative talent in the U. S.," said Robert J. Burton, executive veepee of Broadcast Music Inc., speaking at AWRT convention. Burton warned that passage of the Smathers Bill would be the first step in restricting the right of American broadcasters to engage in other legitimate business, and that from it would "follow restrictions in other fields."

As in Harold Fellows' talk to group, restrictive legislation kept rearing its ugly head in Burton's remarks. He attributed attacks of ASCAP and latter's campaign for passage of bill to "a desire to return to monopoly situation prior to '39." He charged "they do not want to live in world of competition."

Facing a receptive audience representing mostly stations and webs, Burton called music "the lifestream of broadcasting," and said the bill would deprive femcasters of their "fundamental right to play a part in the cultural development of the country."

Like Fellows, he urged femcasters to work against legislation or "propaganda campaign" that could in any way "hamper or curtail" their accomplishments in creative field of broadcasting.

'Anybody' Vice 'Scott'

"Adventure at Scott Island" is giving way on July 6 to John Guedel's giveaway, "Anybody Can Play." R. J. Reynolds, which owned half of "Island," is sticking with the ABC-TV Sunday at 8:30 slot throughout the summer.

"Anybody's" chief gimmick is booty of $10,000 in cash prizes to homescreeners. George Fenneman will emcee.

Puerto Rican Radio-TV Sets $1,000,000 Budget

San Juan, April 29.

Despite the low per capita income of Puerto Ricans, inhabitants will eventually have available to them a wealth of cultural experience via the government's tv and radio stations which are budgeted at about $1,000,000 for 1958-59. Of this, about 80% will go to tv and 20% to radio Video station has about 80 employees and radio station, 40.

Government tv and radio projects are both headed by Rafael Delgado Marquez, known as Don Felo, originally from the sugar industry.

New government tv station is housed in a poshy $350,000 building. By year's end it should be under full steam operating 15 hours a day and offering everything from moppet and home shows to college level courses. At present U.S. and some Spanish films are being imported.

Grogan, Yarnell In DuMont Shift

DuMont Broadcasting has made a major shift of program executives. It has returned Jack Grogan, head of tv programming for DuMont's two video operations, to radio and given the tv program managership of WABD, N. Y., to David Yarnell.

Grogan was program boss for WABD and WTTG, Washington, but last week DuMont handed him a veepee stripe and made him overseer of radio stanzas at WHK, Cleveland, and WNEW, N. Y. Grogan came to WABD from WNEW when the latter was sold last year to the DuMont chain. Hal Moore remains as the specific program head of WNEW, reporting to Grogan.

Yarnell, director of publicity for DuMont, said after his program appointment at WABD that both moves become effective May 1. WTTG, the other DuMont tv'er, will fall under the general aegis of Richard Buckley, DuMont's veep in charge of sales and programming.

Radio Review

PHIL BOWMAN SHOW
With Phil Bowman, Virginia Marmaduke, John Holtman, Johnny Erp, others
Producer-Director: Howard Keegan
Special Material: Morgan Perron
120 Mins.; Mon.-Fri., 11 a.m.
PARTICIPATING
WMAQ, Chicago

When WMAQ dropped Mary Merryfield's seven-year-old noontime strip a few weeks ago, station manager Howard Coleman expanded Phil Bowman's adjacent chore to two full hours and molded it into a daytime counterpart of the nightly "Chan Show." Both are attempts at reproducing the "Monitor" design on the local level by weaving bits and pieces of general interest features into the ordinary recorded music yardgoods. Thus the record spinner sloughs his identity as deejay and becomes a host.

The Phil Bowman stanza is pegged for the distaffer, with an accent of mature music and featurettes and with some attention to cultural topics. Decidedly to its credit is that it genuinely aspires to be creative programming on virtually a shoestring. However, the show tries too hard to be all things to all hausfraus and as a result is a farrago of unrelated, and even incongruous, items camped under the same umbrella. Accompanying a taped interview with Lotte Lehmann on a single show might be a five-minute sports essay (for the ladies) by Johnny Erp, a recipe, a message from a public school official, a human interest tidbit by Virginia Marmaduke, and a "Tello-Test" phonecall to a listener for a jackpot question. All this interlarded with recordings of show tunes, oldies by the big bands, the Norman Luboff choir, an occasional folksong, and Doris Day and Buddy Clark in duet. If it sounds like a mishmash, it is.

The show adds up to a lot of talk in a two-hour stretch, which needn't be so bad if all the features were interesting. It's quite evident that quantity and variety are strained for, and because they are on regular schedule the subsegments are worked in whether they have interest value or not. A good idea on the whole, the show needs focus and a more meaningful selection of inserts if it is to be anything more than a salad.

As for Bowman, who joined the station a few months ago, he has prepossessing folksy qualities and is a skillful kneader of idle, and sometimes useful, talk. Good on the live blurbs and definitely a plus on the WMAQ talent roster.

Les.

Name NBC in 'Sing' Suit

Los Angeles, April 29.

NBC is named in a breach-of-contract suit filed in Superior Court by John D. Libman, who asks $5,000 for payment of a program idea assertedly used on a George Gobel show.

Libman asserts that he entered into a written pact with web in 1955 whereby he was to be paid if the idea, titled "Everybody Sing," was used. Idea later was used on Sept. 24, 1957, on the Gobel program, complaint stated.

Ad libs are fine but...

It's a fact—quick quips, spontaneous gestures, are best caught on film. Then you are in control. A quick snip here . . . a laugh highlighted there—and you have a better show . . . one you can be proud of. That's because you see it before you show it on film. What's more, a very important "more," you're in control, too, of time and station! Use black-and-white—or color . . . there's an Eastman Film for every purpose.

For complete information write to: Motion Picture Film Department
EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY, Rochester 4, N.Y.

East Coast Division
342 Madison Ave., New York 17, N. Y

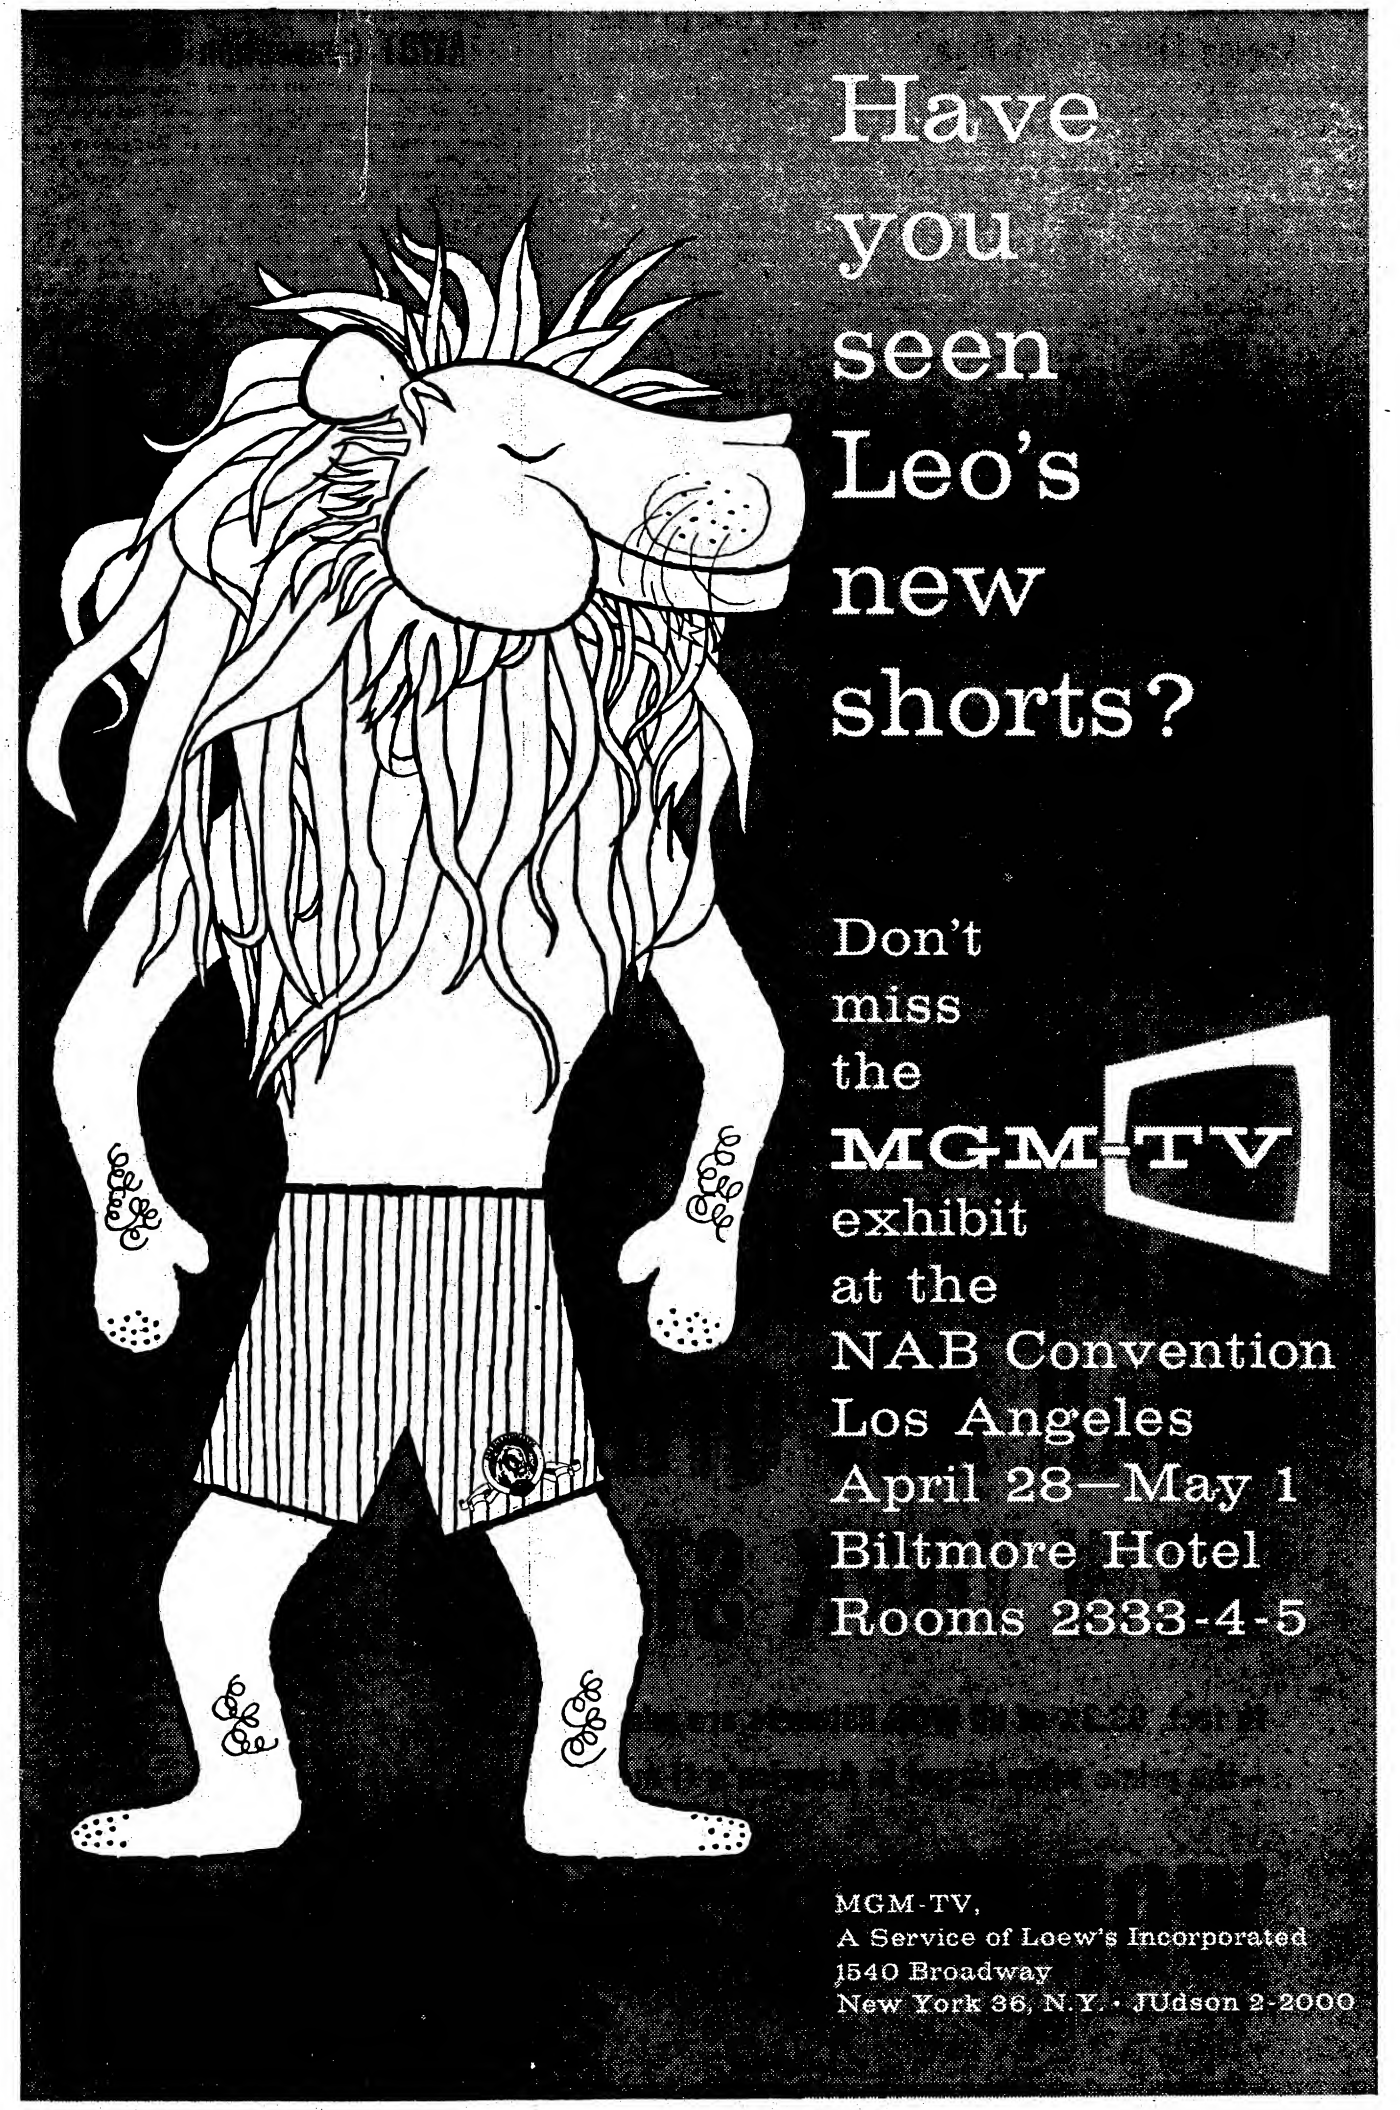
Midwest Division
130 East Randolph Drive, Chicago 1, Ill.

West Coast Division
6706 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood 38, Calif.

or W. J. German, Inc.

Agents for the sale and distribution of Eastman Professional Motion Picture Films, Fort Lee, N. J., Chicago 11, Hollywood, Calif.

Be sure to shoot in COLOR . . . You'll be glad you did.



Have you seen Leo's new shorts?
Don't miss the MGM-TV exhibit at the NAB Convention Los Angeles April 28—May 1 Biltmore Hotel Rooms 2333-4-5
MGM-TV,
A Service of Loew's Incorporated
1540 Broadway
New York 36, N.Y. · JUdson 2-2000

Ladies Listen to A Man

Continued from page 37

tively employed in radio-tv, he pointed out, only about 5% are in active management. Yet their problems, he added, should be the concern of all.

Most pressing of current industry problems, according to Fellows, centers on fact that it is "constantly under the critical examination of Congress and of our own regulatory body, the Federal Communications Commission." He cited the four public investigations which have spotlighted the industry in Washington. Running concurrently, he pointed out, were hearings of the House Committee on Legislative Oversight; Senate hearings on the Smathers Bill; the FCC hearings on the Barrows report; and the House Small Business Committee hearings on ASCAP. "Some of these," he added, represent what amounts to a waste of people's money."

Defending the record of the industry, Fellows pointed to its record of self-regulation and to its sensitivity to its public performance. Nevertheless, he added, the [illegible] persists for officeholders to single out broadcasting as their target "possibly because, in some instances at least, this procedure is almost guaranteed to capture headlines for him."

Fellows urged AWRT members, as well as all those employed in radio-tv, to protest restrictive legislation or any law threatening the freedom of the medium, via letters to their Congressional representatives.

He predicted that radio, at least, and perhaps tv, was about to enter "another revolutionary stage," as a result of the predicted 1960 economic boom. This stage, he forecast, might well see the revival of local programming on community stations. He urged his femme audience to turn their attention to "what's going to be done with the spectrum in television." He recalled the gradual disappearance of femme shows in many areas, and urged the ladies to look ahead to trends that may have a long-range effect on their current jobs.

WNTA Work Up 'U.S.A.' Kine & Pix Showcase Of Out-of-Town 'Bests'

"Television U.S.A." is the name of a series to be done by WATV, when the new owners, National Telefilm Associates, take the metropolitan outlet over next month. For the first time, a New York tv'er will be exposing films done locally by stations in other parts of the country.

After the call letters change from WATV to WNTA, the station will insert "U.S.A." into a Sunday night slot, giving out-of-town tv outlets opportunity to expose their favorite tv production (on kine or film) for the benefit of New York agencymen and N. Y. critics who don't normally get a chance to view other than network or local N. Y. tele productions.

Series begins with WBZ-TV's (Boston) film "City in a Shadow." Second show will be a kinescope of the heart operation done by WTPA, Harrisburg, Pa. These shows were exposed at the Westinghouse Broadcasting powwow in Baltimore recently. WNTA, however, is seeking properties from all stations.

AWRT Convention Chatter

Continued from page 37

ports of launchings. And Douglas Aircraft, developer of Thor missile, picked up check for her Frisco jaunt, plus tour of their plant for program reports . . . Myrtle Labitt, CKLW-MBS, Detroit, who has kept up with the times by constantly changing format over 26 years of broadcasting, now teams with daughter on across-the-board radio show, plus twice weekly telecast.

* * *

Government continues to appreciate power of women on the air. Four Government reps attended as delegates and to make friends and influence femcasters on behalf of Uncle Sam. Gertrude Broderick, U.S. Office of Education; Anne Hagen, U. S. Information Agency; Beverly Warran, Civil Air Patrol; and Alice Anderson, U. S. Dept. of Labor, were amongst 15 from Washington, one of largest delegations at confab, despite transcontinental trip.

* * *

Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, NBC newscaster, worked her way west from Washington via the gab circuit, stopping enroute for speaking dates . . . And Gloria Chandler, public service and educational director, King Broadcasting Co., returned to Portland, Ore., to be named "woman of the year" by Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalistic group. Another Chandler production, "Wunda, Wunda" (KGW-TV), is first local show to cop a Peabody award in moppet class . . . Florence Monroe, N.Y.C. Bd. of Ed., kudosed for copping two out of three tv awards for standout children's shows from Science Manufacturers of America, in recognition of her "Living Blackboard" (WPIX) and "On the Carousel" (WCBS-TV).

* * *

Paula Sue Abrams, 21-year-old Columbia U. radio-tv student, won $750 annual AWRT scholarship, plus trip to convention. Betty Rose West, NBC, Chicago, chairman of scholarship committee, presented flegling femcaster to group. Winner has already cut her broadcasting eye tooth via assignments with DuMont and as program assistant for CBS-TV's "Seven Lively Arts." Panel of judges for award included: ABC's John Daly; NAB prexy Harold Fellows; Robert Swezey, manager, WSDU, New Orleans; Mrs. Elizabeth Marshall, radio-tv dept., Chicago Bd. of Ed.; and Rev. R. C. Williams, Creighton U., Omaha.

WOR-RADIO
DELIVERS MORE
ADULT LISTENERS
PER RATING POINT THAN ANY OTHER
NEW YORK STATION*

In fact, 93.3% of all WOR listeners are adults
—the prime sales target in America's #1 market.

WOR-RADIO 710 fm 98.7
A Division of RKO

*PULSE Audience Composition, Winter 1958.

Herm Hickman, 46, Dies; Ex-Grid Coach Carved Out a Radio-TV Career

Herman Hickman, who moved from football coaching to radio-tv raconteuring and sportscasting, died Friday (25) in Washington, at age 46, after suffering a gastric ulcer attack and internal complications. He was a WCBS, N. Y., sports commentator at the time of his death.

An amazing storyteller, postprandial speaker with an encyclopediac mind, he also had a trencherman's capacity for food and weighed in the vicinity of 300 pounds.

Son of a distinguished Tennessee lawyer, Hickman played football while at the U. of Tennessee in 1928. He was also one of the school's most polished debaters. After graduation in 1932 he played pro football for the Brooklyn Dodgers and worked the pro wrestling circuit between seasons.

In 1935 he began his football coaching career at Wake Forest College and later moved to North Carolina State and West Point. In 1948 he became head coach at Yale and during his four year career in New Haven the school eleven won 16 games, lost 18 and tied two. He resigned in 1952 to try his skills in radio and tv by appearing on numerous panel shows as an expert in sports, poetry and current events. He also compiled "The Herman Hickman Reader."

Surviving are his wife and his mother.

Comes WLW's 4th Year Of 'Music 'Til Dawn'

Cincinnati, April 29.

Clear channel WLW has entered its fourth year of participation in "Music 'Til Dawn" programming for American Airlines. The spot pattern applies nightly from 12:30 a.m. to 5:30 a.m.

In celebrating the anni, Robert E. Dunville, Crosley Broadcasting Corp. president, noted that WLW was the third indie station added by AA to the original six CBS stations in the unique network linup. WWJ, Detroit, and KRLD, Dallas, preceded the Cincy 50,000-watter by one year.

The Crosley station, according to Dunville, is third in total weekly audience ratings of the nine CBS and indie stations involved in the AAA show. Dunville's interest was occasioned by a recent VARIETY story on the "Music 'Til Dawn" fifth anni which inadvertently omitted WLW from the AA lineup of stations.

Tulsa—Dick John, former Tulsa broadcaster more recently with WKY-Oklahoma City, and WTVT, Tampa, Fla., has resigned to join NBC-TV News. He has been news director of WTVT since the station was purchased by WKY interests in 1956.

We wanted a group photograph of the news staff that won the Peabody Award...

First row: Don Goddard. Second row: John W. Vandercook. Third row: Quincy Howe. Missing from photograph: John Daly, Julian Anthony, Robert Sturdevant, Yale Newman, Robert Fleming, John Secondari, Edward P. Morgan, John Edwards, Paul Harvey, Erwin D. Canham, Robert Lodge, Ray Falk.

...and this is what we got.

Three were on assignment in New York. 12 were missing. The boss, John Daly, was in the Orient. Robert Sturdevant was in Paris, Yale Newman in Moscow, Ray Falk at the South Pole. And so it went. As a result, there is no group picture of the ABC news staff. There was no chance to congratulate them, all at one sitting, upon winning the Peabody Award for TV news coverage for the second straight year. But we know full well that you don't win the next award by dwelling on the last one. To be "consistently authoritative" (in the words of the Peabody citation), you've got to be wherever in the world things are happening. That's where our men are. Out in the field – where Peabody Awards are won.

ABC TELEVISION

From the Production Centres

Continued from page 32

the web was made by agent Sherwin Bash and producer Mace Newfeld.

Jack Sobel has been appointed v.p. in charge of sales of General Artists Corp.-TV . . . Dr. Ralph Bunche, undersecretary tor the United Nations, is to be Mutual's "Viewpoint" speaker Saturday (3) . . . Actor Jimmy Yoham did the voice of "Snowflake," the parrot on the "Perry Como Show," Saturday (26). It was the bird's talking debut.

IN HOLLYWOOD . . .

Gracie Allen didn't get an Emmy on the eve of her retirement, but she did get a sentimental gift from William S. Paley, CBS board chairman, that she'll treasure just as much. It's a diamond swan pendant with black and white pearls. The accompanying card bespoke his appreciation for her long services to CBS . . Ted Rogers, Bill Lynch and the "Wide Wide World" crew here from N.Y. to research "Evolution of the Western" airmarked for June 8. They'll trace the oater saga from the early days of "Broncho Billy" Anderson down to the current sagebrushers . . . Lou Derman, head writer on "December Bride," landed a publisher for his humorous tome, "You Can't Mail An Elephant," an account of his days as a postal clerk . Jess Oppenheimer told Marvin Young's writing class at UCLA how to put together a situation comedy, but there was nobody to tell them how to sell it

IN CHICAGO . .

Representation from the local radio-tv plants to NAB this year is slight, one exec attending for the NBC stations, two each for the CBS and ABC shops, and three for WGN Inc. Ward Quaal, WGN veep in charge, stayed behind because of his father's illness . . . Lee Phillip, WBBM-TV's leading lady, plucked the public service award from McCall's mag for the second straight year for her series, "Unwed Mother, Unwanted Child" . . . Wayne Griffin, radio-tv personality who now owns a travel service in Arlington Heights, has added the fancy title of travel editor for WBKB. His opus on the station preems May 17 . . . Deejay Del Clark bagged his first tv assignment as announcer on WBKB's "TV Tryouts," which is hosted by Jimmy Spitalny . . . WGN Inc. named Mark Munn, who just earned his Ph. D. from Ohio State, director of research . . . Board meeting of the Radio-TV News Director Frank Atlass vacationing in Mexico . . . Clif Mercer hosting a Saturday midnight baseball quizzer for Petri Wines on WGN-TV . . .

IN LONDON . . .

Josephine Baker will appear in "Jack Hylton's Monday Show" on Associated-Rediffusion May 12 . . . Granada-TV's "Zoo Time" notched its century last Thursday (24) . . . Raymond Massey is here for rehearsals of his own play "The Hanging Judge" in which he will star for ABC-TV on Sunday (May 11) . . . Howard Keel headed the bill of Associated TeleVision's "Sunday Night at the Palladium" (27) . . . ABC-TV invited an audience along to its studios to watch its Sunday night play "Fifty-Fifty" (17) starring Harry Green. This was the first time that such a gathering has been welcomed

IN SAN FRANCISCO

Three CBS-TV soap operas, 3-4 p.m., moved en bloc from KPIX to KTVU as result of KPIX's new local 90-minute Ted Randal show. Further KPIX shifts find "Sunrise Semester" debuting in the Frisco area there, Charlie Dugdale getting a new daily 7:45-8:45 a.m. show, Marian Rowe's "Adventure School" sliced to a quarter-hour and Call-Bulletin's Paul Speegle taking over from Sandy Spillman as "Money Tree" emcee . . . salesman John Egan departed KGO for KSAY . . . KSFO dropping Marjorie King's half-hour interview show with time going to Don Sherwood . . . KTVU now going on the air at 1:10 p.m., with Bob March, ex-WXIX, Milwaukee, ex-KERO, Bakersfield, starting a new daily "Captain Satellite" show, 4:30-5 p.m. . . . KGO-TV's national spot sales boss, Yale Roe, back from a three-week cross-country jaunt . . . Faye Stewart off the air and behind the scenes as KPIX's new home-management consultant . . . Cecil Webb named KRON's sales promotion chief . . .

IN PHILADELPHIA . .

Roger W. Clipp, exec veepee of Triangle Stations and general manager of WFIL, WFIL-TV, received annual award of the Phila. Principals' Assn. for contributing to the welfare of th community . . WRCV-TV salesman Bob Jawer wrote music and lyrics for finale of the U. of P.'s "Mask and Wig Club" show (24) . . . "Decision at Laurel Falls," which garnered first prize in the Columbus, O., film festival-informat'on category, was produced by localite Louis Kellman and stars WCAU-TV's Jack Whitaker . . . Lee Dexter, puppeteer-ventriloquist, has had contract renewed by WRCV-TV . . . Don Daniels, local sports columnist, will do a 10-minute pre-game "Inside Baseball" of the Phillies' away night games on WVUE-TV . . . Max E. Solomon, WFIL-TV salesman, chalking up 30 years in broadcasting, honored at party in Crillion Towers.

IN BOSTON

Phyl Doherty, WNAC-TV pub-ad chief, off for Bermuda vacash Friday (2) . . . WBZ hosted 150 scribes, ad and pubbery execs at Jug End Barn with Eileen Rodgers and Ethel Smith in for the doings . . . Duncan MacDonald, WNAC "Yankee Home and Food Show" hostess, back from Brussels World's Fair with tapes . . . Mass. Bankers Assn. inked for series of announcements on WBZ-TV with Alan Dary delivering the message . . . Bill Buchanan, Boston Daily Record tv columnist, trekked to Philadelphia for Dick Clark show interview . . . Leo Egan, WBZ-TV sports commentator, handling four-week sked of spots on Raynham Racetrack . . . Norm Nathan, WHDH all-night disk jock, nabbed big response with equation problem . . . Dottie Kachadorian, WNAC music librarian, on vacash. Likewise Ruth Sylvano, WNAC-TV asst. publicist . . . Emerson Rug and Hampden Harvard Brewing inked for co-op sponsorship "The Big Movie" on WBZ-TV Friday nights at 11:15.

IN BALTIMORE .

Melva Forsythe Zaal, after absence of several months, is back on WBAL radio with "Mollie Martin Show" . . . Jack Carter was guest at banquet held by Tri-State Jewelers' Assn. at Emerson Hotel . . . "Dr. Hudson," after being yanked from afternoon crossboard slot on WBAL-TV, is relocated on same channel Sundays . . . WJZ-TV launched "Morgan State '58," public service series produced by TV Workshop of Morgan State College. Prof. Clifford Lamb is coordinator and Paul Kane, of WJZ-TV, director . . . WBAL-TV came through with "IGY For You," weekly presentation centering on scientific aspects of International Geophysical Year and presented by Baltimore Public Schools . . . Mrs. Elise Kemper is moderator of "Passport," new Sunday feature on WMAR-TV covering contributions of foreign-born to America . . . Galen Fromme replaces John F. Lewis as announcer on "Newsbeat," cross-boarder on WBAL-TV, and Lewis moves to new slot earlier in day . . .

Beer & Wine Not Going To Radio-TV's Head, Sez Fellows Vs. Langer Bill

Washington, April 29.

Broadcast time devoted to beer and wine advertising is relatively small, Harold E. Fellows, prexy of National Assn. of Broadcasters, told the Senate Commerce Committee last week.

Testifying in opposition to a bill by Sen. William Langer (R.-N. D.) to prohibit alcoholic beverage advertising over interstate media, Fellows cited surveys showing that only 3% of all programs on tv and 3.5% of all tv spots represented beer and wine advertising. On radio, he said, such commercials accounted for only 1.6% and 2.8%, respectively.

Broadcasting industry has found, said Fellows, that only a minority of the audience objects to beer and wine advertising. If there was substantial objection, he added, proposed legislation would not be needed.

2D SUIT VS. PUTNAM FOR JAN. 24 AIRING

Los Angeles, April 29.

George Putnam, KTTV news commentator, had a second slander suit slapped on him in Superior Court as a result of a broadcast last Jan. 24, which previously brought similar action asking $2,000,000.

Noah Dietrich, formerly associated with Howard Hughes and now an indie business consultant, filed complaint, naming also as defendants Bruce Allen, San Jose (Cal.) assemblyman, and Putnam's two sponsors, Miles Laboratories and Bond Clothing Store. Dietrich charged that Putnam quoted Allen to the effect that he, with attorney James J. Arditto, who filed first suit, and attorney Frank Waters were "influence peddlers" in connection with some oil leases.

Damages of $500,000 are asked of Putnam, Allen, Miles and Bond, and another $500,000 from Allen alone. Earlier suit filed by Arditto demanded $1,000,000 from Putnam and $500,000 each from Allen and the two sponsors.

Q-Tv means prompter precision prompting!

the Q-Tv system of positive, interlocking Selsyn control insures absolute and continuous synchronization of all units . . .

absolutely silent designed to fit all cameras vu in-lens mirror system available presently used on all networks

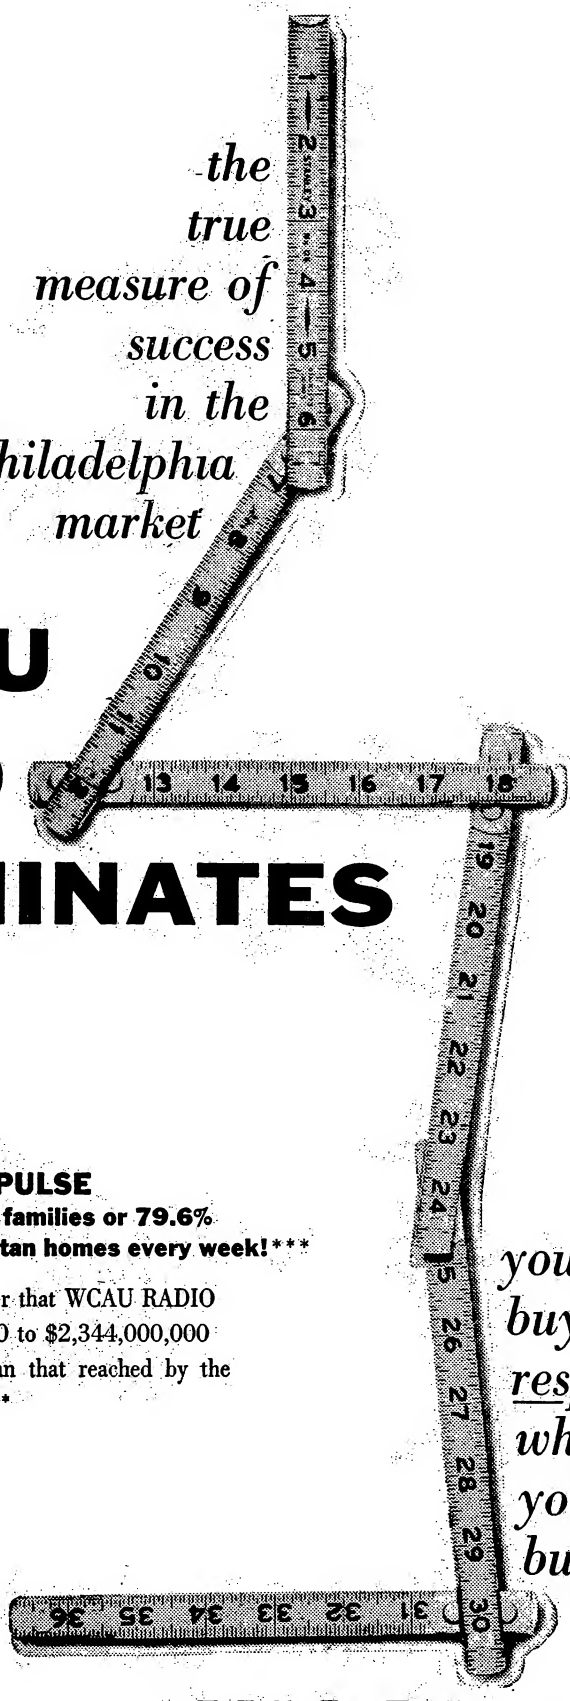
no union problems
(no service has an exclusive on any station)

precision prompting...
tailored to fit your budget . . .

Q-Tv

630 9th avenue, n.y.c. ju 6-6466
5 w. hubbard, chicago mo 4-6646
810 n. highland, hollywood ho 7-9262



the true measure of success in the Philadelphia market

WCAU RADIO DOMINATES

1ST IN NIELSEN*
1ST IN PULSE
1ST IN CUMULATIVE PULSE*
reaching 941,400 different families or 79.6% of all Philadelphia Metropolitan homes every week!

It means in terms of buying power that WCAU RADIO families make up a $345,000,000 to $2,344,000,000 RICHER MARKET annually than that reached by the other 5 Philadelphia stations!***

you buy responsiveness when you buy

WCAU RADIO

Represented nationally by CBS Radio Spot Sales

* Nielsen, Feb.—March '58
 Pulse of Philadelphia, Jan.—Feb. 1958
 Cumulative Pulse, Dec. 1957
* Sales Management, May 10—1957 Buying Income per Family

CBS Radio's 1-Shot in the Arm

Those AM Specials Not Only Good Prestige But Smart in the Biz Columns

The boom on one-shots in network radio (counterpart to tv's spectaculars) appears to be paying off in both prestige and potential biz based on CBS Radio's recent behavior pattern.

Both on a commercial and sustaining level, CBS Radio has recently come up with newsworthy one-shots which some observers predict may be not only a fresh programming trend but decidedly good biz tactics.

Upcoming in this sphere is next Sunday's (4) Masland Radio Color Roundup, a two-hour stanza in choice periods (6 to 8 p. m.) with such names as Ralph Bellamy, Edgar Bergen, Eydie Gorme, Andy Griffith and Andy Williams, plus the Ray Charles vocal group and a large musical group guided by David Rose. Dee Engelbach, producer of the former NBC Radio Tallulah Bankhead "Big Show" several semesters ago, will coordinate this stanza live before a specially-invited studio audience.

Most arresting of the recent one-shotters on CBS Radio have been Harvard College's "Case for the College," a commercial that NBC rebroadcast as a sustainer last night (Tues.); the Ray Robinson-Carmen Basilio championship fight, bankrolled by the Mennen Co. and Miles Laboratories; the National Education Assn.'s program on April 12 to acquaint school teachers with the new Treasury Dept. rulings anent special deductions by classroom instructors, and other similar attractions.

Arthur Hull Hayes, CBS Radio prexy, cites recent one-shot beats as further enhancing the programming structure of the network, as for example, the intercontinental conversation between U. S. and USSR educators and the three-way microphonie "summit meet" with Adlai Stevenson, Pierre Mendes-France and Hugh Gaitskell, talking from U. S., France and England, respectively.

Equally newsworthy was the recent Public Affairs Dept.'s documentary, "Who Killed Michael Farmer?" with narration by Ed Murrow. It won sufficient praise across the continent to merit a rebroadcast today (Wed.) from 8 to 9 p.m.

Hayes points out, however, that the barrage of one-shots hasn't changed CBS Radio's basic programming and selling practices. The network, he said, was doing splendidly with single client-sponsored programs. "About 40% of our network time is sold on this basis," he said.

To disprove the old charge that "you can't get on radio anymore" the onetime big names, Hayes cites the regular CBS Radio appearances of Bing Crosby, Jack Benny, Ed Murrow, Bob Trout, Amos 'n' Andy, Arthur Godfrey, Robert Q. Lewis, Rosemary Clooney, Bette Davis, Peter Lind Hayes and others. Also on the posh programming agenda next season are the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts and the Philharmonic Concerts.

Italo Equal Time

Continued from page 47

with the Christian Democrats copping most space, followed by other parties in order of importance, using house seats as guide. In answer to communist criticism of the move, Zoli, among other things, noted that leftwing parties needed much less radio exposure here than others, as Italy was already jammed with propaganda broadcasts from at least eight Red radio stations located outside the country's borders.

Storm of protest aroused by the announcement also came from many other non-Red parties in Italy, in addition to those groups principally affected among Socialist and Communist Parties here.

Foreign TV Followups

Continued from page 55

Echoes" in which muted pianos supplied a bong effect below the melody line. The skillful musicianship of these two won a grand ovation and made for good home viewing.

Another highlight was the first tv appearance of the 40-strong London Jewish Male Choir conducted by Emanuel Fisher. All the singers are amateurs and perform for charitable causes. They did three numbers, a traditional Yiddish song and a prayer song for which they donned skull caps. The closing number, "When the Messiah Comes," was full of exciting rhythms and rich harmony.

Miss Zetterling, supported by Dennis Price and Irene Handl, did their best to overcome a poor script in a domestic comedy sketch about sacking the domestic help. From Spain came Marina De Gabarain, opera singer who interpreted several Spanish songs in fine style. For one she was accompanied by 17-year-old guitarist John Williams who also had a solo spot in the show. One of the big spots in the recent longrunning London revue, "For Amusement Only," was Jimmy Thompson's takeoff on Liberace, and a repeat airing had a topical quality. Bary.

San Antonio—Don French will return to the disk jockey lineup of KTSA here this week after a stint with KLIF, Dallas. In turn, Doug China goes from here to Dallas.

TRIPLE SPOTTING

BISCAYNE TELEVISION CORPORATION
North Bay Causeway
Miami, Florida
PLaza 1-6692

WCKT — Channel 7
316 KW — 1000' Antenna
WCKR — 610 KC
5000 W — Day and Night

P.O. Box M, Little River Station
Miami 38, Florida

In recent weeks, WCKT has received some rather strange requests from agencies and advertisers.

We have been asked to sign affidavits to the effect that announcements on WCKT have not been triple-spotted.

WCKT NEVER DID TRIPLE-SPOT! WCKT DOES NOT TRIPLE-SPOT NOW!

We have long condemned this practice. We have told all who would listen that triple-spotting was not "Good Advertising".

WCKT hates to say, "We told you so!". But, this campaign against triple-spotting by agencies and advertisers comes as no surprise to us!

JOT THIS DOWN IN YOUR RATING BOOK!

BETWEEN EACH PROGRAM -- EITHER NETWORK OR LOCAL -- WCKT SCHEDULES ONLY TWO DIFFERENT COMMERCIAL SPOTS ...

NOT THREE!

Sincerely yours,
BISCAYNE TELEVISION CORP.
Miles Tramell
Miles Tramell, President

P.S. If that rating book happens to be ARB, make a note of this, also:

WCKT's SHARE OF AUDIENCE FROM 6 P.M. to MIDNIGHT SUNDAY through SATURDAY INCREASED BY 35.4% FROM JANUARY, 1957 to JANUARY, 1958!

N.T.

TV 7 WCKT NBC

Miami, Florida

FCC Greenlights NTI's Buy in K.C.

Los Angeles, April 29.

National Theatres has received the go-signal from the Federal Communications Commission for purchase of Kansas City (Mo.) stations WDAF-AM and WDAF-TV by National Television Investments Inc., an NT wholly-owned subsidiary.

Acquired last December at a cost of $7,600,000 from Kansas City Star Co., the purchase is first major move in NT's program of diversification, according to NT prexy Elmer C. Rhoden.

Charles L. Glett, prexy of NTI, goes to K.C. shortly to consummate transfer of property. Stations will continue to operate with present personnel and no changes or replacements are planned, Glett says.

Herb O. Anderson Gets Deejaying Slot for WMCA

Changes in New York radio have been coming fast and furiously of late. Latest of them among the indies was the inking late last week of Herb Oscar Anderson by WMCA.

Anderson, who was axed by WABC Radio some weeks ago and then lost his job with ABC Radio when the network folded most of its live musical programming, was hired by the Nathan Straus-owned station to do a daily deejay stanza from 4 to 7 p.m.

Anderson began Monday (28), four days after a deal was closed with WMCA. Ernie Stone, who held the 4 to 7 anchorage previously, moved from 1 to 4 every afternoon. Latter spot was formerly held by a variety of staff announcers.

Station said there will be further program changes after 7 p.m., but they will not be made for at least a few more days.

RAI-TV 2d Channel

Continued from page 47

action towards a decision potentially unfavorable to the current RAI-TV monopoly (which if upheld has several more years to run).

Another case, involving a second commercial group headquartered in Rome and labeled "Tempo-TV," is currently before the courts. Judiciary just this week voted itself unable to judge the case, in which "Tempo-TV" sued RAI-TV for monopolistic practices and asked to be allowed to start a second channel, deferring the matter to the Council of State. Results of this sceond case are being awaited with great interest here, also because of the giant interests involved in the "free" group, which is headed by Renato Angiolillo, publisher of Il Tempo, a top Rome daily.

Third plan for a second channel was recently ascribed to Naples' ex-mayor Achille Lauro, who wanted to open a new video outlet in the southern city, but this one is felt least close to fruition.

Dept. Store Coin

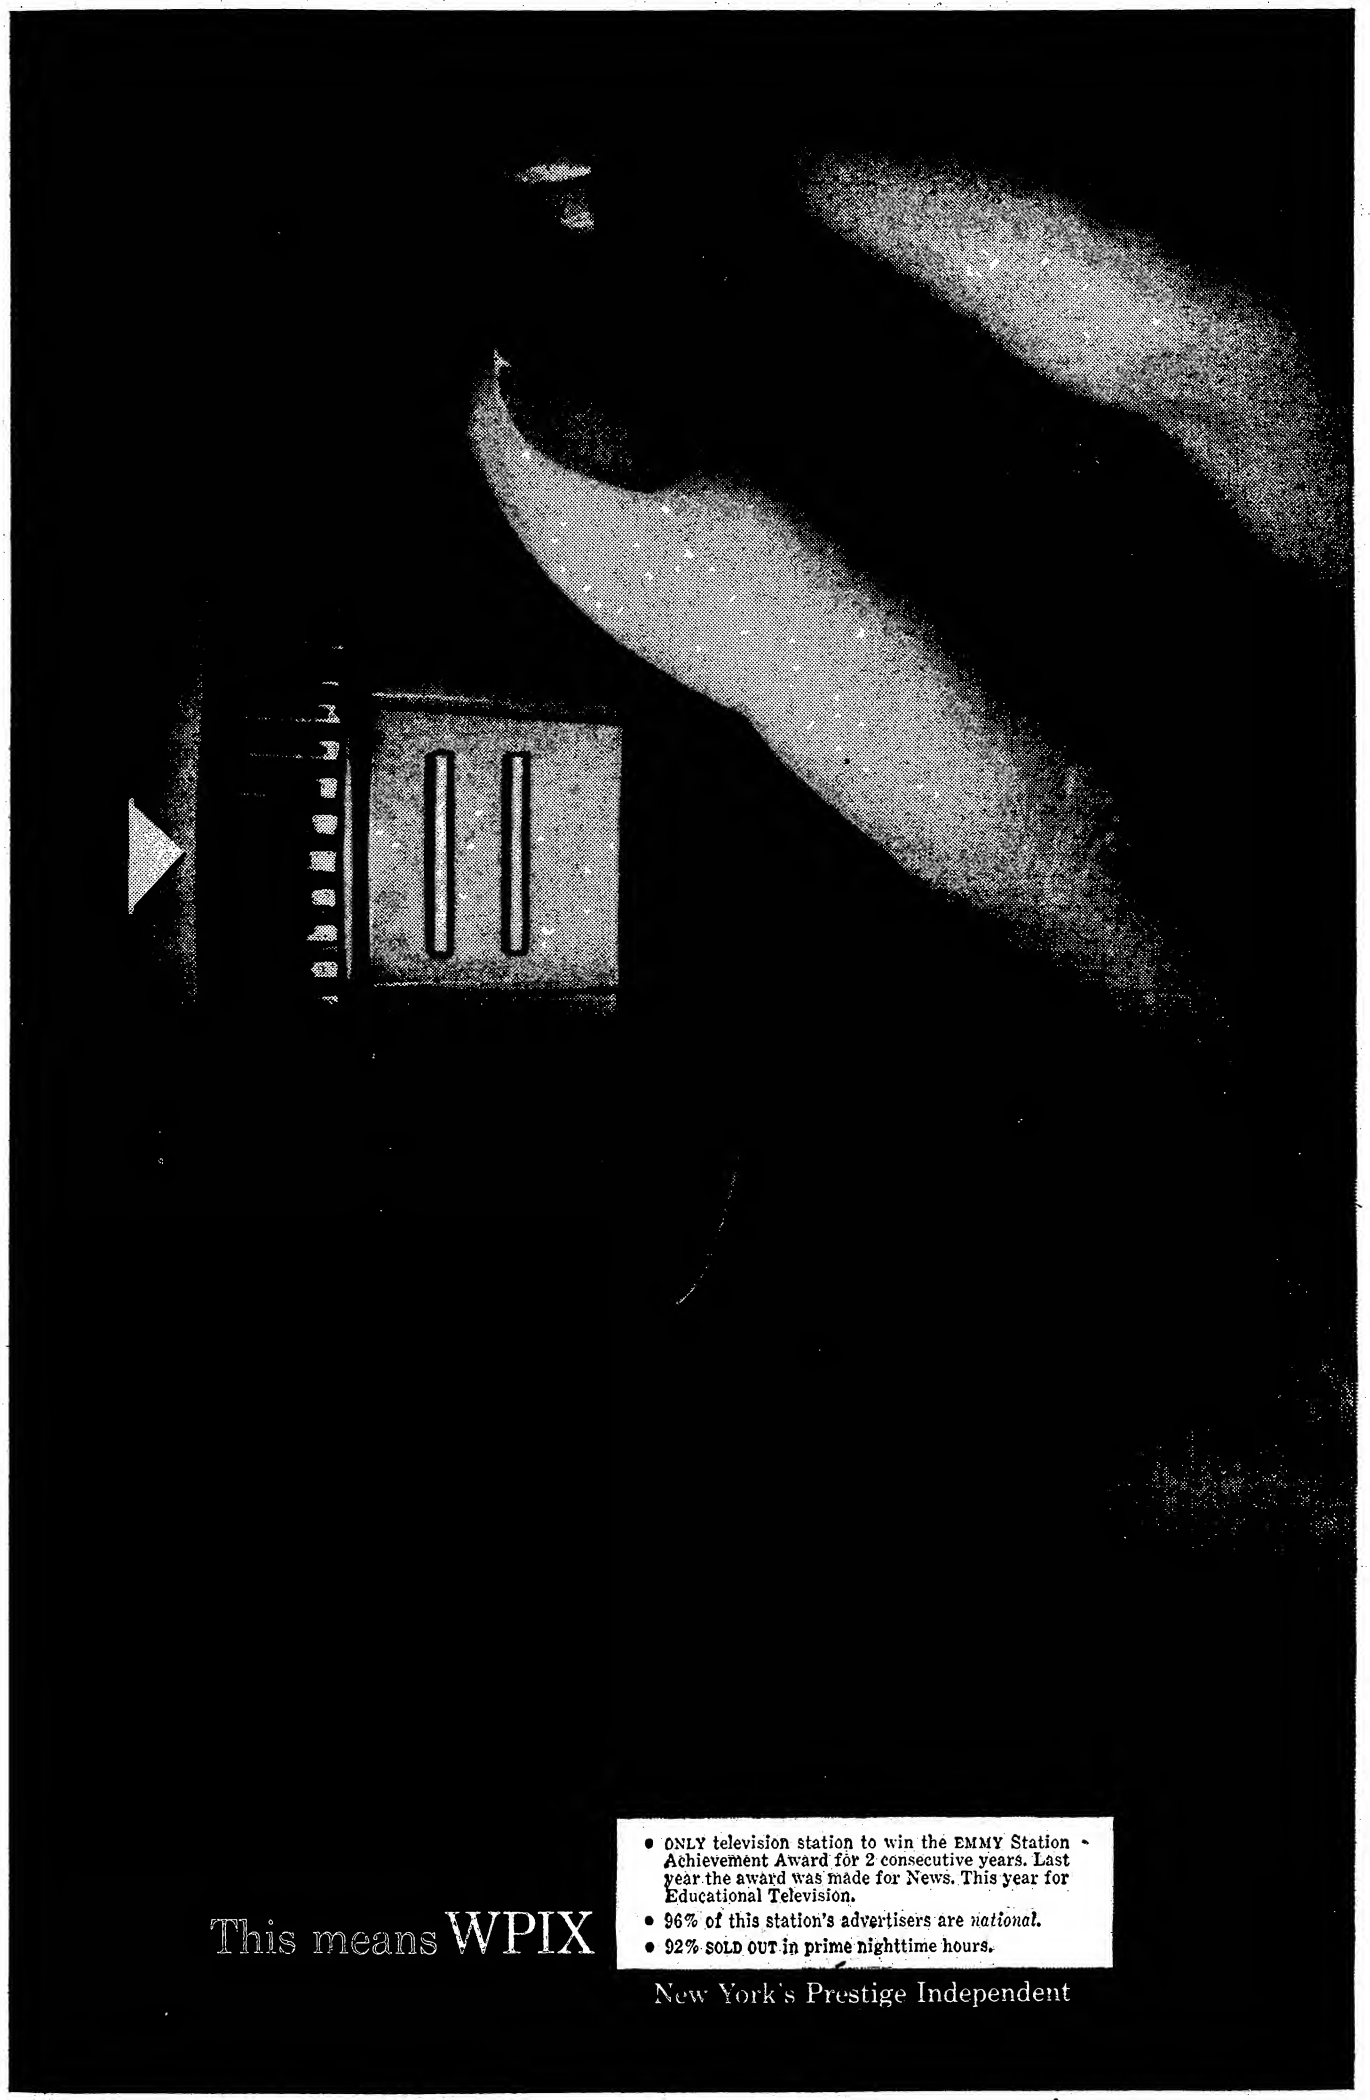
Continued from page 37

cause "they can't compete in newspaper linage but can saturate in tv. We see signs that resistance is cracking everywhere in our area."

Women from Nashville and Chattanooga markets both indicated the same trend, saying one of the biggest snags is to get past store ad departments to department heads controlling budgets.

Reno rep said KOLO-TV sold the idea of combining department store promotion on single item with other media, thus slipped into department store field by back door. One Reno store, she said, has swung "almost exclusively" toward radio-tv.

Discussion followed questions about whether tv today is pricing itself out of the field, building up resistance now that novelty's worn off. Consensus was that tv sales are easier to make today than they were four or five years ago.



This means WPIX
• ONLY television station to win the EMMY Station Achievement Award for 2 consecutive years. Last year the award was made for News. This year for Educational Television.
• 96% of this station's advertisers are national.
• 92% SOLD OUT in prime nighttime hours.
New York's Prestige Independent

$1,725,000 Break-Even Point

Continued from page 27

This applies to virtually any series, except a very cheap, or a very expensive series." Differences in quality (and costs) stem from the above-the-line items, principally the star, varying from "a few hundred dollars to $5,000 or more"; the producer, varying from $500 to $3,000; the director, varying from $750 to $2,000, and the script, ranging from $1,500 to $3,500.

Gordon broke down actual costs on the $27,625 show as follows:

1. Story, script & royalty	$2,850
2. Producer	1,000
3. Director	1,000
4. Star	2,000
5. Cast
6. Bits & extras	2,000
Over - the - Line Costs		$8,850
7. Production office; Casting	885
8. Director's Assts.	416
9. Camera	1,100
10. Art Dept.	375
11. Wardrobe	205
12. Makeup	192
13. Props	1,405
14. Electrical	1,590
15. Sound Crew	520
16. Set Operations	607
17. Process
18. Film Editing	1,900
19. Location expense	475
20. Stills	100
21. Set construction	1,600
22. Transportation	343
23. Music	200
24. Stage Rentals	1,450
25. Projection	60
26. Tests
27. Sound & Sound Dailies	1,720
28. Composite & master prints	384
29. Opticals—photo effects, etc.	400
30. Stock shots—process plates	50
31. Titles—trailer	150
32. Misc. film expense
33. Scoring & dubbing	872
34. Payroll taxes & benefits	550
35. Insurance	450
36. Misc. expense	126
37. Publicity	200
38. Legal	150
39. Travel	250
40. Communications	50
Under - the - costs		$18,775
Total Cost		$27,625

Consequence is that under the present cost situation, firstrun sales of $2,000,000 would bring a gross profit of $250,000 or about $175,000 after costs of sales and distribution, or 8% of total sales before taxes. "But," said Gordon, "such grosses are rare, indeed, and require two things: (1) almost complete saturation of sales, and (2) top prices in all markets."

Stanton's Keynote

Continued from page 25

forgetting that without devotion to this basic element of our charter, we can become just another industry."

3.) "We must broaden our concept of what constitutes an adequate news service. By this, I do not mean adequate in quantity alone. I mean a program service fresh, imaginative provocative and arresting in quality."

4.) "We must join the rest of the press in the fight for the right to get information, and without harassment, to report it. For this is the raw material from which sound public opinion is formed in a democracy."

Electronics' ICBM Day & Date

It is nothing short of providential, said Stanton, that electronic journalism came of age on the eve of the ICBM age. "Because the sources of the evidence needed by the people to make intelligent decisions are worldwide, and because access to personalities and events of world importance is physically and economically impossible to individual stations, a very great share of the reporting job must be done by the networks. Moreover, the interest in world events created by people hearing the voices of reporters from where the news originates has proved a powerful factor in focusing increased attention to national and international news. This is one of the significant contributions that a network makes to broadcast journalism and the public."

But an equal responsibility rests with the individual station to stimulate national action, Stanton added. "The ultimate source of authority in America is not in Washington but in the thousands of communities that are represented there . . . one way to produce irresponsible action in Washington would be to cut off the constant flow of intelligent, considered, expressed opinion from the rest of America. As this unprecedented challenge confronts the industry—a challange that unmistakably involves our national survival—we must take realistic stock of ourselves and see if we are equal to it."

Omaha KMTV Windfall In Dept. Store Campaign To Offset Suburban Buying

Omaha, April 29.

Biggest tv contract in this city's history was signed by J. L. Brandeis Co., Nebraska's major department store, with KMTV. It calls for 35 one-minute live commercials weekly, plus an ad-merchandising campaign based on immediate telephone and mail order sales.

Object of the campaign is to counteract increasing trend by consumers to shop at suburban department stores. KMTV's merchandising department has distributed tv mail order brochures to its viewers with a "Home Viewers Number" attached to each brochure.

During the live commercial, various items are displayed, each with a number. Viewer, wishing to order, may call a displayed number or use the return mail order blank. As part of the merchandising campaign, a "Home Viewers Number" is flashed on the screen during the commercial and if the viewer has the number shown, he wins the item on display at the time.

Brandeis management reports definite increase in store traffic and more rapid disposal of tv-displayed goods as result of tv campaign.

Brandeis' package was placed by Bozell & Jacobs ad agency.

Ampex Scorecard

Continued from page 24

heavily on a local level, for prerecording of commercials, doing interviews on tape with schedule-troubled visiting VIP's, recording parades and special events and then editing them down, etc. In fact, to demonstrate its new splicing unit, Ampex used tape sent in by all the stations using the units, and spliced them together for a combined demonstration of editing ease and local use of tape.

One station, WJBK-TV in Detroit, is currently negotiating with the Detroit Tigers to tape the baseball games during the afternoon and play them back late at night, in lieu of feature films.

Varicose Veins

Continued from page 27

even if all pix were made available is nowhere near the rate of consumption, and the myriad problems that the studios have with unions and guilds re release on post-48's are still unsolved. "Tremendous pressure has been brought upon the producers not to release any product beyond the 1948 cutoff, and while ultimately it is more than likely that many of these pictures will be made available, it is not likely to happen for some time.

"The shortsighted buyer will see only that he has on the horizon right now the Paramount library. Although I do not know what the policy of the distributing organization offering these films will be, it still does not change the fact that feature films as a source of fresh programming are definitely on the decline, not from audience interest but from the problem of supply.

"If Hollywood were to release to tv every film produced from 1948 through to 1957, an event not likely to take place, this would augment the current supply by a total of about 2,381 feature films. If the same rate of consumption that has taken place on films already made available to tv was to continue, these additional films would be consumed in short order."

Unger pointed out, too, if the guilds are cut in on the post-'48's, under the guilds' proposed participation, it would give the pix a base expense to the producer of from $15,000 to $75,000 a film, unlike the pre-'48's, when the producer didn't have to give the guilds a cent.

Under such circumstances, the post-'48's would have to be used on closs A time, to recoup the coin spent on such product, he opined.

Fellows Praises FCC

Continued from page 25

industry, or by both—we should resist any restraints which will make it impossible for Government executives who perform even now under oath to become acquainted with the new developments and the practical operating problems of the industries they regulate."

"As an industry," Fellows further commented, "we should have no objection to honest examination of our performance. However, I think it should be pointed out that our satellites aren't the only objects that are in orbit. The broadcasters are in orbit all around Washington these days, engaged at the moment of this meeting in at least three different industry examinations.

"Broadcasting lives where the family lives. All of the investigations one could conceive, however motivated, can be weighed only against the final product seen and heard by this family. All of the dollars spent, all of the energy expended, all of the heartache and tears and triumphs reduce themselves in time to that picture on a tube or sound on the air.

"This is where our future exists. None has ever been able to define in precise terms the true meaning of the 'public interest.' Its meaning is hidden in the homes of this nation, and there you will find the answer to the performance of the American system of broadcasting."

Frieda Hennock

Continued from page 24

out of this secrecy situation?" she asked. Later on, following a talk on his WSLS-FM operation in Roanoke, Va., Horace Fitzpatrick stated that there were 157,000 FM receivers in his area. Miss Hennock asked him how he arrived at the figure. "I don't know," Fitzpatrick said, "my promotion manager gave it to me, and he wouldn't tell me how he got it."

NAB v.p. John F. Meagher, chairing the session, told Miss Hennock that there's a good chance that figures will soon be available. He said that the Electronics Industry Assn. will meet in Washington next week to reconsider its practice of refusing to reveal FM sales and circulation.

CBS-TV's Summer 'Sing Along' Hour

"Sing Along" has been slotted as an hourlong CBS-TV summer replacement show. The community sing segment, being produced by Lee Cooley for the web, goes into the Wednesday night 7:30 to 8:30 period effective June 18. "Leave It to Beaver" reruns will air at 8:30 (instead of their regular 8 o'clock time) as the replacement for "The Big Record."

"Sing Along" will star Jim Lowe, WCBS, N.Y., deejay and recording artist ("The Green Door") as emcee, with Florence Henderson and Tina Robin and the Harry Sosnik orch. Kinnie on a half-hour version of the program was done a couple of months back, with the decision to slot it as an hour entry, Cooley & Co. will do a new hourlong audition kinnie soon.

With "Sing Along" going into Wednesdays, the web is taking its "Boing Boing!" show, which was originally scheduled for that time period, and moving it into Friday nights at 7:30, starting May 23. The UPA cartoon reruns series, which ran part of last season on Sunday afternoons, will replace "Dick & the Duchess" reruns currently in that spot.

GF'S NEW ANN SOTHERN SHOW FOR 'DEC. BRIDE'

General Foods has inked new fare, "The Ann Sothern Show," for summer airing. The William Morris telefilm package is slated for Monday nights at 9:30 over CBS-TV in the time period currently occupied by GF's "December Bride."

The Desilu production was set via Benton & Bowles. Miss Sothern starred in "Private Secretary" tv series.

WHLI "THE VOICE OF LONG ISLAND"

10,000 POWERFUL WATTS

TO DELIVER THE GREATER LONG ISLAND MARKET

(NASSAU - SUFFOLK)

WHLI's GREATER LONG ISLAND COVERAGE . . .

	NASSAU	SUFFOLK	TOTAL
POPULATION	1,200,000	525,000	1,725,000
NET INCOME	$2,928,340,000	$755,604,000	$3,683,944,000
PER FAMILY	$8,503	$5,698
RETAIL SALES	1,534,786,000	564,961,000	2,099,747,000
FOOD STORE SALES.	403,423,000	152,997,000	556,420,000
AUTO STORE SALES.	252,922,000	93,225,000	346,147,000

WHLI Has the Largest Daytime Audience in the Major Long Island Market! (Pulse)

*The 2nd Largest Market in New York!
Now Reaches 5,500,000 people.
Gives you tremendous, important, "Big Money" Market Coverage
*Amazingly low, low, cost-per-thousand.

WITHIN WHLI'S COVERAGE AREA

POPULATION	5,477,000
NET INCOME	$11,758,859,000
RETAIL SALES	6,125,535,000

10,000 WATTS

WHLI AM 1100 FM 98.3

HEMPSTEAD LONG ISLAND, N. Y.

Represented by Gill-Perna

Paul Godofsky, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

FREE

24 PAGE DETAILED REPORT ON NEGRO AND SPANISH-PUERTO RICAN MARKETS IN NEW YORK

Station WWRL
Woodside 77,
New York City

HOWARD E. STARK

BROKER AND FINANCIAL CONSULTANT
RADIO AND TELEVISION STATIONS

50 EAST 58TH STREET
NEW YORK 22, N.Y. ELDORADO 5-0405

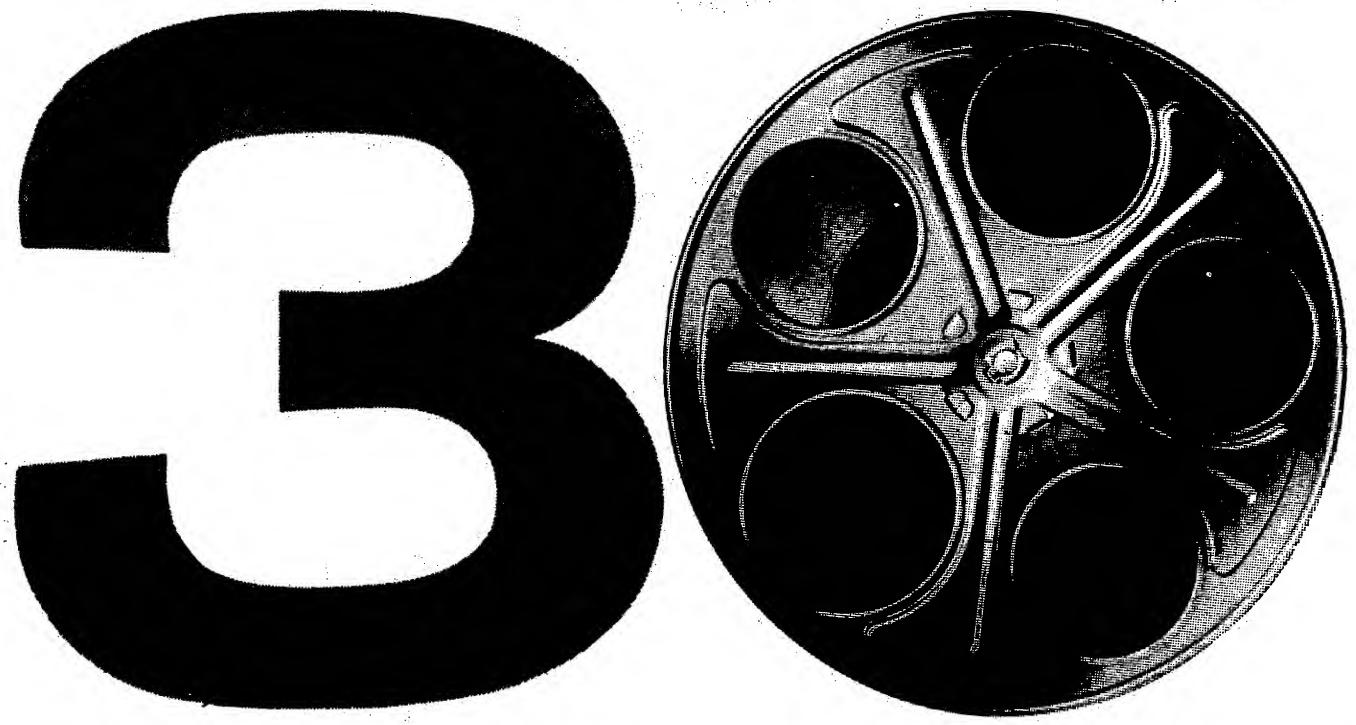
ALL INQUIRIES CONFIDENTIAL

Mgt. William Morris Agency

LARGE FUNNY BRAIN FOR RENT

[Body, slightly used, goes with it.] [Fingers and typewriter attached.]
If your "comedy skits" are slippin' And your Trendex rate is showin' Try "Mate," the new comedy tailer, Whose all the stars are goin'.

Lee Mate 1789 N. Orchid Hollywood 28, Calif. HO. 4-4191



30 YEARS OF MOTION PICTURE MUSIC

American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers now presents a special issue of the ASCAP Program Guide entitled "30 Years of Motion Picture Music." The Society's membership includes those men and women who have contributed the big Hollywood hit tunes which were presented to the public from 1928-1958. The listing of recordings includes not only the song titles with their composers, authors and publishers, but also the names of the performing artists and the available recordings. Radio and television program men will find this booklet a tremendous source of programming material.

ASCAP

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF COMPOSERS, AUTHORS AND PUBLISHERS

575 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK 22, NEW YORK

Videotape Cues Issue

Continued from page 25

customary fee clauses, but instead features a base salary plus guaranteed a form form of overtime payments. AFTRA is demanding that an announcer doing a pre-recorded program during his "stretch" get additional payments for it, while Sholis is insisting that this be credited toward the overtime period. He's willing to yield on additional payments for commercials involving multiple use, but feels that a one-time use of a pre-recorded tape doesn't warrant additional fees.

"AFTRA wants to retain its annual guaranteed wage but also collect fees for multiple use of videotape," Sholis said. "In other words, it wants to have its cake and eat it too."

Jurisdiction

On the IBEW front, Sholis is currently in the midst of negotiations on a new contract, and hasn't received specific demands on tape yet. But he's already resolved to grant the union jurisdiction over the equipment itself but not "over any piece of tape we get, whether its made by Mexican wetbacks or by NABET in New York." Nor will Sholis grant jurisdiction over future tape developments such as editing and portable units, which he feels program staffers can handle.

Sholis is using the videotape recorder, he said, primarily to pre-record much of his weekend live schedule and cut down weekend overtime payments. He does the recording on Thursday nights, when the studios are free while the station carries its network feed. He's also using it to pre-record commercials Friday afternoon for use that night, when his live studio is ordinarily jammed.

Use of such new developments as tape and remote - controlled transmitters, all translating into the job security problem in union-management relations, will make negotiations increasingly severe over the next five to six years, James Hulbert of the NAB labor staff told the meeting. Number of radio changes such as simplified control boards, remote transmitters and tape have already occurred, and "television is on the threshold of major technical improvements." Problems accompanying these changes are rearrangement of technical assignments or permanent layoffs, and while the unions haven't directly opposed the introduction of improvements, they've plumped for contract clauses which would make it difficult for these changes to be brought about, Hulbert said.

'Balance of Power'

He proposed several rules for management in introducing the new equipment, all of which called for slow and reasoned explanations with personnel of the necessity and inevitability of the new equipment and the methods of operation it will induce and an admonishment to move slowly and give personnel time to accept the change.

Chuck Tower, NAB labor v.p., told the meeting that an "almost imperceptible, but nonetheless real, shift in the balance of power" in labor-management relations in broadcasting has occurred during the past couple of years. He said that in the past, it had been generally acceeded that labor held the balance of power, but that the situation is reversing itself because some broadcasters have been willing to take a firm stand and have successfully stayed on the air and resisted strike action by the various broadcast unions.

Hauser Eyes USSR

Mutual's food nutritionist broadcaster Gaylord Hauser has joined the trek to Moscow.

Hauser, who has a five-minute stripped MBS morning show, currently is attending the Brussels World's Fair in Belgium. He has asked for a Soviet visa to visit Russia at the end of May seeking to tape-record the diets of the Russians.

Keeping Up With Paar & Winchell

The Jack Paar-Walter Winchell krieg is still at the name-calling stage, but currently not on the airlanes.

Winchell wasn't satisfied with Paar's retraction of Elsa Maxwell's charge that the columnist hadn't voted and hasn't made up his mind whether he would sue Paar's sponsors.

Julian Rosenthal, one of Winchell's attorneys, said Winchell was more concerned about what Miss Maxwell's statements could do to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund of which he is secretary-treasurer. Winchell said he had received a number of letters from listeners who heard Miss Maxwell and said they wouldn't contribute to the Cancer Fund.

As the feud grew hotter, the N.Y. Post began playing up the story, giving it Page 1 treatment. When Paar walked on the stage last Wednesday (23) he got a big hand from the studio audience. With an obvious reference to Winchell, he cracked: "That'll show him." There's been no air reference to Winchell since.

Meanwhile, Winchell has been sniping at Paar in his column. Monday (28), for example, Winchell labelled the NBC-TV performer an "ingrate in action" and attributed "turnabout" statements to Paar in connection with Dody Goodman's appearances on the "Tonight" show. Winchell wrapped up his rap with the crack: "It looks like they will soon change the 'Tonight' show title to "The Tuneout Show.'"

Philly's WCAU Off On A 'Space' Seminar As Hypo to Highschoolers

Philadelphia, April 29.

In answer to a general demand for info on satellites and space travel, and to further hypo interest on the part of high school students, WCAU held what it considers a "first" in cooperation between broadcast media and educational institutions to further "Space" interests. Station held an elaborate program at its City Line studios which drew a crowd of 200 reps of 25 schools in area.

Original plans called for a combination of radio-tv operations, involving WCAU's "Operation Outer Space" and a closed-circuit telecast of the CBS-TV network stanza "Ceiling Unlimited." Due to the CBS technicians' strike, the latter portion of the seminar was cancelled. Instead the WCAU stations presented a full-hour program under the direction of educational director Margaret Mary Kearney.

Jim Eadline, producer-scripter of "Operation Outer Space," gave explanation of program, augmented by tape recordings. This was followed by a detailed explanation of how a closed-circuit telecast is made, by George Lewis, assistant director of engineering.

Houston—The Gulf Oil Corp. and Anheuser-Busch will sponsor the home and road games of the Houston Buffs of the Texas League on KXYZ. Guy Savage will be play-by-play announcer while Gus Mancuso, former ballplayer, will be color sportscaster.

End of an Era

Resignation of Virginia Sprague last week from J. Walter Thompson agency has some significant overtones. For many years, dating back to the JWT-produced "Kraft Music Hall" days, Miss Sprague was a talent and script buyer for the agency. Miss Sprague was always around because JWT was in the business of producing shows.

With her resignation, however, JWT writes "finis" to its longtime status as an active producing unit—going the way of all other agencies now that "Kraft TV Theatre" has been parcelled out to David Susskind.

After a vacation, Miss Sprague will announce a new affiliation.

'Rack 'Em Up and Go Fishing'

Los Angeles, April 29.

Automation in radio programming is becoming big business, with no less than five equipment manufacturers at the NAB convention demonstrating automatic programming devices which will furnish from 12 hours up of unattended, untouched-by-human-hands (or voice) station programs. One unit can go for an entire week.

Each of the units combines three essential features, a tape rack on which commercials, station breaks and chatter and record introductions are pre-recorded; a multiple-selector record rack holding up to 200 disks, and an automatic switching device which after pre-setting automatically switches from chatter tape to disk, back to commercial, back to chatter, back to disk, etc. Stations can pre-set any sequence among commercials, intros and disks.

Units sell at $2,400 up, depending on the manufacturer, accessories, a long disk show in in a fraction of the airtime needed, select and rack up the disks to be played, set the control and go fishing. Units sell at $2,400 up, depending o nthe manufacturer, accessories, number of tape racks, size of record selector, etc.

Ampex first developed the unit and showed it at last year's NAB session in Chicago. Other manufacturers selling the equipment this year include RCA, Gates Radio and Schafer Custom Engineering, a remote-control manufacturer in radio for the first time. Paul Schafer, prez of company, said a Texas station about to install the unit plans a full-week's automated programming as a kickoff stunt, and will use 200 LP recordings instead of the customary 45 rpm disks. Schafer's outfit is also offering an automatic logging device which can be hooked into the automatic programmer. Muzak Corp. is offering an all-tape unit that will program eight hours a day unattended.

MBS' Tough Spot

Continued from page 24

tual and the new management. Of the web's 460 affiliates, only about 70 showed up for the meeting, hardly enough to make the MBS pleas for clearance cooperation meaningful. In view of the fact that the affiliates have never met the new Mutual management team, headed by Hammer and exec v.p. George Vogel, turnout was extremely disappointing.

Web also announced it intends to drop its eight-second chainbreak commercials in view of affiliate reluctance to clear for them. It will stick with one-minute and 30-second commercials, but will begin a rotation system under which one advertiser with a cross-the-board schedule will be spotted at different times each day, a device which the web claims will double the unduplicated weekly audience and hence halve the cost-per-thousand. Network said it had just signed two new advertisers, a softdrink and an auto company, to fat contracts under new rotating system.

'Allegiance to FCC'

Continued from page 25

lows came this comment: "I venture to say that had there not been a close liaison between industry and Government, the system of broadcasting we have today could not be so far advanced. And I venture to say that had not comsioners, historically, attended meetings of broadcasters, their knowledge of the industry and its problems would have been thus limited by their absence."

Fellows took the position that "if Government officials must travel to observe, to learn and in other respects discharge their official responsibilities, as I believe they must, then let Government pick up the tab and relieve industry of this responsibility. If 'fraternizing' is wrong and if the practice shows a tendency to increase, then let the Government call a halt to it by meeting on obligation which rests squarely within its own realm."

Roach's 9 Pilots

Continued from page 26

new approach in showcasing, incorporating four different vignettes in the one pilot, indicating the subject and treatment of the first four shows.

George Sanders stars in "The Fabulous Oliver Chantry" pilot, tagged as a comedy mystery.

In addition to the nine pilots now making the rounds, Roach is preparing another eight projects for the '58-'59 season. They include "Carnival," Ethel Merman starrer; "Cowboy Hall of Fame," hourlong anthology oater to be produced by Jerry Stagg; three projects on campus life, one being prepared by Clifford Goldsmith, another titled "Sorority Mother," the third an Ed James creation, "Sweet Sixteen"; another western; a police-action skein; and a naval cadet vehicle.

CBS-TV's 'CONCEPT' FOR EDUC'L STATIONS

CBS-TV is going into the business of feeding educational programming on a free basis to affiliates and educational stations, but on a more limited basis than its NBC-TV competition. Web is offering "Concept," the new one-a-month series of two-hour "idea" programs on modern problems, to affils and educational outlets.

"Concept" is being produced by META on WCBS-TV, the web's N.Y. flagship. Network is offering the show free, first to affiliates, and secondarily, where affiliates turn it down, to educational stations in those areas. First of the "Concept" shows, on the topic of freedom, is scheduled for next Sunday (4), from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Accepting stations will get the show on a live feed.

WE'RE NOT BLOWING OUR OWN HORN BUT..

The Pulse Audience Composition Studies

• Syndicated Film Comedy Shows

AMONG CHILDREN

1. Laurel and Hardy (Governor)..95
2. Meet Corliss Archer (Ziv)....47
3. My Hero (Official)....35
4. Stu Erwin Show (Official)....32
5. [illegible]....31
6. [illegible]....21
7. [illegible]....20
8. Ray Milland Show (MCA)....19
9. Stu Erwin Show (Official)....16
10. Life With Elizabeth (Guild)....15

KIDS LIKE US

AMONG WOMEN

1. My Little Margie (Official)....88
2. My Hero (Official)....[illegible]
3. Stu Erwin Show (Official)....[illegible]
4. Ray Milland Show (MCA)....[illegible]
5. [illegible]....[illegible]
6. Meet Corliss Archer (Ziv)....81
7. Andy (CBS)....79
8. Meet Corliss Archer (Ziv)....76
9. Laurel and Hardy (Governor)..28

WOMEN LIKE US

AMONG MEN

JULY RATINGS

1. Amos 'n' Andy (CBS)....3.5
2. Ray Milland Show (MCA)....3.3
3. Laurel and Hardy (Governor) 4.3
4. My Hero (Official)....2.5
5. Life With Elizabeth (Guild)....2.4
6. Meet Corliss Archer (Ziv)....2.4

MEN LIKE US

EVERYBODY LIKES US

ORDER NOW!

GOVERNOR TELEVISION ATTRACTIONS, INC.

151 West 54th Street, New York [illegible]

ARTHUR KERMAN, [illegible]

Please see us at

SUITE 2331 BILTMORE HOTEL

Yes, we film everywhere

including

TIMBUCTU

•

ODYSSEY PRODUCTIONS, INC.

•

High Adventure

with

Lowell Thomas

appearing on CBS network

•

New York Office:

439 Madison Avenue

DIRECTORS:
PRINCE LITTLER, C.B.E., CHAIRMAN.
VAL. PARNELL, MANAGING DIRECTOR.
DAVID SIMPSON.
T. FLEMING BIRCH, F.C.A.
STEWART CRUIKSHANK.
CHARLES GULLIVER.
EMILE LITTLER.
S. H. NEWSOME.

Moss' Empires Ltd.

Registered Office: 4, CHARLOTTE SQUARE, EDINBURGH.

Telegrams and Cables:
DEPICT, LESQUARE, LONDON.
Telephone: GERRARD 2274.

Please Reply to: Administrative Offices:
Cranbourn Mansions,
Cranbourn Street,
London, W.C.2.

YOUR REF. OUR REF.

FROM THE MANAGING DIRECTOR'S OFFICE

17th April, 1958.

Liberace,
London Palladium,
Argyll Street,
London, W.1.

My dear Lee,

I cannot let this engagement pass without writing to thank you for two marvellous weeks' business at the London Palladium on your first Variety appearance at this theatre, and also to congratulate you on the wonderful act you have presented.

Your superb showmanship is a delight to see and a lesson for all. It has done my heart good to see the way the audiences have acclaimed you at all performances.

Kindest regards and all good wishes.

Yours sincerely,
For MOSS' EMPIRES LIMITED,

Managing Director.

GABBE, LUTZ, MILLER & LOEB
New York — Hollywood
Personal Management

MCA

'Omnibus' Hotter 'n' Ever; NBC, CBS Romancing Saudek With Elite Deals

"Omnibus," for four years the subject of stepchild treatment from the networks, has now emerged as one of the more desirable properties making the Madison Ave. rounds, to the extent that there's a hot 'n' heavy tug of war going on between NBC-TV and CBS-TV for the Bob Saudek package.

As of the moment, Saudek Associates is confining its official negotiations to NBC, since that web has a first refusal on the show by virtue of its having carried it this season. But Saudek is also being wooed by CBS, and he's doing anything but turning a deaf ear to the Columbia proposals.

Problem at NBC is that "Wide Wide World," with which "Omnibus" alternated this season, is being cut to an hour, and Saudek is reluctant to abandon the 90-minute format on "Omnibus" merely to maintain the "WWW" match. Currently in discussion is a proposal to split the 26-week package into 16 one-hour shows and 10 90-minute "specials," but there's been no agreement reached on that.

CBS is proposing that "Omnibus" take over the 5 to 6:30 p.m. Sunday slot, currently filled by some "See It Now" shows, some "Great Challenge" specials and "The Last Word." Since CBS had been considering a 90-minute dramatic show, "Evergreen," for that time, "Omnibus" would fit the bill perfectly. Columbia's proposals to Saudek include a fat independent production deal, a guarantee on sponsorship, etc. It's a pretty good guess that the show's current sponsors, Aluminium Ltd. and Union Carbide, will be back next season.

Back of all the excitement for "Omnibus" is the change that's come over the show this season, the first year of divorcement from Ford Foundation underwriting, with Saudek & Co. having gone out on their own with the show on a private entrepreneurial basis. Format change included more dramatic efforts, more full shows devoted to a single topic or property

ABC-TV's 'Music Bingo' With Assoc. Prod. Coin

Once and for all, there is a network version of bingo set to go. On Friday, June 6, ABC-TV will launch a show produced by Harry Salter tentatively titled "Music Bingo," at 8:30 p.m. Stanza will be sponsored during the summer by Associated Products on a deal inked by Grey Advertising.

Program, which uses the five letters in the word "music" instead of "bingo" and incorporates a music guessing game, is being considered by ABC for daytime stripping next fall, when "Leave It To Beaver" gets the Friday night anchorage for Ralston-Purina and Miles Labs.

Graham Crusade's 400G AM-TV Spree

San Francisco, April 29.

Billy Graham Crusade which opened Sunday (27) in Frisco's 16,000-seat Cow Palace is spending more than $400,000 for tv and radio time, mostly with ABC, and is expected to provide the evangelist with more tv exposure than he's ever had.

Mrs. Betty Lowry, evangelist's chief flack, said: "It is the biggest television coverage ever, because there has been more time to arrange schedules and clear the channels than we had in New York."

Graham Crusade goes on the ABC net next Saturday (3) for one hour and the one-hour shots will continue for five successive Saturday nights live at 10 p.m., EDT. Shows will be rebroadcast on ABC for Coast audiences at 10 p.m., PDT.

Cost of these six hours, said Mrs. Lowry, is $360,000 overall, which the Graham "team" expects to be paid for by contributions from the tv audience. If the contributions pour in as the evangelist hopes, this could be a terrific boost for toll-tv.

In addition, Graham has budgeted $13,800 for a sixweek series of local, live half-hours, Mondays through Fridays at 10:30 p.m., over ABC's o&o, KGO-TV.

Graham also started daily, taped radio quarter-hours at 10 a.m. over KGO on April 1, and these will continue through the six-week run at the Cow Palace—first live radiocast began today (Tues.). Cost of this time is $4,590.

Graham's also laying out nearly $29,000 for weekly Sunday radiocasts via ABC, NBC and MBS nets. Total radio-tv time cost comes to $407,390.

Ed Sullivan To Shoot The Platters in Rome

London, April 29.

During his brief trip to London Ed Sullivan nipped over to Rome to set up a deal for the Platters to appear in his tv show. But the chirpers were unable to duck commitments that would enable them to fly to New York for the event.

So Sullivan is arranging to go back to Rome to put them on film on May 16. The day's work will net the Platters $5,000.

CBS To Breathe Easier Settling 'Studio 1,' 'Climax'

Two biggest sponsor headaches confronting CBS-TV, the Chrysler-"Climax" impasse and the Westinghouse-"Studio One" situation, should be settled within the week. Westinghouse answer is due tomorrow (Thurs.), with the sponsor considered a sure bet to renew its Monday night 10-11 time and expected either to renew "Studio One" or to bring in its own new hourlong package. Westinghouse has been negotiating quietly for some time with an outside producer and has just about tied up an hour show, nature of which it's carefully keeping under wraps.

Date for a Chrysler decision is next Monday (5), with the issue in this case whether CBS will settle for the automaker's request for "Climax" to run alternate weeks only. Chrysler wants to cut back to an alternate-week hour and wants at the same time to retain its exclusivity on the "Climax" tag by means of having the network bring in a separate hourlong package on the skip-Thursday.

Web doesn't mind the idea of limiting "Climax" to alternate weeks, since it figures it would be tough to find a sponsor willing to take over the alternate week after four years of solid Chrysler identification with the show. It's now busy getting advertiser reaction to the possibility of alternating "Pursuit" or an hour version of "Suspense" with "Climax," but isn't sure that's the answer either.

Brooks Costumery In Bid for Residual Coin On 'Firestone' Kinnies

Brooks Costume Co. notified ABC-TV that it would like residual payments on costumes rented to "Voice of Firestone," now that the Monday half-hour is on a kinescope repeat pattern for the remainder of the season. Costumery wants approximately an additional 50% of the original charge for each kinescope in which its costumes are used.

James Stroock, Brooks prexy, said that "as long as everyone is getting residuals and the value of costumes are depreciated" via reissue of live tv programs, the costume industry feels it is entitled to extra payments. Stroock said the matter has been discussed with his lawyers. It is also understood that Brooks' principal competitor, Eaves Costume, has also gotten legal clearance for such a setup. Stroock added, however, that while costumers hope to establish a principal of residuals from live shows they are not "demanding" but just "investigating the possibility" with the networks.

Stroock said ABC-TV was the first officially notified of the new consideration, but that NBC-TV and CBS-TV have also been apprised that the costumers want to discuss the matter prior Sept. 1, when Stroock hopes the policy can be put into effect.

Aaron & Zousmer Pitch Foreign Kines (With Murrow) as 'P to P' Pinchhitter

The best of foreign tv, and there's a whopping amount of it available, will form the basis of a new John A. Aaron and Jesse Zousmer video production tagged "Channel One," with Ed Murrow narrating.

Pilot of "Channel One" is ready to be shown to potential sponsors, but co-producers Aaron and Zousmer will let Time Inc. and Florists' Telegraph Delivery Assn., alternate week sponsors of their CBS-TV "Person to Person" show, take a first look at it with a view to using it as a summer replacement.

Aaron and Zousmer, as Live Productions Inc, own the "Channel One" package with CBS advancing them some dough for production costs. It's figured at $15,000 for weekly talent costs entire package to be presented with Murrow on film.

The two vet newsmen and coproducers of "Person to Person," who've been working on the "Channel One" project since last fall, figure they have ironed out virtually all major bugs in the program series featuring kines of the most interesting and entertaining segments of tv programs overseas, including England, France, Japan, Australia, Mexico and other countries where tv is becoming more and more of a major recreation.

The producers have made arrangements with major tv outlets around the world to procure kines of their most popular programs and to present excerpts on "Channel One." In countries where kines are not available from tv outlets, Aaron and Zousmer will arrange to shoot their own. Fees for use of accepted overseas tv material will vary, depending on nature, length, sponsored or sustaining, government or private, etc.

Mutual's Swap Deal On Information Shows

In mid-August Mutual plans to inaugurate a series of informational programs, covering various areas of consumer interest, according to prexy George Vogel.

The program, to deal in such aspects as home improvement, food dieting, needs and opportunities of an aging population, will be fed to MBS affiliates on a swap basis. The affiliates will be able to sell adjacencies for the programming vehicles, for which the net will seek national sponsorship.

According to Vogel, the projected programs will veer away from so-called "personality selling" and concentrate on radio's principal asset, its ability to communicate informational programs desired by the public. Vogel feels that radio has been remiss in the informational "consumer interest" areas.

Under the heading of new personnel, net has signed up Dan O'Brien, formerly of the public relations staff of General Motors International, to head up the newly-formed department of client relations.

Lewis-NBC Hassle On Tinter; May Ax

Hollywood, April 29.

Jerry Lewis issued an ultimatum to NBC that unless it pays the cost involved for him to color remote his May 16 show from the UCLA, he won't do the show. His stance met a cold rebuff from network, with likelihood there will not be another Lewis show this season.

Comedian told NBC he wanted to remote the show from the Moulin Rouge or UCLA because he is more at home away from "cold" tv studio. Then it was discovered that electric current situation at Moulin was not feasible for telecast, so Lewis veered to UCLA. NBC told him he would have to pay heavy additional costs involved, but he refused, saying budget wouldn't allow. NBC refuses to pay extra cost which isn't included in what Oldsmobile pays for the show, so its a Mexican standoff.

However, whether Lewis actually does the show may be up to Paramount studio chief Y. Frank Freeman, since Par owns two-thirds of York Productions which puts on show.

META's 'Written Word' A-Timed by WABC-TV

An educational television show gets a prime time slot this summer in New York, when WABC-TV, the ABC key, launches a 15-week series called "The Written Word." It will be fronted by Dr. Frank Baxter and produced by the Educational Radio-TV Center at Ann Arbor.

Station will air the stanza on Mondays at 7:30 p.m., in lieu of a network show. It begins on May 12. Deal with WABC was arranged through the Metropolitan Educational Television Assn.

10 YEARS OLD and still going strong
—Now Selling ATC's 10th BIRTHDAY PACKAGE Consisting of 15 Top Features and the U.S. Marines' ½ Hour Series, "Uncommon Valor."
P. S.:
THE CHAMPION PACKAGE is now available for rerun in most cities.
ATLANTIC TELEVISION CORP.
130 WEST 46th STREET
NEW YORK 36, N. Y.
Telephone—JUdson 2-1288

Congratulations to JACK DOUGLAS PRODUCTIONS
for Best Local Station Production
"I SEARCH FOR ADVENTURE"
Distributed by
George Bagnall & Associates Inc.
8827 Olympic Blvd. Beverly Hills, Calif.
25 Vanderbilt Ave. New York 17, N. Y.

FREE LANCE WRITER
AVAILABLE
Extensive TV Script Writing Experience
Variety Show Continuity
Industrial Shows
RESUME UPON REQUEST
WAKE WHITNEY
3301 N. Russel
PORTLAND 17, OREGON

EVERY DAY ON EVERY CHANNEL TV
BROOKS COSTUMES
3 West 61st St., N.Y.C.-Tel. PL 7-5800

WHATEVER THE SHOW HE'S THE GREATEST!
DOUG. ANDERSON
Currently: 'The Magic Clown'
For BONOMO TURKISH TAFFY on
Channel 5, New York
Sundays at 10:00 A. M.
Phone . . . Pioneer 7-5761

EXPERIENCED
New York Agent (age 30), currently engaged in Personal Management, desires position with established office in allied fields. Will relocate if required.
Write Box V-2156, VARIETY, 154 W. 46th St., New York 36

BEST ACTOR AWARD NOMINEE
VENICE FILM FESTIVAL
DOTTS JOHNSON
ART AND SOUL IN DRAMATIC SONGS
420 W. 130th St., New York 27, N. Y.
Phone MO 6-3294

dick noel
PL 1-2345, Ext. 280 JA 3-0784
ANNOUNCER
NARRATOR
ACTOR
CHARACTERS
DIALECTS

TUNERS' WHAT PRICE ROYALTY?

Copyright Act, Rising Costs, 10c Plays Top Issues Before MOA's Chicago Meet

Chicago, April 29.

Music Operators of America convention, opening here next Tuesday (6), looms more than any such previous conclave as a nose-to-the-grindstone affair. Their profits shriveled, and with the threat of performance fees staring them in the face, the jukebox men are as gloomy a segment of businessmen as any.

Not even the traditional banquet-floor show Thursday night (8) closing out the three-day assembly at the Morrison hotel is likely to dispel the inner melancholy. What the industry needs, obviously, is a way out of the economic squeeze between the conventional 50-50 location split and rising equipment and labor costs. Prevailing view is that there's small likelihood of impending relief in any of these areas. A sizeable number of tradesters see as the only out a return to universal 5c plays, although several sections of the country are said to be faring okay on the 10c ante and the "bargain" three-for-a-quarter play. The issue, by the way, will be aired at one of the forum sessions.

Costs-versus-profits is a steady bane to the ops, but they now face, in addition, another blow in the form of Senate Bill 1870 (now in committee), which would amend the Copyright Act to make jukebox operators pay performance fees. The ops vigorously contend that jukes can't be classified as "public performance," and MOA prexy George A. Miller headed a delegation which testified last week against the bill before the O'Mahoney sub-committee studying the proposal.

Ways to intensify public relations for the industry will also occupy the convention, and high on

(Continued on page 78)

MGM Lion Label Into Low-Price LPs

MGM Records is moving back into the lowprice LP line with the reactivation of its Lion label. MGM prexy Arnold Maxin and Irv Jerome, v.p.-sales manager currently are lining up a series of 25 packages for the initial release.

The MGM brass plan to break the line in at the diskery's sales-distribution convention to be held during the summer. The Lion packages will be peddled at $1.98.

MGM's Lion line was discontinued about two years ago but since a boom in the lowprice LP field has revised company thinking. In addition to a flock of indies that have come into the field with $1.49 and $1.98 LPs, RCA Victor has been swinging heftily with its Camden label and Columbia has been rolling with its Harmony line.

Disk Names Mass For MOA Conclave In Chi

Chicago, April 29.

Most of the big and small labels will be represented by current disk stars at the floor show May 8 winding the Music Operators of America convention here.

Appearing, among others, will be Jimmie Rodgers, Mahalia Jackson, Ames Brothers, Barbara McNair, Connie Francis, Roy Hamilton, the Champs, Fontane Sisters and Bobby Helms, Dan Belloc's orchestra, w.k. hereabouts, will handle the backstopping and dansapation.

Each act will be permitted two numbers and an encore.

Dukes of Dixieland, jazz group on the Audio Fidelity label, in New York this week on a quickie with bookings on the "Timex" and Dave Garroway shows before taking off for Las Vegas.

Duke-Heath Band Swap In Works for October

London, April 29.

London agent Harold Davison is wrapping up a deal for an Anglo-U. S. band swap between Duke Ellington and Ted Heath.

The exchange would be for four weeks opening some time during October. Davison said it was likely the U. S. band would open at the Royal Festival Hall on Oct. 5.

Dot to o.o. All Foreign Deals; Eyes Own Setup

Hollywood, April 29.

Dot Records has scheduled a series of preliminary confabs in England and Europe with all existing distribution contractees during the month of May. Talks will revolve around such items as royalty rates; percentage of Dot's catalog to be issued abroad; distribution performance abroad, as a guide in contract renewals; review of ad-promotion policies, and the possible negotiations of new pacts in various countries, prior to labels' present foreign contracts which expire early next year.

James N. Bailey, director of administration and finance, who heads Dot's foreign operations, planes from N. Y. to London tomorrow (Wed.) to meet with British Decca prexy E. R. (Ted) Lewis. Latter label releases Dot product in England and the British Commonwealth countries and in some European markets.

While there, Bailey will also meet with J. F. Lockwood, chairman of EMI in London, with execs of the Pye-Nixa Company, reps of Mercury Records, with the Philips Co. for Columbia Records in England, and with record toppers in Amsterdam, Paris, Rome, Milan, Frankfurt and Athens.

Bailey also plans to study the possibility of Dot releasing its records on its own label in all foreign markets. Label is also planning on setting up a policy of pressing custom disks in Germany and for sale only in military post exchanges.

PUBS SPLIT ON LOWPRICE LP'S

Broadway show score publishers are at variance in the handling of their tuner properties on lowprice LP's. Although the $1.49 and $1.98 LP product sales have been mushrooming in supermarkets and drug-stores around the country, the publishers have mixed emotions about the lowprice LP showcasing.

The lowprice score situation has been spotlighted in Frank Music's handling of the Meredith Willson score for the current Broadway click, "The Music Man." Firm, Frank Loesser's publishing operation, has set more than 15 albums on the score with a flock of them being put out by the low-pricers. In the deals with the cheaper lines, Frank has cut the royalty rate to 1½c a tune for an advance and a sales guarantee. Although Frank is keeping the advance figures under wraps, it's estimated that the low-price LP firms are shelling out a five-figure payment with a sales target of 75,000 or more.

Frank figures that the advance and guarantee will keep the low-pricers on their toes in the merchandising of the score album and prevent a flood on the market of stagnant LP's. (On the royalty angle, it's figured that the major labels come out ahead with a 2c per tune royalty on a $3.98-$5.98

(Continued on page 78)

Swiss Disk Scorecard: Belafonte 'Banana' No. 1, Miller Top EP, R&R Big

Zurich, April 22.

The Harry Belafonte etching of "Banana Boat Song" (Day-O) on the RCA label is the first U.S. pop hit in years outselling all similar items on the Swiss disk market.

Second in popularity, though not quite up to the calypso blockbuster, is still Elvis Presley, whose "Jail-house Rock" (RCA) is a hot seller.

Other current hit singles here include "Melodie d'Amour" (Ames Bros.), Pat Boone's "April Love" (released on the Dot label in the U.S., but on London over here) and Janis Martin's "Love and Kisses."

The top album and EP seller is "The New Glenn Miller Orch in Hi-Fi" (RCA) by the new Glenn Miller band under Ray McKinley.

Apart from some fast-selling calypso singles, general tendency in disk tastes here veers more toward the r&r idiom, which looks here to stay.

Jukebox Amendment to Copyright Gets Strong Senatorial Backing But Timetable Works Against Bill

Washington, April 29.

Supporters of the O'Mahoney bill to require jukebox operators to pay performance fees made an impressive showing here last week at hearings on the measure before a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee. However, they ran into formidable opposition from machine operators, manufacturers, distributors and tavern operators, with the result that prospects for passage appear doubtful.

Although Patents Subcommittee Chairman Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) expressed hope that both sides can come to an agreement on the issue, there was little disposition on the part of the operators to bargain. However, O'Mahoney requested ASCAP to submit suggestions on fees which he can take up with the principal opponents, Music Operators of America.

While O'Mahoney indicated he is pushing for action on the bill, the Congressional timetable appeared to be working against the measure. With the second session of the present Congress now entering its fifth month, it would require fast legislative work to obtain passage before adjournment. Even if the measure can get by the Senate, it would still have to hurdle the House where there has been opposition in the past. Failing action this session, the proponents would have to start all over again in the next Congress.

State Dept. Support

Sen. O'Mahoney emphasized that his bill has the support of the Librarian of Congress and the State Department. He cited the rights of artists accorded by the Constitution. The purpose of the measure, he said, is to "restore" these

(Continued on page 75)

Dot Parker's Verse With Music Into Urania LP

Dorothy Parker's verse will be put into the groove by Urania Records. Miss Parker's poesy has been set to music by Seymour Barab and will be narrated by Barbara Cook, who's currently appearing in the Broadway tuner click, "Music Man."

Diskery plans to promote the package through book stores around the country as well as the usual disk outlets.

Col Bowing In Automatic Vendor Of Pop Platters

An automatic vending machine of phonograph records will be the latest wrinkle in disk marketing. The machine, which has been tagged Dial-A-Disc, will be introduced and distributed by Columbia Records this summer.

The mechanized disk vendor was developed for Col by Holley Associates. The unit is designed to vend 10 different 45 rpm singles and will have an inventory capacity for 200 disks. Any combination of coins up to $1.25 will be accepted with an automatic refund of change up to 24c.

Col will market the unit through its existing network of independent and company-operated distribution centers.

Col sales execs figure that the Dial-A-Disc will be a potent marketing device for record stores and other high-traffic locations. For record dealers, they believe, it represents a pilferage-proof automatic selling device, and to vendors of other items, it offers a new, diversifying product.

The Dial-A-Disc unit is a floor model, five-and-a-half feet tall, two feet wide and one foot deep with record dialing portion and cabinet. Each selection will be designated by an insert card showing title, artist's picture and recording company. It will sell for $595.

Merc's Irv Green New RIAA Prexy

Irving B. Green, Mercury Records prexy, has been elected president of the Record Industry Assn of America. He takes over from Frank B. Walker, who left the top spot at MGM Records at the first of the year to go over to Loew's in a consultant capacity. Walker, incidentally, was elected honorary chairman of the org.

Other offices set at the RIAA's seventh annual meet held in New York last week, were Harry Kruse (London) and Arnold Maxin (MGM) as veepees, John Stevenson (Childrens Record Guild), veepee-treasurer, and John Griffin as exec secretary.

Joining the board of directors were Archie Bleyer (Cadence), Dave Kapp (Kapp) and Randy Wood (Dot). Re-elected to the board of directors were George R. Marek (RCA Victor), Goddard Lieberson (Columbia), Leonard W. Schneider (Decca) and Glenn E. Wallichs (Capitol).

Ernest S. Meyers continues as RIAA counsel.

Tina Louise Joins UA In 'Acre' Disk Push

Tina Louise, Broadway actress who makes her pic bow in "God's Little Acre," a United Artists release, has been inked to a disk deal by the UA label. Her first platter will be a release in conjunction with the pic's distribution.

The UA diskery is also issuing the pic title song on a single by Joe Valino. The music was written by Elmer Bernstein with words by novelist Erskine Caldwell, his first effort as a pop lyricist. UA is also releasing a soundtrack set of Bernstein's score for "God's Little Acre."

RETAIL SHEET BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail sheet music best sellers based on reports obtained from leading stores in 13 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

* ASCAP † BMI

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Title and Publisher	New York—(MDS)	Boston—(Mosher Music)	Philadelphia—(Charles DuMont)	San Antonio—(San Antonio Mus.)	Chicago—(Lyon-Healy Music Co.)	Detroit—(Grinnell Bros.)	Cleveland—(Grossman Music)	Minneapolis—(Schmitt Music Co.)	Indianapolis—(Pearson's)	Kansas City—(Jenkins Music Co.)	Los Angeles—(Freeman)	San Francisco—(Pac. Coast Music)	Seattle—(Capitol Music Co.)	TOTAL POINTS
1	2	*World in Hands (Chappell)	1	..	1	4	1	1	1	2	3	1	1	7	3	106
2	1	*Catch a Falling Star (Marvin)	..	1	2	6	4	6	7	1	1	4	7	3	..	79
3	5	†Sugartime (Nor-Va-Jak)	3	6	..	8	..	7	5	5	2	7	2	6	..	59
4	3	†Tequila (Jat)	..	..	5	2	..	2	9	10	4	..	4	1	..	51
5	13	†Twilight Time (Porgie)	2	..	10	7	2	3	2	..	..	..	..	..	4	47
6	4	*Who's Sorry Now (Mills)	6	..	..	..	..	5	4	7	5	..	..	2	2	46
7	8	*Silvery Moon (Joy)	8	7	..	3	9	..	..	..	8	3	..	10	..	29
8	6	*76 Trombones (Frank)	..	2	..	10	10	..	..	4	10	..	..	4	..	26
9A	7	†Lollipop (Marks)	10	..	..	..	..	4	3	..	6	9	9	..	..	25
9B	12	*Arriverdeci Roma (Connelly)	..	4	4	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	25
11	..	*Witch Doctor (Monarch)	..	..	8	..	..	8	6	6	..	..	6	..	8	24
12A	14	*Chanson D'Amour (M. Lark)	5	..	6	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	10	..	..	20
12B	9	*All the Way (Maraville)	..	9	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	20
14	..	*Return to Me (Southern)	4	3	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	19
15	11	†Wonderful Time (Fowler)	..	..	..	..	..	10	8	..	2	..	9	..	..	15

Jocks, Jukes and Disks

By HERM SCHOENFELD

Tony Bennett (Columbia): "NOW I LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP" (Morris*), a standout class ballad, is socked across for maximum returns by Tony Bennett who extracts full dramatic values out of everything he does. "YOUNG AND WARM AND WONDERFUL" (Frank*), another topdrawer ballad, should share the spins on what could be a double-sided hit.

Mickey & Sylvia (Vik): "BEWILDERED" (Miller*), an excellent ballad, is projected in tiptop fashion by this interesting harmonizing duo. "ROCK AND STROLL ROOM" (Ben-Ghazi†) is another fair variation on the stroll tempo.

The Champs (Challenge): "EL RANCHO ROCK" (Marks†), rock 'n' roll adaptation of the standard Latin melody, is a solid followup to this combo's "Tequila" and could repeat. "MIDNIGHTER" (Golden West†) is another swinging instrumental due for hefty spins.

Eydie Gorme (ABC-Paramount): "YOU NEED HANDS" (Leeds*), a stickout ballad, shapes up as one of Eydie Gorme's best wax efforts. The oldfashioned beat could go all the way. "DORMI - DORMI - DORMI" (Paramount*), from the Paramount pic, "Rockabye Baby," is a winning lullaby with an Italo flavor.

Debbie Reynolds (Coral): "THIS HAPPY FEELING" (Carrie*), title song of U-I pic, is a lilting ballad with a catching melody that could repeat Debbie Reynolds' click on "Tammy." "HILLSIDE IN SCOTLAND" (Carrie*) is a sweet ballad for change-of-pace programming.

Edmundo Ros (London): "TIPI TIPI TIPSO" (Miller*), a nifty swinging number, is vocalled ingratiatingly by Edmundo Ros. "SAUNABAD" (Robbins*) is a charming instrumental set in a sparkling arrangement.

George Hamilton IV (ABC-Paramount): "I KNOW WHERE I'M GOING" (Gil†), the folk song, is dressed up in a contemporary beat for good impact via this simple rendition. "WHO'S TAKING YOU TO THE PROM" (Kahl†) is okay teenage material.

Lee Adrian (Victor): "26 MEN" (Towne*), title them of the tv production, is a vigorous marching song neatly projected by orch and choral group. "LOVE THEME FROM THE BROTHERS KARAMAZOV" (Robbins*) is given a suitably gypsy-string workover.

Ray Stevens (Capitol): "CHICKIE CHICKIE WAH WAH" (Lowery†), a bright rhythm tune, makes a neat showcase for this newcomer who rocks his vocals. "CRYING GOODBYE" (Lowery†) is a so-so slow ballad.

The Four J's (United Artists): "ROCK AND ROLL AGE" (Atlantic†), a good tune boosting rock 'n' roll, attractively delivered by the lead singer of this combo. "BE NICE, DON'T FIGHT" (Atlantic†), which is no relation to the offcolor joke of the same punchline, is routine stuff.

Ella Fitzgerald (Verve): "ST. LOUIS BLUES" (Handy Bros.) gets a new, solid slice by Ella Fitzgerald, who adds some of her own flourishes to the classic. "BEALE STREET BLUES" (Handy Bros.), from the soundtrack of Paramount's W. C. Handy biopic, is an excellent workover of this standard.

The Royal Jacks (20th Fox): "I'M IN LOVE AGAIN" (Delstone†), marking the bow of the 20th Century-Fox diskery, is a good rocking side handled by a typical combo. "THE BIG RING" (Delstone†) is more of the same in slower tempo.

Sugar Canes (Federal): "CHARLESTON ROCK" (Yvonne†) is a straightforward rocking instrumental with an easy dance beat. "COTTON PICKING" (Yvonne†) is a trickier, less effective side.

Sal Mineo (Epic): "A COUPLE OF CRAZY KIDS" (Conley†), a juve-pegged song with a rock-a-rock 'n' roll beat, is delivered in okay style by Sal Mineo with the help of a choral group. "SEVEN STEPS TO LOVE" (Wemar†), a manual of romance set to music, could turn out to be a sleeper.

Voxpoppers (Popular): "A LOVE TO LAST A LIFETIME" (Coday†) is a nifty ballad with good commercial impact via this combo's delivery. "COME BACK LITTLE GIRL" (Chelwood†) is a rousing rhythm item also with chances.

The Diamonds (Mercury): "HIGH SIGN" (Vivo†), a fair rocking tune, is expertly delivered by this group. "CHICK-LETS" (Vivo†) is familiar rocking stuff.

Joe McCoy & Real McCoys (Tiara): "HEY HEY LORETTA" (Ludlow†) is a jumping rock 'n' roll item delivered with commercial impact by this combo. "TOO MUCH GOIN' ON" (Ludlow†) is similarly styled stuff.

Joe Leahy Orch (Felsted): "MOONLIGHT BAY" (Remick*), the oldie, could get another revival via this pleasing ride by vocal ensemble and orch. "ALONE IN BARCELONA" (Ama*) is a good instrumental with a catching melodic line.

Bernie Early (MGM): "ROCK DOLL" (Cranford†), a standard-cut juve-angled item, is belted in approved rocking style by this young singer. "YOUR KISSES KILL ME" (Cranford†) is in the same rhythm groove.

Caterina Valente (Decca): "BE MINE TONIGHT" (Peer*) is belted home by this Italio-German songstress who's very much at home in the Latin idiom. "MINE, MINE, MINE" (Robbins*) is another strong ballad delivered effectively.

The Titans (Specialty): "LOVE IS A WONDERFUL THING" (Venice†), a good rock 'n' roll entry, is delivered in typical style by this combo. "ARLENE" (Venice-Chance†) is another juve-angled rocker pegged on a girl's theme.

Bob Jaxon (RCA Victor): "FOR THE LOVE OF YOU" (Feist*), an above-par ballad for the rocking market, registers with strong potential via Bob Jaxon's tearful delivery. "NO LIE" (Roosevelt†) is an uptempo item handled in rockabilly style.

Annette (Disneyland): "DON'T JUMP TO CONCLUSIONS" (Disney*), a cute rhythm tune with a clever lyric, is brightly chirped by this young songstress. "HOW WILL I KNOW MY LOVE" (Disney*) is an okay lilting ballad not particularly suited to this songstress.

The Presentators (Marlene): "CHOPSTICK MAMBO" (Marlene*) is a fast-moving instrumental with a toe-tapping beat. "EVERYBODY'S DOING THE CALYPSO" (Marlene*) is a dated calypso.

Pete Pepper (Porter): "CHERRY CHERRY RED" (Stella Lane†), an offbeat ballad with an interesting sound, is smoothly delivered by this singer. "YOU'RE MY GIRL" (Stella Lane†) is more routine material but nicely vocalled by Pepper.

Norm Skylar (Crest): "NIGHT SHIFT" (American†), an offbeat song idea with a good beat, is neatly belted by this rockabilly-styled singer. "ROCK 'N' ROLL BLUES" (American†) is in a more routine r 'n' r groove.

Ernie Cast (Ember): "BETTY MORETTI" (Springton*), interesting saga with a tricky beat, is vocalled in way-out style by Ernie Cast. "COOL IT BABY" (Springton*) is more conventional rhythm material.

* ASCAP. † BMI.

Best Bets

TONY BENNETT (Columbia)	NOW I LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP YOUNG AND WARM AND BEAUTIFUL
MICKEY & SYLVIA (Vik)	BEWILDERED Rock and Stroll Room
THE CHAMPS (Challenge)	EL RANCHO ROCK Midnighter
EYDIE GORME (ABC-Paramount)	YOU NEED HANDS Dormi-Dormi-Dormi
DEBBIE REYNOLDS (Coral)	THIS HAPPY FEELING Hillside in Scotland

LAWRENCE WELK

And His Champagne Music Present THE LENNON SISTERS AND PETE FOUNTAIN On Brunswick "Mr Clarinet Man" B/W "My Dear One" (BR No. 55058)

EXTENDED PLAY DISKS

Dennis Farnon Orch: "Say, Darling" (RCA Victor). Four songs from the current Broadway legiter, "Say, Darling," have been fashioned into a miniature EP show album. Dennis Faronon's orch and chorus dish up neat versions of title song, "Dance Only With Me," "Trying To Love Me Just As I Am" and "Something's Always Happening On The River," the standout tune of the lot.

Mary Martin: "Hi-Ho" (Disneyland): Four tunes from Walt Disney pics furnish Mary Martin with an excellent EP songalog. She does "Hi-Ho," "With A Smile and A Song," "The Magic Song" and "I'm Late," with Tutti Camarata furnishing tasteful instrumental backing.

Goody's Album Bestsellers

(Compiled by Sam Goody's, leading New York disk retailer whose global mail order operation reflects not only the national market, but internationally).

	Artist	Title	Label
1.	Original Cast	The Music Man	Capitol
2.	Original Cast	West Side Story	Columbia
3.	Original Cast	My Fair Lady	Columbia
4	Sound Track	Around World 80 Days	Decca
5.	Mantovani	Concert Encores	London
6.	Meredith Willson	The Music Man	Capitol
7.	Eydie Gorme	Vamps The Roaring 20's	ABC Paramount
8.	Lester Lanin	At the Tiffany Ball	Epic
9.	Johnny Mathis	Goodnight Dear Lord	Columbia
10.	Ella Fitzgerald	Sings Rodgers & Hart	Verve
11.	Frank Sinatra	Come Fly With Me	Capitol
12.	Original Cast	Oh Captain!	Columbia
13.	Sound Track	South Pacific	RCA Victor
14.	The Weavers	At Carnegie Hall	Vanguard
15.	Ella Fitzgerald	Sings Duke Ellington	Verve
16.	Harry Belafonte	Calypso	RCA Victor
17.	Edmundo Ros	Rhythms of the South	London
18.	Sonny Terry & Pete Seeger	Pete & Sonny	Folkways
19.	Pete Seeger	Favorite Ballads	Folkways
20.	Mantovani	Film Encores	London

Album Reviews

Rosemary Clooney-Jose Ferrer: "Oh Captain" (MGM). This is probably the first time that a director of a legit show, which already has an original cast album out, has himself vocalled the same show tunes for another label. In this case, director Jose Ferrer gets an important assist from his wife in this rundown of the "Oh Captain" songs. The Ferrers have come up with a very bright package of the Livingston & Evans score.

Eartha Kitt: "St. Louis Blues" (RCA Victor). Eartha Kitt, who had a featured spot in the current W. C. Handy biopic, here performs a dozen Handy numbers in her most effective style. She does the top Handy blues classics, a Creole number, "Chantez-les Bas," and some spirituals, such as "Hist The Window, Noah," and "Steal Away," with a style attuned to the material and refreshingly free of any vocal mannerisms. Shorty Rogers orch supplies firstrate backing.

Katharine Handy Lewis: "W. C. Handy Blues" (Folkways). In the wake of W. C. Handy's death, Folkways has released this unusually interesting package of sides made around 10 years ago by the composer's daughter, a firstrate stylist. Miss Lewis registers with her lucid, direct blues singing in the great jazz tradition. She's accompanied by James P. Johnson who also contributes some solo improvisations on blues themes. As usual, this Folkways set comes firstrate historical notes.

Lawrence Welk Presents Pete Fountain" (Coral). As another showcase for the talent in Lawrence Welk's organization, this set gives clarinetist Pete Fountain a chance in the spotlight. Fountain blows with a full reed with a neat swinging tempo which never gets too jazzy. Backed by a big orch, Fountain plays a dance set including such numbers as "When My Baby Smiles At Me," "La Vie En Rose," "On The Alamo," "Dancing In The Dark," and a couple of dixieland classics, "Tiger Rag" and "Hindustan."

Lizabeth Scott: "Lizabeth" (Vik). Film actress Lizabeth Scott, in her debut on wax, registers as a promising singing personality with her smoky pipes and her dramatic sense of phrasing. Miss Scott also holds a note competently as she does a songalog consisting mostly of standards and including some fresh material as "Men," "A Deep Dark Secret," and "Lucky." Henri Rene backs up ably.

Filmdom's Famous Fifty" (Dot). This is a massive medley of Hollywood pic tunes played by pianist Bill Rowland in straightforward style. The repertoire covers the whole canvas of pic clicks, ranging from "The Old Ox Road" to the more recent crop of pic songs. Rowland wraps three or four songs together in each band, giving enough of the individual melodies to strike a nostalgic note.

"Jazz In The Classrooms" (Berklee). Produced by the Berklee School of Music in Boston, this set is an interesting attempt to showcase student talent. The performances by the student orchestra is of pro calibre throughout. Robert Freedman's compositions, which synthesize modern jazz and contemporary longhair ideas, are standout, especially the evocative "Chaotic Suite." On the flip side, shorter pieces by various composers are more in the standard progressive jazz groove. This set may be pointing to fertile talent fields in the nation's music schools.

"The Fabulous Dorseys In Hi-Fi" (Columbia). The 24 sides packaged in this two-pocket LP serve as a topnotch memorial to the Dorsey Bros., Tommy and Jimmy. And for the big band buff it's an excellent complement to the old material that the diskeries have been re-releasing as tribute to the late maestro brothers. Sides were cut independently by TD and sold to Columbia and the diskery has packaged it handsomely in a three-section songology of ballads, spirituals and swing. Highlighting the roundup, of course, is TD's tasteful trombone and JD's solid saxing.

Paul Weston Orch: "Hollywood" (Columbia). Paul Weston's "Hollywood" is a slick entry for the mood music shelf. Peg for this package is presenting rhapsodies on romantic themes in concerto form and because of Weston's deft musicianship it works into an ear-appealing treat. "I'll Take Romance," "Stella By Starlight," "Because You're Mine" and the like take on new meaning in this Weston workover.

The Andrews Sisters: "The Dancing '20s" (Capitol). There's been a lot of LP material released in recent months centered on the music of the 1920s but the Andrews Sisters will hold their own in the competition. In fact, with the aid of wry cover photo, some happy orch work by Billy May and the sisters' top vocal form, package could turn out to be a chart winner. Their bounce and spark runs through "Don't Bring Lulu," "Barney Google," "Collegiate," "Show Me The Way To Go Home" and eight other sockos from that uninhibited period of American history.

Belmonte Orch: "Belmonte Plays

(Continued on page 78)

VARIETY 10 Best Sellers on Coin Machines

1.	WITCH DOCTOR (2)	David Seville	Liberty
2.	TWILIGHT TIME (3)	Platters	Capitol
3.	WHOLE WORLD IN HIS HANDS (5)	Laurie London	Capitol
4.	TEQUILA (8)	Champs	Challenge
5.	ALL I HAVE TO DO IS DREAM (1)	Everly Bros.	Cadence
6.	WHO'S SORRY NOW (6)	Connie Francis	MGM
7.	KEWPIE DOLL (1)	Perry Como	Victor
8.	LOLLIPOP (6)	Chordettes	Cadence
9.	RETURN TO ME (2)	Dean Martin	Capitol
10.	WEAR MY RING (1)	Elvis Presley	Victor

Second Group

OH LONESOME ME	Don Gibson	Victor
IT'S TOO SOON TO KNOW	Pat Boone	Dot
JOHNNY B. GOODE	Chuck Berry	Chess
WONDERFUL TIME UP THERE	Pat Boone	Dot
BELIEVE WHAT YOU SAY	Ricky Nelson	Imperial
LOOKING BACK	Nat King Cole	Capitol
CHANSON D'AMOUR	Art & Dotty Todd Fontane Sisters	Era Dot
ARE YOU SINCERE	Andy Williams	Cadence
CATCH A FALLING STAR	Perry Como	Victor
SUGAR MOON	Pat Boone	Dot

(Figures in parentheses indicate number of weeks song has been in the Top 10)

Copyright Tough at Brussels Expo

Brussels, April 29.

John J. Slocum, Coordinator of Public Affairs of the U.S. Dept. of State, now here as an aide to U.S. Commissioner General Howard S. Cullman, is vexed with the technicalities over copyright clearances for personalities booked here.

Slocum and Cullman have had preliminary meetings with the European literary agencies concerned with Les Droits d'Auteurs et d'Executions (performing rights) and feel that the Americans are most difficult of all.

"It's strange," he opines, "when you consider how generously we give in a hot war and yet they make it so tough for clearances of songs and material in a color war."

He asked VARIETY to point up that, even with a one-shot Eurovision telecast, there is no filming of the songs, work or performances. However, admittedly, just as often the European licensees of some of these works are the more strenuous objectors.

Elmer Cox is deputy officer for the U.S. Exhibition, at 244 rue de la Loi (Phone 33-98-98, extension 36), and Jerry Stone, of Voice of America, is at the same address, as a Cullman aide. Slocum is the overall coordinator of public affairs.

Inside Stuff—Music

The song former President Harry S. Truman would like to forget, the "Missouri Waltz," has put a lot of red brick into the new $32,000 home of the Women's Club at Oskaloosa, Iowa. The clubhouse is named Logan Place for the late composer-publisher Frederick Logan and his mother, the late Virginia Knight Logan.

Logan published "Missouri Waltz" more than 40 years ago and when he died in 1928 he left his royalties to his mother, one time prima donna of the old American Opera Co. She had been a charter member of the Oskaloosa Women's Club and when she died in 1941 she left the royalties to the club. The royalties produced only modest sums annually until Truman became president and the "Missouri Waltz" (which he's been quoted as saying he has never cared about) made sweet music in royalties. Logan had a number of successes to his credit. He was musical director of the original "Wizard of Oz" show featuring Fred Montgomery and Fred Stone.

At Independence, Mo., Mr. Truman said last Saturday he was glad somebody profited from the "Missouri Waltz." "I think they ought to split it with the Missouri legislature," he added, pointing out that the song became popular after it was adopted as his state's official song

(Continued on page 76)

BG Taking Off For Continental Tour With Brussels Fair Climax

Benny Goodman takes off on a swing of the Continent later this week on a tour which will lead to a May 25-31 gig at the Brussels Fair as the first "live" presentation in the American Performing Arts Program.

BG's week at the Fair, which is being produced and sponsored as a public service by the Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., will include nightly jazz concerts, a long-hair-shorthair concert in which he'll play a clarinet concerto with the Belgian National Orchestra, special broadcasts via Eurovision, Voice of America and Radio Belgium, and the recording of an LP for Columbia Records as well as material for radio and tv for use on the WBC stations.

The mechanics of the Columbia LP will be handled by Irv Townsend, exec producer of Col's pop album division. Working title for the package is "Benny in Brussels." WBC veep Dick Pack, national program manager Bill Kaland and exec producer Chet Collier will oversee the tapings and filmings for WBC use.

BG's European one-niter trek will be launched in Stockholm May 5 and will cover the principal cities on the Continent before moving into Brussels. Maestro will travel with singers Ethel Ennis and Jimmy Rushing and a band that'll include a trio and a sextet.

N.Y. Orch Leaders Trying to Get Themselves Defined as Fish or Fowl

A large group of single-engagement bandleaders in New York, caught in a web of conflicting rulings tby the Federal, state and local officials, and the American Federation of Musicians, have organized into the Orchestra Leaders of Greater New York. Outfit, covering some 75 leaders, are trying to break out of a tax squeeze resulting from the confusion of their employer-employee status.

According to the Federal and New York City authorities, the bandleaders are employers of the sidemen who work for them. On the other hand both the N. Y. State tax officials and the AFM national office has ruled that the leaders are employees of the persons who hire the band. Hence, the orch leaders are required to pay various taxes in both categories.

The club date leaders, who handle the bulk of the weekend engagements around the New York area, are required to pay, as employers, a 3% Federal unemployment insurance tax on their payrolls. However, because the State Government does not recognize the leaders as employers, the latter do not have to pay unemployment insurance to the state. As a result, sidemen cannot collect N. Y. State unemployment insurance. Meantime, N. Y. City authorities look upon the leaders as employers and collects from them the gross receipts business tax.

The orch leaders want the AFM leadership to clarify the situation by ruling them as employers. Otherwise, the bandleaders point out that their clients, who hire the orch would be put in the position of filling out complicated union forms and paying all sorts of taxes. The leaders feel such a procedure is not only cumbersome, but would discourage people from hiring live musicians.

At the same time, within the ranks of the New York orch leaders, a dispute is going on over salary scales. One group, the Metropolitan Musicians Club, is urging a four-hour pay for a three-hour job with overtime to start after three hours. The Orchestra Leaders of Greater N. Y., however, are opposed to such a wage increase on the theory that it would cut down on available jobs. The administration of N. Y. Local 802 is also against the wage hike at this time.

EPIC POP BIZ 200% OVER '57; LP'S UP 100%

Epic Records is riding a hot sales pace this year with pop album sales up 100% and a 200% increase in pop singles biz over the first quarter tally of 1957.

The label's album biz has been sparked by three Lester Lanin packages, Jimmy McPartland's "Music Man Goes Dixieland," Sal Mineo's first LP, "Sal," and Neal Hefti's "Singing Instrumentals." Also contributing to the sales upbeat has been diskery's "Around the World in Hi-Fi" promotion.

To sustain the sale momentum, diskery has set a release schedule for next month with disks by Sal Mineo, Roy Hamilton, Somethin' Smith and an LP by the Moiseyev Ballet Co. spotlighted.

Irving Mills Bldg.

Hollywood, April 29.

New seven-story building bearing his name will be erected here by Irving Mills, Mills Music exec. Plot and structure will rep an investment in excess of $1,500,000.

Projection room and vault space for films will be included in facilities to attract tenants in entertainment and ad business.

RETAIL DISK BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail disk best sellers based on reports obtained from leading stores in 21 cities and showing comparative sales rating for this and last week.

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(R. H. Macy Co.)	Long Island—(Arcade Assoc.)	Boston—(Mosher Music)	Albany—(Van Curler Music Co.)	Washington—(Super Music)	Pittsburgh—(Stedeford's)	Miami—(Spec's Record Shop)	Memphis—(Trent-Wood)	Louisville—(Variety Record)	Dallas—(Titche-Goettinger)	San Antonio—(San Antonio Music)	Chicago—(Hudson-Ross Music)	Detroit—(Grinnell Bros.)	Indianapolis—(Ayres)	Minneapolis—(Don Leary Music)	Cleveland—(Customs Distrib Co.)	Kansas City—(Katz Drug Co.)	San Francisco—(Columbia Music)	Hollywood—(Wallich's Music City)	Denver—(Denver Dry Goods Co.)	Seattle—(S. Clay Music Co.)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	DAVID SEVILLE (Liberty) Witch-Doctor	4	1	1	3	2	9	2	1	1	1	2	7	6	1	3	2	2	6	2	..	2	162
2	2	PLATTERS (Mercury) Twilight Time	1	2	..	2	4	2	4	2	3	5	1	1	5	10	2	1	5	1	4	..	4	150
3	4	EVERLY BROS. (Cadence) All I Have To Do Is Dream	9	..	2	1	1	1	1	8	..	2	4	2	..	..	1	3	4	10	1	..	1	125
4	3	LAURIE LONDON (Capitol) Whole World In His Hands	8	..	..	..	5	..	..	5	4	8	..	5	..	3	7	5	3	2	3	1	10	85
5	7	DEAN MARTIN (Capitol) Return To Me	..	..	4	6	..	7	5	..	6	3	..	4	8	..	6	4	1	7	..	..	..	71
6	6	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Wear My Ring Around Neck	..	6	5	5	6	4	10	10	7	..	..	8	..	6	..	6	6	8	5	..	3	70
7	5	CHAMPS (Challenge) Tequila	3	..	..	..	8	..	..	4	9	..	8	..	..	7	..	..	..	3	10	2	..	45
8	11	ART & DOTTY TODD (Era) Chanson D'Amour	7	8	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	10	3	6	7	..	9	9	..	..	6	..	7	43
9	9	MONOTONES (Argo) Book of Love	5	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	5	3	..	..	..	10	..	..	8	..	8	42
10	15	RICKY NELSON (Imperial) Believe What You Say	2	..	..	10	10	..	..	..	..	7	6	..	9	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	..	22
11	12	KATHY LINDEN (Felsted) Billy	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	2	10	..	..	..	..	6	..	21
12A	8	HUEY SMITH (Ace) Don't You Just Know It	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	6	19
12B	10	CHORDETTES (Cadence) Lollipop	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	10	8	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	19
12C	23	DON GIBSON (Victor) Oh Lonesome Me	..	..	..	9	..	8	3	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	19
12D	..	NAT KING COLE (Capitol) Looking Back	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	19
16	16	PERRY COMO (Victor) Kewpie Doll	..	..	..	8	..	10	..	..	8	..	..	9	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	18
17	..	PAUL ANKA (ABC-Par) Let the Bells Keep Ringing	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	15
18A	..	FOUR LADS (Columbia) There's Only One of You	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	14
18B	18	PERRY COMO (Victor) Catch A Falling Star	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	14
18C	13	PAT BOONE (Dot) Wonderful Time Up There	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	7	..	..	3	..	14
21	20	RICKY NELSON (Imperial) My Bucket's Got A Hole In It	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	10
22A	19	LOU MONTE (Victor) Lazy Mary	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	5	..	..	..	9
22B	..	ANDY WILLIAMS (Cadence) Are You Sincere	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	4	..	9
24	..	FOUR PREPS (Capitol) 26 Miles	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	8
25	..	CHUCK BERRY (Chess) Johnny B. Goode	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	7

L. Wolfe Gilbert On 'Vanity' Book Publishers; Likens 'Em to Show Biz

The so-called "vanity publishers," which require authors to finance the publication of their own works, are defended by L. Wolfe Gilbert, veteran ASCAP songsmith whose autobiography, "Without Rhyme or Reason," was published through this "do-it-yourself" route. Gilbert likens the "vanity press" to the music business where songsmiths and singers frequently pay to get recorded, or to the legit field where authors solicit money from friends and investors to get their work produced.

Gilbert, however, cautions neophyte authors against unscrupulous "vanity publishers" who will take any work that is submitted regardless of merit. "The "ground rules," he states, "should be ethical and and hence the 'vanity publisher' would gain the confidence of the embryo writer, the public and the trade."

Gilbert's reflection on the "vanity publishers" was cued by the fact that many book reviewers frankly told him that they do not consider works published under the author's financing. Songsmith claims that, regardless, his memoir developed into a "bestseller." He does overlook the fact that his personal exploitation and wide friendships always figures in such circumstances.

Gilbert and his wife are currently on their first European trip.

HARRIS TO COL LP CLUB

Theodore Harris has joined the Columbia LP Record Club as production manager of the club's sales promotion.

For the past six years Harris had been ad production manager with L. & C. Mayers Co.

Top Record Talent and Tunes

VARIETY DISK JOCKEY POLL

This compilation is designed to indicate those records rising in popularity as well as those on top. Ratings are computed on the basis of ten points for a No. 1 mention, nine for a No. 2, and so on down to one point. Wherever possible, only records with two or more mentions are listed, even though their total points are less in some cases than those which receive only one mention. Cities and jockeys will vary from week to week to present a comprehensive picture of all sectors of the country regionally.

• ASCAP † BMI

Pos. this wk.	Pos. last wk.	No. weeks in log	Artist	Label	Song	EAST: Lonny Starr—WNEW—New York	Bill Sheridan—WICH—Norwich	Eddie Gallagher—WTOP—Washington	Alan Dary—WBZ—Boston	Jack Chadderton—WLYN—Lynn	Ed Gray—WKNE—Keene	Donn Tibbets—WGIR—Manchester	Jim Aylward—WWWH—Rochester, N. H.	Alan Owen—WMID—Atlantic City	Al Meltzer—WEBR—Buffalo	Ed Meath—WHEC—Rochester	Bill Wright—WIBG—Philadelphia	Jack Bennett—WHWB—Rutland	SOUTH: Tom Gillen—WTRL—Bradenton	Charlie Murdock—WQAM—Miami	Pat Chambers—WDAE—Tampa	Nick Ramsey—WFAA—Dallas	Lanny Roberts—KELP—El Paso	Sonny Sievers—KCTI—Gonzales	Bob Stevens—KILT—Houston	Beauregard Davis—WLOW—Norfolk	Joe Murray—WLEE—Richmond	MIDWEST: Wally Phillips—WGN—Chicago	Frosty Mitchell—KIOA—Des Moines	Don McLeod—WJBK—Detroit	Bill Bennett—WDGY—Minneapolis	Frank Allen—KOWH—Omaha	Rod Lucier—KYOX—Fargo, N. Dak.	Bill Dawes—WCPO—Cincinnati	Bill Dawson—WLMJ—Jackson, O.	John Michaels—WOKY—Milwaukee	FAR WEST: Dick Gilbert—KPOK—Scottsdale	Frank Kalil—KTKT—Tucson	Frank Pollack—KDAY—Hollywood	Don Lamond—KFOX—Long Beach	Ira Cook—KMPC—Los Angeles	Lash Lazaar—KXLA—Pasadena	Jim Catheart—KMYR—Denver	Paul Coburn—KLUB—Salt Lake City	Glenn Brooke—KRKO—Everett, Wash.	TOTAL POINTS
1	2	4	Platters	Mercury	†Twilight Time	1		4	1		3	7	8	4			1	10	3	2	2		1	1	2	5	1	2	1	4	1	2	1	8	10	4	2		3	4	6	2	1	246
2	3	3	David Seville	Liberty	*Witch Doctor			6			2		4	3	1	1	4	5	6	1	3	1	1	2	3	1	2		1	2	2	6	1		7	2	3	2		3		1	3		7	244
3	1	8	Laurie London	Capitol	*Wh'le W'rld in His H'nds		2	3	2			4		1		4	2	2	1			3	6	8	2	5	3	4		7	3	2	5		1		9	1			10	5	1	1		200
4	5	3	Art & Dotty Todd	Era	*Chanson D'Amour	3		10		10	9	2	9		3	7		10		9	9	4	4		10	4		5	4	5								1							124
5	17	2	Everly Bros.	Cadence	†All I H've to Do Is Dr'm			1					7					4		4				6	4	3	1	2		3	1	3	7		4										110
6	15	3	Elvis Presley	Victor	†Wear My Ring	6		7			4							3		2		7	2	5	6		6	8	9		5	5	6	3		3						9	9		104
7	4	7	Four Lads	Columbia	*There's Only One of You	2	8			7		5	5								5	8						9	7															78
8	9	5	Dean Martin	Capitol	*Return to Me	4	7				5				7	9		9							7		10	3	5	4	10				6	7	1			1			5		76
9	10	10	Connie Francis	MGM	*Who's Sorry Now			2	9					8		2	7		4			10	5				4							3	6		7	4							71
10	6	10	Champs	Challenge	†Tequila	3	5					6		2			3						3			10	8						9		5		8	6		4			64
11	12	4	Monotones	Argo	†Book of Love					2	7						9			10						6		6		6	8	8			3			9		8			53
12	13	2	Perry Como	Victor	*Kewpie Doll	5		7							4	3		7	9								7	9	6	9			7		1							5	52
13	45	2	Ricky Nelson	Imperial	†Believe What You Say			9														6		5		7				8	6	7	4		5						7		49
14	22	3	Sinatra-Smith	Capitol	*How Ya' Fixed for Love				3	5			3		10																													45
15	29	9	Pat Boone	Dot	†W'derful Time Up There		6					1		9			5		7															10			3	1			8		39
16A	19	6	Kathy Linden	Felsted	*Billy		4		10															9					3										8	2				30
16B	31	4	Ricky Nelson	Imperial	*My Bucket's Got a Hole	9														8					5						9		3	2		10			5		6		30
18A	30	7	Lou Monte	Victor	*Lazy Mary									6	6					7		9																					26
18B	7	8	Chordettes	Cadence	†Lollipop		1										6		8															8							4			26
20	39	8	Vic Damone	Columbia	*Gigi		9								2																				8	6								24
21A	8	12	Andy Williams	Cadence	†Are You Sincere		5									8	8																	2		7								22
21B	..	8	George Hamilton	ABC-Par	*Now and for Always		10		8			3						8											10								8	9		7				22
23	11	16	Perry Como	Victor	*Catch a Falling Star							10		5			10																									4		22
24	..	1	Eileen Rodgers	Columbia	*Careful, Careful					3			2																							6			4			10		21
25A	21	2	Paul Anka	ABC-Par	†Let Bells Keep Ringing	10												6							8									9									19
25B	25	9	Don Gibson	Victor	†Oh Lonesome Me			8												5														4									16
25C	..	7	Roger Williams	Kapp	*Arriverdeci Roma			4																							4												16
28A	28	2	Johnny Mathis	Columbia	*Teacher, Teacher	8								9							6	10													2								16
28B	..	1	4 Freshmen	Capitol	*Whistle Me Some Blues													3																			7		4				15
30	14	3	Ed Townsend	Capitol	†For Your Love					4					10																											15
31A	23	2	Nat King Cole	Capitol	*Looking Back								10										4	8													5						14
31B	..	1	Johnny Mathis	Columbia	*All the Time																7		9								7		8							9		13
31C	27	2	Fontane Sisters	Dot	*Chanson D'Amour																													5		4							13
34A	20	8	Ames Bros.	Victor	*A Very Precious Love	7																																					13
34B	..	19	McGuire Sisters	Coral	†Sugartime							8																							4								11
34C	..	1	Link Wray	Cadence	†Rumble								1																													3	11
37A	..	8	Johnny Nash	ABC-Par	*My Pledge to You					6			6																	10													11
37B	..	6	Voxpoppers	Mercury	†Wishing for Your Love				5																																		10
37C	..	1	Slades	Liberty	*You Mean Everything																										7												10
40A	26	5	Huey Smith	Ace	†Don't You Just Know It																															10						2	10
40B	35	19	Billy Vaughn	Dot	*Sail Along Silvery Moon													5								9								6						10			8
40C	..	3	Aquatones	Fargo	*You					9	6																									9							8
40D	..	8	Jimmie Rodgers	Roulette	*Long Hot Summer			6																				10															8
44	34	2	Kenny Rogers	Carlton	†Crazy Feeling															8					9																		8
45	16	11	Chuck Berry	Chess	†Sweet Little 16																		7																		6	7
																																						10						5

(Copyright Variety, Inc. All Rights Reserved)

Jukebox Copyright Bill

Continued from page 71

rights which were removed under a law in 1909 which did not anticipate development of jukeboxes. The problem, he said, is one of "exploitation."

Testifying briefly for the measure was Sen. William Langer (R-N.D.), who had once been in charge of similar legislation. Sen Langer expressed hope that the time for action had arrived.

Herman Finkelstein, counsel for ASCAP, testified that there is no basis for fear on the part of jukebox operators that they would be seriously injured by passage of the bill. "There is no reason to suppose," he said, "that any copyright owner will price himself out of the market. The industry certainly can pay something for these works. We are willing to ascertain with the aid of this Committee, having before it representatives of all who will be affected, what would be a fair amout. But so far the jukebox industry has refused to discuss any payment."

Finkelstein also pointed out that ASCAP cannot make "unreasonable" demands because of a consent decree which permits the Federal court to fix the price if the parties cannot agree.

Sydney M. Kaye, board chairman and counsel for BMI, said his organization would not object to allowing a lapse of time between pasasge of the bill and its effective date for fee bargaining with the juxebox operators on "an amicable and sensible basis.".

Kaye said the jukebox operators have had "a free ride" for 50 years and that the historical reasons for their exemption under the Copyright Law "have vanished into the mists of history."

John Schulman, counsel for the Songwriters Protective Assn., said the only "actual opponents" of the bill are the jukebox operators and manufacturers. The others listed as oppoents, he said, do not oppose the measure in principle. The American Hotel Assn. insists only on an "appropriate" system of licensing. The record industry, he said, is divided, and the National Licensed Beverage Assn. (tavern operators) is concerned with protection against infringement suits.

John Koshel Jr., counsel for SESAC, disputed the argument that since jukebox operators already pay for records they should not have to pay performance rights. It is "the specific use" to which a composition is put, he said, that determines payment and the law declares that performances for profit of copyrighted music require authorization of the copyright owner.

Juke Ops Oppose

Tenor of the opposition was reflected in testimony by George Miller, prexy of Music Operators of America. ASCAP, he said, once sponsored a bill which would have required small jukebox operators to pay it $1,560 a year and would have yielded the Society $26,000,000 or the equivalent of its total revenue in 1957.

For this reason, he said, "we doubt the sincerity of ASCAP's assurances that the fees they would charge us, if this bill passes, would be reasonable."

Miller predicted that record sales would fall off at least one-third and that a third of the jukeboxes would be removed if the bill passes. Not only music operators but the small songwriter and publisher would suffer, he said. Jukebox operators, he asserted, have paid at least $2,000,000 a year in royalties in recent years, which goes directly to songwriters and publishers.

Also opposing the bill were Music Operators of New York, National Licensed Beverage Assn. (tavern operators), leading jukebox makers National Assn. of Small Business, various operators and distributors.

Songwriters appearing for the bill included Otto Harbach, Richard Adler, Carolyn Leigh, John D. Marks, James F. McHugh, Stuart Hamblen, Bernie Wayne.

Others were Dr. Douglas Moore, Mrs. Vera Dougan, Edwin Hughes, Burton Lane, James Thomas Mrs. Bonnie Bourne, Mrs. Helen Sousa Abert, and David Krengler.

Bergman, Winters Join Coral Artists' Roster

Joining the ranks of society bandleaders on wax, Eddie Bergman's orch has been inked by Coral Records. Bergman, currently appearing at the Terrace Room of the Statler-Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles, plays at the numerous top society functions on the Coast.

Coral, at the same time, has signed comedian Jonathan Winters to a term deal.

On The Upbeat

New York

Tommy Valando is latest music publisher to ankle the Brill Building for headquarters on West 57th St. . . In reference to Vernon Duke's gag song title in his piece in last week's VARIETY, jazz buff Nat Hentoff reveals that Ralph Burns wrote "A Cool Cat On A Hot Tin Roof" several years ago and that it was recorded by Woody Herman for Capitol Records . . . Columbia Records Phonograph Division's "Listening In Depth" four-color mag ad was voted "best magazine ad of the year" by the Art Directors Club of N.Y. . . . Marco Rizo, Tico disker, signed by the Statler hotel chain for dates in the U.S. and Latin-America . . . Don Elliott guests on Art Ford's "Greenwich Village Party" (WABD) Friday (2) and plays a jazz concert at Murphy's, Brooklyn, Sunday (4).

The "Dick Clark Caravan" plays Ebbet's Field May 30-31 as part of the New York Summer Festival . . . Sonny Rollins continues the Spring Festival of Jazz at the Black Pearl tomorrow (Thurs.) . . . Jimmie Daniels, Bon Soir's singing host back at the club minor surgery . . . Irving Fields received a gold centennial medal of the city of Managua for his tune "Managua-Nicaragua Is A Wonderful Place" . . . Gene Feehan's "Adventures in Modern Music" (WFUV-FM) begins its 13th year tomorrow (Thurs.) . . . Evdie Gorme into the Palmer House, Chicago, May 8-June 4 . . . Steve Lawrence set for the Latin Casino, Philly, May 5-10 . . . Vaughn Monroe goes into the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, May 20 through May 25.

London

Louis Armstrong is first non-classical musician to be asked to play at the Edinburgh Festival this year . . . Mills Music to handle the trade side of the Florida Music Co. and the newly formed Budd Music Co. . . . Songstress Vera Lynn offered another longterm contract with the BBC. It will start in September . . . The "Birdland All-Stars" offered concert tour of Britain for late Summer.

Hollywood

Sterling Mossman, Hawaii's only policeman holding an AGVA card, heading for the mainland to plug his new Decca set, "The Hula Cop" . . . Bob York, Coast chief for RCA Victor, back in town from huddles in Gotham . . . Arranger-conductor Jack Marshall inked to pen an album of pop marches for the Fred Waring Singers . . . Si Rady, RCA Victor a&r man, inked the Nagel Sisters, four local youngsters, to a recording pact . . . John Harding will narrate three musical disks for Hi-Fi Records.

Chicago

Jack Teagarden's sextet set for a July 30 entry at the Preview Lounge here . . . Harry James orch at Omaha's Ak-Sar-Ben May 26-27. . . . Jimmy Jett fivesome, with Sherry Martin, signed for a fortnight at the Ft. Wayne Embers, June 30 . . . Dakota Staton, current at the Blue Note here, has a week starting May 19 at Cleveland's Modern Jazz Room, and another single stanza, as of June 2, at Philly's Showboat.

Philadelphia

Bill Haley's manager Lord Jim Ferguson has set him for a run at the Brussels World's Fair. . . . Carmen McRae and the Lee Vincent orch will be in May 9 for the spring dance of Penn State's Ogontz Center, at the Sheraton . . . Damita Jo is leaving her husband, Steve Gibson (Red Caps), to work as a single . . . Barbara McNair headlines the Beth-El Jubilee Ball at the Sheraton May 10 . . . Steve Lawrence booked into the Latin Casino, May 5-10, followed by Don Cornell, 12-21 . . . Modern Jazz Quartet plays the Red Hill Inn April 25-27.

Vancouver

New Jazz Society three-day fest, set for May 25-27, to showcase 10 combos, three big crews and tv thrush Terry Dale . . . Frances Jordan, tv singer, making her bistro debut with Pat Trudell Quartet at Gulf Club . . . Rhythm Pals taped a guest shot with Jimmy Wakely and company at local CKWX for CBS month-end airing . . . maestro George Calangis stepped down from AFM Local 145 executive due to crowded tv-radio concert sked . . . John Emerson Co. and fiddler Arthur Polson in their umpteenth week at Arctic privatery . . . Jack Bourne crew into resident spot at West Coast Club.

Pittsburgh

Ralph De Stefano combo replaces Gabe D'Amico and the Gabe-a-Tones as the house band at the Town House next Monday (5) . . . Peter Carew's option has been picked up indefinitely at the Gold Key Room of the Kennilworth Restaurant . . . Chico Hamilton quintet opened Monday (28) at the Copa for a week . . . Mickey Greco orch tagged for the weekends at Merry-Go-Round . . . Marty King band set for summer season at Colonial Manor, next door to the White Barn strawhat, which opens May 31 . . . Jerry Betters foursome begins indefinite stay Monday (5) at Hollywood Show Bar in East Pittsburgh.

Omaha

Lela Harper has taken over organ duties at the Pineboard Lounge . . . Charlie Budtka trio opened at Ladd's . . . William Warfield booked for City Aud Music Hall Monday (5) under auspices of Corinth Baptist Church . . . Dick & Jeri Fuller vocalizing at their own Papio Bar . . . Bob Wills & Texas Playboys featured on country music show slated for the Paramount Theatre tomorrow (1) . . . Gail Cavanah & Blue Ridge Boys booked for Ak-Sar-Ben's Square Dance Festival May 16-17.

RETAIL ALBUM BEST SELLERS

VARIETY

Survey of retail album best sellers based on reports from leading stores and showing comparative ratings for this week and last.

National Rating This wk.	Last wk.	Artist, Label, Title	New York—(R. H. Macy Co.)	Boston—(Jordan Marsh Co.)	Albany—(Ten Eyck Record Shop)	Washington—(Disc Shop)	Pittsburgh—(National Record)	Chicago—(Lyon-Healy)	Miami—(Spec's Record Shop)	Dallas—(Titche-Goettinger)	San Antonio—(San Antonio Music)	Louisville—(Shackleton Piano)	Atlanta—(Rich's Dept. Store)	Memphis—(Trent Wood Records)	Indianapolis—(Ayres)	Minneapolis—(Dayton's Dept. Str.)	Cleveland—(Highbee's)	Kansas City—(Katz Drug Co.)	Portland—(6th Ave. Record Shop)	San Francisco—(Sherman Clay Co.)	Denver—(Denver Dry Goods)	Hollywood—(Wallich's Music City)	Seattle—(Frederick & Nelson)	TOTAL POINTS
1	1	MUSIC MAN (Capitol) Original Cast (WRO 990)	4	4	3	1	2	1	2	3	2	5	..	..	1	1	1	1	2	2	1	4	..	149
2	2	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) Come Fly With Me (W 920)	5	2	1	2	..	6	1	2	..	10	..	2	3	6	..	4	..	..	2	7	2	100
3	4	SOUTH PACIFIC (Victor) Soundtrack (LOC 1032)	..	1	4	8	..	3	3	1	..	..	7	..	6	..	3	2	..	..	6	8	..	80
4	3	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) Warm (CL 1078)	..	3	..	3	7	2	4	4	..	1	4	..	5	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	74
5A	8	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) Johnny's Greatest Hits (CL 1133)	6	..	..	..	1	5	..	..	..	..	..	..	10	5	4	5	..	8	..	1	3	62
5B	5	MY FAIR LADY (Columbia) Original Cast (CL 5090)	2	8	2	6	..	4	..	..	4	9	..	..	2	..	..	..	6	..	5	..	..	62
7	9	SOUTH PACIFIC (Columbia) Original Cast (B 2579-80)	1	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	7	2	..	5	..	..	..	..	7	42
8A	6	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Till (KL 1081)	9	10	..	..	3	..	8	..	3	..	10	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	4	..	1	41
8B	7	AROUND THE WORLD (Decca) Soundtrack (DL 9046)	..	5	..	..	..	..	5	..	1	..	5	..	9	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	8	41
10	13	CARMEN CAVALLARO (Decca) Remembers Duchin (DL 8661)	..	..	10	..	..	9	6	9	..	6	2	7	..	8	..	..	..	..	8	..	..	34
11	17	PAT BOONE (Dot) Pat's Great Hits (DLP 3071)	8	..	..	7	..	7	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	33
12	12	JONAH JONES (Capitol) Swinging On Broadway (T 963)	..	..	..	..	9	8	..	..	..	..	3	6	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	2	..	29
13A	23	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Golden Records (LPM 1707)	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	7	..	..	6	7	..	..	9	..	26
13B	10	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) Good Night Dear Lord (CL 1119)	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	1	7	..	..	26
15	15	WAYNE KING (Decca) Dream Time (DL 8663)	..	..	7	..	10	..	..	8	6	..	6	10	..	10	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	24
16A	19	DAKOTA STATON (Capitol) Late Late Show (T 876)	3	6	..	5	8	10	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	23
16B	16	BILLY VAUGHN (Dot) Sail Along Silvery Moon (DLP 3100)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	10	5	23
18	18	KING & I (Capitol) Sountrack (W 740)	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	22
19	25	FOUR ACES (Decca) Hits From Hollywood (DL 8693)	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	19
20	..	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) This Is Sinatra Vol. II (W 982)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	5	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	3	..	18
21A	22	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Fabulous Fifties (KXL 5000)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	14
21B	..	TENNESSEE ERNIE (Capitol) Hymns (T 756)	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	9	8	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	14
21C	21	MANTOVANI (London) Film Encores (LL 1700)	..	7	6	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	6	..	..	..	..	..	14
24A	11	OKLAHOMA (Capitol) Soundtrack (SAO 595)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	7	..	..	8	..	8	..	..	..	..	..	..	10
24B	24	BRIDGE ON RIVER KWAI (Col.) Soundtrack (CL 1100)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	10	..	..	..	..	10

M-G-M Records

Executive offices moved to 1540 Broadway, New York, N. Y., JU 2-2000

MORTY CRAFT and His ORCHESTRA and CHORUS

PICKED BY CASH BOX

LONG LEGGED LADIES OF LABRADOR

K12648 on 45 & 78 rpm

ART MOONEY and His ORCHESTRA and CHORUS

SOMETHING'S ALWAYS HAPPENING ON THE RIVER

(From the Broadway musical, "Say, Darling")

K12649 on 45 & 78 rpm

LEROY HOLMES and His ORCHESTRA

BASIN STREET BLUES

K12650

SPECIAL ALBUM RELEASES

An MGM Record Album from the NBC Spectacular

RED BUTTONS BARBARA COOK

HANSEL and GRETEL

also Starring

RUDY VALLEE • STUBBY KAYE

PAULA LAWRENCE

E3690

The FERRERS

ROSEMARY CLOONEY JOSE FERRER

Sings Selections from the Broadway Musical Comedy —

"OH CAPTAIN!"

E3687

Inside Stuff—Music

Continued from page 73

and that that was the reason the number became popular, rather than its use while he was in the White House. He said he doesn't dislike the waltz really "but I just got tired of it—after all they played it 30,000 times or more during the 1948 presidential campaign."

Hottest foreign disk click in Japan today is Paul Anka's "Diana" (ABC-Par) which has sold 20,000 copies since its Jan. 31 release, 10,000 of them in first four weeks of circulation. Record also received top spot on a Nippon version of "Your Hit Parade" on JOQR (Tokyo Bunko Hosó). ABC correspondent Ray Falk said the company only started releasing disks in Japan Jan. 31 through King Records. Flip side is "Don't Gamble With Love." Another Anka disk, "I Love You Baby" backed by "You Are My Destiny," is slated for Tokyo release momentarily.

After a 30-year layoff, songwriter Buddy Valentine has returned to the music biz as an active cleffer and has just been elected to membership in ASCAP. Back in the 1920s, Valentine wrote songs in collaboration with Sam Coslow, Jack Yellen and Pinky Herman.

Private recordings made by John Hammond of the "Spirituals to Swing" concerts at New York's Carnegie Hall in 1938-39 will go into the market under the Vanguard banner. Hammond, director of Vanguard's Jazz Showcase series, will put the tapings into two LP's for fall release. Among those participating in the concerts were singers such as Joe Turner and Big Bill Broonzy and bands headed by Count Basie and Benny Goodman.

The Catholic mass has been packaged into an LP by the Carmelite Father's Guild. The album, tagged "This Is The Mass," is owned by the Carmelite Father's Guild and all royalties will go to the Catholic Church.

Johnny Nash is the latest disker to get a crack at a pic career. The ABC-Paramount crooner has been tapped by Hecht-Hill-Lancaster for a role in the upcoming "Take A Giant Step." Nash, a regular on the Arthur Godfrey Show (CBS), will be given a leave of absence for the pic assignment.

The Modern Jazz Quartet, which makes its first solo concert appearance at New York's Town Hall May 12, will work without an emcee, customary at jazz bashes. Instead, the Town Hall program will be utilized for program notes as is done with longhair concerts.

18 Nations In On Paris Powwow Of Mercury-Barclay

Paris, April 22.

Mercury Record reps from 18 countries wound up a four-day convention here last week (15) hosted by the French Mercury outlet, Barclay Records. Besides biz talks, the group was treated to a one-night concert of Mercury and Barclay names and an evening trip down the Seine on the Bateau Mouche while dining.

Irving Green, Mercury prexy, was in for the confabs. The company's international outlook is following current European economic patterns in instituting a sort of common mart setup. New releases are geared to hit all over the world simultaneously, and saving measures include pressing in one spot, Holland, and making all jackets in Italy. Other outlets are thus easily serviced from one place.

Mercury is also using its overseas licensees' catalogs for Yank releases. Stereo sound disks and tapes were also discussed. Bruce Somers, stationed in Geneva, did the planning and Eddie and Nicole Barclay hosted. A different country hosts every year. Mercury places jazz, pops and classics with all its representative companies and controls jacket art work from N. Y.

URANIA INTO STEREO WITH MAY RELEASE

Urania Records is jumping into the stereo stampede this week with two ballet recordings cut by the London Philharmonic Orchestra. The ballets are "La Boutique Fantastique" and "Gaiete Parisienne," both are conducted Rene Liebowitz.

Seig Bart, Urania's prexy, has blueprinted a heavy ad and promotion schedule for the label's releases to get label's stereo message across before the major companies move in. Stereo package also includes other longhair works and also "Society Dances to Milt Shaw and His Orchestra at the St. Regis."

Urania's stereo disks employ the standard Westrex 45/45 system and will list at $5.95.

Jacob Krachmalnick, concertmaster of the Philadelphia Orchestra, has resigned to enter the solo concert field. He will stay through the season and accompany the Orchestra on its two-month European tour.

COAST TOOTER CLUB IN BANKROLL SUIT

Los Angeles, April 29.

The Musicians Club, currently embroiled in a jurisdictional battle between AFM Local 47 and supporters of newly-formed Musicians Guild of America, is named in action brought by Security-First National Bank in Superior Court.

Suit, seeking to determine rights to bank accounts belonging to Club, specifies 14 individuals who constitute the old board and newly-elected directorate. Bank states it has accounts in name of Club with a balance of $29,700, and asks court to determine who is entitled to make withdrawals.

3 GREAT RECORDS

CAREFUL, CAREFUL
EILEEN RODGERS Columbia

CHERIE, I LOVE YOU
PAT BOONE Dot

TIPTOE THRU THE TULIPS
RUSS HAMILTON Kapp

MUSIC PUBLISHERS HOLDING CORPORATION

We're Headin' For

HOT SPELL

From the Paramount Picture

"HOT SPELL"

Recorded by

MARGARET WHITING

DON

ERNIE FELICE

VICTOR

FAMOUS MUSIC CORPORATION

THE BEST OF HOLLYWOOD IS ON RCA VICTOR RECORDS

The unusually beautiful Max Steiner music comes from what is going to be one of the biggest movie successes of all time. Watch this sensational album zoom to first place... fast!

And look at this great advertising support: Exciting national campaign including ads in Esquire, Holiday, The New Yorker, Saturday Review • Special four color point-of-sale material • National spot and television exposure • Local radio spot announcements • Tremendous nationwide newspaper coverage.

P. S. And... be sure to get your share of the profits from the Ames Brothers' great Pop single, "A Very Precious Love"—the big hit song from this great movie.

RCA VICTOR

Band Review

BUDDY WAPLES ORCH (8)
With Charee
Hotel Muehlebach, Kansas City

The periodic change of musical units on the bandstand of the Terrace Grill has brought in Buddy Waples for the present spell. New to the room, he is in from the southwest where he has played leading hotels and clubs for some time.

The assignment in the Grill is to play for dancing sessions, as well as backing the twice nightly shows, and for this purpose Waples has instrumentation of three saxes, trumpet-trombone double, string bass, piano, violin and drums. He also is emphasizing strings with pair of violin doubles which added to the solo violin give him an effective trio. Waples leads out from the keyboard.

This roundup also provides considerable versatility as required for the requests for Latins, fox trots, rhythm tunes and vocals. In the voice section Charee leads out soloing on pop tunes, but there are also some specialties in which Waples teams with her on novelty tunes. Don Bartell, drums, and Larry Robert, bass, also chime in for vocal work.

Violin work is desirable for this intimate room and Waples and crew likely will hold for a spell. Quin.

JACK SHERWOOD TRIO
With Dorothy Blair
Southern Club
Hot Springs

Some rating as an entertainment spot has accrued to Hot Springs as a result of its "season" of racing and the surge of gambling interest in the hot water resort. A certain amount of entertainment prevails regularly, except through the hottest months, however, and one of the units becoming better known is Jack Sherwood and his crew. They're in their fifth engagement in the mainstem Southern Club (restaurant, bar, casino, lounge), each stop being for several months at a time.

While playing for dancing is a primary assignment, the Sherwood crew is also called on to entertain, and so offers a good deal more on the vocal and special instrumental side. Sherwood taps the drums, doubles on trombone, does the m.c. honors, and warbles a flock of tunes, and his pace is typical of the versatility of the whole crew, except for Dorothy Blair who is called upon only vocals in her unusually low register.

Sherwood has Lee Moreno at piano, doubling on Hammond and accordion, and Archie Giola on reeds, doubling violin. From this array they can give proper handling to a variety of rhythms and styles, and thus they pretty much mix it up, as the customers like it. All take turns at singing, some in solos, some in duos and other group numbers. They make the lounge a ready place to drop in and stay awhile, evidently why they stay awhile in the spot. Quin.

SINTON, TEX., STATION SUED BY PUBBERIES

Another indie radio station, KANN in Sinton, Tex., has been ticketed by the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers for alleged infringement of copyright tunes in a suit filed recently in Texas Federal Court. Suit was brought by five ASCAP publishers, Lerner & Loewe, Williamson Music, Chappell, New World Music and Harms Inc., all of whom charged that their tunes were performed by KANN without a license. Plaintiffs ask for damages of $250 for each unauthorized performance, an injunction and court costs.

Similar suits have been brought by ASCAP publishers against a string of other indie radio outlets across the country in recent months.

Sidney Griller will succeed Piero Bellugi as conductor of the U. of California Symphony, starting in June. He and the Griller String Quartet have been named to full-time positions on the Berkeley faculty.

2d TIMEX ALL-STAR JAZZ SHOW
April 30, CBS-TV, 10-11 P.M., EDT
LOUIS ARMSTRONG
And His All Stars
LIONEL HAMPTON
And His Orchestra
GERRY MULLIGAN
Quartette
GEORGE SHEARING
And His Quintette
GENE KRUPA
JACK TEAGARDEN
And His Jazz Band
DUKES of DIXIELAND
COZY COLE
ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION
JOE GLASER, Pres.
745 Fifth Ave. New York 22, N.Y. Phone: PLaza 9-4600
203 N. Wabash Ave Chicago, Ill. Phone: CEntral 6-9451
407 Lincoln Rd. Miami Beach, Fla. Phone: JEfferson 8-0383
8619 Sunset Blvd. H'wood 46, Calif. Phone: OLympia 2-9940

VARIETY Scoreboard
OF
TOP TALENT AND TUNES

Compiled from Statistical Reports of Distribution Encompassing the Three Major Outlets
Coin Machines Retail Disks Retail Sheet Music
as Published in the Current Issue

NOTE: The current comparative sales strength of the Artists and Tunes listed hereunder is arrived at under a statistical system comprising each of the three major sales outlets enumerated above. These findings are correlated with data from wider sources, which are exclusive with VARIETY. The positions resulting from these findings denote the OVERALL IMPACT developed from the ratio of points scored, two ways in the case of talent (coin machines, retail disks) and three ways in the case of tunes (coin machines, retail disks and retail sheet music).

TALENT

POSITIONS This Week	POSITIONS Last Week	ARTIST AND LABEL	TUNE
1	2	DAVID SEVILLE (Liberty)	Witch Doctor*
2	1	PLATTERS (Mercury)	Twilight Time†
3	5	EVERLY BROS. (Cadence)	All I Have To Do Is Dream†
4	3	LAURIE LONDON (Capitol)	Whole World In His Hands*
5	8	DEAN MARTIN (Capitol)	Return To Me*
6	4	CHAMPS (Challenge)	Tequila†
7		ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor)	Wear My Ring†
8	9	PERRY COMO (Victor)	Catch A Falling Star* Kewpie Doll*
9		ART & DOTTY TODD (Era)	Chanson D'Amour*
10		PAT BOONE (Dot)	Wonderful Time Up There† Too Soon To Know* Sugar Moon†

TUNES

POSITIONS This Week	POSITIONS Last Week	TUNE	PUBLISHER
1	2	†TWILIGHT TIME	Porgie
2	4	*WITCH DOCTOR	Monarch
3	1	*WHOLE WORLD IN HIS HANDS	Chappell
4	8	†ALL I HAVE TO DO IS DREAM	Acuff-Rose
5	3	†TEQUILA	Jat
6	9	*RETURN TO ME	Southern
7	7	*CATCH A FALLING STAR	Marvin
8		†WEAR MY RING	Rush-Presley
9	5	*WHO'S SORRY NOW	Mills
10		*CHANSON D'AMOUR	Meadow Lark

(*ASCAP †BMI F-Films)

Album Reviews

Continued from page 72

For Latin Americans" (RCA Victor). More of Belmonte's intriguing Latino tempos is on display here. The package's sharp south-of-the-border flavor is brought into focus with some standards like "Moonlight Love," "I Can't Get Started" and "Body and Soul" as well as some fine new offerings like "Melody in Cha-Cha," "A Kiss And A Rose" and "Felicia's Bolero."

Daniel De Carlo Orch: "Moonlight Madness" (Decca). This package, recorded in Europe, follows the mood music pattern with an easy-flowing melodic design. The sound is full-blown and richly conceived and the mood buffs should single it out for spins. "Stella By Starlight" and "Love Affair" indicate just what kind of mood maestro De Carlo is in.

"David Allen Sings Jerome Kern" (World Pacific). David Allen, who has worked as vocalist with several orchs, is a finished crooner with warm pipes, lucid phrasing and a good sense of timing. This collection of Kern melodies, including "Lovely To Look At," "The Way You Look Tonight," "In Love In Vain," "The Folks Who Live On The Hill," "I've Told Every Little Star," and others, is handled in consistently listenable style. Johnny Mandel's orch backs up solidly.

Australian Jazz Quintet: "Selection of Rodgers & Hammerstein" (Bethlehem). The vogue for jazz interpretations of showtunes and standards has been growing steadily during the past year and the Australian Jazz Quintet's workover of Rodgers & Hammerstein's tunes shows that the trend can keep going for sometime to come. For every jazzster has his own way of doing things and looks at a song in a different way. In this package the Australians show a fine appreciation for R&H and work their pieces into hip jazz items that show off the group's musicianship, maturity and imagination. Herm.

Showtunes

Continued from page 71

package as against a 1½c for the lowpriced $1.49-$1.98 product.

However, E. H. Morris, currently represented with the Harold Arlen-Yip Harburg score for "Jamaica," that the advance and guaranteed sales deal offered by the lowprices is secondary to how the property will be presented. Sidney Kornheiser, Morris' general professional manager, claims that in a show score the publishers and disk companies are working with topranking writers and the handling of the score property has to be done to their liking as well as the show's producers. "We've got to be careful that the property isn't cheapened," he added, "therefore the money consideration offered by the lowprice outfits is the least of the problems."

The attitude at Chappell, which represents such top cleffers' as Rodgers & Hammerstein, Lerner & Loewe, Cole Porter, Harold Rome, etc., is that there will be no cut-rate royalty deals. A Chappell spokesman summed it up this way, "We're not hungry for money."

MOA

Continued from page 71

the agenda is a plan to hookup with Peter Potter's "Juke Box Jury." Alliance would name-change the Coast deejay's video stanza to "Peter Potter-MOA Juke Box Jury," backed by a national ad-publicity campaign pegged to an identifying logo for prominent display in all promotion and on MOA jukes. It's hoped that Potter's on-camera pitching will generate more play of location phonographs. Potter will p.a. at the convention, and his tie-up with MOA, which Miller indicates will keystone the ad-pub program, appears certain of member approval.

Assuming the agenda accurately reflects the operators' anxiety, the copyright fight is a priority issue, for it's the first order of business at Tuesday's plenary session where it will be explored by Nicholas E. Allen, MOA's new legal counsel.

Miller expects some 3,000 ops to make the convention.

Mills on top with . . .
• BILLY KATHY LINDEN on Felsted
• WHO'S SORRY NOW CONNIE FRANCIS on M-G-M
• I'M GETTIN' SENTIMENTAL OVER YOU NELSON RIDDLE on Capitol
• ONE MORNING IN MAY JOSE MELIS on Seeco
• OVER AND OVER GUY LOMBARDO on Capitol
• GIRL OF MY DREAMS GERRY GRANAHAN on Sunbeam
• HOW COME YOU DO ME SAVINA CATTIVA on Love
MILLS MUSIC, INC.

SEEK AGVA TAKEOVER BY 4A'S

N'West Fair-Happy; Portland's '59 Centennial, Seattle's '61 Expo

World's Fair and Centennial preparations to draw an estimated 14,000,000 are being made in the Northwest. Portland will have a 100-day Centennial show combined with an International Trade Fair, while a national survey is being conducted to assist in the planning of the midway for the World Science and Pan-Pacific Exposition slated to open in Seattle in May, 1961.

The Portland event will open June 10 and run through Sept. 17, 1959. One of the items being planned is an aqua theatre to rise alongside the exposition building on the Columbia River. Centennial will also have a gayway, Disney type area exhibits such as a frontier town, boomtown and an operating railroad. Main structure, Pacific Exposition Bldg., will be the centre of the layout, to contain 11 acres of exposition space and 54 adjoining acres. International Trade Fair will be held outside the main building.

There will be an 8,000-seat auditorium which will probably have name shows. Floyd Maxwell, expo's managing director, has been inquiring about talent from California agencies. Layout will be among the biggest events of its kind seen on the Pacific Coast since the San Francisco World's Fair. Attendance of 4,000,000 and income of over $5,000,000 are anticipated. The 1957 Legislature has already allotted $830,000 as the starting appropriation.

The Seattle shindig will be on a 90-acre lot near downtown Seattle and is being financed by a $15,000,000 city-state bond issue. Additional support, including creation of a Federal Fair Commission, is being sought in legislation now before Congress. City and state condemnation of land is expected to be completed in time for construction to start in 1959.

Facilities to be built include a 3,000-seat concert hall which will have a stage 64 feet in depth, a multi-purpose convention auditorium to seat 1,000 and possibly an amusement pier. Site selected also includes Seattle's Ice Arena which can seat 56,000 for sports events, State Armory Expo building, and a 12,000-seat stadium.

The Standford Research Institute retained by the Washington World's Fair Commission has estimated a minimum 10,000,000 attendance over a 16-month run.

'ICE FOLLIES' GROSSES $264,000 IN MPLS.

Minneapolis, April 29.

Playing their annual engagement at the 6,000-seat Arena at $3.85 top, the Shipstad-Johnson "Ice Follies" drew 112,384 customers, or an estimated gross of $264,000 for 22 performances. Average attendance was 5,168.

Last season show pulled 119,618, or an estimated $280,000, averaging 4,600 attendance, for 26 performances.

Pleasure Beach's $1.50 Gate Fee to 'Furriners'

Bridgeport, April 29.

To help lure back the hometowners to Pleasure Beach, municipally-owned amusement park which Bert Nathan has leased from the city, a $1.50 admission fee will hereafter be charged out-of-state residents who come to the resort by car, boat and bus.

Overflowing of Pleasure Beach facilities by New York groups has been a big bone of contention here in recent years. New management also expects to demand permits from groups seeking to use picnic facilities.

Nathan is going to splurge advertising-wise in his first season, with reported budget of $30,000 for newspapers, radio and outdoor boards. John P. Kelly has been hired as publicity director and Don Becker as promotion director.

Borge's 11G in Atlanta

Atlanta, April 29.

Victor Borge's brand of hoke (little of it new) got laughs and chuckles from two-thirds of a house Wednesday (23) in Atlanta's 5,000-seat Municipal Auditorium for a $11,024 gross.

Night before his appearance here Borge did $9,678 in Birmingham. High spot of his 16-day tour of Dixie came when he drew $16,820 at a show in Orlando, Fla., for benefit that burg's Youth Center.

Borge was booked for his Southern swing by Marvin McDonald, manager of Atlanta Music Club's All Star Concert Series.

New Nixon Nitery, Pitt, Reopens as 'New Arena' But on an Iffy Basis

Pittsburgh, April 29.

New Nixon, big downtown nitery which was padlocked couple of weeks ago because of mounting money troubles, got going again last Wednesday (23) under new management but, for the time being anyway, pretty much on an iffy basis. James Fallon, who picked up the chairs and tables for $500 at a sheriff's auction, is the president of the corporation which has taken over the room, and the reopening was a hurried one merely to cash in on a lawyers' convention party of 500 which had been booked sometime back.

Name was changed to the New Arena Restaurant, and at the moment the spot is operating without a liquor license pending action by the State Liquor Control Board. Morey Amsterdam opened Friday (25) but didn't know whether he would play only the weekend or 10 days, which was the original booking.

Back wages amounting to around $4,000 are owed musicians and waiters, and unions representing them are demanding that Fallon clear up the indebtedness. He feels that this is an obligation of the old corporation and doesn't feel he should be penalized. Before reopening, Fallon put up bond money with Musicians Local 60, AGVA and the waiters union covering only first four days since he wasn't sure whether he would continue beyond early this week if the liquor license didn't come through and the back pay matters weren't straightened out.

In the meantime, added liens by the Federal Government were filed against the old New Nixon corporation but according to Harold Gray and James Martier, the then principal stockholders, there are enough accounts receivable put to clear up, when collected, not only tax debts but also the wages owed musicians and waiters.

Fallon hopes to get cleared away as soon as possible because room has a string of bowling league banquets booked through May and part of June and he doesn't want to lose them to other spots. At the moment, however, the status remains pretty muddled. For the reopening, guests were told they could bring their own booze from a liquor store only a few doors away and the corkage and setups were added to their bills.

New D. C. Nitery

Washington, April 29.

Washington is getting a new nitery to be located on the site of the former Coral Room. Harry Snyder is opening the Cafe de Paree on May 16 with a show including Zsa Zsa Gabor, Joey Adams and Nejla Ates, plus a 16-girl line. Spot seats 750.

Other dates booked for the spot include Buddy Hackett and Peggy King set for May 26, and Sophie Tucker signed for June 27.

INVESTIGATION OF BRIGHT SOUGHT

The executive committee of the Philadelphia branch of the American Guild of Variety Artists last week passed a resolution asking the Associated Actors and Artistes of America to take over the affairs and the administration of AGVA until such time as the 4A's can dispose of charges recently sent them by Dick Jones, former eastern regional director of the union. The 4As were asked to safeguard the interests of the membership as well as the assets of the union, its welfare trust fund and the sick and relief fund.

In addition to the takeover of the union, the resolution asked that the board set a specific date for the hearing of the charges; that AGVA national administrative secretary Jackie Bright and AGVA attorney Harold Berg (also counsel for the 4As) be disqualified from hearing these charges, that all records of the union from 1950 on be studied.

In addition, the resolution asked a thorough study of the union's sick and relief fund administered by Margie Coate. One of the strong points of the resolution was a study of all specific loans and grants to national board members past and present, as well as to rank and file members. In addition, the resolution asked a study of the use of the sick and relief fund during the strike last year of the Ringling Bros and Barnum & Bailey Circus. Motion asked to determine whether performers who walked out of the circus were paid out of the s&r monies, and whether

(Continued on page 82)

Rebels Quiet, Havana Spots Start to Perk

With rebel activity on the downbeat, Havana is starting to show vestiges of its pre-revolutionary prosperity. The Havana Riviera hotel, for example played to capacity on Saturday (26), in its Copa Room.

The hotels had been doing very badly during the height of the rebel activity last month when a general strike was called. However, tourism is returning now that the shooting war has all but disappeared in Havana.

Another sign of confidence that all will be peaceful in Havana is seen by the fact that negotiations are on for "Holiday on Ice" to play the new Sports City starting May 24 for four weeks.

The past weekend comprised the biggest business spurt since the guns started booming. Most of the biz came from Miami Beach. At the same time, native Cubans started making the rounds again, with travel at night now considered safe.

The other hotels, including the Nacional and Capri have also been hitting an uptake while tourists are no longer fearful of making the comparatively long trip to the Tropicana and Sans Souci on the outskirts of the town.

Book Miyoshi Umeki Into Blue Angel, N.Y.

Academy Award winner Miyoshi Umeki will finally open at the Blue Angel, N. Y., tomorrow (Thurs.) after last-minutes attempts to get a postponement were turned down by the spot. Japanese filmster has been booked for the Dinah Shore tele show June 1, and William Morris Agency, now handling her, asked that engagement be delayed since agreed upon closing date. May 28 would be too close to allow for adequate rehearsals.

A compromise was agreed on to permit her to close May 24, and she'll be paid for four weeks while working three and a half weeks.

Hotels Mushroom in Vegas; See Salary Ceiling of 25G on Stars As Per-Capita Gambling Drops

By FORREST DUKE

Las Vegas, April 29...

Although the saturation point apparently hasn't been reached as far as the number of hotels in Vegas is concerned, it's likely that talent salaries have reached a standard limit.

A new hotel, the Desert Spa, has just opened, the Stardust is skedded for a summer unveiling, and efforts are being made to reopen the shuttered New Frontier and Royal Nevada. The Desert Spa, with only 60 rooms, obviously will rely on its casino as a main source of revenue. The operators are counting on the low-budget ($10,000 per week) show to be attractive enough to pull in a sufficient number of players—losing players, that is—to keep the operation in the black. The Desert Spa was supposed to open over three years ago when actor Pat O'Brien was associated with the venture, but a series of setbacks, including the State Gambling Control Board's refusal to okay certain applicants on the license, delayed the teeoff until now.

As far as salaries go, it's almost impossible even for the top stars to get more than $25,000 a week. Several years ago, there were occasions when powerhouse attractions asked for and got more. Victor Borge reportedly got $35,000 a week at the New Frontier, and though the official figure never was announced, Judy Garland is said to have received even more when she made her Vegas debut at the same hotel. Later at the Flamingo, reliable sources say her salary was closer to the $25,000 mark. Liberace's reported $50,000 week-

(Continued on page 82)

Border Crossings

Vancouver, April 29.

Vancouver tourist industry is shaping up for summer centenary affairs, the International Festival and Pacific National Exhibition, with March returns showing a 10% rise over same month last year.

Influx from stateside totalled 51,818 for March, against 47,084 logged by Blaine immigration for March, 1957, as visiting for two days or more. Around 3,000,000 tourists are expected this year.

Maraccas Cause Canary To Hit Sour AFM Note With U.S. Immigration Officials

Vancouver, April 29.

Because of a pair of maraccas in a singer's car, while crossing from here into Washington State at Blaine, U. S. immigration officials are making it tough for Vancouver artists to play one-nighters at Palms Supper Club, Birch Bay, Wash. Local thrush Eve Lynn was held up at U. S. border recently technicality that her maraccas made her a musician, thus subject to AFM prior clearance from Bellingham local, according to Ernee Horsman, boniface of the Palms said, "and we have had trouble ever since." Singer was eventually allowed to proceed, but "on parole."

Operator compares current American and Canadian border formalities. "I don't think it's fair," he says, "that they (American artists) can come up to Canada, but we can't go down there," and explains, "It means wasting two or three days getting clearance from the union and from immigration officials in Seattle, and costs me $1 for the application plus $5 or more broker's fees. And it costs that every time."

Horsman wants some blanket clearance of artists, or similar formality to American acts, who require only a letter from Vancouver booker to pass Canadian immigration. Previously, acts from this city have worked casuals stateside, without red tape.

Patrons at the Birch Bay bistro, weekends, derive largely from Vancouver area, he says, "and when Deas Island tunnel is completed, my place will be within 20 minutes drive of Surrey (70,000 pop.) and New Westminster (some 50,000 pop.)." Palms frequently hires American acts through Jerry Ross agency, Seattle.

Mathis to Lose 4G Via Old Pitt Commitment

Pittsburgh, April 29.

Johnny Mathis is going to lose $4,000 here week of June 23 because Lenny Litman has decided to play the singer himself at his Copa instead of selling his contract to the Twin Coaches.

Litman, who had Mathis a year ago, holds an old commitment with him for $2,500, signed long before singer got so hot, and Coaches, with a greater capacity (almost 1,200), offered him $5,000 in cash for the piece of paper and was willing, in addition, to go to $6,500 for Mathis himself, or 4G more than the deal called for.

Copa boss at first tentatively agreed to go along, Coaches immediately began billing Mathis on its lineup of coming attractions and then Litman himself changed his mind and decided that at the price he has Math's for, he could make more than $5,000 by using him in his own club.

STEEL PIER, A.C., SETS SUMMER NAME LINEUP

The Steel Pier, Atlantic City, has the bulk of its headliners set for the summer. Al Rickard, booking the house, has inked Bill Haley & The Comets and the Paulette Sisters, to start for three days May 30 over the Memorial Day Weekend; Steve Gibson & Redcaps, June 7, and Andy Williams, June 13, all for three days. Alan Copeland will go in June 16 for six days.

Fullweek show starts June 22 with Red Buttons topping and Eileen Rodgers in support; July 6 show isn't yet set but Mickey Rooney is being negotiated for. Juanita Hall and the Four Aces are on tap July 13; Crescendos, Tina Robin, Paul Anka and Danny Crystal, July 20; Dorothy Collins, Russell Arms and Manhattan Rockets are slated for July 27; Johnny Haymer, Jimmy Rodgers, Aug. 3; Andrews Sisters and Blackburn Twins & Jerry Collins, Aug. 10; McGuire Sisters, Georgie Kaye and Roy Smeck, Aug. 17; Les Paul & Mary Ford and Ricky Lane, Aug. 24 and the Kirby Stone Quartet winds up the festivities on the Aug. 31 show.

Some fillin talent is still to be set.

Vancouver's 100th Anni Draws Names to Niteries

Vancouver, April 29.

"They're wanting to play Vancouver because of the centennial," says Cave boniface Isy Walters. Walters so far has pacted for Billy Eckstine for June 30 for two weeks, Jimmy Rodgers for one week from July 21, and Louis Armstrong for a fortnight from July 28. Mills Bros. opened yesterday (Mon.).

July to August dates occur collateral with much bruited International Festival and centenary attractions, plus new Gay-Way at Exhibition Park. City officials expect some 3,000,000 tourists.

Vaude, Cafe Dates

New York

George De Witt primed for the Copacabana May 22 . . . Eileen Barton signed with the William Morris Agency . . . Contracts have come through on an April 1, 1959 date for Dominique at the Moulin Rouge, Hollywood . . . Bob McFadden to the Carillon Hotel, Miami Beach, May 6 . . . Ving Merlin moves to Harrah's Reno, starting May 2 . . . Judy Scott going to Blinstrub's, Boston, May 5 . . . Teddi King set for the Riviera, Las Vegas, July 7 . . . Jackie Kannon booked for the Oct. 8 bill at the Cocoanut Grove, Los Angeles, on the Guy Lombardo show . . . Included in Tina Robin's bookings are El Morocco, Montreal, May 18; Eddys', Kansas City, May 31; Chase Hotel, St. Louis, June 19; Beverly Hills, Cinc., July 4 and Palmer House, Chicago, July 29.

Budd Lehman, ex Henry C. Brown Agency, has joined the Herbert Marks office . . . Deal is on for Edith Piaf to play the Queen Elizabeth, Montreal, prior to opening at

(Continued on page 84)

JUDY GARLAND AT 100th ANNI OF MINNESOTA

Minneapolis, April 29.

Minnesota born Judy Garland has been inked to appear here in Minnesota Centennial Celebration ceremonies May 11. She'll be accompanied by her husband-manager, Sid Luft, and as part of the affair will sing "five or six" songs.

Her personal conductor, Buster Davis of New York, will lead a 32-piece orchestra.

The same program, to which admission will be free, will have Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as principal speaker.

Thank you EUROPE!

VING MERLIN

and

LYNDA

PARIS, Bobino Theatre TV-Europe #1
DEAUVILLE, Casino
CANNES, Casino
LORIENT, Music Hall
FRENCH RIVIERA, Casinos
MADRID, Passapogo

LONDON, Savoy Hotel Quaglino Allegro
BRUSSELS, Ancienne Belgique
ANTWERP, Ancienne Belgique
GHENT, Ancienne Belgique
LIEGE, Palace Theatre
GOTHENBERG, Sweden, Valand Rest.

ROME, Casino Della Rosa Open Gate Club
MILAN, TV
LUGANO, Casino Campione
LUBECK, Casino Travemunde
HAMBURG, Hansa Theatre
PORTUGAL, Estoril Casino

Opening MAY 2nd LAKE TAHOE – Harrah's Club

Direction WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY

Management DIRECTIONAL ENTERPRISES

VARIETY BILLS

WEEK OF APRIL 30

Numerals in connection with bills below indicate opening day of show.

NEW YORK CITY

Music Hall 1
Cara Colillo & Maria Rosa
Emilia Sherman
Corps de Ballet

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE
Tivoli 5
Shirley Bassey
Vic Hyde
Lili Berde
Clifford Guest
Curibas (4)
George Holmes
Neal & Newton
Eleanor Gunter
Joe Martin
3 Winds
Jimmy Jeff
David Sterle
Irene Bevans
Rae Morgan
Reg Priestman
Norman Thorpe
SYDNEY
Tivoli 5
Larry Griswold
Johnny Lockwood
Eagle & Man
A Robins
Rayes & Faye
Anny Berryer
Medlock & Marlowe
Winnetou & Squaw
B & D Stuchberry
Jimmy Parkinson
Edit Juhasz
Frank Ward

BRITAIN

ASTON
Hippodrome 28
Terry Cantor
Red Preston
Toiya Kee
Julie
Colleen Laine
Beverley Lambert
Kenny Cantor
Barry Young
Dale Warren
BLACKPOOL
Grand 28
Barbara Mitchell
Doreen Andrew
Dennis Spencer
Rosemary Towler
Anne Jameson
Susan Neil
Michael Lomax
Kathleen St. John
BIRMINGHAM
Hippodrome 28
Billy Cotton Orc
Fuller & Janette
Joe Black
Ladringlos
Billy Burden
Benson Dulay Co.
Hollander & Hart
BRADFORD
Alhambra 28
Denny Willis
Margery Manners
Carl Ames
Sonny Jenks
George Rex
Travalls
Lizette & Renay
Johnny Mack
BRIGHTON
Hippodrome 28
Max Miller
Edorlics
Margo Henderson
Tassi
June Day
Griff Kendall
Kid & I
EDINBURGH
Empire 28
Hilltoppers
Martinis
Johnny Mack
Margerite & Charles
Alan Clive
Authors & Swinson
Ray Alan
J & J Dawson
FINSBURY PARK
Empire 28
Jimmy Wheeler
Gary Miller
Miles Twins
Don Hooten
Cox Twins
Fayne & Evans
Barbara Law
Duo Russmar
GLASGOW
Empire 28
Charlie Gracie
Walthon & Dorraine
Smoothey & Layton
Roy Castle
Allen Bros. & June
Sally Logan
Horler Twins
Joan Rhodes
HANLEY
Royal 28
Michael Holliday
Hal Monty
De Vere Co.
Peter Crawford 3
El Granadas
Bernie & Barbara
LEEDS
Empire 28
Yana
Russ Hamilton
Margo & John
Dennis Spicer
Templar & Jeanette
J & P Barbour
Jim Couton
John Killick
LIVERPOOL
Empire 28
Marvin Rainwater
Johnny Duncan
Freddie Earle
Fran Dowie
De Vere Girls
Rosinas
Matanzas
LONDON
Metropolitan 28
King Bros.
Don Fox
Joyce Shock
Bruce Forsyth
Francois & Joy Zandra
2 Marcias
Skating Merenos
Tommy Locky
Palladium 28
Jerry Lewis
Kaye Sis
Roger Price
Marino Marini & Co
R & J Jover
Skating Olandos
Geo. Carden's Co.
NOTTINGHAM
Empire 28
Kenn Dodd
Candy Sis
Kordites
Taylor & Valerie
Jimmy Lloyd
Gilbert
Maxims
SOUTHAMPTON
Grand 28
Bobby Dennis
Roy & Ray Marlow
Dennis Shirley
Anton & Andree
Phyllis Fisher
Marilyn Most
Yvonne Adair
Ruth Holden
SUNDERLAND
Empire 28
Terry Wayne
Clarkson & Lesli
Carl Barriteau
Kelty & Della
4 Ramblers
Fey Jover
Charles & Aster
Frankie Burns
Swan & McGhee

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

Blue Angel
Miyoshi Umeki
Charles Manna
Geo. Matson
Mae Barnes
Bart Howard
Jimmie Lyon Trio
Bon Soir
Felicia Sanders
Larry Storch
Jane Dulo
Three Flames
Jimmie Daniels
Casanova
Donna Dunn
Margrit & Adrienne
Chateau Madrid
Mario Escudero
Elsa Marvel
Raul & Eva Reyes
Candi Cortez
Ralph Font Orc
Panchito Orc
Copacabana
Jimmy Durante
Sonny King
Jack Roth
Cathy Carr
Ted Morrell
Mimi
D & G Prior
Michael Durso Orc
Frank Marti Orc
Downstairs Room
Julius Monk
Ronny Graham
Ceil Cabot
Ellen Hanley
Jean Arnold
Gerry Matthews
Stan Keen
El Chico
Rosina Pagan
Indios Trabajas
Rosita Rios
No. 1 Fifth Ave.
Phyllis Diller
Bob Downey
Dean Sheldon
Harold Fonville
Joan Bishop
Hotel Pierre
Stanley Melba Orc
Joe Ricardel Orc
Betty Benee
Hotel Plaza
Jane Powell
Ted Straeter Orc
Mark Monte Orc
Hotel Roosevelt
Sammy Kaye Orc
Hotel Statler
Xavier Cugat Orc
Hotel Taft
Vincent Lopez Orc
Hotel St. Regis
Bill Hayes
Florence Henderson
Milt Shaw Orc
Ray Bari Orc
Latin Quarter
Sallie Blair
Bernard Bros.
Bob De Voye 3
Gena Genarde
Martha Errolle
Francis Brun
Queti Clavejo
Jo Lombardi Orc
B Harlowe Orc
Le Cupidon
Monique V. Vooren
Ish Ugardi Orc
Old Romanian
Harvey Stone
June Perry
Bob Brooks
Mac Pollack Orc
McKenna Line
Town & Country
Sophie Tucker
Billy Fields
Buster Burnell
Dancers
Ned Harvey Orc
Sicari Orc
Vienna Lantern
Kitza Kazacos
Ann Tori
Ernest Schoen Orc
Paul Mann
Village Barn
Tony Lavelli
Pete Pederson
Marshalls
Larry McMahon
Piute Pete
Bobby Meyers Orc
Village Vanguard
Kingston Trio
Ben Webster
Waldorf-Astoria
Maurice Chevalier
Emil Coleman Orc
Bela Babai Orc

CHICAGO

Black Orchid
Johnny Mathis
Gary Morton
Joe Parnello (3)
Blue Angel
"Tropical Holiday"
Carmen Romano
Pedro Roman
Glamazons
Lord Christo
Blue Note
Geo. Shearing (5))
Dakota Staton
Joe Saye Trio
Cloister Inn
Eddie Higgins 3
Beverly Kelly
Ramsey Lewis Trio
Conrad Hilton
Glenn & Coleen
Menchassys
Drake Hotel
Sheila Reynolds
Jimmy Blade Orc
Gate of Horn
Bob Gibson
Will Holt
London House
Barbara Carroll 3
Mister Kelly's
Martha Davis & Spouse
Marty Rubinstein 3
Marx & Frigo
Palmer House
Varel & Bailly
Les Chanteurs de Paris (7)
Mata & Hari
Tippy & Cobina
Martha Schlamme
Ben Arden Orc

LOS ANGELES

Avante Garde
Roberta Linn
Walter Gross Trio
Phil Leeds
Ben Blue's
Ben Blue
Kay Cee Jones
Barbara Heller
Sammy Wolf
Joan Kayne
Dick Bernie
Ivan Lane Orc
Coconut Grove
Nat "King" Cole
Allen & DeWood
Russ Morgan Orc
Crescendo
Miguelito Valdez
Irwin Corey
Renet Touzet Band
881 Club
Johnny Walsh
Interlude
Cal Tjader Quintet
Largo
Mickey Rooney
Joey Forman
Larry Potter's Supper Club
The Bonaires
Sandy Sims
Mocambo
Elaine May & Mike Nichols
Frankie Sands Trio
Paul Hebert Orc
Moulin Rouge
Jackie Barnett's "Newcomers of '28"
Dick Stabile Orc
Slate Bros.
Don Rickles
Vido Musso
Statler Hotel
Nelson Eddy
Gale Sherwood
Ed. Bergman Orc
The Seville
Sandra Barton
Sonja
Rickey Vallo
Al Escobar Orc
Ye Little Club
Fran Jeffries

HAVANA

Capri
Lulsa Chorens
Somavilla Orc
Calvet Orc
Hilton
Ximinez Vargas
J. Moreno
Fajardo Orc
Nacional
Marion Colby
Rudenko Bros.
Parisien Dncrs
Dancing Waters
W Reyes Orc
Riviera
Iglesias Ballet
Aida Ramirez
Maria Fabrigas
Antonio Espanol
Pepe Segundo
Felix Ulirera
Rivera Orc
Sans Souci
Laureanne LeMay
Gloria & Rolando
Victor Alverez
Miriam Barreras
Elena Burke
Raquel Mata
Kary Russi
La Serie Orc
Ortega Orc
Tropicana
Erlinda Cortes
Alberto Rochi
Blanca Varela
Gladys & Freddy Riveros
Guaracheros
Monica Castel
Tropicana Ballet
S Suarez Orc
4 Romeu Orc

LAS VEGAS

Desert Inn
Gordon MacRae
Sheila Stevens
Jay Lawrence
Van Alexander
Donn Arden Dncrs
Carlton Hayes Orc
Dunes
Frankie Laine
Jack E. Leonard
The Belmonts
Dunes Dancers
Cee Davidson Orc.
El Cortez
Dubonnet Trio
Dick Saunders
Marcie Miller
Deedy & Bill
El Rancho Vegas
Joe E. Lewis
Rita Moreno
Barry Ashton Dncrs
Dick Rice Orch
Flamingo
Tony Martin
Alan Drake
Don Kirk
Flamingoettes
Jack Cathcart Orc
Dick Contino
Fremont Hotel
Jodimars
Make Belleves
Magnetics
Shirl & Earl Mortensen
Golden Nugget
Harry Ranch
Jig Adams
Charlie Boyer
L & F Maynard
Riviera
Sam Levenson
Patti Moore
Ben Lessy
Dorothy Dorben Dancers
Novelites
Ray Sinatra Orc
Sahara
Martha Raye
4 Step Bros.
Sons of Morocco
Saharem Dncrs
Mary Kaye Trio
Louis Basil Orc
Beachcombers
Sands
Frank Sinatra
Bennett & Patters'n
Copa Girls
Antonio Morelli Orc
San Souci
"Midnight in Paris"
Bobby Morris
Pat Moreno
Ray Parsons
Sherry Shone
Cindy & Alberto
Jeanne Masson
Mlle. Zabuda
Bobby Blue Orc
Showboat
Hank Penny
Shirley Scott
Garr Nelson
Showboat Girls
Vic Artese Orc
Silver Slipper
Hank Henry
Annie Maloney
Peggy Dieterick
Kim Athas
Jimmy Cavanaugh
Sparky Kaye
Mac Dennison
Geo. Redman Orc
Thunderbird
Frank Gusto
Joe Fornaro
Tropicana
Ernie Kovacs
Edith Adams
Elaine Dunn
Dante D'Paulo
George Chakiris
Lizanne Truex
Jack Ackerman
Nat Brandywynne

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

Americana
Lonnie Sattin
Norman & Dean
The Vincents
Jackie Heller
Lee Martin Orc
Maya Orc
Balmoral
Charlie Farrell
Billy Mitchell
Mickey Gentile
Jose Curbelo Orc
Carillon
Ginny Simms
Bobby Van
Dick Sterling
Jacques Donnet Orc
Deauville
Smart Affairs
Larry Steele
Rose Hardaway
Sir Lionel Beckels
Wanderers (4))
Leonard Bros.
Flash Gordan
Lon Fontaine
Beige Beauts
Walter Nye Orc
Eden Roc
Don Rondo
Betty Kean
Ron Fletcher
Bobby Brandt
Rascha Rodell
Mal Malkin Orc
Sonny Kendis Orc
El Patio
Wingy Manone 4
Rudy Ferguson 3
Bobby Sherwood
Fontainebleau
Fernanda Montel
Haller & Hayden
Kaye Ballard
George Tapps Co.
Murray Schlamm
Sacasas Orc
Pupi Campo Orc
Lucerne
Havana Mardi Gras
Diosa Costello
Milos Velarde
Don Casino
Tonia Flores
Tony & Francella
Juan Romero
David Tyler Orc
Luis Varona Orc
Murray Franklin's
Murray Franklin
Dick Haviland
George Kirby
Dolores Leigh
Phyllis Arnold
Snuffy Miller
Eddie Bernard
Nautilus
Mac Pepper
Carlos & Yvonne
Syd Stanley Orc
Sans Souci
Mickey Katz
Freddy Calo Orc
Paul Seera

SAN FRANCISCO

440 Club
4 Sharps
Lenny Bruc
Gloria Padilla
Backstage
Joanne Beretta
Bernard Bragg
Blackhawk
Buddy De Franco
Vido Musso
Easy Street
Kid Ory Orc

(Continued on page 94)

New Format of Ringling Circus Shapes Up As Heavy Profit-Maker

The current Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus season is expected to tell whether the pattern of indoor operations is successful. Having one season in the new format behind it, the circus indicates that the experiment is paying off, and new advertising formats as well as economies of the arena showings is expected to create higher profits for the outfit.

One indication, its average $225,000 weekly gross at Madison Square Garden, has lead to the belief in the importance of the lowered price structure. Its newspaper ads, this year, do not stress attractions, but the half-price gimmick for children on all shows, except Friday night, Saturdays and Sundays. There are indications that this is selling more tickets than any other item, and any other method of boxofficing its ducats would price it out of business.

In addition, the circus is using only a token amount of paper, and pouring more coin into newspapers, television and radio. This is also deemed effective by the group.

The new method of operations is also producing results since it has provided a circus season that can go as high as 49 weeks with less than three weeks necessary for rehearsals. Because of this, it's no longer necessary to maintain expensive winter quarters in Sarasota. They've also gotten rid of the bulk of the menagerie. As a matter of fact, a group of Pawtucket, R. I., citizens are sponsoring a Ringling show in Providence in order to raise some coin toward founding a zoo. There's a possibility that this group will also take some animals off the big top's hands.

In addition the elimination of the cookhouse, bulk of its railroad cars, tent crews, seatmen, most of the roustabouts has also lowered the operating expense. Further economies were instituted this year at the Garden by construction of only two dressing rooms, a rubber mat instead of a tanbark comprising carloads of dirt and sawdust, improved methods of setting up the circus so that overtime for stagehands is eliminated points up to a greater degree the likelihood of increased profits this year.

Salisbury Beach Frolics Readies Comeback Date After Town Votes Wet

Salisbury Beach, Mass., April 29.

This beach strip, studded with niteries, is readying for a comeback this summer after being shuttered for a year when the town went on a no-booze kick. The big 1,200-seat Frolics, operated by Denny Mulcahy, is going back to its big name policy format which proved successful for the past decade up to alcoholess last year.

The Frolics opens the last week in June and Jacy Collier and Henry Cogert have inked Eydie Gorme and Steve Lawrence to appear together. Tony Martin is set for week of Aug. 10. Negotiations are underway with McGuire Sisters, who hold record for the spot of 15,000 paid admissions. Frankie Laine and Jimmy Durante.

Back in the running this season with the other cafes and niteries and intimers will be 400-seat Bowery with names and semi-name policy. The town reversed its no booze vote in a special election early this year making it possible for the night spots to open again.

BOB COLLINS AS SINGLE

Bob Collins, whose partner Ken Graham was killed in an auto accident last week in Miami Beach, will do a comedy single.

He'll continue to be managed by Bob Romm.

Dick Haymes has been signed for a stand at the Caribe Hilton, San Juan, Puerto Rico, starting May 3.

LaRosa's Hassle With Coast Home Show Op On Way to Settlement

The dispute between Al Learman, promoter of the recent Home Show in Portland, and singer Julius LaRosa seems to be on the way to settlement. Irwin Mazzei, Coast regional director of the American Guild of Variety Artists, has ruled that the $10,000 LaRosa salary check on which payment was stopped, be sent through. Meanwhile LaRosa agreed that he would hold himself in readiness should any arbitration on the matter be set up.

LaRosa worked the Home Show at Portland which Learman promoted for 10 days ending April 20. During the run, Learman had protested to La Rosa that he do some faster numbers instead of concentrating on ballads. There was some disagreement on the matter inasmuch as LaRosa felt that Learman was insisting on tune's of the rock 'n' roll variety which are not his forte. Business was admittedly bad, but LaRosa held that all home shows throughout the country were off.

Date resulted in a lot of bitterness by Learman especially since business was reportedly 35% below that of last year. Prior to stopping payment on the check, he was trying to get George Burke, of the Coast office of General Artists Corp., which handles LaRosa to rebate some of the $10,000 salary.

LaRosa stated that just as Learman would not be obligated to give him a bonus if business was excellent, therefore he couldn't expect a rebate because takes were off. This was LaRosa's first trip in the Northwest area.

Alan Gale Show Gets Fair 12G in Boston

Boston, April 29.

Alan Gale who played the Shubert Theatre, Boston, on a week's engagement during which six shows were played, hit a downgraded $12,000.

Support for layout came mainly from Hub's Yiddish community.

Nevada Edict to Force Divorcement Of Vegas-Havana Casino Hookups

Las Vegas spectators with Cuban casino holdings have been given a choice of getting out of either operation. The Nevada State Tax Commission has notified operators interested in both cities that they must choose one or the other.

The Commission stated, "The gambling element in Cuba, many of them ineligible to hold Nevada licenses, has become an issue between revolutionary parties and the Cuban government, lending to the situation an international aspect which through incident could have serious repercussions here."

Including among those interested in gaming operations in both cities are Moe Dalitz, Morris Kleinman, Tom McGinty and Wilbur Clark, of the Desert Inn, who also operate the casino at the Hotel Nacional, leased to them by the Intercontinental Hotels, and managed by Sam Tucker; Clifford Jones, of the Thunderbird, who has an interest in the casino at the Havana-Hilton; Hy Abrams and Ben Siegel, shareholders in the Sands, who also have an interest in the Havana Riviera and Jack Davies, who books the Fremont Hotel as well as the Havana Riviera.

The Nevada ruling will no doubt force Cuban operators to abandon previous plans to get top talent by offering them points in a hotel. For example, Frank Sinatra, who has several points of the Sands, could therefore not accept a similar offer from a Cuban inn in exchange for the series of dates there, without giving up his Sands stock.

The Havana Hilton operation, incidentally, is the only one of the casinos in the Hilton chains leased to an outside syndicate. Hilton operates its own gaming rooms in other situations including Puerto Rico.

The edict is expected to create a crisis in the casino industry. The operators at either Las Vegas or Nevada will be forced to get up enough coin to buy the shares of withdrawing partners. At the same time, should their stock go to outsiders, the forced nature of the sale may lower the value of the stocks, especially during a recession.

Another angle likely to crop up, the effect on Cuban casinos should the Las Vegasites withdraw. Prior to the advent of Nevada money, the Havana wheels were reputedly fixed. Las Vegas lads gave the casinos there reputation of being run honestly, and thus encouraged play by tourists. Whether the withdrawal of the U. S. gaming fraternity will destroy that rep, remains to be seen, although the present owners will aim for a continued high-level operation.

Ex-Home of N.Y. Giants To be Site of Rodeo Promoted by Tansor

The Polo Grounds, N. Y., former home of the N. Y. Giants, will be the site of a rodeo promoted by Al Tansor. He's currently seeking a headliner from the video ranks to top the show. Show is slated to start June 27 and run to July 6. Tansor says he will have $25,000 in prize money with entry fees added.

The Polo Grounds event will give New York two rodeos this year. The World Championship Rodeo will be held this fall in Madison Square Garden. Another similar event had been planned for Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, but failure to get a headliner will probably stymie this try. The promoters of that try wanted to get Gene Autry, who turned this down. Roy Rogers was also approached. However, he's committed to the Garden, and will not work another date in New York.

In addition to regular rodeo events, Tansor plans to augment the show with a line of cowgirls, plus wildwest demonstrations.

Vegas Hotels Mushroom

Continued from page 79

ly when he opened the Riviera three years ago is a price that included his entire package, and it has decreased on subsequent engagements. One hotel booker said he doubted if even Jack Benny topped the $25,000 figure, because he had to pay Gisele MacKenzie out of his own salary when they played the Flamingo.

Longterm Insurance

Producers such as Jack Entratter of the Sands and Stan Irwin of the Sahara don't have to worry about a performer demanding more money on each return stint, because they have longterm contracts with their stars. One of the Strip's best known producers said that he has several stars in his stable which he will drop after current commitments simply because they are not the big draws they once were, and they refuse to come back for less money.

Sammy Lewis, who produces the Riviera shows, says that because his show room is the largest in town he can afford to pay a few thousand dollars more for an act that he particularly wants, because the minimum price for drinks bought by patrons will absorb the difference. Lewis thinks that the time will soon come when the minimum cost per person, now a standard $3 in all Strip hotels, will have to go up. Several years ago the hotels charged no cover or minimum, then all except the Desert Inn and Sands put in a $2 minimum. Soon afterward, the two holdout hotels joined the others with the minimum, and last year, all the hotels went up to $3. In recent weeks, the Tropicana has been charging a $5 minimum on Friday and Saturday nights, with $3 during the week, which could be an indication of what is to come all along the Strip.

May Hike Minimum

"More people are coming to Las Vegan," says Lewis, "but the gambling income isn't going up proportionately. Consequently, we've got to do something—like increasing the minimum for drinks—to help these shows pay for themselves."

Eddie Fox, producer at the Silver Slipper, where the shows have no cover or minimum, agrees with Lewis that the rising cost of shows must be passed on the showgoer instead of relying on casino profits to make up the show losses. Fox predicts that the time will come when an admission charge to the showrooms plus a minimum price for drinks, will be adopted by the hotels.

"Operating costs for a show go up approximately 10% each year," says Fox. "For a person who doesn't gamble, Las Vegas is the cheapest place in the nation for a vacation. You can get a double room for only $4. Two people can go see Frank Sinatra, have six drinks, and the tab comes to only $6 plus tax and a tip to the waiter. Non-gamblers are being lured here by the glamor of our city—and they're the ones who should help pay for the big-budget shows. I've seen some people go into the Sahara lounge and listen to Louis Prima & Keely Smith—a $10,000 a week act—and not buy anything, because you can stand up in the casino and still enjoy them. And even if you sit down in the Sahara or any other lounge, there's no minimum charge."

The Gambling Take

Figures just released show that revenue from gambling is increasing each year and apparently if the increasing number of non-gamblers would decide to gamble when they got here, the hotels could take the minimum charges off again and not worry about the show room losses. Clark County (Las Vegas) paid more than half the gambling taxes based on gross revenue from the state's legalized gambling in the first quarter of this year. State Tax Commission figures show Clark County paid $814,615 in fees based on a total revenue of $18,583,372. Total figure for the state was $1,314,525 from revenue of $30,657,680. Washoe County (Reno) followed with payments of $350,000 on revenue of $8,152,565.

Glen Casino's Bookings

The Glen Casino, Williamsville, N. Y., near Buffalo, has signed a series of performers. Included are Danny Costello and Will Gaines starting May 26; Beverly King, June 9; and Tommy Leonetti, going in July 14.

Its' a spring and summer operation only.

BILLY GLASON'S FUN-MASTER
PROFESSIONAL COMEDY MATERIAL
for all Theatricals
"We Service the Stars"
Big Temporary Special on All
35 Gag Files for $15. Plus $1.00 Postage
Foreign: $1.50 ea., 3 for $40
● 3 Parody Books, Per Bk. . . $10 ●
● 4 Blackout Books, Per Bk. . . $25 ●
● Minstrel Budget . . . $25 ●
How to Master the Ceremonies
$3 per Copy
No C.O.D's "Always Open"
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., N.Y.C., 19 Circle 7-1138
(WE TEACH EMCEEING and COMEDY)
(Let a Real Professional Train You)

EAST COAST OR WEST COAST
THE FUNNIEST GUY AROUND
JACK WAKEFIELD
Now Available
Personal Management: HARRY ADLER
165 West 46th Street, New York 36
PL 7-2535

FRANKIE ORTEGA TRIO
Currently
MELODY ROOM
Hollywood

The DEEP RIVER BOYS
Starring HARRY DOUGLASS
9th International Tour
Currently-Coast-To-Coast
New York -:- Chicago
St. Louis -:- Hollywood
Direction: WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY
Pers. Mgr.: ED KIRKEBY

Ind. Amphitheatre Sets New Variety Season

The Mesken Amphitheatre, Evansville, Ind., will again run a season of variety shows to be booked by Jack Bertell & John Greenhut. Spot will start June 28 with Tommy Sands topping the bill for two days, and has a series of shows which includes Florence Henderson & Bill Hayes, July 5, "Roberta" to come after a showing at Unover U. of Indiana, July 19, and Liberace is slated for Aug. 2, with seasonal windup by Ted Lewis on Aug. 30.

It's the second year in which the spot is going in for a season predominantly in the variety field.

AGVA

Continued from page 79

pickets were paid from the same source. Also a list of all who were fined for walking past the circus picket line; complete breakdown of expenditures from the s&r coin to run the Boston circus in conjunction with the Teamster's Union which was set up as competition to the Ringling show during the strike period; list of dues payments made by AGVA members from the fund, and a list of all AGVA members and national board members and amounts refunded by them to the fund.

The resolution also urged scrutiny of the welfare trust fund by a looksee into the list of all agents who are members of Artists Representatives Assn. and Entertainment Managers Assn., who made only a 40c contribution to the fund for club dates from 1952 to 1955; list of all agents who made a $1 contribution for club dates during the same period; complete list of claims settled with Lloyds of London, and case history of each claim settled; complete list of claims denied by the insurance firm and reason therefore; list of expenditures and collections; and list of agents and associations and amounts contributed by them.

The resolution went further by asking the 4As for a peek into the past records of the AGVA insurance activities going back to the Matthew M. Adler Agency, which handled the insurance before Lloyds took over and contracts negotiated by the union with various firms and shows.

In the event, charges are upheld, the resolution asked for immediate dismissal of the AGVA upper echelon; new elections, changes in the constitution to permit local voting and locals as well as placement of all funds under one general fund in which the AGVA membership will have a voice. In addition, the Philly resolution asked that charges against Jones be dismissed and his life membership returned to him as well as his former status, which while not stated in the resolution would mean return of the post of eastern regional director to him. Also wanted was the right by the 4As to spot check all AGVA accounts at any time, and a revue of all existing contracts.

The 4As have taken over AGVA in previous times in the union's stormy history. It was at the instigation of the 4As that the old American Federation of Actors was broken up, and AGVA formed in 1939. Some years later, the 4As stepped in when the then executive secretary Matt Shelvey ran a one-man union. In the current case the 4As would have to determine whether democratic processes are being bypassed by the existence of a political machine within AGVA.

Saranac Lake

By Happy Benway

Saranac Lake, April 29.

Lucy Jeanette Thurman, cashier of C.C. Theatres, Corpus Christi, Tex., who recently registered for the general o.o. and rest period, rates a special mention for progress. Ditto William Brogan, projectionist of Palace Theatre, Jersey City. Both are third floor non-TB patients.

Joe (IATSE) Dietrich Sr. of Local 4, Brooklyn, left for an indefinite stay at home as he did not require hospitalization following his observation period.

Ray McCarthy, native of Norfolk who beat the rap here in 1955, is back, connected with the Will Rogers personnel as an orderly.

Lindsay MacHarrie did it in less than a year, rating an all-clear to resume work. He left to join the staff of WENT, Gloversville, N. Y., as commentator and announcer.

Write to those who are ill.

GAC-TV's V.P. Stripes For Sobel, Michaels

GAC-TV, a subsidiary of General Artists Corp. has given Jack Sobel and Jay Michaels vice-president chevrons. Sobel has been named veepee in charge of sales. He was formerly general sales manager of that subsidiary, while Michaels has been made veepee in charge of creative planning.

Milton Krasny is the president of GAC-TV.

Delfont's 7 Bills At Brit. Resorts

Bernard Delfont is prepping seven summer shows in British resorts in addition to a new Palladium revue which he is presenting with Val Parnell. The Palladium show and two of the others are all skedded to bow on May 23.

Harry Secombe is the star of the Palladium revue and the cast includes Terry-Thomas, Eric Sykes, operatic singer Adele Leigh and Johnny Puleo & Harmonica Gang. Production is being staged by Robert Nesbitt. The two other day-and-date Delfont productions, both named "Show Time," will be at North Pier Pavilion, Blackpool, and Wellington Pier Pavilion, Great Yarmouth. The former stars David Nixon, Edmund Hockridge and Joan Regan and the other, Ruby Murray and Tommy Cooper.

On June 17 in Scarborough Delfont launches "Light Up the Town" with Benny Hill starred; on the 25th another "Show Time" opens in Weymouth with Charlie Drake and Karen Greer at the top of the bill. Five days later at Southsea he presents "The Big Show" starring Tommy Trinder and Anne Shelton and on July 7 opens a second "Light Up the Town" production at Morecambe with Alma Cogan heading. His final summer production will be "The Frankie Vaughan Show" at Brighton, modelled on the recent succesesful vaude season at the Palace Theatre, London.

Vancouver Trade Fair

Vancouver, April 29.

Basket balloon used in UA's "Around The World In 80 Days" arrives here April 30 for four trips around Vancouver, during the British Columbia International Trade Fair, says manager Bruce Barnett. Fair, a centennial fest and city's first, will run May 1-10 at Exhibition Gardens, to be repeated "every three or four years," topper said.

Attractions already set include Japanese fireworks displays, "Japan's gift to B.C. Centennial," staged by factory's head man Rikio Marutamaya, who visits with his son for the fair, and each half hour display "the largest ever staged in Canada," according to Barnett, who added the Nisei fireworks toppers were "the eleventh dynasty of a family in the business since the 17th century."

There will be no midway attractions, sideshows or concessions this time around, said Barnett.

Harry and Renee Lorayne, memory act, at Knife and Fork Club, Tulsa.

Catskill Vaude Into N.Y. Exurbia

It looks like the traditional Catskill borscht circuit will be extended to the staid Westchester, Long Island and Northern New Jersey areas. Charlie Rapp, the mountain booker, is taking spots in these areas and will be lining up talent for country and beach clubs during the summer season.

Rapp plans to use these spots to fill in time for the acts he hires on a full week. Thus an act may play the early part of the week just outside New York, and will go in for the mountain inns during the busier days starting Thursday nights.

Rapp is extending his circuit to include a wider stretch of territory. Modus operandi, which he instituted last year, is to give recognized comics their full nitery salary during the summer in return for one or two dates nightly in various hotels and clubs. Thus, he may provide a full show at reduced prices on a Monday to a spot near New York, and by the time the show works itself up to the mountain inns, he'll collect the heavier money for their services.

Book Acts for Fair At San Juan Track

San Juan, April 29.

Eight acts have been booked by Cook & Rose of Lancaster, Pa., for the Industrial Agricultural Fair here June 13-22 at the Quintana Racetrack. These include Flying Siegrests, Aerial Winters, Karlen Nyce, Lou Myers, Don Rogers & Dolores, 4 Honey Girls, Skating Regals and Mike Monroe. Fair director is the local Dr. Carlos Gatzambide Arrilaga.

Operation is by Grand Fair Corp. of which Ralph Patrick Flannigan of Norfolk, Va., is president. He said it is not yet decided whether gambling will be permitted.

CASINO
FEDALA, MOROCCO
North Africa
Bill FINCH

"THE COMEDIAN"
The Only Real Monthly
PROFESSIONAL GAG SERVICE
THE LATEST — THE GREATEST — THE MOST-UP-TO-DATEST
Now in its 92nd issue, containing stories, one-liners, poemettes, song titles, hecklers, audience stuff, monologs, parodies, double gags, bits, ideas, intros, impressions and impersonations, political interruptions, Thoughts of the Day, Humorous Views of the News, etc. $24 yearly. 3 Yrs. $60—Single Issues $3
Foreign: $35 Yr.—3 Yrs. $90
Single Issues $4—No C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54 St., New York 19

KITZA KAZACOS
Concluding a Successful Five Week Engagement at VIENNESE LANTERN, New York
"Charming Dark Velvet Voice . . . with me it was love at first hearing." LONDON DAILY EXPRESS.
"Beautiful Ambassador of Song from Greece." DANTON WALKER, N.Y. Daily News.
"A talented pro from Greece. She has a Marlene Dietrich type voice and is a worthy addition to the long line of imports who got their American starts at the Lantern." LEE MORTIMER, N.Y. Mirror.

CAB CALLOWAY
Featured in PARAMOUNT'S
"ST. LOUIS BLUES"
Now KO KO CLUB, Phoenix, Arizona
Mgt. BILL MITTLER, 1619 Broadway, New York

Ambassador, L. A.

Los Angeles, April 25.

Nat (King) Cole, Allen & DeWood, Russ Morgan Orch (16); cover $2-$2.50.

Smooth as cream and slick as silk, Nat (King) Cole opened at the Cocoanut Grove last Thursday night (24) to a near-capacity audience remarkably strong in the paying-guest class, the no-name customers who don't make the newspaper columns but show up nicely in the credit column of any nitery's auditing. They paid him careful and approving attention throughout and applauded heavily at the end. Cole's act is carefully programmed and balanced, and he finishes at his highest peak. The 45-minute turn is the same he recently did in Vegas and he is again preceded by the same comic pair, Marty Allen and Mitch De Wood.

Cole sings 14 songs, almost all of them identified with him. He doesn't tamper with the tempo, his diction and phrasing are honed to a fine edge, and he gets some nice humor into a couple, "The Party's Over" and "What's Her Name." In fact, the 45-minute act could stand a little more humor, or a little humanizing. Cole is such an immaculate performer, he stands a little aloof from his patrons. Perhaps a little carefully written patter could be inserted between some numbers to get the spectators more involved in the proceedings. No fault can be found, however, with his singing. Ranging from ballads to bounce, he did 14 numbers, including "Thou Swell," "Another You," "But Not for Me," "Night Lights," "Lullaby of Broadway," "Ballerina," and "St. Louis Blues." He does "Star Dust," including the poetic and seldom-heard verse, and finishes with a lusty "Joe Turner's Blues." The singing is spelled by a piano solo of "I Wanna Be Happy."

Allen & DeWood are rowdy performers who range from jokes to pantomime, include some offhand swipes at impersonation, and assay very high on laughs. The situations are topical (the Dodgers in L.A., Duke Snider's arm injury, etc.), and the humor fast and furious, during their 20 minutes.

Russ Morgan and his crew are back, augmented by three for Cole's act—Lee Young on drums, Charlie Harris on bass and John Collins on guitar. The Morgan band manages to make dancable music out of some tricky arrangements that provide pleasure for those on the floor and those who toe-tap under the table.

Cole plays through May 27. Powe.

Chase Club, St. Louis

St. Louis, April 24.

Four Lads, the Maxwells (2), Paul Neighbors Orch (11); $1.50-$2 cover.

The Four Lads, who came in to pinchhit for the second week of the still-ailing Eydie Gorme's scheduled engagement, will stay over an extra week to pinchhit for the first week of a scheduled engagement by Tony Bennett, who has other commitments. And they're filling the breach in high style with a fast-paced potpourri of hit parade ditties, standards and special material.

Raising the curtain with a frenetic "Runnin' Wild," the Lads segue into a friendly stroll around ringside with "Getting to Know You" and fill the next 30 minutes or so with an engaging grab-bag of harmony including a romping "Down by the Riverside" and a dramatic singing tribute to Frank Loesser. Lads just stand there and warble, they put on a show.

The Maxwells click with their slow-motion routines, and the Paul Neighbors orch, in four six weeks, blends danceable tempos with a good, big sound.

Due in May 8: Tony Bennett, with Tina and Coco coming in May 1 to replace the Maxwells during the Four Lads' second week. Godd.

Le Cupidon, N. Y.

Monique Van Vooren, Howard Beder, Beth Kirsten, Ish Ugarti & Catun Orchs; $3.50 minimum.

Le Cupidon has taken on a new facade since Robert Crescas, who maitre d'd at the now defunct Versailles has stepped into this situation. It has become a prime gourmet stop on the nitery circuit, and with an entertainment policy similar to that of the Versailles, i.e. one featured performer, the patrons of the closed spot can feel at home in the new surroundings.

The new entertainer here is Monique Van Vooren, Belgian singer, who seems to improve with every local cafe date. It's her third in these environs, the first having been originally at the St. Regis and now is on a repeat at this spot. Miss Van Vooren has gotten herself an entirely new act. It's a pleasant potpourri that takes in a lot of special material, most of it amusing, and the French staples that frequently bring a pleasant glow to audiences. Her tunes are well delivered. She has a feeling for the comedy content in some numbers especially a dissertation on getting a guy on a rebound. There isn't too much voice in her offerings, but she does infuse her tunes with personality that gets her over well.

The intro is by Howard Beder who warms up the house with a pair of well delivered tunes, and the musical backing is by Ish Ugarti Trio with Beth Kirsten at the vocals. Catun Orch supplies the Latin incentive. Jose.

Largo, Hollywood

Hollywood, April 25.

Mickey Rooney, Joey Forman, Meg Brown, Herb Galler Orch (6); $2-$2.50 cover.

Mickey Rooney has brought his Las Vegas show to Sunset Strip, adding a comment or two about his being short—"this week, some $43,000, give or take"—and because he and partner Joey Forman give out, the Largo can look to take in.

Bantering back and forth in one zany routine after another, the pair is good for a chuckle, a shicker here and there and more hearty yocks than you can shake a martini at. Success of their show stems in no small part from a well-written act based on satire of familiar things—"Candid Camera," "Pete Smith Specialty," "Bridge on the River Kwai" and Walter Winchell. All are effective because Rooney and Forman play in tune, because each is an outstanding mimic and a good standup comic.

While Rooney offers an explosive, effervescent delivery, Forman comes up with the change of pace, evidencing the kind of talent that's sure to take him a long way on the nitery circuit. It's all well-calculated to create mirth aimed not particularly at the sophisticate but at the belly-laugher.

Pretty Meg Brown warms up the 50-minute show with a rhythmic stint of song and dance, each nicely done. And Herb Geller and his orch (6) play for comics and dancers with equal facility. Ron.

El Rancho, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 22.

Joe E. Lewis, Rita Moreno, Barry Ashton Dancers (10), Dick Rice Orch (11); produced by Tom Douglas; $3 minimum.

Joe E. Lewis, stellar stallion of Beldon Katleman's ranch stable, returns to the corral with a feedbag of new gags and song parodies that enhance his reputation of being a comedian's comedian. Even non-members of the Lewis cult give sustained yocks to the act. New material includes jokes about Cuba, cinematics ("I have to speak slowly—I lost my bridge on the River Kwai"), and parodies on "Catch a Falling Star," "Trees," "All the Way" and "Yankee Doodle Dandy." As usual, 88er Austin Mack does his share to keep the festivities in the winner's circle.

Rita Moreno, making her Vegas debut, tosses sensuous body contortions into her act in an apparent effort to off-balance what she lacks in the vocal department. Miss Moreno is a fiery-type, pretty girl, and further training of the pipes should develop her into a good nitery attraction. Jay Salerno at the bongos gives strong assistance.

A highlight of the show is a production number which spoofs the chemise, trapeze, and balloon dresses. Choreographer Barry Ashton and his girls (10) romp through the clever bit, which utilizes a new runway into the audience. Dick Rice orch expertly backs the package. Duke.

Hotel Radisson, Mpls.

Minneapolis, April 26.

Sondra & Jon Steele, Don McGrane Orch (8); $2.50-$3.50 minimum.

Last-minute substitutes in this tony Flame Room for the Rowan & Martin comedy team which was excused temporarily to handle some eleventh-hour television bookings, husband and wife Sondra & Jon Steele are undoubtedly "strangers" to most of local cafe society, inasmuch as this is their first local appearance in eight years and they've not been sufficiently prominent recently, perhaps, for their names to percolate hereabouts.

Almost completely filled tables at the opening dinner show received their pianistics and warbling well. Jan Steele's keyboard pyrotechnics, easy on the ears, proved the act's highlights; an original arrangement of and well-performed "Deep Purple" impressing as especially outstanding. Ross.

Old Romanian, N. Y.

Jean Carroll, Larry Marvin, Laurette & Clymas, Line (10), Mac Pollack Orch; $5 minimum.

Jack Silverman has been infusing a lot of prime talent into his Broadway operation. Latest to headline there is Jean Carroll, probably the top femme comic in the business. Silverman has surrounded Miss Carroll with a new line of production and the show constitutes a good bid for Broadway patronage.

Miss Carroll discourses on a wide variety of subjects, mainly on the domestic side. Her lines are witty and they're punched out with the vigor of a masculine standup comic. She's on for about 40 minutes, mainly with material new for her. There is a reprise of her famed fur-buying bit which is still as potent as ever for the mink-cape set and others. She's excellent in this room.

The show itself runs quite a bit overtime, but it is time that could be cut from the surrounding acts and a small slice from the production. The openers are Laurette & Clymas, a vet comedy dance pair, who on preem night were trying out virtually everything they have. On subsequent shows, they'll probably cut down so that their act can be contained in a 12-minute period. A selection of their punchier numbers would give them a turn with a bigger proportion of high spots. They do well enough for an encore in this spot, nonetheless.

Larry Marvin has been around for a spell also. He has a Jolsonesque voice and songs that go way back. He's still too youngish a guy to be concentrating on the past. He too stays on way beyond the point that's good for him with a line of oldies. He has some good patter and there are times when he seems to be riding well. A shorter work-term would make his turn more compact.

The line, routined by Boots McKenna, has some imaginative sequences. The space sequence and the calypso job are workmanly, while the sexy St. Louis number, while well-done, seems like a remake of several other routines. Bob Brooks does the production singing capably, and the Mac Pollack Orch backstops competently. Jose.

Chi Chi, Palm Springs

Palm Springs, April 25.

Will Mastin Trio. Starring Sammy Davis Jr., The Farrar Trio, Bill Alexander Orch (15); cover, $2.50.

For a while it looked as if "Mr. Wonderful," as Sammy Davis Jr., bills himself, would become "Mr. Inexhaustible" like Al Jolson and build an encore into a two-hour show, but his eye injury must have taught him the law of diminishing return. Anyway, he begged off after a superb hour of one-man vaude and left after a week to good biz.

It was first time the Will Mastin Trio had played Chi Chi's in seven years, and the diff to these nitery habituees who have been around that long was proof that other things besides acorns can grow.

He opened to a packed house in a "Salute to Texas" week and his routine of a fast draw with a Colt 45 proved to be a terrific hit all week. "But who ever heard of a colored cowboy?" he asked. It got laughs but for the benefit of the ignoranti the top scout with Buffalo Bill on the plains was Wild Bill Neale, a Negro.

Sammy's Uncle Will Mastin has slowed down to a few soft shoe routines after which Sammy Jr. takes over and taps a medley of smooth steps, finishing with a Spanish fandango.

Nobody begins the beguine better than young Davis does or finishes better either. His polished imitations still take up a good half of the hour—Sinatra, Lane, Bennett, Eckstine, Lanza, Stewart, Cagney, Grant and McLaglen, Crosby and Fitzgerald and ultimately Jolson and Lewis in their versions of "Rockabye My Baby." He tries imitating Jolson without a mike but used it for his Jerry Lewis imitation, which is about his best. Show is as clean as the Prez's putting green. Scul.

Chateau Madrid, N. Y.

Raul & Eva Reyes, Mario Escudero, Tonia & Pepe, Azmara Neclaiz, Ralph Font Orch, Panchito Rizer Orch; $2-$3 minimum.

This popular night spot, which draws heavily from the upper class Spanish-speaking gentry of New York City, has another winning entertainment package in this new show topped by Raul & Eva Reyes. Oddly enough, however, it was some of the lesser-known acts which scored most heavily at the performance caught; namely, Tonia & Pepe and Mario Escudero.

Former mixed terps team made with a colorful Flamenco with gusto and skill. Pair are in for two numbers, both scoring heavily. Tonia, femme member, is on earlier with a sharp, typically Mexican solo dance. This Tonia & Pepe team has enough eclat and poise to go places on the nitery belt.

Escudero, who is in New Acts files when he was just starting out as a pro guitarist in 1956, proves a profectionist on the guitar. He has improved his routine and his choice of tunes since the last time out. This handsome lad held the attention of his audience despite being handicapped by a faulty mike.

Azmara Neclaiz, billed as a Turkish singer just in from the Istanbul Hilton, suffered from her selection of material. This comely miss, who shows promise right now, indicates that she is unfamiliar with the hazards of a small room.

The Reyes, who have been a standard act in vaudeville for a number of years, have not been around the New York scene recently. They have added several novelty twists in addition to their familiar Spanish stepping and rhumba gyrations. Miss Reyes, per usual, still uses the glass on the forehead balancing bit to nice returns.

Ralph Font plays the show and does an excellent job. Panchito Rizer alternates for the dancing. Wear.

Fontainebleau, M. B'ch

Miami Beach, April 25.

Fernanda Montel, Haller & Hayden, George Tapps Dancers, Murray Schlamm, Sacasas Orch; $3.50-$5 minimum.

The LaRonde of this plushery has become a twice-yearly stop for Fernanda Montel. The act and delivery hasn't varied much in any of her showings; she's always the Parisienne-with-the flair: in dress, brassy-tinged approach and extroverted personality.

The mixture as before contains upbeat French chansons, toss-in of an American lyric or two and chatter between in broad accent that remains as Gallic as her first trip to these parts a couple of years ago, despite constant travels around the stateside cafes. Her froth covers expertly, attempts at more fluid stint via struts-around-stage and dance-step inserts that don't jell too well, in the tight fitting gown, as in her exuberant, if not altogether smooth variation of a Charleston theme in her closer. Offs to okay reception.

Haller & Hayden close and are as fresh and laugh-provoking a duo as has played this room. Their material is breezy and for the most part, original. End result is a constant yock session topped by howl-sparking lampoon on an Olympics walking race. Smooth encore wind an aud-participation song sesh into dance, sets them in the wham payoff groove.

George Tapps and his mixed foursome get things going in a manner that make it tough to follow. Tapps' ideas in modern jazz interps are provocative and earn table pounding. His musicomedy-hit rundown caps series of climax-build patternings, setting the call-back mood throughout. Murray Schlamm emcees in literate fashion; Sacasas and his crew provide solid showbacks and fill the floor for the between shows dance sessions. Lary.

Riviera, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, April 23.

Sam Levenson, Patti Moore & Ben Lessy, Coby Yee, The Classics (4), Dorothy Dorben Dancers (12), Ray Sinatra Orch (13); produced by Sammy Lewis. $3 minimum.

Sam Levenson, in his first Strip appearance in several years, kept a capacity Clover Room crowd of first-nighters in high spirits, the laughs being plentiful. He's still no joke-teller ("I just tell stories") and his success in the comedy department obviously lies in the fact that the nostalgic parents vs. children tales invariably strike close to home. The stories of his family are warmly human, and some of them, including one about an uncle who goes to the country each Sunday, are classics.

Patti Moore and Ben Lessy share the bill in the accent-on-yocks revue, and again click with their rapidly-moving mixture of gags, songs, and dances. New material has been added to their w.k. skits which always get hefty laughs and warm mitting here.

Coby Yee, a tiny exotic dancer, radiates disarming Oriental charm which would be more effective if trimmed by several minutes. Dakar.

Harlowe Orch rehels. Jose.

Latin Quarter, N. Y.

E. M. Loew & Eddie Risman presentation of "International Holiday for Love" with Sallie Blair, Bernard Bros. (2), Bob De Voye Trio, Francis Brunn (2), Queti Clavejo (2); Martha Errolle, Gena Genardi, John Juliano, Tony Mack, Line. Produced by Donn Arden; costumes, Freddie Wittop; Jo Lombardi & Harlowe Orchs; $6 minimum.

The Latin Quarter in New York has really gone into its own with the present show. E. M. Loew, now a solo sans his former partner Lou Walters, who is opening across the street next month, has refurbished the stage, gotten a new show and a new producer and indications point to continuation of the high esteem this club is held by tourists and natives alike.

The Latin Quarter's formal preem, was better than a usual opening, but still had a few kinks to be ironed out. The layout had the benefit of a few nights shakedown, which apparently corrected some incipient defects. The opening night had the amplification system caterwauling at given intervals, and still had some 30 minutes to be eliminated.

The LQ general manager Eddie Risman has been achieving the miracle of Broadway as a nightly event. As the workman wind up about four p.m., Risman directs the removal of the scaffolding inside the spot and the subsequent clean-up of the debris and the club is ready for action. It's quite an undertaking to refurbish the spot and keep running at the same time.

The resultant alterations indicates that the Latin Quarter will achieve a more intimate effect with virtually no difference in its capacity. The stage is shorter, but wider. The decor has been altered so that the atmosphere is lightened. The ruffled satin ceiling has been removed and a flat top installed. The lighting system has been enlarged so that the good part of the illumination comes from the ceiling. There's an Austrian curtain and there's a water curtain, which on the opening night splashed a few ringsiders, since a splashboard hadn't yet been installed. A couple of birdcages with femmes inside ride the ceiling. The alterations make the LQ a more impressive showcase.

Donn Arden hasn't produced in New York area since his displays at the now defunct Riviera at Ft. Lee, N. J. He's made an excellent start with this display. His production is imaginative and sprightly. He's given the club a pattern of operations which looks like a logical base for the shows. There are some highly imaginative moments, the show is rapidly gaited and excellently costumed. In this display is a girl who takes a shower on stage. She shows more anatomy than has been displayed around here since the LaGuardia era. Much of the production was in the LQ show in Miami Beach.

The headlines are shared by the Bernard Bros. (2) and Sallie Blair. The Bernards have worked this shop previously with good effect and repeat with equal calibre. The duo, work mainly in comedy femme costumes and do some sprightly miming to recordings. They score solidly.

Miss Blair is an exciting newcomer who comes on stage backed by a trio comprising piano, drums and conga drum battery. She's a well garbed, and highly schooled in a sexy delivery. Act, by this Negro singer as presently constituted, is overdone in both arrangements, and presentation. She has enough substantial basics to get over without the extra dressing. She's going for sounds as well, an unnecessary item, since she can attain effect without gimmicks. She's nevertheless a potent scorer in this room.

On the dance side, the Bob De Voye Trio, two lads hurl a girl around artistically. This team concentrates on terpery and the acro stuff looks incidental, which makes it a prime turn of this type. Also in the choreographic line, Queti Clavejo does some enticing flamenco atop a drum with a guitar accompaniment. She's an energtic terper and gets off well.

Novelty is by Francis Brunn, one of the better jugglers around, who forms some picturesque patterns. He works skillfully and rapidly manipulating a wide variety of items for top returns.

In the production line, Martha Errolle and Gena Genardi and John Juliano do the production singing effectively, and Tony Mack does the production dancing. Jo Lombardi does an excellent job in the backstopping dept. He works behind a curtain out of sight, and his batonning is doubly difficult with that handicap. The Buddy

House Reviews

Music Hall, N. Y.

"Espana," produced by Leon Leonidoff; with Caracolillo & Maris Rios; Rockettes, dances by Emelia Sherman; vocalists Francesca Roberto, George Sawtelle; entire company (including Rockettes, Ballet Corps, male dancers); choreography by Florence Rogge; Marjorie Sende, ballet director; Symphony Orch, directed by Raymond Paige. "Marjorie Morningstar" (WB), reviewed in VARIETY March 12, '58.

The Rockefeller's Gotham showplace is pulling a switch this week in departing from the usual format of integrating vaude acts into the regular type of elaborate house production. This outing is Espanol all the way and, except perhaps for part sans of the theory that one good vaude turn deserves another, the change is welcome.

Produced by Leon Leonidoff with effective atmospheric settings, with the entire company garbed like so many kids from Madrid, and with the music and choreography content striking it rich in popular appeal ingred ents, the layout's a click.

Raymond Paige, directing the Music Hall Symph, sets the tone at the start with a fiery rendition of "Fiesta of the Toreadors." Rolando Valdes-Blain adds to the color as featured guitarist.

Rockettes are up to their usual precision kickups in an "Ole Okay!" number that's with the overall theme. Gals go Spanish and score the big mitting to which they're accustomed.

"Say Si Si" naturally couldn't be overlooked for the mass audience—it, like "Bolero" is a natural—and gets a well-paced workout by the Hall's Glee Club and featured vocalists Francesca Roberto and George Sawtelle.

Couple of flamenco specialists, Caracolillo and Maria Rosa, are new to this country but shouldn't have trouble finding other dates, including telev sion. With the entire Hall company to back them up in the "Bolero" windup, they give dramatic effect to the castinet terping; their counterpointing has classic style.

The aforementioned finale, with everyone in the act, provides fitting razzle-dazzle to a well-organized, well-executed package. Paige's backing is topnotch.

Gene.

Majestic, Vancouver

Vancouver, April 23.

Mike Newman, Mike Taylor Trio, Pat & Wilma Levolos, The Michauds (2), Bob Hart, Carl de Santis Orch (5); "Blonde Pickup," (Indie) "Rock Baby Rock It" (Indie)

Wicket trade continues fair, and this sixth vaude card is firstrate—and at same time is end of the four-a-day on a six-day basis. New arrangement cuts down to three-a-day for Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays since the after-midnight receipts hardly warrant overhead and wear and tear on artists.

Mark Newman does a 20-minute profusion of gags, songs and impreshes, and has a hard time getting off. Lad's roster of characters include Martin & Lewis, Jack Benny, Rochester and Dennis Day, Eckstine, George Sanders, Walter Brennan, et al. He does a sock Sinatra bit and windup is a parody of Liberace with a lit sparkler.

Mike Taylor combo is a Negro jazz offering which includes a couple of rock 'n' roll rousers for the tone-deaf.

The Michauds do some aphrodisiac Afro hoofing and wriggling by a tall attractive gal and a small Latin guy.

Pat & Wilma Levolos are acro veterans who do multiple hoof juggling. He's stand-by to Wilma on some nifty balancing on one leg of a chair on a table on a bottle, and same trick on a high-bar on a table.

Bob Hart in top form as singing-host, and Carl de Santis orch, in pit, does a snappy on-cue backstop sesh.

Toms.

Empire, Glasgow

Glasgow, April 24.

The Hilltoppers (4), featuring Jimmy Saccat Authors & Swinson, Alan Clive, Three Barantons, Ray Alan, Marguerite & Charles, Jean & Jackie Dawson, Co'd & Cordell, Harry Haddock Orch.

As on previous trip, the Hilltoppers, with minimum of advertising ballyhoo, score strongly at head o this layout. Group, featuring Jimmy Sacca, have lotsa attack, and score with "Sugartime," "Mary Ann" and, in straw hats, "If You Knew Susie." Exit to good palming, and could have held stage with even longer act.

Rest of layout is both varied and fairly strong in content, a change from previous layouts at this vaudery in recent weeks. Authors & Swinson, Canadian comedy duo, register well with crosstalk and mime, including travesties of Lanza and Presley. Gold & Cordell are pleasant openers with standard terping, adding a costumed bit "Cockey Row" for variety. Jean & Jackie Dawson, billed as crazy rhythm-kids, are lively instrumental-vocalists.

Alan Clive offers a particularly strong comedy bit, scoring with greater impact than on his recent appearances here, and including his w.k. travesty of gangling James Stewart. Ray Alan, with some modern ventriloquism, and Three Barantons, in foot juggling, are reviewed in New Acts. Harry Haddock (from Liverpool Empire) batons the resident orch in absence of Bobby Dowds.

Gord.

Palladium, London

London, April 22.

Jerry Lewis (with Dick Humphries, Hal Bell, Louis Brown, Murray Frank), Marino Marini & Quartet, Kaye Sisters (3), Raf & Julian Jover, Skating Olandos (5), George Carden Dancers (16); Reg Cole Orch.

Just about five years ago when he made his Palladium debut in the double act with Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis had a sorry experience. The opening night reception was controversial and although the engagement was successful financially, it hardly helped prestigewise. Now, as a solo, Lewis goes a long way toward rectifying the situation; while it's easy to be critical of his act, there's no gainsaying his personal impact.

There are a lot of laughs in a show which abounds with vigor, vitality and versatility. There are, too, quite a few dull patches, mainly because the material is stretched to its limits and it's more than difficult for any one entertainer to hold a stage and an audience for more than an hour. Within that 60-minute span the comic displays a wide range of talents, not only as an uninhibited zany but as an accomplished caricaturist, a pretty smart dancer and as a hep vocalist. All in all, it makes a clicko entertainment, but an overlong impression of a Japanese singer allows the act to sag at the wrong moment. One of the shrewdest bits is the star's takeoff in vocal trends, starting with the pre-Belafonte era, tracing the success of the hillbilly songster, the operatic-star-turned-cabaret-artist, and the ex-pugilist trying to make an honest buck in a night club. His Jap impression is helped by a neat piece of stooging by Hal Bell, who provides the "translation," while Dick Humphries aids with some fancy footwork. Louis Brown, Lewis' musical director, leads the onstage orch from the Steinway, while Murray Frank augments the Palladium combo at the drums.

Marino Marini & His Quartet, making their first Palladium appearance, impress with their rhythm, polish and forceful vocalistics. Combo comprises the star at the piano, drums, electric guitar and bass and, between them, they give out with some lively numbers with a strong Neapolitan flavor. There's a fine sense of musicianship and teamwork and the overall effect makes a diverting entertainment. A few more numbers of wider appeal would have been an immense help.

The Kaye Sisters, a local close-harmony trio, do a few pops in conventional fashion. The gals appear to be over-drilled and there's too much precision in their presentation. Roger Price's offbeat routine, with a comedy pattern accompanied by lightning sketches, gets a sturdy reception. Best part of his show is an anatomical analysis of the male and female bodies.

Raf & Julian Jover have an unusual trapeze act with a hefty slice of comedy biz and one or two real fancy tricks. The Skating Olandos, a male and four young girls, put the emphasis on speed while they twirl around their miniature rink. The resident line of George Carden Dancers open each part of the show with simple routines. Whole presentation is admirably backed by Reg Cole's resident orch.

Sid Mallett.

Metropole, Glasgow

Glasgow, April 24.

Dorothy Squires, Pete Martin, John & Betty Royle, Earl King Trio, Larry Davis, Billy Denison, St. Dennis Sisters, Terry Redmond, J. P. Masterson Orch.

Dorothy Squires brings her tuneful chirping to hypo this downtown vaude layout. Thrush, strikingly garbed in champagne dress with mink trimmings, adds experienced showmanship and poise to act, completely holding aud.

Whispered style of between-song gabbing has the intimate effect. Thrush scores with tunes like "This Is My Mother's Day" and "I'm Walking Behind You," and exits to solid palming.

Rest of layout is average native fodder, more attuned to local tastes. Pete Martin tells stories in comedy vein, and musical items are by the Earl King Trio, crooner Larry Davis, harmonizing St. Dennis Sisters, Terry Redmond, and singing duo John & Betty Royle. J. P. Masterton batons the small house orch.

Gord.

Hard Ticket Vaude

Alan Gale Show

Alan Gale, Fran Warren, Dunhills (3), Arnold Dover. At Shubert Theatre, Boston, April 21, '58; $4.95 top.

Alan Gale transforms this legit theatre into a nitery, using a built-out platform from the stage, working with the house lights on, and scoring tremendous impact. As master of the Jewish story, Gale builds from one laugh crescendo to another, lacing with his own brand of every day philosophy. His translations of some of the more practically untranslatable Jewish idoms generate even more yocks. He works very hard out front practically all the way.

Supporting acts, all of whom score in slick fashion, serve to let Gale get a breather for his marathon stint. He works bits, too, with each of the acts, and does a dramatic soliloquy of an Irish lad leaving home with Fran Warren piping "Tura, Lura Lura" in the background.

Show opens with Gale, houselights on, welcoming the aud as if to his Florida nitery, setting the scene, style and mood. From opening to finale, Gale holds his fascinated followers to the extent that they plead for him to stay on when he bids adieu. Gale works in a fine bit on old vaude days and what an entertainer had to do then with a little terp, piping, gags and quips.

Gale, in his monologs, covers all the mores of modern living contrasted with early remembrances, takes his listeners on a trip to England for some standout bits with dialectical excursions in Scotch, Irish, English.

Following the nightclub pattern, Gale brings on the acts, starting off with Arnold Dover, clever sepia impresh artist, who changes from one character to another with aplomb and ease. Dover does wham carbons of Sinatra, Belafonte, Daniels, Durante, Jerry Lewis, Mortimer Snerd, Ed Sullivan and others including a takeoff on Gale.

Fran Warren belts out a songalog with boff showmanship. Opening with "You Make Me Feel So Young," she segues to a dramatic "Over The Rainbow" for maximum effect hitting the far reaches of the 1,717-seater.

The Dunhills, with Walter Long handling the patter chatter betwixt outstanding terp routines, score solid with a unique boot dance, in which they don rubber boots, and nostalgic "Old Soft Shoe." Guy.

FREED ROCK 'N' ROLLER GROSSES 10G IN MPLS.

Minneapolis, April 29.

Alan Freed's "The Big Beat," with 17 acts and four bands, including Freed's own outfit, Jerry Lee Lewis, Buddy Holly & the Crickets, at $3.75 top, pulled a nice $10,135 for a one-nighter (25) in the 9,000-seat Auditorium where the potential was $22,000. Window sale was big and the show's start was delayed 20 minutes until the boxoffice lines were accommodated.

Next Sunday night (4), following closely on the "Beat's" footsteps, will be a similar unit show at the Auditorium with 17 acts, including Sam Cooke, the Everly Bros., Paul Anka and La Vern Baker. Called "Big Show of 1958," it is also set for a matinee at the St. Paul Auditorium the same day.

New Acts

CELESTE HOLM
Songs
35 Mins.
Ritz Carlton, Montreal

Although an established performer in the theatre and films, current engagement of Celeste Holm in the Ritz Carlton's downstairs cafe marks one of her infrequent nitery ventures. Present offering is an entirely new showcasing for this attractive personality and certainly one of the best to play this particular spot in many years. Breaking sharply from the standard songalog routining used by practically every other chantootsie in the business, Miss Holm has based her act on one theme. The theme (what does a man want in a woman and vice versa) is not new by any means but her treatment is original, refreshing and handled in such a pro manner that only someone with the talent and inherent show savvy of Miss Holm could get away with it.

Teeing off with a song that encompasses her theme she moves smoothly through a collection of oldies brought up-to-date via the lyrics, reprises a few standards but never deviates from her basic query of the sexes trying to find a perfect mate. Kudos go to Ruth Aarons who did the writing for this new act and to pianist George Kent who did most of the arranging and conducts from the piano for all performances.

Timing throughout is excellent. There is no unnecessary gabbing between numbers and attention is solid at all times proving once again that even the patrons of a nitery will be quiet and listen to an artist with talent which is certainly the case with this particular artist. As part of the grooming program for her opening in the Persian Room of the Plaza in New York around the beginning of May, Miss Holm has added three extra musicians to the usual trio found in this room and the boost does a lot towards overall impact both with material offered and on the customers. Miss Holm stays until April 29. Newt.

INGA & ROLF
Dance
12 Mins.
Steuben's, Boston

This European dance team, in the U.S. for short time, shows neat footwork. Both youngsters, from Vienna, toured with ballet companies before putting together their act. Their novel stint is French flavored.

Opening with a ballet waltz to "Carousel," they make costume change on floor with femme removing skirt, revealing shapely underpinnings, adding bustle and taking umbrella. Lad dons straw hat, and in musico comedy vein, they get off slick gay parisienne type of hoofing in which femme gives partner come on with the orbs.

Effect is chi chi; floor presence is slicky and pro. Their big effort is "Dream of Love" ballet in which they execute ballet, adagio and acro with unusual lifts and spins for sock impact. Shoulder spin and one hand lift are nicely executed. Guy.

THREE BARANTONS
Foot Juggling
7 Mins.
Empire, Glasgow

Here's a honey of a balancing act from Europe, with useful American potential.

Act opens with one male and one femme balancing a barrel and ball on feet while lying with legs upstretched. Segue with some standard cylinder balancing. Femme wins palming for some nifty balancing of three and four balls simultaneously. Third member joins in act for final wind as trio foot-juggle with large-size tray, bed and table. Gord.

LOU ALEXANDER
Comedy
25 Mins.
Bradford Hotel, Boston

Off beat comic with slick material for the avante garde has been out for some time, formerly a double (Storm & Gale), but not yet documented as a single. Alexander is a personable youngster who can mug and deliver delayed action jokes with English aplomb. He's got a nice act for the smart rooms and hep set. He throws in a bit of song and dance routine working some commercial bits and rounds off with a series of Marine Corps routines.

Alexander has lotsa material and hits high spot with carbons of three Senators, running for election in the West, Chicago and Greenwich Village. Joe.

SOOCHA RENAY
Songs
25 Mins.
Windsor Hotel, Montreal

Soocha Renay, a sultry long-haired brunette, shows much improvement over her last appearance in Montreal. This time around, femme exhibits a more definite act and routining that has form and finesse.

The obvious planning has given her more confidence and although still in need of polishing and a better sense of timing on the special material items, thrush should be okay for the Continental-type of room.

Of medium height and wearing a close-fitting black gown that accents her physical attributes, Miss Renay offers a varied songalog that covers all tastes. Patter, still not a strong point with this songstress, is limited. More attention to her intros and a better showcasing for two of her best numbers, a calypso via China and a parody on "You Came a Long Way from St. Louis" would strengthen overall presentation immeasurably. Newt.

RAY ALAN
Ventriloquism
11 Mins.
Empire, Glasgow

Ventriloquist scores with slick technique and new material. He uses offbeat positionings, such as opening with his page-boy dummy standing center-stage while he himself enters from side. Later, he places his dummy in chair with back to audience, throwing voice back at himself from the wood-and-plastic 'stooge.' Second dummy is a parrot, whose voice he simulates with authentic screech and lilt.

Alan winds with customary duet with his dummy. Gord.

ALIS LESLEY
Songs
28 Mins.
Chaudiere, Ottawa

In Alis Lesley's stint only the high heels and ponytail are her own, and she discards the heels before her second number. The rest is Elvis Presley's as closely as the name (she says it's really Alice Leslie). Introduced as a femme Elvis, she works the whole stanza in the Presley manner except the screeching is probably in a higher soprano.

This 19-year-old rock 'n' roller gives evidence of ability in both pipes and showmanship and, with routining and original material, it is possible she could handle an act distinctively her own. Meantime, it is also possible she's riding an established track for showcasing. Should she switch she could probably manage well. She has plenty of time. Gorm.

Vaude, Cafe Dates

Continued from page 86

the Empire Room of the Waldorf Astoria . . . Olga James to open at the Moulin Rouge, Paris, May 1 . . . George Tapps postponed his Palmer House, Chicago, stand to take eight weeks at the Tropicana, Las Vegas, starting June 11.

Chicago

Sheila Reynolds opens at Chi's Camellia House Friday (2) . . . Eydie Gorme the next topliner at the Empire Room here, opening May 8. George Tapps also on the bill . . . Kay Martin & Bodyguards have a two-weeker at the Berghof Gardens, Ft. Wayne, as of May 19. . . . Richie Brothers current at the St. Paul hotel, and open at Reno's Holiday hospice May 22 . . . Howard & Hayden set for two frames at Eddy's in K. C. starting May 31. . . . Eddie Barnes goes into Peoria's private Showboat May 2 for two. . . . Tony Bennett, with Rowan & Martin, relight the Chi Chez Paree May 16. Jimmy Durante opens there June 4 . . . Ginny Simms at Monteleone, New Orleans, currently . . . Betty O'Neil, of the Las Vegas "Pajama Game" company, into the Dallas Statler-Hilton July 24 . . . Bobby Van due there Aug. 7 . . . Bob Lewis & Ginny set for the Roberta Sherwood show June 12 at the Roosevelt hotel, New Orleans . . . Marge Cameron does a fortnight at the Houston Crescendo starting May 28, and is booked for a pair at Eddy's (along with the Playmates), opening June 27 . . . Jim Arness, tv's "Gunsmoke" star, working the St. Louis Police Circus through May 4.

Figure 11 Shows to Span Summer On B'way; 10 Made Grade Last Year

A minimum of 11 shows are figured likely to continue on Broadway this summer. That's one more than ran through the warm-weather period last year and takes in mostly entries currently selling out.

The summer shrinkage in shows is based on the normal seasonal bowout of marginal offerings. It's generally accepted in the trade that only the powerhouse entries are in a position to buck the traditional June-September slump. Continuation of the present economic recession isn't expected to help matters, but it's not yet regarded as a major factor in knocking productions off the boards.

As has been the pattern in recent years, there will also be some layoffs during the summer months. Thus far, "Bells Are Ringing" and "Jamaica" have scheduled vacations. The former will go dark for two weeks from July 21-Aug. 9, while the latter will suspend for six weeks from June 30-Aug. 9. Because of the length of its layoff, "Jamaica" is excluded from the lineup of summer spanners.

"Bells," however, is included in the list along with "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," "Look Homeward, Angel," "Music Man," "My Fair Lady," "Oh Captain," "Say, Darling," "Sunrise at Campobello," "Two for the Seesaw," "West Side Story" and "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With?" Some of these are, of course, questionable prospects.

"Auntie Mame" is scheduled to end its Broadway run at the end of either May or June, depending on when Greer Garson exits her starring assignment. The company is then slated to move to the Coast for an Aug. 4 opening in San Diego with Eve Arden in the title role.

Closing dates have already been

(Continued on page 92)

Sharon (Conn.) Barn Secures New Finances; Future Now Looks Up

The Sharon (Conn.) Playhouse will be back in the running this summer. That wasn't definite until early last week when response to an emergency call for funds resulted in enough coin coming in to cover another season's operation. Around $16,500 was raised via a membership drive that was extremely slow in getting off the ground.

A letter pointing up the operation's dire financial situation was sent to Playhouse patrons several weeks ago by Willard Swire, president of the Sharon Creative Arts Foundation, which sponsors the summer theatre. The dispatch stated that unless response to the membership drive improve by last April 22 the barn would not reopen for the coming season.

As noted, the letter paid off and the new season is scheduled to begin June 30 with "Thieves Carnival." A 10-week run is slated, with a different show each stanza. Atwood Levensaler will handle the production reins and will also direct about five of the produc-

(Continued on page 92)

Anna Deere Wiman Takes 'Strip the Willow' Option

London, April 29.

Anna Deere Wiman has acquired an option on Beverley Cross's second play "Strip the Willow." His first, "One More River," a drama of 12 angry merchant seamen, is to be presented at the New Shakespeare Theatre in Liverpool which she runs in association with Sam Wanamaker.

"One More River" will be the first new play to have been staged at the New Shakespeare and, if successful will be transferred to London and subsequently presented in America.

"Dark of the Moon," which has been selected as an American presentation for the Brussels Exposition, will have a two weeks' run at the New Shakespeare before its Belgian opening on Oct. 6. It is being presented by the U.S. State Department in collaboration with Miss Wiman as a New Shakespeare co-production.

Marilyn Taylor as 'Lady'; Anne Rogers in London

Chicago, April 29.

Anne Rogers, costar with Brian Aherne in the touring company of "My Fair Lady," is taking a two-week vacation in England with her husband, actor Michael Hall. They'll attend the opening of the British production of the musical tonight (Wed.) at the Drury Lane Theatre London.

During Miss Rogers' absence, standby Marilyn Taylor is subbing as femme lead at the Shubert Theatre here.

RKO 2,800-Seater In Mpls. Turns To Touring Legiters

Minneapolis, April 29.

The legit has found a new home here, RKO Theatres' 2,800-seat RKO Orpheum, which, starting next season, will interrupt its regular film policy to book in the touring attractions when they're available.

This season has brought only six such shows to the Lyceum which, after many years was lost to the legit when Bennie Berger refused to renew his lease at a substantial rental advance and the theatre was sold to an evangelistic group that will convert it into a tabernacle. Last season there were only five legit bookings.

It's anticipated that RKO Theatres will handle the project without any association with Berger whose offer to buy the Orpheum was refused. Berger told RKO Theatres it was immaterial whether it goes with him or alone—all that he's primarily concerned about is that Minneapolis have a theatre to house the shows.

Minneapolis this season had more than 2,000 Theatre Guild subscripers and it's known that the Guild will retain it as one of its season subscription cities.

JERSEYITES PUT UP COIN FOR LES BALLETS

The current presentation of "Les Ballets de Paris" at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y., involves a $75,000 investment. Most of the coin for the offering, financed under a limited partnership arrangement, was put up by New Jersey residents and was apparently raised by Mac A. Kaplus, a general partner in the venture.

Kaplus, a Newark attorney, shares the responsibilities of general partner with Arthur Lesser, who's billed as sole sponsor of the presentation. The legalite is also listed as a backer with a $10,000 stake. Among the other investors in the presentation is Jack Small, New York theatre booker for the Shuberts. He's credited with a $7,250 contribution.

The terp troupe, headed by Jeanmaire and Roland Petit, was originally booked into the Broadway for a six-week stand. The run, however, is being cut short by two weeks and will end next Saturday night (3), with a tour scheduled to follow.

ATPAM Roll Unchanged; Same As Last Year

The Theatrical Press Agents & Managers membership during the year ending last March 31 held even with the previous semester. The count was 573, with the breakdown of members taking in 444, overall; 72, local area; 22, music field; 32, road show pictures, and 3, outdoor.

Of the 573 members the previous year, 16 died, one was dropped and three withdrew. Making up for that loss last year were five local area admissions, four road show entries, two in the music field, plus eight completed apprenticeships and one reinstatement.

Uncompleted Sudermann Play Set for Edinburgh

Glasgow, April 29.

An unfinished play by the late Herman Sudermann, adapted by Basil Ashmore from the original German, will be presented Aug. 27 at the Edinburgh Festival by the Rutherglen Repertory Theatre, a local stock company. The work, titled "A Quiet Corner," has already been waxed by BBC for future airing.

The Rutherglen Theatre will take over the Epworth Hall at Edinburgh for three weeks during the Festival. "Corner" is set in Bavaria in 1912.

What Price (50c) Race Relations?

Actors Equity has had a setback in its campaign to eliminate hotel discrimination against Negro performers. Ironically, the situation stems from headway made recently by the union in persuading the Congress Hotel, Baltimore, to take in Negro actors.

Equity had been led to expect that once its members were informed of the hotel's non-segregation policy they would go along with a recommendation to patronize the establishment, which is within walking distance of the Ford's Theatre. However, Milton J. Firey, owner of the Congress, predicted that even the more liberal white actors would shy away from the hotel because its daily rate is 50c higher than at other nearby spots.

Firey turned out to be right. The cast of the next touring company to play Baltimore cancelled its reservations at the hotel. This action on the part of a segment of the Equity membership and a scathing letter from Firey spurred an editorial on the subject in the current May issue of Equity, the union's official magazine. The editorial, which ended with the comment, "Ladies and gentlemen, just what is it we're fighting for?" was headed, "Of course I'm a Liberal (But How Much Does it Cost?)."

The editorial also reprinted part of Firey's letter, which read "No hotel likes cancellations after rooms have been reserved and other business turned away. In this case it seems that the Congress Hotel was good enough for the members of this company until they found something cheaper . . . We naturally expected other hotels in Baltimore to fall in line on the Negro question after we stuck our neck out."

The hotel man concluded, "In the future I am certain that you won't blame us if we are not enthused over theatrical business and/or the Negro question."

Holtzmann Sets Staffs For 2 Mass. Tunetents

Staffs and schedules have been set by David Marshall Holtzmann for his two tents, the South Shore Music Circus, Cohasset, Mass., and the Cape Cod Melody Tent, Hyannis, Mass. The Cohasset spot begins a 10-week season June 23, while the Hyannis operation launches a nine-week season June 30.

William Longbridge has been upped from business manager to general manager at Cohasset, and others on the staff will include Lawrence Carra, director; Arthur Norris, musical director, and Walter Pierce, pressagent. At Hyannis the general manager will be Arnold Goodman, with Ernest Sarracino as director, John Morris as musical director and Frank Bollinger as pressagent.

A straight play, "No Time for Sergeants," will be the opening bill at Cohasset, while "Happy Hunting" and "Most Happy Fella" are among the new releases on the schedule. The two musicals are also slated for production at Hyannis, where the slate also includes "Wish You Were Here" for the third time.

Negro-singer members of Actors Equity will be auditioned for the upcoming summer touring package of "Porgy and Bess" tomorrow (Thurs.) at noon (men) and 2 p.m. (women) at the Showcase Studio, N.Y. An open call will be held Friday (2).

Actors Equity Tags Frederick O'Neal As First Negro Candidate for Prexy

Frederick O'Neal has been selected by the Actors Equity nominating committee as the regular ticket's candidate for president in the union's annual election, to be held in June. It's the first time a Negro has been nominated for that post and is consistant with Equity's traditional disregard of a color line in choosing its officers.

O'Neal, a longtime officer of the union, is the incumbent 3d vice president. Of the other current officers, only three are up re-election. They're Frank Maxwell, John Effrat and Paul Dulzell. Maxwell, the incumbent 2d vice-president, is running for 1st veepee, while Effrat and Dulzell are candidates to hold their respective posts as recording secretary and treasurer.

New candidates on the officer roster include James Schlader, 2d v. p.; Hiram Sherman, 3d v. p., and Lois Wilson, 4th v.p. Under the terms of the Actors Equity-Chorus Equity merger, the post of 5th v. p. is being dropped and the 2d v. p. spot goes to a chorus rep, in this case Schlader. Those not running for re-election include Ralph Bellamy, president; Raymond Massey, 1st v. p.; Margalo Gillmore, 4th v. p. and Donald La Mon, 5th v. p.

Principals nominated for five-year terms as council members include incumbents Peggy Cass, Nancy Devlin, Larry Gates, Jeff Warren and Robin Craven. New candidates in that division include Bernard Gersten, Richard Kiley, Ruth White, Jean Stapleton and Chester Morris.

Two principals, Miss Gillmore and Edith Meiser, both incumbents, were nominated for two-year terms as council members. Miss Gillmore being an officer is automatically a council member. Chorus reps selected to serve on the council for five years include incumbent May Muth and Arthur Rubin and Eddie Weston, both new.

The entire slate is regarded as being fairly well rounded politically. However, there's a possibility a partial independent ticket may be put up in opposition to some of the council candidates. In the case of Weston, he ran for council on a partial opposition ticket last year and was defeated.

ATPAM Wants to Start League, Shubert Talks

The Assn. of Theatrical Press Agents & Managers has notified the Shuberts and the League of N. Y. Theatres that the union would like to start negotiations for a new contract. The two present pacts, negotiated separately because the Shuberts don't belong to the League, expire Aug. 31.

The current contract with the League covers a three-year period, while the Shubert agreement is for one year.

Road Profit Vs. Broadway Loss On 'Methuselah'

Profit earned by "Back to Methuselah" on its extensive pre-Broadway tour was more than enough to cover operating losses on its unsuccessful New York stand. The Theatre Guild-Arnold Moss production of Moss' condensation of Bernard Shaw's marathon play is expected to wind up with approximately $13,000 profit on the final accounting.

The producton, which costarred Tyrone Power, Faye Emerson and Arthur Treacher, had originally been scheduled for a "limited" six-week Broadway run. Poor business, however, resulted in the show folding last April 19 after four weeks at the Ambassador Theatre, N. Y.

The venture was financed at $42,500, with provision for 15% overcall, which would have brought the investment to $48,875. It's understood, though, that the cost of getting the show on the road exceeded that amount.

LONDON GROUP FINED ON CENSORABLE SHOW

London, April 22.

Members of the Theatre Workshop Company, a group operating at the Royal Theatre, a neighborhood house in Stratford, E. London, pleaded guilty last week to unlawfully presenting parts of a new stage play, "You Won't Always Be On Top," which had not been passed by the Lord Chamberlain.

Those involved were Gerald Raffles, general manager; John Bury the theatre licensee; Joan Littlewood, the producer; Henry Chapman, the author, who also appeared in the play, and Richard Harris, another actor.

Raffles was fined $14, plus $8.40 costs, while Bury was fined $14 and Miss Littlewood $5.60. Chapman and Harris were provisionally discharged on payment of $1.63 each in costs. On two visits to the theatre, it was testified, the Lord Chamberlain's representative found "a very wide divergence between the script as passed and the play as presented to the public."

Particular exception was taken to extracts from the play "which might be described as vulgar or not in good taste," and concerned a character who altered his voice to an accent alleged to be an imitation of Winston Churchill. Raffles denied that the voice was intended as an impersonation of Churchill and claimed that the Lord Chamberlain's alterations had been posted on a notice board for all the cast to see.

'Paris Virgin' to Follow 'Pajama Tops,' Civic, L.A.

Los Angeles, April 29.

"Paris Virgin," by Mawby Green and Earl Feilbert, will be presented May 9 at the Civic Playhouse here, following the April 27 windup of the same authors' "Pajama Tops."

"Tops" will have played 80 weeks here, including 38 at Forum Theatre and 42 at Playhouse.

15 Actors-Under-Grant Due for Cleveland's Ford-Financed Project

Cleveland, April 29.

Talent search by Cleveland Play House, sparked by $130,000 grant from Ford Foundation, rolled into its finals last week when nearly 60 nominees were screened by a panel of theatrical judges.

The 15 winners to be awarded three-year paid acting fellowships on staff of the 42-year-old community repertory theatre will be disclosed within a couple of weeks by K. Elmo Lowe, who becomes its new managing director effective in September.

Some 56 candidates who entered the finals were picked from a list of about 300 applicants in ten regional zones covering the nation from coast to coast.

Prelim auditions were supervised by Howard Lindsay, Alan Schneider and Joseph Papp of New York; Glenn Hughes of Seattle, Jules Irving of San Francisco, Daniel Mann of Los Angeles, Kendrick Wilson of Omaha, Nina Vance of Houston, Rita Fisch Andier of

(Continued on page 92)

British Arts Council Continues Author Help

London, April 29.

The Arts Council of Great Britain has decided to continue aiding dramatists by giving limited guarantees against loss to repertory companies and other managements for the production of new plays. Scripts will have to be passed by a drama panel of the Council.

The Council will also continue direct financial help to certain authors in the form of grants to enable the recipients to concentrate on writing for the theatre during a limited period.

Stock Reviews

A Waiter Not Named Julius

Dallas, April 16.

Ramsey Burch production of three-act (six scenes) comedy by William Walden. Stars Bruce Hall. Bob Mullen, Pat Young; features Richard Kennedy, Charles Braswell, Ronnie Claire Edwards. Staged by Burch; technical direction, James Pringle. At Margo Jones Theatre '58, Dallas, April 15, '58; $3.50, top.

Mike Finch ..... Bob Mullen
Tina Finch ..... Pat Young
Jerry Noonan ..... Bruce Hall
Eddie ..... Laurence Bahler
Millie Noonan .. Ronnie Claire Edwards
Regan ..... Charles Braswell
Detwiler ..... Thomas Ruisinger
Pasuda ..... Richard Kennedy
Walsh ..... Clyde Waddell
Geri ..... June Bray
Saudell ..... Joseph Cranshaw
Ted Flaherty ..... James Barbosa
Bobby Soxer ..... Jane Slaughter
Autograph Hounds .. Jerry Carter, Whitey Nesbit, Billy Britt
Bar Customers Dick Duff, Fred Hoskins

Current season of Margo Jones Theatre '58 has been dominated by comedy tryouts and has another to wind up a shortened schedule May 4. William Walden's comedy, "A Waiter Not Named Julius," is the swan song production by Ramsey Burch, who has resigned after being with the arena theatre seven years, having succeeded the late Margo Jones as managing director.

"Julius" is a weak comedy about an obscure cafe-and-bar waiter who craves notoriety, becomes involved in a murder case through mistaken identity and decides that he prefers anonymity. The occasional laughs, including a few real yocks, don't add up to enough.

Bruce Hall, as the waiter, underlines the humor in the part. As a gangster, Richard Kennedy also gets laughs. Others in the cast are limited by innocuous material. James Pringle's triple sets, abetted by expert lighting, add visual interest to the production. Bark.

Caught in the Act

Hollywood, April 11.

Scot-Horn production of two-act (20 scenes) revue, with sketches and lyrics by Robert Scothorn and music by Al Walker; staging, Carol Scothorn. Stars Carol Scothorn, George Stern, Ed Stroll, Wyn Nissen, Buddy Farnan, Jay Carroll. At Beverly Hills Playhouse, April 11, '58; $2.85 top.

There are occasional gems in this revue, but the prospecting is rough and the nuggets rougher. The sketches by Robert Scothorn and the music by Al Walker would be only so-so at best and this Scothorn production is minimal.

There are 20 sketches, six performers and an off-stage piano. Carol Scothorn, who has also staged, gets off an amusing and original bit of dancing.

Ed Stroll, as "Mike Malice," interviews George Stern as "Oedipus." Buddy Farman salvages some scenes with his rubber face and adroit timing. Joy Carroll sings moderately well and Wyn Nissen turns in good characterizations.

But most of the sketches wander around their subjects without exploiting them. The acting often shows want of rehearsal or professional polish. Walker's music usually sounds like harmony exercises. Glen.

Spring Thaw '58

Toronto, April 8.

New Play Society production of two-act (27 scenes) revue Written by Pierre Berton, John Aylesworth, Frank Peppiatt, Allan Maings, Frank Tumpane, John Wayne, Marian Grudeff, Lynn Howard, Bud McCreery; dance and musical staging, Alan Lund; vocal music direction, Andrew MacMillan; sketch staging, Stan Harris; settings, Jack McCullough; lighting, Alan Bessell; costumes, Suzanne Mess; musical arrangements, Raymond Jessel; orchestra director, Gordon Kushner. At Radio City Theatre, Toronto, April 8, '58; $3.50 top.

Cast: Barbara Hamilton, Andrew MacMillan, Corinne Conley, Paul Kligman, Barbara Franklin, Peter Mews, Sandra O'Neill, Don Francks, William Yule.

The 11th annual edition of "Spring Thaw" is notable for its sophisticated slickness and its dropping of the former more local topicalities. This season, the directorship has been handled by Alan Lund, Andrew MacMillan and Stan Harris, with no evident over-lapping.

Not everything can please everybody in a 27-scene melange ranging from short animated cartoon blackouts for backstage changes to lengthier sketch build-ups, but this latest "Spring Thaw" has highlights that out-shine the darker comedy attempts. Among the portions that could be cut are "Night the Hurricane Struck," a tasteless jest about storm disaster, and certain clowing aspects of "Woman's Place is Not in the Home" or "Are They Likely to Go Bach."

However, the writers generally deserve a bow. Pierre Berton, as last season, leads the roster for his imaginative and clever lyrics of "The Royal Commission Lament" and his "Mayor and Supermayor," with music by both by Raymond Jessell. Other writers have come up with twists and ironic flashes; and some of the sketches should be excellent tv or radio material.

Though sometimes hampered by material, Barbara Hamilton is again a worthwhile comedienne, with Barbara Franklin also in the applause-bracket. Two newcomers to legit are the personable Corinne Conley, who has a singing voice, and Sandra O'Neill, the latter particularly in a lavish "Supermarket" number.

Among the lampooned subjects are Boy Scouts, the Mounties, the proposed Toronto subway extensions, a trans-Atlantic phone call, life in posh apartment buildings, and "personality tailoring." There are also share comments on juvenile delinquency, the State-operated Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

However, "Spring Thaw" is most notable for its swift-paced cheeriness, the introduction of new faces, the colorful costuming of Suzanne Mess and the staging of the producing trio. McStay.

Shows Abroad

Truth to Tell

Glasgow, April 14.

Citizens Theatre presentation of two-act (six scenes) comedy by Alexander Scott; staging, Peter Duguid; scenery, David Jones; costumes, Dorothy Marshall. At Citizens Theatre, Glasgow, April 14, '58.

Socrates ..... Martin Heller
His Wife ..... Irene Sunters
His Friends Fulton Mackay, Frank Wylie
Executioner ..... John Grieve
Plato ..... John MacGregor
Slaves Iain Cuthbertson, Harry Walker, Peter Rowland
Guard ..... Kalman Glass
Undertakers Harry Walker, Alex McAvoy
Arete ..... Annette Crosbie
Jailer ..... Kalman Glass
Tubal ..... John Grieve
Fergus ..... Iain Cuthbertson
Queen of Caledonia ..... Edith Macarthur
Shona ..... Irene Sunters
Amazons Fiona Cumming, Janet Michael
Caledonians John Grieve, Harry Walker, Alex McAvoy, John MacGregor

There's probably native appeal but not much general interest in this comic fantasy about how Socrates, instead of being fatally poisoned in ancient Greece, was merely doped, to be shipped to Carthage and ultimately turn up on the coast of Scotland. It's a fairly amusing knockabout edition of the battle of the sexes.

Iain Cuthbertson turns in a lusty performance as a simple-minded, amorous giant who takes over the throne from the Queen of Caledonia, the latter role being played with spirit by good-looking Edith Macarthur. John MacGregor is an effective Plato in the first act and a light-headed Caledonian in the second, while John Grieve makes good use of his voice as the Executioner, a slick trader and a havoc-crying highlander.

Peter Duguid's staging is brisk and the scenery and costumes properly colorful. Gord.

The Iceman Cometh

(WINTER GARDEN, LONDON)

London, April 22.

Emile Littler has transferred this marathon Eugene O'Neill drama from the Arts Theatre Club, where it opened two months ago as a non-public offering, into the Winter Garden Theatre, where it operates on a commercial basis. Whether it will be successful is open to question. Not only is this a heavy drama, but its undue length makes unusual demands on the audience and, unlike the Arts Theatre (which has its own restaurant), there are only limited refreshment facilities at the Winter Garden. That could be a decisive factor for a play that runs four-and-a-half hours.

Apart from daring to make the transfer, Littler has shown good taste in keeping to the original cast. The Winter Garden has a larger stage than the Arts and the decor has been correspondingly adjusted, but in other respects, this is the identical show reviewed in VARIETY, Feb. 12. On that occasion Rich. commented that much of the play is repetitious, and noted that "only the skillful playing prevents it from lapsing into tedium." That observation more than holds good in its new setting. Myro.

Gretch Wyler's Summer To Include 3 Musicals

Gretchen Wyler will keep busy on the stock circuit this summer. She's booked into a number of outdoor theatres over an 11-week spread.

Her appearances will be split between three musicals, in which she previously performed on Broadway. They are "Silk Stockings," "Guys and Dolls" and "Damn Yankees."

LAUGHTON'S NEW PLAY

'The Party' Opens in Edinburgh—New Author

Edinburgh, April 29.

Charles Laughton and Elsa Lanchester are set to open at the Lyceum Theatre here tomorrow (30) in preem of "The Party," Oscar Lewenstein-Wolf Mankowitz presentation of a first play by Jane Arden, young Welsh authoress.

Playwright has written until now exclusively for radio and television. Laughton is directing.

Cast includes Joyce Redman, Ann Lynn, John Welsh and Albert Finney. Decor is by Reece Pemberton.

Opera Review

Good Soldier Schweik

Having asked for and gotten only $100,000 subsidy from the Ford Foundation, owing to a habitual modesty which need not afflict the N.Y. City Center another spring, it was definitely a risk and a luxury for the Julius Rudel regime to add a "world premiere." But it was the sporty thing to do. Hence "The Good Soldier Schweik." This made item nine in a 10-item special spring cycle of "American" operas.

The hero, of course, is a Bohemian of the Austria-Hungarian Empire, but the composer, Robert Kurka, was a Czech-American and the adaptor (from Jaroslav Hasek's novel) is Lewis Allan. Past tense is used for Kurka, who died last December, a victim of leukemia at 34.

"Schweik" is not likely to be a hardy perennial in repertory. Though often "interesting" and occasionally "exciting," it is very thin and sometimes strident musically (no strings used) and its book, in one scene, exceeds the vulgarity of this house's embarrassing (though not unprosperous) "Orpheus" of two seasons ago.

Soldier humor in any war and in any army is preoccupied with bodily functions. But opera has never been. Certainly an aria literally revolving around the enema bag (with half a dozen of them used as part of the hospital ward decor) is perhaps, to pun, off-limits. Be that as it may, the audience is entertained, and indeed medical inspection is integral to the whole comic art of malingering, at which Schweik, though beautifully self-described as "a half-wit, fair and square," is nonetheless instinctively a genius.

Here is a "world premiere" to truly manufacture history, for there are more changes of scenery (19) than musicians in the pit (16), and one quintet includes a dog to render obligato and another scene has a repulsive military chaplain who drinks whisky in the pulpit. The zig-zag of the so-called plot moves from beerstube to insane asylum, from police station to boudoir. Along the way it is mocking the pretensions of patriotism, piety, bureaucracy, secret police and goldbricking. There are 37 in the cast, though only a few really sing and, truth to tell, this is an "opera" with hardly any serious singing.

It is not possible to say that this enterprise is wholly successful. It rates mostly as a novelty and novelty is often not enough. Though amusing, and inordinately fast in tempo as paced by Carmen Capalbo, this musical farce keeps recalling those 'B' comics, Abbott & Costello.

Rudel took the stick this time himself and his firm control helps keep the harum-scarum score on course. The stagehands were having beaucoup difficulties opening night and at a guess stagemanager Hans Sondheimer, 55th St.'s saint-with-vocabulary, must have used up three days quota of adrenalin.

The stagecraftmanship of Capalbo, the scenic imagery of Andreas Nomikos (trained in Athens, now a member of the Designers Union in N.Y.), the costuming of Ruth Morley and the Robert Joffry choreography all brought a tricky and trying venture to competent realization. Credit is also owing David Stone Martin for his projection sketches.

The show opens with rear screen projection of World War I films while George S. Irving in a corny tuxedo of yesteryear introduces Schweik. An added sequence shot in Central Park shows Norman Kelly wandering in that setting before he appears on stage.

It is, of course, as an actor rather than as a singer that Kelly imposes a strongly favorable impression upon the audience. He is a first-class farceur, always more astonished than anyone else.

And this show is pretty astonishing in all things weighed in the balance. Land.

Shoulder-to-Shoulder for Culture

Paris, April 22.

Operators of some of the more specialized theatres here are on a culture vs. commercialism campaign. They're in the process of forming an organization in which member theatres would help each other financially in addition to pitching for more government aid.

Those interested in setting up such an outfit include Andre Barsacq, Theatre Atelier; Andre Guinsburger, Theatre D'Aujourd'hui; George Vitaly, Theatre La Bruyere, and Maurice Jacquemont, Studio Des Champs-Elysees. Their aim is to be able to put on arty shows instead of having to rely on more popular b.o. entries where the payoff prospects are better.

The program would call for a reduction in production overhead, pooling of publicity, increased touring presentations to perk hinterland interest in legit and the issuance of questionnaires to get a line on what the public wants to see. The plan also takes in keeping some theatres open during the summer when most are shuttered.

The warm-weather presentations would be targeted primarily at those tourists look for more heavyweight entertainment than the nudist shows.

Dance Reviews

Polish Ballet Slask

Paris, April 21.

Jane Breteau and Spectacles Lumbroso presentation of the Polish Ballet Slask in 25 songs and dances. Artistic director, Stanislaw Hadyna. Staging and choreography, Elwira Kaminska; orch directed by Hadyna; music, Hadyna; lyrics, Zdzislaw Pyzik, Hadyna. At Alhambra, Paris, April 19, '58; $3 top.

This Polish entry misses the more general interest and prowess of Big Brother Moiseyev from Moscow. It is mainly of ethnic appeal sans the needed exuberance and real show qualities for U.S.

There is too much singing to call this a ballet company, though this is pleasing and harmonic. Dances remain "folksy" on level of a country fair. Can't stand the big time comparisons.

Costumes are colorful and the girls are graceful and charming sans eclat. The men lack the theatrical vitality so evident in the Russo entries. Here and there a beguiling choreographic number develops but total is lacklustre. Mosk.

Martha Graham Co.

(Second Series)

The second novelty the Graham company presented last week was in a lighter and gayer vein than "Clytemnaestra" which opened. "Embattled Garden" (of Eden) presents Adam, Eve, Lilith and the Stranger (who could be either the serpent or Satan). They make a very attractive foursome who dance, act and display virtuoso acrobatics which rate high praise.

Choreography is witty, intriguing and lyrical and wonderfully inventive. A help is Noguchi's original idea of Eden which includes a highly stylized tree and a tipped ramp with a forest of moving poles. Miss Graham invents brilliantly to the sensualities and rhythmic qualities of the score. Glen Tetley as The Stranger dances with bravoura and dramatic force. B. Ross as Adam has stage presence and Yuriko as Eve is alluring, flirtatious and exiting. Matt Turney is convincing as the cynical Lilith.

Balance of second program presented "Seraphic Dialogue" (Joan of Arc reflecting on her past) to a good score by Norman Joio and a stunning decor by Noguchi. Ethel Winter is a radiant Joan and Bertram Ross' performance of St. Michael is a little masterpiece of style.

Miss Graham's only appearance is in "Death and Entrances" a fantasia on the Bronte sisters, an interesting work which provides Miss Graham with a great role to music by Hunter Johnson and a set by Arch Lauterer. Goth.

Ballet de San Juan

Ballets de San Juan is outfit dedicated to development of ballet and Spanish dancing in Puerto Rico. Founded in summer of 1954 by Gilda Navarra and Ana Garcia, sisters. From the beginning company was made up exclusively of Puerto Rican dancers. It's had a financial assist from the local legislature via the Institute of Culture and its current performances are tied in with the Festival Casalin on alternate nights when long-haired musickers are relaxing. This provides visitors with an additional local attraction.

Current bill comprises three numbers, first of which is titled "Designs and Devices," abstract musical visualization in a highly stylized neo-classic form. Arnold Taraborelli, choreographer also did sets and spacemen type costumes.

Second, "L'Amour Sorciere" is a fantasy treatment of the de Falla score, "El Amor Brujo," provides the principals Gilda Navarra and Pedro Lorca with a vehicle for their talents and in which they are ably supported by the younger dancers in the Spanish tradition. Colorful wardrobe and background by Fernando Rivero set off the piece.

Final item, "Belle of Loiza" is a Puerto Rican ballet based on a folk legend gathered by Ricardo Alegria, head of the Institute of Culture. Ballet features 3 stereotype blackface female comics. (It's a revised version of original 1956 production.) Choreographed by Ana Garcia, native musical themes have been woven with dramatic value into Jack Delano's score with which are merged engaging performances by Ana Garcia, Juan Anduze, Alma Concepcion and the guest artist Ernesto Gonzalez. (Latter appeared in B'way version of Camino Real.) Legend provides an amusing picture to close the program. Costumes by Guillermo contributed to the gaiety and colorful sets were done by Jack Delano.

Charles H. Blake of Hollywood has been retained as an overall consultant to the company in both the artistic and business departments for its current Festival dates and its projected tours. Company has made substantial strides since first organized but still needs funds and more bigtime knowhow. Hence Blake. Rein.

Show Out of Town

The Irresistible Male

Hollywood, April 14.

Masquers production of three-act comedy by Freeman Lusk. Stars George Beatty, Jay Jostyn, Marjorie Stapp, Louise Sherrill, Brad Johnson. Produced and directed by Harry Antrim; set, Willard Scott. At Masquers Theatre, Hollywood April 14, '58; $1.25 top.

Mr. Harrington ..... George Beatty
Jerry Von Stallmeister ..... Jay Jostyn
Miss Wells ..... Marjorie Stapp
Mrs. Harrington ..... Louise Sherrill
Wilson W. Wilson ..... Brad Johnson

Freeman Lusk's new play, "The Irresistible Male," is a comedy obviously meant for entertainment only. It lacks enough character, plot or even length merit consideration as serious theatre. Cleaned of its borderline humor, it might do for video.

As a 90-minute offering, Lusk's creation succeeds in part. Scattered through the Malibu beach cottage set are numerous jokes that are little more than throwaways that do nothing to promote the storyline or the slight situation involving a 50-year-old millionaire and his estranged 30-year-old wife.

The wife takes her horsey great Dane to bed; hubby roosts his pigeons in the bedroom; she recites the soliloquy from "Hamlet"; he expounds "The Charge of the Light Brigade." She's smitten with a headwaiter and a bartender, and the husband, wanting to keep his wife, is prodded into making her believe he's the irresistible male.

Jay Jostyn, as the unhappy husband's best friend, turns in the most professional work, soundly delivering some of the better lines. The husband, George Beatty, is overly stiff but comes across as oddly charming. Marjorie Stapp, as a female attorney, is pretty and capable, with okay work from Louise Sherrill as the wife and Brad Johnson as a male lawyer.

Producer Harry Antrim has staged the show affectionately. Ron.

Col. Centennial Drama Set for Central City

Central City, Colo., April 29.

"And Perhaps Happiness," written by Thomas Hornsby Ferrill to mark the Colorado Centennial, will open July 26 for a 35-performance run at the Opera House here.

The play was the winner of a $10,000 contest conducted by the Denver Post.

COLUMBIA ARTISTS MANAGEMENT INC.

Announces with Special Pride

MARY MARTIN

IN PERSON

ASSISTED BY HER ORCHESTRA
JOHN LESKO, Conductor
LUIZ BONFA, Guitarist • With Dancer

"MUSIC WITH MARY MARTIN"

The First Lady of the Music Theatre in a Program of the Songs She Has Sung Into History

A Concert Presentation of Unforgettable Magic

TOURING THE UNITED STATES (EXCEPT WEST COAST)
SEPT. 29, 1958 TO NOV. 23, 1958
JAN. 5, 1959 TO MARCH 1, 1959

Inquiries Are Now Invited
COLUMBIA ARTISTS MANAGEMENT INC.
113 West 57th Street, New York 19

Personal Direction: ANDRE MERTENS and HUMPHREY DOULENS

BROADWAY THEATRE ALLIANCE
Presents Its Compliments
To

MAURICE EVANS AND HIS ASSOCIATES

AS THEIR
NEW YORK COMPANY ON TOUR

"NO TIME FOR SERGEANTS"

RECORDS A MILLION DOLLAR GRO$$*

ENTIRE TOUR (Now in Its 30th Week)
Booked by
BROADWAY THEATRE ALLIANCE
A Subsidiary of
COLUMBIA ARTISTS MANAGEMENT
113 West 57th Street, New York 19, N. Y.

CAMI

*Spokane, April 19th, 1958 — $1,010,371

VAN CLIBURN

MUSIC'S NEWEST STAR

SELLOUT HOMECOMING CONCERTS

Carnegie Hall, New York City, May 19 and 26
Academy of Music, Philadelphia, May 21
Constitution Hall, Washington, May 23

NATIONWIDE TOUR—OCT. THRU MAR.—MOSTLY BOOKED

CAMI

Management: COLUMBIA ARTISTS MANAGEMENT INC.

Personal Direction: JUDSON O'NEILL AND JUDD
113 West 57th Street, New York, N. Y.

BROADWAY THEATRE ALLIANCE, INC.

ANNOUNCES FOR SEASON 1958-1959

TWO OF THE FOUR TOP SHOWS IT WILL TOUR IN U.S. AND CANADA

"A THUNDERBOLT OF FUN." —NEW YORK MIRROR

"A TREMENDOUS TRIUMPH! A TOWERING AND TREMENDOUS HIT!" —N.Y. JOURNAL AMERICAN

Triumphant Broadway Success

BOWDEN, BARR & BULLOCK
with SYLVIA DRULIE present
The ROBERT FRYER and LAWRENCE CARR Production of Sylvia Sidney

as

"Auntie Mame"

A New Comedy
by
JEROME LAWRENCE and ROBERT E. LEE
Based on the novel by PATRICK DENNIS

Sets Designed by OLIVER SMITH
Costumes by NOEL TAYLOR
Lighting by PEGGY CLARK
Miss Sidney's gowns by TRAVIS BANTON of Marusia

Based on Original Staging by MORTON DA COSTA

Tour Direction: Broadway Theatre Alliance, Inc.

Watch Next Week's VARIETY for SYLVIA SIDNEY'S Brilliant Notices for First Two Weeks of Tour as "AUNTIE MAME"

Winner of the Pulitzer Prize, and Drama Critics' Circle Award

KERMIT BLOOMGARTEN'S PRODUCTION OF

"The Diary of Anne Frank"

with FRANCIS LEDERER

Dramatized by FRANCES GOODRICH AND ALBERT HACKETT
Directed by GARSON KANIN

Production Designed by BORIS ARONSON
Costumes by HELENE PONS
Lighting by LELAND WATSON
Assistant to Garson Kanin, KIP GOOD

FOR DATES WRITE OR WIRE

CAMI

BROADWAY THEATRE ALLIANCE

A SUBSIDIARY OF COLUMBIA ARTISTS MANAGEMENT

113 West 57th Street, New York, N. Y.

Road Spotty; 'King' Sock 71G, L. A.; 'Fella' 53G, S. F.; Cornell 34½G, Hub; Lunts 36G, N. H.; 'Eyre' Lean 8G, D. C.

Business on the road ranged from bad to bullish last week. The pickup and drop in receipts from the previous frame was split about evenly among the holdover shows. There were 19 entries on tour three more than the prior session.

The overall take for the week was boosted substantially by the opening of the Civic Light Opera subscription seasons in San Francisco and Los Angeles. Of the three tryouts, "Firstborn," with Katharine Cornell and Anthony Quayle, and "Visit," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, did sturdy business in Boston and New Haven, respectively.

The other tryout, "Jane Eyre," starring Eric Portman, failed to get off the ground in its second Washington stanza. The three entries have moved on to New York, where "Firstborn" opens tonight (Wed.) and "Eyre" tomorrow night (Thurs.). "Visit" is offering previews prior to preeming officially next Monday (5) at the new Lunt-Fontanne Theatre.

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification indicates Tryout. Also, prices on touring shows includes 10% Federal tax and local tax, if any; but as in Broadway, grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

BOSTON

Diary of Anne Frank, Wilbur (D) (3d wk) ($4.95; 1,241; $32,699). Almost $20,000. Previous week, $23,000 on Guild-ATS subscription at same theatre.

Firstborn, Colonial (D-T) (2d wk) ($5.50-$4.95; 1,500; $39,950) (Katharine Cornell). Nearly $34,500 on Guild-ATS subscription. Previous week, $26,200 on subscription at same theatre.

NEW HAVEN

Visit, Shubert (D-T) (single week) ($4.80; 1,650; $42,000) (Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne). Nearly $36,000. Previous week, $38,500, at Shubert, Boston.

WASHINGTON

Jane Eyre, Shubert (D-T) (2d wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,550; $23,500). Almost $8,000. Previous week, $4,000 in five performances at same theatre.

No Time for Sergeants (Nat'l Co.), National (5th wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,667; $39,500). Over $20,000. Previous week, $24,800, same theatre. Closes next Saturday (3).

CHICAGO

My Fair Lady (2d Co.), Shubert (MC) (25th wk) ($7; 2,100; $72,979). Almost $66,500. Previous week, $68,500, same theatre.

Visit to a Small Planet, Harris (C) (4th wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,096; $39,000) (Cyril Ritchard). Over $16,800. Previous week, $19,800 on Guild-ATS subscription at same theatre.

LOS ANGELES

King and I, Philharmonic Aud (M) (1st wk; ($6; 2,670; $73,500) (Cameron Mitchell, Giselle MacKenzie). Smash $71,000 on Civic Light Opera subscription. Stays through May 24, with "Most Happy Fella" following May 26.

Tunnel of Love, Hartford (C) (3d wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,024; $29,600). Nearly $14,800. Previous week, $19,100 on Guild-ATS subscription at same theatre. Run extended two weeks through May 17.

SAN FRANCISCO

Most Happy Fella, Curran (MD) (1st wk) ($5.40-$4.95; 1,758; $58,-000). Almost $53,000 on Civic Light Opera subscription. Previous week, $20,000 in five performances at Victoria, Kansas City.

Long Day's Journey Into Night, Geary (D) (3d wk) ($4.95-$4.40; 1,550; $42,000) (Fay Bainter). Almost $22,000. Previous week, $22,-000 on Guild-ATS subscription at same theatre.

NEW ORLEANS

Happiest Millionaire, Civic (C) (single wk) (Walter Pidgeon). Nearly $21,900. Previous week, $13,600 in eight-performance split.

LOUISVILLE

Auntie Mame (Nat'l Co.), Memorial Aud. (C) (single wk) (Constance Bennett). Almost $42,100 on Guild-ATS subscription. Potential capacity was $46,000, but some seats were not on sale because of limited sight lines. Previous week, $45,270, at Murat, Indianapolis.

SEATTLE

No Time for Sergeants (N.Y. Co.), Moore (C) (single wk) ($5; 1,700; $48,000). Almost $31,700. Previous week, $27,100 in five-performance split.

DETROIT

Marcel Marceau, Shubert (Panto) (1st wk) ($3.85; 2,050; $30,000). Almost $14,500. Previous week, $13,-800 at Royal Alexandra, Toronto.

TORONTO

My Fur Lady, Royal Alexandra (R) (1st wk) ($3.50; 1,525; $30,000). Nearly $12,200.

SPLIT-WEEKS

Damn Yankees (MC). Totaled over $29,000 in seven performances, as follows: three Monday-Tuesday (21-22), Munic. Aud., Shreveport, $8,200; four Wednesday-Saturday (23-26), Music Hall, Houston, $20,800. Previous week, $33,300 in seven-performance split.

Auntie Mame (2d Nat'l Co.) (C) (Sylvia Sidney). Totaled around $34,200 in seven performances, as follows: two Monday-Tuesday (21-22), Proctor's, Schenectady, $11,-200; two Wednesday (23), Loew's State, Syracuse, $6,100 (includes flat $5,000 guarantee for evening performance); single Thursday (24), Stanley, Utica, $10,100; two Friday-Saturday (25-26), Veterans' Memorial Aud., Providence, $6,800. Previous week, $7,100 for two performances April 19 at Stratford (Conn.) Shakespeare Festival.

Cat on a Hot Tin Roof (D) (Victor Jory). Totaled around $8,600 in five performances, as follows: single, Tuesday (22), Civic Aud., Albuquerque; two, Wednesday (23), Liberty Hall, El Paso; single, Friday (25), Sports Palace, Tucson; single, Saturday (26), H. S. Aud., Phoenix.

British Shows

(Figures denote opening dates)

LONDON

Any Other Biz, Westminster (4-10-58).
At Drop of Hat, Fortune (1-24-57).
Bells Ringing, Coliseum (11-14-57).
Brass Butterfly, Strand (4-17-58).
Breath of Spring, Cambridge (3-26-58).
Boy Friend, Wyndham's (12-1-53).
Bride & Bachelor, Duchess (12-19-56).
Cat on Hot Tin Roof, Comedy (1-30-58).
*Dear Delinquent, Aldwych (6-5-57).
Dinner With Family, New (12-10-57).
Duel of Angels, Apollo (4-24-58).
Expresso Bongo, Saville (4-23-58).
Flowering Cherry, Haymarket (11-21-57).
Free As Air, Savoy (6-6-57).
Grab Me a Gondola, Lyric (12-26-56).
Iceman Cometh, Wint. Gard. (3-29-58).
Lysistrata, York's (2-18-58).
Mousetrap, Ambassadors (11-25-52).
New Crazy Gang, Vic. Pal. (12-18-56).
Not in the Book, Criterion (4-2-58).
Plaisirs De Paris, Wales (4-30-57).
Pajama Shed, Globe (3-5-58).
Rape of Belt, Picadilly (12-12-57).
Repertory, Old Vic (9-18-57).
Rear Like a Dove, Phoenix (9-25-57).
Sailor Beware, Vaudeville (9-5-56).
*Share My Lettuce, Garrick (9-25-57).
Simple Spyman, Whitehall (3-19-58).
*Touch of Sun, Princes (1-31-58).
Tunnel of Love, Majesty's (12-3-57).
Where's Charley, Palace (2-20-58).
*Transferred.

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Something to Hide, St. Mart. (4-29-58).
My Fair Lady, Drury Lane (4-30-58).
Quaint Honor, Arts (5-1-58).
Birthday Party, Lyric Hamm. (5-6-58).
Variation on Theme, Globe (5-8-58).

CLOSED LAST WEEK

Kidders, St. Martin's (3-18-58).

Touring Shows

(April 28-May 11)

Auntie Mame (Nat'l Co.)—Pabst, M'wkee (28-3); Lyceum, Mpls. (5-10).
Auntie Mame (2d Nat'l Co.)—Masonic Temple, Scranton (28); Community, Hershey (29-3); Jaffa Mosque, Altoona (5); Municipal Aud., Charleston (7); Municipal Aud., Canton (8); Paramount, Toledo (9-10).
Cat on a Hot Tin Roof—Civic Aud., San Bernardino (28); Aud., Long Beach (29); Russ Aud., San Diego (30-1); Granada, Santa Barbara (2); Roosevelt H.S., Fresno (3); Geary, S.F. (5-10).
Damn Yankees—Municipal, Tulsa (28-29); Aud., Denver (1-3); Municipal Aud., Oklahoma City (5-6); Forum, Wichita (7); Aud., Topeka (8); Paramount, Omaha (9-10).
Diary of Anne Frank—Wilbur, Boston (28-10).
Happiest Millionaire—State Fair Aud., Dallas (28-30); Music Hall, Houston (1-3); Robinson Aud., Little Rock (5-6); Convention Hall, Tulsa (7-8); McMahon, Lawton, Okla. (9); Municipal Aud., Oklahoma City (10).
Long Day's Journey Into Night—Geary, S.F. (28-3); Biltmore, L.A. (5-10).
Marcel Marceau—Shubert, Det. (28-3); Hanna, Cleve. (4-10).
Most Happy Fella—Curran, S.F. (28-10).
My Fair Lady—Shubert, Chi (26-10).
No Time for Sergeants (N.Y. Co.)—International Cinema, Vancouver, B.C. (28-2); Stampede Corral, Calgary, Alberta (3); Jubilee Aud., Edmonton, Alberta (5-6); Playhouse, Winnipeg, Manitoba (9-10).
No Time for Sergeants (Nat'l Co.)—National, Wash (28-3, closes).
Tunnel of Love (Coast Co.)—Hartford, L.A. (28-10).
Visit to a Small Planet—Shubert, Cincy (28-3); American, St. L. (6-10).

HER MAJESTY'S FUTURE

New Owner But Montreal's Phil Maurice Continues House

Montreal, April 29.

Her Majesty's Theatre, last of Consolidated Theatre's straight legiters has been sold to local interests for $360,000. Theatre, however, has been leased back to Consolidated for a reported $20,000-a-year and will continue as a legit house for the next five-and-a-half years.

Phil Maurice of Consolidated will continue to handle bookings and all arrangements for this 1,704-seater which had its preem in 1905 and has been under Consolidated's operation for past 30 years. At the end of lease house will be torn down to make way for an office building.

For a Hit in Germany, Produce a U.S. Success; But No Exclusive Deals

By HAZEL GUILD

Frankfurt, April 22.

The best way to have a successful play in Germany is to produce an American hit. Second best way is to put on a German classic. That's the formula recommended by Stefani Hunzinger, head of the theatre division of S. Fischer Verlag, one of the biggest publishers of plays and books in West Germany.

Fischer, which had 298 plays on its repertoire for the 1956-57 season, was responsible for 60% of all the play business in Germany during that period. Two-thirds of all the plays included on their listings were American.

One of Miss Hunzinger's prime jobs, however, is to uncover new plays by promising German authors to release along with the latest Broadway productions. Fischer has first refusal rights for Germany on all plays agented by Music Corp. of America, besides buying from other American play agents.

The process, says Miss Hunzinger, herself a former actress, is to read a play and decide if it's suitable and appealing for a German audience, arrange the translation into German, and then offer it to theatres, radio and television stations, and to leading actors who might want to play in it.

With 182 theatres in West Germany and 75 in East Germany (under Russian control) providing the primary market for the Fischer plays, there is no such thing as an "exclusive" rights for a play for one theatre. A script may be performed on a city stage and also in the same city's tv station.

Some of the leading American dramatists refuse to allow their plays to be performed in East Germany. Arthur Miller, (whose "A View from the Bridge" has had 459 performances and "The Crucible" has played 731 performances in West Germany; William Faulkner, whose "Requiem for a Nun" has had 253 West German performances; Thornton Wilder, whose "Matchmaker" has run 919 times in West Germany, and Tennessee Williams have all refused to have their plays done in East Germany.)

Theatres in both East and West Germany generally buy rights to perform a play on a percentage basis. Most theatres are municipally supported, and select from six to 12 plays for their winter or summer cycle, alternating from the group of plays each night. Ticket prices run from 48c to $2.40.

The usual royalty is 10%, of which 6% goes to the American agents, 2½% to the translator, and the remaining 1½% to Fischer. For a one-time television performance the fee is usually about $1,250.

"Friedrich Durenmatt and Carl Zuckmayer are the two top contemporary dramatists who are writing in German," says Miss Hunzinger. Durenmatt is Swiss, and Zuckmayer is German-born, but now an American resident.

SCHEDULED N. Y. OPENINGS

BROADWAY

(Theatres Set)

Visit, Lunt-Fontanne (5-5-58).

OFF-BROADWAY

Bonds Interest, Sheridan Sq. (5-7-58).
Sign of Winter, Theatre 74 (5-7-58).
Playboy West'n World, Tara (5-8-58).
Electra, Fan Hus (5-6-58).
Shaw Series, Downtown (5-12-58).
Judge, Theatre Marquee (5-13-58).
Sat. Night Kid, Provincetown (5-13-58).
Comic Strip, Barbizon Plaza (5-14-58).
Ulysses, Rooftop (5-27-58).

B'way Up 'n' Down; 'Captain' $58,400, 'Bells' $54,900, 'Story' 50G, 'Girl' 37G, 'Remembered' $33,500, 'Denim' $19,500

Broadway was uneven last week. Some shows picked up over the previous week, while others dropped. The powerhouse entries held steady, while twofers have been a b. o. stimulant for a few entries.

Of the 22 productions on tap, those selling out or playing to virtual capacity business included "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," "Look Homeward, Angel," "Music Man," "My Fair Lady," "Oh Captain," "Say, Darling," "Sunrise at Campobello" and "Two for the Seesaw."

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% City tax, but grosses are net i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Auntie Mame, Broadhurst (C) (72d wk; 565 p) ($6.90; 1,214; $46,-500) (Greer Garson). Previous week, $43,100; last week, around $44,000.

Bells Are Ringing, Shubert (MC) (74th wk; 588 p) ($8.05; 1,453; $58,101) (Judy Holliday). Previous week, $54,800; last week, nearly $54,900. Performances will be suspended July 21-Aug. 9.

Blue Denim, Playhouse (D) (9th wk; 68 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 996; $31,500) Previous week, $15,700; last week, over $19,500.

Dark at the Top of the Stairs, Music Box (D) (21st wk; 164 p) $5.75-$6.90; 1,010; $33,000). Previous week, $33,000, with parties; last week, nearly $32,600, with parties.

Entertainer, Royale (CD) (11th wk; 81 p) ($7.50; 1,050; $43,500) (Laurence Olivier). Previous week, $33,000 on twofers; last week, almost $31,800 on twofers. Closes May 10.

Fair Game, Longacre (C) (25th wk; 201 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 1,101; $32,-000) (Sam Levene). Previous week, $15,300; last week, $15,200.

Jamaica, Imperial (MC) (26th wk; 204 p) ($8.35; 1,427; $63,000) (Lena Horne, Ricardo Montalban). Previous week, $49,000; last week, over $47,500. Performances will be suspended June 30-Aug. 9.

Li'l Abner, St. James (MC) (76th wk; 604 p) ($8.05; 1,614; $58,100). Previous week, $42,000, on twofers; last week, nearly $42,200 on twofers.

Look Back in Anger, Golden (D) (30th wk; 239 p) ($5.75; 800; $25,-152). Previous week, $14,400; last week, nearly $12,900.

Look Homeward, Angel, Barrymore (D) (22d wk; 172 p) $6.90); 1,076; $40,716) (Anthony Perkins). Previous week, $41,200; last week, same. Perkins withdraws from the cast June 28, with Andrew Prine set as his successor.

Music Man, Majestic (MC) (19th wk; 148 p) ($8.05; 1,626; $68,658) (Robert Preston). Previous week, $69,100; last week, almost $69,400.

My Fair Lady, Hellinger (MC) (111th wk; 883 p) ($8.05; 1,551; $68,210). Steady at $69,200. Show is selling 20 balcony seats at each performance to students at 70 cents a ticket.

New Girl in Town, 46th St. (MD) (50th wk; 399 p) ($8.06-$9.20; 1,297; $59,085) (Thelma Ritter). Previous week, $36,700 on twofers; last week, nearly $37,000 on twofers.

Oh Captain, Alvin (MC) (12th wk; 95 p) ($8.35-$9.20; 1,331; $60,-000). Previous week, $57,200, with parties; last week, almost $58,400, with parties.

Romanoff and Juliet, Plymouth (C) (29th wk; 228 p) ($5.75-$6.25; 1,062; $36,625) (Peter Ustinov). Previous week, $22,200; last week, nearly $24,600.

Rope Dancers, Miller's (D) (23d wk; 181 p) ($5.75-$6.90; 994; $27,-850) (Siobhan McKenna, Art Carney). Previous week, $12,300 on twofers; last week, over $13,800 on twofers. Closes next Saturday (3).

Say, Darling, ANTA (MC) (4th wk; 28 p) ($7.50; 1,185; $50,460) (David Wayne, Vivian Blaine). Previous week, $49,000, with parties; last week, nearly $49,100 with parties.

Sunrise at Campobello, Cort (D) (13th wk; 100 p) ($6.90; 1,155; $36,-000) (Ralph Bellamy). Previous week, $36,200; last week, same.

Time Remembered, Morosco (C) (24th wk; 191 p) ($9.60; 946; $43,-000) (Helen Hayes, Richard Burton). Previous week, $35,100; last week, almost $33,500. Closes June 28.

Two for the Seesaw, Booth (CD) (15th wk; 116 p) ($6.90; 780; $31,-700) (Henry Fonda). Previous week, $31,800; last week, over $32,000.

West Side Story, Winter Garden (MD) (31st wk; 244 p) ($8.05; 1,404; $63,203). Previous week, $47,500; last week, over $50,000.

Who Was That Lady I Saw You With? Beck (C) (8th wk; 64 p) ($6.90; 1,280; $47,000) (Peter Lind Hayes, Mary Healy). Previous week, $42,200; last week, nearly $39,800.

Opening This Week

Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde, Phoenix (C) ($4.60; 1,150; $29,382). The Canadian company, booked for a two-week stand as the final Phoenix presentation this season, opened at the house last night (Tues.) with its French-language presentation of Moliere's "Le Malade Imaginaire." The play will run through next Sunday (4), with the group switching to three Moliere one-acters the following Tuesday-Sunday (6-11).

Firstborn, Coronet (D) ($6.90; 1,101; $35,040) (Katharine Cornell). Miss Cornell and Roger L. Stevens presentation of a play by Christopher Fry; begins a limited six-week run tonight (Wed.).

Jane Eyre, Belasco (D) ($5.75; 1,037; $31,582). Courtney Burr, in association with Sterling Productions, presentation of Huntington Hartford's adaptation of Charlotte Bronte's novel; opens tomorrow night (Thurs.).

Off-Broadway Shows

Ardele, Cricket (4-8-58).
Blood Wedding, Actors Playhouse (3-31-58).
Boy Friend, Cherry Lane (1-25-58).
Children of Darkness, Circle in the Square (2-28-58).
Crucible, Martinique (3-11-58).
Dark of the Moon, Carnegie Playhouse (2-26-58); closes May 10.
Enchanted, Renata (4-22-58).
Garden District, York (1-7-58); closes May 25.
One Act Musicals, Sullivan St. (4-23-58).
Threepenny Opera, de Lys (9-25-55).

CLOSED LAST WEEK

Brothers Karamazov, Gate (12-6-57).
Clerambard, Rooftop (11-7-57).
Endgame, Cherry Lane (1-28-58).

LUCIA CHASE BALLET INTO 11 COUNTRIES

American Ballet Theatre, which dates from 1940, is off on another European swing—21 cities in 11 countries. Range will be from Ireland to North Africa to the Brussels World's Fair. Lucia Chase heads the staff of 15 which administers affairs of company of 50.

Featured dancers: Nora Kaye, John Kriza, Erik Brahn, Violetye Verdy, Scott Douglas, Michael Lland, Royes Fernandez, Ruth Koesun.

Tom Curtiss Is Adapting Achard Play for Sherek

Edinburgh, April 29.

London producer Henry Sherek is lining up two Paris plays for presentation in Scotland in late fall prior to the West End. Robin Maugham is preparing an English adaptation of "Oscar," by Claude Moniet.

The second item, Marcel Achard's "Domino," now at the Comedie Francaise, is being adapted by Thomas Quinn Curtiss, Paris correspondent of the N. Y. Herald Tribune and VARIETY.

Barn 'Sgts.' Good $17,200 In 3d wk., Paper Mill, N.J.

Robert Weiner's strawhat-touring production of "No Time for Sergeants" continued strong at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Milburn, N. J., last week. The take for the third stanza was $17,200.

The show remains at the barn this week and another fortnight.

Legit Bits

The producing team of Barbara Wolferman and James Hammerstein have optioned an untitled comedy by Roger Price.

William Landis and Del Tenney will double as cast members in their upcoming off-Broadway production of Bernard Shaw's "The Philanderer."

Jerome Kilty has gotten the okay to produce "Dear Liar," his adaptation of the Bernard Shaw-Mrs. Campbell letters. He also intends to direct the presentation, which is planned for Broadway after a lengthy cross-country tour. Kilty and his wife, Cavada Humphrey, appeared in a one-performance tryout of the vehicle last summer at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge.

Sarita Hernandez, a personal manager, and Theodore Curtis, a tv playwright, plan making their Broadway managerial bow next season as co-producers of "Madam Thirteen," a new play with music by Howard Richardson and Hugh Ruth Rawson is directing Norman Forman's upcoming off-Broadway production of "Comic Strip." William C. Whitman is associate to the producer and Leonard Soloway is general manager.

The U. S. rights to Sylvia and George Leeson's adaptation of Jean-Paul Sartre's "Nekrassov" are controlled by London producer Laurier Lister.

The Vernon Rice Memorial Awards, sponsored by the Drama Desk, and given annually for "outstanding achievement" off-Broadway, were presented by the N. Y. legit organization recently to performers Gerry Jedd and George C. Scott and director Stuart Vaughan.

The film rights to Samuel Taylor and Cornelia Otis Skinner's "Pleasure of His Company," which the Playwrights Co. and Frederick Brisson plan presenting on Broadway next season, have, reportedly, been purchased by George Seaton and William Perlberg for Paramount presentation.

Charles Olsen is John O'Shaughnessy's successor as director of the upcoming off-Broadway production of "Sign of Winter."

Lyricist Larry Holofcener has purchased the legit rights to the 1946 film, "It's a Wonderful Life," which he plans transforming into a musical for Broadway production next season. Holofcener intends providing the adaptation and lyrics himself and is currently negotiating with a producer to take over the managerial reins.

"Not in the Book," which preemed earlier this month in London, is planned for Broadway production in 1959 by Gilbert Miller and Roger L. Stevens, in association with the play's West End producer, Henry Sherek.

Luclenne Hill's adaptation of Armand Salacrou's "No Laughing Matter," which Ron Rawson presented last summer at his John Drew Theatre, East Hampton, L. I., has been optioned for Broadway production next fall by Rawson and Marshall Earl.

Otis Bigelow's comedy, "The Marriner Method," which had been planned for Broadway production by Maurice Evans, has been taken over for London presentation by Robert Morley and Robin Fox. Morley may also figure in the venture as star and director. The author, incidentally, is an actor, currently touring with the Constance Bennett edition of "Auntie Mame."

An adaptation of William Owens' book, "Slave Mutiny," is planned for Broadway production by Roger L. Stevens and Emmett Rogers.

Ben Edwards and Iri Mowery have extended their option on Robert Thom's "Sailing to Byzantium" through next November.

Jay Glick's "The Trial of Marie Antoinette" is planned for Broadway next fall by Worthington Miner and Kenneth Wagg. The production team, incidentally, has dropped plans to produce "Extra Man" by Thomas W. Phipps and John McClain, drama critic for the N. Y. Journal-American.

The Phyllis Anderson Theatre, N. Y., formerly known as the Public Theatre, will revert to Yiddish legit for a limited period next season with a musical to be presented by Jacob Jacobs and Benjamin Rothman.

David Long and Lee Paton, who are partnered in operation of the Sullivan Street Playhouse, N. Y., where they've been co-producing plays since last August, will branch out into solo presentations at the house next fall. Long will initiate the independent production policy with "Shield for the Medusa," a new play by William Packard, which he plans opening at the theatre Sept. 23.

Irving Cooper, general manager of "Long Day's Journey Into Night," will ditto in that capacity on the forthcoming Broadway production of "The Disenchanted."

Aaron Frankel, new managing director of Margo Jones Theatre '58, this fall will have Dallas preems of 'October Gal," by Charles Robinson, and "Willie Stark: His Rise and Fall," dramatized by novelist Robert Penn Warren, in collaboration with Frankel.

Lyn Austin, who's on the production staff of the Playwrights Co., is due back in New York today (Wed.) from London after making arrangements for the Broadway presentation next season of several West End productions.

The American Shakespeare Festival Theatre & Academy presented its fifth annual Shakespeare Awards last week to Laurence Olivier, Katherine Hepburn, B. Iden Payne, of the U. of Texas; Lyn Ely, head of Theatre in Education, Inc., and William F. and Elizabeth S. Friedman for their book, "The Shakespearean Cyphers Examined."

Jimmy Komack has been signed by personal manager Hillard Elkins.

Michael Ries of Broadway Theater Alliance in Tulsa to talk subscription series.

Carmen Alvarez and Chad Block, who are appearing on Broadway, respectively, in "West Side Story" and "Li'l Abner," will be married next Sunday morning (4) at the Woodhaven (L.I.) Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The files of the Theatre Guild, including correspondence, scripts and records, have been presented to the Yale U. Library.

A French production of John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger," adapted by Constance Coline, preemed in Paris at the Theatre Mathurius last Thursday (24) under the title "Le Faix de Dimanche" ("Sunday's Peace").

Burgess Meredith will direct the upcoming off-Broadway production of "Ulysses in Nighttown."

Jerome Robbins will be involved as choreographer, director and co-producer of two upcoming Broadway productions, a musical version of the French film, "Holiday for Henrietta," and an untitled musical, based on old Roman comedies. He'll be partnered with Leland Hayward and David Merrick in the production of "Henrietta," which will have a book by George Axelrod, and with Hayward on the other project, which has a book by Larry Gelbhardt and Burt Shevelove and music and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim. Robbins, who'll be making his managerial bow with those two productions, is also slated to choreograph and direct "Gypsy," which Hayward and Merrick plans as a joint presentation.

Chosen as winners last week of the $500 Clarence Derwent awards for the best performances this season "in non-featured" were Collin Wilcox for her portrayal in the Broadway production of "Day the Money Stopped" and George C. Scott for his stint in the N.Y. Shakespeare Festival Theatre production of "As You Like It."

"Cyrano," a musical adaptation of "Cyrano de Bergerac," is scheduled for a May 13 evening performance at the Phoenix Theatre, N.Y. The tuner, written by Richard Maltby Jr. and David Shire, both juniors at Yale U., will be initially presented at the university next Friday-Sunday (2-4) by the Yale Dramatic Assn. A May 9 performance is also scheduled for the American Shakespeare Festival Theatre, Stratford, Conn.

Maria Fein will appear May 12 and May 19 at the York Theatre, N.Y., in a program of "European Theatre" readings.

A Broadway production of Jess Gregg's "A Swim in the Sea" is planned for next fall by Robert E. Griffith, Harold S. Prince and Shirley Ayers. A Florida tryout of the play winds up next Saturday (3) at the Royal Poinciana, Palm Beach.

Recent additions to the membership roster of the Assn. of Theatrical Press Agents & Managers include Richard Mooney, music field and Ralph Hathaway and William Miller, both road show picture division.

Maxwell Anderson's new play, "The Golden Six," preems tonight (Wed.) at Boston U., where it runs through next Saturday (3).

The Arena Stage in Washington is presenting the first production by an American company of "Summer of the 17th Doll." The offering, directed by Alan Schneider, opened last night (Tues.) and is the final entry of the current season.

A musical version of "The Egg and I" is scheduled for presentation by the Harlem Showcase at the Little Theatre of the YMCA, 135th St., N. Y., beginning June 6.

A legit production, based on Dan Jacobson's novel, "The Price of Diamonds," is planned for 1959 Broadway presentation by Edward Padula.

Charles Korvin will costar with Burgess Meredith in the upcoming Broadway production of "Enrico IV."

Irving Jacobson, Irving Grossman and Julius Adler have leased the Downtown National Theatre, N.Y., for the presentation of a Yiddish musical next season.

The off-Broadway Cricket Theatre is going after moppet audiences on Saturday afternoon with a presentation of "Sleeping Beauty," written and produced by Blanche Marvin.

The Helen Hayes Equity Players have been booked by the Nassau-Suffolk County Civic Theatre for a June 11 appearance at the Port Washington (L.I.) Junior High School.

A French adaptation by Jean Pierre Aumont of Irwin Shaw's novel, "Lucy Crown," is scheduled for Paris production next September, with Edwige Feuillere and Bernard Blier heading the cast.

A double-bill, comprising Bernard Shaw's "Overruled" and Sean O'Casey's "Bedtime Story," is planned for presentation next September at the Gate Theatre, N.Y., by Lily Turner, who also operates the off-Broadway house.

Director Herbert Machiz will lecture on legit production at U. S. Army bases in Europe this summer. He'll be accompanied by Vicki Cummings and Hurd Hatfield, who'll appear in scenes from various plays.

"Shadows in the Court," a new play by Barnes Connable, will be preemed next Wednesday-Saturday (7-10) at the YWCA Actors Workshop, New Haven.

Joseph Stein and Will Glickman have been tagged to handle the dramatization of Carl Reiner's novel, "Enter Laughing," which David Merrick has acquired for Broadway production.

N.Y. Ballet in Japan

Continued from page 2

cial Sunday afternoon performance when the entire house was offered at $1.39 to students, uniformed youngsters were queued up from dawn to fill the house.

Fujinei says that he intended to begin his big bally as early as last December when tickets went on sale, but did not get the publicity material he had requested. He feels that because the N. Y. City Ballet was unique to Japan, pictures and visual displays should have been a key factor in his campaign. But, he charges, he received only driblets of material from the Ballet management and it was only three days before opening day that he received the requested material.

Asked how his office was able to prepare the sleek souvenir program sold at performances, Fujinei said the info was culled from old Paris programs and pictures from those available in Japan. He claims that much of the material he sought was pigeonholed at the U. S. Information Service here and not forwarded to him.

A different attitude is expressed by Paul Szilard, the go-between for NHK and the Ballet on the tour. He says the Ballet success here was "fantastic" and "estimated" the attendance at 90% to 100% for the first week, with a leveling off to "at least 70 or 80% at the Koma Theater and a spurt to full houses again when the company shifted to the smaller Sankei Hall. He denied that the house were papered, but admitted that prices were too high.

On the publicity complaint, he said, "It's not true. I left publicity material here with my local manager." Asked if it was delivered to NHK, he said he didn't know.

Speakeasy Grog In Brussels

Continued from page 1

into a "bar"—despite it's being so billed—for a whiskey-and-soda is academic, because wine and beer only are permitted, save only in the key hotels.

Outstanders at the Eve are The Lugosis, humorous panto mixed trio, a cinch for the States.

The Moulin Rouge's "Night and Day Follies," produced by Paul and Josy Delme, has Rolant Truchot as "animateur," fancy for emcee. Pamela & Roland Truchot have a naughty but funny routine, "Les Pieds," showing only the feet obviously very boudoir. It is in the idiom of George LaFaye's "Marcia-John" recording showing the flirtation between a fedora hat and a lady's furpiece. For the rest it's strip stuff.

The Pavillon of Brussels

One of the great restaurants of Brussels, near the Grand' Place, is the Chantraine, perhaps better known as "L'Epaule de Mouton" (Shoulder of Mutton), founded in 1660, with the present Chantraine family taking it over in 1907. It's the Pavillon-Colony-"21" of Brussels, seating only 20, must be booked in advance, with the uncle of the bossman, who lends his "sauce de mon oncle" to the menu's billing, serving as chef.

Meanwhile Back At The Fair

The strikingly modernistic Vatican has as an annex a three-story, pop-priced restaurant including $1 blueplate specials for the cafeteria-style of self-service. "Holy mackerel" and kindred gags have sprung up already.

Brass Rail's Smart Idea

Smartest stunt is by Ed Levine, prez of The Brass Rail restaurants in N.Y., whose hot dogs, hamburgers, Pepsi and Coke already are getting beaucoup biz. The Yanks can't compete gastronomically, without becoming a U.S. road company of haut French cuisine, so by staging in the indigemously American idiom the competition is minimized and the authenticity intact. Souvenir menus translate what clam chowder, griddle cakes etc. mean.

There are 43 listed International Pavilions, which are reduced to 39 considering that the Arab states (Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Syria) are combined into the Egyptian pavilion.

American firms occupying private pavilions, separate and part from General Motors, Westinghouse, Sylvania (both latter in the Atomium), Philips International, include International Business Machines, Coca-Cola, Eastman Kodak, Pan American Airways, Philip Morris Overseas (Ltd.), Bell Telephone (Antwerp) and Singer Sewing Machine.

An American, Maurice Ball, stands to mop up with his Baltour setup of girl guide—chaufferettes, all of 'em lookers and multilinguists. He has also sewed up rooms in the Hotel Plaza, in the new de luxe motels which were specially built for the Expo, and in residential hostelries. (American industrialists like Bruce Gimbel have done ditto, for the duration, on the theory of constant traffic).

A new wrinkle are the Hotels de Jour (Day Hotels), for in-between Expo rest-and-napping for the tired, weary and indigent. Expo feet is a No. 1 complaint.

While the hotels were permitted a 25% tilt the locals point to $7 rooms now commanding near $20. Taxidrivers seem to be quickest on the gyp-and-take, frankly telling passengers off, "The ride is so short so why not 10 francs more," etc. Taxis are cheap; it's about $1 from midtown to the Expo. Getting a cab back will be the big headache, and may present a tourist deterrent.

Local shopping is limited to lace and crystal, now both very expensive, and the souvenirs are of the "Woolworth" nature — dominantly ashtrays etc., either with an Atomium symbol or of the mannikinpic motif.

Members of auto clubs, trade associations and the like, which just about take in most workers in Belgium, can buy a 350-franc ($7) season ticket, another for $6 for his wife, and children at 100 francs ($2) each—children under six admitted free—as against the 60c straight admission.

Most Belgians act as if they have time to get there. They were still charged up by the expectancy and the catering to the first-weekers' inrush, but it is noticeable that many Dutch and Germans are in, along with the GIs from Germany —no mistaking the latter, they make themselves heard plenty. (This is a common Belgian complaint about our service men—their noise. The French are bombastic in another way but, likewise, make their presence unduly noticed, say the locals).

11 Summer Shows

Continued from page 85

announced for three of the current entries Those are "Rope Dancers" (May 3), "Entertainer" (May 10) and "Time Remembered" (June 28). The balance of shows, now running on the Main Stem, are figured to fall out as the hot weather arrives. These include "Blue Denim," "Fair Game," "Li'l Abner," "Look Back in Anger," "New Girl in Town" and "Romanoff and Juliet."

"Firstborn," which opened last night (Tues.), is in for a limited run through June 7, while "Visit," which bows next Monday (5), is also booked for a limited stay through July 5. The only other opening scheduled for the balance of the season is "Jane Eyre," which debuts tomorrow (Thurs.).

Sharon Barn

Continued from page 85

tions. He's been active as a stager at the house in past seasons.

The letter also pointed out that legal steps taken to change the name of the Foundation to the Housatonic Arts Foundation have been dropped in favor of a public contest for a new tag. Gordon Reid, incidentally, is executive director of the Foundation.

The Sharon barn was slated to fold several years ago, but producer Judson Phillips was persuaded to continue when a group of local residents raised a fund to underwrite the operation. Swire, besides being president of the Sharon Creative Arts Foundation, is managing director of the American National Theatre & Academy, in New York.

15 Actors

Continued from page 85

Washington, Henry Boettcher of Pittsburgh, Monroe Lippman of New Orleans and Lowe and Frederick McConnell of Cleveland.

Most of them served on panel of judges during four day meeting here.

Under the Ford Foundation grant the 15 winners are guaranteed a starting salary of $60 weekly during first year, $70 per week the second year. During third year their stipends will average the then prevailing professional standard minimum for road tours, with steady work promised for a period of 36 weeks in each of three years.

Plan worked out by Lowe, who sold idea to W. McNeil Lowry, director of Ford Foundation Humanities and Arts division, is to use newcomers as nucleus of a touring professional company in their final season. Troupe is slated to go on a shakedown safari of Middlewestern smaller towns that have not seen "live" drama since the days of B. T. (before television).

JOB INTERVIEWS
at BERGEN MALL SHOPPING PLAZA
for
HOSTESSES
CASHIERS
WAITRESSES
Bring Bathing Suit!
See Mr. Rothbard, 11 A.M., May 1st at ARTHUR MAISEL RESTAURANT
Bergen Mall Shopping Plaza
or Call: PLaza 7-2615

SUMMER THEATRE
FOR RENT
Modern, concrete construction, 500 seats, fully equipped, acoustically perfect. Situated in well known vacation area. 80 miles from New York. Catering to over 100,000 visitors weekly during season. For particulars write
Box V-4991, VARIETY,
154 W. 46th St., New York 36, N.Y.

PRODUCER WANTED
Person with unlimited ability and energy to Manage, Promote and Publicize large Tourist Attraction in East. Write giving age, experience, summer stock, road shows, etc., expected salary.
BOX CW
200 Fourth Ave., New York 3, N. Y.

Peron Vise Off Argentine Press

Buenos Aires, April 15.

Peron's press empire is now entirely dispersed, and new owners are running the 10 newspapers and four printing shops, which the dictator had acquired mainly by muscle. Meanwhile the Provisional Government has so insisted on strict legality and investigation of each case that "Prensa" has only just recovered possession of an unused HOB Streamline press, imported for its use just prior to Peron's seizure of that great daily.

This press was never set up under the dictatorship because Gainza Paz' loyal staff removed the instruction manuals and when the Peronistas wrote to HOB asking for repeat copies, the reply was that no record existed of a press having been sold to them. The Provisional Govt. delayed while a probe was conducted to make certain that the press had been imported in legal form and not through any trumped-up import deal.

General Luis R. Gonzalez has acted as Chief of the Commission Liquidating the Peron Press "estate." The turbulent evening newspaper "Critica" is now run by Santiago Nudelman, a former victim of the dictatorship. Dr. Nudelman is a physician with a law degree, and he only started practicing law to defend citizens persecuted under the dictatorship. His editorship of "Critica" is expected to prove an asset to local journalism. Severance pay to workers who refused to stay on under his management amounted to $675,000, paid out of State funds.

The "Critica" rival, "Noticias Graficas," is now owned by a workers' cooperative, managed by Martin Puentes. There was a hitch in proceedings when the Cooperative which took over "La Epoca" (formerly ultra-Fascist) afternoon paper failed to keep up with monthly installments, requiring cancellation of title-deeds, and issue of a new tender to dispose of this paper.

The Editorial Haynes daily tabloid "El Mundo" is now recovering former readability under the editorship of Jose P. Barreiro, who works in close tie with Radio Mundo. The radio outlet is run by Carlos A. Taquini and Raul Medna, former heads of the radio's News Dept., which ensures renewed focus on news events in the web's programming policy.

During the period of the Mundo's "peronization," a new tabloid made its appearance under the guidance of Roberto J. Noble, dubbed "Clarin," which quickly gathered in the "Mundo" readers and many of the old Mundo staff. "Clarin" has now achieved a 343,000 circulation and is ready to operate new presses, which make it a formidable competitor for the Haynes tabloid, which was the first organ of that format published in this country (Started 1928). Prior to Peronization the Mundo circulation was 380,000, and it is now around 160,000 according to reliable advertising agency information. Authentic figures are not available as the paper is not a member of the Institute of Public Opinion which checks circulations. Competition between the two tabloids will become intense if "Clarin" is successful in securing a Radio and TV license. At the present time "Clarin" is on top even without the help of a radio tie-in, but the "Mundo" may well gain ascendancy once more under stable and efficient management.

Literati

Award Whodunit Did-Its

Some eight "Edgars"—the Mystery Writers of America's counterpart of the Academy Award Oscars—were distributed Friday (25) by the MWA before more than 300 persons who attended the presentation ceremonies at Toots Shor's Restaurant in New York. Four scrolls, representing honorable mention, were also awarded.

Winners of the Edgars, symbolized by busts of Edgar Allan Poe, include Ed Lacy for the best novel, "Room to Swing"; William Rawle Weeks for the best first novel, "Knock and Wait a While"; Gerald Kersh for the best short story, "The Secret of the Bottle"; Reginald Rose for the best screenplay, "Twelve Angry Men."

Also Harold Danforth and James Horan for the best true crime story, "The D. A.'s Man"; Jay McMullen for the best radio script, "The Galindez-Murphy" via CBS; Harold Swanton for the best tv script, NBC's "Mechanical Manhunt," and Vincent Starrett for his "great service over the years to the field of mystery writing and mystery criticism."

Those rating scrolls were Marjorie Carleton, the team of Lenore Glen Offord and Joseph Henry Jackson, Charlotte Armstrong and Patrick Pringle. Presiding over the affair, which marked the MWA's 13th anniversary, was MWA prexy Rex Stout.

Outdoor Book Fair

Book fair in Puerto Rico is an elaborate 15-day event and because of the climate can be and is staged outdoors in the Rio Piedras Plaza, near the U. of Puerto Rico. In some respects its flavor is reminiscent of New York City's outdoor Washington Square art show. Exhibitors in booths are only on hand toward evening when numerous festivities such as folk-dancing, outdoor concerts, poetry readings, ballet, and experimental university theatre groups exhibit their specialties.

For the last night (26) the U. S. Tenth Naval District sent its Steel Band, Admiral Gallery's Pandeoniacs. Domingo Delgado is prexy of the Book Assn.

Family Weekly's 'Suburbia'

Growing suburbs of the nation's urban centres will be tapped next year by a new color gravure supplement which Leonard S. Davidow, prez and publisher of Family Weekly mag, is grooming for a January, 1959, bow. Aptly called Suburbia, it will be circulated in "selected" dailies and in some cases, weekly newspapers, which reach "high income" residential suburbs.

Family Weekly, a Sunday supplement in 173 intermediate markets, will make part of its staff available for Suburbia. Idea and plans for the new supplement were outlined by Davidow last week in a champagne breakfast for national advertisers and agencies at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, N. Y.

Order That Helps Negroes

Edward F. Murphy, S.S.J., a priest in the Josephite Order, which devotes its life to Negroes, keeps digging rich story material from the soil of New Orleans. His latest is called "Angel of the Delta," Hanover House, Garden City, N. Y. ($3.95).

It's the story of Margaret Gaffney, the angel of the orphans, and the best bread-maker in that land of top cooks. There's a statue to her at Crescent Bend with only one word: Margaret.

Father Murphy traces her birth in Ireland, her exciting and romantic days in Baltimore, her choice in marriage of the physically weaker of two brothers, the death of her child and later of her sick husband who goes back to Ireland to die, and her devotion thereafter to running the biggest bakery and an orphanage in New Orleans.

It's an inspiring story of a great and good woman who could be tapped for sainthood with some pushing. David Selznick keeps threatening to make Father Murphy's "The Scarlet Lily," which he bought years ago. Some rival producer might beat him to it with the "Angel of the Delta." Definitely for pictures. Scul.

Footnotes on Robert Burns

Death of James Barke, 52-year-old Scot novelist, whose semi-fictional biographies of Robert Burns, the peasant poet, zoomed to the bestseller class, recalls fiery controversy which raged throughout the world as a result of his frank and realistic writings, Barke died in Glasgow, Scotland, March 20.

He wrote ardently and admiringly about Burns in five volumes. The first two, "The Wind That Shakes the Barley" (1946) and "The Song in the Green Thorn Tree" (1947), aroused worldwide controversy. He delved deeply, research-wise, into Burns' life prior to penning his novels. Shortly before he died he had completed a novel "Bonnie Jean," set for publication in the fall.

Barke's novels were eagerly followed in the U. S. He nixed several Hollywood film offers, and was an outspoken opponent of the Burns Society cult, which he dismissed as "sentimental and hypocritical." Gord.

Another Copyright Symposium

Law and Contemporary Problems, publication of Duke University Law School, devoted its entire Winter 1958 issue to a symposium on radio and television. Articles, by numerous show biz legal eagles, are a followup to the Autumn 1957 issue, also wholly confined to radio and tv.

Among show biz attorneys represented in the most recent issue are Herbert T. Silverberg, who reps many producers and performers; David Miller, v.p. and general counsel of Young & Rubicam; Harry P. Warner, resident counsel Paramount Television Productions; Harry R. Olson, senior attorney NBC; Charles H. Towner, manager, National Assn. of Broadcasters employer-employee department, and Robert W. Gilbert, Coast attorney for labor unions and guilds in the entertainment field.

'The Astor Place Riot'

"The Astor Place Riot" by Richard Moody (U. of Indiana Press; $5), is a thorough recap of the celebrated N.Y. City fracas which occurred May 10, 1849, in front of the Astor Place Opera House. Sparked by supporters of the American actor, Edwin Forrest who was feuding with English actor William Macready, rival factions met in front of the theatre where Macready was playing and precipitated a "demonstration" which turned into the riot that eventually involved 100 police and militiamen, and in which 31 people were killed and 150 wounded.

Book is important for illuminating strong position of theatre in 19th century America, and revealing the extent to which public opinion could be stirred on show biz matters. Volume contains excellent illustrations, and is fine addition to stage historical collections as well as supplying brisk, offbeat reading. Rodo.

Williams Between Covers

"Suddenly Last Summer" by Tennessee Williams (New Directions; $2.50), is the longer of two plays currently offered off-Broadway at the York Theatre, Manhattan. Play deals somewhat sensationally with degeneration and cannibalism, and is dedicated to actress Anne Meacham, who plays the role of the unlucky heroine of the piece. Frontispiece shows a scene from the play.

Other script on the duo-bill, known as "Garden District," is entitled "Something Unspoken," but it is not included in present volume.

Bus Trip Through Soviet

Chi Daily News columnist Tony Weitzel chaperones his second Russian tour this summer, leaving July 12 for Copenhagen and Warsaw. Weitzel will lead a motley band of about 28, most of them experts in various fields. Group will make it all by bus once it leaves Warsaw, and is set, via Intourist (the Red tourist office), to visit about a dozen Soviet cities, including Moscow.

Weitzel will file for his paper en route, though his column won't appear daily. He'll also make tapes for his nightly WBBM, Chi, interview stanza, plus shooting still and 16 mm. films for projected tv and lecture use. He expects to be back at his desk by mid-August.

'Cartoonist of Year'

Hal Foster, creator of "Prince Valiant" comic strip, was named cartoonist of the year and awarded the National Cartoonists Society "Reuben" statuette last week. Silver NCS plaques went to Gus Arricla, who draws "Gorde"; Frank King, who does "Gasoline Alley"; Bill Crawford, Newark News editorial cartoonist; Herbert L. Block, Washington Post cartoonist; Willard Mullin, World Telegram and Sun sports cartoonist; Walt Disney, animations; Russell Patterson, advertising; John Gallagher, gags; Jimmy Hatlo, panels, and Wallace Wood, comic books.

Curtis Has 'American Home'

Curtis Publishing Co. has purchased the American Home Magazine at an undisclosed price. Mag, a monthly, is second in the home field with circulation about 3,330,000.

Robert E. McNeal, Curtis pres. and W. H. Eaton, chairman of the board of American Home Magazine Corp., said Curtis expects to retain current management and employes of "Home."

CHATTER

Vera Frank, assistant to Albert Erskine, managing editor of Random House, picked up her U. S. citizenship papers last week.

Otis Guernsey, drama editor of the N. Y. Herald Tribune, sailed for Paris last week on the Ile de France.

"Miss" Magazine goes bi-monthly starting with the September issue, per Victor F. Dee of Pines Publications, Inc.

Eddie Davis, author of "Fun Voyage," to confer with Jackie Barnett on converting the tome into a musical.

Edna Rider, make-up and production director of Good Housekeeping mag since 1924, retires this month. She'll be succeeded by Robert J. Rance, her assistant for the last six years.

Mrs. Marion McEniry, 61, columnist and for 19 years women's editor of The San Francisco Examiner, died last Monday (21) in Mill Valley, Cal. She retired three years ago.

Marvin Arrowsmith, White House correspondent for AP, has been chosen as new president of the White House Correspondents Assn., in Washington. Garnett D. Horner, of the "Washington Evening Star," was elected vice president.

Lillian R. Block, acting editor of Religious News Service, last week was upped to managing editor replacing the late Louis Minsky who died Dec. 30. RNS is an affiliated, but independently operated organization of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Clifford S. Parker, a professor of language at the U. of New Hampshire, has had his 14th book published by Dryden Press. It is an intermediate college French reader entitled "Contes d'Hier et d'Aujourd'hui" (Stories of Yesterday and Today).

M. J. Coldwell, leader of Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, Canada's socialist party (which may soon change its name to something simpler) started writing a Saturday column (26) in Toronto Star, Canada's largest daily. His son Jack used to be a reporter there.

Paul Wooton, "New Orleans Times-Picayune" was reelected secretary - treasurer. William Knighton, "Baltimore Sun," was reelected to the executive committee. Also named to the executive committee were Felix Belair, "New York Times"; and Robert Roth, "Philadelphia Evening Bulletin."

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

Frank Sinatra stole a star-studded police association benefit, held outdoors in the highschool quadrangle here.

An annual affair that attracts more stars than if they were subpoenaed, Sinatra flew in from Manhattan with Walter Winchell, who emceed the ozoner, with hardly time for rehearsal with Les Brown's band. Even so, the Hoboken humming-bird sang seven numbers, including "All The Way," Academy Award winner of three nights previously. Jimmy Van Heusen, who wrote the song with Sammy Cahn, was yanked from the audience to accompany Sinatra for the number.

Dean Martin, who sang it at the Academy show, stayed away from it at the cop clambake, sticking to "Man of Affairs," "Gonna Sit Right Down and Write Myself A Letter" and "That's Amore."

Real Spartans at the show were the gals. Though the night was colder than a Dulles handshake, Marilyn Maxwell, Roberta Lynn, Peggy Lee and eight models from Dorothy Gray's shop appeared in evening frocks, some of them cut as low as the grass. In fact, the best acting of the evening came from models who, wrapped in furs, tossed them off to show their frocks.

The Ritz Bros. opened, costumed to prove that though they may clown they're no fools. All of them were wrapped in beautiful fur coats. Walter Winchell introduced them as the McGuire Sisters and Drags. The only comedy worthy of such a billing came from them. The p.a. system was not so hot, but they were and they got their laughs.

As last year, Winch introduced Cyd Charisse with Damon Runyon's definition of class, but all she did was accept the compliment and walk off, though it was a nice cool night for dancing. Her husband, Tony Martin, was in fine form. He appeared in a red flannel-lined Glen plaid topcoat, but tossed it to the feet of Les Brown before he began the beguine. He finished on a fine performance of "There's No Tomorrow."

Show opened with Brown and his band of renown doing a beautiful version of "Rhapsody in Blue," which seems to be destined to become an American classic. Then Winchell wearing a fedora and a trench coat introduced Chief Gus Kettman who was dressed in blue flannel coat and white flannels. In fact, he looked like an Ivy Leaguer, anno 1910.

A handsome and gracious cop, he met Winchell on arrival and escorted him back to the airport 24 hours later. He's the real secret behind a benefit which can attract such talent to a smalltown show. In Winchell's case it was a 6,000-mile jump just to be the traffic cop getting acts on and off a stage. Marilyn Maxwell needed his assistance because she stumbled up the stairs in a red evening gown that was form fitting but fringed in such a way to look like the sack dress of the day.

Charlie Farrell ran the models through their paces but being an exmayor he was dressed for spring, even with a new crewcut. Hoagy Carmichael came on similarly attired in a dark silk summer suit, tried out "Buttermilk Sky" and then rushed off for something warmer than buttermilk.

Roberta Lynn, long a favorite of this show, appeared in a harem skirted frock, one of those jobs that balloon out and are gathered in at the hem. She sang "Lucky, Lucky," "Mr. Wonderful" and two other numbers. Peggy Lee faced the brisk night air with the lowest cut dress of all. But it was beautiful. She sang as if it were a warm summer's night, which it certainly wasn't.

Ukie Sherin did short skit with Peter Lawford, the little green house bit, and they were followed by Phil Harris, who did three numbers including "Row, row, row," and enough gymnastics to warm him up and the crowd too, so that Sinatra's entrance was ripping. Though he appeared, like Winchell, wearing a fedora, Sinatra decided he was among friends and tossed the dicer behind him. His locks are thinning but he's still far from being a Crosby, or for that matter, a Winchell.

He opened with "Come Fly With Me," followed with "The Lady is A Tramp" and "Just One Of Those Things." Then he got Jimmy Van Heusen on stage, who is balder, if that's possible, than Yul Brynner. They went through "All The Way" all the way and got the biggest hand of the evening.

For an encore Sinatra tried "How Are You Fixed For Love?" and felt so happy with the results he tried "Witchcraft" and finished on an oldie, the "Road to Mandalay," which showed how full of confidence this sparrow was on this night, for this is a song for belters like Reinald Werrenrath or Paul Robeson.

Show grossed $16,000, which goes to the Boys' club, and construction started 48 hours after the benefit, which must be a record in itself. There was plenty of double parking, but nobody got a ticket, all the cops being busy ushering people to their seats.

WIN AT GIN

GIN RUMMY BOOK

The Only Book of Its Kind Ever Offered to the Public

ADVICE AND DISCUSSION OF:

- Leaners.
- Safe discards.
- When to knock or go for gin.
- Speed of play.
- Arrangement of cards
- Luck.
- Partnership gin.
- Interesting plays.
- Rules of Gin Rummy.
- Basic Gin Rummy.
- Oklahoma Gin Rummy.
- Hollywood Gin Rummy.

This book is not sold in stores. For your postpaid copy send $3.00 to:

MITCHELL PUBLICATIONS
Department V.
2559 W. 21st St., Chicago 8, Illinois

Broadway

Leopold Stokowski will conduct three concerts this summer in Soviet Russia, preceded by a date in Paris.

Fred Lynch, ad-publicity chief at N.Y. Music Hall, back at desk last week after being laid up with infected foot for more than a week.

Duncan MacGregor, prez of Pathe Cinema, operators of the Paris Theatre, sailed for Europe Saturday (26) on the Ile De France.

Rossano Brazzi, Robert Montgomery and bandleader Enoch Light all in from Europe yesterday (Tues.) on the S.S. United States.

Seig Bart, prexy of Urania Records, planed to Europe yesterday (Tues.) for huddles with conductors in Paris, Vienna and Rome on new stereo recordings.

Goldman Band set for 50 concerts this summer at Central Park, Manhattan, and Prospect Park, Brooklyn, thanks to Dan Guggenheim Foundation funds.

Catapulted to U.S. fame via his winning of a Soviet Russian prize, Van Cliburn, 23-year-old Yank pianist, is greatest demand ticket of the present concert season.

"Vanessa" will be done in Salzburg this summer with the Met Opera costumes on loan and the Met cast including Eleanor Steber, Rosalind Elias, Nicholai Gedda and Georgio Rozzi. In English.

Hofstra College in Hempstead, L.I., is getting into the summer festival thing, starting with a day-long event May 24 involving services of Daniel Nagrin, Louis Krasner, and a new Elie Seigmeister opera.

Hurok's soprano, Victoria de Los Angeles did two concerts last week in Cuba, will also participate in Pablo Casals Festival at Puerto Rico May 1 and 4. For second date Casals himself will accompany, but at piano.

William Morris' George Wood and ingenue Lois O'Brien playing to an SRO "booking" at their wedding reception last Wednesday (23) with a complete cross-section of show biz among the 300-plus invitees. It was a civil wedding at City Hall.

Antioch College at Yellow Springs, O. is latest with an "arts festival," via its music faculty. Evan Whallon of Columbus Symphony is set for four concerts with a pickup ensemble. Antioch has for six years past had a Shakespeare-Under-the-Stars event each summer.

Bill Miller, first assistant manager at the Roxy, supervising the addition of some 350 seats at the Roxy. Additional seating was devised by National Theatres prexy Elmer Rhoden when he was here for the preem of "Windjammer," first Cinemiracle production. Will give the house 2,800 seats when completed.

Las Vegas

By Forrest Duke
(DUdley 2-6100)

Mrs. Kathryn Godfrey, Arthur's Mom, here visiting her pals Grace Hayes and Billie Geller.

Esquire Magazine interviewing El Rancho's Charlie Kahn about whys and wherefores of desert resort living.

At Morgan, the 88er, a click in Dunes lounge, has been given a long-term contract by impresario Major Riddle.

Monte Proser dickering with Hilton hotel chain about booking his "Tropicana Revues" into all Hilton show rooms.

Eddie Bracken at the Sands to show Frank Sinatra a movie script he's written called "Women's Barracks." MGM wants Sinatra to do film.

Madrid

By Ramsay Ames
(Castellana Hilton; 57-22-00)

Salvador Dali planning a film in and about his home in Cadaques in which principal characters will be himself, his wife Gala, and a rhinoceros.

Robert Stack and Erin O'Brien arrived for top role in John Farrow's "John Paul Jones"; and Brigitte Bardot ditto, to film Julien Duvivier's "La Femme et le Patin," with Antonio Vilar as costar.

Joaquin Salvo-Sotelo's "La Muralla" (The Wall) will be presented at Theatre fur Vorarlberg in Vienna in a new version by Richard Wegeler. First of Calvo Sotelo's works to be presented in Austria.

Mexico's Ana Maria Gonzalez into the J-Hay; Wilbert Bradley Dancers at Fontoria: Trini Alon o and Dick Landi at the Rex; Delta Rhythm Boys and Perla Cristal at Pasapoga; the trio Gipsis at Parrilla del Alcazar; Murio and Sheila at Morocco; Elda Barber back into Micheleta; and Bernard Hilda introduced "The Calypsos," a quartet of dancers and musicians from Trinidad, at the Rendezvous at the Castellana Hilton.

Director Jose Maria Elorrieta says his "La Habanera" will star Fernando Lamas, with exteriors in Havana, interiors here. Lamas was originally slated for Antonio Vilar role opposite Brigitte Bardot in "La Femme et le Patin."

Luis Escobar, author and director of "Te Espero en Eslava" (I'll See You at the Eslava), will direct Buero Vallejo' "En la Asrdiente Oscuridad" (In the Flaming Darkness) in London. "Darkness" preemed recently in Paris.

Two Spanish films will go to the film fests this year: "La Violetera" (Benito Perrojo production, starring Sara Montiel, directed by Luis Cesar Amadori) will represent Spain at Brussels. "La Venganza" (The Vengeance), starring Carmen Sevilla and Raf Vallone, at Cannes.

Palm Springs

By A. F. Scully
(FAirview 4-1828)

Bill Frawley in town.

Harry Oliver, now 70, feted.

Rose Marie in Chi Chi for five days.

Jack Ross's orch in Thunderbird for dancing.

The Kings IV booked into Lyons Prime Rib sans pickets.

"Long Hot Summer" opened at Village with outside temp of 95 degrees.

Peggy King in "Champagne Complex" followed Richard Reeves in "Born Yesterday" into the Playhouse.

Phil Harris ran the kangaroo court for the town's charity circus. Parade had 20 bands. Biggest ballyhoo for Texas including a p.a. tour of picture stars through Texas. But not many crossed the borders to return the compliment.

Eva Gabor and her niece Francesca Hilton, Esther Williams and her three moppets; Alice Faye, Phil Harris and their two offspring; Hoagy Carmichael, Virginia Field and Joan Davis managed to squeeze in the parade of Circus Week which was a salute to Texas.

Dub Imports for TV

Continued from page 1

remains uncertain to say the least. TV coin in the future could easily spell the difference between profit and loss on many imports. Apart from that, its' likely to convince the independent distributors to take the risk of pouring an additional $15,000 to $20,000 into dubbing films.

Some feel that, if and when the tv market looms for big money on imports, foreign producers will have a tendency to tighten up on their demands, particularly where tv rights are involved. At the moment, such rights are part of the general license and they're of course part of any outright deal. Thus Richard Davis is in a position to sell his "Diabolique" and "Riffi" to tv without further reference to the French producer.

TV buyers, for a long time, shied away from imports, excepting the British. At the start, right after the war, Jules Weill offered a batch of cheap, dubbed pix and tv, needing film, snapped them up. Then the market dried up. Now, with foreign films gaining greater stature and overseas stars beginning to be known via their appearances in Hollywood pictures, situation is changing again.

Variety Bills

Continued from page 80

Crest Lounge
Pete Daily Orc
Fack's II
Frances Faye
Fairmont Hotel
Dorothy Shay
E. Herkscher Orc
Gay 90's
Bee, Ray & Ray K. Goman
Joy Healy Dncrs 6
Wally Rose Orc
Hangover
Earl Fatha Hines Orc
Muggsy Spanier
Joe Sullivan
Hungry I
Ada Moore
Marsh Bros.
Gateway Singers
Jazz Showcase
Paul Bley 4
Purple Onion
Lil Greenwood
Lou Gottlieb
365 Club
Paul Gilbero
Joy Healy Dncrs
Alex Duchin Orc

SAN JUAN

Intercontinental
Betty Reilly
Bruni Roque
Joaquin Banegas
Bobby Hicks Orc
Lito Pena Orc
Club Caribe
Pepe Lara
Olga Guilot
Pino Baratti
Los Riviera
Miguelito Miranda Orc
Joe Blanco Orc
Escambron
M. A. Ortiz
Cleytons
Voodoo Orc
Cotillion Room
Tobaco Muniz
Flamboyan Club
Pepe Miller
Kiko Mendive
Zafra Garcia
Anne Carol
Cesar Conception Orc
Joe Vallejo Orc

RENO

Harolds Club
Wiere Bros.
Carl Ravazza
Kenny Knox & Konrad
Harrah's Club
Red Nichols
Joe Karnes 4
Marksmen
Deedy & Bill
Holiday
Harry Ranch
Sabres
Bud Cheek & Townsmen
Mapes
Goofers
Ed Fitzpatrick Orc
Golden
Billy Ward & Dominoes
Riverside
Andrews Sisters
Clark Kids
Starlets
Bill Clifford Orc

London

(COvent Garden 0135-6-7)

Leslie MacDonnell to N.Y. on talent prowl.

Mario Zampi setting up new film comedy, "Too Many Crooks."

May 29 marks the 25th anni of Columbia's independent operations in UK and Eire.

The Dagenham Girl Pipers, just back from U.S., signed to appear at Brussels World Fair in August.

Anna Neagle's new Frankie Vaughan film, "Wonderful Things," set for Warner Theatre London run.

"West Side Story" will play the West End only for a limited season, as part of a goodwill European tour.

Johnnie Ray, prior to his two-week stint at the London Palladium, planed to Tel Aviv on Sunday (27) for eight concerts in four days.

Princess Margaret gives the royal nod to Carl Foreman's pic, "The Key." She will attend the preem May 29 in aid of Children's Charities.

James Lawrie, first topper of the National Film Finance Corp., turned indie producer, succeeds Ian Dalrymple as chairman of the British Film Academy.

Top Yank jazz stars, including Ella Fitzgerald, Oscar Peterson and Coleman Hawkins, arriving Friday (May 2) for "Jazz at Philharmonic" show at Kilburn State Theatre that night.

Scotland

By Gordon Irving
(Glasgow, BEarsden 5566)

Cinemas report better biz following milder weather.

Olsen & Johnson to Empire, Glasgow, for week's vaude.

Al Hibbler off to moderate notices at Empire vaudery, Glasgow.

Tommy Morgan, recovered from recent brain surgery, talking of pantomime appearance next Christmas.

Robert Wilson, kilted singer, launched resident show at Gaiety Theatre, Ayr, with comedian Aly Wilson.

Stanley Baxter, young Scot character comedian, opens in "Five-Past Eight" revue at Alhambra, Glasgow, May 19.

Jimmy Logan, comedian, vacationing in new cabin cruiser off West Scotland prior to summer season at King's, Edinburgh.

Colin Hicks, rock 'n' roller (he's kid brother of Tommy Steele), doing stint at Metropole, Glasgow, before planing to Europe for tour.

Jeannie Carson and Donald Sinden headed thesping unit that planed in to Isle of Barra for lensing of new comedy "Rockets Galore" (Rank).

Miami Beach

By Lary Solloway
(1755 Calais Dr.; Union 5-5389)

Fisher's personal manager, Milton Blackstone, houseguesting with Jennie Grossinger.

Monte Proser skied in from Las Vegas on look-around for showgals and acts for his Tropicana productions.

Marion Colby back home after two-weeker at Havana Nacional, found contracts for Beverly Club, Cincy, and Rancho Vegas.

B. S. Pully, in third year at Place Pigalle, will return to Broadway next season. George S. Kaufman has set him for one of the leads in his new comedy.

Eddie Fisher brought Debbie and the baby along to the Americana, while he played a convention (Natl. Tobacco Dealers) date for sponsor, Liggett & Meyers.

Nat Hiken and attorney Art Hershkowitz at the Thunderbird visiting nightly at Murray Franklin's to laugh it up with Dick Havilland, who has featured role in new tv-series "Magnificent Montague."

Ireland

By Maxwell Sweeney
(22 Farney Pk; Dublin 684506)

Abbeyite Vincent Dowling hospitalized for surgery.

Film censorship fees will net govt. $19,500 this year.

Charles Mitchel named 1958 prexy of Irish Actors' Equity.

Strike threat by cinema workers in Limerick called off after wage negotiations.

Irish Actors' Equity seeking agreement covering artists working at Ardmore Studio, Bray.

Former Abbeyite Denis O'Dea to Hollywood for role in Disney's "Darby O'Gill And The Little People."

Govt. will cut grant to Abbey Theatre from $132,000 to $24,000 in current year as retrenchment measure.

Carlo Franci, Rome Opera conductor, will start six-month stint with Radio Eirean Symphony Orch next Fall.

James Neylin, back from U.S., playing lead in revue, "Caught In The Act," at Dun Laoghaire, seaside resort near Dublin.

Laurence Harvey set for personal appearance at Savoy, Dublin, to hypo Variety Tent 41 matinee of "The Silent Enemy" (Romulus).

Niall Sheridan, publicity manager, Irish Tourist Board, authored "Seven Men And A Dog," skedded for Abbey production this Spring.

Arthur Kennedy in from U.S. for role in Walter Macken's "Home Is The Hero" being lensed at Ardmore Studios with Fielder Cook directing.

Kevin Briscoe, secretary to Irish Kinematograph Renters' Society, named by Irish govt. to head new board to promote industries in Western areas.

Irish batoneer Dermot O'Hara conducted Hessen Radio Orch, Frankfurt. He changed places with regular conductor, Erich Boerschell who batonned Radio Eireann Light Orch for a like period.

Film Reviews

Continued from page 6

Fort Massacre

follows its unusual and honest story to a relentless conclusion. It will attract attention, and it has some spectacular visual values in CinemaScope and DeLuxe Color.

The Walter M. Mirisch production, directed by Joseph Newman, does not come off completely, however. It is one of those psychological stories in which the spectator is left with some unanswered questions when all details should have been tidied up. Apart from these reservations, it's safe to predict that "Fort Massacre" will do well as a superior program picture.

Joel McCrea is the sergeant of the U. S. Cavalry unit who takes over command when his superior officer is wounded and dies. McCrea leads the remnants of his men, against their better judgment and desire, through restricted Apache territory. He says his reason is to provide a shortcut to the nearest U. S. Army post. His real reason, as his men suspect and as proves to be the case, is that he is half-crazed with revenge because his wife and two children were killed by Indians. He is out to provoke an attack so he can kill as many Indians as possible, even if it means endangering the lives of his fellow cavalrymen. A few escape as McCrea is finally shot dead by one of his own men.

Martin N. Goldsmith's screenplay is excellent in its use of appropriate imagery in the dialog and in the creation of character, even escaping most of the cliches of such comrades-in-arms situations. His plotting is less successful. The underlying theme—McCrea's revenge—is not disclosed early enough and when it comes it is revealed more through dialog than action. Suspense and horror are lost in concealing or obscuring the motivation and it is never sufficiently clear to gain full value.

As a result, McCrea is not completely convincing as the ruthless Indian-killer, although he gives a characteristically strong performance. Forrest Tucker is interesting in a character role, and John Russell, Anthony Caruso, Bob Osterloh, Claire Carleton, Larry Chance, Walter Kray and Irving Bacon give good support. Susan Cabot, as an Indian girl, is a beaut but no Piute.

Newman's direction is skillful in limning the various characters and at taking advantage of the stunning backgrounds, excitingly photographed by Carl Guthrie. Technical credits are good, including the editing by Richard Heermance and sound by B. F. Remington. Marlin Skiles' music is also an asset.

Powe.

Savvy Jury

Continued from page 5

scripter and director; Jean De Baroncelli, film critic; Madelaine Robinson, film and stage actress, and Bernard Buffet, a painter who's done stage and film designing.

Foreign contingent includes the American director, Charles Vidor, Italy's Cesare Zavattini, Soviet director Sergei Youtkevitch, Japanese critic, Tomiko Asabuki, Spanish director Ladislao Vajda, West German director Helmut Kautner, and British scripter Budley Leslie. It's considered likely that Achard will be jury president.

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz
(28 Rue Huchette; Odeon 49-44)

Air France inaugurating an over-the-Pole flight which will make Paris, Anchorage, Alaska in 16 hours.

Tom and Marge McKnight in to looksee Paris nights as ditto L. Wolfe Gilbert and wife and Alex North and his wife.

Francoise Sagan and Jean-Paul Sartre planning a new weekly paper next season with Miss Sagan to be editor and Sartre the political director.

Misha Auer into Gallic comedy-science fiction pic, "A Pied, A Cheval En Spoutnik" (By Foot, On Horseback and In a Sputnik). He plays a Russo scientist in this.

Romy Schneider in for her first starring role in a Gallic pic "Christine." It is a remake of Max Ophuls' 1932 "Leibelei," which starred her mother Magda Schneider. Pierre Gaspard-Huit directs.

Japanese singer Hideo Koh in for radio stints and possible house appearances. Jap entry into regular film exhib outlets continues with "Juvenile Passions" opening in eight houses in dubbed version.

Swedish play producer Lars Schmidt wants Nobel prizewinner Albert Camus to adapt Regina'd Rose's film script of "Twelve Angry Men" into a play for next season. He also wants Camus to stage it and play Henry Fonda role. Camus has not yet accepted and is currently busy finding a theatre to mount his adaptation of Dostoievsky's "The Possessed."

French governmental film administration, Centre Du Cinema, expressed disapproval to producer Christine Gouze-Renal at price Brigitte Bardot is getting for her new pic, "La Femme Et Le Pantin" (The Woman and the Puppet). It is felt that Miss Bardot's $87,500 might lead to other star wage hikes, and overburden the already too costly production setup here.

Vancouver

By Jay Tomson

Cy Bassett awarded Vancouver Centennial PR account.

Calgary tv put Al Johnson into CKLG deejay slot with name change to John Jay.

"God Created Woman" (Col) is only flicker currently on British Columbia banned-list.

Doug Smith exits Al Williamson Ltd. for PR executive spot with Cockfield Brown ad agency.

Jim Tyson, engineer at Majestic vaudefilm house, retires May 1, at 64, after 50 years backstage.

Aida Broadbent on annual audition of hopeful hoofers for Theatre Under The Stars' summer season.

Jacques Singer, onetime maestro of Vancouver Symphony, to Buenos Aires to conduct 20-week season.

Bert Williams ankles deputy boniface spot at Arctic privatery for same function at Pacific Athletic Club.

Doug Nixon ankles Vancouver CBC as program director—for a high-brass network position in Toronto, starting June 1.

Charmaine Klenman tabbed Ben Yost Royal Guards to headline Victoria Exhibition May 12-17 and Nanaimo trade fair Aug. 13-17.

A. F. M. Local 145 hiked sidemen rates by 15%, so Public Hall Operators upped dancehall admish from 60c to 75c weeknights.

Bill Ellis, v.p. of McConnell-Eastman ad agency, has bought control of Howard Goodwin ad factory, with latter staying on as prexy.

Cleveland

By Glenn C. Pullen

Metropolitan Opera troupe at civic auditorium on annual one-week visit.

Count Basie orch with Joe Williams a two-nighter at Sam Firsten's Modern Jazz Club.

Chagrin Falls strawhat promoters kicking off third season June 10, probably with "Love Of Four Colonels."

Eddie Ryan, once pianist for Tommy-Jimmy Dorsey orch, shifted his jazz trio into Hotel Tudor Arms supper club.

Bob Hope, who grew up in Cleveland, returning May 8 to head benefit for widows and kids of cops and firemen killed in line of duty.

Cleveland Symphony under George Szell made tie-up with Palace's "Seven Wonders" in series of Cinerama-concert show-bus excursions from various key cities in Ohio.

Playwright Samuel Taylor coming here this summer for tryout of his "I Know My Love" by Baldwin-Wallace College strawhat group. William Allman staging drama, originally slated for Margaret Sullavan in 1948.

OBITUARIES

HERMAN HICKMAN

Herman Hickman, 46, radio-tv personality, and former Yale football coach, died April 25 in Washington.

Details in Radio-TV section.

CLARE B. KUMMER

Mrs. Clare Beecher Kummer, 85, composer, playwright and screen writer, died April 22 in Carmel, Cal. Although she wrote more than a score of plays, she first came into prominence in 1906 when she composed "Dearie." Later she wrote "Egypt" and other songs.

Her first stage success was "Good Gracious, Annabelle!" a Broadway production of 1916. Thereafter she turned out scripts more or less regularly for the next 30 years. Among her better known works were "Rollo's Wild Oat," 1920; "Annie Dear," a musical version of her earlier "Annabelle" which Florenz Ziegfeld produced in 1924, and "Her Master's Voice," a 1933 Broadway entry.

Mrs. Kummer, who was a cousin of noted actor-author William Gillette, also wrote "Three Waltzes" in collaboration with Rowland Leigh. Her last play was "Many Happy Returns," a 1944 production. In the 1920, she also wrote screenplays for the old Fox Studios.

MILTON BERGER

Milton Berger, 57, veteran agent and lately talent coordinator of "The Big Record" on CBS-TV, died of a heart attack April 25 in New York. He was stricken suddenly and died before aid could be administered.

Berger was one of the agents who had their genesis in Chicago, along with many who formed the backbone of the vaude industry in New York. He started in the publicity office of the Western Vaudeville Assn., and came to the attention of the industry when booker Charlie Freeman made him his assistant.

Upon shifting to New York, Berger was for years an independent agent, and at various times had been associated with the William Morris Agency, General Artists Corp. and Jack Davies. He also served as associate booker of the Paramount Circuit with Harry Levine. In recent years he had been operating independently and maintained his office while lining up talent for the television show.

Survived by wife, Dorothy, daughter and two grandchildren.

GEORGE E. CURRAN

George E. Curran, 55, retired stage manager of the Majestic Theatre, Boston, died April 26 in that city after several months' illness. A master stage mechanic, he was an inventor of many stage effects. He retired four years ago after years of service with the Shubert organization.

Curran went to Rome with "The Girl of the Golden West," reportedly the first time American-built scenery was sent abroad. He also traveled in Germany, Italy and France studying stage effects for the old Boston Opera House, now being demolished. The Majestic, with which he was long associated, has since been converted into the Saxon film house.

His wife survives.

THOMAS Y. BENYON

Thomas Y. Benyon, former manager of the King's Theatre, Edinburgh, Scotland, and an ex-thesper and play promoter, died April 19 in Edinburgh. He began his theatrical career in the U.S. before World War I when he toured with a vaude act. He later engaged in both auto racing and acting in South Africa.

One of Benyon's feats was a solo auto trip made as a result of a bet from London, Eng., to Calcutta, India, a distance of 8,600 miles, which he covered in 32 days. He later operated a concert party unit with the assistance of his wife, Joan, a writer of song lyrics and contributor to pantomime "books."

Survived by his wife.

PHILIP MOELLER

Philip Moeller, 78, playwright, director and a founder of the Theatre Guild, died April 26 in New York.

He directed the Guild's first play, "Bonds of Interest," in 1916 and most of the plays of Shaw and O'Neill, produced by the Guild. A graduate of Columbia University, he joined the Washington Square Players, which later became the Theatre Guild.

In 1934, he joined RKO-Radio pictures as a director. His films include "Break of Hearts" with Katharine Hepburn and Charles Boyer. He retired from the Theatre Guild in the late 1930's.

His sister survives.

ROBERT BENTLEY

Robert Bentley, 63, former stage and screen actor and a pioneer radio artist in Cincinnati, died April 19 in Benton Harbor, Mich., where he made his home with one of two sons. A character actor with the Stuart Walker Co., and National Players in dramatic stock in his early professional career, he also appeared in D. W. Griffith film productions and in plays with Otis Skinner.

He joined Cincy's WFBE, now WCPO, in 1930 as program director and doubled on parts in his own and other programs on the station until 1942. He then became radio editor of the Cincy Enquirer. Three years later he shifted to character acting with WLW, Cincinnati, and retired in 1954.

MRS. AGNES T. DAVIS

Mrs. Agnes Taylor Davis, widow of Dr. Harry Phillips Davis, radio broadcasting pioneer, died April 27 in Pittsburgh. Dr. Davis, vice-president and director of the Westinghouse Electric Corp. at the time of his death, was also the first board chairman of NBC. He worked in cooperation with the late Dr. Frank Conrad in establishing KDKA as the world's first broadcasting station in 1920.

As a memorial to her husband, Mrs. Davis sponsored the Radio Announcers Award, which for years was given annually to outstanding radio announcers in this country and in Canada.

Her daughter survives.

ELISA PEDROSO

Elisa Baptistas de Sousa Pedroso, Viscountess of Carnaxide, 84, pianist-writer known professionally as Elisa Pedroso, died April 19 in Lisbon. A top Portuguese concert artist, she had toured both Europe and the Latino countries.

Founder and subsidizer of the Circulo Cultura Musical, Miss Pedroso authored many books on music. She also was noted for her generosity to less affluent musicians.

Surviving is a son.

NICOLE LADMIRAL

Nicole Ladmiral, 27, French stage and screen actress, died last week in Paris when she either fell or jumped under a subway train. She suffered a recent nervous breakdown and was said to have been despondent. She left no note.

Miss Ladmiral almost hit stardom seven years ago in the film, "The Diary of a Country Priest." But later few roles materialized and she turned to journalism.

DON KAYE

Don Kaye, 30, musician whose real name was Donald Kaufman, was killed in an airliner crash near Las Vegas April 21. He was en route to join the Nick Esposito nitery band in Pueblo, Colo.

Parents and two children survive.

MARGARET BURKE-SHERIDAN

Margaret Burke-Sheridan, 69, former prima donna, died April 16 in Dublin. Born in Mayo, Ireland, she was orphaned at four and sent to Convent School where nuns first trained her voice.

Later noted teachers helped her and in Italy she reached prima donna rank in La Scala, Milan, for nine seasons. While there Puccini rated her the "best ever" in role of "Madame Butterfly." In recent years she had lived in retirement in Dublin.

ELSIE M. RICE

Mrs. Elsie M. Rice, wife of U. K. Rice, city manager in Winston-Salem, N.C., for the Wilby-Kincey circuit, died of a heart attack April 21 in that city. Her father, A. F. Moses, founded the Piedmont Amusement Co. Theatres some 40 years ago.

Her husband, who recently celebrated his 50th year in show business, survives.

LEWIS W. SHORT

Lewis W. Short, 83, retired actor who started his screen career with the old Biograph studios in New York in 1910, died April 26 in Hollywood. Going to the Coast in 1912, he joined the original Universal studio and appeared with such silent serial stars as Francis Ford and Grace Cunard. He retired four years ago.

Surviving are his daughter, actress Gertrude Short, and a son, agent Antrim Short.

JOHN B. COOLEY

John B. Cooley, 70, president of Minot, N. D., Broadcasting Inc., which operates Minot radio station KLPM, died of a heart attack April 26 in that city. He was a Grand Forks, N. D., and later Minot newspaperman until 1930 when he became KLPM's sole owner in which enterprise, however, he later was joined by three partners.

His wife and two daughters survive.

MARGARET M. ELDRIDGE

Mrs. Margaret Marnell Eldridge, 37, manager of literary rights for the American Broadcasting Co. since 1948, died April 25 in New York. Prior to joining ABC, she was a commentator - scriptwriter with the Canadian Broadcasting Co. from 1946-48. She also served in various assignments with radio station CHRC, Quebec, from 1942-48.

Her husband and parents survive.

RUPERT HAZELL

Rupert Hazell, 72, veteran vaude and concert party comedian, died April 18 in Hampstead, London. He wrote many comedy songs especially for George Robey. Latter's celebrated number, "I Mean Ter Say," was authored by Hazell.

Surviving is his wife, Elsie Day, who was a partner in her husband's act.

HARVEY HARDING

Harvey Harding, 46, radio-tv singer, organist, pianist and composer, died April 23 in New York. He sang and played the organ for 10 years on Mutual's radio program, "Faith in Our Times"; on his own show, "Harvey Harding Sings," and in numerous tv shows.

Two sisters survive.

CLAUDE SWEETEN

Claude Sweeten, 62, musical director of KFI, Los Angeles, from 1938 until 1950, died April 26 in Hollywood. Prior to joining KFI, he was musical director of the Golden Gate and Orphum Theatres in San Francisco.

His wife, son and daughter survive.

WILLIAM CLARK

William Clark, 59, a retired tenor who sang with La Scala of Milan, died April 20 in New York. A brother and six sisters survive.

Gilbert E. Gustafson, 52, v.p. in charge of engineering for Zenith Radio Corp. and a pioneer in the development of shortwave radio, died April 24 in River Forest, Ill. Survived by wife, daughter and three sons.

Alfredo Asensi, 74, impresario and scenic artist, died April 13 in Barcelona. Surviving is a son, Amadeo, owner of the firm of Asensi & Bartoli, makers of scenery and costumes.

Sigmund Anker, 66, first music teacher of violinist Yehudi Menuhin who taught music in San Francisco for more than three decades, died April 23 in that city. Wife, son and daughter survive.

Father, 83, of Mrs. Elmer Hasley, who operates theatres with her husband in Pittsburgh and Conneaut Lake, Pa., died April 10 in Pitt.

Mother, 65, of Mrs. Lou Hanna, whose husband is a partner in Cooperative Theatres indie booking combine in Pittsburgh, died there April 22 after a brief illness.

Albert F. Kinzeler, 73, retired operator of the Elite Theatre, Dayton, and former president of the North Dayton Amusement Co., died in that city April 20. Three daughters and two sons survive.

Louise Spencer, 44, radio-tv writer since 1936, died of a heart attack April 22 in Hollywood. Surviving are her parents and two brothers, Berkeley Spencer, actor, and Robert, tv costumer.

David K. Grant, 55, former New York stage producer, died April 24 in Hollywood. At the time of his death he was a real estate broker. His wife, daughter and mother survive.

Ernest T. Kimball, 67, onetime manager of the Modern and Queen Theatres and owner of the Granite State Theatre, all in Manchester, N. H., died April 23 in that city.

Jose Santugini, 45, screen writer who authored many scripts for Spanish films, died April 10 in Madrid. His wife survives.

Wife, 23, of Charles Pearson, announcer with station KOLE, Port Arthur, Tex., was killed April 13 in a Beaumont, Tex., auto accident.

Father-in-law, 85, of Donald Steinfirst, music critic of Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, died April 9 in that city.

Wife, 63, of vet ad-pub exec Arch Reeve, died April 24 in Hollywood. Her husband and three sons survive.

Father, 79, of editor, publicist, lyricist Morris Alin, died April 13 in New York. Wife, three daughters and three other sons survive.

Mother, 86, of Metro producer Lawrence Weingarten, died April 25 in Los Angeles.

Ted Hunt, 39, former newscaster with KROD, AM-TV, El Paso, Tex., died April 17 in that city.

Father, 75, of Milton Fenster, independent public relations counselor, died April 26 in New York.

Maria Santoncha, 85, retired actress and onetime operetta star, died April 17 in Madrid.

Ida Givanelli, 90, retired concert harpist and former coloratura soprano, died April 2 in Milan.

Mother of Marty Krauss, disk jockey at WAMO in Pittsburgh, died April 16 in that city.

Brother, 54, of the late Harry Gordon, Scot comedian, died recently in Aberdeen, Scotland.

Father, 83, of composer-conductor D'Artega, died recently in St. Louis.

Mother, 70, of actress Susan Hayward, died of a heart ailment April 14 in Hollywood.

Father of George Lee, head of Zodiac Music, died April 19 in New Haven.

Luis Porredon, 76, longtime stage and screen actor, died April 7 in Madrid.

Mother, of legit pressagent Mary March, died April 25 in Lexington, Ky.

Mother, 80, of Jack Shaindlin, musical director for Fox-Movietone News, died April 16 in New York.

MILTON BERGER

April 25, 1958

A Credit to His Profession

THE BIG RECORD STAFF

Big Response

Continued from page 4

and Canada and $52,987,463 for abroad. Last year, the respective totals were $60,299,658 and $52,481,211. Net for the year ended Dec. 28, 1957, was $6,511,218 or $2.49 per share against $6,198,419 or $2.34 in 1956.

Report showed that, late in 1957, 20th increased the borrowing under the bank credit agreement from $14,000,000 to $15,000,000, i.e. the full amount of the facility. The $1,000,000 of new money was added to working capital. The $15,000,000 debt is repayable quarterly during the years 1958 through 1962 at 3½% for the first $10,000,000 and 3⅝% for the remaining $5,000,000.

As to oil development, the report said 20th completed five additional wells in 1957 and two additional wells were started in 1958, bringing the total to 18. Royalties paid to 20th from oil drilling amounted to $309,254 in 1957. Total production value was $2,731,216.

Proxy statement proposed the same slate of directors as last year. It showed all officers and directors of 20th getting total remuneration of $1,105,795 (which includes 23 persons). Skouras gets $233,841, Moskowitz $148,119, Murray Silverstone, 20th-International prexy, $148,960, and W. C. Michel, executive v.p., $100,360.

MARRIAGES

Carol Ann Treuhaft to Al Rosenberg, New York, April 26. Bride was formerly a United Artists secretary; he's a UA publicist.

Shirley Colker to David Wander, Pittsburgh, April 20. Bride is secretary to booking agents Zeke and Tony Nicholas.

Maria Teresa Robim to Rogerio Paulo, Lisbon, April 6. He's an actor in the Teatro Nacional, Lisbon.

Joselita Alvarenga to Raul Solnado, Lisbon, April 12. Bride's a Brazilian legit actress; he's a comedian in Teatro Variedades.

Julia Barroso to Dr. Joao Xara Brasil, Lisbon, April 19. Bride's a radio-tv singer; he's an athlete-sports writer.

Mai Zetterling to David Hughes, Oxford, Eng., April 23. Bride is an actress; he's a writer.

Dorothy Vallie to Reid Lefevre, Manchester, N.H., April 18. He's owner of the King Reid Shows.

Dorothy Dean to Alex Milroy, Glasgow, Scotland, recently. Bride's a tv and stage actress.

Bea Shaw to Bruce Hayes, Dallas, April 19. She's a tv and legit actress; he's a d.j. at KFWB, Hollywood.

Mrs. Martha Michael to James Rhelos, Athens, Greece, recently. Bride owns the Rex Theatre, nabe house in Pittsburgh.

Lois Sarkin to Sherman Frank, Pittsburgh, April 19. Bride's with National Screen Service's Pitt office.

Pat Franz to Bob Colligan, New York, April 19. Bride is secretary to Jack Schneider, general manager of CBS-TV spot sales.

Barbara Roberts to Myron K. Weinberg, New York, April 27. Bride is production assistant to producers Carmen Capalbo & Stanley Chase; he's general manager of the St. John Terrell tent operations.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Varela Silva, daughter, Lisbon, April 2. Mother is fado singer Celeste Rodrigues; father is an actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Edelman, son, Chicago, April 20. Father is publicist there.

Mr. and Mrs. William Krasilovsky, daughter, Mamaroneck, N.Y., April 25. Father is legal partner of John Schulman, attorney for Songwriters Protective Assn.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Claff, daughter, Orpington, Kent, Eng., April 24. Mother is Joan Regan, vocalist; father is London Palladium box-office manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Gibbons, son, Burbank, Cal., April 24. Father is emcee at L.A. Theatre Mart.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Nelson, son, Hollywood, April 11. Father is a deejay at KABC there.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kash in Montreal, a daughter, their second. Mother is the concert lieder singer, Maureen Forrester. Father is violinist-conductor.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. New, son, Philadelphia, April 11. Mother is Ruth Lindsay, former secretary to John H. Harris, "Ice Capades" producer; father is a hotel man who becomes manager of Sheraton-Jefferson in St. Louis June 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton Silverman, daughter, Pittsburgh, April 16. Father's the son of Dave Silverman, AA exchange manager in Pitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Douglas, daughter, Chicago, April 22. Father is singer-emcee on WNBQ in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Gottstein, son, Chicago, April 23. Father is producer of Marty Faye's tv-er on WBKB in the Windy City.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Binkneys, son, Galveston, Tex., recently. Father is a staff member of KGUL-TV in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Edwards, son, Houston, Tex., recently. Father is a disk jockey on staff of KILT there.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Levitt, son, Los Angeles, April 24. Father is a screen-tv writer.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chamales, daughter, New York, April 22. Mother is vocalist Helen O'Connell, new women's editor of NBC-TV's "Today" program; father is an author.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Levy, daughter, New York, April 27. Father is son of Arch Levy, box-office treasurer at Radio City Music Hall, N.Y.

Here's the Jupiter group—a. a. p.'s latest group of feature films. Each one is a big hit, selected to give you consistent top share of audience. Not just one or two top attractions, but 52 big-star, big-production features.

Pull ratings out of the hat with Warner Bros. and Popeye Cartoons. Another big package of favorites from a. a. p., that give you the highest rated kid shows to be found anywhere.

©WARNER BROS. PICTURES, INC.

You're Insured by Lloyds of London every time you exhibit an a. a. p. film. Only a. a. p. gives you pluses like this. This policy doesn't cost you a cent, protects you against any possible claim—justified or not.

JUPITER! MAGIC! INSURANCE!

a.a.p. inc.

Distributors for Associated Artists Productions Corp.

345 Madison Ave., MUrray Hill 6-2323 NEW YORK
75 E. Wacker Dr., DEarborn 2-2030 CHICAGO
1511 Bryan St., Riverside 7-8553 DALLAS
9110 Sunset Blvd., CRestview 6-5886 LOS ANGELES